KANSAS VILLAGE IS REPORTED DESTROYED BY SUNDAY TORNADO

Plymouth Said to Have Been Wiped Out---All Wires Are Down.

Rain, Hail and Wind Do Extensive Damage in the Southwest.

Snow and Freezing Weather Prevail in Colorado and Nebraska.

Topeka, Kan., May 2.—The village of Plymouth, six miles southwest of Emporia, is reported to have been destroyed by a tornado Sunday night. Plymouth is a town of 400 persons, on the Santa Fe railway. All wires are down.

Big Area Stormswept.

Kansas City, Mo., May 2.—Last night's heavy rain and hail storm, which was general in Missouri, Eastern and Central Kansas, North Central Oklahoma, Iowa and Nebraska, demoralized telegraph and telephone service for many hours, and caused more or less damage to growing crops. In South Central Kansas six inches of rain fell, breaking a six weeks' drouth. At Wichita the rain was accompanied by a forty-four-mile wind. The hail storm in Southwestern Kansas was terrific, and the wind blew down telegraph poles and uprooted trees.

Prayer Meeting on Train.

The heavy wind drove the rain through the transom of a passenger train, flooding the floors. The passengers became frightened, and several dropped to their knees and prayed.

A tornado struck the outskirts of Emporia, Kan., last night and un-

SULLY'S ROUTE TO BE RETRACED

Historic Trip Through the Sioux Country Will Be Marked By Monuments.

Dickinson, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trail of Gen. Sully and his troops across the Missouri slope country in 1864 is to be retraced by survivors. The line of march is to be mapped, the site of the battles platted and designations made for the monuments proposed to be erected to the memory of the men who fell in the bloody struggles with the Sioux. The chief battles were fought at Killdeer mountains and Flat Top butte. Gen. Sully had 7,000 men with him when he engaged with the Indians in the first battle. After the two contests he continued his march to Glendive, Mont., where they took boats.

The two men selected for this purpose are Col. Ives of Marshalltown, S. D. and Capt. Campbell of Sentinel ..e, this state. They marched with ... and Capt. Campbell kept a diary ...e experiences. This will prove of ...t value in enabling the survivors follow the route.

ROOSEVELT SAILS FOR COPENHAGEN

...ven Bouquet By Woman the Crowd at Kiel.

Kiel, Prussia, May 2.—Theodore Roosevelt sailed this morning for Copenhagen. The party left Amsterdam at 9 o'clock last night. When their train arrived at Hamburg it was boarded by Consul-General Robert P. Skinner and the American consular staff at Hamburg, who continued to Altona, where they were received by Mr. Roosevelt during a twenty-five minutes' wait for the Copenhagen express. Arriving at Kiel, the Roosevelts were received at the railway station by Paul H. J. Sartori, the American consular agent, and the railway division superintendent. A woman in the crowd presented the former president with a bouquet. There was a brief exchange of greetings, after which the Americans were escorted to the royal waiting room, where they rested a few minutes before boarding the steamer for the Danish capital.

ELEPHANT ATTACKS CIRCUS EMPLOYES

Crushes One and Another Is Killed in Falling Off Wagon.

Marietta, Ohio, May 2.—One circus employe was killed and another fatally injured as the result of an attack of an elephant here today. Samuel Montgomery, an animal trainer, was trampled by the infuriated beast and fatally hurt. William Evans took refuge on the top of a wagon, but fell from it during the excitement, suffering a crushed skull. He died a few minutes later. Both men were residents of Louisville, Ky.

Supreme Court of United States Passes on the Oil Case.

Affirms Ruling Barring Standard Oil From That State.

Washington, May 2.—The decree of the supreme court of Tennessee, ousting the Standard Oil company of Kentucky from doing business in the state of Tennessee, was today affirmed by the supreme court of the United States.

Rules in Heike Case.

Charles B. Heike, former secretary of the American Sugar company, will be compelled to stand trial on an indictment of conspiracy to defraud the government out of sugar customs. The supreme court of the United States so decided today.

MANY GENERATIONS OF WARSHIPS MEET

Charleston Yard Sees Greatest Naval Gathering in Its History.

Boston, Mass., May 2.—Charlestown navy yard presented a gala appearance today with twenty-four naval vessels, the largest number of fighting vessels that has ever been in the yard at one time, tied up at the docks or at anchor in the stream. The ships are of all classes, from the new North Dakota of 20,000 tons displacement and one of the two largest vessels in the United States navy, down to the submarine boats of a few hundred tons.

Historically, also, the display of fighting craft was unusually significant, as it comprised a representative of nearly every period of naval construction from the old frigate Constitution to the North Dakota. Other ships at the yard are the famous old Wabash, now a receiving ship, the cruiser Chicago, pride of the first White Squadron, and the battleships Missouri and Illinois.

TUBERCULOSIS MEETING OPENS

Hundreds Attend Sessions Held at the National Capital.

Washington May 2.—Opening with a business session the sixth annual convention of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis began a two-days' meeing here today with hundreds of delegates from all parts of the country in attendance.

After the business session this morning the delegates divided and proceeded in various sections. Those divisions on the program for the day's session were the pathological and sociological sections and a meeting of the advisory council. Tomorrow's session will be devoted to the clinical section.

Spy Given Life Sentence.

Hongkong, May 2.—A Japanese spy who was caught sketching Ly-e-mun fort, at the entrance to this harbor, was sentenced today to life imprisonment.

WESTON IS NEAR GOAL

Aged Walker Starts From Yonkers on Last Lap of His Walk.

Makes Trip Across the Continent in Seventy-Seven Days.

Yonkers, N. Y., May 2.—Refreshed after his rest here over Sunday, Edward Payson Weston, the 72-year-old pedestrian, set out early today on the last twenty miles of his ocean-to-ocean walk, begun at Los Angeles, Cal., on Feb. 1 last. Despite the early hour, a crowd of several hundred persons had assembled in front of the hotel where Weston had spent the night, and it vas with difficulty that he succeeded in forcing his way through the cheering throng into the road.

He was in high spirits, and took the buffeting by the crowd with good humor. In answer to the encouraging greeting, "Bully for you, old fellow!" yelled at him by some admirers in the crowd, he retorted, in mock resentment:

"I am not an old fellow thank you; I feel like a 2-year-old."

Way Opened by Police.

An escort of police had been provided by the Yonkers authorities, and as Weston swung down the road at 7:20 o'clock, headed for the New York city line, the bluecoats opened the way for him. Behind came hundreds afoot and a long line of automobiles tooting their horns.

The feat which Edward Payson Weston brings to a happy conclusion today is unique in the annals of sport. The original program called for the covering of the distance from the Pacific to the Atlantic—approximately 3,480 miles—in ninety walking days. In the face of rains and storms, in defiance of heat and cold, undeterred by numerous minor accidents, and in the last stages

NEGRO TAKES THE PICK OF THE LAND

Choosing of Sites in Big Drawing Is Begun at Aberdeen.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 2.—Calvin Bowdry, an undersized colored man, aged 30 years, from Bismarck, N. D., stepped up to the map in the land office here this morning and put his finger on a spot where he wished to locate. In his estimation, it was the choicest piece of land in the Standing Rock and Cheyenne river reservations.

When W. J. Engel of Butte, Neb., disqualified himself by filing on another homestead before he drew No. 1, Bowdry, with No. 2, became first, and he declares that his prayer for a farm was answered.

Lars Frederickson of Glenham, S. D., has second choice, and A. M. Kennedy of Minneapolis third. The opening is proceeding under federal supervision.

The locating is in charge of Chief Clerk Wood, but Judge Witten will arrive May 14 to spend a day here.

BIG FARMERS' UNION MEETS

Week of Sessions Is Begun at St. Louis---Ninety Speeches Scheduled.

President Barrett Talks on Place of Farmer in Today's Affairs.

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—The joint convention of the Farmers' Educational & Co-operative Union of America, the American Society of Equity and 400 subsidiary organizations opened in this city this morning. Ninety addresses are on the program, which concludes Saturday night with an address by W. J. Bryan.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, will speak this afternoon, and it is expected he will outline his plans for bringing about a new political party through an affiliation of the farmers with the laboring men.

Other speakers on the day's program are: Mayor F. H. Kreismann, C. S. Barrett, Union City, Pa., president of the farmers' union; C. O. Drayton, Greenville, Ill., president of the American Society of Equity; O. F. Dornblaser, Texas; Don Farnsworth, Chicago; W. H. Wrightson, California; Nathan B. Williams, Fayetteville, Ark.;

SENSATIONAL TRIAL IS BEGUN

Mystery of "Fleet of Floaters" to Be Unravelled at Aberdeen.

Aberdeen, Wash., May 2.—Trial of William Gohl, charged with murder in the first degree in connection with the death, in or about Dec. 23, 1909, of Charles (Herman) Hadberg, or Hatberg, was begun today. Gohl's name is also connected with the slaying of John Hoffmen in the sworn confession of one Klingenberg, a sailor, who is also under arrest in connection with the crimes.

In 1907 corpse after corpse was found floating in the waters around Aberdeen and mystified the authorities, who tried to fasten the responsibility. Finally an Aberdeen saloonkeeper, in confidence, told Mayor Benn he knew enough about Billy Goohl to send him to the gallows.

"Anchor For a Pillow."

Benn associated the reference to Gohl with the "floater fleet" and instituted an investigation. A former intimate of Gohl called "Billy Montana," told the authorities Gohl had told him that "Hadberg had an anchor for a pillow at the mouth of Indian creek." Also that Gohl had said Hoffman had been "put out of business" and that Klingenberg had helped to do it. Klingenberg was arrested and made a sworn statement to prosecuting Attorney Campbell which in substance asserted that Gohl had shot Hoffmen and sunk his body in the Wishkah river and that under fear of death at Gohl's hands, and at Gohl's command, Klingenberg himself had shot Hadberg to death and that the body had been sunk with a 50-pound anchor at the mouth of Indian creek.

TAFT DENIES THAT HE HAS LETTER OF INDORSEMENT FROM ROOSEVELT URGING HIM TO RUN AGAIN IN 1912

SEEKS SEAT IN THE FRENCH PARLIAMENT

MME. MARGUERITE DURAND.

Paris, May 2.—Mme. Marguerite Durand, a well known figure in Paris society, founder of the feminist journal La Fronde and a member of the Comedie Francaise organization, has announced herself as a candidate for the chamber of deputies from the Ninth constituency of Paris. In the first move in her campaign, she laid in a stock of stunning toilettes. Part of her platform is: Equal rights and wages for men and women; equality of law for both sexes and the right of women to hold all offices for which their aptitude and capacity allow them to compete.

STRIKE AT COLUMBUS IS AT A STANDSTILL.

Columbus, Ohio, May 2.—The strike situation here is at a standstill, apparently. Some street cars were run from the barns today under the protection of police automobiles. Mayor Marshall today issued a call for 100 citizens to volunteer to help protect the cars, saying that the regular policemen are worn out.

Winnipeg Brewery Burns.

Winnipeg, Man., May 2.—The large Blackwood brewery, located in the center of this city, was destroyed by fire today. Loss, $200,000.

MRS. SWOPE TO BE LAST

State Will Finish Its Introduction of Evidence Wednesday.

Woman Is Expected to Furnish Sensations at Hyde Trial.

Kansas City, Mo., May 2.—By next Wednesday night, Prosecutor Virgil S. Conkling believes, all of the evidence of the state against Dr. B. C. Hyde will be before the jury. Under present plans only three more witnesses will testify for the prosecution after Dr. Ludwig Hekteen. These are Dr. W. S. Haines, Dr. Victor C. Vaughn and Mrs. Logan O. Swope.

The defense's cross-examination of Dr. Hektoen, it was thought at the opening of court today, would be completed in a few hours.

Mrs. Swope, who is financing, in the main, the prosecution of Dr. Hyde, will be the last state's witness. Her testimony, is thought, will be reached Wednesday. Interest now centers in her appearance on the stand, as it is believed her story will be full of human interest. When Mrs. Swope gave her deposition recently, in a civil suit brought by the accused physician, she refused to confine herself to answering the questions asked her.

The fight between Dr. Hyde's attorneys and Doctors Haines and Vaughn will center on the alleged finding of cyanide of potassium in the viscera of Col. and Chrisman Swope. The defense avers this was only an eleventh hour report made by the chemists in order to support the state's case. The charge that cyanide had been used by Dr. Hyde was not made until Attorney James A. Reed delivered the opening statement for the prosecution.

NEGROES AND CHINESE FIGHT

One Oriental Killed in Chicago Chop Suey House---White Woman Rescued.

Chicago, May 2.—During a free-for-all fight between negroes and Chinese in a chop suey restaurant here early today a Chinaman known as Little Wong was killed, slashed by a razor. Roy Howard, a negro, was arrested.

The fight started over payment of a bill and became general between the two races. Police responding to a riot call rescued a number of white women who had been unable to escape while the fight was on.

PRINTED IN WASHINGTON

Report Is That Root and Loeb Also Have Heard From Him.

Loeb Denies Knowledge of Being Boomed to Succeed Hughes.

Ex-President Is Said to Be Planning His Own Retirement.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 2.—When President Taft was informed today of the story published in Washington as to letters said to have been received by him, and was asked if he had received any communication from Mr. Roosevelt he shook his head.

"No," he added.

Loeb Knows of No Boom.

New York, May 2.—William Loeb, Jr., merely smiled when he was asked today about the letters Theodore Roosevelt is said to have written to President Taft, Senator Root and himself. He was unwilling to say anything for publication, but he made it clear to his friends that he knew nothing of the letters or of any plans of Mr. Roosevelt involving his own political future. He expressed the opinion that he

PROBE ELECTION OF MR. LORIMER

Grand Jurors Take Up That Case and Railroad Bribery Charges.

Chicago, May 2.—A special county grand jury convened today to hear evidence in the Chicago & Western Indiana railroad alleged grafting scandal and "other matters." Included under the head of "other matters" will probably be the presentation of evidence by State's Attorney Wayman looking toward indictments in connection with charges of bribery in the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate last May. While the jury has been called primarily for the purpose of investigating the Chicago & Western Indiana scandal, the alleged Lorimer bribing case will probably occupy the center of the stage.

Mr. Wayman spent the major portion of yesterday in conferences relative to the Chicago & Western Indiana case. He had several secret meetings with persons interested in forcing the airing of the entire scandal, which involves the alleged use of $212,000 for the buying of municipal and state legislation favorable to the interests of the railroad.

RANGE BLOWS UP; WOMAN IS KILLED

Italian Is Thought to Have Put Dynamite in Pile of Kindling.

Philadelphia, May 2.—Mrs. Yetta Friedman, 70 years old, was killed today by an explosion of what is believed to have been dynamite in the range at her home at 712 South Randolph street in this city. Several other persons were injured and the house was badly damaged. It is believed that the explosive was placed in the fuel by enemies.

The police believe the explosive was placed in kindling wood by an Italian, who with his family formerly rented rooms from the Friedmans. The Italian family left the house about a week ago after a quarrel.

The aged woman was hurled through a doorway into a sleeping room adjoining the kitchen and was so injured that she died within a short time. Her husband was also hurt. Two children sleeping in a room over the kitchen were thrown from bed and slightly injured.

The explosion occurred while Mrs. Friedman was preparing breakfast.

MINNESOTANS ATTEND MEETING OF DOCTORS.

Washington, May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The National Association of Physicians and Surgeons began its annual meeting here today. Among those attending are Dr. A. M. Bracken, secretary of the Minnesota state board of health; Dr. J. E. Moses of Minneapolis and Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester.

Favors Hughes' Appointment.

Washington May 2.—The senate judiciary committee today decided to report favorably the nomination of Charles E. Hughes to be associate justice of the supreme court of the United States.

MOVING DAY.

MOVING DAY IN DULUTH

Tenants of the Alworth Building Occupy Their New Offices.

Northern National Bank Moves to Handsome New Quarters.

Today is official moving day although many people who were anxious to get settled in their new locations in order to be open for business this morning, prevailed upon the van men to move their effects yesterday and last evening.

In the downtown district all roads lead to the Alworth building, which has made inroads into the tenants of the other office buildings in the vicinity. The tallest structure in the city was lighted to the top until about midnight last night, the first occupants of the different offices mingling with the carpenters and painters, who were finishing up their work.

The Northern National bank moved from its former location in the old Herald building yesterday and this morning was doing business in the fine new quarters on the first floor of the Alworth building.

The new building is about completed. The painters and carpenters still have considerable work to do in the way of finishing, but all of the offices for which leases have been signed are ready for occupancy and the failure of the contractors to wholly complete the work will delay nobody.

Rental agents say that the tenants drawn away from the other buildings by the Alworth building will not leave many vacancies in other buildings, for offices have been in demand in Duluth for some months and leases have been signed for most of the offices vacated this spring.

There is considerable moving on the part of business people in the downtown district. The Bradley building at Second avenue west and Superior street is occupied this morning.

The van men say that the volume of moving on the part of householders is somewhat less this year than it has been in former years. There is, of course, considerable moving, as there is every spring, but rental agents have shown a disposition to hold desirable tenants, even if it is necessary to make concessions, and consequently many people will hold their locations for another year.

ACCOUNTS SAID TO BE SHORT

James McDonald Arrested in Superior on Complaint of Former Employer.

James McDonald was arrested at the Savoy theater, Superior, by Detectives Terry and Toewe last evening on a warrant charging him with embezzling about $100 from J. J. Haley, proprietor of the Frederick hotel, where he was recently employed as day clerk. It is claimed that McDonald caused his accounts to be checked by failing to put in an appearance, and that the discovery of the alleged shortage resulted. He is a married man with a family, residing on East Second street.

Before he was arraigned this morning, Mr. Haley decided not to prosecute him on account of his family and other extenuating circumstances, and he was released by the police.

THOUGHT BURGLAR HAD FIRED SHOT

The gentleman was sick but not suffering.

Medical investigators have said that intoxication is a disease. So probably he was just a bit ailing.

Anyway, when he went to his room in the Lenox hotel and tucked himself into the bed, he noted with a feeling of annoyance that the electric light still burned. The guest, be it known, has had years of experience with electric lights. So it must have been his illness that confused his mental processes. At any rate, he couldn't for the life of him put out that light.

Mistakenly believing that he could not go to sleep while the light burned, he carefully enshrouded the globe in a towel and then returned to his couch, where he soon drifted off into the sleep of the just pickled.

Suddenly there was a loud sound, like that made by a pistol when it is fired off. Mr. Guest, only half awake, bounded out of bed and grabbed his revolver out of his grip.

"Come on, you," he called out bravely. "I'll fix you. Shoot at a man when he's sleepin', will you? Where are you, coward?"

No answer.

The man waited awhile, and then, glancing in a puzzled way at the weapon he held in his hand, he put it away and crawled back to bed.

In the morning particles of glass that littered the floor showed that the towel covering the electric light globe had in some manner caused an explosion.

NEW FIGHT FOR MORSE IS BEGUN

Littleton Asks Leave to File a Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Washington, May 2.—Another fight for the freedom of Chrles W. Morse, the New York ice king who is serving a fifteen-year sentence in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., was begun today in the supreme court of the United States, when Martin W. Littleton asked leave to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. Morse was convicted of misapplication of the funds of the National Bank of North America, and of making false entries in the books of the bank.

Four reasons are given why the sentence should be set side. It is contended that Morse did not have trial by an impartial jury, because the jury, during the trial, was placed in the exclusive custody of special agents of the department of justice; that one of the jurors, who is named, was not mentally qualified; that the trial court submitted to the grand jury an offense not charged in the indictment; and that the judgment is five years in excess of what the statute authorizes on one count of the indictment.

These points are discussed by Mr. Littleton in a brief.

MILWAUKEE FIREMAN IS KILLED AT RHAME, N. D.

Bowman, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Fields, a fireman of a gravel train on the Milwaukee road, was instantly killed at Rhame. He attempted to cross a track in the gravel pit in front of a locomotive, and when directly in the middle of the track became confused, attempting to turn back to the side he started when he was struck by the engine. Fields was only 18 years old and had come from England eight months previously.

Seek Pardon for "Sinbad."

Stillwater, Minn., May 2.—A determined effort is to be made to secure favorable consideration of an application for the pardon of Charles Price, a convict at the Minnesota state prison, familiarly known as "Sinbad the Sailor," because of yarns which he spins of his seafaring days, who is serving a life sentence.

At the recent fire in the Northwest Thresher company's shops, east of the prison, Price did heroic work in preventing the fire from communicating to the prison and the residence of Warden Wolfer. His arms were burned and blistered, but he paid no attention to his own suffering.

Hook and Line Fishing Starts.

Bemidji, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The open season for hook and line fishing was very auspiciously ushered in here Sunday, when many of the able bodied population of the city sought favorite spots on Lake Bemidji or some of the tributaries of that body where fine catches of pike, pickerel and perch were made.

FLOOD OF RESPONSES

Many People Missed By Enumerators, Sending Schedules By Mail.

Books of the Census Will Be Open Until Thursday Night.

Thousands of Duluth people have not yet been included in the census.

If you have neither seen an enumerator nor filled out an individual schedule, you are among the number.

The books of the census will be open until Thursday night to take care of mail and telephone communications.

No postage is required on mail addressed to "Census Office—Official Business."

Use the accompanying coupon if you think you haven't been counted.

Ask the central for the census office. It isn't necessary to look up the number.

Use the telephone to determine whether your family and friends have been counted.

Have you been counted?

Has every member of your family been counted?

Have your servants been counted?

Have your roomers been counted?

Have you any rented houses or rooms in which the people may have been missed?

How about your relatives, friends and neighbors?

Do you think of any absent ones who will not be counted unless you report them?

Hundreds of individual and family schedules and coupons cut from the newspapers have been showered on the census office in the Commercial club through the mails yesterday and today.

The statement in The Herald Saturday that thousands of people in Duluth have been missed by the enumerators was not overdrawn, as the flood of mail communications and the number of telephone calls yesterday and to-day show. Hundreds of people have responded to the appeal to get into the count if the enumerators failed to locate them, but there are many, who have not yet responded.

The office of the census department and the books of the census will be kept open until 12 o'clock midnight Thursday and after that time, no name can be placed on the books.

If any person didn't see an enumerator during the census period and has not filled out a schedule since Saturday night, that person has been missed in the count and it is his duty to call up the census bureau or fill out the accompanying coupon and mail it.

Today, special workers, who have volunteered their services or who have been put on duty by the Real Estate exchange or other bodies interested in securing an accruate count of the city, are at work in the wholesale houses and office buildings seeking out those who have not been counted by the regular census enumerators. They have a supply of schedules and individual slips, they furnish to those who have not been counted. The schedules will be mailed to the census office and it is expected that hundreds of people, who have not been included in the regular count will be sought out and enumerated in that way.

The census officials are vigorously working to secure data on absent individuals and families. Where people can be reached by mail, slips are being sent them. In case anybody in the city has the desired information on people out of the city, they are reached when possible and the information secured.

The census office this morning received one schedule by mail from Boston, Mass., and another from San Francisco, Cal., so the entire country from coast to coast is being covered in the interests of the Duluth census.

The census officials are just as anxious as anybody to secure an accurate and complete census of Duluth.

"We have done everything in our power to secure a complete census of Duluth and we hope that before the books are closed Thursday night, we will have done our work well," said Supervisor B. L. Hollister, this morning. "We admit that we have missed many people, but that is to be expected. Nobody can take a census without missing some. But if the people who have been missed will go to a little trouble, they can be included in the count. If anybody fails to get in now, it is his own fault. We believe we have done our part."

Mr. Hollister and Assistant Supervisor J. W. Allen were on duty today, taking care of telephone calls and receiving mail communications. Mrs. Ethel Forgy was at work sorting, classifying and checking up schedules received by mail and the three will be engaged in the work until the office is closed, Thursday night.

It is expected that the special workers and the mail communications will get almost everybody into the count by Thursday night. It is now up to the people. The government officials want to include everybody. The man who is missed has only himself to blame.

PACKERS DEMUR TO INDICTMENTS

Say Charges Made By the Grand Jury Are Too Vague.

Chicago, May 2.—Counsel for the National Packing company and its subsidiary concerns, recently indicted on a charge of conspiracy of restraint of trade, filed demurrers in the United States district court here today before Judge Landis.

The demurrers attack the indictment, alleging that it is vague, and declare that the allegations therein do not constitute unlawful acts.

SENATORIAL CANDIDATE TO OPEN CAMPAIGN THIS WEEK.

Forman, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Edward Engerud of Fargo, candidate for the United States senate, has announced that he will open his speaking campaign in Sargent county this week. He speaks at Rutland and Milnor on Tuesday and Wednesday evening. Mr. Engerud promises to make the entire state between now and the primary election.

QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED.

1. Your name in full.....
2. Relationship to the head of the family with which you live .....

(Write boarder, lodger, or servant, or wife, son, daughter, or whatever word describes the relationship.)

3. Sex .....
4. Color or race.....

(Write white, or black (If you are a full-blooded negro) or mulatto (if you are not a full-blooded negro but have some proportion of negro blood), or Chinese, or Japanese, or Indian, as the case may be.)

5. Age at last birthday.....

(For children not yet 2 years old, age should be given in completed months, expressed as twelfths of a year. Thus, if a child is three months and some days old, the age should be given as 3-12; if 1 year and 2 months old, as 1 2-12. If not yet one month old, give age as 0-12.)

If of foreign birth:

14. In what year did you immigrate to the United States?
15. Have you been naturalized?...

(If you have been naturalized, either by taking out second or final papers of naturalization or through the act of your father, write "Yes;" if you have only declared your intention to become an American citizen and have taken out first papers, write first paper; if you have done neither, write "No.")

16. Can you speak English?.....
17. If not able to speak English, what is your native language or mother tongue?
18. What is your trade, profession, or usual occupation?

(Answer so as to indicate the kind of work you perform; say, for instance, spinner, salesman, laborer, clerk.)

19. In what industry or business are you engaged?.....

(Answer so as to indicate the general character of the industry or business in which you are employed or with which you are connected; say, in cotton mill, dry goods store, on farm, insurance, in a bank, or whatever may be appropriate.)

20. State whether you are an employer, or a worker for wages, or a salary (employe), or are working on your own account without employing others?.....

(Write employer if you employ any persons other than domestic servants in your own business; write worker if an employe working for wages or a salary; write own account if engaged in any business or occupation, without being either an employer or an employe.)

If you are an employe (worker), answer the two following questions (if an employer or working on your own account omit these questions):

21. Were you out of work April 15, 1910?.....
22. How many weeks were you out of work during the year 1909? .....

(The expression "out of work" means not able to find work or employment. Persons who are on a strike, or are voluntarily idle, or on a vacation, or are incapacitated for work because of sickness or physical disability are not to be considered "out of work" in the sense in which the words are here used.)

23. Are you able to read (either English or some other language)? .....
24. Are you able to write (either English or some other language)? .....
25. Have you attended school or any educational institution any time since Sept. 1, 1909?

If you are the head of the family living in this home, state:

26. Whether the home is owned by you or rented.....
27. If owned by you, is it mortgaged? .....
28. Were you in either the Union or Confederate army or navy at the time of the Civil war?.....

(If answer is "Yes," write "U. A." for Union army, "U. N." for Union navy, "C. A." for Confederate army, or "C. N." for Confederate navy.)

29. Are you blind (both eyes)?

(Answer should be "Yes" if the person can not see to read with the aid of glasses; otherwise, answer "No.")

30. Are you deaf and dumb?.....

BUSY WEEK AT BETHANY CHURCH

Swedish Lutherans Plan Many Meetings Within Next Few Days.

A busy week is planned for the congregation of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street.

Mrs. Charles A. Hammer of 3627 Coates street, will entertain the Westra society of the church, at her home on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

On Wednesday evening, the Tabitha society of the congregation will be entertained at the home of Mrs. H. Iverson of 2310 West Third street. A good program has been arranged for the occasion.

Mrs. Frank Peterson and Mrs. Charles Sandberg will be hostesses to the ladies' aid society at the church parlors, Wednesday afternoon. A program will be given and refreshments will be served.

The mid-week services which are usually held on Wednesday have been postponed until Thursday evening. Thursday is Ascension Day.

The Busy Bee society will be entertained at the church Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Henry Johnson.

Yesterday the pastor, Rev. C. G. Olson organized a confirmation class of fifty-seven members.

PASTOR IS SORRY FOR THE WEALTHY

Rev. M. O. Stockland Preaches Sermon on "Mistaken Visions."

"I am sorry for many of our great money kings," said Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, Twenty-second avenue west and Second street, in a sermon yesterday. "I am sorry for some of the men at the head of our great financial enterprises. Some act as though they were going to stay with it always. They work so hard, sacrifice so much, and what does it amount to in the end? Their final resting place will be as dark and gloomy as is the resting place of the pauper buried from the poorhouse. The blunder these people are making is not that they seek wealth and honors and the good things of the world, but that they seek these things only and neglect the greater things, such as true manhood, unselfishness and the spirit of service.

"Isaiah also had a vision of himself. And we need that. Most of us blunder in that we measure ourselves by ourselves. We set man over against man, and class over against class. Alongside of debauchery of many, we are very decent. Alongside of the vile, we are virtuous. And so society is divided up into what we call good and bad, pure and impure, Godlike and demonlike. And the result is that most of us become satisfied with our attainments—all because we have set up too low a standard. The cabin of a poor laborer is a palace compared with the Indian wigwam; but how mean it seems by the side of some of the homes in Duluth. Get God's view of life and its mission; His purpose concerning you and His estimate of your actual ability as you are linked to His plan for the world, and you will have a holy ambition to excel."

SEWER ASSESSMENTS SUBJECT OF DEBATE.

May property-owners be assessed the cost of laying a storm sewer, the petition for which was made to the board of public works before the charter amendment was passed?

This will be the main topic for discussion at a mass meeting of residents along Twenty-seventh avenue west from Huron to Fifth streets this evening at the voting booth Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street.

The sewer with outlets into Miller's creek from Third street and Huron street alleys, was laid last fall. Before the assessment was made, the charter amendment was passed providing that the city shall bear the expense of all storm sewers.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Concert at Columbia Hall Draws a Big Crowd Sunday.

Fully 600 people were in attendance at the concert last evening given at Columbia hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street by the well known Swedish folk lore interpreter, Madam Hilda Hellstrom Gagnee of Stockholm, Sweden, assisted by J. O. Ostergren of Providence, R. I.

The program was a splendid one, reflecting much credit on the lodge, Swedish Sons of America, Order of Vasa, under the auspices of which the affair was held. Madam Gagnee is an accomplished singer and she is ably assisted in her work by Mr. Ostergren, a tenor of note.

This is the first entertainment that the Swedish United Sons have given this year.

Brooks Funeral Held.

The funeral of O. J. Brooks, who died Friday at the home of his brother-in-law, Dr. C. E. French of 320 North Twenty-seventh avenue west, was held this morning with interment at Park Hill cemetery.

Brooks was 38 years old and is survived by a widow and three children, two daughters and a son. He came to the West end six months ago from Marinette, Wis. He was in ill health at the time and never recovered.

West End Shortrails.

C. Bradeson of Twenty-ninth avenue west left yesterday for a visit in Illinois.

Miss Olga Haugen left yesterday for Europe, where she will spend the summer.

Carl Thiseth of 2514 West Second street, who left last evening for a visit at his home in Christiana, Norway, was a guest at a farewell party at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Edward Erickson of 2510 West Second street.

Miss Elsie Gottschald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gottschald of 305 Garfield avenue, was taken to St. Mary's hospital yesterday afternoon to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

The Epworth League Sewing Circle of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church will hold its May sale of fancy articles tomorrow evening at the church parlors, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street. During the evening the young ladies will serve refreshments.

M. M. Rude of Aitkin, Minn., is a guest at the home of his son, Martin Rude of 1909 West Superior street.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustav G. Johnson, who were married Saturday, will make their home at 2112 West Third street. Mrs. Johnson was formerly Miss Anna K. Anderson. The marriage took place Saturday afternoon at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. J. J. Daniels of the Swedish Mission church.

Miss Lillian Schell is visiting with friends at Lindstrom, Minn., for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carlson of 2023 West Second street are the parents of a baby son, born yesterday.

Marritt Helm of Tower, Minn., visited friends yesterday at the West end.

St. Cloud Has $10.000 Fire.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 2.—A fire of supposed incendiary origin Saturday evening destroyed the stone polishing sheds of the Jones Bros. The loss is about $10,000, which is only partially covered by insurance. It is said that the firm will rebuild at once. Twenty-five men are temporarily thrown out of employment.

TAX PAYERS TO GET $5,000,000

Spanish War Legacy Levies Ruled on By Court of Claims.

Washington, May 2.—The court of claims today rendered a decision holding that a certain line of tax collections on legacies made as a result of legislation enacted to carry on the Spanish-American war should be refunded. The decision means the return to the taxpayers of about $5,000,000.

LUMBER DEALERS RESTRAIN TRADE

Washington, May 2.—By affirming the decision of the supreme court of Mississippi, the supreme court of the United States today made permanent the injunction against the future operation of the Retail Lumber Dealers' association of Mississippi and Louisiana as being in restraint of trade.

ALGONQUIN CLUB MEMBERS WILL KEEP AGREEMENT MADE FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

MEMBERS OF THE OLD ALGONQUIN CLUB.

On July 4, 1895, seven Duluth men signed an agreement to meet fifteen years from that date on the steps of the Zenith city postoffice. The fifteen years will be up on July 4 of this year and at present, indications are that six of the men will be there.

Some of the men have moved away. Some are in one part of the country and some in another. Three of them are still in Duluth and they will soon meet for the purpose of discussing plans for the entertainment of the visitors.

The unusual agreement was made between the seven original members of the Algonquin club. The club was maintained at 130 West Third street where the members lived. They employed their own housekeeper and kept bachelor quarters in every sense of the word. Such good times did they have together that it was agreed when the first man was about to break away—to get married—that they would meet in fifteen years' time.

The members of the club who were in on the agreement were:

Charles Josten "Dan" Mahoney, A. C. Pearson, Charles Goodrich, Louis Goldnamer, R. L. Knebel and A. M. Barsness.

The first three named are the ones who still reside in the city. Mr. Pearson, who at that time was circulation manager of The Herald, is now credit manager for French & Bassett. Charles Josten is with the Commercial club and Mr. Mahoney is with the American Exchange bank.

R. L. Knebel is superintendent of the Wilmar division of the Great Northern railway. He is located at Sioux City, Iowa. A. M. Barsness is with Gates & Co. New York city. Louis Goldnamer, is with the firm of that name and located at Elizabethtown, Ky. Charles Goodrich, who was for years with M. S. Burrows when he had the Great Eastern Clothing company, was later with the Columbia store, and of late has been in California where he went for his health.

With the exception of Mr. Goodrich, who is in poor health, it is expected that all who signed the contract will be on hand.

The Agreement.

At the time the agreement was made the men shook hands heartily on it, had their pictures taken, and each promised, if in good health, to be on hand at the time stated.

The agreement follows:

"Duluth, Minn., July 4, 1910.

"If we, the undersigned, members of the Algonquin club, live and are in good health, we promise faithfully to meet at the main entrance of the postoffice of Duluth, Minn., on July the 4th, 1910, at 12 o'clock noon.

(Signed.)

A. M. BARSNESS.
CHARLES JOSTEN.
LOUIS GOLDNAMER.
CHARLES GOODRICH.
J. D. MAHONEY.
R. S. KNEBEL.
A. C. PEARSON."

Mr. Knebel was the first to leave the club. He was married. A. C. Pearson was the next to marry, and the others drifted off to other parts of the country, although they always let the Duluth men know where they were located.

In speaking of the agreement this morning, one of the Duluth men said: "You know, fifteen years seemed an awful long time then. It doesn't look that way now, that the years are gone. We wanted to keep track of one another, for we had such a good time when we were living together. Each one of us had great hopes for the future, as all young men have, and we wanted to know how we would all look and how the world has gone with the others, fifteen years later. We had our pictures taken then, so that we could remember ourselves as we were. We will have our pictures taken when we get together this time. It is a nice idea, and we all look forward to the meeting."

The Duluth men are to make plans for the outside members of the club. They will be shown a good time, and be royally entertained. Old times will be talked over, and many a laugh caused when some of the incidents of fifteen years ago are brought up.

The name Algonquin was taken from one of the first boats that sailed the lakes and made the port of Duluth. For many years she lay wrecked near the Superior entry.

COATS---New and Different.

"Coat stocks are now at high tide."

Russian semi-belted effects and plain tailored styles, and many innovations in the higher priced one-of-a-kind models. Unique pipings, roll and sailor collars, faced with foulard (that whisper the coat is lined with same silk) are among the "Advance Season" styles.

A DECIDED FAVORITE is lined thruout with rich foulard—with sailor collar, foulard facing, and gilt buttons, at $37.50.

Blue Serge Coats

COATS OF BLUE SERGE, with roll and sailor collars—½ lined, with foulard: collar silk faced and queer brass buttons, $32.50.

BLUE SERGE COATS—Full lined, with foulard and strictly tailored, at $39.50—Others at $29.50.

A NEW S. & B. CO. MODEL OF BLUE SERGE—Semi-fitting—body lined with foulard—and shawl collar faced with the silk, at $25.00.

BLACK AND WHITE CHECKED COATS—With more style about them than words can tell, at $21.50 to $35.00.

SILK COATS and models of CRAVENETTED SILK—$21.50 and $27.50.

BLACK SILK CRAVENETTE CAPES—Full length, with military collars, at $18.50.

"Latter-Day" Suit Styles

are trailing in steadily these days.

Tho you usually associate S. & B. Co. Suits — as the creme of the suit world—you will find a remarkable collection of the popular priced styles at this store.

They show the high-class tailoring of the higher priced models—being made up by the same people.

The magnitude of the Suit Stocks—"while embracing all the new modes as they appear—is "held in leash" by the "conservative" style policy of this store.

From the severely tailored models at $25 and $29.50, to the most elaborate costumes of the day—ranging up to $75.00 and as high as you care to go.

Materials cover a wide field—including sharkskin cloth, new homespuns; diagonal weaves and worsteds.

The Exceptional Suit Sale.

Made up of broken sizes from April stocks offered choice picking Saturday and today for economical women who took advantage of the opportunity. A limited assortment of the best values are still here—

$29.50, $32.50 and $35 TAILORED SUITS now $25.
$40, $43.50 and $45 TAILORED SUITS now $35.

Important Glove Sale.

A little story of a special purchase of "Manufacturer's Odds and Ends" that are without flaw or blemish. The only thing that is a trifle extraordinary—is that while these Kid and Mocha Gloves would under ordinary circumstances sell for $1.25 a pair—they are on sale here tomorrow, at 50¢. All sizes—of course! And all the new colors.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

On the Thirteenth.

Friday, the 13th, has no terrors for the Svea Republican Club of Duluth, for on that date the club is to give a banquet which is expected to prove one of the events of the season for Head of the Lakes Republicans. Governor Eberhart, Attorney General George T. Simpson, President Frank Nelson of Minnesota college, James P. Boyle of Eveleth and O. J. Larson will be the speakers. State Treasurer Dinehart was invited to be one of the speakers, but he was unable to accept. He replied that he appreciated the compliment, but all his dates for May are taken. He is a candidate for congress from the Second district, and has his hands full trying to dislodge W .S. Hammond from his seat.

Mr. Boyle is one of the younger Republicans of fthe county who has made rapid progress to a place of prominence in the ranks of the party on the range. He has been urged to become a candidate for county attorney this year, but has not made up his mind to do so.

Friday evening the several committees having charge of the arrangements for the banquet will meet in Kalamazoo hall, when the program will be finally determined upon and the subjects assigned the speakers.

The banquet will be held at the St. Louis hotel.

St. Louis County G. O. P.

The St. Louis county Republican committee has issued a call for the county convention to select delegates to the state convention. The county meeting will be held at Hibbing, June 17, and the state convention at St. Paul, June 21. It is a foregone conclusion that the St. Louis delegation will go to the capital with war paint on, determined to land the nomination for state treasurer for Mayor Walter J. Smith of Eveleth. St. Louis county will have forty-three delegates to the convention, which will have a total membership of 1,069.

Kane vs. Stevens.

The Democrats of St. Paul held a rousing meeting in the auditorium in that city Saturday night to ring down the curtain on the municipal campaign that has been in progress there for some weeks and one of the most interesting addresses heard was that of Thomas R. Kane, Democratic nominee for the assembly. Mr. Kane's popularity was attested by the spontaneous enthusiasm shown by the audience when he arose to speak and by the thunders of applause that punctuated his remarks. The Pioneer Press, in its story of the meeting, says:

"The greatest interest in his remarks, however, came from a sentence which was construed by those who heard him to be a virtual announcement that he will be in the race this fall for congress against Fred C. Stevens of this city.

"He announced that he would not on this occasion go into the mater of the campaign from a purely partisan standpoint, and followed this by saying that at another time he might to see fit to place before the public in its true light the broken pledges which have recently marked the progress of the Republican party.

"This statement was caught immediately by the many politicians who were present, and was warmly applauded, and was regarded by many of them as being a virtual announcement that he will be in the congressional fight this fall."

Well!!!!! The Rush City Post remarks: "Senator Moses E. Clapp is developing into first-class presidential timber."

Kaiser and Sheehy.

The claims of two candidates for the Republican nomination for state treasurer are eloquently pleaded by papers published in their respective sections of the state. Concerning the candidacy of Al Kaiser of Bagley, the Crookston Times says:

"The rank and file in the Republican party in this section are watching the progress of the political game in Minnesota closer than ever before. Some things have transpired in the past which makes them do this. Mr. Kaiser will be a tower of strength in this portion of Minnesota, as they will know that his selection is a selection of the people and not the result of political wire pulling and juggling. They want him to be the Ninth district man and want to see the balance of the ticket composed of just as clean and able men. If this comes to pass there is no question as to the outcome next fall.

"While there are other candidates mentioned for this district for other positions on the same ticket, men who are well known and who are popular in their particular section, there is not a man who will get the support that will be accorded Mr. Kaiser, voluntary and enthusiastic support, not secured by any sharp political practice."

The praises of John Sheehy are sung by the Le Sueur News. Sheehy is a resident of Montgomery, where his is a merchant and grain buyer and president of the First State bank. The narrative continues:

"He is serving his twenty-first year as postmaster of his town, and for twenty-five years has been the state treasurer of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. In seeking state honors, Mr. Sheehy did not jump into the breach without considering the consequences and knowing that there was a new man to be selected for the place. He has long been associated with politics and politicians, and has among his intimate friends many men who have been instrumental in shaping the political destiny of the state in the past. From them and from many others he is constantly in receipt of words of encouragement. Le Sueur county will present him as her candidate. It is one of the old valley counties never honored with a place on the state ticket. This time it expects to win, and bases its hope on a partial state canvess of the situation."

In the Sixty-First.

There are three candidates for the Republican nomination for senator in the Sixty-first district, A. L. Hanson, who was a member in the last legislature; Albert Berg of Spooner, who once was secretary of state, and Al H. Jester of Bemidji, who insists that he is a farmer and is being called upon to prove it.

Senator Hanson has not declared his candidacy for re-election, but there is not the slightest doubt that he will do so. He has been visiting different parts of the district of late and, it is said, has been urged by many of his friends to ask the voters to return him to the senate.

Mr. Berg is one of the best known Republicans in his part of the state and report has it that he stands a very good show of running away with the nomination, if he cares to make a fight for it.

Mr. Jester recently resented a statement published in the Thief River Falls News to the effect that as a farmer he was a jest, and the News said:

'Jester states that he has sixty acres under cultivation, and, owing to the fact that he hires a man and woman, it is not necessary for him to live upon the farm in the winter time, but his legal residence is on the farm. He keeps summer guests in order to create a market for his produce, and also mentions the fact that he shipped in 1906 some twenty-five bushels of seed potatoes to Thief River Falls for which he received $1.50 per bushel. We certainly have no desire to do Mr. Jester any injustice, but it is a matter of general report throughout this section that Mr. Jester derives his living as the proprietor of a summer resort, and that his farming operations are for the purpose of catering to the wants of his guests."

IS ARRESTED AT SEATTLE

Madame Mellie Is Alleged to Have Swindled Duluth People.

Fortune Tellers Have Fleeced Credulous Patrons Out of Big Sums.

Fortune tellers have buncoed many Duluth people, getting considerable money out of them at various times, according to the police.

Women seem to have been the easiest victims and they have caught them on all kinds of baits from acquiring wealth for them to curing their husbands of drunkenness. One woman even went so far as to give up all the money she had as well as part of her clothes in the belief that her husband could be driven from the drink habit by the mediums powers.

Chief Troyer received word this morning that Madame Mellie is under arrest at Seattle. The authorities there want to know if the local police want her. She operated at 26 Fourth avenue west and is said by the police to have been one of the most unscrupulous seeresses who ever visited Duluth. It is claimed that she would take anything offered to her from dollars to pennies.

They are trying to locate one woman who complained that she had been badly swindled by Madame Mellie. If they can find her to get a complaint they will probably be able to bring her back from the coast to stand trial on a criminal charge.

She is a sister to Madame Vonger, who is said to have taken over $300 away from John Korhonen of Moose Lake, promising to put the money on a planet for him. In this manner, she told Korhonen, it is said, that he would become wealthy as well as healthy. She had her place on Third avenue west opposite the Y. M. C. A. building.

GOLF EVENTS OF SEASON

Complete Program for Summer Issued By Northland Club.

Season Will Open May 14 and Close on Oct. 15.

The golf schedule, issued today by the golf committee of the Northland Country club, composed of C. S. Wilson, T. W. Hoopes and R. T. Goodell, outlines a most active season for the members of the Duluth club.

The regular season will open May 14, with the two ball sweepstakes medal play, handicap, and will close Oct. 15, with the president's and vice president's match.

Increased interest is taken in golf this present season, apparently, and with some new members who are said to be very strong players, the Northland Country club will soon enter upon what promises to be the greatest season ever enjoyed by that club.

Following is the schedule for the season:

May 14—Two ball sweepstakes medal play, handicap. First and second prizes.

May 21.—Match play against bogey handicap.

May 28—Spring handicap; eighteen holes qualifying round; first sixteen qualify for play. Finals must be played prior to July 4.

May 30—Eighteen holes, medal play; handicap.

June 4—Spring championship. Qualifying round, 18 holes; sixteen best scores to compete at scratch match play for club championship. Sixteen to compete at scratch match play for first flight club.

June 11—Two ball sweepstakes, medal play, handicap. First and second prizes.

June 16—Tom Morris memorial cup. Special circular will be sent to members of the team.

June 18—Kickers handicap.

June 25—Four ball match, medal play handicap. Each partner to play with his individual Bogey handicap. Best eighteen holes to be selected from two cards as a medal play score.

July 2—Match play against Bogey, handicap.

July 4 — Short stop tournament. Qualifying and match rounds, nine holes. Qualifying in flights of eight for match play scratch. Ties in qualifying rounds to be settled by lot. A trophy is offered for each division.

July 9—Putting contest, nine holes, on putting green.

July 16—Eighteen holes medal play, handicap.

July 23—Mixed foursome medal play, handicap. Each partner to play with his individual Bogey handicap. Best eighteen holes to be selected from the two cards as a medal play score.

July 25—Western amateur championship, Minnikahda club, Minneapolis.

July 30—Bogey handicap, match play.

Aug. 6—Eighteen holes medal play, handicap, for cup presented by Mr. G. G. Barnum.

Aug. 13—See bulletin board.

Aug. 20—Fall championship. Qualifying round eighteen holes. Sixteen best scores to compete at scratch play for club championship. Second sixteen to compete at scratch match play for first flight cup.

Aug. 27—Eighteen holes, medal play, handicap.

Sept. 3—Fall handicap, eighteen holes qualifying round. First sixteen qualify for match play handicap. Finals must be played not later than Oct. 8.

Sept. 5—Labor day, president's trophy. Match play against bogey, handicap, for trophy presented by president of the club.

Sept. 10—Bogey handicap, match play.

Sept. 17 — Two-ball sweepstakes Medal play, handicap. First and second prizes.

Sept. 24.—Eighteen holes, medal play, handicap. Prizes for best score and best net score.

Oct. 1—Match play against bogey handicap.

Oct. 8.—Four-ball match on same basis as June 25.

Oct. 15—President's and vice president's match.

Appropriate prizes will be presented to the winners of the events appearing in the foregoing calendar.

OLD TIMERS ARE TROTTED OUT.

Lexington, Ky., May 2. — Mike Schreck of Cincinnati and "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien are scheduled to fight ten rounds to a decision before an athletic club here tonight. Andy Bezenah of Covington, Ky., and Charlie Webst of Cincinnati, are to go ten rounds in a preliminary contest. No purses have been fixed for the bouts as the Kentucky law forbids fighting for definite prizes.

FITWELLS DEFEAT ALL STARS BY SCORE OF 7 TO 4.

The Fitwells lined up against Dick Thorsen's All Stars yesterday afternoon winning by a score of 7 to 4.

The All Stars have one of the best amateur batteries in the Northwest.

DANCE MUSIC BY MILITARY BAND.

All roads will lead to Lincoln park tomorrow night, when the Third Regiment band will give a dance in the park pavillon.

It is not often that Duluthians have an opportunity to dance to the music of a military band, and tomorrow evening every member of the band will be present. The program will consist of all the newest and most popular selections from musical comedies and comis operas. The proceeds of the dance will be used to buy uniforms for the band.

A committee from the Adams' Athletic association will be in charge of the floor during the dance.

MORE THAN A CENTURY

Duluth Woman Has Reached the Age of 104 Years.

Is Now Bedridden, and Death Is Almost Daily Expected.

Miss Victoria Kaschura, probably the oldest "old maid" in the country, is the oldest resident of Duluth. She is 104 years of age.

Miss Kaschura lives with her niece, Mrs. C. Marschall, at 31 West Ninth street, where she has made her home for about thirty years. She is now and for three years has been a helpless, bedridden woman, unable to recognize any of those who attend to her wants, excepting only her grandniece, Miss Gertrude Marschall.

The aged spinster is a native of Germany. Little is remembered by the present generation of what may have been told of her early life in years gone by. Her niece is a widow with several children, her husband having died three years ago.

"I suppose our aunt will have to go pretty soon," said Miss Gertrude, a pretty, blue eyed slip of a miss. "I'll be sorry when she dies, for I'll be lonely then. She doesn't know anyone but me now. That's because I'm always with her. When she wants anything she always calls for me and if someone else comes to her she calls them by my name.

"It will be lonely when she is gone."

Three years ago Miss Kaschura seemed to be on the verge of death, and although she has regained strength in a measure, dissolution is looked for at any time. Her weakness is extreme and it seems marvelous that life remains in the frail body. At times she exhibits remarkable adroitness of movement, but only for a brief period at a time. Her mind is clouded with the mists of a century's life and she awaits passively the coming of death.

SNOW ON THE ST. BERNARD.

St. Nicholas: At present the monastery of St. Bernard costs about $9,000 a year to keep up. This money is partly collected in Switzerland and partly derived from the revenue of the monastic order.

In the middle ages the monastery was stripped of all its wealth, though it still continued and continues to this day to carry out the work of St. Bernard.

Over 30,000 travelers pass this way every year and hundreds of these at least would lose their lives were it not for the guardians of the mountain. When the first heavy snows come in September the paths are marked with posts 20 feet high. But these soon disappear and other posts are fixed on top of them and so on. Soon the winter paths lead indifferently over enormous huts and buried alpine huts. The greatest danger comes from the furious gales shifting the snow and making return impossible.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

LYCEUM MAY BREAK AWAY

Doors of Duluth Theater Will Probably Be Opened to Shuberts.

Combination Formed in New York Expected to Affect Duluth.

It is believed that the combination formed by the Shuberts and John Cort in New York Saturday will result in the Lyceum theater here breaking away from the exclusive booking of Klaw & Erlanger and being opened to Shubert productions.

Charles A. Marshall, manager of the Lyceum, is now in New York and there will probably be no announcement of the future policy of the Lyceum until he returns. When he does return, however, it is expected he will announce that the Lyceum will be open to the Shuberts instead of exclusively to Klaw & Erlanger in the future.

John Cort is the theatrical power in the West and Northwest. He controls about 150 theaters, and some of the biggest productions that have appeared at the Lyceum during the past few years have been under his management. A combination between him and the Shuberts will have strength in the number of theaters controlled and the number of productions to be booked, and many theaters, which have formerly been under the domination of Klaw & Erlanger, will become independent and open their doors to the new syndicate.

The position which Klaw & Erlanger will take with respect to the new combination is problematical, so if the Lyceum does become independent, there is a question as to whether any Klaw & Erlanger productions will come to Duluth. It is possible that the firm will refuse to book attractions in any theaters which open their doors to the Shuberts and Cort, but even in that case the Lyceum will be sure of a good list of attractions, for the Schuberts will send thirty of their productions into this territory at once.

If Mr. Marshall takes the step local people believe he will take, it will probably mean that all the theaters on the Copper and Iron circuit will break away from Klaw & Erlanger domination. Mr. Marshall is one of the most influential of the managers of the circuit, which includes theaters in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Northern Michigan, and it is believed the other managers will follow his lead and make their houses independent.

SMOOTH BURGLAR RANSACKS HOUSE

Secures $200 in Money and Jewelry But Overlooks Much More.

The residence of M. Weinberg, 720 East Third street, was ransacked early this morning by a burglar, who stole about $200 in money and jewelry, but overlooked valuables worth much more.

The ground floor was ransacked from one end to the other while the family slept overhead. Drawers were pulled out and their contents scattered topsy turvy. The thief secured a diamond stud, two gold bracelets, a wedding ring which has been in the family for generations, and other pieces of jewelry, as well as $27.50 in cash. He passed up two gold candle sticks which are heirlooms that have come down for several hundred years, a large quantity of solid silver plate, and $23 in money.

The burglar is thought to have gained entrance between 2 and 4:30 o'clock this morning. He forced a rear window with a heavy chisel. It it believed that he must have been a powerful man as it took three men to shut the same window this morning.

HOW JUDGE WENT BROKE.

Grosscup Explains Why He Needed Money at Monte Carlo.

New York, May 2.—Judge Peter S. Grosscup, presiding justice of the United States circuit court of appeals in Chicago, explained yesterday on landing from the Carmania how he happened to go broke at Monte Carlo. "I did not gamble," said the judge, "and in the end there was no monetary loss, but it is true that for a time I was absolutely without funds and had to telegraph to my American bankers. You see, I lost my letter of credit. When I left Italy, I packed it in a bundle of soiled linen and at Monaco the linen was sent to the washer woman without being unwrapped. I had to cable for money until I could get a letter of credit. Some time I shall have to meet the banker who issued that letter, but I dread the thought of what he may say about absent-minded judges."

Roads of Leaves.

In Florida, roads made of leaves are a great success. There are miles of road that would be almost impassable by reason of the deep sand were it not for the leaves of the long-leaved pine, which are raked over the sandy roadbed once a year. A scientific nutrition proves that Golden Grain Belt beer is rich in nutrition and nerve food and a pure wholesome drink that aids digestion. CANNON DEFENDS THE HOUSE RULES

Speaker Talks in Boston on the Situation in Congress.

Boston, Mass., May 2.—"When we have to change the rules of the house to permit the minority to dictate legislation in behalf of special interests, we will be confronted with the necessity of changing our Constitution and all our conceptions of a people's government where the majority shall legislate and accept responsibility for the legislation."

Speaker Joseph G. Cannon of the house of representatives made the foregoing declaration in addressing the Middlesex club here on the occasion of a celebration of the eighty-eighth anniversary of the birth of Gen. Grant. Speaker Cannon, after delivering a eulogy upon the life of the great American general and former president, announced that he had been asked to say a word about the rules of the house, "after the ocean of words that have been hurled at the rules in the last two years."

Quote Tom Reed.

"Thomas B. Reed once said," the speaker declared, "that 'the noise made by a small but loud minority in the wrong is too often mistaken for the voice of the people and the voice of God.' That remark applies to the discussion of the rules."

The speaker said that the rules were the development of 120 years; that they were substantially as they had been for a generation; that a campaign against the rules made twenty years ago brought out all the denunciation made within the last two years, and that on the former occasion it was the "loud minority" trying to dictate legislation.

"The Democrats were in the minority in the Fifty-first congress," he said, "but they tried to dictate legislation. Speaker Reed and the majority, who were responsible for legislation refused to be dictated to. Reed counted a quorum of those who were present for mischief, but declared they were not present for business. That action of Reed was denounced as 'czarism.' The discussion became international, but the supreme court sustained Reed and so did the Democratic party when it came into popwer. It adopted what it had denounced as the Reed rules.

Cause of "Fuss and Fury."

"Why this fuss and fury? The old cause—the effort of the minority to rule. On the eve of the last presidential election the Democratic leader sought to dictate legislation. The majority would not accept dictation. He began a filibuster which continued to the end of the session, frankly stating on the floor that the minority would resist and embarrass in every way possible all legislation unless certain measures demanded by the minority should be brought forward.

"History repeated itself. The Democratic platform denounced the czarism of the speaker, just as the Democratic platform did in 1898. The minority had demanded legislation for special interests, not for the general interest. There are other special interests demanding that the speaker use arbitrary power in their behalf. When he refused to violate the rules and traditions of the house he was denounced as a czar."

In discussing the criticism of Gen. Grant during his administration as president, Speaker Cannon found a parallel in the attacks on the present administration and inferred that this administration would overcome all attacks as triumphantly as did Grant.

Grant and the Coyotes.

"In his memoirs," the speaker reminisced, "Gen. Grant tells of an incident in his campaign in Texas, where one night the camp was disturbed by an unearthly noise that had a panicky effect on the soldiers and caused some uneasiness among the officers. A squad was detailed to make a reconnoisance. They stealthily moved in the direction from which the sounds came, and as the men rounded a butte they discovered two coyotes on little hillocks engaged in a serenade.

"The noise made by the Liberal and Democratic press against Grant was a fitting parallel to that episode in his early life. It did not frighten him nor the Republican rank and file, who marched to the polls with the same determination they had four years before and 600,000 more of them dropped Republican ballots into the boxes."

MORE CRUELTY IN NICARAGUA

Men and Boys Hung By Their Thumbs---Woman Shot for Refusing Kiss.

Washington, May 2.—A letter written to the American consul at Managua, Nicaragua, by Narciso Arrellane, a citizen of Nicaragua, detailing incidents of cruelties in the isthmian republic, has been forwarded here to Senor Castrillo, representative of the Estrada forces in Washington. In his letter Mr. Arrellane says: "I think it best that you should know that these people are at their old work again. They are torturing men and boys at Mandaimo and at Granada to wrench out confessions from them as to who carried provisions to guerillas beyond Mandaimo. They have also burned property and wrought damage to an incalculable degree."

A subsequent note from Arrellane tells of seven cases in which men have been hanged by the thumbs. He gives the names of the seven victims and the name of one man shot and two lashed.

Another document detailing those alleged cruelties and mentioning specific instances of insults to women by officers, alleging in one case that a woman was shot because she resisted a government officer who tried to kiss her, has been submitted to the state department by Senor Castrillo.

PEOPLE OF DULUTH SHOW GENEROUS SPIRIT ON TAG DAY

The generous response of the people of Duluth on tag day to the appeal of the Sisters of St. Benedict for funds to be devoted to St. Mary's hospital did not stop with the buying of tags. Several friends of the institution have communicated to the management offers to furnish rooms in the new addition and it is not unlikely that other similar offers will be received.

In Duluth proper $3,322.84 was realized by the sale of tags. The largest individual collections were made by Mrs. W. F. Henry, $103.17 and Mrs. Effie Lenz, $97.01. Both worked on Superior street between Second and Third avenue east. The amounts collected by the several groups were: Mrs. E. J. Meagher and helpers, $220.25; Mrs. Whitney Wall and helpers, $151.02; Mrs. Leo Ball and helpers, $151.85; Mrs. Stitt and Mrs. Lannigan and helpers, $320.37; Mrs. William Lynch and helpers, $252.37; Mrs. E. P. Kreimer and helpers, $164.89; Mrs. E. Lynch and helpers, $129.93; Mrs. T. R. Kutsh and helpers, $158.97; Miss Mac Murphy and helpers, $127.45; Mrs. Laux and helpers, $88.89; Mrs. J. W. Sheridan and helpers, $292.88; Mrs. J. J. Friedman and helpers, $94.69; Mrs. William Henry, $103.17; Mrs. J. J. Haley and helpers, $26.23; Mrs. W. J. Magie and helpers, $395.31; Mrs. R. M. Sellwood an helpers, $81.50; Miss Margaret Horgan, $63.86; Miss Ida Redlock and helpers, $154.89; Misses Harrington and Seglum, $252.55; out of town contributions, $871.80.

The Proctor and West Duluth contributions had not been received up to noon today.

The management of the hospital desires to thank the people of Duluth and the lieutenants and their helpers for the substantial aid that has been given the hospital by means of the tag day enterprise. The response of the citizens was cheerful and generous and the work of those who sold the tags was in large part responsible for the measure of success that was achieved.

TAFT DENIES THAT HE HAS LETTER

surely would have been consulted before any gubernatorial boom was started for him.

Published in Washington.

Washington, May 2.—In letters which Theodore Roosevelt is alleged to have written to President Taft, Senator Root and William Loeb, Jr., it is said by the Washington Post today the former president thoroughly indorses the Taft administration, favors Mr. Loeb to succeed Governor Hughes of New York, and indicates that his decision to remain in private life is final and unalterable. The colonel will not even be a candidate to succeed Chauncey M. Depew in the senate, and much less would he desire any other office.

It is said also the former president will in no sense be a candidate for the presidency in 1912. On the contrary his letters are said to indicate that it is his conviction that the re-election of President Taft is the Republican party's duty.

While Col. Roosevelt believes that a fight within the party, when it is confined to opinions of legislation, may be healthful, he does not favor a degree of insurgency that threatens to disrupt the party at the polls, and will probably deliver some speeches in the congressional campaign in the West urging the return of Republicans to congress.

Will Speak in St. Paul.

When Col. Roosevelt speaks before the national conservation congress in St. Paul in September it is said he will declare himself again for the policies for which he has always stood, but will insist that the work be pressed forward without making conservation a pivot for political expedients.

In a word Former President Roosevelt, before seeing Gifford Pinchot in Europe and after, has expressed himself as convinced that President Taft has been working hard and conscientiously to carry out the policies which started during the Roosevelt administration, and has given to the Taft administration his whole approval.

of the journey trudging along in spite of a sprained ankle, the heroic old man has made it in seventy-seven days.

Glorious as is this accomplishment from the point of view of sport, pure and simple, it assumes the character of greatness when it is considered, first, that Weston is 72 years old, and, second, that no tempting monetary prize was held out as a reward for his feat.

Object Lesson to Youth.

The trans-continental walk was made by the aged philosopher and athlete as an object lesson to the youth of America of the beneficial results to be attained through walking.

Already last year Weston had attempted to cross the continent on foot. He had on that occasion fixed a limit of 100 days for the trip, but severe storms encountered in the last days of the journey made it impossible to complete the self-appointed task on time.

The energetic old man did not give up though beaten, however, and continued the journey to the end, accomplishing the ocean to ocean walk in 105 days.

On Manhattan Island.

New York, May 2.—Edward Payson Weston's record-breaking walk across the continent is virtually at an end. At 8:35 o'clock he set foot on Manhattan Island, crossing Kings bridge over the Spuyten Duyvil creek. Cheered by thousands of persons and followed by a constantly increasing crowd he walked straight down Broadway.

When the advance guard of automobiles appeared at the bridge a shout went up. A few minutes later Weston appeared, trudging along at a brisk rate.

On the last part of the walk Weston was escorted by Company B of the Seventh regiment, of which he has been a member for fifty years.

Weston interrupted his progress down town at Broadway and Seventy-third street, which he reached just before 11 o'clock, stopping at a hotel for lunch and a rest. He said he planned to finish his walk down Broadway in the afternoon and would wait until 1 o'clock before taking up his final march to the city hall.

Clarence Pot, North Carolina; Curtis Hill, Columbia, Mo.; John C. White, Chicago, and W. H. Jackson. Parcels post, good roads, and scientific farming are among the subjects to be discussed.

"Farm is Master."

President Barret in concluding his address, said:

"The farmer has gained but a small fraction of his share in the benefits of American development, because he deluded into believing he had no control. Today, in the midst of his interest, and in the strength of his organization, irresistible in its increasing numbers, he is master of the situation.

"The farmer is no longer asleep. In his waking, he is invincible. He demands to be treated as an American citizen, like every other class of American citizens. He is no longer pleading. He is commanding. As an American citizen, the most important division of American citizens, he knows his rights. And knowing, the Lord God Almight has given him the courage to maintain them!"

roofed several houses and carried one off its foundations, but no one was killed or injured.

Snow fell in Denver and North Platte, Neb., this morning, and freezing temperatures prevailed.

The local weather forecaster predicts much colder temperatures for the Southwest tonight.

Wire Service Suffers.

Chicago, May 2.—Telegraph service over a wide area extending from Denver to Cleveland and St. Paul to the Ohio river were reported in a serious condition today as a result of rains, high winds and snow.

At Denver, where snow was reported, wires and poles were said to be prostrate. In other sections much trouble was reported, due to the water-soaked condition of the lines. Service was not completely crippled, but greatly hampered.

Train Has Close Call.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 2.—A Chicago Great Western train was caught in a cloudburst near Parksville, Mo., early today, and for three hours the passengers were in constant fear of being washed into the Missouri river, with no possible means of escape.

When the rain ceased, it was found that the earth had been washed from under the parallel southbound tracks until the ties and rails hung in space for a distance of twenty feet.

Railroad men said they regarded the escape of the train as miraculous.

TWO ARE ACCUSED OF MATRIMONIAL FRAUD.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 2.—J. A. Campbell, a wealthy farmer of Morgan county and his daughter, Mrs. Mabel Addison, were held to the grand jury here today under $1,000 bonds to answer a charge of conducting a fraudulent matrimonial scheme. Search of Mrs. Addison's rooms at her father's home by postoffice inspectors brought to light more than 400 letters from men in all parts of the United States, Canada and Mexico. Several of the letters had contained sums of money running from $5 to $50 for a wedding outfit.

MAY BE MAN WHO SHOT KENOSHA POLICE CHIEF.

Chicago, May 2.—A man giving the name of Ernest Alyea, alleged horse thief, said by the police to have operated in small towns in Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin and Illinois for ten years, was identified last night as the man who shot Chief of Police Owen O'Hare of Kenosha, Wis., July 4 last. The identification was made by Peter Mingen, a Kenosha liveryman. Alyea denies he shot O'Hare and declares he is not a horse thief. Alyea was taken to La Porte county, Ind., to answer a charge of horse stealing. If not convicted he will be turned over to the Wisconsin authorities to face the charge of shooting O'Hara.

BAN ON SURETY COMPANY.

Baltimore Concern Not Allowed to Do Business in New York.

New York, May 2.—Supt. William M. Hotchkiss of the state insurance department has made the following official statement:

"The New York insurance department has declined to renew the license of the United Surety company of Baltimore, a Maryland corporation, which has been doing business in New York. Some days ago it directed such company to cease writing business in this state. This action is based upon disclosures as to its condition and the management of the company by a former controlling interest, which resulted in an impairment of $500,000 capital of the company by about $90,000 and the discovery of various irregularities, which in the judgment of the department made it unsafe for the company longer to do business in this state."

MRS. McKIM FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE AT RENO.

Reno, Nev., May 2.—Margaret Emerson McKim, society leader of New York, Newport and Baltimore, and the wife of Smith Hollins McKim, has filed a suit for divorce in the district court.

The complaint was immediately withdrawn by Mrs. McKim's attorneys after being registered on the register of actions by the county clerk, and for this reason the nature of the allegations made by Mrs. McKim are not known. Mrs. McKim has stated that she expects her husband to contest the suit.

Smith Hollins McKim is a prominent physician of Baltimore, and Mrs. McKim's father is Col. J. Emerson of Baltimore, known as the "Bromo Seltzer King."

PACKERS INDICTED IN SAVANNAH, GA.

Savannah, Ga., May 2.—The United States court grand jury has returned indictments against the Cudahy Packing company, Schwarzchild & Sulzberger, Swift & Co., the Armour Packing company and Nelson Morris company as corporations, and against the following individuals: Emmet B. GET POINTERS ON "HOME GARDENING"

Superintendent McGuire Urges People of Coleraine to Improve Grounds.

Coleraine, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. A. J. McGuire of the Grand Rapids experimental farm gave an excellent address at the high school auditorium Saturday evening before a small, but greatly interested audience. His subject was "Home Gardening," and was very practical. He advised the families of this mining community to cultivate the ground about their homes, and made it clear that by a little labor the family living expenses could be greatly reduced.

Before the address by Mr. McGuire, Superintendent of Schools J. A. Vandyke presented about 100 beautifully colored lantern views, showing premises in poor condition and how by planting flowers, shrubbery and vines the place was transformed into most attractive home surroundings.

B. G. Lathrop, a graduate of the state school of agriculture, spoke briefly, offering his services without expense to the people in planning their gardens and door yard improvements.

A NEW FRANCHISE WILL BE DRAFTED

Hibbing Village Attorney to Get Pointers From Attorney General.

Hibbing, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—At an adjourned meeting of the council there was a discussion of the matter of granting a franchise for the construction, operation and maintenance of a street railway in the village, running south to the village of Alice. The village attorney was instructed to confer with the petitioners' attorney and draw up a new franchise, conformable and agreeable to both the petitioners and the village council, which will be submitted to the council at the regular meeting to be held May 16. The petitioners are: William Brown, H. J. Breen, F. H. Deer and B. H. Hayes.

Thursday evening the Hibbing high school glee club, under the direction of Miss Mabel Stephen, will present a play entitled "The American Girl."

E. A. Davis of the National Union Fire Insurance company of Pittsburg, Pa., spent a day in this city the past week.

Neil Moynihan of the Brady Insurance agency leaves today for a two weeks' business and pleasure trip to Eastern cities.

Mrs. J. L. Lewis returned home Sunday evening from a short visit with friends and relatives in Duluth.

The new grandstand in the ball park has been practically completed, and will be in readiness for the first game, which will be about May 15.

ODD FELLOWS GO TO SPECIAL SERVICES

Methodist Church at Coleraine Crowded During the Exercises.

Coleraine, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Independent Order of Odd Fellows attended a special church service at the Methodist yesterday. There was a special program. Rev. George E. Silloway, the pastor, delivered an eloquent and thoughtful sermon on "Friendship." The choir contributed some excellent music.

The local lodge, escorted by the band in full uniform met the visiting members of the craft at the Mesaba station and presented a splendid line of march to the church.

EVELETH COURT NOTES.

Results of Recent Hearing Before Judge Vivian Prince.

Eveleth, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The case against Julius Neimi, who was some time ago arrested on complaint of Oscar Kangas, who alleged that Neimi had struck him on the head with a rock, was dismissed by Judge Prince, as the evidence was deemed insufficient.

Eli Rejacic, who was arrested Friday on the charge of stabbing the Adams mine boss, Tony Morarity, was bound over to the grand jury.

Poli Joredeau, arrested recently on a charge of drunkenness, and whose hearing was scheduled for Saturday morning, failed to make an appearance, and forfeited his $10 bonds. Frank Nonnicher was fined $5 and costs for drunkenness.

Frank Kosmerl and Joseph Mikola, who are out on $25 bonds each, will have their hearing today, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, in which they are accused of leading the disturbances at the Spruce mine Thursday.

MUST PAY DOG TAXES.

Nashwauk Owners of Canines Are Notified to Settle.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council has tacked up notices throughout the village that owners of dogs must pay dog taxes, which are now due on or before May 5. Any dog found within the corporate limits of the village of Nashwauk without a license tag after said date, will be killed. Ordinance No. 7, section 7, provides as follows: "That any person who shall so own or keep a dog without having first obtained a license therefor as herein provided, or who shall neglect or refuse to cause such license tag to be attached to the collar of and worn by said dog at all times, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction therof shall be fined not less than $1, nor more than $25 and cost of suit and in default of the payment of the said

ARSON AND THREAT CHARGES PREFERRED

Buhl Business Man Alleged to Have Fired Building and Threatened Woman.

Virginia, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The erald.)—Anton Stanicha, a Buhl business man, was arested Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Gately on charges preferred by Mrs. Selma Neander, that he set fire to a building occupied by her in Buhl, March 30, and threatening her life. The building, before the fire, was used as a hotel and dwelling house.

Dan Veklin, a one-armed man, who was soliciting subscriptions for the defense of the men accused of assaulting Special Officier Wilcox, was arrested for drunkenness, having "blown in" most of the money for drink, and got ninety days in the county jail.

Workmen Jumped Contract.

Eight Hungarians spent several hours in jail here Saturday, having been arrested at Wolfe, charged with having "jumped" a labor contract at Hibbing. These men were brought from Michigan to work for the Oliver Iron Mining company at Hibbing, their railroad fares and board having been paid by an agent of the company. After arriving at Hibbing the bunch refused to go to work and were on their return to Michigan when arrested. The men were returned to Hibbing Saturday night where their cases will be heard in court there.

Andrew Fakela, a homesteader of 61-19, was arrested at Eveleth on a charge of desertion brought against him by his wife. He is now in the city jail awaiting a hearing.

AURORA IS VOTING ON BOND MATTER

Question of Issuing Bonds for Lighting Plant Being Decided.

Aurora, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special election is being held here today to vote on a bond issue for an electric lighting plant. It is the intention to issue bonds to the state of Minnesota to the amount of $10,000, the proceeds to be used in constructing a plant that will supply the needs of the village.

There has been no opposition to the proposed plant and none is expected unless it should come from one of the mining companies, but as nothing has been said it is thought that the vote will be practically unanimous for the bond issue.

The village already has a new boiler at the pumping station which is being put into place and as the matter of electric lights has been discussed thoroughly for some time all the details are worked out and it will be but a short time bofore the plant wall be in readiness.

ALL BUT ONE OF ACCUSED TAKEN

Meshes of Law Closing About Assailants of Special Officer Wilcox.

Virginia, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Six of the seven men implicated in the murderous assault upon Harry Wilcox, the Oliver Iron Mining company policeman, a week ago last night, are in jail, three having been taken shortly after the assault, the fourth being captured near Gilbert Saturday night, and the other two rounded up on a train going to Hibbing yesterday afternoon.

Peter Dondovich, for whom a reward of $750 was offered, was captured by Chief D. F. Foley of the Oliver police and Chief Ellis Walsh and Officer John Ryan of the Virginia force Saturday night, while he was trying to make his getaway from a boarding house at one of the mining locations near Gilbert.

Dondovich's presence at the boarding house was "tipped off" to Chief Foley by some one whose name the officer will not divulge, and shortly after dark the cheif went near the place and lay in wait for his man to make his appearance. In the meantime, however, Chief Foley had telephoned to Chief Walsh, who, with Officer Ryan, went to Gilbert to assist in rounding up the fugitive. Dondovich was captured while walking along the Missabe tracks between Gilbert and McKinley, having been hemmed in by the officers, Filey at his rear and Walsh and Ryan going towards him. The officers closed in on Dondovich, and when told to throw up his hands he made no resistance. He was brought here, and after being "sweated," acknowledged that he was implicated in the assault, but denied that he had a hand in the cutting, placing the blame upon one of the men now confined in the county jail at Duluth.

Two Arrested Sunday.

The two taken in yesterday gave their names as Matt Serge and Joe Curbin. They were on their way to Hibbing, and as they answered the description of the men wanted, Chief Foley placed them under arrest and brought them back to this city, both acknowledging that they were mixed up in the assault, and placing the blame upon Dondovich, who was brought in the night before. It is the supposition that the three men had been brought together during the week and had arranged to meet at Hibbing, but their plans were disarranged by the arrest of the bunch, for when they arrived at the jail here, Serge asked the officer if Dondovich had been taken yet.

The condition of Wilcox is much improved, but his wounds are so numerous and of such a serious nature that his recovery will necessarily be slow.

FINNS OF AURORA IN CELEBRATION

Vappu, the International Labor Day, Observed in Fitting Style.

Aurora, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Finnish people of Aurora celebrated an international labor day here yesterday, which is called by them "Vappu."

About 200 people joined in the celebration of the day. At 2 o'clock they formed in line at the Finnish hall, and, headed by the Finnish band, marched through the business portion of the town and to the old ball grounds, east of the village, where their program was carried out. The program consisted of speeches, music and various forms of entertainment. Refreshments were served on the grounds.

A large number from out of town were present. Programs were arranged for both afternoon and evening. The playing of the Finnish band was a feature of the day.

SHRINERS LOOKING AHEAD.

Two Harbors Members Planning on Going to Rochester Meet.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—An enthusiastic meeting of the local members of the Duluth and other temples of the Mystic Shrine was held in the courthouse on Saturday evening, Rev. T. Stanley Oadams presiding.

The main purpose of the meeting was to prepare for attending the session of the imperial council in Rochester, N. Y., in 1911. H. S. Bryan was empowered to secure accommodations for forty Shriners who will go from Two Harbors and also have in charge the matter of transportation. A fund was opened to provide all necessary expenses, and a permanent organization effected to promote the interests of the many Shriners who are resident in Two Harbors.

The permanent officers elected are: Rev. T. Stanley Oadams, president; B. F. Fowler, secretary; D. A. Burke, treasurer. A committee to prepare the rules of the local association was appointed consisting of Rev. T. Stanley Oadams, H. S. Bryan, Dr. Christenson, Dr. Budd and D. A. Burke.

Regular meetings will be held, socials and picnics, and the local Shriners are looking forward to increased enjoyment and activity during the coming months. Meanwhile the cry, "Two Harbors—Rochester—1911," promises to be a winner. H. S. Bryan, a former resident of Rochester, will get the best there is to be had.

EVELETH BEATS VIRGINIA.

High School Ball Nine Puts It Over Visitors.

Eveleth, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth high school team Saturday defeated the Virginia high school nine, 6 to 5, on the local grounds, in a game which was marked by the clever battery work by Walter Corbin, pitcher and Percy Pryor, catcher, for the locals.

The Eveleth Independents yesterday afternoon defeated the Virginia city team, on the local city ball grounds, 1 to 8, in a loosely played game, which was featured by the steady playing and heavy, consistent hitting of the locals.

The recently organized Eveleth All Stars yesterday morning made their first appearance of the season, and defeated a strong local pickup team in a fast game, 4 to 0, which was marked by the steady twirling of H. Levant for the winners.

BANNER IS BLESSED.

An Impressive Church Ceremony Is Conducted at Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the Holy Family church yesterday morning 600 people from this city and the surrounding towns gathered to witness the blessing of the local National Society of Prosperity's banner, by Rev. Father Bilban.

Following the blessing the society members to the number of seventy-five, headed by the Fayal band, marched down the principal thoroughfares to Stipetch hall, where entertaining exercises were held in commemoration of the event.

MANY OBSERVE DAY.

School Children of Eveleth and Citizens Planted Trees.

Eveleth, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arbor day was well observed here and at the local schools exercises commemorating the day were held, following which the pupils under the direction of their teachers, planted seeds in the many school grounds of this city. Special exercises were held at the high school and many seeds planted in the spacious gardens fronting the high school building. Many residents also observed the day by planting seeds and flowers.

HIBBING FLAT FIRE.

Small Blaze Sunday Night That Might Have Been Serious.

Hibbing, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—A small fire occurred Sunday evening at 7 in one of the flats of the two-tory frame building on Third avenue, formerly occupied by Brien O'Rourke as a feed store and now occupied by the Warehouse Grocery company with flats arranged on the second floor. The fire department responded to the call promptly and prevented what might have proved a most disastrous fire. Very little damage was done by the flames. An accident happened to the steering gear of the hook and ladder in from of the Oliver hotel, preventing it from making the run.

HAS NO ORGANIZATION.

Old Township Adjoining Fargo in Peculiar Predicament.

Fargo, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—With several voters, an old organized township just north of the city limits fears it is without organization.

It has always been known as Fargo township. At the election last spring the people of the West side captured the entire list of officers. More recently they incorporated as a village. This left the East siders with the remaining portion of the township and without officials. Unless the old officers can remedy the matter by calling a special election it may be necessary for the township to be reorganized. There appears to be no provision in the law covering such a situation.

MOVE DEPOT TO TOWN.

Chisholm, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is rumored that the Great Northern will move their Chisholm depot now located a mile out of town to the shore of Longyear lake, about four blocks north of Lake street.

This rumor is given currency by the fact that the company has just purchased from George Wilkin two lots and from Geary & Sicard, twenty-six lots, adjoining Hayes & Hackett's addition to Chisholm on the north shore of the lake.

There is also a rumor to the effect that the road leading from Chishoim across the lake to the Myers and Hartley locations and on to Buhl will be vacated and that a mine will be opened up on the east shore of the lake. In this case the long bridge over the lake, now maintained by the village at a heavy expense, would be discontinued and a road built around the north shore of the lake.

With the Missabe running directly into town the Great Northern is due to lose all the passenger business except what has to go to it unless it brings its depot into town.

CAME ON THEIR BICYCLES.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday morning at 7:45, J. C. Manville, secretary of the boys' Y. M. C. A., accompanied by five boys of the Y, Roy Haugstein, George Haugstein, Russell Rose, Matthew McCurdy and Bert Boyden, left on their bicycles for Duluth. Although they lost an hour on the road by one of the boys being temporarily sick, they arrived in front of the boys' building in Duluth at noon. After dinner in the Y. M. C. A., they enjoyed a plunge in the swimming pool. They returned on the 3:15 train. Three cyclometers registered exactly twenty-seven and one-half miles.

This trip was taken in order to map out the route to be used in the relay races which will take place May 28, between the members of the boys' Y. M. C. A. of Duluth and the local boys' Y. M. C. A.

MOTHERS' DAY SERVICES.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Next Sunday, the First M. E. church of this city will observe Mothers' day. A program has been prepared and old songs will be sung. Rev. T. S. Oadams will preach in the morning on "Mothers," and in the evening on "Brothers and Sisters." Those who are unable to come, will be brought to church by several parties who have donated the use of their automobiles.

CLASS PLAY LIKED.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senior class of the local high school presented the class play, "The Cricket on the Hearth" to a full house Friday evening. Every seat in the Metropolitan opera house was occupied. The play was presented in a most pleasing manner, eliciting repeated rounds of applause from the appreciative audience.

The high school orchestra of eight pieces furnished the music. Robert McCurdy and Fred Switzer rendered a cornet duet, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," which was well received.

THREE AURORA BANDS.

Aurora, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Aurora is fast coming to the front as a village of bands. Three such organizations are in the field at the present time and each is being enthusiastically supported. They are the high school, the Finnish and the Austrian bands.

None of the organizations is a year old, but all practice regularly and several applicants, whenever a vacancy occurs. The high school band made its first appearance in public on the school grounds one evening last week, giving a concert which was enthusiastically received.

The Finnish band took part in a Labor day celebration held by the Finnish people Sunday and was the feature of the occasion. The Austrian band has not yet appeared before the people, but are expected to do so soon.

DRIVEN TOWARDS LAKE.

Fierce Brush Fire Near Two Harbors Menaced Town.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fanned by a strong wind from the west, brush fires on land leased by Woodward & Munford, north of the city, did considerable damage yesterday afternoon burning over a good part of the territory to the lake and giving the city quite a scare for a time.

Aurora Beats Mesaba.

Aurora, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Aurora baseball team played its first game of the season Sunday at Mesaba, winning by the score of 4 to 2.

The game was interesting, being well played throughout. Lindberg pitched for Aurora, and was effective at all times, being especially so with men on bases.

The attendance was small, owing to the cold weather.

TRIAL OF DAMAGE SUIT RESUMED AT VIRGINIA.

Virginia, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—District court reopened here at 10:30 this morning from an adjournment taken since Friday night. The case of R. R. and Anna Brantry against Marshall Johnston, an action for damages which has been on trial for several days, was resumed by the examination of witnesses for the defense. The case is expected to go to the jury before adjournment tonight.

EVELETH BUTCHER SAID TO HAVE INHERITED FORTUNE.

Eveleth, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joe Zini, a local butcher, is said to have fallen heir to $10,000 through the death of an uncle, news of which was recently received by Mr. Zini.

Manuel Shapiro left yesterday for Chicago, where he is attending the Rush Medical college.

VIRGINIA BRIEFS.

Virginia, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fourth anniversary of the establishment in this city of Mesaba lodge of Odd Fellows was celebrated at the Hawkinson hall Saturday night and was largely attended.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Cuppernull entertained for Mr. and Mrs. Norman McDonald at their home on Maple street Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Owens and family are preparing to remove to Duluth to reside.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Norwegian Lutheran church will meet with Mrs. Edward C. A. Johnson at the church Wednesday afternoon.

The second of the series of entertainments of the Young People's Society of the Norwegian Lutheran church will be an illustrated lecture on the "Life of Christ" by Rev. Henry E. Neff at the church tomorrow evening.

The Young People's Society of the Swedish Lutheran church will give a musical Wednesday evening, after which a social will follow.

Two Harbors Notes.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—R. C. Coffin, educational director of the Y. M. C. A., Duluth, spoke to the boys at boys' Y. M. C. A., Sunday afternoon on "A Square Deal."

The men's meeting was addressed by Rev. E. A. Wahlquist, his topic being the "Parable of the Vineyard."

Wife Beater Punished.

Eveleth, Minn., May 2.—Convicted of brutally assaulting his wife, kicking and bruising her, Frank Bozith was sentenced by Judge Prince to seventy-five days in the county jail Saturday and taken to Duluth to serve his time.

at the last session of the biennial on president's evening, when other speakers will be Mrs. Eva Perry Moore, the president of the federation, Mrs. Joseph P. Mumford of Pennsylvania and Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker of Colorado.

Dr. Richard Burton of Minnesota will address the federation on "The Theater and the People." Other Minnesota people who will appear on the program will be Miss Margaret Evans, an honorary vice president who will bring greetings to the meeting, and Mrs. George O. Welch of Fergus Falls, the national treasurer.

HALL TOO SMALL.

Continental Hall Can't Hold All the Daughters.

The Duluth Daughters of the American Revolution will be interested in the situation that now faces the national society. For several years the Daughters throughout America have denied themselves and have promoted patriotic entertainments and done other things for the good of the cause for raising a Continental hall in Washington as the center of D. A. R. life. The hall is built, and is perfectly lovely, only it is too small to hold the Daughters when they assemble in annual congress.

Certainly it is a vexing problem, and the facts discussed at the convention are that the auditorium of Continental hall will not seat many more than 1,000 delegates, and the delegates of two or three states had to sit in the galleries, where they could neither hear nor see, nor be heard. The Daughters do not tax without allowing representation, hence each of the 963 chapters in good standing is entitled to a representation, through the chapter regent to begin with. Every chapter with a membership of fifty and more is entitled to a delegate in addition, and as some of the chapters, for example, Buffalo, New York city and several others have a membership of several hundred each, it gives to single local organizations a tremendous power in the congress.

In accordance with the rulings of the credentials committee, those to vote at the last congress were: One president general, 1 vice president general in charge of organization, 20 vice presidents general, 8 national officers, 48 state regents, 986 chapter regents and 436 delegates. It is a large organization, its membership has increased in the last year from 72,759 to 79,713, although the actual membership is 65,310, the total larger number representing the total membership since its organization nineteen years ago.

But be Continental hall to large or just large enough, there is no doubt of the fact that it is a perfectly beautiful building. Situated within two blocks of the White House, it is in the very heart of historic Washington. The furnishings are of solid mahogany, and the presentations of gifts which were brought from different states amounted to about $20,000 in cash. The D. A. R. chapters of New Jersey have furnished their room from floor to roof in massive oak, which was taken from the hull of the wrecked British frigate Augusta, which was sunk by American guns, and which has laid at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean near New Jersey for 125 years. The wood work is exquisite, the oak bleached to almost a silver tint by being in the salt water for so long a time, and every bit of the woodwork, the chairs, tables and even the curtain poles are of this wood. The building itself is of solid white marble, and one of the gifts from Minnesota is the south stairway, which was erected at a cost of $1,000.

MAY WEDDING.

Miss McLean to Become the Bride of M. Scroggins.

Mr. and Mrs. John Howard McLean have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Ethel McLean, to Maurice Scroggins of this city. The wedding will take place Saturday evening, May 14, at the home of the bride's parents, 302 Sixteenth avenue east. Miss McLean will be attended by Miss Mildred Haire of Houghton, Mich., and the groomsman will be Rex Lutzi of Minneapolis.

During the week Miss McLean will be the guest of honor at a number of affairs. Tomorrow evening Miss Roella Lovett will entertain at cards at her home, 1730 East Third street; Wednesday afternoon Mrs. E. L. Twohy will entertain in compliment to Miss McLean, and Thursday Miss Gladys Helmbach will be hostess at luncheon. Miss Ethel Farmer will entertain Friday afternoon at bridge, and Saturday afternoon Miss Helen Smith will be hostess at bridge.

STIMULATES INTEREST.

William Norman Guthrie Writes of M. Papot.

Of M. Papot, who this week will begin a series of lectures in Duluth, William Norman Guthrow, who delivered a series of lectures here last year has written:

"The lectures by M. Benedict Papot dealing with French civilization, as represented and criticised by French literature, constitute a course, implying on his part not only life-long familiarity with their matter, but very great ingenuity in their construction. The history, intelligence and moral, of a versatile people is told in a characteristically fascinating manner. It is shown how France has been the martyr people of Western Europe, paying always freely in blood and treasure for the spiritual and political experience necessary to the world's institutional and social progress.

"Each lecture is built upon a single idea, and each fits into the larger scheme of the whole. Like the acts of a great drama their sequence is logical and psychogical. The interest is in each for itself, and more still in each as a part in its right place.

"The earnestness, the rapt absorption of M. Papot in what he has to say; his sense of humor, his good humor, his wit, his native gamut spiced, all help to render this course of lectures the most attractive and effective introduction for Anglo-Saxons to things French which we have ever heard or expect to hear.

"Now there does not seem to the writer a more interesting appropriateness in the selection of M. Papot to deliver the second course of university extension lectures in the city of Duluth. What people more than the people of that city of French traditions romantically cherished should take pride and satisfaction in viewing the contribution of France to the world? Has the Northwest profited singularly by the French spirit? Then all the greater must be its satisfaction in considering the benefits others have drawn from the same source. And, whatever may be said against its sufficiency by itself, as an element in the modern world's intellectual and social culture, none will deny that the French contribution is unique and indispensable. This M. Papot will fully succeed in proving, and besides, he will create a strong curiosity for independent study and thought, which is the best possible result of any lecture course."

Engagement.

WILL SING FOR U. C. T. MEMBERS

HAZEL DELL CHANDLER, Manchester, N. H., Young Woman, Who Will Take a Leading Part in the Musical Comedy Which Will Be Given by the U. C. T.

Miss Hazel Dell Chandler of Manchester, N. H., who is well known in the East for her elocution work and readings, is in Duluth to spend the summer with relatives. She will take one of the leading parts in the musical comedy which will be given by the local council of the United Commercial Travelers Saturday evening, May 7.

Peter Oos, who recently came to this city, has had dramatic experience and he will impersonate one of the principal characters. Horace Diller, lyric tenor, will sing several selections. Harry Hall will appear in dialect. Signor Ipsenius Phenipni is described as a "miniature prodigy." He will do a comedy stunt. Among others in the cast will be Miss Maude Mason, George Mason, Charles Vollner, Burt Holcomb, P. E. McCormick, Walter Melberg, Hance Wahl, D. T. Shawhan and James Dunn.

Prof. A. F. M. Custance will have charge of the music.

The proceeds will be expended in boosting Duluth at the grand council session in Stillwater early in June.

Lois Tennant and Miss Josephine Thomas, are known in Duluth. Miss Tennant is a sister of Mrs. Adams of this city and has visited here. At her wedding this month she will have as one of her attendants little Miss Elizabeth Adams of this city. Miss Thomas will become the bride of Rene Hugo of Duluth, and Mr. Hugo and his bride will be at home here.

The active chapter of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity at Minneapolis will entertain at a dinner party on Sunday in honor of E. MacMaster Pennock and his fiancee, Miss Lois Tennant, and Rene Trevanion Hugo and his fiancee, Miss Josephine Thomas. Covers will be placed for twenty-four.

Morning Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Katherine Tetu, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Tetu, and Dr. A. A. Giroux, took place this morning at St. Jean Baptist church. The service was read at 10 o'clock by Father Robillarde. The maid of honor was Miss Irene Tetu and the bridesmaid, Miss Eva Blais. The bridegroom was attended by Daniel Murray and Emil Beaurivage. The bride wore a pretty gown of white crepe de chene with a long tulle veil caught with lilies of the valley. She carried a white prayer book. The maid of honor wore a gown of pink satin and carried roses and the bridesmaid was in delicate blue satin.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Dr. and Mrs. Giroux will be at home at 318 North Twenty-fifth avenue west after a short wedding trip.

The Opulento.

FADS OF FASHION

Blouses of figured net or black and colors are made up over white silk linings. The net, of course, matches the skirt with which the blouse is worn.

Buttons will be used less for trimming, but more than ever for fastenings. An innovation will be the trimmed buttonholes, fancy braid being used for the purpose.

The modern wedding gown is one of the simplest in the bride's outfit, instead of being the most elaborate. It is far from being inexpensive, however, it's simplicity being deceitful.

Among the newest lace effects are the fillet and round nets. The newest things in dress trimmings are the bands and galloons done on heavy linen, and these are to be had in open lace effects as well as in the plain blind patterns.

Walking gloves again have stitched backs, some very wide. Stitching is becoming to all hands, and especially to one that is inclined to be large. Black gloves are quite out of the run as, to be sure, they usually are at this season. Pale tones are seen where white ones have been figuring alone.

The newest thing in veils is the glace chiffon. Some of these chiffons are made up into auto veils and are made double, using two changeables, one over the other. The effect produced by the double glace is a very pretty rainbow color design. Face veilings with large meshes or with double meshed designs are to be had in solid black and two-toned effects.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

Temperament and Disease.

As there are various types into which we can divide or classify people, so there are different kinds of disease to which each class is prone. We speak of those people who have a florid comlexion, a good appetite and a general air of heartiness as being of the sanguine temperament, and they are most liable to gout, premature hardening of the arteries, apoplexy, heart and kidney troubles. Such persons should be sparing in the use of meat, they should be strictly moderate in their consumption of alcohol, or, better still, should refrain altogether from it, and should drink copiously of pure water to carry off waste materials.

Those of the nervous type are often small of frame, very active in mind, light eaters and light sleepers. These are the people who are, as we say "soon up and soon down." They tire easily after both work and play, and are influenced remkably by outdoor surroundings. Their tendency is specially to nervous disorders, and what they need is rest. Sleep must not be induced by drugs, and, above all things, they must resist the temptation to have recourse of any kind of pick-me-ups, which have a fatally good effect for the time being. People of phlegmatic or lymphatic temperament are sluggish and disinclined for exercise, their muscles are soft and flabby, and there is a general want of tone about the entire system. Such persons are prone to those diseases which are attended with debility.

The bilious peroson is always attacked by disease of the liver gall stones, constipation and intestinal indigestion. He is often a large eater, but his food does him little good, and he is frequently very thin and miserable in appearance.

Rich foods should be avoided, plenty of green vegetables taken, and here again is a case where water drinking should be freely indulged in. Lastly, we have the strenuous type, which is actually an unhealthy state. Persons of this class have little reparative power, the appetite is small and the digestion poor, the glands in various parts of the body often swell, and if by chance such people suffer from a wound of any kind it is always a long time in healing. Their time should be spent largely in the open air, as otherwise they are specially liable to fall victims of consumption.

FARM AND GARDEN

The Time to Buy Plants.

Readers who want to furnish their gardens cheaply should be on the lookout now for bargains in hardy plants, roses, seeds, and so on. Those who have shady corners are particularly advised to buy roots of hardy ferns and plant these at once. Hardy ferns, with roots of Solomon's seal, lilies of the valley, auriculas and foxgloves, are a specially suitable class of plants to grow in positions which get little or no sun. If kept well watered in dry weather the ferns will make a robust growth, and the shady corner will not be one of the least interesting spots in the garden, as is too often the case.

Care of Clematis.

Clematises require plenty of water from March to October, and are benefited by soot water and weak liquid manures once or twice a week when budding and flowering.

Substitute for Pergola.

If one has no arbor or pergola in the garden a good substitute is a Japanese paper beach parasol. The handle, which needs to be lengthened with another piece of bamboo spliced on, is simply stuck in the ground. One is large enough to shade a group of people and looks very pretty.

Weeds on the Lawn.

Few plants give from their foliage sweeter perfumes than do some of the Cape geraniums, such varieties as the peppermint, lemon, clove and other sweet-scented ones. Their flowers, however, are not very attractive. Out in the open garden the old sweet-scented verbena or lemon plant gives nice perfume. Generally the richest perfume comes from flowers like wallflower and mignonettes.

Sweet Cented Geraniums.

Weeds can be eliminated from lawns by cultivation, as well as uprooting which pulls the turf about. From expert gardeners on golf greens, which are models of grass cultivation, it has been discovered that sulphate of ammonia discourages weeds and encourages grass.

TRY THIS DINNER

Potato and Corn Soup.

Slice a pint of raw potatoes and boil until soft. Rub through a colander and add a can of corn which has been pressed through a coarse sieve. Add sufficient boiling water to make the required quantity of soup. Add a teaspoon of beef extract. Season to taste and serve.

Planked Fish.

A dinner with planked fish as the main meat course is a novelty. Get a long, oval board, sold in stores for baking fish. You will appreciate this board after once eating planked fish. Whitefish or trout are best suited for this purpose. Clean and remove the bone by pulling out the spine. Heat the board, then butter it. Then place the fish on it. Season the fish and put little dabs of butter here and there; then place in oven and bake until done, tried with a fork. When removed from the oven place the board with the fish on it on a platter, put mounds of mashed potatoes on the hot board all around the fish, and garnish with parsley and slices of lemon, and serve at once. With it serve in a gravy boat a sauce made as follows: Melt a tablespoonful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour. When thoroghly mixed add a large cupful of milk. Place on fire and stir until thick as cream. Then season with pepper, salt, a few drops of lemon juice and a dash of curry-powder.

Salad—Celery Jelly.

Boil for 15 minutes half a can of tomatoes, a tablespoon of grated onion, a bay leaf and a pinch of celery seed. Rub through a sieve and add half a box of gelatine soaked and dissolved, and salt and lemon to season. Mix with finely cut celery and mold in small cups. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Dessert—Canned Apricot Shortcake.

Make a biscuit dough of two cups of flour and bake in a small pan. When done split in half with a sharp knife. Butter both sides and sprinkle with sugar. Cover the bottom layer with apricots and place the top crust side down on the apricots. Cover this layer with apricots and boil the syrup, adding a little more sugar, according to taste. Pour syrup over all and serve hot.

Brides and Their Friends.

And all good housekeepers, will be interested in the Gray-Tallant company's May sale of linens.

THE EVENING STORY

HIS CONQUEST OF HIMSELF

By Jeanet Speare.

Golfing manhood and girlhood from near and far were gathered on the steps before the club house at St. Andrews. It was medal day and every incident on the links was of keenest interest. Among the spectators one girl was watching the players thoughtfully.

A handsome girl, with something rather unusual in the deep velvety blue of her eyes. The red lips were perhaps just a little stern—or they looked so today; the pansy-colored eyes seemd to gaze into a past with which this radiant present had nothing in common. All around her the conversation rippled and bubbled, light and frothy. She took no share in it. Then some one said: "There is Geoffrey Feversham."

She gave a little start at that, and suddenly her fingers clenched the grass.

A tall, bronzed man, very thin and rather haggard, had just walked to the tee and was swinging his club, his caddy by his side.

"Don't you know him Eva?" said the girl who had just spoken. "He is the man who did so much at the famine last year. He lived near our bungalow. A perfect hero, dad says. The way he kept his temper at one crisis was perfectly marvelous for we had serious trouble with the native princess, and dad says if Geoffrey Feversham had lost control for a moment, the result would have been a blaze all over India. And the joke is—"

The speaker had paused to watch the players. They walked on, now, accompanied by their caddies.

"The joke is he used to have a frightful temper. Inherited it. It was a saying, 'the Feversham temper.' Dad chaffed him about it one day and Geoffrey Feversham went suddenly white. 'I lost the most precious thing in the world through that,' he said. 'So I learned my lesson.'"

"He should have followed old Tom Morris' advice," said the other. "His maxim for golf—and life: 'Don't press. Keep your eye on the ball—and keep your temper.'"

Hebe Ainslie, the young woman who had sat listening to this conversation, rose and left the spot. What she had heard brought back the memory of that parting years ago when she had dismissed Geoffrey Feversham. It was the evening of the day when Geoffrey, in a passion of rage after his "foozle" in a match, broke his club across his knee. She would never become the wife of a man who could not control himself.

She had lost him now, she thought, and she with no wish to meet him. But fate willed that she should meet him the next day. She would have passed him with a simple recognition, but he would not have it. He held out his hand, and, when she let him take hers, he held it.

"It's like a story," he said, "to meet here. Where I threw away my happiness—and you—where you passed on, Hebe, and threw back my love in my face."

She started as if struck. She winced.

"That is five years ago," she said. "Ancient history."

He did not understand her voice. His face hardened; he squared his shoulders.

"Ay! As a man sows he reaps," he said. "A temper like mine was a curse. I deserved it all, even if the treatment was a little drastic. It—it cured, Hebe. Not easily, or in a day, but bit by bit. I thanked God over there in India when, if I'd let it loose, all India might have blazed. It is Britain's coolness that has made her what she is. I learned my lesson, thank God!"

"Yes, I heard that."

"But a lot of things come too late in life—a lot of things."

Hebe said nothing. Of course, he cared no longer, she told herself, as they turned and walked over the links toward the edge of the sands.

Suddenly something leaped up in Hebe's heart. She loved him. She longed to brighten his life—to teach him happiness.

When they reached the little bridge over the burn leading to the sands, he paused as if waiting, and his hand went up to his cap. But Hebe, after a momentary struggle with pride and fear, motioned towards the sands. Desultory couples were strolling home and children were picking up rosily-tinted shells.

"Shall we—go to the old wreck?"

It was to their old trysting place she was inviting him.

But as they walked on he could find no words with which to express the emotion he left.

But still he could find no words to say.

On and on, and the light thickened, and they passed the wreck, and Hebe stooped and, like a child, gathered shells of pale gold and creamy white and rosy pink. She stood and looked at him—they rested in her small white hands.

"Geoffrey, look!"

He caught and crushed the hand and the shells.

"Hebe," came a passionate voice in her ear, "why did you bring me here? Why do you make me—hope? The years melt away—the memory of that bitter moment—the little cruel letter. And yet, through it all, I loved you. Hebe, I love you. And for your sake and by the help of God, I trampled on my unwelling sin. Ay, and though it is a battle from which there is no discharge—all life is that—I shall go on doing that. Hebe, could you—"

He stopped then, for her face was hidden, and fear checked him. He, battered, worn, weary—India had aged him years—she, in the prime of her English beauty.

Then she looked up, and he could see that her eys swam in tears.

"I suppose I thought I had no faults," she whispered, "that I punished yours like that. Are anger and temper the only sins in the world? Anger, that is a pain, fiercer far to the angry. Oh, Geoffrey, forgive me. I did not know what I did. I, too, suffered; and, all the time, I never forgot."

IN THE NURSERY

Baby's First Outfit.

Don't get too elaborate an outfit for baby. He will be just as healthy and happy with simple things, and it will save you an endless amount of both time and expense.

A simple wicker bassinette, which you can line and bedeck at home with frilly white muslin over some soft pretty color, will be just as comfortable as an expensive swinging cot with silken hangings, and will cost far less. A home-made mattress, filled with chaff—which is comfortable and healthy, and can easily be renewed when soiled—is just as good as an expensive hair one.

Don't put baby to sleep between sheets. Wool is far better for him. But his blankets should be the very softest and lightest you can afford, as good blankets wash so much better than cheap ones. Don't go in for a number of elaborately embroidered robes. Just one or two really nice ones, for christening and other "state" occasions, are quite sufficient. Many mothers have injured their eyesight during the months before baby's arrival because they were determined he should have beautifully made robes.

Taking Early Care of a Cold.

An excellent plan to pursue when a child shows signs of a cold is to rub its chest well with sweet oil, both at night and again in the morning. The hand should be warmed, and about half a teaspoonful of the sweet oil be used, and the rubbing may go on for about five minutes.

Soothing a Sleepless Child.

A sleepless child may very often be induced to sleep by having its hands or face gently rubbed one way, while a low monotonous song is being sung to it.

May Sale of Linens.

Housekeepers have been eagerly waiting for the Gray-Tallant May sale of linens, and were out in force today.

COMET IS NOW PLAINLY VISIBLE.

Halley's comet is now quite plainly visible to the naked eye, according to those who have been able to arouse themselves sufficiently at 3 a. m., to look at it.

The comet is still in the east and, although dim, is plainly to be seen, the tail being visible as well as the luminous head. The comet will be at its best about May 18, when it will appear in the evening. Then it is expected to be an exceptionally bright object. Those wanting an early view had better set their alarm clocks for 3 a. m., however.

FINE DEPOT AT MINOT.

Soo Railroad Will Spend $85,000 on the Structure.

MARINE NEWS

WILD BOAT CHARTERED

Steel Corporation Begins Shipping Ore in Independent Vessels.

Congestion at Soo Principal Cause of Delay in Ore Movement.

Wild chartering in ore carriers has begun. The United States Steel company has begun to charter independent boats for ore carrying, and from now on a much heavier movement in ore may be expected, from the report given out at the vessel offices this morning.

It was not believed here that any independent chartering would be done before the middle of the present month, as there has been little need for a great deal of ore at the lower lakes. However, the first wild charter was made this morning by the steel company, and from now until the close of navigation that company will probably do a heavy amount of ore carrying in indpendent boats.

The independent mining companies have done a small amount of wild chartering, though most of the independent companies have their own boats. The early chartering of independent boats for the carrying of ore is a surprise here.

Vessel men say that no more ore can possibly go down the lakes until the locks at the Soo are in better condition. Ore is being loaded at the present time just as fast as the boats come here, but not fast enough to keep the docks busy. There are any number of ore carriers tied up at the Soo.

Reports received this morning at the Pittsburg and other vessel offices, stated that there are ninety-six boats at the Soo, waiting to get through to Lake Superior. This report states that the congestion is very bad.

Until the congestion at the Soo is cleared, the chartering of independent boats will not result in the taking of very much additional ore down the lakes.

BARGE SINKS IN THE SLIP

Halstead Now Resting on Bottom Near the Peavy Elevator.

After the barge Halstead was towed up to a point near the Peavey elevator last night by the steamer Prentice, the barge slowly settled in the water and sank to the bottom of the bay. At the present time the two masts of the barge mark the spot where the lumber carrier rests.

Tugs will be set at work today in an effort to get the barge to the surface of the bay. It will require a lot of hard work before the Halstead is brought to the surface and made ready for a voyage down the lakes.

The accident to the Halstead occurred about midnight, as the barge was entering the canal in tow of the steamer Prentice.

There was a strong sea on, which carried the barge violently against the abutment of the south pier. The steamer Prentice steamed over to the side of the barge in order that it might be in a better position to tow it. The water rushed into the barge, causing it to list violently.

As the Prentice came alongside, the barge listed more, throwing its deck pile of lumber onto the Prentice. Capt. Lundberg of the Halstead was carried onto the Prentice with the shifting of the lumber, breaking his leg and bruising and injuring him.

He luckily escaped with the broken leg and a few minor injuries. Dr. L. A. Barney was called, and later the injured man was taken to St. Mary's hospital, where he is resting easily today.

FREIGHT IS NOT MOVING

Blockade at the Soo Holds Up the Package Freighters.

The package freight business is practically at a standstill at the present time, owing to the blockade at the Soo. Package freight line agents met this morning, informally, in one of the vessel agent's office to discuss the situation. They stated that until the blockade at the Soo is broken there will be little doing in the package freight business at the Head of the Lakes.

The Mutual, Anchor and Northern navigation lines have a number of boats stalled at the Soo at the present time. As reports show there are approximately ninety-six boats waiting to get through the locks, there is no forecasting as to when some of the package freighters bound for the Head of the Lakes will get in.

However, as the demand for East bound charters has shown little increase, the blockade at the Soo is not holding up a great deal of Duluth business. The grain charter rate of 1 cent has not been increased, with little prospect of any heavy grain chartering for some time.

FIND SHOAL AT GRAND MARAIS

A survey and estimate completed by the local government engineers, at Grand Marais, Mich., shows that there is a shoal extending across the harbor entrance there, and that before big boats carrying heavy loads can come into the harbor, a large amount of dredging will have to be done.

The survey for the work has been done, and it is expected that the work will begin about the first of June. The estimates made by the local office place the cost of the work at $10,000.

The steamer Vidette of the local government office is at Grand Marais harbor at the present time.

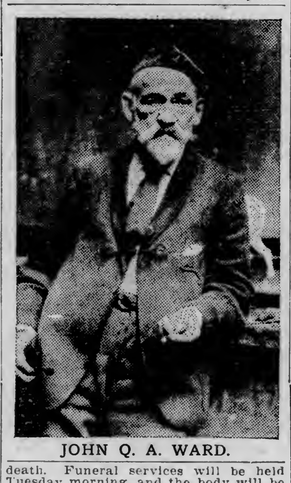
OBITUARY

John Quincy Adams Ward, the American sculptor, died at his home in New York, May 1, in his eightieth year. He had been ill for three months. He is survived by his widow, who was at the bedside, and by a brother, Edgar Ward, a painter, who was in Chicago at the time of the sculptor's death. Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning, and the body will be sent to Urbana, Ohio, where he was born, for interment. Mr. Ward spent practically his entire life in New York city.



JOHN Q. A. WARD.

Col. Francis Peabody, president of the American Insurance society, died of pneumonia at his home. The Lindens, in Danvers, Mass., April 29, aged 79 years.

Stoughton R. Clark, a prominent horseman, died at his home in Flourtown, Pa., April 29, aged 49 years.

Mather D. Kimball, a well-known clubman and former newspaper man died in Milwaukee, Wis., May 1, from a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Kimball was a member of both the Chicago and Milwaukee press clubs and the University club of Milwaukee. He was 57 years old.

Mrs. Richard A. McCurdy, widow of the late president of the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, died at her home in Morristown, N. J., May 1. She was 72 years old, and was married to Mr. McCurday fifty-two years ago. Two children, Robert H. McCurdy and Mrs. Louis A. Theabaudeaux survive her. Mrs. McCurday was Sarah Ellen Little, daughter of C. Little of Cambridge, Mass. She had been in failing health for some months.

J. P. S. Gobin, lieutenant general of the Pennsylvania National Guard, retired, prominent in Pennsylvania affairs for more than a quarter of a century and former commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, died in Lebanon, Pa., May 1, after a long illness. He was 73 years old. Death was due to naralysis. General Gobin was born in Sundbury, Pa., and was a lawyer by profession. He served throughout the Civil war, assisted in the organization of the G. A. R., and was commander-in-chief in 1887.

Capt. Samuel Gladding, a partner in the Swift company when that firm started in the packing business in Chicago, died suddenly at his home in Bristol, R. I., May 1. He was 84 years old.

Elijah B. Sherman, aged 77, for twenty-seven years master in chancery in the United States circuit court, died at his home in Chicago May 1, after a week's illness of pneumonia. He was a lieutenant in the Civil war.

Rear Admiral Philip Hichborn, U. S. N., retired, for many years one of the best known figures in the American navy, died at his home in Washington May 1, aged 71. The admiral had been sick for the last two months, suffering from arterial sclerosis. Last Wednesday he had a cerebral hemorrhage, and Tuesday had another attack, from which he did not rally.

After thirty-two years of active service, Admiral Hichborn, who at the time was chief constructor of the navy, was retired in 1901, with the rank of rear admiral. One of his most important services was the preparation of the American ships for the Spanish-American war. He entered the navy in 1869 as assistant naval constructor, six years later being made a full constructor, and in 1893 chief constructor.

Peter McAndrew, for twenty-seven years a resident of Erin Prairie, Wis., is dead of old age. He was born eighty-eight years ago in Glencastle, County Mayo, Ireland. His widow and a family of grown-up children survive, among them being: Mrs. T. P. Murphy, Mrs. J. P. Heath and Misses Reda and Mayme McAndrew of Minneapolis.

WANTS CONGRESS TO HELP GLAVIS

Harrison Introduces Resolution to Get at Wickersham's Report.

Washington, May 2.—A resolution was introduced in the house today by Representative Harrison, Democrat of New York, calling upon the president to furnish to the house the information bearing on the preparation of the attorney-general's summary of the Glavis charges which the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee refused to request from Mr. Wickersham.

PRIMARY DAY IN ALABAMA

Democratic Voters Pick Nominees for State Offices and Congress.

Montgomery, Ala., May 2.—With perfect weather and ideal conditions otherwise, the voting began early in the state Democratic primary today. A full state ticket, with members of the legislature, United States senator to succeed John C. Bankhead, and congressmen will be chosen.

The race for governor is based on the prohibition question, H. S. D. Mallory standing for the present stringent prohibition acts and Emmett O'Neal being for local option.

ASSESSORS BEGIN WORK

Complete Revaluation of Real and Personal Property to Be Made.

Twenty-One Deputy City Assessors Will Cover Duluth Thoroughly.

The deputy city assessors who will cover Duluth from one end to the other to ascertain the value of real and personal property started on their rounds today. They were given supplies and instructions Saturday by City Assessor C. L. Rakowsky. A large force has been put to work and it is expected that they will canvass Duluth thoroughly from one end to the other.

The assessment is expected to show a decided increase both as to the real and personal property. Much building has been going on the last two years, property has been increasing steadily in value and Duluth people are credited with being much richer now than they were two years ago. Last year the real estate assessment was $28,039,245 and the personal property assessment was $9,244,155, making a total assessed valuation of the city $37,283,400. The tax rate was 38.10 mills. The complete list of deputy assessors is W. J. Stephens, chief deputy; F. E. Adams, A. F. Conley, J. B. Dye, W. K. Fowler, R. S. Forgy, William Franke, Henry Gujer, Frank Gullingsrud, Joseph Harrie, C. L. Hood, J. J. Heffron, W. F. Markus, H. N. Newett, Charles Nonnemacher, William Pfenning, Charles Schober, L. P. Weissmiller, C. C. Wieland, Alvin White, N. Youngblood.

PEARY IN LONDON TO GET POLAR MEDAL.

London May 2.—Commander Robert E. Peary came here today to receive a gold medal from the Royal Geographical society and to deliver his lecture on his trip to the North Pole. He will receive the medal on Wednesday. The explorer expects to be in Europe several weeks.

POTTERTON GIVEN UP TO THE POLICE

Bondsmen of Alleged Uxoricide Surrender Him to the Authorities.

Arkansas City, Kan., May 2.—Louis W. Potterton, who with his foster mother, Mrs. Emma A. Allen, is charged with the murder of his wife by the administration of arsenic poisoning, was surrendered by his bondsmen today and placed in the county jail. He had been at liberty on a $10,000 bond.

Mrs. Allen is not in jail because she is suffering from a nervous attack. She is under the care of a nurse and guarded by officers at her home.

GERMAN STEAMER GOES ASHORE IN DENSE FOG.

Norfolk, Va., May 2.—The German steamer Roland, Capt. Meyer, from Galveston for Bremen, stranded on the North Carolina coast during a dense fog last night. The vessel, which carries a cargo of cotton, lies in an easy position with a slight listing to the northeast.

NEIGHBORS HELP OUT A SICK FRIEND

Plow and Sow 100 Acres in One Day for Unfortunate Farmer.

Des Lacs, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—One hundred acres plowed and sown in a single day represents the thoughtfulness of the neighbors of E. W. Straley, a farmer residing five miles from Des Lacs, who has been sick all winter and spring. With twenty-two outfits on the field at once, and with the wives and daughers of quite a number of the neighbors engaged in the work present to prepare meals, the sight was a unique one.

Bringing gang plows, harrows, drills and one even coming with a steam plow, the neighbors did their missionary work in a rapid manner. At noon the dinner was served by the women on the lawn. Mr. Straley was able to be out on that day for the first time in many months, and was driven from place to place over his farm that he might watch the operations.

If a few more table guests would make it profitable for you to keep boarders, then you have business for a Herald want ad.

God give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor—men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue,
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking!
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog
in public duty, and in private thinking;
For while the rabble, with their thumb-worn creeds,
Their large professions and their little deeds,
Mingle in selfish strife, lo! Freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land, and waiting Justice sleeps!

OPPORTUNITY.

In Duluth next Monday morning at 9 o'clock State Auditor Iverson will begin an auction of state lands at which 18,000 acres will be offered on very attractive terms. This sale will be one of a series covering Northern Minnesota, other dates being as follows: Glenwood, Pope county, May 2; Fergus Falls, Ottertail county, May 3; Detroit, Becker county, May 4; Long Prairie, Todd county, May 5; Little Falls, Morrison county, and Brainerd, Crow Wing county, May 6; Wadena, Wadena county, May 7; International Falls, Koochiching county, May 10; Park Rapids, Hubbard county, May 11; Walker, Cass county, May 12; Bemidji, Beltrami county, May 13; Grand Rapids, Itasca county, May 14; Bagley, Clearwater county, May 16; Hallock, Kittson county, May 17; Warren, Marshall county, May 18; Roseau, Roseau county, May 19; Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county, May 21; Pine City, Pine county, May 23; Carlton, Carlton county, May 23; Aitkin, Aitkin county, May 24; Princeton, Mille Lacs county, May 25; Two Harbors, Lake county, July 18; Grand Marais, Cook county, July 14.

At these sales nearly 375,000 acres of state agricultural land will be offered. Though the minimum rate per acre is $5, splendid opportunities are offered to buy good land at low prices, and the terms are extraordinarily attractive. Only 15 per cent of the purchase price need be paid down, and the balance may run forty years at 4 per cent interest if desired.

To insure that these lands shall come into the hands of those who will use them for farming purposes, and not into the hands of speculators, it is provided that not more than 320 acres shall be sold to each individual, and that certain requirements shall be complied with. Within five years the purchaser must fence at least 25 per cent of his purchase for pasture and convert it into pasture land, or cultivate at least 5 per cent of the tract, or build a house and actually live upon the tract for a year.

There is through the nation a growing hunger for land. City dwellers dream of independence on the soil, and look forward to the time when they can coin their energies into something better than a living by getting a bit of land.

Here are opportunities for many thousands.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK IN JEOPARDY.

The pending postal savings bank bill may possibly pass and become a law, but a brief contemplation of the snares that await it does not inspire great hopefulness.

The postal savings bank was in the Republican platform, and President Taft therefore incorporated it in his legislative program. Right at the start it encountered trouble from those who object to having the government do anything for the people for fear such action will interfere with their plans of having it do a great deal for a specially privileged few.

Besides this general opposition, it met with dangerous friendship from those who were willing to let the bill go through, providing it did not interfere with the present arrangement which drains the people's money through cunningly contrived channels to Wall street, where the few who control the industries of the nation can use it to exploit the people for further profits. This element has enlisted President Taft in its ranks, and his attitude toward the bill is almost as dangerous as that of those who oppose it in any form.

It having been taken for granted that the chance of defeating the bill was small, the efforts of the President and those who advise with him have been directed toward putting it in such form that Wall street will get the benefit of the new supply of available currency it will bring into the channels of trade. The real friends of the bill and of the people want it framed so that the money deposited in the postoffices of the several communities will remain in those communities to be available for local uses; in other words, so that the local banks shall be the depositories of the postal savings banks.

On one pretense or another, President Taft and his leaders have been trying to prevent this, and to provide that the money should be invested in 2 per cent government bonds; thus providing a means of ridding the national banks of their holdings of these bonds when the Aldrich currency plans are carried out, and a means of taking the money away from the local communities and putting it where the Wall street interests will have easy access to it.

The insurgents in the senate stopped this pretty plan by procuring the adoption of an amendment providing that the postal savings bank deposits shall not be invested in bonds bearing less than 2¼ per cent interest; but this safeguard is itself in peril, and either in the house or in conference committee it is likely to be destroyed.

It is said, too, that President Taft has taken a stand that, for him, is emphatic and flatfooted. It is asserted that if the bill as it passes provides for leaving the deposits in local banks, and does not provide a way of draining them to Washington or New York, he will veto the bill.

It is to be hoped that congress will give him the chance. The bill in the form to which he objects is just the bill the people need and desire. The bill in the form he wants it to take is just the bill that Aldrich and Wall street want if they must accept a postal savings bank.

It is an excellent opportunity for the president to choose between Wall street and the people, and it ought to be presented to him in such concrete form that there can be no mistake about his choice.

WHY NOT?

The Bemidji Pioneer offers a suggestion for a Fourth of July celebration in Northern Minnesota that has much to commend it.

Why not, says the Pioneer, divert all the money usually spent for explosives to the purchase of dynamite, and use all the dynamite to blow out stumps on cut-over lands, thus making them available for agriculture?

Says the Pioneer: "Supposing the entire northern half of Minnesota would, next Fourth of July, abandon the foolish waste of money in purchasing fire crackers, fireworks and the like, and would invest in the purchase of dynamite.

"Supposing the entire north country would celebrate by blowing stumps out of the ground on each and every Fourth of July for the next ten years; how many acres could be cleared in this manner!

"The idea has been advanced by a Mr. Loyhed of Faribault, Minn. He suggests that more real fun, to say nothing about the benefits, can be derived from a Fourth of July celebration of this kind if it is carried out in every community, than from any other kind. This, taken seriously, might prove to much advantage to Northern Minnesota. Why not choose a picnic ground on the outskirts of your city in which there are enough stumps to tear out for a Fourth of July dynamite celebration?"

Why not, indeed? Mr. Loyhed has a head on his shoulders, and it works.

Such a celebration would provide every element of delight that the old-fashioned celebration furnished, and would put them all to practical use. There would be noise enough to satiate the fiercest appetite for Fourth of July noise. There would be explosions enough to please all the small boys in every community, and they would be made, too, with dynamite, a material which the law forbids when it is used to enhance the delight of fire crackers.

The plan would provide a new and delightful method of getting the people together in each community. Equipped with well-filled baskets of picnic eatables and armed with all the dynamite the usual expenditure for fire crackers and fireworks will buy, the whole community can turn out and have a bully time; and at its close something will have been done for progress and the people.

Why shouldn't the idea be taken seriously? Surely the fact that good will come of it will not take all the fun out of it! Surely it isn't necessary that a Fourth of July celebration, to satisfy a patriotic people, shall be all waste, and often worse than waste!

A CURIOUS PHENOMENON.

When railroad measures have come up from the people and pressed at the closely guarded gate of legislation, they have been bitterly opposed by certain forces, and those who proposed and supported them have been condemned by these forces as demagogues, disturbers and Socialists.

At present we have in congress the peculiar spectacle of a railroad measure which did not come up from the people but which did come down from the president, pressing against that same closely guarded gate of legislation. The old guards that met the people's bills with such zealous and bitter hostility have flung the gate wide open and bade the stranger enter.

All the forces which used to belabor the people's railroad bills so fiercely, and to heap such contumely upon the heads of their supporters, are now either silent or openly approving the administration's measure.

Their hostility and abuse are reserved, this time, for those who oppose this railroad bill and for those who propose amendments to it that seem calculated to make it helpful to the people.

In the past those pressing amendments to pending railroad bills have been the very ones who now oppose amendments; those heaping abuse upon the advocates of pending railroad bills have been the very ones who now heap abuse on the heads of those who oppose the administration bill. In the past amendments to pending railroad bills were intended to shape those bills in the interests of the railroads. Now, amendments to the administration's railroad bill are intended to shape it in the interest of the people.

Here is a curious reversal of circumstances that is worth studying, and that tends to throw considerable light upon the Taft-Wickersham bill and to give meaning to the presidential conferences with railroad magnates which preceded its preparation.

A FAMILIAR NOTE.

Says the Pine City Pioneer, in one of a column of brisk paragraphs in a recent issue: "The same papers that are now rejoicing over the fall of 'Cannonism' in their editorial columns are the ones who told a few weeks ago about the 'one-man power' in Washington. Why don't some of them arise and explain how it is that this 'tyrant' was so easily crushed if he was the 'dictator' they have been picturing him to be? Surely the American people delight in being exploited by the sensationalist and the demagogue!"

Was the Capetian monarchy in France less tyrannous because after years of oppression, the people suddenly turned and blotted it out?

Is Cannonism less a one-man power because congress, after years of shameful subserviency, at last was driven by the force of outraged public sentiment into depriving the tyrant Cannon of part of his power?

From the spirit of the paragraph quoted above, from the fact that an ex-congressman from this district has recently been at his home in Pine City, and from the fact the column of paragraphs from which this selection was made appears only "every once in awhile" and not every week, we'll wager a bushel of government free seeds against one of Joe Cannon's worn-out shoestrings that J. Adam Bede is helping the local newspaper boys out in his spare moments.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

THE NEW VOTER AND THE OLD PARTIES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The columns of the newspapers are teeming with reports of investigations of graft and corruption in high places, newly organized combinations of capital in defiance of all law, notices of the cost of the very necessities of life soaring sky-high, divorce laws being strained to the very limit, for the benefit of the wealthy, and disclosing conditions which disgust every blue-blooded citizen of our fair land.

Politicians of all political faiths will soon again bid for the votes of the people. The writer is a young man who has just reached his majority and is experiencing difficulty in making up his mind regarding political parties and political questions, and awaits with interest the explanations which will be made concerning the conditions mentioned above. He believes too, that it is the important duty of every citizen to take an interest in the politics of his country, and he doesn't want any office either.

The Republican party, the party of Hamilton and Lincoln,—I purposely omit Roosevelt, for Roosevelt stands head and shoulders above his party as it exists today,—has so completely demonstrated it's inability to meet the needs of the common people; has so wantonly disregarded the trust imposed in it, and so often thrown the rights of the people to the four winds, that it can no longer be considered the champion of the people's rights, if indeed, it ever was. Such a transformation has taken place in it's make-up that it's founders, were they to return to earth today, would scarcely recognize it. So with the Democratic party. Three times it harpooned Bryan because he championed the cause of the people, and now, if we are to believe the press dispatches, the the shame of his party and the actions of its leaders, is about to cast his lot with the beerless. Will he leave the Democratic party? Strange things are happening these days and Mr. Bryan does love variety.

The writer comes from a rock-ribbed Republican family, every member of which glories in the fact that for the past fifty years he has never scratched his ticket, and who dares not make his own political tenets known at home for fear of excommunication. In infancy he was practically made to believe that the Republican party "in the beginning created the heavens and the earth," and is simply beginning to wonder why it has rested ever since. Political discussions were always in order 'round our fireside and we heard so much concerning what the Republican party had accomplished that we often felt like inquiring what part the Almighty had to do in the creation.

Shall the people rule so long as either of the two great political parties remain at the helm of the ship of state? Party names today serve merely to differentiate between those in office and those who would like to be in office. I grow weary hearing some of the old timers, worshippers at the shrine of political precedent, for ever saying "vote the straight ticket, my boy," or, "don't be a turncoat," and don't you think, Mr. Editor, that there are thousands of young men in the country, and many of them right here in Duluth, who are beginning to feel like myself, and are ready and willing to break away from the faith of our fathers, when anything reasonable in the line of political parties presents itself?

Every student of present day economic conditions will agree that the time is ripe for a new opposition party. The doctrines of Henry George are becoming more and more popular and the Socialist party is growing by leaps and bounds, and Socialism, although unchanged in itself, is not regarded by the average man or woman as being nearly so radical as it was two years or even a year ago. The writer is not a Socialist but admires and believes sincerely in many of it's principles and does not share in that alarm felt by many that Socialism would bring about such violent changes in the present system, or deprive any citizen of his constitutional rights.

My Republican and Democratic friends, you must offer us younger men, something better than heretofore. The utterances of your party leaders and party organs are become as sounding brass and tinkling cymbal.

Will it ultimately be Socialism? Gentlemen, it is up to you.

ROOSEVELT'S CONSCIENCE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The April 23 issue of The Evening Herald contained an editorial on the subject of Roosevelt's simple rule. When reading the statement that Mr. Roosevelt does nothing but what he thinks to be right, a few questions naturally present themselves: Did he actually believe that the people of Egypt have no right to independence, or did he make that scathing speech against the Nationalist because he wanted the crowned heads of Europe to receive him more cordially?

Did he enter into that compact with Harriman in 1904 because he thought that the Republicans ought to be elected by fair means or foul, or did he simply want the honor of being president? This could hardly come under the head of "mistake."

Was it merely a mistake that he surrendered the railroad regulation bill when it was almost won, or was he doing what he thought was right?

Why did he make Mr. Taft president? Isn't it a queer thing that Mr. Taft could have deceived Mr. Roosevelt with his broad grasp and great power of discernment for thirty years of intimate friendship, when he could not fool his strongest supporters and admirers for even a year?

I remember that a few years ago, I believe it was in 1907, Mr. Roosevelt visited Vice President Fairbanks at his home in Indianapolis. Mr. Fairbanks is a temperance man and no liquors of any kind are served at his table, but Mr. Roosevelt called for a cocktail at luncheon and Fairbanks sent out and got it. I remember that Mr. Fairbanks was bitterly attacked and humiliated for that while Mr. Roosevelt passed on unquestioned.

Last year Mr. Taft made a tour of the West and during that tour he became thirsty and drank. Large headlines in the daily papers announced the fact to the public. Mr. Roosevelt made the same trip, and also drank cocktails in 1903 but there was not a line about it in any of the papers.

Small and mean politicians fall because they attempt to carry through little schemes to which the people have become accustomed: Roosevelt wins because he has the nerve to carry out such gigantic schemes such as the people have never seen before. The man who attempts to steal on a small scale nearly always loses because the people are onto his ways, but Harriman won because, like Roosevelt, he was doing business on a large scale. I do not believe that even your paper can say that Harriman was following the dictates of a conscience.

"Yes, Mabel; I'd Love You Just the Same if You Were as Poor as a Church Mouse."

"No, Sor, the Young Leddy Isn't at Home."

"I Haven't the Money With Me Now, But I'll Pay You Next Week, Sure."

"He's Not Five Years Old Yet, Conductor."

"I Don't Want It for Myself, You Know; I'm Buying It for a Friend."

"I Detest Liquor. But the Doctor Advises Me to Use It."

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Detroit Free Press: "Well, there's one good thing about that Pittsburg scandal, anyhow."

"What's that?"

"So far as I know there aren't any chorus girls mixed up in it."

Detroit Free-Press: "I used to have a voice in the affairs of my house," said he.

"And now?"

"Now my wife and daughters have turned insurgents and they've kicked me off the committee on rules and regulations."

Chicago Record-Herald: Little 7-year-old Mary attended Sunday school a few days after her little brother, Hally, Jr., arrived, and on her return home she claimed they sang in honor of her baby brother. When questioned as to what they sang, she replied, "Hally, Jr., thine the glory."

Cleveland Leader: The Conductor—Why don't you move forward, there?

The Passenger—The motorman won't let me.

The Tatler: Editor—But, my good fellow, why do you bring this poem to me?

Impecunious One—Well, sir, because I hadn't a stamp, sir.

Judge: "While I was engaged to her she made me give up drinking, smoking and golf. Last of all, I gave up something on my own account."

"What was that?"

"The girl."

Bon Vivant: Doctor—Did you give your wife a spoonful of the medicine?

Husband—Oh, no; she wants to get well quickly, so I gave her the whole lot.

Fliegende Blatter: Future Mother-in-law—Do you think we shall get on well together?

My dear lady, it was chiefly to have you as mother-in-law that I fell in love with your daughter.

The Sketch: His Daughter—Daddy, you were 25 when this was taken, weren't you? Why, you might have sat for it yesterday.

Her Father—M'yes—your mother's own daughter; well, well, you'll find it on the table, I think!

His Daughter — Find what, daddy darling?

Her Father—The checkbook, my own lamb.

The Follow-up-ee.

Oh, I am the Follow-up-ee—
The fellow who gets ev'ry letter
From folks who have something that's better
They're anxious to sell unto me.
'Twere useless to fly or to flee—
I know that the letters would find me;
Wherever I journey I see
Processions of letters behind me.

I've moved, but the letters were there—(I'm sure there is some one who tattles)—
While the van was unloading my chattels
The carrier stood on the stair
Piled high with my regular share
Of purple and blue imitations
Describing some wonderful ware,
With suitable recommendations.

John Jones, who has autos to sell,
A letter a week would allot me.
He wrote me, and wrote me—and got me.
He wrote so exceedingly well
He got me at last 'neath the spell.
I struggled and struggled and fought it.
I struggled and struggled—and fell;
I read what he said—and I bought it.

But the sure-enough "follow-up" man
Who's labored the hardest to reach
me
Is the one who is willing to teach me
To master a "follow-up" plan.
He'll tell me just how he began,
And says, if I only will try it,
He'll prove how an article can
Be boosted so millions will buy it.

Let me say, as a Follow-up-ee,
The tip that I really am needing
Is not any scheme for succeeding
With form letters 1, 2 and 3.
The thing that's attractive to me
Is not any "follow-up" system;
The plan that I'm seeking, you see,
Is some kind of way to resist 'em!

Only to Live a Little Longer.

New York Sun: The fountain of youth is the dream of the young. At 30 the springtime of life is all but gone. Lines come upon the face, scored by cares man has yet not the wisdom to throw off, the girth becomes a matter of consideration, the feet begin to lag and stairs grow long. Then comes the regret for the quick years. It cannot have been a mere dream which came to Ponce de Leon in Porto Rico and lured him to Florida in search of the magical Island of Bimini and the fountain whose waters gave youth forever to the hardy voyager.

No longer do we seek immortality in remote geography. No longer do we look to or philosopher's stone or the primum mobile of the quintessence to give us length of years. Our hope is set in different terms. We have had revealed to us the usefulness and the iniquity of the colon, all too late to risk its excision. We have been informed that we do not really grow old; we yield to arteriosclerosis. Still, we have the hope that aging humanity has always had. The years of a man are the years of his colon and his aorta.

Now comes from Paris our latest hope for the years declining. Modestly Dr. Doyen, the discoverer, announces no absolute elixir vitae. He thinks only that he is nearer to finding it than any before him. The tale comes to us in the newer jargon, unknown and magnificent. It is by means which is to prolong our years to a considerable extent. It is to dissolve germs which in their activity might wreck us, it is to give new strength to the phagocytes which are the devourers of our inner ills. In a barbarous phrase, it is to decuplize, to multiply by ten, the power of our resisting agents.

As we look back we can spare without regret the fountain of youth. Always to be callow might not be an unmixed blessing. But to keep forever the years of man, to hold the stores of memory, to live steadily and to live whole, to find at last the elixir of life—such as this has charm for us in these adult centuries as it had in the childhood of man.

Lines From an Unclaimed Rib.

Oh, unknown man whose rib I am,
Why don't you come for me?
A lonely, homesick rib I am,
That would with others be!
I want to wed—
There now, it's said!
(I won't deny and fib)—
I want my man to come at once and claim
His rib!

Some men have thought that I was theirs,
But only for a bit;
We found out soon it wouldn't do;
We didn't seem to fit.
There's just one place,
The only space
I'll fit—(I will not fib)—
I want that man to come at once and claim
His rib!

Oh, don't you sometimes feel a lack,
A new rib needed there?
It's I. Do come and get me soon
Before I have gray hair!
Come get me, dear!
I'm homesick here;
I want—(and I'll not fib)—
I want my man to come at once and claim
His rib!

Getting at the Facts.

Yonkers Statesman: Patience—I hear you're engaged to be married.

Patrice—Where in the world did you hear that?

"My maid told me."

"How did she hear it?"

"A policeman told her."

"More mystery. How came a policeman to know it?"

"Why the man you're engaged to told him when the officer was taking him home!"

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

Employing carpenters in Duluth met yesterday and discussed the labor situation. They finally decided not to give in to the eight-hour demand, but to grant an increase of 25 cents a day of ten hours and, if the men refuse to accept this offer, to hold out against a strike.

At the city council meeting last evening, a resolution by Alderman Long, that on and after May 1 eight hours should constitute a day's work for all city laborers employed by the day, was defeated by a vote of 8 to 4. Aldermen Long, Perry, Sorenson and President Hugo voting in the affirmative. W. W. Davis was confirmed as a member of the board of public works, vice George Rupley, resigned. Theodore Macy and Charles Ottinger were made poundmasters. J. A. Roberts was awarded the contract for building the new city jail.

At a meeting of the members of the First Presbyterian church, it was voted to invite the Minnesota synod to hold its next convention in Duluth. St. Paul had the last meeting and it is probable Duluth's invitation will be accepted.

The 40-foot lot on the corner of Superior street and Second avenue west, bought by Lyman Nichols and Eben Wright of Boston, and the lot adjoining owned by Mr. Hodges, will be built upon next spring. A handsome structure, 100 by 115 feet, will be erected. The height has not been decided upon.

George N. Lyman, Jr., of Minneapolis, who is interested in the New Duluth Land company, is at the Spalding.

Articles of incorporation of the Duluth & Superior Investment company have been filed. The capital stock is placed at $250,000. The principal place of business will be at Duluth, with a branch at St. Louis, Mo. The incorporators are Robert Abeles, James W. Bell, John Dieckman, George F. Durant, Victor W. Fisher, John O'Keefe, Benjamin J. Taussig, Charles S. Taussig, James Taussig, Joseph S. Taussig and Andrew Warren of St. Louis, and Louis J. Taussig and Alfred W. Taussig of Duluth.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

The Two Rival Parties.

St. Peter Herald: Only two political parties are recognized by the people—the conservative or standpat Democrats and Republicans who are heart and soul with the corporations, and the progressive or liberal Republicans and Democrats who are on the side of the people. Watch the voters draw the line in the compaign this fall.

A Medley of Metaphors.

Holdingford Advertiser: The Little Falls Transcript must have a newly imported Irishman on its editorial force, judging by the following specimen of beautifully mixed metaphor found in a recent issue:

"The dove of harmony still perches on the Democratic mansion. The letter from W. J. B., which was read at the Jefferson banquet held in Washington and which was thought might crack the string on which the Democrats bring out such sweet harmony, proved to be quite stingless and not capable of raising bristles with every word. The same reference to the platform of 1896 was the portion that was regarded as possibly objectionable."

Aldrichism and Republicanism.

Red Wing Free Press: Aldrich has had enough. He is willing to retire from congress if allowed to do so without being subjected to fire at the time. In other words, he offers to buy with the promise of retiring from congress. So far as Aldrich personally is concerned his retirement would be well worth the price. But Aldrich is only another name for Republicanism. Immunity for Aldrich would therefore mean immunity for Republicanism, and the country cannot afford to grant that at any price.

Good for Gordon!

Brown's Valley Tribune: Why should not the state pay taxes on its land holdings the same as individuals? The state holds large tracts of lands in Northern Minnesota, and settlers who are few and far between, cannot afford to erect schoolhouses and properly educate their children. If the state lands were taxed the barrier would be removed. When Minnesota is advertising to the world its great resources and many advantages for the purpose of inducing new settlers to locate, can she afford to have even in sparsely settled communities children who are not given the advantage of a common school education?

Easy for Lindbergh.

Buffalo Journal: If the press of this district is any indication of the standing of Mr. Lindbergh with the voters his opponent will not make much of a showing.

Jadam and the Primary.

Wadena Pioneer Journal: J. Adam Bede is quoted as saying that the present primary election law bars all but the rich from aspiring to public office. If that law had not been in force J. Adam would never have been a compaign of 1902, the first time Bede was elected. He certainly was not a rich man then, whatever may be his financial condition today. J. Adam has been talking rather strange lately for a man who professes to be with the people.

The Significant Word "But."

Elk River Star-News: It is a funny situation in Minnesota politics when there is but one candidate for gubernatorial nomination and no prospects for another. To add to the funny conditions is the general admission that the governor will be nominated with the significant word "but" added. There should be no but if the Republicans of the state are satisfied with the conditions which savor so suspiciously of machine domination, but there is and it certainly adds to the complications of the situation.

The Woman Trust.

T. W. Hugo in Duluth Masonic Calendar: We hear so much about trusts, good and bad; our trust innocuous, the other fellow's vicious; the big ones good, the little ones bad, that most every other subject, except "Teddy," shrinks into insignificance and IT is inclined to include him in the category of the great Trusts; in fact if IT was asked to name, on hand, the three greatest trusts they would read: First, the Woman trust; second, the Labor Union trust; third, the "Teddy" trust, but the greatest of these is the Woman trust. Have you ever thought about the extent and ramifications of that first of all trusts; by a species of gradual and insidious advances it has become a necessary of life without our special knowledge until too late to reverse the decision; it has become a part of our social system; we are weak enough to like it and submit to its flattery and blandishments and it has instituted a species of universal peonage or slavery the like of which has, in no other instance, been equalled; it bundles us up in infancy, until it thinks we ought to be put in dresses, which we wear till we get to the Lord Fauntleroy period, although we want to be a pirate, and then it dictates when we are to go into pants which later become trousers; it decides when, how and where we shall be married and then settles whether or not it shall be alimony or life insurance; not content with that it now wants to take away from us our only remaining relic of freedom by organizing the Suffragettes. Against this latest outrage IT protests and —submits. What's the use of kicking, anyhow?

Pointed Paragraphs.

La Follette, Prophet.

Sioux City Tribune: Is La Follette really a prophet? When fresh in the senate, breaking into fragments the hoary tradition that a young senator must sit silent for at least two years, La Follette began his great speech on regulation of railway rates and services, the elder statesmen, to emphasize their disgust, arose and with dignified tread, sought the silences of the cloakrooms. They thought to administer a crushing rebuke to this impudent and stubborn senator, who dared infringe the customs with which they had hedged about their dignitaries, who had thrust himself "betwixt the wind and their nobility."

Then came this prediction:

"Mr. President, I pause in my remarks to say this. I cannot be wholly indifferent to the fact that senators, by their absence at this time, indicate their want of interest in what I may have to say upon this subject. The public is interested. Unless this important question is settled right, seats now temporarily vacant may be permanently vacated by those who have the right to occupy them at this time."

Let us see which of those seats then temporarily vacated by their occupants to express their dissent from the views of the sturdy little fighter from Wisconsin was expressing, have since been made permanently vacant by their constituents. La Follette spoke on April 19-23, 1906. Four years have passed. What senators have passed from the cloakroom of those days to the gloom of private life? Long of Kansas; Fulton of Oregon; Hopkins of Illinois; Ankeny of Washington; Hansborough of North Dakota; Spooner of Wisconsin. Who are to pass because they see the fate that awaits them should they presume to stand for another term? Flint of California; Piles of Washington; Aldrich of Rhode Island, and Hale of Maine. Ten senators dismissed or dodging dismissal in the four short years that have intervened since La Follette made that prediction. Verily, La Follette possesses the gift of prophecy.

Pa and the Bond of Sympathy.

I wish that pa was runnin' things; I bet you then we'd see
Some changes that would make the folks around us shout with glee;
If pa was where Taft is today, he'd bring the prices down,
The men who pack the pork would all be put in jail unless They'd get down on their knees and crawl! Is pa mad? Well, I guess.

If pa was runnin' things you bet the people that consume
Would stand a show all right, all right—their stock would have a boom;
He'd fix it so when Teddy gets back home he'd whoop for joy
And slap pa proudly on the back and call him bully boy;
He'd make them shut Wall street, too;
he'd stop the bulls and bears;
The workingmen, when pa got through, would all be millionaires.

Last night when pa was tellin' how he'd run the government,
Ma said: "It's easy for you now to blame the president;
But I can't see why you should think you'd be so great and strong.
When nearly everything you do appears to turn out wrong;
If you could run things there so well
why don't you practice, dear,
And fix it so that we could go ahead a little here?"

Pa laid his stogie down and threw his paper on the floor,
And ma began to shrink; she knew that there would be a roar;
"A man's a fool," he said, "to hope that he can ever find
A bond of sympathy with one that's got a narrow mind!"

Good Health As an Asset.

Boston Herald: Preventive medicine is now a distinct department of instruction in the Harvard medical school, and Johns Hopkins university announces its intention to follow suit ere long. The next step in university and college education will be the creation of chairs for training men who will go forth as competent to instruct in public and private hygiene. The director of the Sheffield scientific school of Yale university in a recent interview, discussing the future of that institution, has well said:

"During the next twenty-five years there will be, in the writer's opinion, much more attention paid to the maintenance and efficiency of the individual and the efficiency of the community with special reference to the working capacity. The social and economic problems which are now being vaguely studied will, in the near future, crystallize into more definite shape, and will come to be recognized as important factors in relation to the working power of the individual. In this connection, courses in public and personal hygiene; courses which bear upon a broader and more accurate conception of the nutrition of the individual, with reference to health and efficiency, may well be made an integral part of the training of men for a business career. There is not at present sufficient realization of the value as an asset in life of good health."

Prof. Chittenden's standing as a student of problems of nutrition makes this prediction weighttier.

"Housekeeperitis"

Poor tired soul, she is the victim of "housekeeperitis"—a disease common to women who haven't learned to take advantage of the Gold Dust way of easy house-cleaning and house-caring.

Why fuss and fret, work and worry, when Gold Dust will relieve you of at least half the labor of cleaning everything and anything about the house? Whether for washing clothes or dishes, cleaning pots, pans and woodwork, scrubbing floors, doors or bathroom, you will find Gold Dust more economical, more convenient and better than soap or any other cleanser.

The Golden Rule of Housework is "Use Gold Dust."

Do not use Soap, Naphtha, Borax, Soda, Ammonia or Kerosene with Gold Dust. Gold Dust has all desirable cleansing qualities in a perfectly harmless and lasting form. The Gold Dust Twins need no outside help.

WALKER ON THE METAL

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commerical said:

"Copper is weaker and the feeling in metal circles is anything but cheerful. Lake is 13 to 13¼ cents and electrolytic is 12⅝ to 12¾ cents per pound. The recent sale of a considerable lot of copper at 13 cents by Calumet & Hecla had a bad effect sentimentally on trade conditions. Consumers are buying very sparingly. The situation in the market for lake copper is not especially bad, as practically all the companies producing this grade are well sold out, some of them as far ahead as July 1. Practically all of the world's surplus is electrolytic. It is quite possible, therefore, that the difference in the prices of these two grades may soon be greater than it is now. American electrolytic copper is being sold freely and delivered in Europe cheaper than it can be bought in this country.

It develops that the agitation in favor of discontinuing the monthly reports of the Copper Producers' association was started by Amalgamated interests and it ended there, other large producers being almost unanimously in favor of their continuance. Amalgamated people have been active again in an effort to induce some of the large producers to curtail their output; but they have been unsuccessful."

WOOLEN MILL WILL BE ONE OF DULUTH'S IMPORTANT INDUSTRIES

THE IMPERIAL MILL.

The lease of the Imperial flour mill by F. A. Patrick & Co., to be used as a woolen mill, as announced in The Herald Saturday afternoon, means the addition of a large and growing industry to Duluth's list. The woolen mill is now located at Fosston, but the machinery will be moved to Duluth, and the capacity of the mill will be greatly increased. It should become one of Duluth's most important industries.

IDEALISM OF JESUS

Discussed By Rev. Arthur Reeves Vosburgh, C. S. B., of Rochester, N. Y.

Lecture at Lyceum Under Auspices of Christian Science Church.

One of the largest audiences ever gathered at a lecture in the Lyceum listened yesterday afternoon to a discourse delivered by Rev. Arthur Reeves Vosburgh, C. S. B. of Rochester, N. Y., member of the Christian Science board of lectureship, under the auspices of the First Church of Duluth. The lecturer was introduced by Hon. John H. Norton, county attorney, with a short address. Mr. Vosburgh's subject was "The Idealism of Jesus." He said:

"Every great religious movement that has marked a spiritual epoch has always been dominated by some transcendent character. There has always been some Moses or Samuel or David, some Paul or Luther or Wesley to go before and lead forth the people of God. And every movement that has brought humanity nearer to God has, in doing this, elevated human thinking and living into realms where they have become more gentle and pure and good. So, when such a movement as Christian Science should come into the world, it was inevitable that there should be a divinely ordained one to reveal and lead the way; and because it is inevitable that the knowledge which is divine power shall come in gentleness, beauty, purity and light, it was in the native order of the divine fitness of things that this one should be a woman.

The Discovery.

It is a matter of common knowledge that Mary Baker Eddy is the discoverer of Christian Science, and that this discovery came about through her own healing—a healing that came through the touch of divine power, when human resources could offer neither help nor hope.

It is by no means a thing anomalous and unprecedented in Christian history that one should be healed through faith, in answer to prayer. It is a matter of authentic record that spiritual healing was known in the work of Wesley and his early followers, among the Quakers, or Friends, among the Scotch Covenanters. Luther healed his young friend, Melancthon. All down through the process of the Christian centuries, after eliminating everything that seems to bear the stamp of fanaticism or superstition, there yet remains in the Christian church a continuous record of those who came near to God that in the hour of need they proved that He is one who not onlyforgiveth all our iniquities, but who healeth all our diseases. One of the great orthodox thinkers and writers of the last century, one whom some have thought even the greatest, Dr. Horace Bushnell, has said this: "The first thing arrived at, by any one who prosecutes this kind of inquiry apart from all prepossessions and saws of tradition, will certainly be that the clumsy assumption commonly held, of a cessation of the original apostolic gifts, at about some date, is forever exploded; for, as in fact they never consented to be stayed, so in history they persist in running by all time, until finally the investigator comes into the discovery that the stream is a river, flowing continuously through all ages, and always to flow." (Nature and the Supernatural.)

Mrs. Eddy felt there was a law back of her healing, and that she must know what it was. Under this Divine impulsion she retired from society for three years, and giving herself to a study of the Scriptures, "sought the solution of this problem of mind-healing"; as she herself has put it, "devoted time and energies to discovering a positive rule." (Science and Health, page 109.) Through this search and research she came to the point of understanding, where she "apprehended • • • the principle and rule of spiritual science and metaphysical healing—in a word, Christian Science." (Retrospection and Introspection.)

For this quest she had received a preparation along another line of experience. In her practice as a homeopathic physician she had noted often that prescriptions in which the drug had been so highly attentuated that it had practically disappeared, healed cases that larger doses failed to reach. Even utterly unmedicated water or pellets frequently reached the same result. Only one explanation for this appeared, and that was that it was faith in the prescription and not the prescription itself which wrought the cure. Out of all these experiences she had become convinced that healing of any kind is always of mental procurement, and through her own healing she reached the understanding that God, Divine Mind, is the true curative principle. Thus, she arrived naturally at what she has given as constituting the central idea of her discovery—"the scientific certainty that all causation was mind, and every effect a mental phenomenon." (Retrospection and Introspection.)

Christian Idealism.

This brings us to the basic point of view of Christian Science, which is that of a radical and consistent idealism. Its position, to put it a little differently, is that to find the true explanation, the real nature, meaning and substance of things, we must look to mind, and not to matter. One of the fundamental propositons of the Christian Science text book is "There is no life, truth, intelligence nor substance in matter. All is infinite mind and its infinite manifestation, for God is All in all." (Science and Health, page 468.) This position is certainly radical and revolutionary; but any system that will interpret and demonstrate the ideal of Jesus can be nothing less. The Kingdom of God can not admit either matter or evil, and Christian Science eliminates both as either power or reality.

We read of a man who once healed the sick and raised the dead; who turned water into wine, walked the wave, out of a handful of loaves and fishes fed the assembled thousands; who finally came and went through closed doors, appeared and disappeared, and at last passed hence, not through the gateway of death, but through the unfolding portals of eternal life. What would God's Universe seem to us to be, could we gain his insight and secure his point of view? For what must have been his sense of the real power that lies back of chemical activity and chemical affinity, when He turned water into wine? What must have been His relation to the elements and forces about Him when He stilled the storm and walked the wave? What was His conception of the nature of Life when He healed the sick and raised the dead? And what His understanding of the law of mind when, with a spoken word or an unmuttered thought, He restored the lunatic and domaniac to rational poise and power? From all these mighty workings we can be sure of this: That Jesus understood that the government of the Universe is constituted in spiritual power and spiritual law; but this is only another way of saying that Jesus understood that the real universe is spiritual, and not material.

Jesus' teachings and works, then, set before us an idealism that excludes matter and evil, and includes all good. The Christian Scientist frankly, squarely adopts this idealism, and he meets every manifestation of evil, whether of sicknes, sin, poverty, sorrow, disaster, with a positive denial of its power or reality, and an affirmation of the allness and godness of God; and just in the degree of his spiritual clearness and understanding, he supports these statements by demonstration.

The Practicability of the Ideal.

The public attitude of thought regarding Christian Science is today one of increasing friendliness. The one objection that constantly recurs is, "You go too far." But does Christian Science go any farther than the teachings of Jesus? Could any doctrine be more radical than that of the Master? And the same objection was brought against Him. Every one whoever brought to the world any innovation that should mark one distinct march in the line of progress in any direction has been greeted by the same old objection, "You go too far." When the inventor of the steam locomotive appeared before a committee of parliament to explain his new invention, he was asked if it would be possible for coaches drawn by a steam locomotive to travel as fast as ten miles an hour, and his answer was that it would. Then he was questioned as to the possibility of traveling at the rate of twelve, fifteen, twenty, twenty-five or even thirty miles an hour, and he averred that this would all be possible. This was all so far beyond the range of any rational acceptance for these wise men that they wanted nothing more to do with such an impracticable dreamer. He "went too far." So of the steamship, the telegraph, the telephone; the men who first believed and advocated the possibility of these things were met by the same old objection—they were going too far. And far more strenuously has this objection been urged against the philosophers and prophets who have dared to think ahead of their generation and urge their people to higher ideals. The beaker cup, the cross, the stake, have been among the penalties that have awaited such as these. Strangely, inevitably has it ever been the case that one who has brought to his generation a heaven-born truth that would lift them to higher levels of thinking and living, has always been met, not only by the world's scorn and derision, but by its malice and persecution; and even his brethren have greeted him with the biting gibe, "Behold this dreamer cometh," and then have sold him into Egypt. But the one who, with the conviction of a divine ideal, is Egypt's bondman today, stands next to the throne tomorrow; and his brethren come to his feet to buy the bread that will save their lives. The world's light-bringers and light-bearers have all been the dreamers, the idealists, whose only transgression was that they went too far.

A woman once heard Wendell Phillips, in a lecture, say that God never permitted any man to hold an ideal too beautiful for his power to make practicable. Under the impulse and inspiration of the statement, she went to her home and wrote a poem, of which these are the first and last stanzas:

"Men take the pure ideals of their lives
And lock them fast away,
And never dream that things so beautiful
Are fit for every day.
So, counterfeits pass current in their lives,
And stones they give for bread,
And starvingly and fearingly they walk
Through life amongst the dead;
Though never yet was pure ideal
Too fair for us to make our real.

Thine early dreams, which came in shapes of light,
Came bearing prophecy,
Commissioned sweetly to unfold
Thy possible to thee
Fear not to build thine eyry in the heights,
Bright with celestial day,
And trust thyself in simple faith
To thine inmost soul alway;
And God shall make divinely real
The highest forms of thine ideal."

The Christian Scientist has adopted the ideal of Jesus, an ideal that includes all the possibilities of good and excludes all the elements of the flesh and of evil; and he finds the practical application and demonstration of this ideal in affirming the constant healing, guiding, sustaining presence of divine love and in denying any principle, power or reality to evil. This affirmation of good and denial of evil gain beneficent results, just to the degree of the clearness of the understanding and the faithfulness of the application of the ideal, and herein is found the only needed means and mode by which to prove God's love and power to be sufficient for every need. A multitude stand forth today and bear glad witness that they have proven the ideal true; that when it bids us trust God entirely, as the one "Who foregiveth all thine iniquities and who healeth all thy diseases; who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with loving kindness and tender mercies; who satisfieth thy mouth with good things; so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's;" in all this it is not bidding us go too far.

The Bible and the Text-Book.

In following this line of light, the Christian Scientist has acknowledged that: "As adherents of Truth, we take the inspired Word of the Bible as our sufficient guide to eternal life," (Science and Health, page 497.) Hand in hand with the Bible—not as supplementing its message, not as adding to or taking aught therefrom, but as interpreting its meaning—is the text-book of Christian Science and Health. With Key to the Scriptures, whose author is the Rev. Mary Baker Eddy. The Christian Scientist has increasing and unreserved confidence in these two books because he has thus far proven them safe guides upon the way, and this gives him assurance that they will be safe guides to the end. He believes that the light which their message has brought, with its witness of unfolding health, holiness, harmony, will grow brighter and brighter unto the perfect day. He brings his supreme allegiance, which is his reasonable service, to the Christ that they reveal, and he brings an abiding and abounding gratitude to the discoverer of Christian Science, as the one who in our day has helped human thought to find its way back to the clearness and power of primitive Christianity; who has shown how, in the understanding of the Christianity that Jesus taught and demonstrated, is to be established the kingdom of heaven on earth; and who through evil report and good report has stood faithful and obedient to the heavenly vision in declaring the Truth as she has received it."

NORD ALEXIS DIES IN EXILE

Broken By Stormy Career---Age Estimated at 59 to 100 Years.

Kingston, Jamaica, May 2. — Nord Alexis, ex-president of Hayti, died here Sunday, following a brief illness. His health, however, had been considerably broken by the experiences of the last year and a half, after he was deposed and sent into exile. He was a refugee here since the revolution of 1908 and was possessed of considerable property here.

Nord Alexis was variously estimated at from 59 to 100 years old. He was a descendent of one of the oldest families of Hayti. After he was educated by his parents he entered the army and his bravery soon drew him into public attention. He took part in many wars, and, in 1896 rebelled against Hippolyte, who previously had overthrown President Legitime. Hippolyte died the same year while preparing to march against the rebels and he was succeeded by Gen. Sam.

Became President in 1902.

Nord Alexis became president of Hayti in 1902. His term was to have expired May 15, 1909, but his administration was not conspicuously successful. Prominent politicians grumbled because they did not get what they considered their fair share of the spoils, and his conduct in punishing some notorious looters of the national treasury excited widespread indignation, as it was regarded as a gross breach of precedent.

NORD ALEXIS.

Early in 1908 the movement against Alexis had gained great strength, and in March a reign of terror was inaugurated. The warships of four nations went in haste to Port-au-Prince and their arrival put the seal of security on the lives and property of foreigners.

For only a few months, however, did Alexis maintain his rule. In November he ordered Antoine Simon, a commander of the South Fortifications, to come to Port-au-Prince and confer with him on the political situation. Simon refused to comply and immediately took up arms against the president. His march to the capital was a triumphal one, for he seized numerous towns and gathered large forces under his banners. With his approach to Port-au-Prince, the people of that city turned against their president. They surrounded the palace on the morning of Dec. 2 and took possession of the city. At the last moment Alexis yielded to the pleas of those about him and decided to take refuge on board the French warship, Duguay Trouin.

Next Wednesday morning is the time affixed for the opening of the sale of seats for the engagement of "The Round Up," with Maclyn Arbuckle, at the Lyceum theater, which will be seen here for one week, beginning next Monday evening. The features like the Apache army riding down into the canyon, the battle of the cowboys and Indians, the sport of the prairies, the bucking broncbos, and all the rest will be seen in all their realism. The cast includes Maclyn Arbuckle, Albert Phillips, Joseph M. Lothian, Sidney Cushing, Elmer Grandis, William Conklin, S. L. Richardson, James Asburn, James Martin, Ogden Crane, Fred R. Stanton, "Texas" Cooper, Grace Benham, Marie Taylor and Paula Gloy. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

RESIGNS AS MANAGER OF ELECTRICAL COMPANY.

William P. Bear, for two and a half years manager of the Northern Electric company and vice president of the Richardson Electric company, both doing business at 210 West First Street, has resigned his position, his resignation taking effect Saturday.

As soon as he secures a suitable location, Mr. Bear will go into business for himself here. He has lived here two and a half years. During his management of the Northern Electrical company he had charge of the electric wiring in the Sellwood, Christie, Y. M. C. A., Bradley and Columbia buildings in Duluth, and the Great Northern shops and Stott-Briquet buildings in Superior, some of the biggest contracts in the two cities during recent years.

Fortune From Oil Well.

Devils Lake, N. D., May 2.—Dr. W. F. Crewe received a letter from Edgar Hodkinson saying that he had sold his interest in the oil well near Los Angeles for $150,000, possession of the property to be given June 1. In the meantime Edgar continues to make $500 per day from his interest in the oil, which the well is producing. Mr. Hodgkinson invested $2,200 in the property before oil was struck, and a week after he had taken out all he put in.

FAIR

Yesterday started out well with beautiful weather in the morning. In the afternoon the sky was clouded and an uncomfortable wind put the day out of the classification of beautiful spring days. There is a chilly touch in the air this morning, although the sun is shining brightly. The lowest temperature last night was 30 deg. The prophet on the hill promises continued fair weather tonight and tomorrow with freezing temperatures tonight and warmer tomorrow afternoon.

Fair weather prevailed and Duluth was recovering from an April blizzard a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:50 and it will set at 7:21, giving fourteen hours and twenty-nine minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions.

"During the past twenty-four hours rain fell over the southern lake region Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri valleys, and snow over the Upper Missouri valley in connection with a disturbance central over Missouri and Oklahoma. Very heavy rains fell over portions of Western Missouri and Eastern Kansas. A severe hail storm occurred last night at Wichita, Kan. A high pressure area of considerable intensity overlies the Dakotas. This has caused much colder weather throughout the entire Northwest with freezing temperatures southward to including Nebraska and Colorado. Temperatures as low as 20 deg. occurred this morning in Manitoba and Saskatchewan and heavy to killing frosts were general throughout Northwestern Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming.

General Forecasts.

Upper lakes—Northeast to north Winds, brisk to high over south portions; moderate to brisk over north portions; rain or snow and colder on Lake Michigan; rain and colder on Huron; partly cloudy on Superior.

Shippers' forecast—Shipments of perishable products will have freezing temperatures tonight in Northern Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Chicago, May 2.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy tonight; colder; heavy frost or freezing temperatures; Tuesday partly cloudy.

Wisconsin—Threatening tonight and Tuesday, with rain or snow in south portion; colder tonight with temperature near freezing.

Minnesota and North Dakota—Fair tonight and Tuesday; freezing temperature tonight; rising temperature Tuesday.

Iowa.—Threatening with rain or snow tonight and in east portion Tuesday; colder tonight and in southeast portion Tuesday; temperature near freezing tonight.

South Dakota—Fair tonight with killing frost; Tuesday fair with rising temperature.

Montana—Fair tonight and Tuesday with slowly rising temperature; frost tonight.

REPLIES TO RABBI'S TALK

Prohibition Worker Answers Arguments Adavnced By Dr. Lefkovits.

Says Prohibition Is Part of True Religion, Jewish and Christian.

George L. Briggs, organizer of the state prohibition committee has prepared the following reply to the statements of Rabbi Lefkovits concerning prohibition made last Friday evening:

"Prohibition is not religious perhaps, but it is wise and practical because it belongs to true religion both Jewish and Christian. Many things that are religious are not practical. Many things practical are religious. Things religious and pure religion are not synonymous. Pure religion and undefiled is to visit the widows and fatherless in their affliction, and we understand that as citizens, of the kingdom of God and of the American republic, to put a stop to that which is making widows and orphans as fast or faster than other causes, is as wise and laudable and shows as much thought for their welfare as to try to ameliorate their condition after drink has done its deadly work.

"Love is the fulfilling of the Divine law. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor. Habakkuk, the prophet, says 'Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that puttest thy bottle to him, that makest him drunken also.' The people of a government that has known the evil results of intoxicating drink for a hundred years and the still more awful increase of drunkenness and crime through the legalized saloon, and has failed to utterly by the methods of 'keeping it out of politics' and using merely moral suasion, or temperance, and of license, low and high, to decrease the harm done to society or prevent harm's increase above the rate of increase of population,—for such a people to refuse to give a thorough trial to the policy which by partial trial has proved itself to be the salvation of hundreds of tempted men and has wrought harm to no man, is to shut up the 'bowels of compassion' and revert to the barbaric age when the life and limb of others were sacred only so far as they fed one's own pleasure and lust.

"Prohibition deals with the legalized liquor traffic. It is the outlawing of that traffic by an intelligent people who deal with it as a government protecting themselves from whatever produces or tends to produce vice, crime and misery. It is not antagonistic to that condition of society when 'every man shall sit under his own vine and fig tree' to pluck and eat his own grapes and figs before they begin the process of decay, natural or artificial. Even admitting that 'vine' infers fermented wine, the quickest method of securing that social state where every man may exercise his manhood and gain the virtue of individual temperance by resisting intoxicating liquors is to stop their public license manufacture and sale. The supreme court of South Carolina says, 'The licensed saloon keeper does not sell liquor by reason of an inalienable right, inherent in citizenship' 42 S. C. 231 and this is only one of many like decisions of supreme courts.

"It has been established by the highest courts of state and nation that damages may be collected from saloon keepers for loss of money, work or life resulting from the sale of drink. Of course this is pretty well limited by conditions favoring the seller, but taking the actual illegal damage resulting from the existence of the legalized traffic we find that the trade has not investment of enough value to pay for mere financial damage it has done in one year scarcely. Seventy-five thousand dollars is the very conservative estimate of the cost to the public only. Add to this the immense losses to individuals Were we to be just before we are merciful we should have the business suits begun by the state in behalf of the widows and orphans and business interests of the country. Prohibition is indeed contrary to the principle of justice in that it emphasizes the 'quality of mercy' which 'blesses both alike, him who gives and him who doth receive.' It merely stops the present and future traffic and says nothing about the past damages and grief of mind.

"John Mitchell, the labor leader says, 'If the brewery and distillery were closed, upon its ashes would rise a factory.' Another says, 'The wine cup is not large as compared with the sea, but more treasure lies buried in its fathoms than ever has gone down in the depths of all the oceans!'

"In the words of Lincoln, 'After reconstruction, the next great problem is the overthrow of the liquor traffic.'

GILPIN FILES FOR NEW JOB

Present Superintendent of County Schools Is After Probate Judgeship.

S. W. Gilpin, county superintendent of schools, filed Saturday afternoon with County Auditor Halden as a candidate for the Republican nomination for judge of the probate court.

Mr. Gilpin has held his present position since 1904.

He was born in Pennsylvania and received his education at Bucknell university, where he received a training in law, paying particular attention to probate matters.

"I stand on my record of what I have done as county superintendent of schools," he said. "That is all I have to say."

Jones has been succeeded as manager of the Kitchi Gammi club by Knute Bjorklund, who has been with the Union league and Chicago Clubs of Chicago, the Saginaw Club of Saginaw, Mich., and the Toledo Club of Toledo, Ohio. He arrived yesterday from Toledo with Mrs. Bjorklund. Mr. Jones resigned, having other plans for the future.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Colds, Croup, and Whooping Cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovvery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of Croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. Its a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for Cougas, Colds, La Grippe, Asthma, Hemorrhages, Weak Lungs. 50c. $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

DOCTOR PUT HIS O. K. ON PRACTICE OF KISSING.

Boston, Mass., May 2.—Kissing as a perfectly safe pastime has just received the "O. K." of Dr. A. M. Worthington, a professor in the Harvard medical school. Persons who refrain because of fear of the interchange of bacteria are martyring themselves uselessly, the educator told his audience at a lecture on "Man and His Bacteria." The bacteriologist assured his hearers that the only danger of the practice was that of a sudden and violent attack of heart trouble.

"There is every reason to believe that when two wholesome persons meet lip to lip, they may break away without upsetting the bacterial balance," was the way he put the good news.

Dies on Way to Dublin.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 2.—Mary Carroll was taken off a train here while bound from Sacramento, Cal., to New York, where she was to sail on the steamer Cedric for Dublin, and died in a local hospital. In a shabby handbag was found a letter of credit for $12,000 and $400 in cash. The woman was about 60 years of age.

VAN CLEAVE AND GOMPERS BOTH SICK IN ST. LOUIS.

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—J. W. Van Cleave, president of the Buck Stove & Range company, and former president of the National Manufacturers' association and the Citizens' Industrial association is critically ill with heart trouble.

By a coincidence, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who faces a prison sentence as a result of an attack on Van Cleave's company, also is ill at St. Louis. He arirved from Washington Sunday and was unable to leave his bed because of a severe attack of neuralgia.

Scalding Shock Kills Child.

Williston, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The shock received when she thrust her tiny hand into a boiler of scalding water caused the death of the 3-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Rosland, residing five miles north of Williston. The child had been left in the kitchn alone when the accident occurred, and although only one hand was scalded, that was sufficient to cause death.

Russians Seek Citizenship.

Menominee, Mich., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—A colony of Russians who live near Daggett will make application for citizenship papers at the May term of the circuit court. They applied for papers on a previous occasion, but were denied and were given six months to brush up their English and inform themselves concerning American institutions.

Another Woman Helped.

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health and strength, and proved worth mountains of gold to me. For the sake of other suffering women I am willing you should publish my letter."—Mrs. CHARLES BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TO BUILD UP THIS STATE

Red Lake County Development Association on Record for More Settlers.

Legislative Candidates to Be Pledged to Advertising Minnesota's Resources.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representatives from all the towns and several of the rural communities of the county met at the Antlers club rooms in this city at 1 p. m. Saturday and perfected the Red Lake County Development organization by electing Daniel Shaw of Thief River Falls, president; Daniel Patterson of St. Hilaire, treasurer, and A. H. Baker of Red Lake Falls, secretary. Steps were also taken to finance the organization and perfect arrangements for its future activity. The following set of resolutions was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, we believe that the state of Minnesota has not ben alive to its opportunities and has, through a policy of inaction, permitted a large immigration to pass through and out of the state without making a proper and legitimate effort to place before the people of the nation its many advantages as a desirable place of residence; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we urge upon the coming legislature of the state that it adopt a more liberal policy of advertisement of the advantages afforded by Minnesota to home seekers, and that we hereby pledge ourselves to withhold our support from any legislative candidate at the approaching election who does not express himself as entirely favorable to such a policy; further

"We reaffirm the resolutions adopted at the Bemidji convention in favor of legislative reapportionment and will refuse our support to any candidate for either the senate or house of representatives who is not known to be in favor of reapportionment; further

"Resolved, That at this time we pledge our aid and financial support to the Northern Minnesota Development association, recently organized to Bemidji, and commend the vigorous businesslike manner in which its officers have prosecuted the good work there begun."

SEVENTY-FIVE CLOQUET CHILDREN IN OPERETTA

BOYS AND GIRLS IN "THE NATIONAL FLOWER."

Cloquet, Minn., April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The operatta "The National Flower," produced by local school children last Saturday afternoon and evening, was the most successful, according to the attendance, and the net proceeds of anything of the kind attempted by the children of this city.

The proceeds, which amounted to $150, will be used to purchase pictures for the different school buildings of this city. The cast of characters, who were trained by Miss Clara Draper, instructor of music in the pjublic schools, was composed of seventy-five children, every grade of every building being represented.

COLONIZATION SCHEME.

Holland Parties Buy Big Tract in North Dakota.

Fargo, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Holland capitalists have closed a deal for $1,000,000 worth of property in Stark county in this state. They will make Belfield the headquarters.

In addition to farming and ranch lands, they have secured towns, lots, two banks, some stores, lignite coal mines and clay beds, fit for brick and pottery.

They will erect flour mills and waterworks, electric lights and establish numerous other industries. The syndicate has unlimited backing, it is said, and will spend at least another million.

Before plans are complete one of the first moves will be the importation of 200 families from Holland, composed of skilled workmen in lines of business that will be established.

RAISE LIGHTING RATES.

Brainerd Board Makes Move Pending Repairing City Plant.

Brainerd, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The water and light board has decided to increase the cost of electric current to light consumers in the city from 7½ cents per kilowat to 10 cents, an increase of 33 1-3 per cent. This action was necessary to prevent a deficit, as the cost of the current more than doubled when arrangements were made with the Northern Pacific company to supply current temporarily pending the building of a new plant.

The board figured that the city has been producing current at a cost of only a little more than 2 cents per kilowat and the Northern Pacific company charges 5 cents per kilowat, so a raise in rates was imperative.

BOY WINS COURT CASE.

Aged 14, He Successfully Defends a Young Friend.

Marinette, Wis., May 2.—Harry Suplinski, a 14-year-old boy, conducted a case in police court here and won it. He represented another boy, Raymond Wiegers, his friend, who had been arrested for disturbing a religious meeting at the Jewish synagogue by throwing snowballs.

The district attorney appeared in the case and Suplinski conducted his side of it, bringing witnesses and making so good an argument that the defendant was discharged, after it had appeared there was almost a conclusive case against him.

NO ABUSE OF POWER.

Canadian Government Officer Denies Settlers Are Harassed.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 2.—Charles E. Pilling, the Canadian government agent in this city, has just returned from Portal, where he investigated the stories concerning the abuse of power by the inspectors of stock taken into Canada by settlers from the states. He brands the whole story as a falsehood. All settlers' stock is examined by fully qualified experienced veterinarians at Canadian ports absolutely free of charge," says Mr. Pilling.

"There is no expense for stabling or water during the twenty-four hours required for the test and the settler may supply his own feed or purchase it at regular market prices from a properly appointed official at the quarantine station. If horses react to the Mallien test they are not shot, but simply refused admission and returned to the American side. But non-reactors having been in contact with diseased animals may be offered again for re-examination at the expiration of fifteen days. There is no doubt but during this period of detention serious hardships have been endured, principally from a gang of brigands on this side of the line, who are preying upon the unfortunate settler whose stock is refused admission.

"All this, however, may be avoided by the settler having his horses examined by any qualified veterinarian whose certificate, however, must in all cases be indorsed by an inspector of the United States bureau of animal industry. These animals must be presented at the boundary line within thirty days after the date of such certificate, and will then be passed without any detention whatever. The inspectors are located in various parts of the state and the examining surgeon should know their names and addresses. If not, I shall always be glad to furnish the same on request."

DOUBT CONFESSION.

McHenry County, N. D., Skeptical of One John Hosen.

Towner, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Little credence is given in McHenry county to the supposed confession of one, John Hosen, to the murder of Alfred Peterson in this county seven years ago. Carl Olson, is serving a life sentence for the crime, being convicted in 1905, and the evidence against him was so strong and conclusive that the officials are wont to believe that he is guilty.

Olson, who is serving life imprisonment for the murder, has attempted recently to secure a pardon, but was unsuccessful. The general belief prevails in this county that the note by John Hosen, found in a coal car on the Missouri river bridge of the Northern Pacific at Bismarck, was left by friends of Olson, who are attempting to get him out of state's prison.

PICTURE FRAME AGENT IS TRIFLE TOO FRESH.

Kenmare, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charged with forcibly securing entrance to her home, A. E. Halverson was arrested upon the complaint of Mrs. W. H. Young of this city. Halverson, who is a picture frame agent, is said to have taken advantage of the fact that the woman was alone at her hime. In this case it is stated that an order had been placed, but that the goods were unsatisfactory, thus resulting in the disturbance and arrest of the agent.

EBERHART WILL ATTEND.

Governor to Meet With Editors at Walker Next June.

Walker, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Eberhart will attend the North Central Editorial association meeting here June 3, 4 and 5.

President Welles of the association has received a letter from the governor to this effect.

P. H. McGarry, the owner of Glengarry, a Leech Lake resort, where the meeting is to be held, asked that Congressman Lindberg be extended an invitation to be with the editors. President Welles acted upon this suggestion, but has received no reply as yet from Mr. Lindbergh. It is thought that he will be present provided congress has adjourned by that time. The newspaper men are looking forward to a big time at the Walker meeting and preparations are being made to see that they will not be disappointed in this respect.

LIVERYMAN SUES COMPETITOR FOR $10,000 FOR SLANDER.

Menominee, Mich., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable interest is manifested in the case of L'Hote vs. Dittmore, to be tried at the present session of the circuit court. Both parties to the suit are liverymen of the city and bad feeling has existed between them for some time. L'Hote alleges that Dittmore referred to him as a "thief" in the lobby of the Hotel Menominee. He sues for $10,000 for alleged slander.

WOMAN EMPLOYED STRATEGY

In Gaining Access to Homes to Take the Census.

Minot, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. William Phelps, probably the only woman census taker in North Dakota, had no end of trouble getting a correct count of the district assigned to her here.

Carrying a big schedule book under her arm, she was repeatedly refused admission to homes, people believing that she was a book agent and therefore leaving the bell call unannounced. She found a way, however, of getting in, as she very often resorted to the telephone, calling up the parties she wished to interview and in that manner explaining her mission with the result that the next time she called the doors opened to her.

MOORHEAD SALOON MEN ARE FEARING ARREST.

Moorhead, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is considerable consternation among the saloon men of Moorhead over the rumor that action is about to be brought against a number of them by federal officials charging them with selling liquor to Indians. Several of the redmen are in Fargo attending the federal court sessions, and it is stated that several of the Indians will be witnesses against the saloon men.

FISHERMEN HOOK BODY.

Wahpeton, N. D., May 2.—The body of Leonard Strong, a boy who was drowned in the river here three weeks ago, was hooked by a fisherman. A reward had been offered by the city council for the body because of the serious condition of the mother, who was frantic with grief.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Madison — Automobile owners throughout the state are in a peck of trouble because the secretary of state is unable to deliver the nickel plated number plates as fast as registrations are turned in. This is because of the failure of the St. Louis firm which has the contract for making the tags to keep up with its orders, says the secretary.

Eau Claire—Following the action of the Eau Claire county board in turning down an appropriation, the county poor will not have a home for a while at least. The state board of control wanted $15,000 appropriated as a guarantee. The county board would not raise the amount above $12,000.

Menasha—Employes of the Island Paper company, known as third hands and stensil workers, went on strike, demanding an increase from 11½ to 13 cents an hour. The demand was not granted. A number of girls among the strikers reached an agreement and were induced to return to work.

Fond du Lac—In an effort to escape death beneath the wheels of an oncoming train two girls, Hilda Lemke and Amanda Leu, aged 9 years, were drowned in the river here on Friday.

Madison—Because of increasing age and illness Judge Neal Dimond of the Marquette county court for many years has resigned. Frank J. Dodge of Montello, for twenty-six years clerk of the county and circuit courts of the county, is an applicant for appointment pending an election.

Oshkosh — Mrs. Richard Guenther, wife of the consul general to Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, who is in Oshkosh, declined to make any statement relative to the report that her husband had been appointed to the position of consul in Cape Town.

Chippewa Falls—The marriage of F. L. Box, aged 72 years, a retired business man of this city, to Mrs. Jennie Calder, aged 45 years, a wealthy widow of Winnipeg, Man., was solemnized at St. Paul. They will reside here. The marriage resulted after a romantic courtship of six months in Western Canada.

Madison—Samuel Misses, age 30 years, was killed Thursday night in the Milwaukee road yards in a peculiar accident. He was in the pit, cleaning out a firebox of the engine, when a switch engine bumped into the one he was cleaning. His skull was crushed and he died immediately.

La Crosse—By returning to Henry A. Salzer 42,000 acres of Western timber lands for recovery of which suit had been started alleging fraud, J. Ole Storey has satisfied the claims of Mr. Salzer and the suit against Storey and Sorensen will be dropped.

Weyauwega—Ross Green committed suicide by shooting Friday morning. He had been discharged from the Northern State hospital this spring, where he had been for treatment for a mental trouble caused from drink. A widow and three children survive. He had conducted a barber shop here a number of years.

Madison—George M. Fisk, formerly professor of political economy at the University of Illinois and son-in-law of the late John A. Johnson of this city, drowned Friday night in Lake Mendota about 500 feet from the foot of North Carroll street.

Milwaukee — Esther Radmann, 13 years old, was burned to death by the explosion of a gasoline stove in her home, 100 Nineteenth street, Saturday. The child died three hours later in agony after a physician and her mother, a widow, employed away from home, were summoned.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—The local A. O. U. W., as well as the grand lodge has already commenced the work of getting ready for the dedication of the new grand lodge building which is rapidly nearing completion on Roberts street.

Bismarck, N. D.—The secretary of the Commercial club has received a reply to a letter written to Archbishop Ireland asking him if he was intending to be present at the installation of the new bishop in which he states that he will be here at the time. The date for the installation has not been set.

Fargo, N. D.—A plea of guilty was entered by Carl Larson, to the charge of petty larceny. He was sentenced to serve thirty days in the county jail. Larson was accused of "frisking" a friend of $3.50 the first of last week in a Front street rooming house.

Grand Forks, N. D—Carl Bartness, who has been in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph company here for the past few months, left Thursday evening for Superior, Wis., where he will visit for a few weeks, after which he will go to New York to spend the summer.

Minot, N. D.—Because Frank Switter at Seaton's farm refused to allow him to sleep in the barn, Jean Long, a well known negro character about Minot, who is believed to be mentally deranged, drew a gun and commenced to shoot up the ranch. The police were notified and drove to the scene in Judge Murray's auto, arresting him.

Grafton, N. D.—The divorce case of Robert Ginn vs. Sarah Ginn was heard in the district court, but final conclusions were not reached, an adjournment being taken to await receipt of certain depositions. Desertion is charged by the plaintiff husband.

Langdon, N. D.—The work of printing 3,000 premium lists for the Langdon County Fair association is now in progress. The issue will be a splendid one and will tell all about the fair.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Deeds have been filed with the register of deeds, which indicate that the late Terry O. Edwards, who died at his home in this city on Thursday, made a division of his property among his wife and five children before passing away.

Bismarck, N. D.—Having gotten started with the construction of the addition to the Grand Pacific hotel, which is to contain a modern kitchen, refrigerating plant and a number of airy new roms, Landlord Tatley has decided to make the addition four stories instead of three.

Bismarck, N. D.—Peter Hdvedson, despite the fact that he appealed to the supreme court, will have to serve time in the county jail for violating the prohibition law in Minot. A decision has just been handed down by that court denying the defendant's motion for a new trial.

Medford, N. D.—Because there is already another town on the Soo line by the name of Medford, Walsh county, this town will soon be known by another name. Fordville has been selected as the new name, but the official announcement of the change by the railroad company has not been announced as yet.

Minot, N. D.—At the close of his trip over the state for the purpose of holding examinations for would-be barbers, A. N. Eckler, a member of the state board, states that there is a great shortage of tonsorial artists in the state. Montana and the Canadian Northwest has claimed many of the barbers who have gone in that direction because of reports of better wages.

Towner, N. D.—Ed Waddell, who has been working with his brother-in-law, Chris Branden, met with a horrible accident Saturday. He was plowing with a steam plow when his right arm got caught in the gearing and was torn off at the shoulder.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

International Falls — It is reported that Ranier is to have a bank. President Hubbard, of the American Suburbs company is back of the movement.

Warroad — Several of the stockholders of the Warroad Lumber company were in the city last week to make arrangements for the beginning of building operations, and among them were Oscar C. Olson, the president, and Otto Kofstad, secretary. Mr. Kofstad while here rented a house and will occupy it with his family until he can have a residence built.

Crookston — District Deputy J. D. McPhee returned Friday morning from Duluth, where he visted the flourishing Elks' lodge, this being the last of the twelve lodges in his jurisdiction for an official.

Red Lake Falls — Walt Swanson of River Falls township has made a larger killing of wolves than one one in the county for a number of months. He was in town last Friday and brought with him the carcasses of eleven wolves and received the bounty, $33, from Auditor A. A. Lateresse.

Brainerd — The 3,600 lineal feet of curb and 3,400 lineal feet of six-foot walk put in by J. F. Vaugh last year in Crosby, stood the winter well. Mr. Vaugh was up at Crosby Friday and removed the dirt from the walks.

Warren — The Warren brickyard is busy shipping brick in every direction including part of the Red River valley and Dakota. The yard is now loading for Devils Lake, N. D.

Grand Marais — Sam Johnson, an uncle of the two men drowned in the harbor recently, and Otto Olson, a brother of John Olson, were in town recently and took the gasoline boat Flyer to Ise Royale. The launch was sunk during the storm, but was raised without much difficulty and without any damage to the boat.

Roseau — Josie Hanson, aged 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eliert Hanson, died Sunday, April 17, of tuberculosis, at the farm home of her parents, four miles east of Pelan. Miss Josie was an attendant at the summer school in Roseau and afterward taught one term of school. She was taken sick last Christmas.

St. Cloud — Mayor Freeman of St. Cloud has asked Mayor Porter to appoint a committee of six citizens of Sauk Rapids to meet with a like committee from St. Cloud. These committees are to take such action as they deem prudent in endeavoring to push the work on the dam at Sauk Rapids.

Wahkon —Section Foreman Anderson of the Soo has received instructions to fix up the little park between the depot and First avenue. Among other things a cinder walk will be built from the depot to the street. This move is the result of correspondence carried on by the Commercial club.

Frazee — Fire Tuesday totally destroyed the dwelling house on section 24, Silver Leaf township, owned by Valentine Krafnick of Frazee but occupied by Mr. Manhke and family. The family had just left the house a few minutes before and on looking back Mr. Manhke discovered the flames. Assistance was summoned but the blaze had reached such headway that but few household goods were saved.

Walker — Fred Blais, formerly of Aitkin county has leased eighteen acres of land at Remer and will build a sawmill and establish a cedar yard there this fall. He will also run a general merchandise store.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—The second annual clinic of the Houghton County Dentists will be held here May 9. Lectures and demonstrations will be given by the dentists and a general discussion on the hygiene and care of teeth and new methods of dentistry. A banquet will be held in the evening.

Houghton—The regular monthly meeting of the Houghton County Medical society to be held in the Douglas house here, Monday evening promises to be a very successful one.

Hancock—John Erik Havisto, aged 73, and for the past thirty years or more a resident of Hancock and vicinity, died Friday morning at his home on Second street after a brief illness.

Houghton—The plat of the new Lakeview addition to the city of Hancock has been filed in the office of Register of Deeds Mackenzie by the Quincy addition to East Hancock. It contains fifty-four lots in blocks of six each. The new streets are Sampson, Roosevelt, Brock and White.

Calumet—The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Laurium M. E. church will hold its next regular meeting May 12. This meeting will be known as the annual mite-box opening, and will be open to the general public.

Hancock—Ham Dan, the Escanaba Chinaman under surveillance of Houghton county police for the past five weeks, was made once more a free man with unsullied name when his case was dismissed by United States Commissioner C. O. Olivier.

Calumet—John Schultz, aged 28, died at his home in North Tamarack Thursday evening from tuberculosis. There survive the widow in Calumet and parents and brothers and sisters in Europe.

Menominee—The council of this city has approved of the bonds of fifty applicants for liquor licenses.

Calumet—Ella Vranich, a saloonkeeper was arrested last week charged with permitting gambling in his place of business. Vranich entered a plea of not guilty and demanded an examination. His case has been set for next Friday morning.

Hancock—Sunday morning at the First M. E. church the pastor preached to the order of the Sons of St. George on "The Name Most Excellent."

Calumet—The funeral of James Michaels aged 20, who passed away Friday evening at the home of his parents, 247 Rockland street, will take place this afternoon, with services at the Calumet M. E. church at 2:30 o'clock, and interment in Lake View cemetery.

Ontonagon—H. H. Thompson, Pete Hart, C. Clemstock, Capt. Hart, Capt. Kidd and Alex MacDonald, all of Duluth, were guests at the New Elks' hotel last week.

S. S. S. A REAL TONIC & BLOOD PURIFIER

Any system that needs a tonic needs also a blood purifier, for it is the weakened and impure condition of the circulation that is responsible for the run-down state of health. We have only to recognize the importance of pure, rich blood in preserving health, to realize the danger of a weakened or impure circulation. Deficient blood nutriment weakens the system, and it can not resist disease like a strong robust constitution. First the body has a worn-out feeling, the appetite is fickle, energy begins to flag, the digestion is bad, etc. If the condition is not corrected at this stage more serious results are sure to follow, and sometimes a long debilitating spell of sickness is the result. S. S. S. is Nature's tonic, made of roots, herbs and barks. It is not a nerve stimulant, but a medicine that steadily builds up every portion of the system by cleansing and enriching the blood, and in this way supplying an increased amount of nourishment and resistive powers to every portion of the body. S. S. S. quiets the overstrained nerves, improves the appetite, tones up the stomach and digestion, and thoroughly enriches and purifies the blood. S. S. S. is a real tonic because it is a real blood purifier. S. S. S. contains no harmful mineral and persons of all ages can use it with the same beneficial results. Be sure to get S. S. S. for your tonic this year do not accept anything in place of it; there is nothing else "just as good" as S. S. S. You will find it all that is claimed for it.

OPPOSITION TO BIG FIGHT

Death of McCarthy Calls Forth Denunciations From California Pulpits.

Appeal Will Be Made to Prevent Jeffries-Johnson Meeting.

San Francisco, May 2.—Opposition to the Jeffries-Johnson fight following the death of Tommy McCarthy, the San Francisco pugilist killed in a fight with Owen Moran here early Saturday morning, took form yesterday in a state-wide movement of clergyman to prevent the holding of the championship fight July 4. Prize fighting was denounced from scores of pulpits and in many cases a definite campaign was begun.

A meeting of the San Francisco Church Federation will be held and committees will be appointed to carry the anti-fight agitation to Governor Gillett. The pastors of all the churches in the city have been notified and it has been tacitly agreed among the clergymen that the Church Federation shall take the lead in the movement.

At a special meeting of the congregation of the First Congregational church of Oakland resolutions were adopted, protesting against the fight. They will be forwarded to Governor Gillett and also to Attorney General Webb.

In the first Methodist church, within a stone's throw of Dreamland, where the Moran-McCarthy fight occurred, Rev. Louis J. Sawyer denounced the management of the fight as responsible for McCarthy's death and called upon his congregation to join in a movement to prevent prize fighting in the state. Rev. Robert J. Renison of St. Paul's Episcopal church deplored "The commercializing of what should be a legitimate sport," and pledging himself in his sermon to the anti-prize fight movement he asked his congregation to join him.

Owen Moran who is out on bail awaiting his arraignment for manslaughter yesterday sent $100 to a priest in Marin county to say mass over the dead youth's body.

The little fighter, who has a wife and four children in London, is still overcome with grief at the tragic outcome of the contest and is incessant in his denial that he had admitted the match was a "frame-up."

Sporting men here do not believe the agitation against the Jeffries-Johnson fight will interfere with the plans of the promoters. Sam Berger and Jeffries repeated yesterday that they anticipate little trouble and at his camp at the Cliff house. Johnson made light of any possible opposition.

Appeal to District Attorney.

Santa Cruz, Cal., May 2.—Strong opposition to the holding of the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Emeryville July 4 was evident among the representatives of the churches here yesterday.

Rev. J. B. Orr, president of the ministerial union, communicated with all of the pastors in the city and protested against the big fight which was echoed in a dozen pulpits.

An appeal will be sent to District Attorney Donohue of Alameda county, in which Emeryville is situated, calling upon him to prevent the affair.

Protest from Fresno.

Fresno, Cal., May 2.—The ministerial union of Fresno will send a formal protest to the district attorney of Alameda county against the holding of the Jeffries-Johnson fight on July 4. Several local pastors yesterday strongly denounced the prize ring from their pulpits.

Says Fight Is Degrading.

San Diego, Cal., May 2.—Rev. Clarence J. Harris, pastor of the First Unitarian church, called on the clergymen of this city to oppose prize fighting in the state yesterday. "The prize fight is a degrading amusement," he said, "and our state will spare herself much censure when she stops it. The death of a man in the ring last week ought to awaken sentiment. Let San Diego and her churches be heard from."

FIRST RACE OF SEASON

First Eight of Duluth Boat Club Defeats Second Boat Candidates.

In the first trial of speed of the present season the regular crew of the Duluth Boat club yesterday defeated the second eight. The race was rowed from the elevator slip to the club house, and before the two boats had passed out of the long slip the regulars were in the lead, though the second eight was given a length at the start.

The showing is considered fairly good for so early in the season, especially when it is considered that the candidates have been rowing in both boats, with the exception of the old men, rather indiscriminately.

Jay Brown, the former Canadian stroke, who has been prevented from getting out with the crew because of work in Port Arthur, has informed Coach Peyton that he will be able to get out with the crew from now on. Brown is said to be a very strong oarsman and the report that he will be out regularly with the crew will be a source of gratification to the coaches.

Brown has had a lot of rowing experience and may be tried out at stroke. Thompson, who rowed four last year, has been alternating with Forgette at stroke. Unless Brown shows unusual class in this position, it looks as if either Thompson or Forgette, who stroked the eight last season, would be chosen for the position.

Hard work will start in earnest the present week. The men will be asked to cut out smoking and get down to hard and earnest work. The launch will start running tomorrow evening. The cafe will open early the present month, when the men will be put on a strict training diet.

Races between the first and second eights wil be held the first Saturday the club is opened.

CALIFORNIA CYCLIST WINS NEWARK EVENTS.

New York, May 2.—Christopher Scheller, the California amateur cyclist, a recent arrival here, won both the five-mile and one-mile events at the Vailsburg track at Newark, N. J., yesterday.

The principal event for professionals was a match race in heats of one-half mile each, in which Iver Lawson of Salt Lake City handily defeated Fred G. West of San Francisco. Lawson was first in the ten-mile race.

NEW YORK CATCHER OFFERED FOR SALE

JACK KLEINOW
Of the New York Americans.

Waivers have been asked on Jack Kleinow, the Yankee catcher and at least one manager has turned down the offer—namely, Jimmy McAleer. The price was too high for Washington. Kleinow is getting a fat salary from the New York club and he is such a good backstop that Stallings wants a good price for him. The only reason that waivers are being asked on Kleinow is that the club feels it cannot afford to pay so much coin for one department. Detroit, Boston or Chicago are expected to bid for the sorrel-topped catcher.

JOHNSON IN TRAINING CAMP

San Francisco, Cal., May 2.—Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion is installed in his traning quarters at the Seal Rock house on the beach where he is to prepare himself for the fight with Jeffries at Emeryville, July 4.

Practically all the training apparatus has been installed and Johnson wil' devote his time for the first few days to light preliminary training. Johnson weighs 228 pounds and seems to be larger and stronger than ever before. Experienced ring men who have seen the big negro say they believe he will have little difficulty in bringing himself to the best possible physical condition.

When the champion begins training he will take to the road for ten miles each day, will do light work in the gymnasium and spend his spare time in short walks and beach rides in his automobile. In a week he will begin his daily sparring routine and will gradually increase his activities in this line until he has reached fifteen rounds daily.

On four days out of each week, Johnson will box in his gymnasium. The ring will be arranged on the stage at one end and the defender of the title will give exhibition sparring matches to audiences for paid admissions. The pavilion seats 1,000 and the box office department is optimistic.

PURSE MONEY TO BE DEPOSITED

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 2.—Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager, left Ben Lomond last night for San Francisco to be present at the posting of the $30,000 additional purse money for the big fight. The money will be deposited in a San Francisco bank, and later will be sent to Stakeholder Tim Sullivan of New York. The articles of agreement call for the posting of the remainder of the purse, amounting to $51,000, forty-eight hours before the fight.

Berger will attend a meeting Wednesday at which the referee for the match will be chosen. Berger and Jeffries had a long talk yesterday regarding the third man in the ring, but neither would discuss the conference nor make any prediction as to the probable choice. It is known that Berger will submit a list of eight or ten men, and also will mention two which have been placed on Jeffries' blacklist.

Jeffries disappointed a small crowd of visitors at his camp yesterday by eliminating the boxing bout from the day's program. The onlookers saw nothing more thrilling than a game of handball between the former champion, his nephew, Tod Beyer, and Billy Papke in the morning, and caught only a glimpse of the big fighter in the afternoon, as he walked to the fish hatchery, one of the principal points of interest near the camp.

Jeffries last night said that the eruption on his back has entirely disappeared, and he expects to have no more trouble from that source.

CLOQUET'S PITCHER TOO MUCH FOR DULUTH CENTRALS.

Cloquet, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the game between the Cloquet high school and the Duluth Central teams played here Saturday, the locals were victorious, by a score of 5 to 2. Rogentine, the Cloquet pitcher, had the visitors at his mercy, striking out fifteen men and allowing but three hits; his support was good at all times. Timely hitting and good base running netted three runs for the locals in the fourth inning. The line up:

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

On to Washington.

There is an opportunity being held out to the junior eight of the Duluth Boat club. It is a strong incentive to train with every ounce of energy. If the juniors win the junior eight event at Kenora the present season the boat will be sent to the national regatta, which will be held in Washington, D. C., in August.

So far the eight looks mighty sweet. There is a great deal of interest being taken in it, and the men have been out with a degree of regularity that shows they have their heart in the work. The training so far has been in weather that would discourage an Eskimo.

The hard work of the season has just begun. From now until July, when the Western regatta will be held, there will be a great amount of work for both Coach John Paul Jones Peyton and the members of the crew. There is a general feeling that the boys can win this season. The laurel wreaths will be profuse should that belief sprout into a reality.

Duluth has the opportunity. The material is at hand, every facility is at the command of coach and candidate—let the spirit of the men do the rest. It looks like Duluth's year—let the men make the most of it.

Chicago Gets Match.

Chicago has lassooed the Gotch-Zbyszko wrestling match. The meeting between the Pole and Iowa farmer will be held in one of the Chicago baseball parks. A purse of $25,000 secured the match. Three cities seriously entered into competition for the staging of the biggest wrestling match ever held in this country—Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago.

A bonafide offer of $20,000 was made by Duluth. Minneapolis men made a sealed offer that was not made known. The Chicago offer topped the Duluth offer by $5,000.

Mat enthusiasts from all over the country will go to the match. Never before has a wrestling match attracted so great an interest. Keen followers of the mat sport believe in Zbyszko Gotch is meeting a man just as strong as himself. Zbyszko is more versed in the catch-as-catch-can game and possessing more grit and staying powers.

Hack's muscles were hard and trained more easily than the supple muscles of Gotch. The muscular development of the Pole is wonderful, in that a man as strong as he should possess muscles that apparently are as soft in repose as a fighter's.

If Gotch wins the coming contest there will be little left for him to conquer. He will have earned the right to retire from the mat forever.

The Physical Coward.

Will the American nation eventually become a nation of cowards? Are the American men of today losing that fighting spirit that has ever characterized them?

Two incidents, standing out among the many, are in line with this general question—the widespread cry against boxing and the great college game of football.

Before Rome lost its hold on one of the most powerful nations of the world, its citizens abandoned those manly exercises that the men of the nation had excelled in at an earlier period. The men of Rome became physical cowards.

If certain agitators in this country have their own way, every game that possesses the slightest element of red blood in it will be ruled out or will be modified to that extent that it will be like playing croquet with some member of the feminine sex who is much older and more sedate than her masculine opponent.

Make football a feminine game, as they are trying to do at the present time, and you take from the college man one of the ideals of physical manhood he has cherished these many years.

There have been muckers in the game, as there have been muckers in every game—as there have been bad men in the pulpit. For this reason the manly men of the game should not be made to suffer and the colleges of this country robbed of a game that has excelled in tremendous influence upon the masculine ideals of the young man of the nation.

Take away football and boxing and there is the risk of making a race of physical cowards out of the youth of the nation.

Most any man, who is a man, would rather have his son get a lot of things rather than a physical coward. In England they have long cherished their physical ideals. What boy graduating from the English schools has not had his fighting with the gloves. He has been taught not to fear physical combat and to take blows with pluck and gameness. The sturdy manhood of England has resulted much from the ideals implanted in the schools and colleges.

Boxing is not brutal under the proper supervision. It has never been a brutal game. Football has never been a brutal game, despite the loud protestations of men with soft, white and corpulent bodies. If we are getting to that stage where we cannot stand to see a bloody nose or a black eye, let us substitute croquet for football and lisp our college yells from under the protecting shade of sunbonnets.

CUBS DEFEAT PIRATES IN EXCITING FINISH.

Chicago, May 2.—After Pittsburg yesterday scored one run in the ninth, Chicago scored two and won a fiercely contested game, 2 to 1. The winners lost a score in the eighth, when Hoffman fell between third and home and twisted his knee. He could not get up, and Gibson ran out and tagged him while he lay on the ground. In the ninth Wagner singled, went to second on Miller's out, and scored on Flynn's single. With two out in Chicago's half of the ninth, Wagner fumbled Schulte's grounder, and Chance and Steinfeldt followed with two-baggers, scoring two runs. Score: R. H. E.

DULUTH OPENS SERIES WITH MADISON TEAM.

Duluth will open a two-game series with the Madison team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league today. The squad is expected here early Wednesday morning, for there is a game scheduled for Wednesday afternoon with the All Stars of this city.

Dauss has joined the team, according to the reports received at the Duluth office of the club. He is reported to be in very good condition. Davis, a hurler, has been secured from Quincy, Ill. Thorsen has promised A. W. Kuehnow that he is through with the merry life for all time and has asked for an opportunity to show that he can make good. Mr. Kuehnow has decided to grant him the chance.

COMMITTEE WILL ACT UPON RACING SCHEDULES.

A meeting of the conference committee of the Duluth Boat club will be called for tomorrow or Wednesday, when the racing schedule of the motor boat and racing departments will be taken up. The securing of prizes for the events of the motor boat department will also come before the members of the committee.

It is understood that both the Spalding and St. Louis hotels will offer cups to be contested for the present season. The Northern Hardware and Kelly Hardware companies have already offered cups.

It is expected that the program of both departments will be laid out at the meeting.

KLING LEAVES TO JOIN CHICAGO CUBS.

Chicago, May 2.—Johnny Kling bade adieu to vaudeville last night and accompanied by his wife, left for Pittsburg to join the Chicago club of the National league. Just before leaving, Kling announced that he is in the "pink of condition" and eager to show his speed during the series beginning today.

Exhibition Games.

At Utica—New York Americans, 1; Utica, 2.

At Troy, N. Y.—Troy, 3; New York Nationals, 11.

MINNY LEAGUE NOTES

One more practice week before the opening of the league season. A week from Wednesday the Minnesota-Wisconsin league season will be opened. The present week will be one in which the managers of the eight teams will put the final touches on the preliminary training and will let out some of the recruits.

Duluth and Superior will open an intercity series the present week. The series will extend over until time for the two teams to leave for the southern end of the circuit. Duluth will open the season in Winona, while Superior will show first in Red Wing.

The series between the two teams promises to be a very important one. No definite line has been obtained on the White Sox as yet. The games with Superior will be a means a.so of introducing the new men. Weather permitting more training will be secured from the series that starts the present week, than the games that have been played on the spring trip.

Every member of the Eau Claire squad, with the exception of Holstrom, the former Superior outfielder, has reported to Schoonhoven. Holstrom has signed to play independent ball. Moore and Newell, two of the latest of the Commissioners to report, have been out in suits and have made a good impression on the fans.

Mike Malloy will begin the weeding out process the present week. The Regulars and Yannigans played an exhibition yesterday. Speed, a backstop candidate, is a likely looking man for the job and is expected to give Hanson a hard battle for the position.

Malloy has a large squad of players and there is a lively fight for places on the team. Judging wholly from exhibition games with teams that it is very hard to compare with the teams of the Minny league, Red Wing has a strong bunch of players.

The obese obstructionist across the bay continues his callow carping. The expanding policy of the Minnesota-Wisconsin has left the surly seer of Superior in the wake; he should turn over, rub his eyes and shake some of it out of his system.

Winslow, Shears, Dominick and Aberly are four twirlers of the Rochester team that are expected to make good records in the Minny company. Shears has worked out with the Minneapolis league team while Winslow was with the Ontario team last season. Dominick hails from St. Paul and Aberly from Faribault.

All of the Wausau recruits have reported with the exception of Bourgeois, the veteran outfielder. He is expected to report to Bond today. Hard practice will mark the present week.

"Russ" Bailey, the former Eau Claire center fielder, is on the Milwaukee hospital list. The big fellow is suffering from a bad ankle, which is more serious than was at first thought. He is liable to be kept out of the game for some time, according to Milwaukee reports.

Schardt beat the Millers the other day, and any hope that the flinger would be returned to LaCrosse, has been dispelled by the performance. There seems but a slim chance that Schardt will come back to the Minnesota-Wisconsin ranks.

Connell, the infielder trying out with Eau Claire, is playing great baseball and his work makes him a likely regular.

In Sweeney, Darby O'Brien believes he has another Sylvester Breen. The youngster handled eleven chances yesterday without a skip, which is going some. Mike Kelly will probably carry the former Duluth third sacker through the season.

The Winona fans are sorely disappointed in the showing of the Killilanites against the Regina team of the Western Canada league. While the Winona team has not had any practice to speak of, the down river fans rather believed the Canadian cousins would not raise very much dust. The spring brings many disappointments.

WITH THE AMATEURS

Yesterday the Big Duluth defeated the Cloquet team by the score of 14 to 5. Mack Cook was on the mound for the Duluth team and held the Cloquet clouters very much in the palm of his hand. "Babe" Bennett hit a home run and the hitting of the Duluth team in general was hard, and timely. Frank Schaefer was behind the bat for the locals. The Big Duluth batters had very little difficulty in solving the delivery of the Cloquet mound dweller.

The Adams Athletic association team yesterday defeated the Scott-Graff team by the score of 11 to 2. The Adams team hit hard and fielded cleanly, J. Olson pitching a steady and consistent game. Alder had a long three-base hit.

The lineup and score:

Score by inning: R.

The Mork Clothiers defeated the Beavers by a score of 17 to 5 yesterday. It was a one-sided affair. The Morks challenge any team in the city under 16 years of age. The lineup was as follows: Catcher, N. Johnson; pitcher, D. Carlson; first base, A. Johnson; second base, T. Peterson; shortstop, G. Anderson; third base, C. Johnson; right field, C. Aakland; center field, P. Ecker; left field, A. Rude.

TWO COLLEGE TRACK MEETS

Philadelphia, Pa., May 2.—Pennsylvania made a clean sweep of the national relay championships on Franklin field Saturday afternoon, winning in fine style the one, two and four-mile contests, the classic events in relay racing of the college year. The two and four-mile races were won in easy fashion, but the one-mile race was a struggle from start to finish among thirty-six of the fastest quarter-milers in the eastern half of the United States.

In many of the events on the day's program it was the East against the West, and, although the Western colleges were better represented than in former years, the Eastern athletes took practically all the events. The exceptions were the one-mile national relay race for freshmen, which was won by Illinois university, and the broad jump which was captured by Wasson of Notre Dame.

Ramsdell, the Star.

The star performer of the meet was Ramsdell Pennsylvania's sprinter, formerly of the Texas university. He won his two heats and the final in the 100-yard dash against some of the best short-distance men now on the cinder path and ran the last relay in the mile national relay championship. His best time in the dash was 10 seconds flat and for the quarter-mile in the one-mile relay race, 49 2-5 seconds.

Nine colleges lined up for the one-mile relay championship, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Chicago, Virginia, Illinois, Cornell, Dartmouth, Princeton and Massachusetts Technical. It was a fine field of fast men, but it was quickly realized that nine men on the track at one time for a quarter-mile relay were too many for record time.

Notwithstanding this race was run in fast time. Pennsylvania took the lead and the second relay started with Pennsylvania and Cornell leading the field. In the latter relay, Massachusetts Technicals moved into first place with Chicago second and Pennsylvania third. Pennsylvania's man in the third relay ran a good quarter and handed a slight lead to the speedy Ramsdell, Cornell running second and Michigan third. Ramsdell at once cut out and lengthened the distance between himself and the Cornell runner and breasted the tape a winner. Michigan finished second, followed by Cornell. Chicago, Princeton, Illinois, Massachusetts, Virginia and Dartmouth in the order named.

Pennsylvania's victory in the two-mile championship was largely due to the running of Church. Cornell led until the last relay when the Pennsylvanian pushed ahead and won with several yards to spare.

Penn Had Walkaway.

The four-mile relay race did not furnish the sport that was expected. Pennsylvania was looked upon as the winner, but it was expected that Michigan and Cornell would make her hustle, but Pennsylvania's milers had the lead throughout, and when Paul, the mile champion, began the last mile, there was no doubt as to the winner. Missouri and Notre Dame did not start in this race.

The field sports, while exceptionally good, showed no remarkable performances. Talbot of Pennsylvania state college won both the hammer and discus events and was second in the shot-put.

The relay races among the smaller colleges resulted in some close finishes, the time made averaging up to some of the best performances in the past years.

More than 20,000 persons saw the sports and it was declared by officials that it was one of the largest, if not the largest crowds that ever saw a college athletic meet in the East. The weather was very warm.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 2.—By the close count of 58 to 54 points, Minnesota university defeated Iowa here Saturday in a dual track and field meet.

Summary:

100-yard dash—Hill, Minnesota, first; Tallman, Iowa, second. Time, 10 seconds.

220-yard dash—Hill, Minnesota, first; Tallman, Iowa, second. Time, 22 2-5 seconds.

HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATS Y. M. C. A.

High school athletes easily defeated the cross country runners of the Y. M. C. A. in the contest of Saturday afternoon, the hill top runners scoring 87 to 60 points by the association men.

Matt Brown made the unusual time of 10:45 for the two miles, which is very good, considering the irregular course the boy was forced to run over. He was over a block in the lead of the nearest runner.

Thorburn finished second, Smith, Mapp and Wagner being bunched in the order named. The race was well conducted throughout and has accomplished much to establish cordial athletic relatives between the high school and the association.

Under the system employed in scoring the race, the first man to cross the tape scored 20 points, the second man 19, the score gradutaing down, point by point, to the last man. Only the scores of the first five men on each side were counted.

Following is the order of the finish and the time of the contestants:

HOT TIME ON RESERVATION

Annual Pow-Wow and Council Fire of Chippewa Indians.

Many Prominent Men Will Address the Indians This Year.

"Boo-Zhoo! Umbe!"

The forty-second anniversary celebration at White Earth will be held June 14 and 15 and the remark quoted has something to do with it for it is printed on an invitation reading as follows:

"To our kindred and fellow-neighbors we extend cheerful greeting:

"Again the day of rejoicing upon this reservation is at hand, and it is with pleasure that we announce to the public that the celebration of the Chippewa Indians to commemorate their arrival here will be held on June 14 and 15, 1910. Here will be the opportunity to see the representation of the Indians of the past and to see him in actual life as he is today.

"The exercises will consist of speeches by representative men from abroad, who are distinctly the friends of the Indians, and games of all descriptions native to the Chippewas will also take place.

"You and your friends are cordially invited to be present and to participate in the feast of good cheer.

"WAIN-CHE-MAH-DUB, "President.
"JULIUS BROWN, "Secretary.
WAH-WE-YEA-CUMIG, "Vice President.
"B. S. FAIRBANKS, "Treasurer."

The "grand annual celebration and council fire of the Minnesota Chippewas" is always an interesting event and many people go to the reservation each year to witness the picturesque ceremonies and sports of the red men. The following is the program for the two days:

TWO MISSIONARY SOCIETIES MEET.

At the Lester Park M. E. church last evening, the services were given over mostly to the two missionary societies, home and foreign.

At the opening, Miss Marie MacDowell gave a reading, "Is It Nothing to Ye, Oh Ye Christians?" which was followed by a solo by Miss Brown. Miss Annie Schafer gave a report of the home which the Lester Park church has special supervision over in Indiana. Then Miss Aske gave two solos on the violin. Rev. Mr. Oaten gave a talk on foreign missions, in the course of which he complimented President Taft on the speech he made in Washington recently at the laymen's meeting.

In the afternoon, two old gentlemen of the church, Mr. Watt and Mr. Walker, had a birthday. Each is over 80 years old, and each received flowers and a birthday card.

Important Meeting OF THE Duluth Art Association

At 8 p. m. tonight in the Commercial club rooms. Details will be arranged for the art exhibition to be held in the court house, May 23 to June 4. A large attendance of members of the association is desired.

TO REPRESENT DULUTH POLES

Frank Grygle Will Attend Unveiling of Pulaski and Kosciusko Monuments.

Polish citizens of Duluth will be represented at the unveiling of the monuments to Thaddeus Kosciusko and Gen. Pulaski at Washington, D. C., May 11, by Frank Grygle, who left yesterday for the national capital. Mr. Grygle will also act as the Duluth delegate to the First National Polish congress, May 12 to 16.

The government appropriated $50,000 for the statue of Gen. Pulaski, which was executed by the Polish sculptor, Casimir Chodzinski. The monument to Kosciusko cost $60,000. It is erected by the Polish citizens of the United States as evidence of their patriotism to their adopted country.

PRISONERS ARE SENTENCED

Judge Dibell Metes Out Punishment to Seven Range Men Arraigned.

Seven men, some of whom had pleaded guilty and some of whom who had been convicted of various crimes were sentenced by Judge Dibell of the district court Saturday

Nick Papkovich was given thirty days in the county jail for larceny. John Neimi, for grand larceny, went to the refromatory, as did Mikko Maki for the same offense. Arwilda Underwood, guilty of bigamy, also went to the reformatory.

John Kelly, the negro convicted of branging Mazie Davis from Superior for immoral purposes, was given one year at Stillwater.

Range prisoners indicted by the grand jury at Virginia were arraigned before Judge Dibell Saturday.

Arvid Suajapin, charged with assault in the second degree; Joe Bush, charged with rape; McCrae Porter and George Monroe, charged with criminal assault on a 10-year-old girl; Steve Borovac, Wid Wrklan, Pete Jovonivic, charged with having committed an assault on Harry Wilcox about ten days ago; John Rapson charged with embezzlement, all pleaded not guilty.

Fred B. James, the Ely game warden, who shot and killed Andrew Metsapelte, pleaded not guilty to second degree manslaughter. John Kuustita and Frank Hill pleaded not guilty to assault in the second degree.

The charge against Rade Ilbacich is murder in the first degree. He is said to have killed Wid Dresich at Missabe Mountain, April 24, 1910.

SAYS ROOSEVELT INSULTED PIUS X

Archbishop O'Connell Condemns Ex-President for Vatican Incident.

Lowell, Mass., May 2.—Theodore Roosevelt's action in not meeting Pope Pius X on the former president's visit to Rome was called insulting and a violation of Mr. Roosevelt's principle of a "square deal" by Most Rev. William H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, at a public meeting of the American Federation of Catholic Societies of the diocese in this city yesterday. John Callan O'Loughlin, former assistant secretary of state, who conducted the negotiations between Mr. Roosevelt and the Vatican, was severely castigated by the archbishop.

Untrue to Principles.

His general subject was "Loyalty." In referring to the Vatican incident, he said:

"Mr. Roosevelt, when you were here in the White House, did you stand at the door welcoming into your parlor and dining room the riff-raff of the street who hurl stones at your head and insult your family? Would you do that? These are the conditions, Mr. Roosevelt. You were not strictly loyal, even to your own principles. You, who talk so much about the square deal, could have waited until you came to Rome and informed yourself well of the position of this institution, and having done so, if you really meant the square deal—which men now begin to doubt, you would have said, 'No, father, I come to you; I stand for honor and reverence and the right, and I cannot, as an honest man, in any way participate or have anything to do with this institution.'

O'Loughlin's Action.

"The Vatican is loyal, and there is an example of disloyalty in that very incident which stands forever as history.

"It is the case of John Callan O'Loughlin. Who is he? He says he is a Catholic and he boasts of it, and in the same breath he cables all over the world that the head of the church is wrong and that Mr. Roosevelt is the greatest thing in creation. That is the sort of a Catholic that we are ashamed of. We will live to see the day that he will regret those words."

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUERS IN BIG CROOKSTON MEETS.

Crookston, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Over 1,000 people packed the Auditorium last evening at the grand finale of the field day of the Anti-Saloon league in this city Sunday. The big audience was addressed by Supt. E. C. Clemens of the Duluth district of the league and Carl Walden, superintendent of the Northwest district, who makes his headquarters in Crookston. These two men, together with Elias Roche, the legislative superintendent of the league; C. W. Stark, editor of the Minnesota Issue; W. I. Norton, Nathaniel Franklin and E. G. Larson, occupied seven of the leading Protestant pulpits in the morning, and all but Messrs. Clemens and Walden scattered to the surrounding villages and country schoolhouses for two more services, one in the afternoon and one in the evening, making eighteen special services during the day in Crookston and points within driving distance of this city.

At all the church services pledges were passed, and, while the exact amount pledged will not be known for a day or two, the total in Crookston will be in the neighborhood of $1,000 per month for the next year and probably considerable more than that amount.

WISCHOWSKI IS NOT SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Examinations of Frank Wischowski, the young man, who was struck by H. A. Starkey's automobile on East Superior street Saturday afternoon, have failed to show any internal injuries. He was badly bruised but is in no danger and is resting easily at St. Luke's hospital. He has said that the accident could not have been avoided under the circumstances and blames no one.

Sues Assailant's Employers.

Crookston, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Thorine Tuen has started a damage suit for $5,000 against Couvrette & Cardin for an attempted assault by a hack driver, William Miller, in their employe. Miller is now in the county jail awaiting the action of the grand jury.

BIGAMY CASE IS CONTINUED

J. E. Worthington Will Be Brought to Trial During May Term.

In district court this morning the case of the state against J. E. Worthington, accused of bigamy, was continued owing to the absence from the city of the state's principal witness, the first Mrs. Worthington, who is said to be at Signal, Ariz.

Worthington, who has also been known by the name, W. D. Angus, was indicted by the April grand jury on a charge of bigamy.

His first marriage is said to have taken place some years ago to a woman named Mary Jane Day. During May, 1909, he is said to have married Eleanor Halliday.

It is thought that the case will be tried during the May term of court, which is soon to begin.

WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION

All McFarlane Property Will Be Sold to the Highest Bidder.

In probate court this morning Mrs. Catherine MacFarlane, widow of the late A. R. MacFarlane, was granted permission to sell at public auction, all the property of the estate.

The will of Mrs. Sarah E. Pearson was admitted to probate. She left all her property to her son, A. C. Pearson.

In the matter of the estate of Olaf P. Stenson, the final decree was issued. The property was left to the four children.

George Featherly is making a fight for the estate left by his wife. The hearing was adjourned until Thursday morning. Mrs. Featherly before her second marriage was Mrs. Lena Prosbeck. At the time of the marriage to Featherly a contract was drawn up in which Featherly is said to have given up all claim to her property. He now claims flaws in the contract and wishes to get his share.

WANTS DAMAGES FOR SLANDER

Proctor Village Trustee Claims Graft Charges Damaged His Reputation.

Through an action, the trial of which was begun this morning before Judge Cant of the district court, John Doyle is trying to recover from M. La Chance $2,000, which he claims is the damage sustained when La Chance made slanderous remarks that reflected directly on him.

In his complaint, Doyle says that during July, 1909, he was an elector at the village of Proctor. He was also a trustee of the village and vice president of the village council, he alleges.

During the month mentioned, the council called for bids on a certain piece of work. Among the bidders was a contractor named Edward Armstrong.

Doyle alleges that La Chance remarked that he (Doyle) was to get a bonus of from $250 to $500 for helping to get the contract for Armstrong. The plaintiff claims that the remark has injured his reputation.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, May 2.—The steel mills suffered from a further contraction in business last week and the blast furnaces secured lean returns from solicitations for orders. The railroads placed few contracts for equipment, including cars, locomotives and rails; the orders for bridges, too, were especially disappointing because of the failure to fulfill previous assurances that contracts for upwards of 30,000 tons would be awarded before May 1.

Specifications for fabricated steel for buildings and manufacturing plant extensions were only 17,000 tons, but the new orders placed were fully 30,000 tons. Very low prices were made on both fabricated and structural contracts and independent concerns continued raise prices and blast and galvanized sheets were advanced $1 to $3 per ton respectively, but tin plate and blue annealed sheets have commanded premiums for early shipments.

Taking April as a whole the recession in the trade has been marked. Locomotive orders have been the exception, the engine works booking orders for 521 locomotives. Car orders have been less than 10,000—only 1,500 cars ordered last week. April rail contracts were less than 100,000 tons.

The decline in pig iron in April was 50 cents to $1 per ton and since Jan. 1 the break has ranged from $2 to $4 per ton, but the downward movement is now meeting with more resistance. The blowing out of nearly thirty blast furnaces during the month, with an average daily capacity of 200 tons each, means a contraction of about 2,000,000 tons in the rate of annual production. No important sales last week in any section.

WHARTON PLEADS GUILTY.

Aged Pine County School Official Taken to Penitentiary.

Pine City Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Stripped practically of all and sentenced to four years in prison at Stillwater, A. O. Wharton, who has nearly reached the Biblical age of three score years and ten, today was taken to the penitentiary.

Wharton was brought before Judge Stolberg Saturday and pleaded guilty to embezzling from the school district at Bruno, of which he was treasurer.

The shortage amounts to between $6,000 and $10,000. Wharton has been prominent in business and church affairs at Bruno for many years. He was in the real estate business. He began taking the money of the school district as far back as 1904, rarely at first, but more frequently in the last few years.

HINCKLEY FIRE SUFFERER IS KILLED IN RUNAWAY.

St. Croix Falls, Wis., May 2.—Ernest Leslie, an old resident of Taylor's Falls, is dead from injuries received in a runaway on his farm near the Falls. He was 63 years old. A widow, two sons, a daughter and a sister reside in Wisconsin.

Leslie was at Hinkley in 1894; passed through the historic fire and never fully recovered from the injuries received.

NORTH DAKOTA SEEDING IS TO BE FINISHED THIS WEEK.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The present week will see seeding in North Dakota completed with but very few exceptions. The work moved along rapidly last week and another week of good weather means that all the work will be done. The spring, though not as early as it gave promise of being a month ago, is still an early spring and farmers generally are very optimistic over crop prospects.

ACCUSED HORSE THIEF WILL FACE JURY TRIAL.

Mandan, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—District court will open in Mandan tomorrow with a calendar containing sixty-eight cases, of which thirteen are criminal cases. The case of Ed Lund, charged with horse stealing, will be one of the most interesting tried at this time. Lund was arrested for alleged theft in the Fort Rice is now meeting with more resistance. neighborhood. Joseph Winbauer, Alexander Frolic, William Ader and several others will defend themselves on charges of violating injunctional orders, these actions growing out of alleged violations of the prohibition law.

Drowns in Wisconsin River.

Grand Rapids, Wis., May 2.—Falling into the Wisconsin river in the village of Port Edwards, south of this city, the 5-year-old son of Mr. Herman was drowned. The body was not recovered.

SLAYER EXONERATED.

North Dakotan Who Killed Hunting Companion Held Blameless.

Cooperstown, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the inquest into the death of Harold Long, the young man who was shot and instantly killed by Arnold Gleisner, the coroner's jury returned a verdict exonerating Gleisner of all blame. The affair happened while the two men were hunting gophers and the evidence inquest showed conclusively that it was entirely accidental.

Brainerd Boy Killed.

Brainerd, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.) — Slipping from a hay wagon on which he was riding, Harold, the 4-year-old adopted son of Walter Lund, fell under the horse's hoofs of a passing buggy and his head was crushed.

PATROL BOAT IS NEEDED

Police Cannot Cope With Burglars Operating at Boathouses.

Engines of Motor Boats Are Stripped of Brass Fittings By Thieves.

Burglaries at the boathouses at West Duluth cannot be stopped, or even reduced to the minimum, unless the police department is provided with a patrol boat, according to Lieut. Charles Wilcox of the West Duluth police department.

Boat owners at West Duluth are much aroused over the recent depredations along the bay front. Boathouses have been broken into by unknown thieves, the engines on the motor boats stripped of their brass, coils, etc., and everything else of value taken.

According to one of the boat owners, this practice has been going on for the past three years, and with the exception of a very few instances, the police have not caught the burglars. The bay front is not patrolled by the police, and if it were it would be comparatively easy for the midnight marauder to get away from the officer by means of a boat.

During the past two weeks numerous burglaries have been reported to the West Duluth police. Thieves entered the boathouse of Eugene Bouchard, taking away the spark coils, propeller and a number of other articles. Capt. John Cure reports the loss of several life-preservers. Another owner has lost a rowboat.

William Nelson of 107 North Fifty-seventh avenue west claims that burglars entered his boathouse last week and stripped the engine of his motor boat, leaving the cylinders bare. The carburetor, a spark coil, a spark plug, oil cup and other brass articles were reported to be missing.

Boat Is Needed.

Lieut. Wilcox is of the opinion that the police cannot put a stop to these burglaries unless a patrol boat is added to the West Duluth department. It would have to be in charge of a good man, familiar with motor boats, and commissioned as an officer of the law.

If the patrol boat was a permanent feature of the West Duluth police department during the summer season, it is thought that it might become useful in many other ways besides serving to catch boathouse thieves. The police have occasion many times to follow criminals who try to escape to Superior.

With a motor boat the police of West Duluth could save considerable time in making a trip in response to a call from New Duluth. As the steel plant work progresses and New Duluth and vicinity grows in population the calls for the police at New Duluth become more frequent.

It is probable that the boat owners may get together and organize for the purpose of getting better protection of their boats from the police. The boats are taxed when the assessors come around, said one owner, but the boatmen are not getting enough protection from the city. It is possible that resolutions may be passed asking the council to provide a police patrol boat on the bay front to watch the boat houses at West Duluth and at the West end.

FIGHT AGAINST EVIL.

Rev. D. G. Cole Preaches on "The Struggle to Live Righteously."

Rev. D. G. Cole preached to the congregation of the People's Union church at Harmony hall, 5615 Grand avenue, West Duluth, last evening. He took as his text Romans, xii:21: "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." He said in part: "Evil is a potential fact no matter what new schools of philosophy may say about it. Nobody desires to be overcome of evil. That is, no rational person does. Being overcome of evil is the embodiment of weakness. It seems hard to overcome evil with good. Nothing good will come of denying the existence of evil. As well to deny darkness as assert the non-existence of evil. Mumbling pious shibboleths will not release us from the continuous struggle with the ugly, venemous, hateful perversions of the good. To use theological soothing syrup is little less than immoral.

"Know the law and keep it. Demand of others that they keep it. Demand your rights. Defend the rights of others. Assert your manhood. Please your citizenship. Appeal to the law when necessary. There are people who dispise apostolic authority and smile at the prophecy of diverse judgment—but who fear the law. The law is based upon justice. The very assumption of the law is justice. The correction of moral obliquity in others—through the law—may mean a vastly higher ethical and spiritual plane for them than a week submission to outrage, hostility and designed malice. A sane, temperate judicial course is very desirable. The text assures us of ultimate victory. If we follow its law we reap its result. Good dispels evil as light annihilates darkness."

SEPARATE ROOM FOR THE WOMEN.

Should the women be obliged to use the waiting room at the Northern Pacific depot, West Duluth, in common with the men? This will be one of the questions that will be discussed at the West Duluth Commercial club meeting Saturday night. It is understood that there is a strong sentiment among club members against this and that the club will ask the railroad company to build an addition or at least provide a separate waiting room for them.

IS ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE.

Thomas Chapik, 49 years old, was arrested Saturday afternoon, charged with mistreating Helen Maleski, the 15-year-old daughter of John Maleski of 6212 Worden street. The arrest was made at the instigation of Humane Agent George Fifer. He was arraigned in municipal court before Judge Windom, and his examination was set for Friday. Bail was fixed at $500.

Woman Is Rescued.

Stillman Jackson, timekeeper for the bridge force at the steel plant site, saved Mrs Peter Peterson, wife of the foreman, from drowning Saturday afternoon. Both live at New Duluth. Jackson had started to take Mrs. Peterson across the river to see her husband. When she stepped into the rowboat, she tripped, dropping into twenty feet of water. Jackson jumped in and pulled her out.

Scarlet Fever Fatal.

Mary Ethel Biebel, 5 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Biebel, died early Sunday morning of scarlet fever, at the home of her parents at New Duluth. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the residence, with burial at Calvary cemetery.

New Poundmaster.

When the council meets this evening, it is expected that the poundmaster for the Eighth ward will be named.

This will take a burden off the hands of the West Duluth police, who have had considerable trouble with stray cows. Some of the cattle owners have allowed their stock to roam at will over other people's gardens and lawns. The new poundmaster will look after this work.

West Duluth Briefs.

New spring styles in millinery. Miss S. Ljngren, 305 Central avenue.

Rev. Arthur J. Hoag, pastor of the West Duluth Baptist church since Oct. 1, 1899 yesterday preached his farewell sermon to his congregation. He will leave tomorrow for Chicago and after a few days' stay there he will go to St. Paul to take up his new work as associate pastor of the First Baptist church of that city.

The funeral of B. H. Smith, 68 years old, the Civil war veteran who died Friday at his home, 7 North Fifty-third avenue west, was held this afternoon from the Asbury M. E. church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street, with burial at Oncota cemetery. The funeral was in charge of the Culver post, G. A. R. and Rev. W. G. Boyle officiated.

SUICIDE ATTEMPT UNSUCCESSFUL

Billings Park Widow Tries to Take Her Own Life, But Fails.

Because she was tired of life, Mrs. Ole Peterson, a young widow, living in Billings Park, tried to commit suicide Saturday night by taking chloroform, but she failed in the attempt.

The woman, after taking the drug, attracted the attention of other people living in the same house by her groans. A physician was summoned and the woman was revived.

Mrs. Peterson is only 23 years old. Three years ago, she married a man more than twice her age but he died a few months ago. Since that time she has been despondent and says that she is tired of living.

T-C-D Team Turns Defeat Into Victory—Other Sunday Games.

The Turnbull-Cameron-Degler baseball team turned a defeat into a victory yesterday afternoon in their game with the Allouez aggregation at the league park. The Turnbulls were blanked, 3 to 0, in the fifth inning, but scored nine runs in the four innings following. The final score was 9 to 3.

The Shamrocks shut out the Blaine high school nine Saturday afternoon at Hammond park, 4 to 0. Although it was a clean victory for the winners, they had to work hard for it. The Shamrocks are an aggregation selected by A. F. Lavell.

The seniors of the high school were taken into camp by the baseball team from the New Era Business college Saturday afternoon at Hammond park. The score was 10 to 5. The game was a ragged one.

The Bingham Junior team defeated the Rangers at Billings park yesterday, 12 to 5.

The Smugglers, in a game yesterday at Hammond park, took the Red Cross aggregation into camp by a 14 to 2 score.

The L. T. L. team of the East end won two games Saturday. In the morning the Trumpets were defeated, 26 to 10, and in the afternoon the Eighth street team was bested, 16 to 4.

The Rossiter Kids trimmed the South Superior Juniors, 8 to 2, yesterday, in a snappy game on the South end grounds.

On Saturday, Riches' Colts won from the Fifteenth Street aggregation, 14 to 7. The game was interesting for an amateur contest.

VICTIM OF JEALOUS LOVER WILL RECOVER.

A change for the better is reported today in the condition of Miss Effie Johnson, the 19-year-old Billings Park girl, who was shot four times by her jealous lover, Nich Schommer, Thursday evening last. Attending physicians at St. Mary's hospital say that the girl has passed the danger of infection and that the chances of recovery are more than even.

Tomlinson Heads Board.

At a reorganization meting Saturday night the board of health elected Fred Tomlinson as its president. Several other important matters were taken up by the board members. Two contracts were let for scavenger work in the city and the matter of a crematory for burning refuse of the city and the extension of the sewer system in the Ninth ward were under discussion.

New Bridge Planned.

A new bridge across the Nemadji river in the Town of Superior was voted by the town board at its meeting Saturday afternoon. The bridge will cost over $2,000, the town to bear the entire cost. Picnic parties from Superior will appreciate the new bridge across the river as it will afford a short cut to Black River Falls.

Fund Trustees Chosen.

Trustees for the firemen's and policemen's pension funds were chosen Saturday afternoon by the members of the two departments. The firemen selected Assistant Chief George Colon, Capt. Ole Norman and Capt. A. McPhee. For the policemen, Lieut. D. W. Scoon, Capt. O. T. Olson and J. A. Kelley will act.

Former Resident Dies.

Thomas Bowers, well known in Duluth and Superior, and for many years engineer of the Peyton, Kimball & Barber mill on Connors Point and for over twenty years the chief engineer of the Superior schools, is dead at Seattle, Wash. He died Friday evening and funeral services were held yesterday.

Police Have Busy Month.

April was a busy month for the Superior police, there being a total of 302 arrests made. Most of the prisoners were held for minor offenses, such as drunkenness and vagrancy, although several were arrested for larceny and one for attempted murder. During the month, the patrol wagon traveled several hundred miles.

RAILROADS

OPPOSING NEW RAILROAD BILL

Duluth Man Is Working in Interest of Duluth Shippers.

H. A. Earnshaw, traffic manager of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company and a member of the Duluth Commercial club's traffic commission, is in Washington as the representative of Duluth people interested in the new railroad legislation occupying the attention of congress.

Mr. Earnshaw is working against the adoption of the proposed new long and short haul clause as embodied in the pending bill.

Under the long and short haul clause of the present interstate commerce law, the railroads are at liberty to fix rates applying to intermediate points at a higher figure than applies to the farther point on notice to shippers. The clause as it stands in the pending bill, it is held, would not materially alter the one now in force, and the Duluth shippers desire to have the new legislation provide that there shall be no exceptions to the provisions of the long and short haul regulation except on the authority of the interstate commerce commission. It is proposed that the roads shall be required to make formal application for each exception to the rule.

RAILROAD MAN IS GIVEN BIG PROMOTION.

Elliot E. Nash, formerly assistant superintendent of the Wisconsin division of the Omaha, and well known among Duluth railroad men, has been made assistant to President W. A. Gardner of the Omaha, with headquarters at Chicago.

The promotion is considered 'a remarkable one among local railroad men. The promotion is one of merit alone, it is said here, as Mr. Nash is considered an excellent railroad man.

Roadmaster Is Promoted.

Jamestown, N. D., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. L. Birdsall, who has been roadmaster of the Northern Pacific on this division, has been promoted to the position of division superintendent with headquarters at Staples, Minn. S. A. Wilder succeeds him here.

Chinese Riots Suppressed.

Washington, May 2.—The riots in the Hunan province of China have been suppressed, according to cable reports received at the state department from Minister Calhoun at Pekin. In his message the minister says that this fact was reported to him by the United States vice consul at Hankow.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION —OF— EBERT, WALKER & McKNIGHT COMPANY.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS. That we, the undersigned, have agreed to and do hereby associate ourselves together as a carporation, under Chapter 58 of the Revised Laws of Minnesota for 1905, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto; and to that end we do hereby execute the following certificate of incorporation, to-wit:

FIRST.

The name of this corporation shall be Ebert, Walker & McKnight Company, and its principal place of business shall be the City of Duluth, Minnesota.

SECOND.

THE GENERAL NATURE OF ITS BUSINESS SHALL BE: To purchase, own, hold, sell, option, lease, mortgage, convey, manage, improve, operate and deal in lands, tenements, and hereditaments and in all kinds of property, real, personal, or mixed, tangible or intangible, and any rights or interest therein; to act as agent in the purchase or sale of real and personal property, and in the writing of fire, life, accident, casualty, fidelity, liability, marine and other forms of insurance, and in the writing of surety bonds; to broker insurance; to act as agent of owners or lessees in renting, improving, repairing and managing real estate, and buildings situate thereon, and in collecting the rents, profits and issues thereof; to buy, own, hypothecate, hold, sell and transfer all kinds of commercial paper; to loan money on real, chattel, or personal security, or with or without collateral of any kind, and to negotiate all such loans as the agent of others; to buy, sell, own, hold, transfer, and otherwise invest and deal in stocks and shares of other corporations, bonds, debentures, mortgages, book accounts, and all other pecuniary obligations and items or evidences of indebtedness, and to act as agent therein; to borrow money and to execute, give and issue all forms of commercial paper and written evidences of indebtedness; to engage in and carry on wholesale and retail merchandise business; and to do all other such acts and to transact all other such business as may properly be incident to and necessarily connected with the lines of business above specified.

THIRD.

Said corporation shall commence on the first day of May, 1910 and continue for a period of thirty years.

FOURTH.

The names and residences of the incorporators are as follows: George H. Ebert, Duluth, Minnesota; Thomas W. Walker, Duluth, Minnesota, and Alex G. McKnight, Duluth, Minnesota.

FIFTH.

The management of the affairs of this corporation shall be vested in a board of five directors, who shall be elected at the regular annual meeting of the stockholders, to be held on the first Wednesday in May in each year, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the principal office of said corporation, and no notice of the annual meeting need ever be given. The first Board of Directors shall consist of the following members: George H. Ebert, Duluth, Minnesota; Thomas W. Walker, Duluth, Minnesota; Alex G. McKnight, Duluth, Minnesota; M. E. Ebert, Duluth, Minnesota, and G. W. C. Ross, Duluth, Minnesota, who shall hold office until the first annual meeting, and until their successors are elected and qualified.

Any written resolution signed by all of the members of the Board of Directors shall have the same force and effect as though adopted at a regularly called meeting of said Board.

Any written resolution signed by all of the stockholders of the corporation shall have the same force and effect as though adopted at a regularly called stockholders' meeting.

SIXTH.

The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be $50,000, to be paid in cash or property, as the Board of Directors shall from time to time determine, and shall be divided into 1,000 shares of $50 each.

SEVENTH.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which the corporation shall at any time be subject shall be $100,000.

EIGHTH.

The officers of this corporation shall be a President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer, who shall be elected at a meeting of the Board of Directors, immediately following the annual meeting. The following shall serve as officers of said corporation until their successors are elected and qualified: President, George H. Ebert; vice president and treasurer, Thomas W. Walker; secretary, Alex G. McKnight. The Board of Directors shall adopt all by-laws and regulations necessary to the management of the business of the corporation, which by-laws shall remain in force and effect until and except as amended by the stockholders, at any regular or special meeting.

The first anual meeting of the corporation shall be held at room 314 Torrey building, in the City of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 4th day of May, 1910, at ten o'clock A. M., which meeting shall be held without further notice.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF: We have hereunto set our hands this 28th day of April, 1910.

GEORGE H. EBERT,
THOMAS W. WALKER,
ALEX G. McKNIGHT.

In presence of CORA CYR,
JOHN BURNETT.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION —OF THE— WEST DULUTH MERCANTILE COMPANY.

We, the undersigned, for the purpose of forming a corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter Fifty-eight (58), Revised Laws of Minnesota for 1905, and any amendments thereof, do hereby associate ourselves as a body corporate, and do hereby adopt the following Certificate of Incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of the corporation shall be West Duluth Mercantile Company. The general nature of its business shall be to conduct and operate a general mercantile store; to establish and carry on therein the business of wholesale and retail dealers in groceries, provisions, meat and meat products, farm products, bakers' goods, confectionery, fruits, tobacco, cigars, stationery, books, notions, dry goods, millinery, gents' furnishing goods, hats and caps, boots and shoes, drugs, perfumery, toilet articles, leather goods, musical instruments, ammunition, hardware, cutlery, lamps, paints and oils, wallpaper and painters' supplies, silver, china and glassware, plated goods, furniture and agricultural implements.

To acquire by purchase or otherwise property, real and personal, and the good will, rights and assets of all kinds under such terms and conditions as may be deemed advisable, of any person, firm or corporation, and to pay for the same in cash, stock, bonds or other securities of the corporation.

The principal place of transacting the business of this corporation shall be the City of Duluth, County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time for the commencement of this corporation shall be May 16, 1910, and the period of its duration shall be thirty years.

ARTICLE III.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this corporation are John Nyman, John Asplund, John Peterson, Charles Mattson and William Holm, all of the City of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota.

ARTICLE IV.

The management of this corporation shall be vested in a Board of Directors, composed of not less than seven (7) and not more than nine (9) members. The names and addresses of the first Board of Directors are John Nyman, John Asplund, John Peterson, Andrew Granlund, Emil Norlund, Charles Mattson, Anton Granquist, Charles Hill and William Holm, all of the City of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota.

The first officers of this corporation shall be: President, John Nyman; Vice President, John Peterson; Secretary, John Asplund; Treasurer, John Peterson, and Manager, William Holm. All of the above named officers and directors shall hold their respective offices aforesaid until the first annual meeting of the Corporation, to be held in May, 1911, at which time, and annually thereafter, a Board of Directors shall be elected from and by the stockholders of this corporation. The annual meeting of the corporation shall be held at its principal place of business on the second Monday in May in each year. Immediately after the election of directors, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the directors shall meet and elect from their number a president and vice president, and from their number or from the stockholders a secretary, treasurer and a manager. Any office except that of president and vice president may be held by one person. The directors and officers of this corporation shall hold their respective offices until their successors have been duly elected and entered upon the discharge of their duties.

The first meeting of the stockholders and of the Board of Directors shall be held at Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of May, 1910, at 8 o'clock P. M.

ARTICLE V.

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000.00), which shall be paid in, in money or property, or both, in such a manner, at such times, and in such amounts as the Board of Directors shall order. The capital stock shall be divided into Five Thousand Shares of 5.000 the par value of Five Dollars ($5.00) each.

ARTICLE VI.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00).

ARTICLE VII.

The by-laws shall provide that at all elections of directors each stockholder shall be entitled to cast as many votes as shall equal the number of shares of stock held by him, multiplied by the number of directors to be elected, and they shall further provide that such stockholder shall have the right, if he so desires, to cast all of such votes for a single director or distribute them among the number to be voted for or any two of them as he may see fit.

ARTICLE VIII.

The corporation shall at all times have a first lien on all the shares of its stockholders and on dividends declared thereon for any and all indeb

TAFT TALKS ABOUT ARTS

Then He Goes to Ball Game Between the Pirates and the Cubs.

Incidentally He Addresses the Woman's College Students in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 2.—President Taft this morning, at Carnegie institute, discussed the esthetic side of human life. This afternoon at Forbes Field he joined 20,000 other enthusiastic fans at the baseball game between the Pirates and the Cubs of the National league.

Incidentally, Mr. Taft dropped in at the Pennsylvania College for Women and told the young women there he was sure they were preparing themselves to take an important part in the life of the country.

"And that, too," he added amid a storm of applause, "whether you vote or not."

The president was deeply interested in the Founders' day exercises at Carnegie Institute. Mr. Carnegie was unable to attend. The secretary of the institute, Col. Samuel H. Church, in presenting his annual report, made a great hit by referring to the fact that the president had come to Pittsburg to attend two such widely divergent functions as Founders' day and the baseball games.

Wagner and Wagner.

"But," he said, "we are not so far apart after all. The first name that comes to your mind as you enter this temple of music is that of Wagner. This morning it is Richard Wagner; this afternoon it will be Honus Wagner. To carry the parallel still further, Prof. Heinrich, the musical director, will play Tristan and Isolde; this afternoon Barney Dreyfus will play Adams and Gibson."

In the president's address he said he had been asked to make only a few desultory remarks and would live up to that announcement.

The president declared that America must learn of the esthetic from the countries of the old world. In those countries it is thought a function of the government to support and develop the arts.

The president spoke of the orchestra as the foundation of musical learning. He declared that in Cincinnati Mrs. Taft had devoted her energies for years to that end in that city.

"In fact, if she had worked as hard to build up a personal fortune as she did for that orchestra," he added, "I might today have been a millionaire myself."

Federal Support of Arts.

Mr. Taft declared that his position was such that he could not express all that he would like as to the government support of the arts, but he declared significantly that public funds were being devoted to many things "not so useful or elevating as an orchestra."

Before going to the ball game the president lunched quietly at the University club.

COPPERS STILL IN THE DUMPS

Market Is Weak at Opening---Rally at Noon Checked Decline.

In a nervous and sensitive market today coppers generally declined. The losses were not severe as the recovery around midday carried values up toward the opening and the remainder of the session witnessed only fractional losses.

The market opened weak and slumped sharply, recovered to about opening levels and declined again to bottom prices of the day, recovered almost to the opening and eased off toward the close. The operations of the bears met with some opposition and many of the short, believing that the period of liquidation had been halted, ran to cover. Every bulge, however, was followed by renewed short selling. The market was easily oversold.

Amalgamated sold at $66.75, $64.50, $66.62½, $64.12½, $66, $65.62½. Steel common sold at $79.87½ to $80.37½ to $78.37½ to $79.37½ to 79.25. Butte Coalition sold at $20 down to $19; Calumet Arizona at $61.50 to $60; Copper Range at $66 to $65; Giroux at $7 to $6.50; Greene at $8.25; Lake at $51 to $51.50; North Butte at $32.25, $31.62½, to $32; Superior & Pittsburg at $12 to $11.50.

Butt Alex Scott, part paid, sold at $3.25; Butte Balaklava at $9.37½, Calumet & Sonora at $18.50 to $18; Cordova, part paid, at 50 cents; full paid at $1.37½; Shattuck at $25.37½; Calumet & Montana at 99c, Keating at $1.12½, St. Mary's at 19c and Sierra at $3.12½ to $3.25.

M. W. Lee wired Martin Rosendahl from Butte today as follows: "Dawson, Smith, Robbers and myself spent yesterday afternoon going through the Scott mine. Give me the management of this property and I will put $50,000 in the treasury every month from the 1,400-foot level, alone."

Divorce Action.
William S. Wing wants a divorce from his wife, Josephine Wing. The complaint, of which desertion is the basis, was filed Saturday with the clerk of the district court.

To Discuss Missions.
The Men's league of the First M. E. church will hold a supper this evening to be followed by discussions of the laymen's missionary convention and its effects. Watson S. Moore and W. L. Smithies will be among the speakers. The supper will begin at 6:30.

Speaks at Y. M. C. A.
Rev. S M Dick, pastor of the Wesley M. E. church of Minneapolis, was the speaker at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. His subject was "The Parable of the Good Samaritan." A large crowd heard the address.

Mr. Ebar Returns.
M. P. Ebar has resumed his position with Gray-Tallant company after an extended trip through the south, visiting Florida, Cuba and Mexico. Mr. Ebar says Duluth looks better to him now than ever before.

Meeting Is Postponed.
The meeting of the Associated Charities, which was to have been held this morning, was postponed until May 16. A number of the members of the society are out of the city at present and it was thought best to wait until their return.

Mrs. Lee Returns.
Mrs. Florence Lee, the nurse hired by the Duluth Anti-Tuberculosis society, has returned to her duties in the city after a vacation of several weeks. She spent most of her time at Solon Springs.

Bridge Is Repaired.
The park board has completed repairs to the Graves avenue bridge at the upper end of Lester park, which has been out of commission since the cloud burst of last July. The rustic bridge in the central part of the bridge, which was reported unsafe by the city engineer, has also been fixed up. Portman Square has been enlarged and put in first-class shape for baseball or other games.

Presented With Watch.
Every fireman in the city contributed towards the watch which was presented to Capt. John W. Walsh of Engine Company No. 1 Saturday night. Mr. Walsh completed nearly twenty-one years of service in the department and the timepiece was presented to him as a token of appreciation. When the watch, which is of solid gold with the best movement obtainable, was given to him by C. W. Wilson, assistant chief, he was so overcome that he could scarcely reply for several moments. His monogram is handsomely engraved on the case. Mr. Walsh will engage in the plumbing business with his brother on East Superior street.

PERSISTENT EFFORT

By FERDINAND C. IGLEHART.

In talking with some inventors, and in reading the opinions of others, we have been greatly surprised to find what an estimate they put upon application in the field of invention. They insist that a young man of average ability, by severe and constant effort, can become quite an inventor.

Mr. Edison says: "The question of natural aptitude enters into the matter, and without it no man can become a star, nevertheless it is an auxiliary attainment. Dogged perseverance is the keystone of success. In the arts, such as painting, music, poetry and so forth, a very special temperament may be required, but in the workshop of fresh air and the sunshine, sanity in any kind come out ahead. The man who keeps at one thing, and never minds the clock, is always sure to do something. He may miss many social engagements, of course, but his success is assured."

Elmer Gates of Washington, told me that it was his one great ambition to make permanent his school for teaching young men to become inventors. When I suggested to him the current opinion that inventors are rather born than made, he took issue with me at once, and said that any person of average ability, with proper instruction and persistent application could be quite successful in this field of endeavor.

Mr. Edison says: "I believe that any person, even of the most limited capacity, could become an inventor by sheer hard work. You can do almost anything if you keep at it long enough. Of course, the man with a natural aptitude would get there first, but the other plodder would eventually gain his point. The constant brooding on the one thing is sure to develop new ideas concerning it, and these in turn, suggest others, and soon the completed idea stands out before you.

"Above all things a man must not give up, once he has outlined his plan of action. Once you get under way, don't stop because of some seemingly impossible obstacle in front of you. What you want may be just beyond your nose, though you do not see it. I once had that fact forcibly presented to me. I was working on an invention, and finally reached a point when I could go no further. The thing lacked something, but, try as I might, I could not tell what it was. Finally, I got angry with it, and threw the whole business out of the window.

"Afterward, I thought how foolish the action was, and I went out and picked up the wreck. In putting it together again, I saw just what was needed. Repairing the broken portions suggested it, and it was so simple that I wondered I had not seen it before. Now that slight addition to the apparatus could have been ascertained by a little thoughtful experimentation. I suppose I found it out quicker because of the 'accident,' but that does not alter the moral of the incident."

It is painstaking, persistent endeavor which tells in the religious world. What new worlds of thought and feeling are opened to the heart which is persistent in its meditation and devotion!

HOW TO PACK A TRUNK

By MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

On many trips a man can carry every requisite in a suit case. Women who are willing to go with light luggage have spent some weeks in Europe crossing the ocean and doing a good deal of traveling with only what they carried in a shawl strap. But this for women is exceptional. Women usually are more comfortable if, leaving home for a few days, they carry their clothing in a trunk and have very little hand luggage.

If you expect to travel often buy a good trunk to begin with, but not too large a trunk. Mammoth trunks tax the strength and skill of the men who handle baggage on trains, and of the porters in hotels, and are bulky and in the way of one's room. In visiting a friend for a short stay never take a trunk so big that it suggests the possibility of an indefinite lingering. Two small trunks are preferable to one of unwieldly size.

The ideal trunk for a lady has several drawers and compartments.

When ready to pack get together everything you desire to take with you from home. Shoes and large articles should go into the trunk first. Pack very smoothly and fill up all the little spaces. Do not carry glassware and fragile pieces of bric-a-brac in your trunk. They will probably be broken if you do so.

Never carry liquids of any kind except in securely fastened tin boxes. Ink, cologne and medicine may be packed together in a tin case, securely fastened and placed in the middle of the trunk.

Fold all garments. Rolled bundles occupy an undue amount of space. Having arranged the underclothes as you want them, dispose of your skirts, which should be folded with the greatest care, laying tissue paper between each fold.

Tissue paper should be stuffed into sleeves and laid around the bodices of gowns to preserve their shape.

Dainty bits of lingerie, gloves, laces, bonnets and hats are to be provided for in the upper drawers and compartments of the trunk. Remember that loose packing means injury to everything. Pack as tightly as you can, and fill the interstices between your fragile articles with the soft tissue paper, which is a friend in need to the traveler.

Elizabeth Bisland, who is an authority on comfortable traveling, advises:

"In making long trips in England or on the continent it is as well that the woman traveling alone should go to the expense of taking first-class tickets to secure the advantages of the added luxury and privacy; but for all journeys of moderate length—and very few are as long as twelve hours—second class is quite good enough and a great deal cheaper. For journeys of an hour or two many English people go third class since the carriages in this case are perfectly clean and fairly comfortable, and one is not likely to suffer any inconvenience from the manners of one's fellow travelers, which are almost without exception quiet and decent. On the continent a woman unaccompanied had better content herself with the economy of second class, as her experience might not be agreeable in the third.

"Wherever one might be fated to spend any length of time in land travel it is best to follow certain rules. One of these is to be sure of plenty of fresh air. In our own country this is sometimes made difficult by the overheating of cars, the double windows and the lack of proper ventilation, while in Europe the loosely fitting sashes and lack of artificial warmth give one at times too much of even that good thing. An excellent practice is to get out wherever a stop of more than a few minutes is made and walk briskly, filling the lungs and stirring the blood. In almost all cases where a traveler finds herself unable to sleep in the cars the difficulty may be corrected by a supply of fresh air.

THE KU KLUX KLAN.

Famous Organization of the South Originally a College Fraternity.

Secret tribunals—the vigilance committee, the Ku-Klux, the night rider and the white cap—are the weapons to which some men resort when social conditions arise which appear to them unjust or unendurable, whether from the absence of established legal tribunals or from apparently unjust conditions sanctioned and sought to be enforced in the name of the law itself, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. It was the San Francisco committee of vigilance of 1851 that gave the model for all the illegitimate tribunals that protected and purified or terrorized and abused, as the case might be, almost every community of consequence in the Far West. A series of fires kindled by thugs in order to plunder the town while it burned led to the organization of a committee of 200 citizens who calmly took charge of the affairs of the city, and what little opposition there was to them was calmly awed into silence.

Gradually the vigilance idea spread throughout California, and committees originally modeled on the lines of the San Francisco body hanged, branded or banished "bad men," and sometimes women.

The committees did not always hang; they sometimes whipped thieves, and several organizations branded stock robbers with a great "H. T."—horse thief.

A famous secret organization which had many crimes charged against its name was "The Danites," a Utah Mormon band. This grim and deadly company was supposed to devote its energies to the discouragement of undesirable immigration into the Mormon territory, but it early earned a reputation for murder and pillage practiced upon parties of pioneer settlers and caravans bound for the California gold fields.

In 1856 conditions in San Francisco became such that the vigilance committee again seemed to be demanded, and it was reorganized, with William T. Coleman as president. This time there were more than 3,000 members, with an executive committee of forty, whose orders were absolute. They took charge of the armories, organized cavalry and artillery divisions, and even established a marine battery.

By this time the popular tribunal idea had reached other states and territories. In Nevada people began to find dead men swinging from trees with a placard bearing the figures "601" pinned to their clothing. This was the number of citizens composing one of the early vigilance committees, but the mark was soon adopted as the "sign manual" of all the lynching organizations of Utah and Nevada.

Northward through Oregon, Washington and away up into Alaska the movement spread. Gold dust thieves, highwaymen, cattle and horse thieves, "bad men" and others who earned the ill-will of the "regulators" were its game.

The "XXX" was as famous and feared in Idaho as the "601" was in Nevada and Utah, though this committee did not begin signing its work until two years after its organization. The first year of its organization it hanged twenty-seven men who were said to have been concerned in the murder of more than 100 persons.

To Montana belongs the fame of having maintained a vigilance committee longer and more effectively than any other state—from 1864 to 1870.

The Ku-Klux Klan originally was the South's weapon of resistance to the regime of the carpet bagger, scalawag and the lawless negro during reconstruction days. Wisely and humanely or roughly and cruelly and criminally, it did the work for which it was intended.

Originally the Ku-Klux was a college fraternity established at Pulaski, Tenn., in May, 1866. The name is simply the Greek word, Kuklos, a circle or band. To this was added the word was split and the word clan spelled with a "K," making it Ku-Klux Klan. It was not a serious affair to start with and if conditions had not been as they were it would probably have ended as it began in fun.

In the course of time many unscrupulous men and organizations committed all sorts of crimes in the name of Ku-Klux Klan and brought the organization into disrepute in its latter days. Only two copies of the original ritual are known to be in existence. One is in the library of Columbia college, New York, and one in the archives of the state of Tennessee.

All the latter organizations, like the white caps and the night riders, are modeled upon the Ku-Klux.

The night riders, or silent brigade came into existence in 1904 as an auxiliary of the Dark Tobacco District Planters' Protective Association of Kentucky and Tennessee. The "Black Patch" in which this "dark tobacco" is produced lies in Western Kentucky and Tennessee, and dark tobacco is unknown elsewhere else in the world, although it can be grown in the Blue Grass region, which produces the quality of tobacco known as burley.

The chances for devilry and immunity afterward brought criminals, "plug-uglies" and thugs into the order, and these by intimidation brought others. To join the night riders was both life and fire insurance. Those who refused to join the associations or the night riders were shot or whipped or beaten, their tobacco beds "scraped," "salted" or otherwise destroyed, their barns and houses were burned and a reign of terror inaugurated. Last year the night rider made his appearance in Arkansas and Texas. Cotton gins were burned and farmers warned not to sell their cotton until prices reached a certain figure.

The phase of night riding with which the public is most familiar is that around Reelfoot lake, Tennessee, where Capt. Quentin Rankin was shot and hanged and his companion and law partner, Col. R. Z. Taylor, escaped only by swimming a swamp under fire.

THE ESKIMO'S PIPE.

Forest and Stream: The pipes used by the Eskimos are quite different from those of any other North American race, and in the shape of the bowl more resemble the opium pipes used by the Chinese than anything else. The old pipes were very small in the amount of tobacco that they would hold, for in former days tobacco was extremely scarce and in its use was most carefully husbanded.

There was therefore a wide flaring margin to the pipe to catch any grains of tobacco that might be spilled in filling it, then there was a hollow which would hold a pinch of tobacco half as large as an ordinary pea and a rather wide hole which fitted into the pipe stem. The bowl of the pipe was of ivory, stone, brass or copper.

The pipe stem was curved and had a mouthpiece. It is said that the small hole running down through the base of the bowl and into the pipe stem was usually plugged with caribou hair to save any grains of tobacco that might otherwise have passed down through this aperture and so be lost. The smoking of such a pipe would not last long, and we may presume that a very few draws would exhaust it. The smoke was of course taken into the lungs.

The Eskimos are known to be extremely skilful in the representation of scenes and objects, while the Indians of Queen Charlotte's sound and generally all the natives of the northwest coast of America are famous for their carving in wood and in a black slate. Handsomely carved Eskimo pipes of walrus ivory from Northwestern Alaska have on each side of the pipe, that is to say on four more or less long flat surfaces, scenes from the daily life of the Eskimo. Of these the two sides on the right hand of the pipe, as it is held in position for smoking, appear to represent the period of cold weather, later autumn, winter and early spring, while those on the left hand side of the pipe represent the summer life of the Eskimo.

OUT OF FASHION.

A number of customs which used to be part and parcel of the social system are being much modified or are fast disappearing altogether. Paying afternoon calls, for instance, and conversation after dinner have been completely elbowed out by bridge.

"Dining out, unless you are a bridge player, is reduced to a minimum," says the Gentlewoman, "and those who cannot join in the fashionable game have to be content with an invitation to luncheon where they used to dine.

"Among the minor changes in social usages I have remarked lately that it is now quite demode for a lady to take a placard bearing the name of a gentleman under any circumstances whatever, except just for going into dinner, and that perfunctory sign of feminine weakness will also probably disappear very soon.

"Formerly after dancing, and when going in to supper at a ball, young ladies always put their hand through the arm of their partner, but now if any one did such a thing in an up-to-date ballroom they would be looked upon as (in the phraseology of the day) not quite all there.

"How very seldom you see a man in these days, hat in hand, in a lady's drawing room. Up to quite a short time ago elderly gentlemen who went to evening parties invariably walked in, 'crush hat' under arm; while every man, whether young or old, went up to the drawing room, hat in hand, when going to visit a lady. It used to be said that this custom differentiated a social call from that of a doctor or lawyer.

"The practice had its inconveniences, for there was always a danger of an all-too-heavy foot being planted in the middle of a brand new silk 'topper' by an absent-minded old fellow. Anyhow, whether for good or evil, the custom has disappeared like many others."

REPORT OF A CANON.

Washington Post: Canon Hensley Henson, during his lectures at Yale, said at a dinner in New Haven: "In my condemnation of this American custom I was mistaken. Yes, I was as ludicrously mistaken as the woman in the third-class smoker.

"At Banbury a half dozen young Methodist ministers once hoarded a third-class smoker wherein sat a frowsy woman smelling of beer. The young ministers had been attending a ministerial conference. In their black garb they conversed gravely on conference affairs while the frowsy woman nodded in her corner.

"As the train approached the long tunnel the woman roused herself. She pinned back lazily a tail of her hair that had fallen on her shoulder and she turned her glassy eyes on the six male, black-clad divines. Then she took from her basket a huge breadknife.

"'Don't none o' you boys try none o' yer tricks on me in the tunnel, mind, or I'll open ye.'"

STATE'S ACCOUNTS WITH COUNTIES ARE MUDDLED

Books Show Two Million Dollars Due That Cannot Be Collected.

St. Louis County Is Given Indebtedness of Nearly $700,000.

St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Minnesota is nearly $2,000,000 poorer than the books show.

F. N. Stacey, chief deputy in the public examiner's office, is at work checking up this discrepancy and endeavoring to ascertain just what the state's financial status is. He is for the present confining his attention to Ramsey and Hennepin counties.

The auditor's report "showing the state tax and state school tax with the several counties for the year ending July 31, 1908," gives Ramsey county as being in debt to the state $388,869.40. From Hennepin county, according to this report, is due $453,320.76, and from St. Louis county $685,920.31.

It is admitted by everyone that these figures are not correct, that no one knows how much is due from each of the counties mentioned or from any other county in the state.

Only Quarter of It Due.

"These figures," says State Auditor S. G. Iverson, "are merely a bookkeeper's balance. They do not represent the money due to the state from the counties, and the state has no expectation of ever collecting anything like this amount. Probably of the stated balance, $2,426,000, not more than a quarter is really due the state."

Every county in the state is set down as being more or less indebted to the state. With some of them it is a small amount, as Clearwater, which is set down for only $3,406.62, while there are many reported as in debt to the state for less than $100,000.

The work now engaging the attention of Mr. Stacey is to find out what part of this reported indebtedness exactly exists, to formulate a plan for checking up the financial relations of the state and counties, and having once got it straightened, to keep it straight.

"Don't Owe State a Cent."

"We do not owe the state of Minnesota acent," said County Auditor Odin Halden when shown the above dispatch this afternoon. "The only indebtedness that could possibly be figured out against St. Louis county is less than $30,000 in outstanding state taxes which have not been collected. That sum does not, of course include the current taxes.

"The amount for which St. Louis county is said to be indebted to the state is probably on the books of the state auditor in the shape of taxes, which have already been compromised or which have been wiped out by law. It is certain that some system of checking up the financial relations of the state and the counties should be devised and maintained."

HEINZE WINS ONE POINT

Court Decides Workings of Copper Pool Cannot Be Shown.

Severe Blow to Prosecution in Trial of Banker at New York.

New York, May 2.—Effort to have the over-certification charges against F. August Heinze thrown out were made today by his counsel to Judge Hough in the United States circuit court, where the trial of the Montana copper man and former banker on charges of misapplication of the funds of the Mercantile National bank, while he was its president, and of over-certification of checks has been in progress for a week. Heinze's counsel contended that the government had not shown unlawful over-certification in any instance.

Assistant United States District Attorney Frankfurter replied that the government had not yet finished its case. This declaration apparently came as a surprise to the defense.

In the course of the argument Judge Hough ruled that no evidence could be given by the government regarding United Copper pools unless it be shown that Heinze was actually connected with them, and further, that no testimony regarding any pools would be allowed unless subsequent to May and June, 1907.

Blow to Prosecution.

This was regarded as a severe blow to the prosecution, which began on Monday to give evidence of copper pools in 1905. It had endeavored to connect Heinze's alleged acts with an effort to promote a pool in United Copper stock.

Officers and directors of the Mercantile National bank testified that they warned Heinze in 1907 of the danger of impairing the institution's reserves by heavy loans while he was president.

WESTON ENDS WALK ACROSS CONTINENT.

New York, May 2.—Edward Payson Weston, the veteran pedestrian, reached the end of his transcontinental walk at 3:10 o'clock this afternoon when he arrived at the city hall in the presence of a demonstrative throng, entered that building and was welcomed and congratulated by Mayor Gaynor.

NEW DIRECTORS OF STOCK EXCHANGE.

Directors of the Duluth stock exchange were elected at the annual meeting today as follows: J. B. Cotton, D. L. Fairchild, W. G. La Rue, Lucien Merritt, T. W. Hoopes, N. E. Lugoff, E. C. Congdon, A. L. Warner and S. E. Smith. Mr. La Rue succeeds M. W. Lee, Mr. Hoopes takes the place of J. T. Hale and N. E. Lugoff succeeds N. S. Mitchell.

A PRETTY MOUTH.

Fewer New Gowns Needed By the Woman So Gifted.

New York Sun: "A pretty mouth," said a woman who beautifies the lips, "is the best feature a woman can acquire. It is likewise the most economical.

"With a pretty mouth a woman may disregard a great deal else. She can go without new gowns, she can neglect the ever changing fashion in shoes, she can overlook her sleeves and even be oblivious to her color scheme; but if her mouth is ugly not all the fashion hints in the universe will make her a beauty.

"It was only in June that a woman came to me to have her mouth massaged. Her lips were thin and needed treatment to widen them a little. I gave them the Cupid bow treatment, which is popular in Paris.

"I broadened the lips in the middle until they were deep but by no means too heavy. Then I massaged the corners upward to give that saucy little upward tilt which makes the mouth bewitching. When I had finished the woman was fairly good looking, though she had been unattractive when I began. These are our easy cases, but we sometimes have difficult tastes.

"Women who sleep with the lips compressed make a mistake. They will waken with lips much too thin. Better sleep with the mouth slightly relaxed. One can practice falling asleep prettily, and practice in this as in all other things makes perfect. Most women are too careless ever to be real beauties, but the woman who cares enough really to try will be rewarded.

"I don't believe in plumpers for the face. If the mouth is too wide I fatten the cheeks, and this makes the mouth look small. To make a big mouth look little it is necessary to fatten the face. If the cheeks are plumped out the mouth will shrink.

"I take some good cold cream in the middle of my hand and when it softens I rub it on the cheek of the patient, going 'round and 'round in a rotary massage. I rub in all the cream that will stick and I leave the rest to become absorbed. It is astonishing to note how quickly the cheeks plump out in that manner.

"Thin faced women are rarely pie eaters, and seldom indeed do they partake of ice cream sodas and candy. I get them eating pastry, for nothing fattens the face like pastry, and I advise them to eat a variety of food, for variety fattens.

"If you want to get thin in the face and slender in the nose and chin cut down your variety. Eat just one thing at a meal. If you want to get fat in the face reverse the plan. Your face will plump out as if by magic.

"We mouth specialists are compelled to dip into other professions. I am by no means a vocalist, but I do advise women to cultivate the voice.

"The mouth is ugly when a woman speaks loud. She lisps her words too much. If she will learn to control her tones her mouth will be prettier.

"Look in the glass and watch yourself speak. Speak loud and you will note the hard, rough lines that come around the mouth. Speak gently and these lines will be replaced by soft, pretty curves. Go to a vocalist and learn voice control. You can speak low and still be heard, and your mouth will improve 100 per cent thereby.

"On the subject of a flowery breath I feel that I may say a word. I was reading the other day of a court favorite of a bygone century who hypnotized her auditors by the perfume of her breath. So well did she understand the value of a sweet odor issuing from the mouth that she made it work and duty of one of her serving women to be always at hand with sweet herbs.

"In old Virginia, where the belles were lifelong beauties, they made it a practice to raise certain sweet herbs which on being dried could be kept all the year around. These were used in the facial bath and to make the skin sweet.

"Sweet seeds, home grown, were also employed, and in the little reticule which the belle carried on her finger there were delicate seeds to nibble.

"The court beauty carried a bit of myrrh in the corner of the mouth. In the old Roman days there were mouth washes made by steeping rose leaves. Three or four times a day is not too often for the scenting of the mouth.

"I also tell my clients to spend money upon their teeth. I cannot understand the logic of the woman who reasons that she is too poor to pay dentists or that she cannot afford visits to the beauty specialists. In my opinion the woman who must economize upon her mouth is too poor to buy clothing or food or to pay for lodging or anything else. Looks come first.

"I said the other day to a woman who complained of poverty: 'Go without a winter hat. Cut down your dressmaker's bills. Don't buy shoes or gloves. Put a dime into a first-class dentist and have your teeth straightened and be sure to stop at a beauty shop where they understand their business and have your mouth uplifted a little at the corners. That expresses a principle which every woman should heed.

"For women who will not redden the lips, holding that rouging the mouth is bad form. I have some suggestions. I gave them to a customer when she went to London last spring. I said:

"'When you wash your face in the morning be sure to pinch your lips. Give them a sharp pinch to make them glow. While doing this bend them back a little, giving them a little curling twist which keeps them from getting thin and at the same time promotes the circulation.

"'Never press your lips together, but practice keeping them slightly apart This does not mean to sit with the mouth open, but to let the lips merely touch. Don't gape, but don't press the lips together.

"'Once an hour or so at the beginning, but afterward as often as it occurs to you, moisten the lips with eau de cologne. A little experiment will tell you what kind of perfume to use. It is largely a question of taste and idiosyncrasy. One woman likes rose, another jasmine.

"The dimple spot in the chin is a thing to tempt the ambition of any woman. There is an operation for making the dimple. A muscle is cut in the chin so that there is a slight depression or scar. It takes a good surgeon to perform the feat of making a dimple, but it is a pretty feature once established on a woman's face. It makes her look just so much more coquettish.

"I would advise the woman who wants a dimple to get one. Personally I don't perform the dimple operation, but I do sometimes furnish a dimple stick to a woman. It is a little wooden implement round on the end. She sits with it pressed into her chin and after a while, if she is patient, there comes a tiny dimple depression.

"I can't understand the reasoning of the woman who powders her eyes and powders her face and even rouges her cheeks, but lets her mouth go to waste. I prefer a pretty mouth to pretty clothes."

AN ONION LOVER.

Dr. W. A. Evans, health commissioner of Chicago, declares pasteurized milk to be an overrated article. "They who expect," said Dr. Evans recently, "wonderful hygienic effects from pasteurized milk are bound to be disappointed."

He smiled.

"In the way of real, tangible results," Dr. Evans went on, "they will get little more than the Atlantic City excursionist would have got if—but listen to the story.

"A Philadelphia gentleman was very bald. Onion juice was recommended him as an infallible hair restorative. Accordingly, every morning he split two onions and rubbed their juicy flesh very thoroughly over his nude white scalp. The odor was strong, but the gentleman, after a time, got used to it. Throughout his Atlantic City vacation he saw no reason to abandon his daily onion rubbe.

"Well, one hot morning on the board walk, spying a vacant place beside an excursionist who was lunching out of a paper bag, the Philadelphia baldhead seated himself, unbuttoned his waistcoat, removed his hat, and exposed his head to the cool breezes and the sunshine.

"An overpowering odor of onion arose. The excursionist beside him, pausing in his repast, frowned and sniffed. The gentleman fanned himself calmly. The other, sandwich in hand, kept on sniffing and frowning.

"Then, after a minute or two, the excursionist leaned over and said:

"'Excuse me, boss, but would ye mind if I rubbed this here cheese sandwich on yer head so as to give it a flavor of onions? I'm awful fond of onions.'"

UNCHANGED AT CLOSE

May Wheat Opens Lower Than Saturday But Rallies Later.

Little Trading in Flax Market and Prices Decline.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 2.—May wheat closed unchanged. July ¼c lower and September ½c lower than Saturday in a variable market today. The distant futures were comparatively weaker than May on account of rains in the Southwest. Frost in the Northwest caused some uneasiness. The market was stubborn, advancing after the opening decline.

May opened at $1.07⅝a, sold at $1.06⅞, $1.06⅞, $1.06¾, $1.07⅛, $1.07, $1.07⅜, $1.07⅝, closing $1.07⅝. July opened $1.08a, sold at $1.07⅝, $1.07¾, $1.08, $1.07⅞, $1.08⅜, $1.08 and closed $1.08⅛. September opened at $1.00½a, sold at $1.00¼ and $1.00¾, closing 1.00⅜b.

Flax was dull and there was little movement to values except in September which was offered down 3½c lower than the opening. A slight rally caused a partial recovery. May opened at $2.37a, sold at $2.37¼, $2.37½, $2.36, $2.37 and closed with bids at $2.37, July opened at $2.31, sold 1c lower and closed $2.30½b. September $1.74b, October, $1.66b.

Cash equalled May although the mills paid 1c over for choice stuff. Oats closed 1c up, rye and barley were unchanged and durum was ½c off.

The market is a weather proposition. The dominating factor in the immediate future will be the status of the winter wheat plant and the outlook for the crop in the Northwest. With considerable damage to the growing plant in the Southwest conceded, the professional element is beginning to regard the Northwest with interest. Killing frosts last night in North Dakota and the northern and southwestern portions of South Dakota caused some uneasiness among farmers and commission men. Predictions for tonight forecast colder weather for Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas. A killing frost and freezing temperatures are predicted for North Dakota and Northern Minnesota.

A cold rain has fallen over most of the Southwest in the last twenty-four hours. In the western part of Nebraska snow fell. The cold weather was general. The bulls maintain that no amount of rain will help the Southwestern plant, that the damage has been done. Although the world's sentiment is bearish and supplies are large, the weather and crop factors, the bulls think, will be the leading influences in the market and will sustain their position. The uneasiness caused by killing frosts in the Northwest will add a new element of strength to the market. It will be some time before this is dispelled. The trade generally admits that considerable damage has been done in the Southwest, the question of doubt being only the percentage.

The visible supply decreased 3,554,000 bu. Following the slump at the opening the announcement of the visible caused some buying and gave the bulls courage to press their operations. The initial weakness was caused by lower cables and reports of rain in the Southwest. These messages induced heavy selling, but as the realization of the extent of killing frosts in the Northwest and the low temperatures in the Southwest became general the pressure to sell was taken from the market which accounted for Saturday's opening after having lost 1c. Some eleventh hour shorts covered on the upturn. There was moderate buying of the deferred months.

Supplies are coming in at about the same rate as last year, the general run being less. The farmer remains to be convinced that the growing plants will produce sufficient wheat and he is disposed to retain his holdings until the crop situation becomes more clearly defined. Shipments by lake from the Head of the Lakes are holding up better than some people expected. The outgo is comparatively less than last year and the discrepancy will become more pronounced in the immediate future.

Broomhall cabled: "Wheat at start was under influence of liberal offerings and prices ¼d to ½d lower. Firmness of American cables was offset by liberal tenders of May contracts, which prompted renewed liquidation. Following opening May steadied some, but later general market developed renewed pressure and values further declined ½d to ½d from opening. Selling was influenced by larger and cheaper La Plata offerings, large world's shipments and a good amount of United Kingdom. Amount on passage shows a suostantial increase for week and Russia continues to ship large amounts as shown in last week's total and predictions are for a continued liberal movement from this country. There is a very poor demand for forward positions. At midday market was heavy, ¾d to ⅞d lower than Saturday.

On scattered selling, corn was easier for the deferred months. Half a dozen concerns were bidding for May without getting much and in consequence that option displayed a greater degree of hardness as to price. The market, as a whole, started ⅜@½c lower to ¼c higher, with July ¼@⅜c to ⅜@½c lower, at 61⅞@62c, and rallied to 61½c in sympathy with wheat.

There was a further advance with wheat to 63⅛@63¼c for July and the market closed steady at 62¾c.

Unloading by some longs in new crop months caused weakness in oats. Prices opened a shade to ⅜@½c lower with September ¼@⅜ to ⅜@½c down at 38⅜c to 38½c and receded to 38⅝c.

Because of lower quotations for live hogs and as a result of weakness in grain, provisions took a downward swing. The market opened 10c to 22½c off and went still lower with September pork at $21.40; September lard at $12.10 and September ribs at $11.90.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Opens Easier, But Turns Firm on Crop Reports.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 2.—Wheat was easier today at the opening on account of rains in the Southwest and a decline in foreign markets. A decrease of 3,500,000 bushels in the United States visible supply predictions of frost and further bullish crop reports made the market firmer. May closed ⅛c lower than Saturday. July closed ⅛c lower and September unchanged to ⅛c lower. Local elevator stocks decreased 225,000 bushels for two days. Minneapolis today received 225 cars of wheat as compared with 303 cars a year ago; Duluth 24 cars against 21 cars, and Winnipeg 355 cars for two days, against 48. May opened $1.06⅜; high, $1.07¼; low, $1.06; close, $1.07⅛. July opened $1.07¼; high, $1.07⅜ @ 1.07⅞; low, $1.06¾; close, $1.07⅝. September opened 99⅜; high, $1.00¾; low, 99¾c; close, $1.00½@1.00⅝.

Cash wheat was easier today on account of the more liberal receipts. No. 1 northern sold for 1c to 3c above the May option and No. 2 northern to go out ⅛@⅛c above these prices. Closing prices on track: No. 1 northern, $1.08⅝@1.10¼; to arrive, $1.08⅜@1.10⅛; No. 2 northern, $1.06⅝@1.08⅝; to arrive, $1.06@1.08¼; No. 3 white, $1.03⅝@1.06½; No. 3 yellow corn, 55½@57c; No. 3 white oats, 39@39½c; No. 2 rye, 71@73½c.

Millstuffs — Shipments, 1,332 tons. There was no quotable change. Bran in 1001b sacks, $18.00@18.25.

Flour—The market continued dull and steady. Shipments showed a slight increase and prices held firm. Shipments, 47,026 bbl. First patents in wood f.o.b. Minneapolis, $5.20@5.40; second patents, $5.00@5.20; first clears, $4.05@4.15; second clears, $3.80@3.10.

Flax—Receipts, 27; year ago, none; shipments, 10 cars; demand continued strong for both spot and to arrive at even Duluth May price. Closing price, $2.37.

Barley—Receipts 27 cars; year ago, 23 cars; shipments, 52 cars; barley was steady. Demand continued fair. Closing range, 52@60c.

New York Grain.

New York, May 2.—Close: Wheat—May, $1.15; July, $1.10½; September, $1.08⅝. Corn—May, 62½c; July, 72c; September, 64½c.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Opening Prices Show Declines and New Low Levels Made.

Rallies From Covering Operations By Bears and Close Unsettled.

New York, May 2.—Opening prices of stocks showed declines today except for a handful of issues, in which were included Union Pacific, St. Paul, Pennsylvania and Erie. Amalgamated Copper was under severe pressure with sales of 3,500 shares at 66¾ and 66 compared with 67¼ on Saturday. There was a spread also in the opening quotations for United States Steel, of which 7,000 shares sold at 78⅞ and 79⅝ compared with 80¼ on Saturday. Chesapeake & Ohio, Rock Island and American Cotton Oil declined 1 and Atchison, American Smelting, Anaconda, American Car and American Hide & Leather preferred large fractions.

Sales of stocks were due to influences carried over from last week. Bear operators showed hesitation in selling at low proces and pressure relaxed. A slow, dull recovery ensued. Some of the banks renewed call loans at 4½ per cent, suggesting an easy tendency in the money market.

Rains in the Southwest encouraged sentiment over the crops. Lackawanna declined 10 points, Chicago Great Western preferred 3¾, American Car, Atlantic Coast Line 2¼ and American Steel Foundries 2. The market turned weak again at noon when prices dropped abruptly to the lowest for some stocks. Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific lost 2, Reading 1¾, Union Pacific and United States Steel 1⅝ and Atchison 1½. Bonds were easy.

New weak spots continued to crop up. Several of the market leaders made new low levels, notably United States Steel, which touched 78½c. Consolidated Gas was down 3 points; Central Leather, 2½; St. Paul and Atchison, 2, and Canadian Pacific, 1¾. Prices were slightly below 2 o'clock.

The market closed irregular and very much unsettled. Rallies of 1 to 1½ resulted from covering operations by the bears in the nature of profit-taking. The maximum recovery of 1¾ was made by Reading, Amalgamated Copper and Consolidated Gas. Illinois Central sold at an advance of 1⅜ and Missouri Pacific and American Cotton Oil 1. Demand slackened on the rally and allowed prices to yield again in the late dealings.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.

Cotton Market.

New York, May 2.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 2 points to an advance of 2 points, the near months being relatively easier in keeping with the cables, while later positions reflected covering and commission house buying based on less favorable weather reports and fear of a renewal of low temperature in the Southwest. Business was moderately active. The bull leaders gave May support after the opening and prices steadied to a net advance of about 3 to 6 points.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 15.25; middling gulf, 15.50. Sales, 173,900 bales.

TAFT MEETS HOME FOLKS

Spends a Day Among Old Friends and Neighbors in Cincinnati.

President's Journey From There Will Be Continued to St. Louis.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 3.—A day devoted largely to renewing neighborly relations with the "home folks" was President Taft's portion here today. Except for a brief address at noon before the trustees of the Mercantile library and another short talk late in the day before the Loyal Legion, the chief executive devoted himself to shaking hands and chatting with men and women with whom he had been on intimate terms of friendship for several years.

Sharing the social hours with the president was Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador at Washington, who accompanied the presidential party from Pittsburg and who was the guest of honor at several functions.

The president, arriving at 10:25 o'clock, was met at the depot by his brother, C. P. Taft, and by city officials who had come with a resolution of welcome passed by the city council yesterday. From the station, where several hundred people cheered him, a swift automobile whirled the president to the home of his brother, where, as candidate for the presidency, he had spent the opening days of the campaign.

A short rest at the Taft residence was followed by a trip down town to the library meeting, and then the president went to meet his old Cincinnati

FRANCE HAS NEW WAR BALLOON

Flyer Can Travel Fifty Miles an Hour---Is of Semi-Rigid Type.

Paris, May 3.—The surprising announcement was made today that there had been constructed under the direction of the war department and with strict secrecy, a dirigible balloon of the semi-rigid type capable of speed of eighty kilometres (approximately fifty miles) an hour, and that the machine would be ready for participation in the approaching summer army maneuvers.

The new military craft has been named "The Frigate." It measures 3,200 cubic meters and has two nacelles or cars within which are contained motors designed to develop 240-horse power.

BOY MURDERER'S TRIAL IS BEGUN

Youth Who Raided Bank and Killed Cashier Faces Jury.

Corydon, Ind., May 3.—The trial of Thomas Jefferson Hoal, the 18-year-old Louisville boy charged with murdering J. H. Fawcett, cashier of the Merchants' National bank, at New Albany, Ind., last fall, began here today in the circuit court before Judge Reidling. He was brought here on a change of venue. Experts in insanity have been summoned and the trial, after the jury has been secured, is expected to be brief. Hoal, in his raid on the bank, also wounded President John K. Woodward, but the latter has recovered after his life was despaired of.

RAISE RATES FOR TRAVEL

New England Railroads Will Put New Schedules Into Effect.

Notice Will Be Filed So as to Become Operative About June 1.

Boston, Mass., May 3.—A movement to increase passenger rates on many of the railroads between the Mississippi river and the Atlantic seaboard will become practically general in New England by June 1. Following the recent announcement of an advance by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, the Boston & Maine and Boston & Albany managements today stated that they had decided to raise rates because of the increase of operating expenses.

The raise on the Boston & Albany will be about 12 per cent and will take effect on June 1. The new schedules will be filed at once with the railroad commission and also with the interstate commerce commission.

The Boston & Maine also is preparing for advance on the Southern and the recently consolidated Western and Eastern divisions, and schedules will be filed within a few days. Several of the citizens' associations in Boston and suburbs have decided to make a protest against an advance in the amounts paid for commutation tickets.

HOW TEDDY WENT INCOG

Herald Correspondent Recounts Some Incidents of His "Quiet Hour."

Honors Given the American at Austria's Court Are Unique in History.

(Special Correspondence of The Duluth Herald. By George Grantham Bain.)

Paris, France, April 22.—From the time he left Rome—even during the period when he was supposed to be traveling as a "private citizen"—Theodore Roosevelt has had a strenuous time. The natives do the thing better over here. When King Edward wants to avoid notice he announces that he will travel as the Duke of Westminster, or something equally negligible. And he is allowed to go on his way with no more than the average allowance of staring and whispered comment.

If our ex-president had been willing to disguise as "Count Oysterbay" he might have gone over the ground of his wedding journey from Spezia to Genoa without attracting attention. The American journalists who are recording his movements dropped out of his train at Rome, and allowed him to go in peace. Not so the good inhabitants of the towns en route. The noise of his approach was heard for days in advance. European hotel keepers, even in the smaller places, have had their eyes opened to the virtues of publicity. Wherefore there was more excitement over the trip from Spezia to Genoa than there had been at Rome or Naples.

That "Quiet Hour."

Mr. Roosevelt repeated his experience of a quarter-century ago, driving in an old-fashioned carriage from town to town. But wherever he went the populace turned out with waving of banners and blaring of brass instruments.

MISSOURIANS TO RAISE OSTRICHES

Eggs Are Bought for Federal Incubator at Experiment Station.

Mexico, Mo., May 3.—Twelve ostrich eggs were purchased yesterday for $1 by the national poultry experiment station. The eggs are expected to arrive here within a week and will be put in an incubator. J. H. Swindler, manager of the station, plans to raise them to maturity. Several farmers have put in applications for live ostriches.

STANDARD OIL FINE IS UPHELD

Twenty Thousand Dollar Penalty Sustained By Appellate Court.

New York, May 3.—The United States circuit court of appeals today handed down a decision affirming the decree of the United States circuit court in which the Standard Oil company was fined $20,000 by a jury before Judge Noyes in the Western district of New York for violation of the interstate commerce act.

There were forty counts in the indictment of the Standard Oil company brought under the Elkin's act of February, 1903, and the defendant was found guilty on each of the counts. These counts charge concessions by the Standard Oil company from the published and filed tariffs on interstate transportation of petroleum between Aug. 15, 1904, and May 17, 1905, between Olean, N. Y., and Rutland, Vt., and between Olean and Bellows Falls, Vt.

CHIEF OF POLICE ORDERED TO QUIT

Council Bluffs Official Found to Have Been Lax in His Work.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, May 3.—The decision of Judge Woodruff in the ouster case against Maj. George H. Richmond, chief of police of this city, was received last night by mail from Glenwood, Iowa, where the judge is now holding court, and is against the defendant.

The case was brought by Attorney General Byers, representing the state of Iowa and was personally presented by him. It was a direct result of the disclosures made in the recent Maybray fraud trial, it being claimed that Chief Richmond was remiss in his duties while the "big stove" was in operation here.

Failed to Enforce Law.

The principal charge against the chief, however, was in connection with the raising of revenues for the city from gambling houses and other illegal resorts. In this Chief Richmond acted upon orders from the mayor and city council, and the system had been in vogue for forty years.

The court holds that he violated his oath of office and orders his removal. It is said Maj. Richmond will not appeal the case.

PAXSON TO GO TO THE BADGER UNIVERSITY.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 3.—Prof. Frederick L. Paxson of the University of Michigan has been formally notified of his appointment to the chair of American history at the University of Wisconsin. He will present his resignation to the University of Michigan regents at their next meeting.

TEACHERS PULL HAIR IN SCHOOL

North Dakota Town Is Without Instructors as Result of Fight.

Wolford, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Davis and Miss Bowen, school teachers here, fought without referee or timekeeper, and with the pupils of the school as spectators. As a result Miss Davis has started for her home in Ohio, and Miss Bowen is under the care of a physician. Both were discharged and the school is closed for the season.

The two women are the sole teaching corps for the city. They had some difficulty last winter which grew more bitter till they had a row over ringing the school bell. Miss Bowen started to perform that duty when she was ordered by Miss Davis to stop. Miss Bowen kept pulling the rope, and her co-laborer in teaching the young idea how to shoot, endeavored to take the rope away. In the struggle the rope was pulled down and they contended for its possession. Finally Miss Davis uppercut her opponent, then landed below the belt. The fight was getting good when one of the larger boys stopped it.

MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT IS UNSEATED FOR FRAUD.

London, May 3. — Sir Christopher Furness, the ship-owner, who, as a Liberal, has represented the constituencies of Hartlepool in parliament since 1900, was today unseated by the court and his recent election declared void on the ground that there had been illegal employment of demonstrators and payments made through his agents.

BRANTONS WIN SUIT

Are Awarded $ 100 Damages Against Marshall Johnston of Eveleth.

False and Malicious Arrest and Imprisonment Cases Are Decided.

Virginia, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury in the case of R. R. Branton against Marshall Johnston, an Eveleth hotel keeper, for $10,000 damages for false and malicious arrest and imprisonment, reported in favor of the defendant. The jurors went out at 3:30 yesterday, and it was midnight when they reached an agreement. They reported to the court this morning at 9 o'clock.

The same jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Anna Branton, who brought action against Marshall Johnston for damages to the extent of $5,000, on the same charge as that in the action of R. R. Branton, her husband. The jury awarded her $100 damages.

R. R. and Anna Branton were arrested last February in St. Paul on complaint of Johnston who claimed that they left his hotel without paying for their board. They were taken to Eveleth and the case was dismissed in municipal court.

REBELS BLOCKADE NICARAGUAN PORT

Claim They Are in Better Position to Fight Than Ever.

Washington, May 3.—Senor Salvator Castrillio, representative here of the Estrada provisional government in Nicaragua, acting under cabled instructions from Minister-General Rivera, today advised the state department that insurgent forces had established a blockade of the port of San Juan del Norte or Greytown, with four ships—three ocean-going tugs equipped as gunboats, and a fourth larger vessel armed with rapid fire guns. It is not unlikely that this is the rebel fleet which is on the lookout for the steamer Venus, recently sailed from New Orleans with arms and ammunition for Madriz.

Among Central Americans here, it is freely asserted that the rebels are now better equipped to carry on the war than they were at the outset.

United Sons of Vulcan Meet.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 3.—The fourth annual convention of the United Sons of Vulcan, composed of puddlers from many cities throughout Eastern and Central states, began a ten-day session here today for the formulating of a new yearly wage scale and the election of officers.

Earthquakes in Spain.

Madrid, May 3.—Violent earthquake shocks were felt at 4:25 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the provinces of Olivenza and Badajoz, near the Portuguese frontier. No damage is reported.

HAS INVENTED RIFLE FOR THE USE OF DIVERS

CAPT. GROBL.

Berlin, May 3.—Capt. Grobl, a well-known German diver, has invented a submarine gun for the use of divers. Up to the present, knives were the only weapons which divers had to protect themselves against the attacks of the denizens of the deep. The gun has a thick barrel and the cartridge is enclosed in rubber. When the gun is fired, a jet of water is produced that has an immense penetrating power. It has penetrated iron plate.

CHALLENGER CHALLENGED

Clash Occurs at Polls in Sixth Ward in St. Paul Election.

Republican Is Ousted From Place Beside Box Placed for Ballots.

St. Paul, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The polls throughout the city opened at 6 o'clock this morning for municipal election. The weather was clear. A full city ticket is to be elected, and owing to the early closing of the polls a heavy vote was cast early in the day.

Both men running for mayor, Henry G. Haas, Democrat, and Herbert P. Keller, Republican, predict victory with a large majority.

On the ground that he was not a qualified voter in that precinct, Rinehart Brandt, Republican challenger assigned to the Fourth precinct of the Sixth ward, was ousted from the polls early this morning, and for more than an hour votes were slipped into the ballot box without a Republican challenger there to stand guard.

Could Not Find Deputy.

When Herbert P. Keller reached Republican headquarters the situation was recited to him. Climbing into an automobile, and accompanied by his brother, he hurried to the courthouse after a deputy sheriff. None being available, the Republican mayoralty candidate went to the precinct himself and, confronting the Democratic officials, raised his arm and gave them this warning:

"I tell you now, gentlemen, if what they tell me is true, I'll have this entire precinct thrown out. There'll not be one vote counted. This is a warning."

A crowd gathered about him, and each tried to shift the blame. Mr. Keller left shortly afterward.

NEW YORK HAS TO IMPORT BAKERS

Scarcity of Bread and Pastry Results From Strike in That City.

New York, May 3.—A force of bakers is expected here today from Philadelphia to help break the strike which has crippled the business of most of the larger bakeries and curtailed the bread and pastry supply of the big hotels and caused shortages in many residence districts.

No early move by the bakery wagon drivers to quit was noted today and deliveries of such supplies as the bakeries were able to turn out was prompt.

NEBRASKA HAS KILLING FROSTS

Temperature of 30 Degrees Is Registered at North Platte.

Kansas City, Mo., May 3. — Killing frosts in Nebraska last night with a temperature of 30 deg. registered at North Platte, were reported to the local weather bureau today.

The weather generally was cloudy over the Southwest today, but no frosts were reported from Iowa, Missouri, Kansas or Oklahoma. A temperature of about 40 deg. prevailed in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma last night.

HYDE'S CLAIM THROWN OUT

Expert's Testimony Against Doctor Is Allowed to Stand.

Haines Tells of Finding Poison in Bodies That He Examined.

Kansas City, Mo., May 3.—Dr. Walter S. Haines resumed testifying in the Hyde murder trial today. He took the stand an hour before court adjourned last night and had given the greater part of his direct testimony, it was believed, when the session closed.

In his testimony yesterday Dr. Haines told of finding traces of strychnine in the ejecta of Margaret Swope, in the brain and stomach of Col. Thomas H. Swope and the liver and stomach of Chrisman Swope. There was no larger amount in either case, he testified. Cyanide was found by him and Dr. Victor C. Vaughn in the stomach of Col. Swope and on capsules which Dr. Hyde is alleged to have discarded in a street in Independence, Mo., he said.

The motion made yesterday by the defense to strike out the testimony of Dr. Haines on the ground that it was speculative and irrelevant was overruled by the court at the opening of court today. The court did not pass on the motion until it had read all of the scientist's testimony.

Capsules as Evidence.

Envelopes which contain the capsules and the cards upon which they were fastened were offered in evidence. Stains upon the paper were made by cyanide and melted snow, testified the witness. There was no possibility of the poison found having come from

SAYS BALLINGER DID NOT SHIRK

District Court Passes on Suit Brought By Former Clients.

Washington, May 3.—Secretary Ballinger received what might be called one vindication in the supreme court of the District of Columbia today when a charge that he had shirked his duty as secretary of the interior was ordered expunged from the record.

In an injunction proceeding in connection with homestead claims on the Siletz Indian reservation in Oregon, the petition alleged that because Mr. Ballinger, as a lawyer, had been counsel for some of the claimants, he refused to pass upon the cases when he came into office, and delegated the work to his first assistant, Frank Pierce, and had therefore refused to give the benefit of his judgment and had therefore shirked his duty.

Secretary Ballinger denied the imputation, declaring that the cases had been referred to Mr. Pierce in the regular course of business, as the latter had direct charge of general land office affairs, and the court struck out the charge.

PEARY LION OF LONDON

Great Crowd Cheers the Explorer and Captain Bartlett.

Naval Officer Is Given Special Honors By British Scientists.

London, May 3.—London is making much of Commander Robert E. Peary. Today a great crowd in the streets adjacent to the home of the Royal society, where he was entertained at luncheon, awaited the arrival of the American explorer and gave him a hearty reception. When, a few moments later, Capt. Robert Bartlett, commander of the Arctic steamer Roosevelt, arrived, the applause was renewed.

Lord Halsbury, president of the club, presided, with Commander Peary seated at his right. Capt. Scott, the leader of the British Antarctic expedition, was at the head of the lower table, with Capt. Bartlett at the place of honor.

Sir George Nares Present.

Sir George Nares, one of the oldest surviving Arctic explorers, was among the notable guests, others being Lord Strathcona, high commissioner for Canada; Lord Roberts, Sir George Reid, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Sir Hiram Maxim, Dr. Scott Geltie, secretary of the Royal Geographical society, many explorers, travelers and naval officers.

The American embassy was represented by Secretary William Phillips and Commander Edward Simpson, naval attache. American Consul General Griffiths also was present.

Toast President Taft.

Toasts to King Edward, President Taft and Commander Peary were drunk. The speakers, in addition to Lord Halsbury and Commander Peary, included Maj. Leonard Darwin, president of the Royal Geographical society; Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Sir Hubert Von Herkomer, the artist.

OFF FOR ANOTHER SPIN.

President Taft will make speeches for the next week.—News Item.

SUCCESS Is No Accident!

There is a good and sufficient reason why this store forged to the front rank almost instantly.

It was a carefully conceived and carefully executed coup in retailing. We knew that Duluth men wanted better store service and better clothes, and we set out to give it to them. Many of them weren't slow to realize that this store provided both. They told their friends—their friends told others, and the most conspicuous success in Western retail circles stands as a living proof that success is the result of methods rather than accident.

PIANO SALE A SUCCESS

Already, many Duluthians, who are shrewd buyers, have availed themselves of the splendid opportunity which the Kimball Company, through their distributing store, The Korby Piano Company, are offering to the public, during the removal sale, which commenced yesterday morning and will last only until their new store room is completed.

Those who have purchased a piano during this sale are highly delighted over the fact that they saved at least $125 by purchasing at this time. It is a well known fact that this store has always adhered strictly to the one "Factory Store Price System," and that the reduction made at this time on slightly shop-worn pianos as well as new pianos is an actual money-saving proposition.

We cordially invite you to give our warerooms a call and investigate this rare opportunity of purchasing the highest grade—"The Kimball Piano" for at least $200 less than other standard pianos are sold at their retail stores.

The Kimball Piano has received more World's Fair Gold Medals, and is indorsed and recommended by more great Musical Artists, than any other piano made. The W. W. Kimball Company is capitalized at $6,500,000; therefore we can give you better terms than the retailers are able to do. Give this piano purchasing question your serious consideration and call on us within a few days.

EVERY TRAIL IS FOLLOWED

Elaborate Checking System Is Used in Closing Up the Census in Duluth.

Many Volunteers Assist Government Officials in Final Work.

If any resident of Duluth is missed in the thirteenth decennial federal census, which is just being completed in the city, it will not be the fault of the census department, of the Real Estate Exchange or of hundreds of volunteers, who have turned in to help the census officials secure a complete and accurate count of the city.

A most elaborate checking system is being folowed out during the days of grace the census bureau has given the local officials for closing up the work. Special inspectors are visiting all the wholesale houses, offices and business places and it is believed that most of the people who were missed in the residence districts will be secured in the canvass now being made. Employers of labor are furnishing the census department with copies of their payrolls and the names are being checked up with those on the sheets of the enumerators.

Today the Real Estate Exchange put several men and automobiles at the disposition of the census supervisor and all houses which were reported vacant by the enumerators are being visited so that any that are now occupied will not be missed.

Hundreds of mail returns are reaching the census office from the city and from residents who are temporarily out of town. The coupons which have appeared in The Herald for the past two weeks are being freely used by those who were missed by the enumerators. Individual schedules which have been furnished by the special inspectors are also being sent in by mail in great numbers. The individual schedules are being sorted and assigned to the enumerators in the different districts and they will enter the names on the regular sheets. In that manner every precinct and every ward in the city will be given its full quota.

Supervisor B. L. Hollister and Assistant Supervisor J. W. Allen do not intend to let up for a moment until the books are closed Thursday night. They are anxious to get everybody into the count. The faintest trail will be followed out to get the person on the end. Thousands of people were not included in the count when the regular period ended Saturday night, but they believe the number will be reduced to tens by Thursday night.

There is some speculation as to when the population figures will be made public by the census bureau. Supervisors and other local officials may not give out any information. All information as to results must come from the census bureau at Washington. It is said that a remarkable system of tabulating has been devised for the use of the census bureau. Information will be tabulated as soon as it is received and it is believed that the results of the census will be sent out much earlier than was the case after any other federal census. As most people are interested in the population figures it is expected that the population of cities will be announced first and other information will come later.

Whooping Cough.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKeig of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when 9 months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists.

ROOSEVELT IN HAMLET LAND

Copenhagen, May 3.—The Roosevelts began a charming day in Denmark's capital and the adjacent country with an automobile drive to the castle of Fredericksborg, which was built by Frederick II in 1562, the main portion being replaced with the present structure in 1602, by Christian IV. In the castle church, Six Danish kings have been crowned. A visit to the national museum was made the occasion of a friendly demonstration by the students from the government school. Mr. Roosevelt acknowledged the greeting in a brief speech.

Visits Scene of Hamlet.

The motor drive was then continued to Elsinore, the assumed name of Shakespeare's tragedy of Hamlet. The Roosevelts were accompanied by a party which occupied six more automobiles and included Foreign Minister Schavenius and others of the cabinet, the burgomaster of Copenhagen, and several other distinguished personages.

The crown prince met the party on their arrival here from the Netherlands by way of Kiel. Later the colonel visited the prince and paid a visit to Prince Waldemar and Prince Hans, the latter an uncle of the queen of England.

The Danish-American Society of Chicago, which is carrying on extensive improvement work for the betterment of health in the district of Jutland, intends to ask Mr. Roosevelt to allow a park to be named after him.

SENATOR McCUMBER HAS ANOTHER OPERATION.

Washington, May 3.—United States Senator P. J. McCumber of North Dakota, operated on a few weeks ago for appendicitis, submitted to a second operation yesterday. After the removal of the appendix, an abscess formed which his medical advisers determined should be removed at once in order to hasten his complete recovery. The senator was reported to be resting easy last night and no serious consequences are anticipated.

BIG JUMP FOR "THE ROUND UP"

Frank W. Martineau, manager of "The Round-up," which will appear at the Lyceum all next week, was in Duluth yesterday making transportation arrangements for one of the longest jumps ever taken by a theatrical company carrying as many people and as much scenery as "The Round-up."

The company will go direct from Duluth to Toronto, using a special train of ten cars. The company will come to Duluth from Winnipeg, remaining here a week. The next city booked is Toronto, necessitating the long jump with as few delays as possible. The special train is therefore necessary and the trip under the circumstances will be a notable one.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by all druggists.

HILLSIDE PEOPLE WANT EXTENSION

Hillside residents east of Fifth avenue east and above Fourth street are confident that they will secure an extension of the street car system the coming year. The section has been building up rapidly and it is stated that the street car company sees its way clear to go ahead with the extension.

The branch would start at Fifth avenue east and Fourth street, go up Fifth avenue east to Fifth street, along Fifth street to Sixth avenue east, up Sixth avenue east to Sixth street, on Sixth street to Seventh avenue east and up Seventh avenue east to Eleventh street.

The grade in some places is fairly steep but does not exceed 7½ per cent, which is not prohibitive for short distances. The people in that vicinity have desired the extension for several years, and it is claimed that Mayor Cullum promised them his support in this regard during the recent campaign.

SUSPECTED OF BEING THE THIEF

The police suspect that in the person of Julius Frykberg they have in custody the man who ransacked the residence of M. Weinberg on East Third street early Sunday morning. The police state that he is a "bad egg"

New Drug Cures Fever and Ague

(From the New York Graphic.)

Of all the prominent men gathered at the medical convention last week none attracted more attention than Prof. G. W. La Torne, whose new kardene treatment for chills and fever and all forms of malaria has been so successful.

While kardene is known as a blood purifier and liver invigorator, its value as a cure for malarial attacks was not recognized until recently. Its use is growing rapidly, not only because of its wonderful merit but also on account of its low cost. You can make a full quart of kardene tonic by dissolving one ounce of kardene and ½ teacupful of sugar in ½ pint of alcohol and then adding 1½ pints of boiling water. The dose is a tablespoonful before each meal and before retiring.

Kardene tonic is doubly valuable in the spring, when the system needs toning up. Taken regularly for a few weeks it will do away with that tired feeling, restore lost energy and ambition, correct deranged digestion, arouse a torpid liver and purify and enrich the blood, enabling it to cast out of the system the impurities that cause sallowness, blotches, pimples, and similar symptoms of impure blood. If your druggist is out of kardene, ask him to get it for you.

NO ACTIVE OPPOSITION

Duluth Ministers Have Not Joined Movement Against Big Fight.

The clergy and church people of Duluth apparently have no intention of joining in the movement that is spreading over the country, having for its object the condemnation and possible prevention of the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight in California, July 4.

Local pastors who have been interviewed say they know of no concerted movement here with that object, but they are unanimous in denouncing such exhibitions as brutalizing and degrading.

Dr. A. W. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church and president of the Duluth Humane society, said that he had heard of no expressions on the subject whatever.

"Personally, I am strongly opposed to such exhibitions, he said. "Understand, I am not opposed to pugilism so far as it means training and exercise for men, but I am opposed to prize fighting. It is characterized by brutality and has a depraving influence upon those who look at it.

"The fact that I have not heard at this time of any expression of opposition to the prize fight does not imply that there will be none."

"Certainly I am opposed to such an exhibition being given," said Rev. E. C. Clemans, district superintendent of the Duluth district, Methodist Episcopal church. "I don't know what the local sentiment may be, but I will be glad to welcome any movement that has for its object the discouragement of such a thing.

"Prize fighting is brutal and when we have such exhibitions it seems to me that we are on a par with the Mexicans who delight in bull fights. I have not heard of any concerted action against the fight in this city."

Dr. Alexander Milne, rector of the Pilgrim Congregational church, said: "This fight is in California? That is too far away to be of any interest to me. I don't know who Jeffries is and I don't know who Johnson is; furthermore, I don't care anything about either of them."

LITTLE DEMAND FOR STEAKS

Some of the Duluth restaurant owners are seriously thinking of cutting out steaks until the price of meat is lowered. Managers of restaurants state that there is no profit in meat at the present high price.

J. J. Haley, proprietor of Haley's restaurant, which will be remodeled into a lunch room, has announced that his restaurant will serve no more steaks until the price of meat is decreased.

Other restaurant managers today stated that there is little or no profit in the high price of meat for the restaurant owners. They also state that the demand for beefsteak has fallen off with the increase in price that the restaurants have been obliged to charge.

Mr. Haley stated that the increase of lunch rooms might be attributed to the increased cost of meat. With chickens at their present price and meat very high, he stated that there was little profit in it for the restaurants.

An inquiry today among various restaurant managers brought out the fact that there had been a falling off in the demand for steaks by restaurant patrons, directly due to the increased cost of meat. While there may be no boycott against meat here, there is undoubtedly a falling off in its consumption.

MAY BUILD NEW EXCURSION BOAT

West Duluth Men Plan New Craft for Coming Season.

An excursion boat, to make regular trips up the river, carrying passengers and freight from Booth's dock, Duluth, to New Duluth, may be built this summer by George F. Brown and others at West Duluth.

The matter has been talked over for some time, and, according to present indications, matters may come to a head soon. The boat planned would be seventy-five feet long and would be run by a 30-horse power gasoline engine.

The boat would be run on a regular schedule daily, and with the exception of Sunday would be used for heavy freight transportation. On Sundays the boat would be used for pleasure excursions up the river.

The proposed craft would cost in the neighborhood of $4,000. Only one boat, owned by a West Duluth man, now makes excursions up the river, but it does not run on any schedule. This is the Zenith, owned by Capt. John Curo.

Victor Anderson has purchased a 4-horse power launch from Bert Onsgaard. The new owner has remodeled it, and it is now in better condition than ever before.

Don't Let Your Piles Grow

CURED!

NOT MERELY RELIEVED

Every patient pronounced cured by the Progressive Medical association, IS cured—not merely relieved.

Are you sick? What would vigorous health mean to you?

You can have it!

The Progressive Medical association of Duluth will guarantee it to you, immediately upon accepting your case.

Their offices are crowded daily with men on the road to recovery. Men who themselves know that health is in store for them, and who have already shaken off the slough of despondency—and look once more upon life as being worth while.

For twenty-five years these modern scientists have been practicing, here in Duluth, and to their credit be it said—that thousands of happy, healthy men—owe their health and happiness to the efficiency of the methods of these specialists.

No longer is it necessary to journey to Hot Springs, or to the specialists of the East, thus incurring tremendous expense and loss of time.

RIGHT HERE IN DULUTH

You can be cured—quickly, surely, safely and secretly—attending as usual to your business. Does not the logic of it appeal to you?

POUNDMASTER IS WAR VETERAN

Question as to Whether or Not He Can Be Removed.

Capt. J. W. Mann, who last year served as poundmaster for the West Duluth district, was not reappointed to the office last evening at the council meeting, but under the provisions of a state law passed four years ago he may still retain the office.

Capt. Mann is a veteran of the Civil war. The state law provides that war veterans, appointed to office cannot be removed for political reasons. The city attorney was asked by the council last evening to look into the matter.

It is contended by some that Mr. Mann's commission as poundmaster ran out when there was no further work for him to do in the fall, but others say that he is poundmaster until he is replaced by a new man.

TO ATTEND CONVENTION.

William J. Fremont will represent the longshoremen's union, No. 12, West Duluth, at the eighteenth annual convention of the national order at New York City. The convention will be held some time during July.

Mr. Fremont was elected president of the local union at the annual meeting of the local union last evening at West Duluth. The other officers who will serve with him are: Vice president, George Bothwell; recording secretary, Thomas Uttican; financial secretary, R. S. McGregor; treasurer, Charles Toplit; marshal, Joseph Perry; inspector, Joseph Goneau; trustee, John Doherty, Napoleon Sayan and A. St. James.

OLD TIME HOSTELRY WILL HAVE NEW NAME.

After being known as the Phillips hotel for more than twenty years past, the hostelry at Central avenue and Ramsey street will be renamed Hotel Cody.

Numerous improvements have been made about the structure which is one of the old landmarks at West Duluth. This spring, the building was remodeled on the interior and in front.

The hotel changed hands a few months ago and is now run under the management of Daniel A. Fitzpatrick. Emil Hollander has leased the cafe, which will be conducted in connection with the hotel.

Will Enforce Ordinance.

On account of the seeming increase in the number of bicycles used this spring, the West Duluth police are warning the public that the ordinance relating to the use of the sidewalk or at night without a light, will be enforced to the letter. Many complaints have been made to the police and according to Lieut. Wilcox, an effort will be made to bring all offenders into court.

West Duluth Briefs.

Mrs. S. A. Jamieson and daughter Ethel, who have been on a five months' visit with friends and relatives at Lewisville, Ind., have returned to their home, 804 North Fifty-eighth avenue west.

Capt. M. Le Flear of one of the boats on the lakes, now in the local harbor for repairs, is visiting with his family at West Duluth for a few days.

W. J. Sullivan of 637 North Fifty-ninth avenue west returned today from a two weeks' trip to the Twin Cities. He expects to go into business shortly. He has been in the employ of an uptown firm of architects.

Hurst, Watch repairing, W. Duluth.

Rev. John A. Krantz, pastor of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church at West Duluth and president of the Minnesota conference, will leave tomorrow for North Branch, Minn., where he will officiate Thursday at the installation of a new pastor, Rev. C. W. Anteer.

Mr. and Mrs. William Granholm, who were married last evening at the parsonage of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church, 706 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, Rev. J. A. Krantz officiating, will make their home at Forty-ninth avenue west and Grand avenue. The bride was formerly Miss Anderson.

Another of the series of monthly entertainments has been planned for this evening by West Duluth Council No. 255, Royal league. Following the business session there will be a banquet and a short program.

The proctor fire department saved Axel Eklund's livery barn from destruction by fire last evening about 8:30 o'clock. The origin of the blaze is unknown, and the damage amounted to about $200.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Midway Swedish Lutheran church will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edward Edlund.

Rev. E. F. Stidd, pastor of the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, returned today from a visit at Finlayson.

A daughter was born Sunday night to Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Collum of Proctor.

Mrs. J. A. Scott of Olney street will entertain the Ladies' Guild of the Holy Apostles' Episcopal church tomorrow afternoon at her home.

TO WELCOME REALTY MEN

Delegates to Convention Will Visit Duluth Saturday, June 18.

The real estate exchange held a meeting in the Commercial club today and made tentative plans for the entertainment of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges, which will be in Duluth, Saturday, June 18, the closing day of the annual convention, which will open in Minneapolis, June 16.

An entertainment and a finance committee were appointed by the exchange today and they will raise the money and make definite plans for the entertainment of the visitors.

It is expected that upwards of 500 delegates will be in Duluth with the association and among them will be some of the largest operators in realty in the United States. The members of the exchange plan to show them over the city and, if there is time, over some of the surrounding country. There will probably be a banquet at the Commercial club in the evening.

The National association is made up of exchanges all over the country and on account of the instructive nature of the annual meetings most of the exchanges are represented by delegates at each meeting. The visit of the real estate men means much to Duluth, for it will draw their attention to the city's resources and possibilities and will dispel erroneous impressions which are often found outside of the city.

Some of the Ohio and New York delegates to the convention will come to Duluth by boat and will remain in Duluth two or three days before proceeding to Minneapolis for the opening of the convention. They will be entertained by the real estate exchange during their stay in the city.

MYSTERIOUS ORDINANCE

Somebody in Duluth Wants to Store Gasoline Under Street.

An ordinance, providing for the storage of gasoline, petroleum, naphtha, turpentine and light petroleum products in tanks under the pavements of Duluth streets, was introduced in the council last night.

Neither City Clerk H. W. Cheadle nor any of the aldermen know who drew it up, brought it into the office of the clerk or in whose interest it is drawn. Mr. Cheadle found it on his desk yesterday afternoon, it having been placed there while he was absent. The ordinance was referred to the committee on ordinances and resolutions.

It is thought it may have been drawn at the instigation of the owners of local garages, who desire to store gasoline in the streets. The provisions require that the tanks shall not contain over thirty gallons each, be encased in concrete not less than six inches thick, that the ventilation be adequate, that they be filled from a pipe between the curb and the sidewalk, the end to be kept under an iron cover, to be locked except when the tanks are being filled, and that careful guarantees be entered into between the city and the owners of the premises to indemnify the city from any loss resulting from the storage of the gasoline or oils. The tanks are to be located between the curb and the center of the street, the latter to be replaced in its original condition because of any disturbances due to the placing of the tanks.

Before taking any action on the ordinance the council will want to know who or what interests are back of it. The aldermen are in the dark at the present time, as there are several concerns which might desire to store gasoline or highly inflammable oils in this manner.

DANCE TONIGHT!

THIRD REGIMENT BAND AT LINCOLN PARK.

Music will be furnished by the entire band. Tickets, 50 cents.

KATZ IS GIVEN AN INDETERMINATE TERM.

New York, May 3.—Charles Katz, who was found guilty of larceny by a jury in the supreme court last night, was sentenced today to serve and indeterminate term of from three to seven years in the penitentiary. Katz was charged, with Donald Parsch and others, with selling $110,000 worth of copper stock put up with the Windsor Trust company by an agent of F. Augustus Heinze as security for a loan of $50,000.

SUPERIOR

LEPER ADMITS "RAISING" BILLS

Hiram Leper, alias Charles Cook, 38 years old, ex-convict, arrested Sunday evening in an immoral resort on lower Hammond avenue, Superior, on a simple charge of drunkenness, faces a prison term for counterfeiting.

When arrested Sunday night, a number of "raised" bills were found on his person by the police. A telephone request for a United States detective brought Frank Sommers, a secret service man from St. Paul.

Leper is charged with "raising" $1 bills to $10, his plan being to obliterate the original figures with an acid preparation and fill in the colors with a crayon. When arrested, he admitted that he also was saving some $5 bills with red seals which he said could be easily raised to $20.

Leper, when confronted by the St Paul man, first denied his guilt, offering explanations, but when the secret service man told him that he had served five years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, for "raising" the denominations of United States bills, he confessed.

Leper talked freely of his methods, after he had been exposed by the detective. He blames himself for his carelessness which led to the discovery that he was working his former game.

Leper will be arraigned either late this afternoon or in the morning before United States Court Commissioner F. H. Pressnell, in Duluth. He will plead guilty to the charge, according to a statement made today in the presence of the Superior police.

Leper will probably be sent to Leavenworth, Kan., where the federal penitentiary is located. He will be sentenced in St. Paul.

Accidental Shooting.

While shooting at a target in his father's barn at Billings Park, Sunday, Severt Berg, a Ninth ward lad, shot and slightly wounded John Larson, who was standing in his own back yard in the lot adjoining. The bullet passed through the pine board and struck Larson a glancing blow, inflicting a slight wound. Young Berg was arrested and when arraigned yesterday in municipal court he was fined $10 and costs for discharging firearms within the city limits.

Convention Closes.

The convention of the Wisconsin Sunday School association came to a close last night after a three days' session. Three successful meetings were held at the Hammond avenue Presbyterian church. During the sessions addresses were given by a number of prominent Sunday school workers of the state.

Court Receipts Large.

A total of $1,836 was collected by Judge Parker of the municipal court in fines during the month of April, according to his report to City Treasurer Kane. This amount is among the largest month's receipts for some time.

Paving Bids Opened.

At its meeting yesterday the board of public works opened eleven bids for the paving of Belknap street, between Oaks and Weeks avenues. Seven concerns figured on the proposition and three different materials appeared in the bids, creosoted block, brick and bethulithic paving.

SENSATION IN PHELPS' CASE

Evidence Showing That Goods Were Spirited Away Before Fire.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some rather sensational evidence has been offered by the state at the trial of E. H. and Ray Phelps, father and son, in the district court, for arson in the alleged burning of a small hotel at the Winnibigoshish lake dam, during which Joseph Wegge was burned to death. This evidence went to show that some of the furniture and other effects in the burned building, on which the Phelps secured $1,000 insurance, was stored in George Lynch's warehouse at Cass Lake, and, consequently, never burned. This evidence is considered very damaging to the case of the accused, and their attorneys are seeking to combat it. The case will probably continue through tomorrow.

In the ball game here Sunday between the Grand Rapids first team and the Coleraine nine, the home team won, 7 to 6.

The Grand Rapids Juniors defeated the Bovey nine there Sunday, 13 to 9.

PLAN FIGHT IN SENATE

Regulars Will Try to Table the Cummins Clause of Railroad Bill.

Washington, May 3.—A protracted conference between administration senators regarding the railroad bill was adjourned at 1:45 p. m. They decided to move to table the Cummins' amendment and then strike out the whole traffic agreement provision. Clay, Democrat, will make the latter motion and Republican regulars are counting on Democratic support for both propositions.

Taft Meets Politicians.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 3.—Although his visit "home" today was largely of a social character, President Taft could not altogether avoid politics. Wade H. Ellis, now chairman of the Ohio Republican executive committee, and Arthur Vorys who served as "chief of staff" to Mr. Taft during part of the presidential campaign, boarded the train at Columbus this morning, and as soon as the president had finished breakfast they sought an interview. A number of other men of prominence in the party called on the president during the day.

President Taft read with keenest interest the dispatch from Washington dealing with the critical situation in which the administration railroad bill has been placed. The president would make no comment for publication regarding the attitude of the insurgents in the senate and house toward the measure. That he holds the insurgents responsible for the legislative delay is now fully recognized.

Tired of Promises.

It is known that the president has grown tired of the professions of some of the national legislators in both branches of congress that they are for his measures (when they visit the White House), but work against these same measures, according to his view, as soon as they get back to Capitol Hill.

Mr. Taft is far from having lost all hope, but it is believed that he is plainly discouraged by the lack of support from men who nominally belong to the party of which he is the titular head. The president still adheres to the view that congress should bear the responsibility for its own acts of commission and omission, and it is believed that in the last analysis he will endeavor to place the blame where it belongs.

RAILROADS

RATES GO UP 13 TO 50 PER CENT

Washington, May 3.—A careful checking of the freight tariffs filed with the interstate commerce commission by the Western trunk lines association, indicates that the increase in the rates on shipments of commodities ranges from 13 to 50 per cent. On commodities shipments between Chicago and St. Paul the rates on agricultural implements have been increased 13 per cent; on brick, 16; on furniture, 14; on dry hides, 15; on green salt hides, 24; on paints, 15; and on stone, 15 per cent.

From St. Paul to points in Wisconsin the increase on sugar is 30 per cent. Commodity rates between Chicago and Racine and Milwaukee, effective May 16, have been advanced from 15 to 25 per cent. On agricultural implements from Chicago to various points in the West and Northwest, the advance averages nearly 15 per cent.

Advance on Stock Too.

A note appended to the trunk line commodity tariff announces that on June 1, a general advance will be made on the transportation of horses and mules between Kansas City and various points in Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota amounting to from $5 to $10 a car.

Thus far none of the Eastern railways has announced any change in its freight tariffs, but it is expected that, following the example of the Western roads, a general advance of freight rates in Eastern territory will be announced in the near future.

DEVILS LAKE MAY GET THE MILWAUKEE ROAD.

Devils Lake, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—With announcement already made to the effect that the Soo railroad would soon build an extension through this city, and with a rumor afloat that the Milwaukee will build to this place from Harlem, S. D., looks as though Devils Lake will become one of the most important railroad centers of North Dakota. It already has the Great Northern and Farmers' line, this city being the terminal of the so-called Aneta-Devils Lake extension as well as being on the main line of the Great Northern.

The Medford to Drake extension of the Soo railroad is ceretain to strike Devils Lake the surveyors having already done their preliminary work and including this city in the survey. This will open up a splendid country northeast of this city and southwest, which is the direction in which the line will run.

FREIGHT RATES TO EL PASO TO GO DOWN.

El Paso, Tex., May 3.—With the opening of the Rock Island from Memphis to Tucumari, N. M., May 10, it is officially announced freight rates over that road from New York will be reduced 40 per cent. It is planned to bring the freight to Texas City by steamer.

Omaha Official Promoted.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—E. E. Nash of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway, has been promoted to the position of assistant to President Gardnerd of the Omaha, who ies also vice president of the Chicago & Northwestern railway. Mr. Nash and family will remove from Eau Claire to Chicago. J. R. Walch, assistant superintendent of the Omaha northern division with headquarters at Spooner, succeeds Mr. Nash at Eau Claire.

FROST DID BUT LITTLE DAMAGE

Farmers living in the vicinity of Duluth report that there was a heavy frost last night, the water in pails standing out of doors freezing solid.

No damage was done by the frost, which was put to route as soon as the sun rose.

People interested in conditions on the farms commented on the unusual fact that south of here heavy frosts have been injurious to agricultural prospects, while in the northern part of the state the frosts have been so light as to do practically no damage.

In the southern part of Minnesota the damage has been slight, but farther south, in Illinois and Missouri, where vegetation had progressed farther, the frosts have been more severe and the damage has been extensive and costly.

M. D. Neill, president of the Federation of Minnesota Commercial clubs, who has recently been in the southern part of Minnesota, said that in that part of the state the frosts have killed the foliage on trees, but have done practically no harm to other growing things.

HOW TO FIND OUT

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling usually indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. Too frequent desire to urinate, scanty supply, pain or dull ache in the back, should also convince you that the kidneys or bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, fulfills almost every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold urine, and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate.

The mild, pleasant and extraordinary effect of Swmp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful results in the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine, you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, and a book that tells all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in The Duluth Daily Herald. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

THE TRUE TEST

Tried in Duluth, It Has Stood the Test.

The hardest test is the test of time, and Doan's Kidney Pills have stood it well in Duluth. Kidney sufferers can hardly ask for stronger proof than the following:

H. G. Hibke, 1123 Woodland avenue, Duluth, Minn., says: "I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble, brought on I believe by constant driving and exposure to all kinds of weather. Severe pains in the small of my back made stooping or lifting difficult and every cold I caught settled in my kidneys, aggravating my complaint. I was also subject to headaches and the kidney secretions often became highly colored and irregular in passage. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and I have not had a symptom of my trouble since."

The above statement was given on Oct. 20, 1904 and on Nov. 20, Mr. Hibke added: "Since using Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago I have had no need of a kidney remedy. I willingly confirm all I have previously said about this preparation, as I know it is very effective in cases of kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

MARINE NEWS

NO DEMAND FOR WHEAT

Grain Being Held for Shipment at Head of the Lakes.

Raising of Blockade at Soo Will Stimulate Ore Movement.

Until the repairs on the American locks are completed it does not seem probable that there will be much activity in navigation at this end of the lakes. The reason for this is simple and to the point: The boats cannot get through the Canadian locks rapidly enough to make a heavy movement.

There is hardly sufficient freight at the Head of the Lakes, outside of ore, to make a heavy freight movement at the present time. There is a large quantity of wheat in the Duluth elevators ready to be moved, with no demand for wheat at Buffalo at the present time. There is very little package freight going from the Head of the Lakes although the westbound movement is good.

Statements made this morning at the offices of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, and the Duluth & Iron Range railroads, shows that there is a large quantity of ore coming down at this time, comparatively speaking. There is more than sufficient ore to supply the ships that can get through the Canadian locks at the Soo.

A report received here today announces the opening of the American locks tomorrow. The opening of the lock will have the immediate effect of stimulating trade in ore carrying.

Even a heavier movement is expected from the Head of the Lakes after May 15. At that time some of the independents who are shipping lightly at the present time, will begin to move ore down the lakes in heavier quantities.

With the exception of the increasing movement in ore, there is little prospect of an immediate increase in the freight movement.

PREPARING TO RAISE BLOCKADE

Over 125 Boats Are Now Held Up at Sault St. Marie.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today the blockade is the largest since the beginning. Over 125 boats are anchored or tied up below and above the locks. Tonight the water will be let into the American canal. It is not expected, however, that locking will commence before tomorrow noon. The contracting company is today taking its equipment out of the canal widening. The remainder of the work will be done with a dredge. The entire job is expected to be completed about June 1.

As far as possible in order to expedite locking, the down-bound boats will probably take the Canadian locks and the upbound the American locks. It is expected the blockade will be cleared within forty-eight hours.

FALLS INTO THE RIVER.

Northern Pacific Bridgemen Drop About Twenty-Five Feet.

Mandan, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—While working on the bridge across the Heat river on the south extension of the Northern Pacific, C. H. Dutton and Joseph Boutin fell a distance of about twenty-five feet. Dutton struck a raft that was moored just at the edge of the bank and received a number of broken bones, while Boutin went into the water, receiving a very severe shock. Both men were taken to the Northern Pacific hospital in Mandan.

WEST END

WANT SITE FOR BRANCH MARKET

West End Club Would Make Use of City Property.

At its meeting last evening, the council was asked by the West End Commercial club to donate a part or all of the city property consisting of two 25-foot lots at Twentieth avenue west and Michigan street to the Producer's Co-operative Market association for use as a market site. It is planned to build a warehouse here.

The lots were purchased by the city last year for the purpose of erecting a building to be used as a branch police station but no move along this line has been made since. The matter, when it came up in the council last evening was referred to a committee on city property.

MANY PASTORS IN CHICAGO

Many West end pastors and laymen are leaving this week for Chicago to attend the Laymen's Missionary convention and the annual meetings of the North Baptist conference. The Baptist meetings will be in session Friday morning and will last a week.

Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, Rev. J. W. Loughridge, pastor of the Central Baptist church, Rev. Swaney Nelson, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church and Rev. Arthur J. Hoag, former pastor of the West Duluth Baptist church, are among those from the western part of the city who will be in Chicago next week.

OLD RESIDENT DIES.

Former West End Woman Passes Away at Hermantown.

Mrs. Bertha Grams, wife of John Grams, a Hermantown farmer, died of old age yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock at the family home. She was 75 years old and leaves a husband and four children, two daughters and two sons.

The Grams have been residents of the Head of the Lakes for more than twenty years and formerly resided at 2011 West Third street, where they made their homes for many years. Ten years ago they moved to a farm near Hermantown.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the St. Mary's Polish Catholic church, Fourth avenue east, with interment in the Polish cemetery.

BACK IN DULUTH.

West End Man Returns After Absence of Twenty-Three Years.

Martin Lowbert, a former resident of the West end, has returned to Duluth to live after an absence of twenty-three years.

Mr. Lowbert came to Duluth thirty years ago and settled in the West end. After seven years' stay here, he moved to New Brunswick, Can., where he took up his residence on a farm. Recently he disposed of all of his property and brought his family to the West end to make their home.

Spring Festival.

A spring festival will be held tomorrow evening at the First Swedish Baptist church under the auspices of the ladies' aid society of the congregation. The proceeds will go toward the church building fund.

Rev. Swaney Nelson, pastor of the church, will give a short address, and there will be a musical program and a number of recitations given. The new church at Twenty-second avenue west and Third street is under roof.

Business Club Meets.

The Sixth Ward Business club will meet this evening at 1904 West Third street and consider several matters of importance to the hillsiders.

Among the more important topics that will be discussed will be the grading of Fifth street, from Piedmont avenue to Nineteenth, the laying of sewers in that vicinity and the improvements to Central park.

Gives Birthday Party.

In honor of the fifth birthday of her daughter, Dorothy, Mrs. John Moir entertained a number of children yesterday at her home, 2714 West Second street. The afternoon was spent in games, and refreshments were served. The guests were: Misses Anna Ball, Geneva Mooney, Muriel Cody, Dorothy Thorin, Amy Peterson, Dorothy Moir, Violet Gustafson, Muriel Moir and Masters Howard Colvin, John Tambourne, Lelon Heglund, Earl Moir and John Moir.

Quarterly Conference.

The quarterly conference of the First Swedish M. E. church will be held at the church parlors, Twentieth avenue west and Third street, tomorrow evening. Rev. J. A. Anderson of Marinette, Wis., district superintendent of this district and former pastor of the West end church, will preside. Thursday evening Rev. Mr. Anderson will conduct prayer services at the church.

West End Shortrails.

Louis Eveson of 2014 West Second street is recovering from his recent illness.

The Swedish Sick Benefit society will meet Friday evening at Sloan's hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street.

Mrs. S. M. Kielley, wife of the city building inspector, is reported to be recovering from a several month's illness at her home, 2402 West First street.

Mrs. D. J. McPhail will entertain tomorrow afternoon for the Ladies' Aid society of the Central Baptist church at her home, 1917 West Second street.

The Young People's society of the First Swedish Baptist church will meet this evening for a social session at the church parlors, Nineteenth avenue west and First street.

The congregation of the Swedish Mission church held its monthly business meeting last evening at the church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street.

Patrolman Fred Mahlan of the West end left for Gooseberry river this morning to spend his annual ten days' vacation on a fishing trip.

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of the First Swedish M. E. church will hold a meeting this evening at the church parlors, Twentieth avenue west and Third street.

The Adams Alumnni association will meet this evening at the school building to make final preparations for the annual banquet of the association, which will be held in honor of the graduating class, following the close of school in June.

Mesdames S. Carlson and John Carlson will be hostesses to the Ladies' Aid Society of the Swedish Mission church at its meeting tomorrow afternoon at the church parlors.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Presbyterian church will hold an "experience" social tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Thomas Bardsley of 2115 West Second street.

A dance will be given this evening at the Lincoln Park pavilion under the auspices of the Third Regiment band. A committee from the Adams' Athletic association will be in charge of the floor during the party. The proceeds will be used in buying new uniforms for the band members.

AMUSEMENTS

NEW VAUDEVILLE AT THE BIJOU

Very "Classy" Bill Pleases Large Audience of First Nighters.

It is a hard job to pick the headliner from the several more than ordinarily good acts presented this week at the Bijou theater. It was probably Billy K. Wells, however, who succeeded in drawing the greatest number of laughs. Mr. Wells does a Hebrew orator act which is one long shout. Mr. Wells started in to give a political talk. He had the enthusiasm, but he got sadly mixed as to what he might have been talking about. The laughs came so fast that near the close of the act the audience got one laugh ahead, and held the advantage until the end. It was with reluctance that the large audience present at the first performance last night allowed him to go.

The bill this week is the best ever. Every number is a star feature and the program is full of surprises.

The entertainment opens with pictures which are of more than ordinary interest.

Cabaret's dogs do all sorts of stunts. They ride in a Ferris wheel, walk on their two front feet and do many other tricks.

Ward and Weber certainly can dance. Their dancing is of the soft shoe variety. The steps, a great number of them, are new, like their college clothes.

Earl Morse is back. When he appeared last night he was unable to sing for some moments so great was the applause. He sings "Santa Fe" this week and so well did the audience like it that he had to repeat the chorus.

The Moneta Five in "An Evening at Home" held close attention while they played different instruments and sang. This act is away above the ordinary and is entertaining in the extreme.

The moving pictures this week tell a story about how a country boy tried city life. He didn't like it at all so he went back on the farm to play with the pigs.

The show at the Bijou this week is "all to the good."

MACLYN ARBUCKLE,
As "Slim" Hoover in Klaw & Erlanger's "The Round Up."

"DOES ANYBODY LOVE A FAT MAN?"

"Nobody loves a fat man," exclaims Maclyn Arbuckle sadly as he plays the character of the sheriff in "The Round Up" and the roars of laughter seem to give the indication that his sentiments are those of the majority of the playgoers. And it is well to bear in mind the advice recently given by a Chicago doctor. He says that in choosing a husband it is well to avoid all thin, gaunt and cadaverous candidates. They do not make cheerful, contented husbands. They are likely to get peevish if the wheatina is underdone, and are given to finding grounds for complaint in the coffee. "The best husband is the man whose principal dimension is circumference," he says. "Choose one whose waist has become but a vague memory and who has a nice round face. A regular moon-faced man is said to be the best of all. The supply of moon-faced men is, of course, comparatively limited. Still, by proceeding without undue haste in the matter, any enterprising girl ought to be able to pick out a likely husband."

In a somewhat similar vein, but on a different suggestion is an editorial from a Western paper on "The Popular Fat Man" which is as follows: "Was there ever a fat man who was not popular with the fellows? Of course, there have been some, but they were the exceptions. 'Let me have men about me who are fat,' says Shakespeare's Caesar, and the remark consists with the sure judgment of men that constituted a chief element in Ceasar's greatness. For steady reliability and inability to see or act crookedly your average fat man is distinguished. He is the embodiment of good nature. Even when he has the moral looseness of a Falstaff he is a lovable rascal. Sometimes he is sluggish of intellect, but he is usually firm of character and with a heart as big as his body. Remember the boy they used to call Fatty at school, and you'll bring to mind a boy that everybody liked. Look at the fat men around you, and you'll usually find a sturdy influence for good in the community. You are sure to find the sunny temper, the ever present smile, the constant joviality that seem almost necessary to accompany the accumulation of avordupois."

Now after that, does anybody love a fat man? If not, why not?

SUMMARY OF APRIL WEATHER

April, 1910, was a little better than the average April in Duluth in point of temperature, according to the meteorological summary compiled by H. W. Richardson, local forecaster of the weather bureau, from the records of his office.

The mean temperature for the month just closed was 41 deg., while the mean temperature of the month for forty years in Duluth is 38.5 deg. The highest temperature in April this year was 73 deg. April 13 and the lowest was 16 deg. April 23. The greatest daily range was 40 deg. April 13 and the least daily range 6 deg. April 11. The highest temperature recorded for the month in forty years is 82 deg. and the lowest is 3 deg.

There was a total of 1.40 inches of precipitation during April this year and 4.7 inches of snow fell. The greatest precipitation in any twenty-four hours came April 16 and 17, when .64 inches was recorded. The average precipitation for the month in forty years is 2.06 inches.

The prevailing direction of the wind during the month was northeast and a total movement of 10,521 miles was recorded, an average hourly velocity of 14.6 miles. The maximum velocity was attained April 11, when a northeast wind blew at the rate of forty-nine miles an hour.

There were nine clear days during the month, twelve partly cloudy and six cloudy. On six days .01 inches or more precipitation was recorded. Auroras occurred April 11 and 12 and there was a solar halo April 28. Fog occurred April 15 and 29.

BUILDING PASSES MILLION MARK

Despite the fact that the total cost of improvements for which building permits were issued last month is considerably under the total for April a year ago, more building has been done the first four months of this year than during the same period a year ago.

Up to date permits have been issued this year for improvements costing $1,067,390, as compared with $1,053,139 for the same period in 1909. Last month 189 permits were issued by the building inspector's office with a total of $237,480 while during April a year ago 183 permits representing improvements costing $339,285, were issued.

Building has been active and the indications are that it will continue until the snow flies in the fall. Many permits are being taken out for dwellings and cottages scattered in all parts of the city.

Housework Causes Skin Diseases

Washing dishes or clothes, cooking, baking and any work that exposes the hands to frequent changes from hot to cold and cold to hot is likely to develop salt rheum or eczema on the hands and wrists. Where the hands are in water much the skin is almost certain to be affected and become rough and sore looking, even if not exposed to changing temperatures.

To Dr. J. E. Currier, the eminent scientist of London, England, should be given credit for the discovery that ordinary citrox, properly applied, not only cures salt rheum and similar rashes but tends also to prevent them. Since citrox has come into common use for the cure and prevention of skin diseases thousands of people have found relief who used various soaps, ointments, powders and liniments without success.

Only the best grade of citrox should be used, however, for that sold in bulk has been found to contain impurities. You can get pure citrox in small sealed packages direct from the chemical works at almost any drug store if you insist upon it.

Dissolve a teaspoonful of citrox in two tablespoonfuls of hot water and apply it to the affected parts, twice daily, making a fresh solution each time. That is all there is to the treatment.

VOTE ON THE TRAFFIC BILL

House and Senate Take Action on Portions of Railroad Measure.

Cummins Withdraws Amendment---Water Competition Clause Killed.

Washington, May 3.—An effort to strike out the entire section of the railroad bill relating to the long and short haul so as to leave the existing law in that respect unchanged, was defeated in the house today by a vote of 48 to 172. The house adopted the clause as reported by the committee.

The senate adopted the Clay amendment to strike out entire section 7 of the bill relating to traffic agreements.

Merger Clause Dropped.

Senator Nelson's motion to strike out section 12 of the bill, which would permit mergers between railroads, was adopted by the senate.

Heading off a motion by Senator Elkins to lay on the table his amendment to the traffic agreement provision of the railroad bill, Senator Cummins withdrew the Crawford-Elkins amendment and Senator Clay presented his amendment to strike out the entire provision.

Water Clause Killed.

The Hardy amendment to the railroad bill to strike out the provisions permitting the interstate commerce commission to permit the making of low through rates in view of water competition was voted down in the house today by a vote of 55 to 132.

WAS WORSE THAN THE DEMOCRATS

Minneapolis, Minn., May 3—B. F. Nelson of Minneapolis returned yesterday from New York, where he attended the joint convention of the Publishers' association and the Associated Press. Mr. Nelson was in the ante-room of the convention hall when Mayor Gaynor arraigned William Randolph Hearst, and was himself vociferously attacked by Thomas T. Williams, one of Hearst's managers.

"That argument was worse than any Democratic convention I ever attended, and that's going some," said Mr. Nelson.

"The clamoring could be heard a block away. Williams told Gaynor what he thought of him after his arraignment of Hearst. He bent over the banquet table, shook his fist in the mayor's face, and it seemed for a time as though there was going to be a personal encounter.

"The election of officers was like a good, hot local state fair board meeting. Col. Weiss of Duluth, who was elected to the board of directors of the Associated Press, proved to be one of the most popular men present."

TAG DAY NETTED MORE THAN $4,000.

Tag day last Saturday netted St. Mary's hospital $4,077.49, West Duluth contributing $300, the West end $73.60 and Proctor $37. Non-residents of Duluth sent in additional contributions amounting to $200. That sum is not included in the total given for tag day, however.

The Opulento.

GUARD RAINY RIVER DAM FROM DYNAMITERS.

Winnipeg, Man., May 3.—Armed Canadian authorities are now guarding the big dam at Kenora which the settlers in the Lake of the Woods district and along the Rainy river have threatened to blow out with dynamite, as it has kept the water back, flooded farms and resulted in the drowning out of five settlers.

What Everybody Wants.

SUB-STATION OF BUREAU OF MINES

Washington, May 3.—Under the provisions of the bill which has passed both branches of congress for the establishment of a bureau of mines and mining, it will be the duty of the director to make investigations of the methods of mining, especially in relation to safety of miners and appliances best adapted to prevent accidents, improvement of conditions under which mining operations are carried on; treatment of ores and other mineral substances; use of explosives and electricity, prevention of accidents and inquiries and investigations pertinent to mining and from time to time make public reports. Agents and employes will be sent into the field to make investigations and reports and it is quite probable that a substation will be located either at Duluth or on the range.

Congressman F. C. Stevens put three bills through the house yesterday. One provides for a bureau of lighthouses under the department of commerce and labor; also to authorize additional aids to navigation along the Great Lakes. Post lights are to be established at the Lake of the Woods, Rainy river and Warroad Harbor, Minn., also on Lake Traverse. A light and fog signal station is provided for at Michigan and Gull Islands, Lake Superior, not to exceed the cost of $140,000. A commissioner of lighthouses to be appointed by the president is to succeed the present lighthouse board and he is directed to rearrange all lighthouse stations into not exceeding nineteen districts and an inspector shall be appointed for each district. At present there are thirteen districts. Army and navy officers may be designated as ligthouse inspectors, but civilian employes will receive $2,400 per annum.

Congressman Stevens also called up and secured passage of a bill for engineering and increasing effieiency of engineer corps of United States army. At this time there are fifty-two engineer districts and only forty-two officers. Mr. Stevens pointed out that each district should have at least one engineer and some districts should have two. Duluth is in the latter class.

WILL STUDY LEPROSY IN UPPER PENINSULA.

Calumet, Mich., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—State health officer, Dr. F. W. Shumway, is expected to visit Calumet early in May with a government leprosy expert for the purpose of looking into an alleged case of leprosy here. It is said that there are several cases of leprosy in the northern peninsula. Dr. Shumway will also consider the proposition that a place for caring for these cases be provided by the state.

HILL WILL NOT LOAN PAINTINGS

Duluth Art Society Will Have Fine Exhibit at Courthouse.

James J. Hill of St. Paul has refused to loan any part of his famous collection of paintings for exhibition by the Duluth Art association. This fact was made known last evening at a meeting of the association in the rooms of the Duluth Commercial club.

Several other out-of-town owners of collections, however, have agreed to loan paintings for the exhibition. There will be about 100 pictures owned locally, on view at the courthouse May 23 to June 4. The catalogue will be issued next week.

Famous Horse Ranch Sold.

Butte, Mont., May 3.—The old Larable horse ranch, where many of the famous racing horses of the past decade were bred, has changed ownership, the purchaser being Robert Jones of Chicago. The ranch is in the Deer Lodge valley and adjoins the city of Deer Lodge on the northeast. There are approximately 2,600 acres in the ranche, more than half of which is improved.

"OPEN DOOR" AT THE LYCEUM

Announcement of Withdrawal From Syndicate Domination Is Made.

New York, May 3.—The Shuberts announced last night that two more circuits of theaters have declared for the "open door" policy, thereby severing their connection with the Klaw & Erlanger booking agency. The two circuits are the "Copper and Iron" circuit of forty theaters in Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin, and the Walker circuit, which includes seven theaters in Winnipeg, Fargo, Grand Forks and other cities of the northwestern wheat belt.

The statements in the foregoing Associated Press dispatch were forecasted in yesterday's editions of The Herald They mean that the quality of the attractions that will appear at the Lyceum theater next year will be superior to those which have heretofore played in that theater. As an independent theater the Lyceum will arrange its bookings to include the high class shows of both the so-called trust and the independents. It will not be forced to take exclusively the productions sent to it by the Klaw & Erlanger syndicate.

PRAISE FOR MILLER.

Former Senator Daugherty Says Congressman Is Efficient Servant.

F. B. Daugherty, former state senator, has returned home after a two months' sojourn in Washington, D. C. "The Minnesota delegation in congress," said Mr. Daugherty, "is the equal of any in the country." The former senator said that Representative C. B. Miller of Duluth is a capable and efficient servant of the people and that so long as he wants to remain in congress the Eighth district should keep him there.

Mr. Daugherty went to Eveleth yesterday for a short visit.

Indigestion Cured

MRS. D. H. YOWELL.

Mrs. D. H. Yowell cannot praise Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey too highly. It completely cured her after she had suffered from indigestion for years and when nothing else did her any good. She says it is the greatest remedy in the world for all stomach troubles.

"I wish to testify to the excellent results obtained through the use of Duffy"s Pure Malt Whiskey. I had suffered for years with indigestion and had tried different remedies, but received very little relief, so I tried Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and the effect was wonderful. It is the best stomach remedy in the world. I can recommend it most highly to any one suffering from indigestion or any stomach trouble." Mrs. D. H. Yowell, 321 So. Pine St., Richmond, Va.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain. When taken at meal-time it stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach to a healthy action, thereby improving the digestion and assimilation of the food and giving to the system its full proportion of nourishment. This action upon the digestive process if of great importance, as it brings to all the tissues and organs of the body the nutriment necessary to their sustenance and indirectly to the whole system strength and vigor. It makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong and vigorous.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It is an absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold IN SEALED BOTTLES ONLY—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.00 a large bottle. Write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for doctor's advice and an illustrated medical booklet, containing testimonials and rules for health, both sent free.

GIRLS' ABDUCTOR TAKEN.

Man Alleged to Have Taken Girls From Appleton, Wis., Caught.

International Falls, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Vincent, the alleged abductor of Lillian Newman, aged 19 of Appleton, Wis., and Sylvia Gramm, of Columbus, Ohio, aged 17, has been arrested at Port Arthur, Ont., and will be brought back here by Canadian immigration officials charged with bringing women into the state for immoral purposes.

The chief of police of Appleton who came here to take the girls back to their homes, returned to Appleton last night to arrange bond for the girls as they will be needed here to testify before the grand jury which meets in July.

TONKA BAY HAS FIRE.

Minneapolis Church Also Is Burned Early Monday Morning.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five buildings were destroyed by fire at Tonka Bay at 2 a. m. yesterday, at 11 a. m. the former Norwegian Methodist church, Sixteenth avenue south, between Lake and Thirty-first streets, now occupied by the Wet Wash Laundry company, was badly damaged, and at noon the Great Northern station at Holdredge, Minn., near Wayzata, was burned. The loss at Tonka Bay amounted to about $20,000, with $1,000 insurance on the village hall.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

INTERESTS IN COMMON

Northwestern and Northeastern Minnesota Should Pull Together.

Ex-Mayor of Crookston Enthusiastic Over Duluth and Range Country.

Crookston, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ex-Mayor John D. McPhee, who recently returned from Duluth, Eveleth, Hibbing and the range country generally, is very enthusiastic over that section of the state, its wonderful wealth and the many good reasons why closer business and social relations would be mutually beneficial to that section of the state and the Red river valley. He was impressed by the cordial feeling he found existing in the thriving cities and villages toward Northwestern Minnesota and is certain that the Northern Minnesota Development congress, which holds its summer meeting here, will be an eye-opener to the people of Crookston and vicinity as to the interest taken in this section of the state by the people of Duluth and the range country.

Wherever he went he heard talk of the coming congress here and the determination on the part of leading citizens to be present. The people there, he states, are anxious to cultivate closer relations with this section for the mutual benefits that will result.

Interests Are Identical.

"It will certainly be to our interests to do our share to bring a closer relationship about," said the ex-mayor. "The people over east are cordial; they want to get closer to us; they need us and we need them. They have resources the wealth of which is not even partially realized in their iron and copper deposits. They want our flour, beef, pork and all farm and garden produce, and they have the money to pay for it. We have been too far apart in the past; it is time we were getting together. The development congress to be held here the first three days in June is the biggest stride forward Crookston and Northwestern Minnesota ever made to get hand in hand with Duluth and the range country for a wonderful forward movement. Our interests are identical; we can help one another. They are willing to help us and we should rush half way and more to meet them.

"P. E. Dowling of Eveleth made a typical statement when he said, 'We will be at the Crookston development meeting. We want to know you folks up there better. Be prepared for us for we are coming en masse and take you by storm. We will make you like us if we can.' This is a sample of the feeling expressed during my entire trip. We should embrace the opportunity offered us. Let us give Duluth and the range country such a welcome as they deserve, together with all others who come to Crookston the first three days in June."

IS DANGEROUS TO BURN SLASHINGS

Because of Dry Condition of Woods Loggers Fear Results.

St. Paul, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gen. C. C. Andrews of the state forestry commission has received complaints from some of the logging companies in regard to the law requiring all slashings to be piled and burned when timber is cut. The companies say that the weather has been so dry in the northern part of the state this year that they cannot comply with the law without great danger of forest firest and they point out the fire at Akeley a few weeks ago as an example. This fire was caused by the burning of slashings. Gen. Andrews says that if the companies would burn the refuse in the winter all the time it was cut that they could avoid all the trouble.

The companies are making their complaint now because May 1 is the time limit allowed by the law for these slashings to go unburned, and the forest rangers have been calling their attention to it.

BEMIDJI BOY IS CONFESSED THIEF

Believed to Have Stolen Large Sums From Mail Boxes.

Bemidji, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Winterstein, the 14-year-old son of a Bemidji carpenter, has been arrested, charged with having robbed mail boxes. Through the arrest and subsequent confession of the youth the perpetrator of several burglaries and petty thieveries and other criminal acts has been discovered. Information obtained by the authorities shows that young Winterstein has stolen checks and money amounting to thousands of dollars.

Chief of Police Benner and Carl Egge, a postoffice inspector, have been working on the cases, and careful watch over the actions of several boys led to the arrest of Winterstein and two other boys. Winterstein's companions were subsequently released, if being shown that they knew nothing of the money which Winterstein gave them.

Winterstein was caught through his atempt to secure money from the office of the Crookston Lumber company by returning the company's checks, which he said he had found. One check for a comparatively small sum was returned to the company, Winterstein saying he had found it. The boy returned with two more checks and the police were summoned. He was given the "third degree" by Chief Benner and Inspector Egge and then confessed that he had robbed the mail boxes.

MENOMONIE MAN KILLED.

Menomonie, Wis., May 3.—Harry Sprink of this city was almost instantly killed Sunday night by the overturning of his automobile. With his wife, daughter and son-in-law, Mr. Sprink was driving his car down a hill at a good speed when sand at the foot turned the wheels, throwing the occupants out. Mrs. Sprink had an arm broken. Sprink was caught by the steering wheel and pinned under the car. He died fifteen minutes later.

LOSES HIS LIFE LOOKING FOR ROOM

John Dorn, Old Resident of Park Rapids, Meets With Sudden Death.

Park Rapids, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of John Dorn was found Sunday afternoon by Charles Wilkins, proprietor of the Central hotel, where Dorn had been boarding. As the hotel is to close up, he was notified that he would have to look up another boarding place. He paid his board and took his telescope grip and went out. Nothing more was seen of him until he was found dead back of Cliff Tubs' place. He had evidently started to go upstairs to get a room and fell over the railing to the ground. The man was lying on his face, with the grip in the right hand. Dorn had made no struggle and lay straight out on the ground.

Deputy Coroner Houston and County Attorney W. W. Wooley were notified and deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Little is known of Dorn's history. He came to Park Rapids nine years ago. Six years ago he went to Boot Lake and attended to the farm of Mr. Pfeffer while Pfeffer was on a wedding trip to Germany. After that he went to North Dakota each fall and worked in the harvest fields. Returning, he worked at odd jobs, and for three years helped around Cliff Tubs' place.

He was a German, about 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighed about 190 pounds, had auburn hair and a heavy red mustache. His hair was slightly gray. He had once spoken of having a family, but nothing further could be learned from him. He was liked by all who knew him.

From the conditions under which he was found, heart failure was evidently the cause of his death. He had arrived nearly at the top of the stairs and had fallen over the railing some ten feet to the ground, or he might have dropped dead before he had reached the stairs.

CROSBY NINE BEATEN.

New Crosby Hotel Will Open By May 10 or 15.

Crosby, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Crosby Baseball team went to Cuyuna Sunday and was defeated by the Crosby nine by one point as the score stood 1-2 in favor of Cuyuna. It was a nice clean game and both sides played well.

Mr. Spalding has started to move into the new Crosby hotel and expects to open up and be ready for business by May 10 or 15.

PLUMMER'S LID WILL REMAIN ON

Special Agent Johnson Informs President of Village There Must Be No "Leaks."

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—In reply to a letter from H. H. Finrow, president of the council of the village of Plummer in the southern part of Red Lake county, who had written to Special Indian Agent Johnson, asking that the saloons which had been ordered closed might be permitted to continue selling liquor, Mr. Johnson very emphatically states that he will not permit any such sales. He intimates that if "bootleggers" are caught carrying liquor away from saloons in any territory near the borders of the prohibited area he will extend the dry boundaries. Mr. Johnson's letter to Mayor Finrow is as follows:

"Sir: Reference is hereby made to your letter of April 23, 1910, in which you request that the saloons be permitted to continue in Plumer in violation of the provisions of the treaty with the Chipewa Indians of 1853. The facts in this matter so far as Plmumer is concerned are these: After we issued the first order closing the Mahnomen saloons, the bootleggers and Indians began going up to Plummer on the evening train and returning on the midnight trains with grips full of liquor which they secured in your two saloons. Both of these saloons catered to this illegal trade. I took the pains at the time to send one of my officers to follow a bunch of Indians to Plummer on one of these trips. He caught them in the act of buying liquor in your saloons. Instead of making arrests the officer warned both of these saloon keepers. For a short time things were a little better but I soon began getting complaints from your citizens that this traffic with Indians and bootleggers was being resumed. I sent officers to Plumer to investigate and the complaints were well founded. Half a dozen sales were made to Indians in the presence of my officers. Under these circumstances there is nothing left for me to do except enforce the provisions of the treaty. If, as you fear, an attempt is made to sell liquor just north of the south boundary line of town 152 I shall issue another order extending the boundary line of the closed district. I might as well be understood now that these boundary lines will be extended from time to time as may be necessary. It is for the liquor dealers themselves to determine how far they will compel me to go in this respect."

ASK SCULPTOR CONNOR

To Submit Sketches for the John A. Johnson Statue.

St. Paul, Minn., May 3.—John O'Connor, an American sculptor of Irish descent, now living in France, has been invited by the John Albert Johnson memorial commission to submit sketches of a memorial to the late governor to be set up in a spot not yet selected in the state capitol grounds. He has accepted the invitation.

If his sketches meet the approval of the commission, he will be designated as the sculptor and will proceed with the work. If not, the next man in a list of five of the most eminent American sculptors will receive a similar invitation.

The five men were chosen by the executive committee of the memorial commission at a meeting April 14, at which the work and records of forty artists were carefully examined.

OLD STILLWATER RESIDENT.

Mrs. Sylvanus Trask, Aged 76, Buried on Monday.

Stillwater, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Mrs. Sylvanus Trask, aged 76, who died Friday night, was held yesterday afternoon. She was one of the early pioneers of the city, coming here from New York in 1849 with her parents, John and Catherine Tanner. She was born in the state of New York in 1834. She was married to Sylvanus Trask in March, 1852, her husband also being a native of New York. Of the two sons, George survives and Byron is dead.

CLOQUET MILLHAND HAS VERY MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

Cloquet, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A miraculous escape from instant death was experienced by Herman Poole, an employe of the Cloquet Lumber company, Saturday night. Poole was standing at the end of a log, which had just been rolled down the track on the log deck, when the returning carriage caught the log and hurled it through the end of the mill, while Poole was knocked through an open window and landed on the bank of the river about thirty-five feet below. Aside from internal injuries and the shock, he was not seriously hurt.

Old Cloquet Resident Called.

Cloquet, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gregory White, an old resident of this city, died suddenly Saturday evening as a result of heart trouble. The deceased, who was 38 years of age, had lived on a farm south of here for a number of years, and leaves two daughters, one 5 and the other 13 years old, his wife having died some time ago. The funeral took place this morning at 9 o'clock at the church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Mohall, N. D.—With a very large attendance, the West Minister Presbyterian church at Star, near here, was dedicated Sunday. The principal speakers were Rev. H. S. Waaler of Minot and Rev. J. W. Kingston of Courtney. The new building is a very fine one.

Towner, N. D.—Taking courage in the action of Democrats in other counties, a meeting of the Democrats of this county has been called to be held in Cranville next Saturday at which time the question of launching a county ticket will discusseo.

Steele, N. D.—The oldest resident in Kidder county, Dr. A. Allen, father of Postmaster H. B. Allen and Mrs. Charles E. Hurd, closed a life verging on a century last Thursday at the home of his daughter in Quinby, at the age of 92.

Bismarck, N. D.—The barbers of the city in the future will charge 5 cents extra for a neck shave when done in connection with the ordinary shave. When done in connection with a hair cut, no extra charges will be made.

Aberdeen, S. D.—The Commercial club directors have elected the following officers: President, John Wade; vice presidents, C. N. Harris and W. D. Swain; secretary, Walter Jacobs; treasurer, George Bolles. G. M. L. Erwin was elected to succeed C. A. Howard as director.

Leeds, N. D.—Friday evening the Leeds high school team met and defeated the Westhope high school team in the semi-final debate in the state high school debating contest. This places Leeds in the final debate and they will meet the winner in the Carrington-Drayton debate at Grand Forks at some future date.

Fargo, N. D.—Fire, which started shortly after 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning in the rear of the store occupied by the Swelldom, No. 3 Broadway, damaged the stock and the building to the extent of $1,000 before it was extinguished.

Dickinson, N. D.—Dickinson is after a Y. M. C. A. and the prospects appear good for the early organization of an association here. An international secretary has promised to visit the town in the near future if the proper spirit is shown, and there is every indication that within a few weeks there will be something doing.

Wahpeton, N. D.—The Commercial club has decided to issue 10,000 booklets advertising the city. Wahpeton is the gateway city to the stae and is growing rapidly. The census will probably give the city a population of 4,000, a gain of 25 per cent the past ten years.

Milton, N. D.—The directors of the Milton Farmers' Elevator company has purchased the Imperial elevator for a consideration of $4,000. The consideration also includes the coal and flour sheds.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Houghton—The bridge committee of the Houghton county board of supervisors met in Houghton with General Manager Rogers of the Houghton County Traction company, and arrived at a decision not to begin the work of putting a new dock in the bridge this summer. Temporary repairs will be made.

Hancock—International Labor day was observed in Hancock Sunday by a mass meeting at the Kerredge theater. At this meeting several addresses were made in English, Italian, Finnish and Austrian. The theater was filled with miners and laborers.

Houghton—Dr. A. A. Koch, instructor in the chemistry department of the Michigan College of Mines, has been presented by the senior and sophomore classes with a pipe in appreciation of his interest in their work. Director Botsford of the gymnasium has been presented with a gold watch fob by the entire student body.

Calumet—John Olds of Great Falls, Mont., who has been in Calumet and Laurium the past two months for the purpose of disposing of some real estate holdings on Iroquois street, Laurium, and in other localities, has returned home. Mr. Olds sold a portion of his property.

Lake Linden—The funeral of the late Mrs. Oliver Gagnon, who passed away at her home here, was held Monday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Joseph's Catholic church.

Calumet—Rev. N. J. Forsberg, pastor for several years of the Calumet Swedish Lutheran church, has practically decided to accept the call of the Rock Island, Ill., church of the same denomination. Rev. Forsberg has not resigned the pastorate of the Calumet church, but probably will in the very near future.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Milwaukee—Initial steps in organizing a Wisconsin Peace society, branch of the American Peace society, were taken in the People's Pulpit service, Davidson theater, Sunday. The Rev. C. E. Beals, secretary of the national organization, and Mayor Emil Seidel talked on the peace movement.

Washburn—The Sprague Lumber company mill has started up for the season, a new Corliss engine was put in and a number of repairs have been made. The plant will have a busy season and will run night and day in a short time. The capacity of the mill has been increased since last year.

Eau Claire—The Rev. Edward Babcock, pastor of the First Baptist church in Eau Claire for the past seven years, has received a call to fill the pulpit at Port Huron, Mich.

Oshkosh—Work was commenced on the construction of the Waito Grass Carpet company's new factory. A sufficient number of men will be employed at the works to have the factory buildings completed and machinery installed early in the autumn.

Madison—A franchise for an interurban railroad on Madison street will be requested of the common council at its meeting, May 13, by the Chicago and Wisconsin Valley Railway company, according to J. E. Jones, one of the promoters.

Racine—Jose Castino, a full blooded Mexican from Corliss, charged with assault and intent to kill J. Carlson, has been discharged from custody after having been in jail thirty days awaiting trial.

Green Bay—Thomas Sullivan was arrested following a fracas in a west side saloon in which it is claimed he fired two shots at Theodore M. Leicht, a former alderman of this city. The police claim that Sullivan said he fired the shots to scare Leicht, but that he could have killed him had he wanted to. The shots were fired, it is said, after a heated argument between Sullivan, Leicht and others.

Eau Claire—Ronald J. McDonald, one of the proprietors of the Eau Claire Clothing company, was taken to the Sacred Heart hospital Monday morning suffering from hemorrhage of the stomach. His condition is regarded as critical by the attending physicians.

Menomonie—Harold Dobbyn, aged 22, son of W. R. Dobbyn, publisher of the Menomonie Journal, died here Monday of lung trouble.

La Crosse—At a meeting of the members of the La Crosse County Agricultural society it was decided to abandon the county fair which for a quarter of a century has been held in the village of West Salem. The grounds have been ordered sold to pay debts.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Deer River—Among the new homesteaders arriving in town last week were Mr. and Mrs. Brown of Two Harbors. Mrs. Brown is the daughter of A. De Lacy Wood, the veteran newspaper man, now publishing the Two Harbors Iron Port.

Aitkin—County Commissioners Turner and Sutton, who were appointed a committee to receive bids and appoint a ferryman to operate the Pine Knoll ferry, settled the matter by accepting the bid of George Bunt, and appointing him to the position at a salary of $50 per month for the season of 1910.

International Falls—J. H. Beaton of Duluth was in town during the past week, and closed a lease for the Phoenix cafe, to take effect at once. The place will be enlarged by the taking over of the music room of the Underwood & Hasselbarth buffet, in which the counter and tables will be placed.

Owatonna—Arthur W. Manuel, director of the religious work of the local Y. M. C. A. for the last three years, will tender his resignation at the next meeting of the board of directors to accept a call to take the general secretaryship of the Y. M. C. A. at Bangelor, India.

Aitkin—Dr. J. J. Ratcliffe has rented the residence property formerly occupied by Dr. J. W. George, and has fitted it up for the accomodation of all who have need of hospital care and treatment. He has placed in charge Mrs. Perdew, an experienced nurse, who will engage such help as may be required.

St. Cloud—The Curran Lumber company of this city has secured the building order for the Catholic church at New Munich, which is one of the largest local lumber sales of the season.

Red Lake Falls—The remains of Abner A. Fletcher, who was killed in a railroad wreck near Newcastle, Wyo., arrived Saturday and were buried here. They were accompanied by a younger brother. He studied law at the University of North Dakota, and went West later. He had been braking on the Burlington for only a few weeks when he was killed. He had nearly completed his law course.

Badger—Jonas Osell is having his lot between his buildings excavated, and a concrete basement will be built, after which he will move the building at present occupied by Bottem's restaurant onto the basement. These preparations are being made preliminary to the construction of a new home for the Scandinavian American State bank.

Moorhead—Charley Ross, the young man who was arrested at Fargo and brought back to Moorhead on a charge of attacking two girls, had his hearing this morning before Judge E. U. Wade, and was bound over to the district court. Bail was fixed at $1,000, which Ross could not furnish.

Dilworth—Dilworth held its bond election on Friday, the purpose being to determine whether they should issue $2,000 of bonds for improvement of the schoolhouse. Twenty-four votes were cast, and they all favored the bond issue. The school building will now be completed.

Baudette—The village council of the village of Baudette voted the liquor license to $750 at its last session.

Little Falls—Mrs. Johanna Jorgenson, who has been a resident of Little Falls for about twenty years, died Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. J. Goodmansen, on Fourth street northeast. The deceased had attained the ripe old age of 84, having passed the octogenarian mark four years ago last month.

St. Cloud—Fire, which started on the roof of the New Munich brewery Saturday morning, destroyed the upper story of the structure, doing damage to the amount of $5,000. The building was insured for $3,000. Sparks from the smokestack are given as the origin of the fire. It had made considerable headway, but as soon as the blaze was noticed the fire department turned out and managed to get the fire under control.

An Appeal to Wives

Cure the Drinking Husband by Using Orrine—Can be Given Secretly.

No more terrible affliction can come to any home than the craving for strong drink of husband and father. We appeal to wives, mothers and sisters to save the husband and father or the brother with Orrine, a scientific cure for the liquor habit. Can be given secretly.

Orrine is sold under an absolute guarantee that it will cure the drink habit or money will be refunded. Save the happiness and prosperity of the home with Orrine. $1 per box. Write for free booklet "How to Cure Drunkenness." Orrine Co., 457 Orrine Building, Washington, D. C. Orrine is sold in this city by W. A. Abbett, 129 West Superior street, 930 East Second street, and 101 West Fourth street.

TIME TO TRY POSLAM

New Healing Agent Promptly Disposes of Every Skin Affection.

The time to try poslam for eczema or any skin trouble is before experimenting with anything else. Then, too, it is the least expensive way, because poslam will do the work, making treatment by other means unnecessary. But no matter how many different things have failed, poslam should yet be used, for its healing properties are assured even in the most aggravated cases. All doubt as to its action is removed in the promptness with which it begins its work, stopping the itching with very first application. Eczema, acne, tetter, salt rheum, psoriasis, barber's and every form of itch yield to it readily and are permanently eradicated.

In less serious skin affections, such as pimples, rash, herpes, blackheads, inflamed skin, etc., results show over night, only a small quantity being required. For minor troubles a special 50-cent package is prepared, and this, as well the regular $2 jar, may be obtained at the Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett's in Duluth, and the A. E. Holmberg Drug Co., in Superior, also other good drug stores.

Samples for trial purposes may be had free of charge by writing direct to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

TAWNEY and Eberhart are not being treated with distinguished consideration by the press of the state. There are more knocks than boosts in the average column. This fact must mean something, for the country editors are pretty close to their constituencies and they reflect popular feeling and sentiment with exceptional accuracy.

As to the Governor.

The Long Prairie Leader, apparently with sorrow in its heart and fearfulness of the Republican future in its mind, says:

"Senator Cashman of Owatonna has made very serious charges against the integrity and political honesty of the present state executive, Mr. Eberhart.

"The charges have to do with Mr. Eberhart's attitude toward reform legislation while president of the state senate. The charges have to do with the handling of liquor and railroad legislation in the sessions of 1907 and 1909. The charges are definite, direct and of a serious nature. They come from a responsible man. The governor's answer to the charges is that Cashman is a Democrat.

"Very doubtless this answer will be received and regarded as satisfactory in many quarters, particularly in influential (?) quarters, but the loyal Republican, having only the success of the party at heart cannot help but feel uneasy as he hears the muttered discontent in the county option camp over the prospects of Eberhart leadership this fall and at the same time has brought home to him the fact that if in the heat and stress of battle the candidate's legislative record is also attacked, as now seems certain it will be, the record itself does not contain sufficient of noteworthy public service to offset the criticism to which it without doubt is to be subjected."

The Warren Register tilts its lance at a different angle and goes after Governor Eberhart in this fashion:

"The country seemed to want to know two years ago how Taft stood on tariff revision, so he made his attitude toward that question known. The state of Minnesota wants to know whether or not Eberhart favors county option, but the governor refuses to enlighten us. He will not say whether or not he will, in case of his election, recommend to the legislature the enactment of a county option law.

"Now, we submit that there is just as much reason for Eberhart to go on record regarding county option as there was that Taft should commit himself as to the tariff. Issue-dodging is sometimes successfully practiced, so far as the candidate himself is concerned, but frequently with unsatisfactory results to the people who elected him, expecting him to follow a certain course, only to find him doing the very opposite.

"Party victory is not everything; and when it means only the distribution of political spoils, it is less than nothing."

And the St. Cloud Journal Press returns to the charge with:

"Minnesota Republicans know by this time that there is a difference between nominating a man for governor and electing him. The Journal-Press wants to see the man nominated who will be elected. Calling the Journal-Press Democratic and a knocker is the futile resort of feeble minds."

Then, a couple of days later, along comes the Journal Press with a solution for the problem it has been putting up to the Minnesota Republicans. Here it is:

"If the Republicans of Minnesota want a high grade man for governor, one who has accomplished big things, why not nominate Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul? He is one of the big men of the country, and has within the past three years done more to anchor the faith of the people in the supremacy of the law and confidence in the government than any other man in this country today. With his great legal knowledge, his fearless independence, and his pride in his work, he would make a great governor—as powerful a factor for good government as Governor Hughes of New York. He is not seeking the office but he is a patriotic citizen and we believe if the call came to him from a united party would consider it his duty to accept. With such a leader the Republican party of Minnesota would regain its prestige in the state, and would be a leader in the affairs of the nation. That should be worth while. If the Republicans will elect delegates who will use their own good judgment and not tamely accept the men picked out by the bosses, under the control of the corporations, it would be a long step forward in the rule of the people."

In the Republican state platform, says the Marshall News Messenger, there should be a county option plank, "the omission of which would be to express want of confidence in franchise of the voters and an admission of dictation by the saloon interests."

How to Beat Tawney.

The Owatonna Tribune, a Republican paper, has studied things in the First, and has come to a conclusion that seems sane and reasonable. It says:

"After all, it begins to appear that the hope of the First district lies with the Democrats in defeating Tawney, and for that reason from now on much interest will center in Judge Henry L. Buck, who has been picked for the race. While the Tribune has been a supporter of the candidacy of Thomas Kelly, it seems that but few papers in the district are prepared to advocate his cause, and without this not much hope can be entertained of success. If Mr. Kelly remains in the race, or rather definitely decides to enter it, then the Tribune is for him unconditionally. But with Tawney's victory at the primaries seemingly certain all energy should be turned toward the election of Judge Buck, who is one of the finest men in the district and who is well equipped for the office. Relief from Tawneyism must be had, and the Tribune doesn't care much just which quarter it comes from."

Just what's the matter with Mr. Tawney seems to have been hit off by Farnum of the Madison Independent Press, who says:

"The Republican political storm center just at this time in this state seems to be down in the First congressional district, where the reform element of the party is trying to find a way of getting rid of Mr. Tawney without losing to the Democrats. Mr. Tawney seems to think that he knows what is good for the people down there better than they do themselves. James T. McCleary once had that opinion of the people of the Second district, but he found out that the voters there did not take the same view of the matter that he did, and a Democrat now holds the seat he once occupied in congress. Mr. Tawney should have taken notice before it was too late."

To this sentiment the Breckenridge Gazette heartily subscribes, saying:

"It looks as though they would get Tawney's political hide in the First district. Here's hoping. It's about time he was set down into the class with McCleary and a few others who thought their constituents didn't know what they did want."

The Virginia Enterprise, commenting on the desire of Duluth Republicans that the range have better representation on the county ticket, says: "Just what we've been trying to tell one James P. Boyle, attorney, of Eveleth. Now is the accepted time."

Fred Johnson a Comer.

If the insistence of his friends can have any influence on his course, it seems certain that Fred W. Johnson of New Ulm will be a candidate for the state senate. And if any importance is to be attached to expressions of honest, sincere conviction on the part of these friends who know the district made up of Redwood and Brown counties, then he surely will be elected.

Assuming that he will become a member of the upper house of the state legislature, it would be interesting to speculate on the future that may open before him in Minnesota politics. His personality is strong and his ability well known. However, he hasn't even said that he will run for the senate; but this is what the St. Peter Herald has to say about it:

"Someone who has small regard for Republican success has started a boom for Fred Johnson as state senator from Brown and Redwood counties. Right here let us say that the opposition will make a vast mistake if it underestimates the New Ulm man. In the last campaign Brown was one of the counties which maintained its Democratic majority, a fact that was due to the Johnson personality—the Fred Johnson personality. Knowing Fred Johnson, and knowing the state senate's need of just such men we hope to see the formal announcement of his candidacy."

The Fairmont Sentinel invites Messrs. Dinehart and Ellsworth to get next to the real sentiment of Republicans in the Second district, withdraw from the congressional race and turn in to make the re-election of W. S. Hammond unanimous.

Day and Optimism.

Just what kind of an optimist is Frank A. Day is discussed interestingly in the Winona Independent, which says:

"Each day sees new developments in the political field in Minnesota, and all of them seem to favor the cause of the Democrats. Frank A. Day, who is naturally optimistic, cannot be blamed for seeing everything take on a roseate hue this spring. 'We can elect the governor in Minnesota this year,' says Mr. Day 'and not only that, we can elect the entire state ticket, possibly the legislature and every congressman in Minnesota with the exception of Davis and Lindberg, whom it is not thought right to oppose because of their progressive stand on the tariff and Cannonism.'

"Frank Day, we say, is an optimist, and possibly we say it because every one else says the same thing of him; but when you come to sift things down to their logical conclusion you will wonder if the popular notion concerning him doesn't do him something of an injustice. Not that it's a discredit to be an optimist—on the other hand, it shows a bouyant spirit, undismayed by little setbackes. But sometimes when we question a man's judgment, and don't know how to disprove it, we say 'Oh, he's an optimist.' That isn't what we mean when we say Frank Day is an optimist, but that is what many do mean, and so we ask those who do put that meaning to the term to point out some instances where Frank's political judgment was very faulty. Up to this year his predictions have confined themselves to claiming the election of a governor, and they have come true each time. Now he says we can elect the entire state ticket and most of the congressmen, and because it has never been done before some of us look wise and say 'He's an optimist.'

"But perhaps if you were conversant as Frank Day is with all the disruption in the Republican party, and saw the abundance of good strong candidates the Democratic party can draw upon, perhaps you, too, would be optimistic if you are a Democrat. Think it over."

WAR VETERAN IS DROWNING VICTIM

Spooner, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mike Stern an elderly man living a few miles down the Rainey river, was drowned Sunday in Senske creek, a tributary of the Rapid. He left Baudette Sunday morning for home in his row boat. The boat was found capsized, the body was found yesterday morning.

Mike Stern was a native of Germany, aged 68. He fought in the Allied army, was in seven decisive battles. He also fought against Garibaldi, the Italian liberator. For his bravery he was awarded a medal. He leaves two sons to mourn his loss.

Missing Body Found.

The body of young Hanson was found Sunday a mile and a half from the place where he broke through the ice in Rapid river early in March. Henry Hanson was endeavoring to rescue his little brother, who was playing on the river bank and fell in. Hanson was 19 years of age. The body is supposed to have been kept below the water on account of a boom of logs in the river.

Fair at Granville, N. D.

Granville, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—McHenry county has decided to hold another fair in Granville this year. The plans for the enterprise call for a larger one than those of previous years. Dates have not been definitely fixed upon as yet, but it is expected that they will shortly be announced.

Is Denied Drug Permit.

Bottineau, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—On the strong protest that was made against the granting of a drug permit to Owen C. Thomas of Westhope, Judge R. M. Pollock, acting for Judge Burr, denied the application. The women of Westhope, as well as many others joined in a protest against the granting of the permit, while the petitioner also made a strong fight for the granting of his application.

Bell Clapper Hits Girl.

Anamoose, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the heavy clapper in the bell on the school house near here broke loose, it fell and struck Edna Mullett, 10 years old. The girl was playing beside the school building when the accident occurred and was knocked unconscious by the blow. A fracture of the skull was feared, but a thorough examination revealed that no such injuries had been received.

Another Gas Strike Reported.

Mohall, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another strike of natural gas has been made near Mohall, well diggers on the John Steffeus farm making the discovery. The flow was struck at a depth of about 1,500 feet. As yet no steps have been taken to determine the extent of the find or the pressure, but there is every reason to believe that it is quite good.

Foley Kidney Pills are antiseptic, tonic and restorative and a prompt corrective of all urinary irregularities. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

ECZEMA ALL OVER CHILD'S BODY

All Red and Blistery—Itched So She Could Not Sleep and Scratched Till She Bled—Many Treatments Failed—Cake of Cuticura Soap and

HALF A BOX OF CUTICURA CURED HER PERFECTLY

"My little girl had eczema and was cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. It first started with sores and blisters and was all over her body. She was just red all over and would scratch until it would bleed. It itched so that she could not sleep. I used different medicines but without effect. I washed her with Cuticura Soap and then applied Cuticura Ointment, which resulted in a perfect cure. I used one cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Ointment. Also, as a toilet soap, there is nothing better for pimples. My face was covered with pimples and now it is absolutely free from them since I used Cuticura Soap. So I am never without Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Etienne Barbè, Plaucheville, Avoyelles Parish, La., Oct. 8, '09."

SKIN PURITY

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Duluthians will be interested in the second book by Mrs. W. R. Stone of this city. The Paul Elder company has just issued "A Cycle's Gleanings," which has been compiled by Mrs. Stone who appears as an author under her own name Ella Blake Stone. Her first book, "Osogeto," a book of short stories was read with interest by her Duluth friends and this new book will be awaited with interest. The Illinois Illustrated Review says of it:

"A beautiful book compiled by Ella Blake Stone of Duluth, Minnesota, published by Paul Elder & Co., California, is called 'A Cycle's Gleanings.' It is one of the choicest books of its nature as a gift book, containing a selection for each day of the year. It is handsomely printed with a delicate border on each page on hand-made paper, with rich green suede cover, lettered with gold. Mrs. Stone is a writer of distinction in that 'Osogeto,' a volume previously published containing a number of short stories, was most highly complimented by the press, although it was issued for private distribution only. Her writings are full of human interest and clever humor. 'A Cycle's Gleanings' reveal the same qualities in the selection of attractive bits of verse and prose. Mrs. Stone spends half the year in California, usually at Santa Barbara, where her leisure is thus delightfully occupied with her pen notes, which reveal a keen appreciation of nature in her beauty, and human nature in its varying aspects."

MRS. W. R. STONE.

Mr. and Mrs. Stone will return to their home in this city in June.

CHOSEN PRESIDENT.

Mrs. E. E. Ellis Head of Collegiate Association Chapter.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. D. Scott of this city are the guests of their daughter, Mrs. E. E. Ellis of Birmingham, Ala. Mrs. Ellis, who was Miss Allce Scott until her marriage at Christmas, was elected president of the Birmingham chapter of the Southern Association of College Women held last week at the last business session of the year. Mrs. Ellis was a member of the Duluth branch of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae and the local members will be interested in the work outlined for the Southern association. In general its work is to further education in the South, to stimulate girls to go to college, and to provide scholarships.

The seventh annual convention, recently held at Nashville, remonstrated against granting chapters to colleges which are such only in name, and recognized in this connection the recent action of the Alabama colleges

FOREIGN LANGUAGES

Being Taught in Five-Week Courses.

The classes for the quick assimilation of foreign languages were organized yesterday at the Y. M. C. A., with Prof. Leslie S. Dodge in charge. Fifty Duluth people are enrolled in the classes for French and German for a course of five weeks. The lessons are taken each day for the term, and there is no study outside the class. The method is one that appeals strongly to busy men and women who desire a working knowledge of a foreign language.

"People devote three or four years to the study of a language," says Prof. Dodge, "and at the end of that time they often can't ask for a drink of water in a manner to make themselves understood. When this exists there is something wrong with the method, if you are dealing with reasonably intelligent people."

This is Prof. Dodge's second visit to Duluth, and a large number of Duluth people are enrolled. French is taught at a morning and at an evening class and German at 4:30 in the afternoon.

New pupils will be admitted at tomorrow's classes, but the study is necessarily so rapid that after that time the pupils will find it inconvenient to make up the lessons. A number of Duluth people who are planning a trip abroad for the summer are enrolled.

TRY THIS DINNER

Creole Soup.

Half a can of tomatoes, three tablespoons of rice, one-half can of okra and a red pepper added to a quart of beef stock, or one can of bouillon and water to make a quart. Simmer until the rice is cooked. Blend together one tablespoon each of butter and flour, add a little cold water, then the soup and stir until it thickens. Season with salt and serve at once.

Meat—Boiled Rabbit.

Here is the receipt for preparing it in the old German style called 'Hasenpfeffer.' Clean the rabbit well, and let it soak in salt water for two hours, then put into a stone jar with cider vinegar to cover over night; add one large sliced onion, one sliced lemon and a few mixed spices. In the morning put the rabbit and all ingredients into a granite stew pan, add more vinegar, some water and a few ginger snaps soaked in a little vinegar and brown sugar to taste. When the rabbit is tender remove it on a platter and thicken the gravy by browning a tablespoonful of butter and level spoonful of flour. Let this get very brown and then pour the gravy over it, strain and pour over the rabbit. If the gravy looks too thick, add more water or vinegar, as preferred.

Vegetable—Fried Eggplant.

For frying eggplant, it is a mistake to sprinkle salt between the slices; slice and peel, cover with a weight and let stand until the juice is all extracted, giving you a limp and wilted vegetable. All that is necessary is to season and dredge with flour and saute quickly in very hot fat. The slices may also be dipped in egg and bread crumbs or in a batter made with one egg a gill of milk, salt, pepper and flour to make a thin batter. In both the latter cases, however, they should be cooked in deep fat made so hot that a crumb of bread dropped into it turns a lovely golden brown.

Dessert—Chocolate Bread Pudding.

To a quart of boiling milk allow one pint of grated bread, beating well before adding the other ingredients. Then stir in one small cupful of sugar, three eggs and two squares of unsweetened chocolate, flavoring with a scant half teaspoonful of salf, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract and a little ground cinnamon. Pour into small custard cups and bake. Set in a panful of hot water for tairty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

THE EVENING STORY

THE SECRET OF THE MIRROR

By Myra Taylor.

"It's lovely, Jack," said young Mrs. Porteus, as she ran the necklace through her fingers and watched the liquid fire which sparkled and scintillated from every stone. The junior partner in Athol & Porteus, jewelers, laughed as he replied:

"And it would need be, Sylvia. The rich young Mr. Chauncey Graves, Jr., will pay $25,000 for it tomorow as a birthday present for the future Mrs. Graves."

Mrs. Porteus admired the jewels a moment longer and then looked anxious.

"But where shall we put it, Jack?" she asked. "I wonder you risked leaving it here. It would have been so much safer in the vault at the store. Some of those desperate fellows who are so busy in New York might take a notion to come out to the suburbs tonight."

"Oh, I guess we can hide them where they will be secure, even if we should have midnight visitors. Don't you think so?"

Sylvia made no answer, but, think as she might, she could devise no hiding place in their small domain cunning enough to conceal so great a treasure.

Jack looked at her quissically.

"Well, little wiseacre, and where are they to go?"

"I'm sure I don't know," was the despondent answer, accompanied by a little sigh.

"Well, I do; and that is under my pillow. No one could get at them there without disturbing me, and no one will try that. Let's talk of something else, or you will dream all night that they have been stolen, and that I am in durance vile for the crime."

When Sylvia awoke the next morning Jack, pale and anxious looking, was turning over the pillows. As she awoke, he asked:

"Have you got it?"

For a moment she did not understand. Then her face, too, turned pale as she exclaimed:

"No; you don't mean that it has gone?"

He tried to smile and speak lightly as he replied:

"Well, it isn't here. It must have slipped out in the night." And once again he sought among the bed clothes.

The junior partner of Athol & Porteus will never forget that morning. Nor will his wife. The hurrying and scurrying, Sylvia, pale-faced, but brave, the maid, red as her mistress was white and volubly declaiming to all and sundry her innocence and determination to leave that very day, and her utter and entire ignorance of the presence of the gems in the house.

Then, at the office, despair and reproach in the senior partner's face when he heard of the mysterious disappearance of the necklace, the interviewing of police and detectives.

It was all a nightmare. Twenty-four hours after he had so light-heartedly shown the necklace to his wife, Jack Porteus was seated again in the cozy little drawing room, but with very different feelings.

Sylvia hung about him, not speaking, but showing by many little signs her sympathy and love, for once—for the first time since their marriage—her husband sat unresponsive, staring into the fire with dull, unseeing eyes.

At last, in despair, Sylvia wandered about the room, touching this and that, altering a vase here, straightening a picture there, but pausing now and then to glance at Jack, as he still sat silent. After one of these loving glances, she turned away again, and reached up to straighten a Venetian mirror, which hung on the wall. It had been a wedding present, and was old and not without value. Just as she raised it slightly to put it straight, there was a crash, and Jack started to his feet with an exclamation, to see his wife standing there, gazing fascinated, at the ruins at her feet.

"Sylvia, dear, what is the matter?" he asked.

"Jack, look!" she whispered. "There among the glass, the jewel case!"

With a single bound he was at her side, and had picked up the red leather case from where it lay amid the broken fragments of glass. With almost a moan of relief he pressed the spring and the lid flew open. There lay the missing stones, winking and blinking as they had done on the previous night, unknowing and caring little for all the stir and trouble they had been the cause of.

"But, Sylvia, how—"

Sylvia roused herself from her stupor.

"Oh, I remember now. Aunt Jane said there was a tiny cupboard in the thing, and that it would make a good hiding place. Oh, Jack, Jack!"

With a sob she threw her arms around his neck and burst into the first tears she had shed in all her trouble.

Jack quickly put the case in his pocket, and soothed and petted her, unmindful of all save the facts that the jewels were safe and that his Sylvia was crying.

When she had recovered he sought a solution of the mystery attending the disappearance of the gems and their concealment in the mirror.

"I must have walked in my sleep," was the only solution Sylvia could offer. "I used to do so as a girl, but I haven't done it for years. The presence in the house of the necklace worried me frightfully, and in my sleep it must have occurred to me that the old mirror would be a splendid place to hide them, and, still sleeping, I undoubtedly took them and concealed them there."

THE WIDOW'S ADVANTAGE

By AMANDA MOORE.

Men are frequently advised to beware of widows, but so far as one can see the advise applies equally to women—unwed women, of course, for in very truth widows are dangerous.

Think of the number of bachelors and widowers who are simply snapped up by widows. And these men cannot help themselves— the widows go in and win; yes, and often against heavy odds. Given a batch of fine-looking young women and one young widow, all desirous of capturing one particular man, why, the widow will triumph in the long run, and lead the gentleman to the altar, to the utter chagrin of her less fortunate sisters.

Men often admire and marry widows out of selfishness. Let me try to explain what I mean.

In the first place, a widow knows how to please a man in general, all-round sort of way. She knows just how to coax, weedle, flatter, and gull any man, for she is experienced in those arts. You see, she has actually lived with a man as his wife and has, therefore, seen every side of a man's nature.

She has also learned the art of skillfully handling the subtle reins which guide a man in the direction which you wish him to take; she understands all about the little peculiarities, the erratic moods which a man is liable to develop in maried life, and seeing that one man is fairly like another, why, if she has been able to satisfy one, she can equally satisfy any other who comes her way.

The eligible bachelor, therefore, easily falls before her. She can, in a discreet, indirect way hold out prospects to him which the ordinary young woman would never dream of, by reason of her experience.

Then it must be remembered that a widow is allowed more freedom of conversation with men; what could not be pardoned in a young woman is all right in a widow. Thus, the latter commits no particular indiscretion if she, in a somewhat subtle manner, conveys the impression to a bachelor that in her he would find all the attributes which a good wife should possess. She can relate how pleased her husband used to be with her baking, her cooking and so on, and bear this in mind—the average man who is thinking of marrying is over on the outlook for a person who will be able to attend to his creature comforts in a satisfactory manner.

Let me put this into a nutshell and say that a widow makes a bachelor feel that, at last, he has met a lady who would make a capital wife and companion, and one who would attend to his comfort in every way. A young girl cannot do this, and man being selfish to the core, why, the ordinary bachelor falls an easy victim to the willy widow.

And besides all this, a widow is very often a bit of a mystery. Very frequently she arrives in a neighborhood from goodness knows where, and nothing can be found out about her by the local gossips.

She gets the reputation of being a woman "with a past," and if she is fairly young, and goes about with a subdued, thoughtful, and, at the same time, sweet look on her face, all the unmarried men in the district are soon after her.

A widow under these circumstances finds no difficulty whatever in fascinating men, and has to put forth no special effort in order, if she be so minded, to lead one of them to the altar.

Yes, there can be no doubt about it—men admire and marry widows out of sheer selfishness in most cases.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

To Cure Indigestion.

Observance of the following rules will aid in the treatment of chronic functional dyspepsia. The first rule is to eat slowly, masticate thoroughly and insalivate completely, three things which are by no means always the same. The next rule is to take solids and liquids separately, the latter in the shape of hot water on rising in the morning, between 11 and 12 in the forenoon, about 5 or 6 in the afternoon, and at night before going to bed.

When these rules do not suffice to remove the dyspepsia, the patient must take his farinaceous and proteid foods at different meals alternately, a farinaceous meal at breakfast time and again at 5 o'clock, and meat and fish meals at midday and at 8 o'clock.

In some cases it will be found advantageous to supplement the gastric juice with a little acid and pepsin. A little alkall with valumba may be preferable.

Treatment of Nervous Headache.

For a nervous headache or one following a too strenuous day, a simple means of alleviation is to remove the pressure of the blood on the brain by soaking the feet in water as hot as can be borne. The blood is quickly drawn to the feet, and the brain is thus relieved of pressure. A teaspoonful of mustard added to the water will effect a relief when the former method fails.

Keeping the Scalp Clean.

Persons troubled by dandruff should remember that too frequent washing of the scalp will produce this trouble. The head need only be washed once every three weeks. A good shampoo mixture should be used for washing. A scurf ointment should be used nightly for three days, then used once a week afterward.

KITCHEN LORE

Hints Concerning a Ham.

If, when boiling a ham, it is allowed to cool in the water, it will have a much better flavor. When cold, the water will have a thick layer of grease on top. Skim this off, put in the oven to dry, and it will do nicely for frying fish or roasting potatoes in. Roasted potatoes are very nice with cold meat. Peel them, and steam for ten minutes. Then put them into a baking dish with plenty of fat, and bake till brown, basting occasionally. This fat that comes out of the ham can also be used for scones or pie crust. Soak some haricot beans all night, in the morning strain them and put them into the water the ham was boiled in, with any bones or scraps you may have. Add a small packet of dessicated tomato soup, and you will have sufficient soup for several people for very little money.

How to Cook Vegetables.

Never hurry the boiling of vegetables. Put the water on in good time; boil slowly and well. All vegetables grown above ground should be boiled with the saucepan lid off; all grown below ground with the lid on. All vegetables, except potatoes, should be put in boiling water.

Scallops of Macaroni.

A good way to prepare macaroni is to have some nice scallop shells, well buttered, and place in them tomato pulp made by mashing raw tomatoes without their skins. The pulp should be seasoned with a little grated cheese, salt and pepper. Celery salt gives a nice flavor. Have ready three ounces of macaroni, well boiled, chop it finely, put a layer of this on top of the tomato, then a layer of bread crumbs with a few little bits of butter, and bake till nicely browned. Serve in shells as hot as possible.

FAIR

Light overcoats may be despised but not cast off in this time of bright sunshine and low temperatures. 'Tis indeed a beautiful spring, if the weather is observed from the inside—providing the furnace is working properly. A chilly reception is held out to the budding trees and tender shoots that are pushing their way to the outer air. The weather man holds out no hope to shivering mankind. Fair and cold, he says. The temperature dropped 28 deg. last night and 40 deg. was the highest the mercury could climb in the tube yesterday.

The blizzard with which May heralded its arrival last year, had blown itself out a year ago today and beautiful spring weather had returned.

The sun rose this morning at 4:49 and it will set at 7:21, giving fourteen hours and thirty-two minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Heavy to killing frosts were quite general throughout the Northwest and upper lake region this morning, while freezing temperatures extended southward to, including Nebraska and Northern Iowa. These conditions attend a strong high pressure area that has moved its center from the Dakotas to Minnesota. The disturbance central Monday morning over Missouri has advanced its center to North Atlantic states.

During the past twenty-four hours it caused light to copious rains in the upper Mississippi, lower Missouri and Ohio valleys, the southern lake region, Northern Texas and Northern New England. Another disturbance is developing over Arizona and Utah. It is causing rain in Nevada and Oregon. The easterly movement of this depression will be attended by northeast winds and slightly higher temperature at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes—Moderate north winds, Fair tonight and Wednesday.

Shippers' Forecast—Shipments of perishable products in Eastern Minnesota and Wisconsin will have temperatures near freezing tonight.

Chicago, May 3.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours, ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Upper Michigan—Fair tonight, with heavy frost; Wednesday fair, with slightly warmer in west portion.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight, with heavy frost; Wednesday fair, with slowly rising temperature.

Minnesota and Iowa—Fair tonight and Wednesday; rising temperature Wednesday and in west portion tonight; frost tonight.

North Dakota—Fair and warmer tonight; Wednesday partly cloudy.

South Dakota—Fair and warmer tonight, with possibly frost in east portion; Wednesday increasing cloudiness.

Montana—Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday; warmer tonight.

WHEN COL. ROOSEVELT WAS IN PARIS

Le Président de la République
& Madame Armand Fallières
recevront au Palais de l'Elysée
le Vendredi 22 Avril à 10 heures

(Pour se rencontrer avec M. Théodore Roosevelt)

Monsieur George Grantham Bain

and saluted him under triumphal arches. So Mr. Roosevelt's quiet hour was quite the noisiest of his trip.

The climax came at Porto Maurizio, where he visited the villa of his wife's sister. There the Boulevard Roosevelt was dedicated and speeches were made, and not even the tumultuous welcome which awaits Mr. Roosevelt in New York will exceed this one in enthusiasm. But the advertisement of the tour, which began in Naples, bids fair now to increase the interest in the ex-president's trip as he proceeds. It would not be at all surprising if the greeting given in London should be that accorded to some famous hero of war—rather inappropriate when offered to the special guardian of the dove of peace.

Why Austrin's Honors Counted.

After a short stay at Porto Maurizio Mr. Roosevelt went on to Venice, where he spent part of the day in plain sightseeing, and then to Vienna. Those who do not know the etiquette of the Austrian court will have little appreciation of the honor exended to the ex-president there. The Austrian court is the last in Europe to maintain its aristocracy untainted. In England and Germany and other countries the possession of great wealth coupled with social ambition is a sure road to royal recognition if the wealth be used with tact. The liberal endowment of a charity in which Queen Alexandra is interested is good for a knighthood any day.

But the Austrian court is proud. All the wealth of the Rothschilds—who hold a mortgage on Austria as they do on other European governments—will not gain them royal recognition. No Rothschild can be received at the Austrian court. As for Americans, they have no social existence. A keen American woman visiting in Vienna asked an Austrian friend whether she was not jealous of her husband's attentions to a pretty American girl.

"My dear," said the Austrian aristocrat, "how can I have any feeling? With us, you Americans do not exist."

Was Unique in History.

When Theodore Roosevelt, therefore, was received and banqueted at the castle of Schoenbrunn, he was honored as Franz Josef has never honored a plain citizen of any country at any time in the past.

Before being received by the emperor, Mr. Roosevelt had a long interview with Count Aehrenthal, which was of course private. No statement concerning it was made public, but the general inference was that it was of a political character. He also visited the historic castle of Kreuzenstein and the grounds of the international hunting exposition, of which Prince Furstenberg is president.

Mr. Roosevelt was received at Vienna by R. C. Kerens, the ambassador to Austria, one of Mr. Taft's recent appointees. He must have recalled the fact that he had refused to give Mr. Kerens diplomatic honors during his administration because of the opposition to him in his own state and "because of his lack of qualifications for the diplomatic service."

In a "Nice Situation."

The Roosevelt administration began the work of elevating the standard of diplomatic representation, and Mr. Roosevelt knew that Mr. Kerens' claim to preferment was based on his contributions to Republican campaign funds. It is also likely that he was influenced in his decision against Kerens by the remembrance that Mr. Kerens nearly negatived the Republican victory in Missouri, when for the first time his party obtained control of the legislature, by dead-locking that body because the caucus had declared for Niedringhaus and not himself for senator. That deadlock resulted in the choice of Maj. William Warner for senator from Missouri.

Whatever Mr. Roosevelt may have thought of Mr. Kerens' selection for ambassador to the proudest court in Europe, he accepted the reception at the American embassy, where he shook hands with the members of the American colony and many Viennese—fully 2,000 persons. Mr. Roosevelt has been doing a great deal of handshaking since his arrival at Khartoum and he will be in good practice for that special duty of the presidency if he is called upon to fill the office again.

Will He Run Again?

Over here, by the way, we are quite convinced that Mr. Roosevelt is to be a candidate again and that he will be elected. You will hear that opinion wherever you go. No doubt it has influenced those who have prepared his receptions. The official view of Mr. Roosevelt is that he is taking a vacation from the presidency and that he will step into the White House when Mr. Taft's term is over. The general opinion seems to be that he will occupy a stronger position than he did during his other terms—one more nearly in accord with the European view of rulership.

At Budapest Mr. Roosevelt was received with enthusiasm equal to that at Vienna. It was encouraged by the government through the newspapers, and in spite of a drenching rain, which prevailed during his stay, there were crowds everywhere and there was much cheering. All of this had been arranged in advance by Baron Hengelmuller, the Austrian ambassador at Washington, who returned to Vienna more than a month ago to prepare Mr. Roosevelt's reception. He was entertained by the aristocracy of Hungary, which is as proud and exclusive as that of Austria. And he was greeted formally by the Hungarian parliament, which stopped throwing ink-wells and epithets long enough to perform this hospital duty. At Budapest, the ex-president took one of the famous European trains-de-luxe for Paris, a journey of about thirty hours.

On the Train-de-Luxe.

These trains-de-luxe, by the way, illustrate conclusively the claim of American railroad men that the expense of traveling in America is below that of any European country. The extra fare from Budapest to Paris on a train running at a slower rate than any of the famous American express trains is nearly $11. And this is in addition to first-class fare, which is more than 3 cents a mile. But on the trains from the Riveria to Paris, conditions are even worse. The normal rate of sleeping car fare from Marseilles to Paris is $9. That is for a run of about twelve hours on a train making forty-five miles an hour. On a de-luxe train, which carries only compartment cars, this charge is about $17.50, and this is in addition to the first-class fare—there are no second-class sleeping cars—which is more than 3 cents a mile.

The charges on the de-luxe trains are those of the International Sleeping Car company, those on the express trains are made by the railroad company. In any case you pay from four to seven times as much for your sleeping accommodations as you would in our country. The alternative is to sit up all night.

No Choice of Berth.

Moreover, as soon as you get into one of these sleeping car trains you are more than likely to fall into the hands of a piratical conductor. You have no opportunity to choose your berth, as you would in our country. As the sleeping car office is probably at the railroad station, you go to one of the tourist offices and they telephone for a berth and send it to your hotel.

Probably when you get aboard the train you find that you have been assigned to an upper berth in a compartment with some one else. You see that the adjoining compartment is entirely empty. You ask if it is possible to make an exchange. The conductor says "No." You take out your purse and jingle the money in it. The conductor begins to take notice. He has no spare lower berths, but possibly there is one in the adjoining car. You go into the other car. The conductor takes you into a vacant compartment and asks how you would like to have it alone. You promptly cross his palm with silver and he disappears.

Then comes the first conductor and tells you, you haven't given the second conductor enough. Of course it is enough for him, but he must divide with the first conductor and with the inspector who will note the change of location. So if privacy is very precious to you, you give up $1 or $2 or even more, stifling your conscience to the fact that you are actually bribing the company's employes to give you something for which you have not paid the company. And you take your single compartment and feel mean and guilty for the remainder of the journey.

(This is the third of a series of letters Mr. Bain is writing for The Herald while accompanying Mr. Roosevelt on his European tour. The next will be published at an early date.)

any constituent part of the paper, said Dr. Haines.

A small fragment of a capsule was also exhibited.

"What is the odor of cyanide?" asked Mr. Reed.

"That of bitter almonds," replied the witness.

This odor could be readily ascertained on the hands after cyanide had been handled, testified the physician. Describing the nature of cyanide, Dr. Haines said:

"The poison may disappear from the body in a few days or may remain for several months. It is a volatile poison."

Embalming fluid would harden the tissues and tend to prevent the escape of the poison, said the witness.

Volatization of the cyanide would be prevented, in a measure, if a body was frozen, said the witness.

Size of Fatal Dose.

"What are fatal doses of strychnine and cyanide?" asked Mr. Reed.

"A third of a half grain of strychnine and from three to five grains of cyanide," answered Dr. Haines.

Attorney Walsh took the witness.

"What do you mean by a trace of strychnine?" asked Mr. Walsh.

"An amount so small that it cannot be weighed," replied the witness.

Further questioning developed that strychnine in amounts of 1-640th of a grain could be weighed.

Y. M. C. A. Workers Confer.

South Bend, Ind., May 3.—The national conference of Y. M. C. A. workers began here yesterday with representatives from the entire country. The conference will continue all week.

SIX BISHOPS TO BE CONSECRATED

Archbishop Ireland to Conduct Splendid Ceremony at St. Paul May 19.

One of the most notable ceremonials in the history of the Roman Catholic church will take place in St. Mary's chapel, St. Paul, May 19, when six new bishops will be consecrated. They will fill newly-created and vacant bishoprics in the province of St. Paul, of which Archbishop John Ireland is the metropolitan. The consecrator will be the archbishop, who will be assisted by Rt. Rev. James McGolrick, bishop of Duluth, and Rt. Rev. James Trobec, bishop of St. Cloud.

A ceremonial of almost equal splendor transpired when the consecration of Bishops McGolrick, Shanley and Cotter were celebrated, twenty years ago. The coming consecration has been surpassed only once in modern times. That was on the occasion of the consecration of fourteen French bishops by his holiness, the pope.

Rev. Francis Schaefer of St. Paul's seminary will be the master of ceremonies, both in the formation of the splendid procession and within St. Mary's chapel. He will be assisted by a corps of priests.

Rev. Timothy Corbett, until recently pastor of the Duluth cathedral, will be consecrated bishop of Crookston, a new diocese. Others who will be created bishops are: Rev. James O'Reilly, pastor of St. Anthony church of Minneapolis, to be bishop of Fargo; Rev. John J. Lawler, pastor of the cathedral of St. Paul, to be auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese of St. Paul; Rev. Patrick R. Hefferon, rector of St. Paul's seminary, to be bishop of Winona; Rev. Vincent Wehrle of the Benedictine order and abbot of the monastery at Richardton, N. D., to be bishop of Bismarck, N. D., and Rev. Joseph F. Busch, the head of the missionary band in the archdiocese of St. Paul to be bishop at Lead, S. D.

Rubber Sale Fizzles Out.

London, May 3.—Rubber speculators received something of a shock at today's fortnightly sales of raw material in Mincing lane, when lot after lot was withdrawn for lack of purchasers. The usual buyers were present, but there was no competition and the prices offered ranged from 1s to 1s 6d below the reserve price of the sellers.

PROVEN ECZEMA CURE

For several years we have announced, with our recommendation, that we had found a positive cure for eczema; a simple skin wash, oil of wintergreen compounded with other healing ingredients.

Yet we know there are people right in this town who have eczema, and still have never tried this remedy.

We have, therefore, arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special offer of a trial bottle at 25 cents instead of the $1.00 bottle as regularly sold. Be sure of the correct name: D. D. D. Prescription.

We offer this trial bottle with our recommendation and assurance that just as soon as the patient washes his itching skin, this mild liquid will take the itch away instantly.

SCULLIONS HAVE VALUABLE GEMS

New York, May 3.—Through the arrest here of two scullions employed on the Ward line steamship Mexico, Mrs. Frances J. Daly, wife of a paymaster in the United States army, now stationed at Guantanamo, Cuba, will recover a necklace and pendant valued at $1,500, which she lost while en route from this city to Cuba on that vessel last month.

The Mexico was searched on arrival here last Friday, in accordance with a wireless message to the police, but no trace was found of the jewels. Last night two men from the steamer visited a tailorshop near the water front, presented the necklace and asked its value. Their arrest followed. One of the men said he found the necklace in the forecastle.

WHY HE CAME.

Everybody likes a "booster," but not everybody can be one. Every man, however, can try to be one, and if he can't succeed, there is one simple thing he can do that will help a great deal, and that is not to be a knocker.

Boosters in a community are the active agents which build progress out of the material of public spirit.

Knockers are not building material at all, or builders; they form a hostile force which obstructs the work of the boosters, and engages itself in the effort to tear down where they build. Fortunately, in live, progressive communities, the knockers are few and the boosters are many; and the chorus of boost drowns out the bitter chorus of knock.

There have been times in the history of Duluth when it has had knockers. Maybe it has some now. Even when there were many knockers there were also many boosters; and never has there been a time in the history of this city when the boosters were so many and the knockers so few as they are at present. And that, be sure, is a mighty significant thing. It is a sign of present prosperity because boosters flourish and knockers fade when prosperity shines, and of future prosperity because the boosters who have drowned out the faint whine of the knocker are doing things that make for still greater prosperity in the future.

It is worth while giving space to one concrete example of the value of the spirit of boost to a community.

Des Moines, a live, progressive city whose citizens have adopted methods which it is worth while studying, has a Greater Des Moines committee, which is a good sort of thing for every community to have. Duluth has such a committee in the public affairs committee of the Commercial club, even though it hasn't that sort of a name. Some time, maybe, we can induce the Commercial club to give it a broader name, one more suggestive of the spirit behind the present impulse for a Greater Duluth, and expressing that spirit and its objects more definitely.

This Greater Des Moines committee has noon lunches every other week, at which the biggest and broadest men of the community come together for discussion of the common good. This, too, is a good plan, and great benefit grows out of it.

At a recent noon lunch of the Greater Des Moines committee there was present as its guest a man who is about to move his factory to Des Moines, and who was asked to tell how he came to select Des Moines as a location.

In a brief speech he told of the handicaps that surrounded his business where he was located before, and of the railroad facilities and other advantages in Des Moines that tempted him there. There is not one of these advantages by the way, which Duluth cannot offer.

But this man grew more enthusiastic about the community spirit that he found in Des Moines than he had over any of the physical advantages he described. Eight or ten different cities tried to get him to locate with them, and it was the spirit that he found in Des Moines, quite as much as it was its railroad facilities, that induced him to pick that town. "Meet whom you please," said this man, "citizen or business man—each and every one is boosting Des Moines. We want to go to a city where they boost—not knock and kick. Where you find one booster in a small town, you find nine knockers."

A community of boosters impresses the outsider as a city that will—that must—prosper and grow. A community of knockers impresses him as a community that will stand in its tracks, fighting within itself, while other communities go past it in the hot competiton for supremacy that is going on, and in which only progressive, self-assertive cities whose citizens are boosters can hope to win.

ROOSEVELT FOR TAFT?

A Washington newspaper startled the country yesterday with a report that Col. Roosevelt had written a letter to President Taft stating emphatically that Taft is perfectly all right, that it is the Republican party's duty to renominate him in 1912, and that Roosevelt himself is in private life for good and cannot be induced to accept any public office.

Considerable relief was felt, no doubt, when President Taft denied having received such a letter and Col. Roosevelt denied having written it.

It will be remembered that before beginning his European parade Col. Roosevelt said that he would not talk on American politics in any way before he got home. He added that any reports that he had expressed himself could be set down as falsehoods. Such a report having been set afloat, he denies it most emphatically; which is just as well, since he could have done Taft no good and would have done himself much harm by such an expression. The people of the United States have been in a position to judge for themselves as to the Taft administration, and they need no traveler just returned from the wilds of Africa and the soft luxuries of European travel de luxe, no matter how distinguished that traveler may be, to tell them whether Taft deserves a second term or not.

There is every reason for refusing to credit the story. If Col. Roosevelt had sent such a letter, be sure the president would not have hesitated to make it public. There is nothing he needs in his business just now quite so much as a Roosevelt indorsement, unless it is a popular indorsement.

CONTROL BY THE FEW.

A notable leading editorial in The World's Work for May explains clearly the machinery by the use of which the few control the liberties of the many in this country, and have created a despotism more subtle and therefore more dangerous than any tyranny in the history of the world.

Control of finance, control of the tariff and control of the railways are the three means by which the few dominate the economic liberty of the many, according to this shrewd and penetrating review of the situation. "Banking and finance are dominated chiefly by private banking interests in New York, with ramifications across the continent. Prices of many important commercial articles are made under subventions and tariffs dictated by the demands of private interests. The transportation of commodities throughout the country is ruled, swung hither and yon, crippled or boomed, by traffic agencies held in private hands. These are the three great hindrances to free development. It is hard to believe that the wonderful commercial progress of our people will indefinitely submit to these artificial conditions."

In a recent issue of the Atlantic Monthly Alexander D. Noyes, financial editor of the New York Evening Post and one of the sanest authorities in finance in this country, analyzed the meaning of "high finance" in this country and showed how the respected "haute finance" of Europe, a force for conservatism and sobriety, has in this country taken a form that makes it a scandal and a disgrace. In Europe banking and speculation are two distinct forces, with the former acting as a wholesome check upon the excesses of the latter. In this country finance and speculation have been one and the same thing, and the people's money has been drained to Wall street through various agencies, there to be used by the big gamblers to exploit the people for quickly gained profits. Men highest in the control of the nation's finances, who in their positions should have been conserving and steadying forces, have rioted with those who have been most drunken with their craze for sudden riches. For it all, the people pay. They pay for the excesses of the few who control their finances, and they pay for the subtle undermining of the national fabric which these excesses entail.

That is why railroads, for instance, have not been so much mediums of transportation as counters in the Wall street game. That is why railroads and large corporations have not been servants of the people, but machinery to make the people servants to the powerful few that control that machinery. That is why living has been hard for the people, and a riotous orgy of luxury for a few.

The workers of this nation can produce a given amount of wealth, and it is enough to make the nation prosperous and contented. But when the major portion of that wealth, by the devices of high finance, is conjured out of the possession of those who create it and into the possession of those who create nothing but luxury for themselves and deprivation for the many, living for the many is certain to be hard.

What this nation needs as much as anything that can be imagined is an absolute divorce between Wall street and business; between "high finance" and the honest commercial life of the country.

WESTON THE WALKIST.

Consider the case of Weston, you average man to whose fat and flabby muscles a five-mile walk is a severe test of endurance.

For the second time since he passed his seventieth year, Weston has walked across the continent, doing his stunt of 3,483 miles this time in seventy-seven walking days, or at the rate of about forty-five miles a day. He finished his marvelous journey fit as a fiddle, according to his own profession.

Weston was a walker widely known forty years ago, in the full flood of his youth. When years accumulated he ceased professional walking, but never did he lose his belief in it as a means of keeping his health and strength, nor did he cease to walk for pleasure and for exercise. Keeping in good trim in this way, he was able to turn out in his old age and show the youngsters what an old man can do if he tries.

There is no particular profit to Weston in this feat, but there may be great profit in it to the nation if its people will take home the moral it carries. That moral is that walking is good exercise, and that the way to be active and vigorous in age as well as in youth is to keep physically fit.

QUEER BOOKKEEPING.

A member of the state public examiner's force, engaged in checking up the state's bookkeeping, finds that it shows the counties to be in debt to the state nearly $2,000,000 more than they actually are. In other words, the state is carrying on its books nearly $2,000,000 of assets that do not exist. For instance, the books show that St. Louis county owes the state $685,920.31, when Country Auditor Halden is positive that this county isn't a penny behind in its dealings with the state. The state auditor says that these figures "are merely a bookkeeper's balance," and admits that no such sums are due to the state.

This chaotic situation isn't a very good showing for the quality of the bookkeeping in vogue in the state capitol. Apparently nobody knows how much the counties owe the state, or where the account stands between the state and its eighty-five counties. A business house whose affairs were in such shape would be in danger of bankruptcy through incompetence and neglect. The state is in no danger of bankruptcy, but it certainly is entitled to more intelligible and intelligent keeping of its accounts.

ON THE RUN.

"Senator Root was noticeably annoyed," says the Associated Press in reporting the status of the president's railroad bill. So, also, were Senators Aldrich, Elkins, Kean, Crane, Lodge and others upon whom the president—and the railroads, no doubt—depended to pass the bill as it was introduced. So, too, was the president, who said over the telephone that if his bill were injured or defeated, the insurgents must stand the blame.

Apparently they are willing, for the occasion of this flurry in the ranks of standpatism was that the insurgents and the Democrats seem to be strong enough to kill one or two of the most heinous features of the measure, such as those permitting railroad consolidations and traffic arrangements, and that allowing railroads to change rates without the approval of the interstate commerce commission. There is grave danger, indeed, that the bill will either be shaped so as to be of some help to the people, or defeated.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

WHAT FORMER RESIDENT THINKS OF EVERGLADES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

If you find space in your valuable columns please publish this letter. I notice an article in yesterday's issue of The Herald, page 10, third column, in regard to the Florida Everglades, and while I do not write this article with the intention of knocking, as you might call it, I wish to state just what I think of it. I have lived two and a half years in Jacksonville, Fla., leaving there May 10, 1909, and during my stay there I visited Tampa, Palm Beach, Miami and other points south, as well as the Everglades, and to me the Everglades looked to be no place for a white man. To begin with there is from three to five feet of water over all the land, and being just a trifle above sea level makes it impossible to drain it. My advice is to anyone if they have $100 to invest, the best thing to do would be to take a trip down and see for themselves. It can't be beat for a place to snare alligators, as I understand there were in the neighborhood of 20,000 killed and taken out of there last year. In regards to people geting bit by investing money in that country I can name you a dozen that got well stung in that way, so, trusting that I have not offended anyone by this article, but am ready to stand back of it, I beg to remain, yours very respectfully,

ALEX VIZENA.

Gladstone, Mich., April 29.

DULUTH WOMAN REPLIES TO RABBI LEFKOVITS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will you allow a reply to the article of Rabbi Lefkovits in Saturday's Herald? This statement that he finds no warranty for prohibition in the Biblical law is surprising when we remember that eight out of ten of the Ten Commandments of Moses are prohibitions. If one looks into the books of Exodus and Leviticus, the phrase most likely to catch his eye will be "Thou shalt not."

Judging from their Scriptures, the prohibitory method of dealing with what they regarded as evil, was intensely Jewish.

The times in which the books of Jewish law were written were not times of modern enlightenment. Some things were sanctioned which the Rabbi would not now advocate. Polygamy and slavery were recognized, and regulations given concerning the taking of private vengeance. No Jew would defend these for present practice.

The Old Testament does, however, give the strongest of warnings against wine as dangerous and harmful. (Prov. xxiii, 29-32 is one instance.)

If only those who feel bound to observe the rabbinical law would take the prescribed cup to open the Sabbath and holidays, and take it only at those times, there would be small need for prohibitory laws. But that this old ceremonial should be urged as a reason why one man should be licensed to make money off the vice and misery of others is logic past my following.

To come down to New Testament times and the Christian religion, it seems to me that the general teachings of Jesus, applicable to all times and conditions of men are more wortay of our following than some act of His private life.

We do not recline at table because He did, nor wash our feet on entering a friend's house. Our ministers do not pursue His manner of life, namely, travel from one place to another to preach, dependent for food on what the hearers may offer.

It is the broad precepts which show the heart of the religion that should be most regarded, and surely no one who loves his neighbors as himself will encourage by his example the use of what will harm both. He who prayed "Lead us not into temptation," would not approve our putting a place designed to tempt man, into the path of the young and weak. There will probably be enough "possibilities of evil left in the world to strengthen us, without our incurring the woe He pronounced against "putting a stumbling block in our neighbor's way," or "causing one of these little ones to offend."

I wish to suggest to the Rabbi, that the traffic in liquor is one of the evils our religion has been strengthening us to abolish, even as polygamy, slavery and private vengeance are now nearly put away in Christendom.

The Rabbi's admission that drink and disease, drink and vice and crime are found connected gives reason to still suspect that drink is in most cases the cause of these evils. Since the physical effect of alcohol is to lessen self control of body and mind, it is natural that it should be the cause. When the drink is removed by prohibitory laws well enforced, the lessening of crime, disease and pauperism is so great that after a thorough trial people usually refuse to return to a license system. No reasonable person expects to cure all human ills by prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquor, but the absence of these open places of temptation injures no one and helps many.

The welfare of all rather than the liberty of a few is the proper object of government and the reason for every law prohibiting crime of any sort.

And none depend so much upon education and moral suasion as prohibitions. Through the length and breadth of our land we are hammering away, educating the people to the advantages of total abstinence and the need of prohibition to restrain those who are willing to prey upon society for their own profit, and are trying to educate our youth in vice.

I regret that one so learned and influential as the Rabbi should lend his position as a teacher of morals to the defense of this evil. I. M.

Duluth, May 2.

Our Barbarous Criminal Procedure.

Denver Post: Doubtlessly the newspaper reports of the Hyde case in Kansas City will furnish fresh grounds for the reflection that trials of this kind are "overplayed" in the press. But the truth is that nothing of the kind is being done in the Hyde case any more than it was done in the Thaw case. Indeed the majority of the reports of our murder cases actually "play down" and minimize the sensationalism with which our crude criminal procedure invests all such cases. Instead of counsel on both sides appearing as "officers of the court" to conduct an investigation in an impersonal spirt, they are inspired by what is called the "doctrine of contentious procedure," and they take sides in a "fight for a life." It is ghastly to think that the prosecuting attorney in any criminal case should wave his arms, and beat the air with his clenched fists, and shriek to the jury for the "life of that perjured murderer there," it is ghastly to think that the assistant to the prosecuting attorney should do precisely the same noisy thing; and that the assistant to the assistant should follow suit. But that is exactly what happens. And instead of the court being conducted in grave decorum; instead of the jury being assisted by their environment of dignity to dismiss all prejudice and passion from their minds everything is done to inflame their passions and distort their mental processes from the moment that the first word is spoken for the prosecution. The practice is condemned by all sound lawyers: it militates against the just trial of any case; and reform in such procedure will be assisted by the realism of the newspaper reports. And, heaven knows, reform is needed.

A Forgotten Art.

Puck: New Customer.—I see you have Van Falutin for a customer. Are you aware that his ancestors came across on the Mayflower?

Tailor—So? It's too bad he doesn't try to emulate their noble deed.

"Waat do you mean?

"I made him two suits, and he hasn't come across yet."

FOR NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

Only Asks Justice.

Wahkon Enterprise: Taxation without adequate representation is just as much wrong as taxation without any representation. Northern Minnesota in demanding a proper re-apportionment of the state only demands the same justice for which our forefathers rebelled against England.

The Spirit of Push.

Princeton Union: It is pleasing to note the push manifested in the towns of Northern Minnesota. There seems to be a general awakening of the people to their interests. Farmers' club are being organized co-operative creameries established and more attention given to the good roads movement. With good roads there will be no lack of settlers for there is plenty of desirable land to be had.

It's All One Great State.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Northern Minnesota is making a heap of noise and is waking up the sleepy old south part of the state. Some of the lower end fellows are even sitting up and showing a little interest in the new part of the state. Next they will take a hand in the doing, and then they will be prouder than ever that they live in the best state in the Union.

Here's Good Sense.

Mora Times: A system of taxation on real estate, particularly farm lands, that would put a premium rather than a tax on energy and progressiveness, would do more to induce actual settlement and development of Northern Minnesota's productive acres than all the red lettered literature of a nation.

Make the Candidates Speak.

Warroad Plaindealer: It is an absolute and established fact that if Northern Minnesota expects to gain reapportionment it must see to it that the man selected for the office of lieutenant governor is a man who thoroughly and openly favoring "The Northern Minnesota Idea." Without that we will stand a show of getting reapportionment which in reality does not reapportion. It is up to the voters of the thirty northern counties to insist on the right man for this important office, and there are good fair-minded voters in the southern part of the state who will lend them every aid possible. Make the candidate come out in the open and declare flat-footed for re-apportionment according to the spirit and letter of the Constitution and turn him down if he tries to crawfish.

On to Crookston.

Hibbing Tribune: Northern Minnesota did its whole duty at Bemidji. That meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association was the most notable gathering ever held in any section of the state for the advancement of the welfare of the state.

But the Bemidji meeting simply got things well started, and it is just as vital for Northern Minnesota to carry on the work as to begin it. The next step in the campaign for reapportionment and Northern Minnesota development is the meeting at Crookston, June 1, 2 and 3. If this meeting is as well attended as was the Bemidji gathering, reapportionment will be all but absolutely clinched and Minnesota's rapid development will be assured.

Come On In!

St. Cloud Journal-Press: "On to Crookston," is the slogan of Northern Minnesota Development association, which meets in that progressive city, June 1, 2 and 3. While Stearns county has not been included in the northern territory our interests are with that section of the state, and we hope for a successful meeting. Northern Minnesota has not had quite a square deal, and we go with it in its fight for just treatment at the hands of the legislature.

Automobiles and Men.

I listened to a friend of mine inquiring carefully
About an automobile that an agent wished to sell;
I watched him look it over, for it interested me,
And I drank in all the agent had to tell.
"This car," he said, "has all the power that any car requires.
You'll find that thirty-horse power is enough;
It's built for speed and comfort, and is easy on its tires.
You can get it trimmed in red, or black, or buff."

"That's very well my friend remarked, "so far as I can see
Your car looks much like other cars
I've seen:
And the men who want to sell them,
have, as you, explained to me
The easy running points of each machine.
But 'most any car, I reckon, will ride easily enough
When the road is smooth and obstacles are few,
But when the hills confront it and the
the road is hard and rough,
I'd like to know just what your car will do.

"Will it take me through the marshes, will it haul me through the mire,
Will it carry any reasonable load?
Will it climb a hill, if climbing is the thing I desire,
Will it travel over every rocky road?
It's not lines of beauty that I'm interested in,
And I don't care if it's red or buff,
But the car I want must finish every journey I begin.
Will it get there when the going's mighty rough?"

And I thought, to hear him talking,
what is true of motor cars
Is just as true of living, breathing men;
When the going's free and easy and our progress nothing bars
We can laugh and bear our burdens lightly then.
But the men who win life's prizes and the men who climb to fame
Are the men composed of hardier,
sterner stuff,
Who climb the hills undaunted, and who travel just the same
With their burdens, when the going's mighty rough.

Iowa Musical Criticism.

Washington Democrat: He played "Nearer My God to Thee," and gave the four parts. It was certainly sublime. We do not usually rant over fiddling, but Smelser is there with the goods. He is also a whistler of note and whistles better than the average whistler who makes it his or her exclusive business. He doesn't look very pretty when he sticks his fingers into his mouth to whistle, but he gets the notes. The crowd could hardly get enough of him. And Miss Bertha Snider, say, the last two pieces, "Marche Mignone," and "Rondo C. Minor," were as sweet as anything we ever heard. We have heard several good piano players, but she was as pleasing as any. And it was splendid to see her come on and get off the stage, she is so graceful and self-possessed and yet wholly modest and sweet. Ordinarily we do not like piano solos, but we started the encore to bring her back the last time, and we are proud of it. Miss Bertha Snider is all hunkidori.

A New Case of English Humor.

Lippincott's: Two Southerners were entertaining an Englishman, when one of them told the following story:

There was a poor white man in our county named Yarrow, whom every one thought dishonest, but who had never been caught stealing. At last he got too bold, and, through testimony of a Mr. Brown, he was sent to jail. Soon after Yarrow served his sentence, Mr. Brown was obliged to go to Baltimore and have his eyes operated upon. A much exaggerated account of the operation reached the county, and was told to Yarrow.

"I wish ter gracious," said that worthy, "that when the doctor took out that old Brown's eyes, he'd dropped 'em on the floor and the cat had got 'em!"

At the conclusion of the story the other Southerner laughed heartily, but the Englishman was horrified. "Just think," he said, "of having a cat in the room when such a serious operation was being performed!"

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

Old-time Duluthians were shocked to hear today of the death of Dr. Samuel Sedden Walbank, the cause being pneumonia, from which he has been ill for the past five weeks. Dr. Walbank was born April 3, 1823, at Morton Hampstead, Devonshire, Eng. He received his preliminary education at St. Servans, France, and graduated from the medical department of the University of Toronto in 1848. He first practiced in Holland Landing, Ont., afterwards removing to Bruce Mines, as surgeon resident of the mining company. In 1851 he located at Ontonagon, later going to Brooklyn, where he remained three years. He came to the Northwest in 1869, settling at Superior, and in 1872 cast his fortunes with the pioneers of Duluth. In 1850 he married, and he leaves a widow and two sons and two daughters, Mrs. J. E. Bowers of St. Paul and Mrs. E. E. Leeds of Duluth. Dr. Walbank's career was prominently identified with Duluth's commercial progress, and he leaves considerable property. He was a member of the Episcopal church and was county physician both at Ontonagon and Duluth.

At the annual stockholders' meeting of the Duluth Iron & Steel company the following directors were chosen: O. P. Stearns, R. S. Munger, J. R. Meyers and W. H. H. Stowell of Duluth; R. M. Newport and R. C. Munger of St. Paul and T. B. Casey of Minneapolis.

At Cloquet the mills are running eleven hours per day and all are happy. The last crop of logs is coming into the boom at the rate of 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 feet per day.

So many additions are being platted and put on the market that the poor real estate man does not know whither to turn. Walbridge and New Duluth, Sixth division and Bay View, Highland and Harrison's, Motor Line lots and Brighton addition, Lakeview and Lakeside, Wakelin's farm and Spirit Lake, a million lots—more or less—and all choice, so their owners say, put on the market. No wonder Duluth real estate men are hustlers.

Tit-Bits: Friend—Why do you encourage these women suffrage meetings? Surely you don't approve of them?

Husband—Approve! With all my heart! I can come home as late as I like now without finding my wife at home to ask questions.

Washington Star: "She is very liberal in her charities," said one woman.

"Yes," answered the other; "liberal, but not always practical. For instance, she wanted to send alarm clocks to Africa to aid sufferers from the sleeping sickness."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Who is Jane to marry?"

"His name is Bridge."

"Good gracious, does she carry the craze as far as that?"

St. Louis Star: Tess—I broke my engagement with him because he wouldn't give up tobacco.

Jess—Then he is an old flame of yours?

Tess—Yes, and he's still smoking.

The Course of True Love.

For aught that ever I could read,
Could ever hear by tale or history,
The course of true love never did run smooth;
But, either it was different in blood,
Or else misgraffed in respect to years,
Or else it stood upon the choice of friends;
Or, if there were a sympathy in choice,
War, death or sickness did lay siege
to it,
Making it momentary as a sound,
Swift as a shadow, short as any dream;
Brief as the lightning in the collied night,
That, in a spleen, unfolds both heaven and earth,
And ere a man hath power to say,—
Behold!
The jaws of darkness do devour it up;
So quick bright things come to confusion.

Beveridge May Be Saved.

New York Sun: For some time the nation has feared that Indiana might deprive it of the services in the senate of the Grand Young Man. Against the various forces making for Democratic success even his superb statesmanship seemed useless. The outlook was disheartening.

But the Democrats have not been idle. They have scented the danger and rushed to the defense. They observe that wherever a man like Foss of Massachusetts or Havens of New York accepts a Democratic nomination he is elected. The lesson is not lost on them. They promptly make Thomas Taggart their standard bearer, rally to his support and defy the voters to defeat the Hon. Albert J. Beveridge.

It is a desperate expedient, but it may produce the desired effect. Even Indiana should prefer to be represented in the senate by Beveridge rather than by Taggart.

Why Not Try the Doctors?

Boston Globe: The lawyers have had their chance at giving the country such legislation as would make us all happy. It is no harsh verdict to say that they have not succeeded. The world has been ruled by classes or professions, and probably will be until every class has a show. Whose turn next?

It is the turn of the doctors most likely. They are experts; so are lawyers. But unlike the lawyers, the doctors can have no selfish motive. All expert medical knowledge must be utilized for abolishing or limiting disease. In other words, as public servants, the occupation of doctors must be that of abolishing their own profession. As for the lawyers, every law they make supplies material for new lawsuits and new business for the members of the bar.

When the people realize this, will they hesitate to give the physicians a show? We think not.

Hygiene may soon take precedence over jurisprudence. The case in favor of the former is well put by Senator Owen, who asks:

"Why conserve coal fields and not coal miners?

"Why conserve plant life and not human life?

"Why conserve our water power and forests and forget our people?"

When the senator's bill for the establishment of a national department of public health becomes a law then the doctors will get a show, or, rather, more of a show, for already they are slowly working their way to the front.

A Revised Version.

Oh, Mary had a little lamb, regarding whose cuticular
The fluff exterior was white and kinked in each particular.
On each occasion when the lass was seen perambulating,
The little quadruped likewise was there a gallavating.

One day it did accompany her to the knowledge dispensary,
Which to every rule and precedent was recklessly contrary.
Immediately whereupon the pedagogue superior,
Exasperated, did eject the lamb from the interior.

Then Mary, on beholding such performance arbitrary,
Suffused her eyes with saline drops from glands called lachrymary,
And all the pupils grew thereat tumultously hilarious,
And speculated on the case with wild conjectures various.

"What makes the lamb love Mary so?" the scholars asked the teacher.
He paused a moment, then he tried to diagnose the creature.
"Oh peccus amorum Mary habit omnia temporum."
"Thanks, teacher, dear," the scholars cried, and awe crept darkly o'er 'em.

The Annual Garden Statement.

$10 worth of garden seeds;
10 days of good hard toil.
1 mammoth pile of noxious weeds;
1 square rod of good soil.
1 hoe.
1 spade,
1 rake,
best grade;
1 baby harrow.
2 days of hire;
7 yards chick wire;
1 large wheelbarrow.

Subtract what you would have to pay
For vegetables you raised
From the total of the cost
And you will be amazed,
Not counting all the work you've done,
The aches and pains you caught,
Like every other year before,
The saving will be 0.

ON THE IRON RANGES

LIBRARY CORNICE SLIGHTLY DAMAGED

Breaking Cable Allows Heavy Weight to Fall Against Structure.

Coleraine, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—While raising one of the heavy cornice stones on the new public library building here today the cable broke letting the great weight drop to the ground. Fortunately no on was hurt, but a portion of the brick gable was thrown out of plumb and a cut-stone emblem set in the wall was badly marred.

At a special meeting of the library board on Saturday night, Mrs. Townsend was elected librarian.

CHISHOLM MEN DENY CHARGES

Indicted for Assaulting John Hill They Plead Not Guilty.

Virginia, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Grenlund, Jake Hautala and Isaach Aho, who were indicted by the late grand jury for assault in the second degree, were arraigned before Judge Martin Hughes yesterday afternoon. They pleaded guilty and their bonds were fixed at $1,000 each. Aho furnished a bond and was liberated. The trio are charged with having assaulted John Hill in Chisholm, March 9, with a knife and a piece of ice, inflicting numerous wounds upon the head and body. John Saari of Duluth apeared as counsel for the defendants.

Anton Stanicha, charged with having set fire to a hotel building at Buhl and with having threatened the life of Mrs. Selma Meander, who is seeking to be liberated on bonds, did not appear before Judge Hughes yesterday as was the intention of his attorney. He is till confined in the city jail.

CASES AGAINST TWO DISMISSED BY JUDGE

Eveleth Man Who Took Shot at Another Man Gets Off Easily.

Eveleth, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cases of John M. Bradish, a local poolroom proprietor, and M. Garske, who figured in a sensational shooting affray were called yesterday by Judge Prince. Bradish was charged with the illegal use of firearms within the city limits and Garske with stealing some property off Bradish's premises. The cases were dismissed without cost to either defendant.

Matt Premozich, a former local saloon keeper, who was arrested Sunday for selling liquor without a license in the Fayal location, was fined $50, which he paid.

Joseph Mikola, arrested on the charge of being drunk and disorderly, was fined $18.50, which he paid.

Frank Sappan, an Adams mine employe, arrested Sunday, following a quarrel with some Oliver policemen, whom he attempted to resist while they were arresting a friend of his, was fined $18.50, which he paid.

John Rosich, arrested for destroying property in the vicinity of Spruce mine, and for leading the disturbances at the mine, was dismissed; while the case of his partner, Frank Kosmerl, was adjourned.

STOLEN COAL EXPENSIVE.

Peter Pair Pays $12.50 for Taking Some at Alpena Location.

Virginia, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Pair, a resident of the north side, was fined $10 and $2.50 costs by Judge Carey for stealing coal from a shed belonging to the Oliver Mining company, at the Alpena location. Pair was caught in the act by one of the company's guards.

TWO EXITS FROM THE FIRE HALL

Virginia Police and Fire Commission Decides Upon Some Changes.

Virginia, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the police and fire commission last night Dr. C. B. Lenont, was re-elected president and John W. Murphy, vice president.

M. L. Matheson of this city was awarded the contract to furnish the fire department with an exercise wagon.

Two fire alarm boxes were ordered installed on the North side. Thirty-two boxes are now in operation throughout the city. The commission decided to change the front of the fire hall building and instead of one exit will have two with a spiral stairway in the center of the building leading to the sleeping and club apartments in the second story. A cement floor will also be laid in the hall to take the place of the old plank floor.

TAKEN TO WISCONSIN.

Mother of Superintendent West to Be Buried at Dodgeville.

Hibbing, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Mrs. Jane West who died at her home on Center street, Saturday evening of chronic diabetes mellitus, was taken to Dodgeville, Wis., yesterday for burial. Funeral services were held in the Methodist church at 10:30 a. m. Ever since the death of her husband ten years ago Mrs. West has been keeping house for her son, W. J. West, general superintendent for the Oliver Mining company, having came here five years ago from Chisholm. Mrs. West was 72 years old. She leaves one son, W. J. West.

MOUSER ACQUIRES PAPER.

Gilbert Man Has Taken Charge of the Herald.

Eveleth, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Gilbert Herald established by P. E. Dowling of Eveleth, has again changed hands, George W. Breidsjford, editor and manager, disposing of his interest to David M. Mouser of the Sparta Lumber company, who will edit the paper, with Gilbert City Clerk Clyde M. Campbell.

G. W. Briedsjford has decided to enter the real estate business and will conduct a land, insurance and real estate office at Gilbert.

After living her eighteen years Mr. Dowling has decided to move to Duluth. He will retain the Eveleth Star and continue as its editor, the local management being in the hands of S. A. Meade and Richard Sundberg with whom Mr. Dowling has formed a partnership.

TWO GRADES OF SCHOOL CLOSED

Numerous Cases of Scarlet Fever May Close Entire Tower School.

Tower, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The seventh and eighth grades of the public school were closed yesterday on account of scarlet fever. Some sixteen cases are reported. It is thought by some that it may be necessary to close the entire school.

Thomas O. Owens and other officials of the Iron Range road were here last week looking over the depot and have decided to make improvements. They will build an addition on the back of the old central office which will be made the new central office and the former rooms, which were central office and ladies waiting room will become the ladies waiting room. A new board will be put in and a number of other improvements will be made. There are a force of about twenty men employed now, who started work Monday.

AURORA VOTES IN FAVOR OF BONDS

Voters Almost Unanimously in Favor of the Proposition.

Aurora, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proposition of bonding the village of Aurora in the sum of $10,000 for an electric lighting plant carried at the special election here yesterday almost unanimously. The vote was 81 for the proposition and 1 against it. One ballot was improperly marked.

The election was a very quiet one, as all were for the proposition and no one against it, the vote consequently being light. Many citizens forgot there was an election.

The new village hall will be dedicated as soon as it is possible to have it lighted by electricity. The building has been practically completed for some time. The completion of the lighting plant and the dedication of the village hall will be celebrated with due prominence.

DAMAGE SUIT SETTLED.

Action Against Bangor Mining Company Is Compromised.

Virginia, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The case of Willie Hautala against the Bangor Mining company to recover damages in the amount of $5,000, which was called for trial in the district court yesterday afternoon, came to a settlement this morning on an agreement of the attorneys in the case, by the court instructing the jury to return a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, awarding him damages in the amount of $500, the costs in the case to be paid by the plaintiff.

Negotiations are pending between the attorneys in the personal injury case of John Anderson against the Mohawk Mining company, and if it is consummated the jurors will be excused until Thursday morning.

BIG COLERAINE PLANT OPERATES

Two Units of Concentrating Plant Being Successfully Used.

Coleraine, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thirty days ahead of schedule time the big concentrating plant of the Oliver Iron Mining company designed to treat certain ores of this district has started operations. One unit of the plant which has been erected under the personal supervision of Superintendent John C. Greenway of the Canisteo district was started up yesterday and the second unit began today.

It is expected that during the summer three other units of the immense plant will be ready.

Work on the concentrating plant began upwards of two years ago, following experiments conducted as long ago as 1907. It was originally planned to operate ten units and this may be done eventually, but no more than five units will be completed this year.

First Ore Dumped in Monday.

Ore was dumped into two units yesterday morning and the machinery for one unit was put into operation. The first unity has a capacity of 1,000 tons of concentrates daily. Through the success of the plant the profitable mining and handling of low grade ore are made possible. The field of mining operations on the Western Mesaba is greatly enlarged and the ore shipments of the Oliver Iron Mining company will be considerably increased.

The plant was constructed by the American Bridge company.

William Nichols is general superintendent of the washing plant and C. J. Mott is assistant superintendent. Walter Congdon, son of C. A. Congdon of Duluth, is night superintendent of the plant and Vernon Claypool, also of Duluth, is assistant superintendent.

EVELETH STREET GRADES WILL BE MADE UNIFORM.

Eveleth, Minn., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council this evening will consider the establishing of a uniform grade on all streets, with the exception of Grant avenue, which has a uniform grade.

Bids for the purchase of the old 100-gallon water tank on Pierce street, will be received.

CHAUFFEURS ORGANIZE CLUB

Temporary Organization Is Formed at Meeting of Automobile Drivers.

A temporary organization was effected by the chauffeurs of Duluth last night at the meeting held at the Russell garage. Ernest Shalgren was elected temporary president. William Shay was elected vice president; O. A. Resto, secretary, and Bert R. Russell, acting treasurer. The temporary officers and William Hunt and W. H. Healy were constituted an executive committee to go ahead with the organization plans and to take charge of the affairs of the club.

The next meeting will be held May 11 at the Russell garage. The by-laws of the Minneapolis Automobile Drivers' club will be secured and presented at the next meeting.

The object of the club is to discourage reckless driving. None but careful drivers will be allowed to become members of the organization and the club will try to make the accidents less numerous.

Those present at the meeting last night were:

Frank Dion, James Gannan, Andrew Bellis, Jay De Smith, Geary Lee, Earl Norman, Clifford Oppel, Edward O'Neil, Louis Rich, Clayton McGrath, John O'Neil, Charles Duffy, Harry Peterson, Elmer Swanson, Ernest Shalgren, George Eastman, Herbert Mosbery, Walter Holmberg, C. STONE AGAIN IN CHARGE.

Associated Press Re-Elects General Manager Unanimously.

New York, May 3.—At a meeting of the board of directors of The Associated Press at the office of the association in this city there were present Vice Presidents Johnstone and McLeannan and Directors Noyes, Ochs, Ridder, Scott, Nelson, McLean, Barr, Knapp, Clark, McClatchy, Rapier and Weiss.

By unanimous vote Melville E. Stone was reappointed general manager and Charles S. Diehl, assistant general manager.

SEATTLE COUNCIL INDORSES BALLINGER.

Seattle, Wash., May 3.—A resolution indorsing Secretary Ballinger and denouncing his critics as "enemies of good government and assassins of character" was adopted after a sharp contest in the city council last night. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee.

Favor Asiatic Aliens.

Washington, May 3.—All questions concerning the legality of the admission into the United States of "Armenians, Syrians and Jews" from Asiatic countries will be removed if a bill passed by the house yesterday becomes a law. The measure is designed to make clear the right of these subjects to enter the United States.

ANTI-PROHIBITION CANDIDATE NOMINATED.

Montgomery, Ala., May 3.—Emmett A. O'Neal, leader of the fight against the proposed amendment to put prohibition in the constitution of Alabama, defeated H. S. N. Mallory, a supporter of the amendment, by a majority of between 20,000 and 25,000 for governor on the Democratic primaries.

United States Senator Bankhead received a vote which will probably equal the combined vote of his two opponents and is assured of a new term in the senate.

Get Raise in Wages.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 3.—Eleven thousand steel workers in the plants here of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company and the Republic Steel & Iron company received wage increases yesterday ranging from 6 to 10 per cent.

Lighthouse Bill Passed.

Washington, May 3.—An omnibus lighthouse bill carrying authorization of appropriations amounting to over $1,000,000 was passed by the house yesterday.

TAFT MEETS HOME FOLKS

friends and neighbors. A luncheon at the home of Lucien Wulsin, East Walnut Hills, was succeeded by a reception at the home of J. G. Schmidlapp, on Grandin road. Count von Bernstorff was a guest of the president at this latter function, which lasted until nearly 4 o'clock.

To Attend Concert.

There was a return run then to the downtown district, where Mr. Taft talked to the Loyal Legion. He then had two hours in which to pass before the evening, when he was scheduled to attend the opening concert of the May Music festival, dedicating a statue to Theodore Thomas, attend a brief dinner at a club and then board his train for St. Louis.

Hints in Columbus.

Columbus, Ohio, May 3.—President Taft reached here at 7 o'clock and after a ten-minute wait, went on to Cincinnati. Few people were at the union station and there was no demonstration.

RUTH BRYAN IS AGAIN A BRIDE

Wedding at Lincoln Is Turned in an Affair of Mystery.

Lincoln, Neb., May 3.—Lieut. Reginald Owen and Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt were married at Fairview shortly after 9 a. m. today. The strictest secrecy was maintained. All information concerning the wedding was withheld.

Ex-Husband Keeps at Work.

Toledo, Ohio, May 3.—While Ruth Bryan Leavitt was being married at Lincoln today to Lieut. Reginald Owen, her former husband, W. H. Leavitt, was here arranging for a lecture to be given at the Y. M. C. A. tonight on "Value of Art Training." Mr. Leavitt declared that he had given up his first plan of going to Lincoln to stop the wedding in order to gain possession of his two children, but that he would start proceedings immediately to get his offspring.

EXPLODING CAP CAUSES A PANIC

Bemidji Pupil Causes Excitement in School and Is Badly Injured.

Bemidji, Minn. May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—A panic was caused in the Central school building yesterday, and John Lindvall, a 13-year-old student, was quite badly injured, by the explosion of a dynamite cap which the boy had been cleaning with a nail.

The explosion frightened the pupils in Miss Cosgrove's room, where the Lindvall boy was sitting at his desk, and they made a rush for the doors. The inmates of the other rooms also became frightened and in the rush that ensued many of the youngsters were bruised, though none of the injuries sustained were of a serious nature.

The Lindvall boy had three of the dynamite caps and had cleaned two of them. He was working on the third cap, which he had concealed under his desk, when there was an explosion, followed by a cloud of smoke reaching to the ceiling.

Boy's Hand Lacerated.

Young Lindvall screamed in terror and pain, the cap haing torn away the flesh from his two thumbs and one finger, and his yells brought on the panic among the children. Despite the effort of the teachers, the rooms were soon emptied, and it was some time before the children could be quieted and induced to re-enter the building. The Lindvall boy claimed some one had shot him through the window, and he stuck to this story until Prof. Ritch brought the two empty caps to the hospital, where the boy had been taken for treatment, and when he was confronted with them he finally admitted that he and two other boys had entered a storeroom belonging to the Crookston Lumber company and had stolen several of the caps, not knowing how really dangerous they were. While young Lindvall's injuries are painful, they are not very serious. The balance of the caps that were taken from the lumber company's warehouse have not been recovered.

MINOT MILK INSPECTION IS GENERALLY FAVORED.

Minot, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Plans for the securing of the passage of an ordinance by the Minot city commission, requiring the inspection of milk, will be laid by the newly formed public health league within a few days. This matter was brought to the attention of the league by Dr. G. F. Ruediger of the state university. Minot is one of the largest cities in North Dakota without such inspection, and the success it has met with in the other cities of the state will doubtless result in the plan being adopted here.

To Build Jamestown Armory.

Jamestown, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the work of constructing a new armory by Company H might be better handled, a building corporation has been organized, with these officers: President, Dana Wright; vice president, R. G. McFarland; treasurer, J. D. Gray, and secretary, Robert Muntz.

ABBOTSFORD, WIS., WILL SOON BE OFF THE MAP.

Abbotsford, Wis., May 3.—Abbotsford is to be abandoned as the division point for the main line of the Soo in the Ashland division, and all of the extensive railroad interests will be transferred to Spencer, as the Soo has already started on a cutoff line running from Spencer to Owen, which will shorten the distance considerably between Chicago and Minneapolis.

This will practically end Abbotsford's existence as a village, as practically all of its interests are created by railroad work.

This was economical and satisfying to Mrs. Wise. Things seemed right only when she did them.

It worked fine—everybody satisfied. Busy hands are happiest;—but the strain told—physically first, then mentally. One day she gave out—had to quit—"All run down" she said.

The facts were—complete physical exhaustion and ragged nerves, due to never-ending monotonous tasks.

The Wise's doctor said "DIGESTO"—a wine glass three times a day.

That did it.

The doctor made good, DIGESTO made good and both made Mrs. Wise good, and equal to her tasks with energy to spare.

DARBY AND HIS CREW IN THEIR OWN BACKYARD

Sox Recruits Cut Training Trip Short and Return Home.

"One of Best Fielding Teams I Have Seen," Says O'Brien.

Welcome home to the Irish Orator and his band of hopefuls:

Darby Patrick Henry O'Brien and his squad of players reached Duluth this morning, coming here from Madison, Wis., where two games with the Wisconsin-Illinois team were scheduled.

Wet weather compelled the calling off of the game of yesterday, and with little prospect of a game being played today, Darby decided that to come home would be the very best thing to do.

Every member of the squad is heartily sick of the brand of weather that has been dished out on the training trip. Very little chance to work has been given to the men, and Darby was heartily glad of the excuse to cut the trip and hike for home.

"We have one of the best fielding teams I have ever seen," said Darby today. "If the boys will start to hit, we will have a team that will be awfully hard to beat. The infield is fast and the outfielders have been covering lots of ground on the trip. Let them start to hit and there will be nothing to it.

"Sweeney at third is a great player. Daggett at short is very fast. Daggett is from South Bend. He covers lots of ground and has a good whip. Kozier at first, has everything. He can hit them a mile, and in addition to this can field both low and high throws.

"In the outfield Taylor is hitting the ball great, and Neelon is playing steady and consistent baseball. Anderson, who will be used behind the bat in some of the games, is up on his toes all the time. He is going to make one of the best men on the team.

"Kenney has everything, slow and fast ball, and good curves. Reddersdorf has a good fast ball; the cold weather has not permitted the big fellow to show all he has. Howard, likewise, has not been able as yet to show all he has. His fast ball is working great, but he has not been able to get his curves right.

"Marion and Dauss are not in the best of shape. I believe the warm weather will bring them around all right. At the present time they are not fit for work. I have lots of faith in Pete Jaenicke, who will join the team tomorrow or the day after. He was with Charley Carr last year and the present season with Rock Island. He has about everything and I expect lots of him.

"Bushy, the catcher, has a good whip and watches the bases well. He is also a good hitter. I have lots of confidence in the team and believe the warm weather will bring out the good playing of the men. So far we have hardly had a chance. We have encountered wretched weather on the trip and have been able to play but little baseball."

The game tomorrow will be played with the All-Stars, a very strong team made up of the strongest amateurs in the city. Mack Cook, the best of the local amateur pitchers, is scheduled to go into the box against the leaguers.

The game will be played for the benefit of the Lato family, the parents of the boy who was killed last season. The amateurs are confident of beating the professional players and the fans are assured of a very fast game.

The game will be called at 3:30 promptly. Special street car service has been arranged.

PEYTON HAS CREW SHIFTED

Candidates for First Eight Changed About---Men Have Hard Row.

One of the hardest workouts of the season was held last night by the first and second eights of the Duluth Boat club. In the workout of last night there was little to choose between the two crews.

Captained by Henry Talboys, the second crew made the best showing it has made the present season. The youngsters rowed like veterans, and in one of the brushes of the evening held their own with the older crew.

Coach Peyton last night placed special emphasis upon the lengthening of the stroke. The welcome news that the stroke of the Duluth crew is going to be lengthened, and that the men are going to be made to reach out, will be cheering to the veranda squad of the club, which has for several seasons criticised the rather short and choppy stroke of the Duluth eights.

Both crews covered over two miles last evening. For the first time of the season the men were made to realize what hard work means. The boat was brought home from near the old White City in one stretch, the men of the older boat finishing strong.

At times last evening the first eight took the boat along well, spacing about a foot; at other times the boat rocked badly, much of which was due to the presence of a green man in the shell.

There was a general shift last evening. Thompson was in at stroke, big John Hector rowed at six, Forgette at three, Kent at two and Lathrop at bow. Ver Wiebe was unable to be with the crew.

According to the present lineup, the crew will be even heavier than the crew of last year and will be more evenly balanced. If Crawford comes out for the crew after his return from the university, the crew will be one of the heaviest ever sent to a Western regatta.

The weight and power is in the boat. If Coach Peyton can correct the old fault of Duluth crews—the slow shoot and even slower catch—and make his men reach farther, there is no reason why Duluth won't make a mighty hard fight for the junior event at Kenora.

Rowing Capt. John McGregor yesterday wrote to Crawford, asking him to go over to the Minnesota Boat club and take some mild work in a working boat, in order that he might be in fair condition when he returns from the university.

In addition to the two eights out last evening, the bantams had their four out. The enthusiasm in rowing is increasing.

The return of big John Hector was welcomed, for the big chap is one of the best oarsmen ever developed at the Head of the Lakes. Steady at all times, he pulls a strong oar and is a great finisher.

Church Federation Active.

San Francisco, Cal., May 3.—The San Francisco church federation yesterday decided to enter the campaign against the Jeffries-Johnson fight. It was announced that as soon as the matter was in proper shape, it would be laid before Attorney General Webb and Governor Gillett, with a request for official action to prevent the encounter.

SCHRECK AND O'BRIEN STALL TEN ROUNDS.

Lexington, Ky., May 3.—No decision was rendered in the Mike Schreck-Jack O'Brien 10-round bout here last night. O'Brien had the better of it.

JEFFRIES BOXES FOUR ROUNDS

Has Bob Armstrong on the Run for Session With the Gloves.

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 3.—Jeffries started the work at his training camp with a rush yesterday. He went at the various indoor stunts in a businesslike manner, showing snap and life in every movement. This was especially noticeable in four rounds of boxing with Bob Armstrong. Jeffries had the negro on the run most of the time with right arm jabs to the neck.

More boxing was announced for the afternoon sessions, Jeffries declaring he would go a few rounds with Joe Choynski and Billy Papke. When the time came to put on the gloves, however, Jeffries had changed his mind. His boxing was left to Choynski and Papke, while Jeffries went for a boat ride. Jeffries said he wanted to do more, but considering the amount of work he had gone through early in the day, he was afraid he would overheat himself and set himself back.

"I felt full of ginger this morning," said Jeffries last night. "I think I could have gone on for an hour or two without tiring. I wired a friend of mine in New York this morning that if I felt any better I would not know what to do with myself. It was all I could do to keep out of the gymnasium this afternoon, but I will feel the better for it tomorrow."

Jeffries received a letter from his brother Jack yesterday in which he said he would join the camp the first of next week. Jeffries told him in reply to come as soon as possible. Jack always has helped Jim train for his championship battles and the ex-champion likes to have his brother around.

Johnson Takes It Easy.

San Francisco, Cal., May 3.—"What are the wild waves saying?" asked one of Jack Johnson's trainers as the big negro came into his training quarters from a long walk on the beach.

"They remind me," said the fighter, "of the thunders of applause that will sweep over the arena July 4 when I land that restful punch on Jim Jeffries."

Johnson so far has shunned the gymnasium except to superintend the installing of apparatus. Yesterday he declared he would not do any real training before the end of the week.

Johnson arose early yesterday morning, and after breakfast took a stroll along the beach, returning to camp in time for luncheon. He then ordered his touring car, and, with his wife and two other women, sped away to the downtown district. All afternoon he was a conspicuous figure on the streets and whenever he stopped crowds gathered.

SHARKEY THINKS HE CAN COME BACK.

New York, May 3.—Tom Sharkey last night caused everybody at a boxing sing to sit up and take notice. He announced in all seriousness he wanted to meet the winner of the Jeffries-Johnson bout. "Neither of the big fellows has anything on me," he said, "and I am ready to meet either one of them as the winner of the heavyweight championship."

The occasion was a benefit at the Fairmont A. C., to "Young Corbett." The amount realized for the ex-lightweight champion was about $4,500. Langford, Ketchel and other stars appeared. James J. Corbett in a speech announced that he would leave New York on May 15 to assist in training James J. Jeffries.

"I shall do everything I can," said Corbett, "to bring back Jeffries' speed. He needs some one to box with him and make him go his best."

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

Killing the Goose.

Philadelphia has been known as a city slow and of drowsy nature. But when the dear old town is aroused—oh, gee! The good citizens of the Billy Penn settlement are crying out in loud accusations over the recent six-round fight between Ketchel and Langford.

They are charging that the fight was a fake, and that the men fought under wraps, that they might secure a large purse for a 45-round fight on the coast.

There may be some truth in the reports that are emanating from Philadelphia. Remember, there were open charges that the fight scheduled for New York, between the same fighters, was a prearranged affair. It was the wide circulation of these charges that assisted in the calling off of the fight.

It was inevitable that the men would meet over the Marathon route, should there fail to be a decisive ending in the Philadelphia affair. Even if one of the men had won by the K. O. route, the vanquished would undoubtedly have asked for another chance.

There are many of the opinion that Langford can whip Ketchel. That belief has yet to be proved. The fight the other night read well. The people in Philadelphia, however, are the ones who really ought to know. If the bout was arranged, it is too bad, for surely these crooked deals are killing the sport game.

Baseball has even been above suspicion. For that reason the men in the game are making money. Crooked wrestling has killed the game in many sections of the country. Fight managers with less brains than greed for all the money in sight, will some day learn that the dear old golden goose has been killed.

The recent suspicion in Philadelphia is said to have soured many on the game exploited by Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

Now for Johnson.

It will be interesting to observe the stories that come from the camp of Johnson. The black has settled down at Occa View, Cal., and the siege of preparation is on. It's a wager that there is more honest-to-goodness news filtering from the Johnson quarters, than has been coming from the place Jeff is training at.

Johnson at the present time is in the prime of his athletic life. The coming fight should be the greatest fight he will ever make. If the fight is as hard as many believe it will be, it is very probable that Johnson will never make another one as great, win or lose.

The limelight has been focused upon Jeffries. As the date of the fight draws near the attention will be more equally divided between the two camps. There will be a growing desire to see how the two men are conditioning.

In his pictures the negro looks the very type of animal health. Jeffries looks old and his eyes fail to show that amount of vitality they showed in the old days. His bald head gives the former champion a prematurely aged look, too.

Johnson will take off about twenty-five pounds, according to the reports of his weight. It is believed he will fight at 205, while Jeff should scale at 220 or thereabouts. Johnson has a comparatively simple task ahead of him, for he does not have to build up muscles that are unused to severe exertions. Jeff has come through the "comeback" period, and don't believe them when they say that he "never went."

You will see by the press reports that Johnson's training will progress smoothly and that he will round into magnificent condition. We are all hoping that the same is true of the conditioning of Jeff. Now that the two men are working, it is only natural that parallels will be drawn between the work of the two gladiators.

From now on the colored man will begin to revel in the publicity he so dearly loves.

Welcome Home. Team.

Darby O'Brien and his squad are due home tomorrow. Tomorrow afternoon the fans will be given the first opportunity to watch the work of the men who are going to try to repeat the 1909 performance. The spring championship series with Superior will start Thursday and continue until the two teams are ready to open the regular season.

O'Brien has still a fairly large squad with him and there will have to be some weeding. He has a large number of pitchers, one or two of the present staff will in all probability be disposed of before the first of June, when all of the teams of the league will be compelled to get inside the salary limit.

There is some doubt as to whether Marion will be seen with the Sox the present season. In the event of the big fellow not caring to play, a strong pitching staff will have to be built up around Dauss and Cummings. Out of the bunch Kuehnow has under contract, at least two good pitchers should be obtained.

O'Brien and Mr. Kuehnow are confident that players have been secured who will bring another flag to Duluth. The team winning the pennant the present season in the Minnesota-Wisconsin will, according to the belief of the newspapers around the circuit, have to be a stronger team than the winner of the calico of 1909.

At the present writing every team in the league, with the exception of Rochester, seems strong. Red Wing looks strong, while Eau Claire is already being picked as a pennant winner. Darby and his crew have a very hard proposition upon their hands.

People in these parts have a lot of confidence in the judgment of Darby.

He has shown in the past that he knows a baseball player when he sees one and that he has the ability to get the work out of players. He seems satisfied with the players he has in the squad. Remember, Darby had confidence in the team last season, when most of the fans believed Duluth would finish below Superior. Mercy, Mary! Think of it.

If the weather is at well behaved during the next week the team will be able to get some practice that it has been unable to get on the trip. As O'Brien is not satisfied as to what men will make the team as yet, you can readily see the need of practice.

CHICAGO CLUB FINED $200 IN KLING CASE.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 3.—The last proceedings in the "Kling case" was taken by the National baseball commission yesterday when a suspended fine of $200 was assessed against the Chicago National league club.

The penalty was inflicted because the club, in violation of Rule 47 of the commission, tendered the player a contract before he had been restored to good standing. his fine was suspended because the club while acknowledging its guilt, showed that the rule had been violated to protect its own interests and that there had been no intention of deceiving the commission.

The club was cited to show cause why it should not be fined when the catcher was restored to baseball official family. President Murphy gave as his excuse for transgressing the rule that fact that he wished to retain this club's rights to the player's services and that the commission was given due notices of his action. "This contention on the part of the Chicago club is correct," says the finding promulgated yesterday.

NOTABLES SEE PIRATES TROUNCE MURPHY'S PETS.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 3. — President William H. Taft, Secretary of State Knox and Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, were guests of the Pittsburg league baseball club at Forbes' field yesterday afternoon at a game in which the world's champions defeated Chicago 5 to 2.

The distinguished guests kept their eyes always on the ball and hardly passed a remark during the game, but that they were quick to see the fine points, was evidenced by the fact that they were first to applaud a brilliant play.

Wagner, who is said to be the president's favorite, made a brilliant showing, scoring two runs, making a two-bagger, and a double play. Although the visitors hit oftener, the locals were more effective in placing them and took advantage of four errors by Calcago. Before the game the president wrote his best wishes and signature on two baseballs and presented them to Wagner and Manager Clark, of the Pittsburg club. Over 20,000 people saw the game. Score: R. H. TWO PROTESTS FILED AFTER FARCE GAME.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 3.—At the conclusion of the game in which Cincinnati defeated St. Louis here yesterday by a score of 9 to 4, two protests were filed with President Lynch of the National league. The first came from Manager Bresnahan who alleged that Umpire McGinnis was incompetent and that his decisions were unfair and made the game a farce. Directly following this came a protest from President August Herrmann of the Cincinnati team against Manager Bresnahan's actions, in making the game the ridiculous exhibition tht it was Shortly after Cincinnati had scored five runs in the first inning, Bresnahan switched his team around to unaccustomed positions.

McGinnis is a local umpire and officiated on account of the failure of President Lynch to appoint regular umpires to officiate, as the game yesterday was one that was postponed from last week. McGinnis, however, was appointed by Lynch and was agreed upon by both teams before play started. Score: R. H. E.

ONE SCRATCH HIT MADE OFF MATHEWSON.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 3.—Mathewson got a near no-hit game yesterday, a scratch by McElveen in the eighth inning spoiling an otherwise clean pitching record. Devlin made a one-handed stop of the ball, but threw low while off his balance, and a hit was scored. Sensational fielding by Devore and Devlin saved Mathewson on other occasions.

The New Yorks won, 6 to 0, by good hitting and by taking advantage of Scanlon's wildness and poor support. Four fast double plays were fielding features. Score: R. H. E.

PHILLIES BEAT DOVES IN SLUGGING MATCH.

Boston, Mass., May 3.—Each team used three pitchers in the exciting game which Philadelphia won from Boston yesterday, 9 to 8. Boston tied the score in the first inning when Moran stole home. Both teams batted hard in the second and piled up numerous runs. Collins sending in three ahead of himself by a home run with the bases full. Score: R. H. E.

MOVEMENT TO PREVENT FIGHT

Philadelphia Ministers Propose Nation-Wide Protest to Governor Gillett.

Philadelphia, May 3.—Philadelphia Methodist ministers are endeavoring to start a nation-wide protest against the Johnson-Jeffries fight in California on July 4. At the weekly meeting of the Methodist Preachers' association, a resolution was adopted which says:

"Resolved, That the permission of this fight can be regarded as nothing less than a national disgrace and a calamity to the moral life of our people; that the Philadelphia preachers' meeting protest against the permission of this fight, and that we invite the ministers of all denominations in the state of Pennsylvania and in other states to stir their people and to unite with us in a protest to the governor of California against the permission to conduct this fight."

RAYMOND DID NOT WANT A KEEPER

"BUGS" RAYMOND
Of the New York Nationals.

"Bugs" Raymond has quit the Giants and returned. He went up to the Polo grounds and collected all his uniforms, gloves, bats and all other paraphernalia which he considered his individual property and left for parts unknown. He said he had made up his mind to quit and that he was no "pareses patient" and did not need a keeper. Two days later he returned, however, and beat Philadelphia in a thirteen inning game. Raymond is in a class with Rube Waddell. He is a good pitcher, but hard to control. He is a pressman and worked on a Chicago newspaper all winter.

MINNY LEAGUE NOTES

President John A. Elliott of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league, has ordered all of the umpires of the league to report at La Crosse the seventh of the present month, to receive instructions on some of the things that will be expected of them the present season.

Ollie Anderson, Frank Augur, Thomas McDermott, Thomas Arnundel, W. E. Griffiths and H. J. Brinkmann are the six indicator holders signed by Elliott. According to the plans of large John A., these men will spend at least three days in La Crosse, getting thoroughly in touch with some of the regulation that will be expected to enforce the present season.

The weakness of the staff of umpires was the most glaring deficiency of the league last season. President Elliott is determined that this weakness will be remedied the present season, and with that determination in mind, has signed six of the best men he could find. During the heart to heart talk with the head of the league these men will be made thoroughly familiar with the duties they are expected to fulfill.

Around the circuit it is generally predicted that Eau Claire will have one of the strongest pitching staffs in the league. Schoonhoven has Morrow, Worman and Nicholson of last year's team, and McShane, Johnson and Erdmann, new comers.

Fans here remember well the slim Morrow. He was a green youth last season, but at that, had smoke and great curves. He lacked experience. Schoonhoven believes the Quincy youngster will make one of the very best pitchers in the league the present season. His opinion is shared by others who noticed the work of the tall youth.

Worman is a good man and Nicholson did some great work at the close of last season. In the practice games the new slab candidates have been showing up in great style, which leads to the opinion that Schoonhoven is going to have a hurling hill brigade that will be hard to beat.

If the early season form of Eau Claire can be taken as a criterion of the strength the team will show throughout the season, that team is going to be awfully hard to beat.

Otto Koepping was yanked out of the shortstop position down at Winona the other day and a player by the name of Altermott tried out in the short field. The Winona Independent says that Altermott is the most promising candidate tired in the position. All of which looks bad for Otto, the traveler.

In Outfielder McNutt, Winona seems to have secured a very fast baseball player. He is performing in right field to date and has shown a lot of class. His fielding has been fast and he is covering a lot of territory, and in addition, the Irishman is hitting the spheriod on the nose.

Ancient Tom Letcher, who played first base part of last season for La Crosse, has been shifted to the Regina outfield. The veteran has been playing baseball since Jake Beckley broke into the game, which passes the memory of man, yet somehow manages to hold on.

Pitcher Converse of Minneapolis, at one time a member of the Minneapolis league team, has been released by Uncle Joe Kilian. The Converse party has been working in a dry goods store in the Mill City and was not in the best condition when he reported. He became convinced that he could not get into condition and has returned to the less strenuous labor of selling the all wool and a yard wide stuff.

Harry Perry, a candidate for the outfield, has also returned to Minneapolis. Perry came to Winona with medals of honorable mention hung over his chest, but failed to deliver the goods.

A. W. Kuehnow is mighty sweet on Kozier, the first base guardian of the Sox. He says the big fellow steps into the ball in the manner of Sam Crawford and that the pellet generally goes a mile when he slams it. On the spring training trip Kozier has been well spoken of.

Moore, secured from the Kansas City American Association team, looks like a find for Schoonhoven. This fellow is said to hit around .265 and to be a very fast fielder and also to possess a good whip. Last season Eau Claire was weak at the difficult angle of the diamond. If Moore is as good as they believe he is in Eau Claire he will make the Schoonhoven infield very classy.

It looks from here as if Jack Corrigan has secured some old timers who will have short life in this league. The opinion may be premature, but one or two of the players signed by Happy Jack would seem to come under the ban placed upon usefulness by that eminent authority Dr. Osler.

Brookings, believed to be the same player who was at third for Fargo in the old Northern league, and one of the most talked of players in the business, is holding down third for Regina. This chap is a wonder, and were it not for the fact that he was colored, would have gone to the American association. In fact he was signed by Watkins of Indianapolis, who had no idea that the player was colored. Brookings set up the claim that he was an Indian. He caused no little trouble in Northern league circles.

Smiling Pete Neelon, the popular center fielder of the Sox, is said to be hitting the ball harder than last year. Hitting was the only weakness of the Cleveland boy. As a fielder he classed with Malloy of La Crosse. He can go out and pull them down and come in fast and scoop the ones that come at the shoe strings. Withal Neelon is a hard working player, always pulling for the success of the team. Last year was his first in professional company. It is to be hoped that the youngster will get away well the present season.

Harry Crangle, right fielder of the Winona Pirates, is the last player to report to the Winona squad. Crangle held down right field last year.

Brozski is the name of one of the Winona pitchers. So far he has shown that he is very wild. Is it any wonder? It's enough to make a man wild to have a name like that.

MOTOR BOAT DERBY IS SET

Thousand Islands Club Names Date for Gold Challenge Cup Event.

The Thousand Islands Yacht club, holders of the American Power Boat association gold challenge cup, won two years ago by Dixie II from the Chippewa Bay Yacht club, and last year successfully defended by her, has just set the dates for this year's races, which will take place on the club course, off Alexandria bay, Thousand islands, on Aug. 4, 5 and 6.

This race is one of the most important motor boat events of the year as it typifies the speed supremacy of the United States and has become a classic among motor boat events. It is for a cup given by the American Power Boat association in 1904 and was raced for twice that season, being first won by the famous Standard and later by the Challenger for the Chippewa Bay Yacht club, which successfully defended it against all comers until the summer of 1909, when it was won by the Dixie II for the Thousand Islands Yacht club.

The conditions of the race limit the length of the boats competing to forty feet over all, but no other restrictions are specified, and each year the gold challenge cup race brings out in competition the fastest boats of the country. The conditions of the deed of gift specify that the club holding the cup shall defend it between May 30 and Oct. 1, against all challenges and one challenge must be delivered to the holding club at least six months before the date set for the race or series of races called for by the conditions. The races are run off in three heats on consecutive days and each heat cannot be for less than twenty or more than forty nautical miles, the winner being decided upon by the point system, whereby each boat entering and finishing a heat of a match receives one point for entry and one additional point for each boat she defeats, the winner being the boat scoring the highest number of points in all the heats of the race.

After one challenge has been received by the holding club, other boats representing other clubs, may also file challenges at any time up to ten days before the dates set for the races and as a result of this provision, each year has seen from four to a dozen boats competing. This year the first challenge for the cup was received by the Thousand Islands Yacht club from the Chippewa Bay Yacht club, the former holder of the trophy, and up to date one other club has also challenged, the New York Motor Boat club, naming as its challenger, the "intruder," now building for F. K. Burnham. Four other new boats are building, which will be eligible under the conditions of the deed of gift and from which great things are expected in the way of speed. Among these is the new "Hoosier Boy," the successor of the very successful boat of that name of last year. The Gananoque Yacht club is also building a challenger and it is to be presumed that Dixie II will again be in the running, so that the 1910 event should be the most important and eventful in the history of the cup.

RICH PRIZES OFFERED.

Great Northern Racing Circuit of North Dakota Arranges Events.

Duluth horsemen may be interested in the announcement of the 1910 dates of the Great Northern Racing circuit of North Dakota. There are some of the local horsemen who have in the past raced their horses at some of the meets held by this association.

The present season, meetings will be held at Bowbells, Minot, Rugby, Cando, Grand Forks and Fargo. The richest stakes in the history of North Dakota harness racing have been hung up by the various local associations. Fargo offers five $1,000 purses on the five different days of the meeting.

Local horse owners desiring further information on this subject can obtain it by addressing M. C. Bachelier, secretary of the circuit, or can be directed to the local association secretaries by the sporting editor of The Evening Herald.

VANDERBILT'S DEFENDER WINS RACE IN FRANCE.

Paris, May 3.—In the racing at St. Cloud yesterday the prix de la Passerelle of $700 distance, one mile, 4½ furlongs, was won by W. K. Vanderbilt's Defender.

Petropolis III, owned by J. F. Widener, ran third in the prix des Pepulurs of $800 for 3 year olds, distance of seven furlongs.

Meeting Is Postponed.

Chicago, May 3.—The meeting of the club owners of the American Asociation scheduled to be held here today was postponed indefinitely, due in part to the inability of President Cantillon of the Minneapolis club to be present owing to a death in his family.

AMATEUR BADLY BEATEN BY JACK SULLIVAN.

New York, May 3.—Five rounds of hard pummeling was all Al Benedict could stand in a bout last night with Jack (Twin) Sulivan before the Marathon Athletic club, in Brooklyn. The bout was to have gone ten rounds but the beating Benedict received caused his backers to ask the referee to allow him to leave the ring at the end of the fifth. Benedict is the young husky whom Billy Madden brought out recenily from a series of elimination amateur bouts.

The Worry Habit.

One can say "don't worry" and preach the golden rule of optimism until one is blue in the face but to no avail, because one cannot give the formula for the worry habit that will apply to all individuals alike. As a preventive keep the nerves strong by the daily use of a good malt tonic, such as Golden Grain Belt beer. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branches, Minneapolis Brewing company.

MUNICIPAL CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

CITY WILL DEMAND ITS RIGHTS ON WATERFRONT

E. M. Morgan Is Appointed Counsel to Investigate Dock Question.

Council Wants Firemen to Have One Day Off in Seven.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Appointed E. M. Morgan special assistant to investigate the dock and terminal question.

Laid over the question of giving the firemen one day off in every seven.

Awarded contract for addition to No. 3 fire hall to Hugh Fawcett.

Granted miscellaneous licenses.

Directed committee to investigate condition of permanent improvement fund.

Laid over purchase of site for hillside fire hall at Fifth avenue east and Eighth street one week.

Gave board of public works permission to pay teamsters 60 cents an hour the rest of the year.

Transacted other routine business.

The city council last evening appointed E. M. Morgan special assistant to City Attorney Bert Fesler in the investigation of the dock and railroad terminal question, which the city is now endeavoring to solve.

Mr. Morgan was formerly first assistant city attorney and has much knowledge of the local situation. He delved deeply into property matters while serving in the office of the city attorney and probably is more familiar with the fine points involved than any of the legal men in Duluth outside of possibly a few of the attorneys of the railroads.

The resolution passed by the council provides that Attorney Morgan shall serve without compensation. Another body which is looking after the interests of the city has provided the necessary funds.

The solution of the dock and terminal questions are recognized as the most important confronting the city today. The railroads have the available sites and terminals under their thumb at the present time, but it is believed that if the matter is turned up from top to bottom something will be uncovered which will aid the city in its fight. The authorities believe that they can secure clear title to the two blocks of dock property on the west side of Lake avenue adjacent to the canal. It is possible that something may also be discovered in the railroad franchises which will be a big aid. The need for action is apparent and no time is being lost in the investigation which is now under way.

Should anything which will give the city a firm foothold on the dockage on the harbor front be discovered, it does not necessarily follow that Duluth will at once establish a line of municipal docks. The city rights could be used as a club to prevent the throttling of competition and secure equitable and just rates for local shippers.

Most of the business transacted by the council last evening was of a routine nature. Many sidewalks were ordered laid, several sewer petitions were acted upon, numerous miscellaneous licenses granted and other improvements ordered made.

Some dissention arose over the disposition of the $2,000 appropriated last fall to give the firemen one day off in every seven after July 1. Alderman Shartel offered a resolution questioning the intentions of the board of fire commissioners to use the money for the purpose for which the council intended it. He stated that it was rumored that once the money was in its fund the board had never intended to use it to give the men a day off each week. He said that it was about time that the council gave the various departments of the city to understand that the council would not tolerate the deviation of funds appropriated for specific purposes. The resolution was laid over one week with instructions to the committee on fire department to confer with the fire board and report next Monday night. An amendment gave it as the sense of the council that that body favors giving the men one day off in every seven.

H. E. Webster, health commissioner, reported that three steel garbage wagons of two cubic yards capacity can be purchased for $804, and that the cost of horses and other equipment would bring the cost up to $2,367.50. He said the cost of an electric garbage truck of 2,500 to 4,000 pounds capacity would be $3,000. The cost of operating the electric truck was given as $1,509.46, as compared with $2,575 for operating a gasoline car for one year. He urged immediate action on the garbage matter. The report was referred to the committee on city property.

The board of public works was authorized to employ teamsters at 50 to 60 cents an hour the rest of the year. The board claimed that several teamsters have recently quit because their pay had not been raised and that several others would probably follow suit unless they were paid 60 cents an hour.

The finance committee was instructed to confer with the city comptroller during the week to ascertain the condition of the permanent improvement fund. It is believed that after the cost of the addition to No. 3 fire hall is paid it will be about exhausted. The committee will report next Monday night.

The contract for the erection of the addition to No. 3 hall at First avenue east and Third street, awarded by the fire board to Hugh Fawcett, was confirmed. The cost of the work will be $8,195. The matter has been in the air for two years, despite the fact that new stables and a horse hospital have been badly needed.

The award of the contract for a site for a hillside fire hall at Fifth avenue east and Eighth street to N. J. Upham, for $1,150 was not confirmed, being postponed one week. Some of the aldermen wanted to investigate the situation further. But one bid for sites in that locality was received at the meeting of the board of fire commissioners last week.

The health commissioner was authorized to hire an assistant matron at a salary of $60 a month and a nurse at $50 a month, for the new contagious disease hospital. It is full at present and has been self sustaining.

The council discontinued upon protest of G. G. Hartley about a mile of walk which had been ordered at Woodland. He claimed that the expense was unnecessary and that the imposition of burdens of that nature tends to discourage farming in that vicinity, putting a stumbling block in the way of the solution of the high cost of living problem.

Permission was granted to use the street in building a concrete tunnel to connect the high school and the new manual training school at Lake avenue and Third street. The tunnel will be used in connection with the heating plant.

The board of public works was instructed to improve Greysolon road between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues with Telford macadam and rough stone gutters.

A petition was received for the installation of rough stone gutters on West Second street between Sixth and Eighth avenues.

A petition was received for the improvement of Twenty-fifth avenue east between London road and First street. The petitioners want it paved to a width of twenty-four feet between sandstone curbs with grass plots on either side.

Mayor Cullum and others petitioned for a sewer in the alley between Greysolon place and Superior street from Twenty-seventh to Thirty-first avenues with an outlet to the sewer in Greysolon road.

Oneota residents petitioned for a sewer system in Thirty-ninth and Forty-first avenues and Magellan street with an outlet in Oneota street.

The poundmasters appointed by the mayor were L. T. Turnbull, Chris Ottinger, M. McIntyre, Owen Devaney, H. P. Johnson and H. W. Howard.

NEW BILL ON POSTAL BANK

Gardner Presents One in the House to Replace Senate Measure.

Washington, May 3.—A new postal savings bank bill was introduced in the house yesterday by Representative Gardner, Republican, of New Jersey. Mr. Gardner's bill makes several radical departures from the postal savings bank measure as passed by the senate. The main points of difference are that the Gardner measure would provide that postal savings banks should be established only where the board of trustees should deem it advisable; that national banks only should be made depositories of postal savings funds, and should pay the government 2½ per cent interest; that the government should withdraw 85 per cent of the total of those funds from the national banks wherever they shall have aggregated $2,000,000 and that these withdrawals should be brought to Washington and invested in government bonds or other national securities under the direction of the board of trustees.

Trustees the Same.

The board of trustees, as in the senate bill, would consist of the postmaster general, the secretary of the treasury and the attorney general.

Mr. Gardner is a member of the house committee on postoffices and postroads, which has the senate postal savings bank bill under consideration. He is also chairman of the sub-committee of that committee which recently reported without being able to reach an agreement on what kind of a postal savings bank bill to recommend. Explaining his bill, he said: "I have introduced the only pure postal savings bank bill that is before the house. The senate bill embraces an Australian idea and is a Socialistic scheme to some extent."

Mr. Gardner explained that there are two systems of postal savings banks—one gathering deposits from the people for the use of the government and the other obtaining deposits to be re-loaned to the people through the banks and in other ways. The latter sort he characterized as Socialistic. He said the bill which he had introduced was of the former kind.

CONFIRM HUGHES FOR COURT SEAT

Senators Take Prompt Action and No Opposition Appears.

Washington, May 3. — To Governor Hughes has been awarded the compliment of confirmation by the senate for the high office of the supreme court immediately after his nomination had been reported from the committee on judiciary. Senator Depew took the precaution to visit all the senators who for one reason or another might ask to have the nomination go over for a day in accordance with the usual practice. He represented to them his desire that confirmation should be prompt and unquestioned, and met with no opposition.

YOUTH KILLS HIMSELF ON ROCK ISLAND TRAIN.

Waterloo, Iowa, April 3.—A young man, apparently 25 years old, bearing a memorandum book containing the name of Louis Koell, stabbed himself to death through the heart in a Rock Island passenger train at Waverly Junction, Iowa, yesterday. His ticket showed that he was traveling from Minneapolis to Davenport, Iowa. His body was taken off the train at Waterloo.

COULDN'T SLEEP; NOW SHE CANNOT WAKE UP.

East Palestine, Ohio, May 3.—Mrs. Bert Ikert of this city remained awake forty-five days until April 25. On that date she fell into a sleep, out of which she cannot be aroused. She had been suffering for three months with an attack of grippe.

TAFT BILL HIT HARD

Insurgents in the Senate Force Regular Republicans to Compromise.

Railroad Measure Will Have Little Left But Court Clause.

Washington, May 3.—President Taft's railroad legislation will be emasculated.

At the close of a protracted conference of leading regular Republican senators last night, it was apparent that the revolt of the senate insurgents had been virtually successful, and that the selections of the bill relative to traffic agreements and mergers, which Senator Cummins and other insurgents have been fighting to amend, will be abandoned.

Practically nothing distinctive of the original bill will remain save the sections providing for the creation of a court of commerce. Even that has had a perilous time in the house and nobody is prepared to guarantee that it will be enacted.

In fact, the differences between the senate and house are so great that in view of the radical action decided upon by senate leaders last night, it would surprise nobody if the bill should fail in conference.

Telephoned to Taft.

So serious became the situation that President Taft himself at Pittsburg was advised of the situation by telephone by Senator Aldrich.

Despairing of putting the bill through the senate in the form in which it was reported from the committee on interstate commerce, the leaders in this conference last night decided to eliminate Section No. 7, which the insurgents claim practically would have repealed the Sherman anti-trust law by permitting traffic agreements, and Section No. 12, which would have legalized mergers in cases where one railroad corporation owning already 50 per cent of another decided to control outright.

Upon the insurgents the administration will try to place the responsibility for the failure of the Taft railroad legislation.

Slough Off Responsibility.

To Senator Aldrich over the telephone, Mr. Taft is said to have expressed himself emphatically to this effect:

That he had initiated the pending measure and had advocated it throughout the country in the form in which it was reported to the senate, and that if a combination of insurgent Republicans and Democrats rendered it impossible for the Republican majority to enact the bill, then he felt that the administration should be relieved of responsibility for its defeat. He rested the entire matter in the hands of Senator Aldrich and his Republican associates who were then in conference.

In the conference were Senators Aldrich, Elkins, Carter, Kean, Crane, Root, Curtis, Flint, Brandegee, Lodge and from time to time, others of the Republican leaders.

PLAN MOTOR BOAT RACES

Cups Will Be Offered for Competition in Different Classes.

Conference Committee Will Arrange Schedule of Summer Sports.

At a meeting last night of the motor boat committee of the Duluth Boat club and Capt. R. W. Marshall of that department, plans were made for the coming season. It was stated today that cups had been sucered from J. E. Simmons, the designer of the special twenty-six-foot class boats; the Ferre Machine & Engine company, the company supplying engines for the boats; and three special cups to be donated by the boat club.

The committee decided that three races will be held for the special twenty-six-foot class boats, a cup being given for each of the races. The cup donated by the Northern Hardware company, the Ferre cup and the cup donated by Simmons, will be raced for in this class.

The Kelley Hardware company has donated a loving cup, and this will be put up in one of the motor boat classes, as well as the three cups that will be presented by the club.

The boats will be divided into the 40, 32, 26 and 20-foot classes. The distance will be twenty miles for the 40 and 32-foot classes and fifteen miles for the other two classes.

It is planned to have the cups raced for each year, permanent possession to be given to the boat owner whose boats win three years in succession.

It was stated today that the five-mile kite-shaped course had been surveyed by Engineer Taylor, a member of the motor boat committee. The course will have its finish in front of the tennis court of the club. The course is laid out on the general plan of the course at Peoria, Ill.

Annual Carnival Planned.

Members of the motor boat committee see a great future for the motor boat racing here. Today Capt. R. W. Marshall stated that it is the plan of the members of the committee, acting with the officials of the boat club, eventually to hold an annual carnival here, such as is held annually by the Peoria club, which is a member of the Mississippi Valley Racing association. It is believed that the carnival, so long suggested as a most fitting annual celebration for Duluth, will grow out of the idea being fostered by the members of the motor boat committee.

Some time the present week the conference committee, a committee including representatives from all the departments of the club, will get together and fix upon the racing schedules of the sailboats, the oarsmen and the motor boats. Tentative plans have been made for the starting of the motor boat races July 2. However, this date will be submitted to the members of the conference committee.

It is planned to present fobs to the oarsmen this season and this plan will come before the members of the conference committee.

The field department representatives will also be present at the conference, when plans for the sports held under that department head will be brought up and arranged for.

The most active summer in the history of the club is being planned. According to present plans, which are tentative as yet, informal races between the crews of the club will begin soon after the opening of the club, some time the present month.

The Ladies' Independent Label league will meet tomorrow night in Kalamazoo hall.

May Reach $5,000.
The total amount collected for St. Mary's on "tag day" was $4,569.15, according to the official report, completed this afternoon. Many friends of the Sisters of St. Benedict are sending in their checks for the benefit of St. Mary's as are also many old patients who still remember all the kindness and care received at the hospital. From all indications the $5,000 mark will be reached.

One Elevator Running.
One elevator is running at the courthouse. The other lift is being repaired and it is expected that it, too, will be in running order by the first of the week.

Driver Is Fined.
Frank Cunningham paid a fine of $3 in police court this morning for violating the traffic ordinance near First avenue west and Michigan street. He had his horse headed in the wrong direction and left it standing without a weight.

Seeking J. J. Kennedy.
The police are trying to locate James J. Kennedy, who is supposed to reside in this city. His mother at Winnipeg is very anxious to hear from him. He was last heard of several years ago at Lake Linden, Mich., and is thought to have moved to Duluth with his family. He has been employed in foundries, according to the letter received by the police.

Kapinn Pleads Guilty.
Morris Kaplan, the Socialist orator, who was arrested last week for obstructing the sidewalk in front of the Co-operative store on West First street, near Fourth avenue west, entered a plea of guilty in police court yesterday afternoon. Sentence was suspended on his promise not to repeat the offense.

Held to Grand Jury.
Frank Fiala, a sailor, arrested in a bowery saloon for drawing indecent pictures, was bound over to the next grand jury in police court yesterday afternoon. His bail was fixed at $50, which he was unable to furnish.

In New Quarters.
Walter G. Zimmerman, contracting manager of the American Bridge company in Duluth, has taken new quarters in the Sherwood building and will remove from the present offices in the Columbia building.

Record of Case Is Filed.
The record of the case of Mike Rossi, sentenced to death for first degree murder, was filed yesterday with Clerk of Court J. P. Johnson. Rossi was convicted of the murder of Antonio De Meo. The hanging will not take place until some time in June.

Debating Teams Chosen.
Class debates at the Duluth high school will be inaugurated this month. The senior and freshmen teams were chosen yesterday, as follows: Seniors, Lloyd Green, Alfred Ott and Gilbert Bates; freshmen, Norman Cook, William McDunnough and Joseph Abrams. Sophomore and junior teams will be selected this week.

Deserter Is Sentenced.
Arrested as a deserter from the army in this city March 24, Nels Holm, Company K, Sixth Infantry, stationed at Fort Missoula, has been sentenced to serve eighteen months at hard labor at Leavenworth prison and to be dishonorably discharged. He was tried at Fort Snelling. Policeman Conroy made the arrest.

Dr. McAuliffe.
Dr. McAuliffe has removed his office to 605 Alworth building.

Assaulted A Janitor.
Filippo Porche was fined $10 and costs or ten days in police court this morning on pleading guilty to disorderly conduct. He had trouble with the janitor at the union station when he was ordered out of a toilet room. It appears that the janitor threatened him with a mop, whereupon he mopped the floor of the station with the janitor, swabbing him around so hard that he couldn't go to work the next day.

Sod Thief Fined.
The police are continuing their campaign against men who are taking sod from private property. Gunder Peterson, who pleaded guilty to trespass this morning on complaint of W. E. Richardson, was fined $3 and costs. He is the fourth man to be arrested since Saturday on the same charge. The other three were given until May 10 to replace the sod they had removed. The appearance of property is destroyed when the sod is cut from it and calls forth strenuous protests from the neighbors in the vicinity.

Damages of One Cent.
A jury in district court today awarded John Doyle 1 cent damages from M. La Chance for slander. Doyle alleged that La Chance said that Doyle was getting some graft money from Edward Armstrong, a contractor, in connection with a paving contract at Proctor, Armstrong having been awarded the contract. Doyle sued for $2,000.

WATER IS LOW IN THE STREAMS

Court Officer Ed Jensen and Nels Grendering returned last night from a three days' trout fishing trip on the Alger-Smith road. They tried three streams that have big reputations as well as one or two lakes, but did not get a heavy catch. They report that the water in the streams is the lowest they have ever seen it, at this time of the year. They started at the north branch of Beaver river and came back as far as Skunk river.

PORTRAIT OF HENRY TRUELSEN

David Erieson's portrait in oil of Henry Truelson, former mayor of Duluth, is on exhibition at J. H. Edwards' decorative art store, 14 Second avenue west, where it is attracting much attention. It is a life-like picture of the well known former chief executive of the city, who is now a resident of Zenith, N. D.

The painting was secured through the efforts of a committee, composed of Mayor Cullum, President L. B. Manley of the municipal water and light board, and John Goneka.

It will be hung in the city hall.

PAYS MONEY FOR PHANTOM JOB

L. J. Waterman caused the arrest of William Barker today on the charge of swindling him out of $2 in a fake employment scheme yesterday.

Waterman and a friend, Robert McKay answered an advertisement for cooks. They met the man, who claimed that he wanted to hire them, in front of a Superior street building. He stated that he would put them to work for Leslie Brothers, Minneapolis contractors. All he required was that each of them hand him $2.00 as a guarantee that they would be at the train.

They complied, but Barker failed to show up at the station, whereupon they notified the police. Riding on a street car in Superior this forenoon, Waterman saw a sign on an employment office for cooks. He investigated and when told that the man was getting help for Leslie Brothers, asked for his description. He called an officer and placed Barker under arrest. The Duluth authorities were notified and Barker was brought here by Detective Terry. Barker will be arraigned in court this afternoon, probably for petty larceny.

NORTH BUTTE HITS LOW MARK

Sells Below $30 for First Time Since It Was Listed.

The copper market opened firm, but the strength was due solely to an oversold condition of the market and prices soon slumped under short selling. The only factor that held the market up in the early hours was the strength in Steel common. When this issue hit the toboggan the remainder of the industrial list began to sink and coppers accompanied other classes of stocks on the downturn.

Declines in most instances were severe. On the early bulge the shorts assaulted the market and the only resistance came from shorts, who occasionallly accepted profits, causing temporary rallies. The market closed weak and lifeless.

The copper metal situation is weak and holders of metal are talking of lower prices which, they think, may clear up the big surplus and inject a healthy tone into the market. In the meantime production is heavy with prospects of an increase.

Lake declined from $53 to $49.87½ and rallied to $50.50. Ojibway sold at $6.75, Superior & Pittsburg at $11.75 to $12 and back to $11.75. Amalgamated sold at $66.75 to $63.87½ and up to $64.12½. North Butte declined from $33 to $29.87½, the lowest point since it was listed on the Boston exchange. Its highest point for the day was $33.12½. Its lowest was at the close. Copper Range lost 2 points from $66, and Butte Coalition declined from $19 to $18.50. Giroux sold at $6.75 to $6.62½ and back to the opening. Steel common sold at $80 to $80.62½ and down to $78.50, rallying to $79.12½. Calumet & Arizona sold at $61 to $59. Greene-Cananea sold at $8 to $8.12½ to $7.75 and up to $7.87½.

Trading was quiet here. Copper Queen sold at 35c; Giroux at $6.93¾; Red Warrior at $1.68¾; Shattuck at $24.50; Butte & Superior at $1.87½; Calumet & Sonora at $18.18¾ to $18; Cliff at $1.56; Sierra at $3.12½; North America at $2.93¾.

SUICIDE'S BODY FOUND IN THE RED RIVER.

Fargo, N. D. May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of "Kid" Reynolds, the young prize fighter and gambler, who committed suicide in Red river three weeks ago, was found Sunday night. It was less than one hundred feet from where he went down.

BODY IS FOUND IN RED RIVER

Grand Forks, N. D., May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Henry Hemsing of Grand Forks was found in the Red river at Oslo, Minn., Sunday afternoon. He either committed suicide or was accidently drowned in Grand Forks, the body floating to Oslo.

Although badly decomposed the features were still recognizable. The clothing was in good shape and there was no indication of Hemsing having met with foul play. In the clothing was found $1.50 also a gold watch.

Hemsing is said to have been the owner of a claim in the eastern part of Marshall county, Minnesota, and has a brother residing at Rollis, Minn. For some time prior to his disappearance from Grand Forks, he had been drinking heavily. He was about 25 years old and unmarried.

HOUSE AND BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE.

The residence and barn of Ignatz Walaroweez, on West Ninth street between Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth avenue, was totally destroyed by fire shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, causing a loss of about $1,100 fully covered by insurance. The cause is unknown as no one was at home when the blaze started.

The West end department had too short a string of hose to reach the burning house and called upon the West Duluth department. The house was a long way from the nearest hydrant, and when the firemen were able to turn a stream of water on it, the place was about down to the ground.

OBITUARY

John H. Converse of the Baldwin Locomotive works, one of the most prominent Presbyterian laymen in the United States, died suddenly of heart trouble at his suburban home in Rosemont, near Philadelphia, May 3. Mr. Converse was 69 years old. He had given much of his wealth to the Presbyterian and other denominations and took a deep interest in church affairs.

Mr. Converse was born in Burlington, Vt., and entered the employ of Baldwin's locomotive works in 1870, three years later becoming a member of the firm. In 1900 Mr. Converse was vice-moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States of America. He was a trustee of Princeton Theological seminary.

MICHIGAN GETS READY FOR TEST

New York, May 3.—The battleship Michigan, the American dreadnought, and the first of the navy's all-big-gun fighters to enter New York harbor, was today anchored in the Brooklyn navy yard, being fitted with revolution counters. These are the little instruments that calculate the speed of the propeller. They are to be used in tests on the naval speed trial courses off the Atlantic coast.

In order to get under the Brooklyn bridge it was necessary to unship the big vessel's wireless outfit. The Michigan will leave the navy yard on Wednesday for Rockland, Me. After completing the speed trials there she will return to New York.

PRINCE SENDS HIS DOCTOR TO AID MAN

New York, May 3.—Prince Tsai Tao, the member of the Chinese royal family who is completing his American tour by a visit to this city, had opportunity afforded him today to do a gracious act, and was quick to take advantage of it.

A force of 115 mounted policemen, under the leadership of Police Inspector Schmittberger, was going through evolutions in Central Park in the presence of the prince, who was paying close attention to the fine horsemanship of the men. As the mounted men were forming a hollow square, the horse ridden by Policeman William Helmus slipped on the wet grass and Helmus was thrown with great force and shocked into unconsciousness.

When Prince Tsai Tao saw the accident he at once directed Dr. Woo, surgeon general of the Chinese army, who is a member of his suite, to hurry to the injured officer's aid and render all possible assistance. Helmus had the benefit of the Chinese surgical expert's ministrations until Police Commissioner Baker's automobile was driven up and the unconscious man placed in it and taken to a hospital.

INFANT DISEASE DOCTORS' THEME

Washington, May 3.—The eighth annual triennial convention of the Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons opened a three days' session here today. Officers of the congress are Dr. Edward L. Tradeau, president; William H. Carmalt, secretary, and Newton M. Shaffer, treasurer.

The convention is attended by nearly a thousand delegates, many of them accompanied by their wives and families. One of the most important topics to be discussed is infantile paralysis, which is to be taken up at a symposium of the orthopedic and pediatric societies' lectures. Among the speakers on this subject will be Prof. Lange of Munich, and Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller institute.

BIG FIRE IN OIL TANK IN ILLINOIS

Marlinsville, Ill., May 3.—A great force of men continued today the fight against streams of burning oil from the enormous tank of the Ohio Oil company, which was set on fire by lightning last night. Effort is being made to keep banks of earth high enough to prevent the oil pouring into the creek and setting fire to the bridges. Twenty-one thousand gallons of oil have been pumped out of the 37-000-gallon tank.

GRAND JURY HAS DAY OF RECESS

Chicago, May 3.—Coincident with the departure "out of town" of State's Attorney Wayman, the special grand jury which is investigating charges of bribery in connection with the passage of certain legislation and the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate, adjourned until tomorrow when Mr. Wayman's return is expected.

Two witnesses, believed to have been Ira G. Rawn, president of the Monon road, and E. C. Field, vice president of the line, were called before the inquisitor.

Presently two grand jurors emerged from the jury room and told reporters that the body had taken a recess until tomorrow.

Many rumors were current to account for the absence of the state's attorney.

Messrs. Rawn and Field were subpoenaed in connection with the allegation made by John C. Fetzer that $212,000 was spent in behalf of the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad company to influence members of the legislature and the Chicago common council.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY'S SURGEON IS VERY ILL.

New York, May 3.—Improvement was noted today in the condition of Dr. Roswell Park, the distinguished surgeon of Buffalo, who is critically ill with pneumonia at the New York hospital. The patient passed a good night and was resting comfortably this morning. Dr. Park was in attendance on President McKinley and performed an operation in a vain effort to save the president's life after he was shot in 1901.

PARTY MAKES RECORD RUN

In the actual running time of 5 hours and 48 minutes, Philip P. Thomas of this city and J. C. Littlewood of Minneapolis, came up from the Flour City yesterday in a Stearns automobile.

This is probably the best record made between the two cities. With Mr. Littlewood at the wheel the party of two left Minneapolis at 7:47 yesterday morning. They arrived in Duluth at 2:38 p. m.

The actual time that elapsed between the time of the start in Minneapolis and the arrival in Duluth was 6 hours and 51 minutes. There was some time taken out at Sandstone and Rush City, however. On leaving Minneapolis a paper was stamped with the time at the Radisson hotel and on the arrival here the same slip was stamped at the Spalding.

At Sandstone twenty-three minutes was taken out while gasoline was secured. A tire was also changed, which took fifteen minutes and on losing a tire the party was forced to go back to find it. This occupied fifteen minutes.

The run from Minneapolis to Sandstone was made in 4 hours flat. The trip from Carlton to Duluth was made in thirty-three minutes.

The car used was a Stearns 30-60, and is the property of the Northwestern Stearns company.

APRIL TERM OF COURT ENDS

The April term of the district court ends today. Personal injury actions on trial will be finished today and tomorrow the call of the calendar will be made and the May grand jury will go into session.

The criminal calendar will not be heavy, according to the county attorney. The state will be represented at the May term of court by Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Greene.

A number of the court's cases that were to have been tried at the April term of court have gone over to the May term so that there are a great number of civil cases to be heard.

The May term will be heavy with civil actions but the criminal calendar will be light.

Mr. Isaac Cook, Commander of above Post, Kewance, Ill., writes: "For a long time I was bothered with backache and pains acress my kidneys. About two months ago I started taking Foley Kidney Pills and soon saw they were doing just as claimed. I kept on taking them and now I am free from backache and the painful bladder misery is all gone. I like Foley Kidney Pills so well that I have told many of my friends and comrades about them and shall recommend them at every opportunity." Sold by all druggists.

WHEAT HAS SHARP BULGE

Prices Advance on Buying Orders and Covering By Shorts.

Crop Damage Reports Send Bears to Cover---Flax Strong.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 3.—Buying orders from longs and shorts who ran to cover caused a severe bulge in wheat today, the near option being especially strong. Shorts scurried to cover in May and the bulls seized every opportunity to press their advantage in this and other months. The deferred months were buoyant, but did not sustain the heavy upturn which made May the feature of the market. May advanced 2½c, July 1½c and September 1⅜c.

The bulls were fortified behind crop damage news from the Southwest and the Northwest, and their position today was impregnable. The flurry toward the close was caused by short covering. The market was strong technically. It was difficult to buy wheat, and the slight disposition to accumulate sent values upward. Trading was not heavy. Higher cables and crop damage news caused a firm opening.

May wheat opened at $1.07¾b, advanced to $1.08¼ and then to $1.10, closing, $1.10⅛b. July opened at $1.08⅛b, sold at $1.08¾, $1.08⅜, $1.08½, $1.08⅞-1.09, $1.08⅞, $1.09⅜-⅝ and closed $1.09⅜. September opened $101¼b, sold at $101 and then at $101¾, closing $1.01⅝b.

Deliveries of wheat on May contracts yesterday aggregated 1,250,000 bu.

Flax was quiet and strong. May sold at $2.37 and $2.38. July was $2.26½b at the opening and sold at $2.31½, closing at $2.31½b. September was $174b at the opening and sold at $1.75¾, $1.75 and closed $1.75¾. October opened $1.66b and sold at $1.67½, closing $1.67½b

Oats, rye and barley closed unchanged. Durum closed 1¼c dp.

A killing frost extended over Northern Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Northwestern Nabraska last night. Light frosts extended into Kansas. In Southern Kansas copious rains fell. Under the stimulus of a steady stream of crop damage news, values were firm after a strong opening. A heavy wind storm accompanied by rain and hail swept over several localities in the Central Eastern portion of Kansas and further damage to the growing wheat was reported from that territory. Reliable millers and wheat growers in Kansas and Nebraska wired today that the damage to the wheat plant has been accomplished and that the bears need not rely on a change in the condition of the plant to help sustain their attitude.

Damage reports are spreading, some beginning to come from Oklahoma which until now has sent out optimistic messages. It is generally admitted, however, that the Oklahoma crop will be as large, if not larger, than any crop in the history of the state.

The bulls think the shortage in the winter wheat crop will approximate 60,000,000 bu. The government's report on abandoned acreage will be given out next Monday. It will probably show a larger abandonment than in any previous year in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri. The report may show a sufficient abandonment in these states to overcome the increase in acreage elsewhere. Part of the loss in production in Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska will be made up by Texas, Oklahoma and the Pacific coast states. The bulls have plenty of crop damage arguments and are working them for all they are worth. Reports of the Hessian fly and chinch bugs from the Southwest are plentiful.

Bears hope the spring wheat crop will be the largest in history as they are not now able to make the best of their arguments which deal with statistics and facts regarding the supply of wheat here and abroad. Killing frosts in the Northwest for several nights have caused some uneasiness, but there have been no claims that the young plant has been hurt. In some localities the plant above ground has apparently died, but the seed, it is said, has not been injured.

The foreign situation continues bearish and the foreigner in the last few days has not been taking much wheat from Canada and this market has not reported any sales of Manitobas or durums. Russia is exporting heavily, the unusual shipments from that country offsetting deficiencies elsewhere. Argentina is shipping freely and India is making liberal offers. Canada has been sending out a fair amount of stuff until this week when the foreign demand fell off. A feature of the situation is the extremely heavy receipts at Winnipeg, which have played an important part in strengthening the bearish attitude abroad. Receipts at Winnipeg have been running from 1,500,000 bu to 2,000,000 bu a week.

With heavy supplies abroad in the face of liberal offerings and favorable crop conditions, the foreigner is ignoring this country and will continue to do so at present prices of the stuff on this side. Cash wheat is pressing on the foreign market and buyers are independent in their attitude. While this country does not need an insistent foreign demand to take care of its surplus, as formerly, yet it is dependent upon the ability of the foreigner to consume what is not needed for consumption on this side.

The small receipts in the Northwest are causing mills here to pay 1c over for choice North Dakota stuff, which is available on arrival. The elevators are paying May prices for cash, however, and as the elevators buy the bulk of cash wheat, the official reports do not indicate the technical strength of the cash market from the standpoint of the mills. The flour trade continues slow with shipping directions difficult to obtain.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "There was a steady undertone at the immediate opening with the wheat market dull and prices unchanged to ¼d higher. Offerings light due to the unfavorable American crop advices. Following the opening a heavy undertone developed and prices declined ⅜d to ¾d. Selling was in the way of realizing on the continued favorable European crop outlook and the pressure to sell Argentine steamers afloat which are offered at 3 pence decline. Just before mid-day the market steadied some from the low of the morning on the decrease in the European visible following a heavy decline last week and reports that Russian movement will be lighter. Chicago Inter-Ocean said: "No uneasiness was created by May deliveries Monday, and they were less than expected and well taken. There were 410,000 bu wheat, 1,890,000 bu corn and 350,000 bu oats. Knight McDougall and Kidston delivered the wheat, which was taken by Peavy and Hulburd Warren. Corn was delivered mainly by Bartlett, and Lamson, Wreen and Peavy were credited with taking it. Deliveries of oats were made by Bartlett and Patten and taken in by Peavy. It was gossip on wheat last night that prices are not to decline materially while the bulk of trading is in contracts, there being very little pressure of cash wheat on the market. Most of the local crowd were said to be out of their wheat and were waiting for a further setback to get in. Bulls said they expected a further choppy market and that buying on sharp breaks will prove remunerative."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Spirit of Caution Seems to Control Bulls and Bears Alike.

Chicago, May 3.—A spirit of caution seemed to have control of traders today whether they were bulls or bears. With unfavorable weather in the nature of freezing temperatures forecasted, the market showed some strength, but offerings were inclined to be scanty, and the buying moderate. On a small bulge, considerable more wheat was for sale, and the gain was lost and a fraction besides. Quotations started unchanged to ⅛c lower to ⅜ to ½c up with September at $1.01¼ to $1.01⅜. That option advanced to $1.01¾, but declined early to $1.01⅜.

A sudden rise began, following a sharp advance in Liverpool. Dispatches telling of havoc by the Hessian fly in Illinois, Indiana and Tennessee, and mentioning that ice was a quarter of an inch thick in Nebraska, increased the bullish feeling, which continued till the close. September went up to $1.02¾ and closed firm at $1.02⅝, a net gain of 1¼c.

Trade in corn was light. Prices followed the trend of wheat, opening a shade lower to a shade higher, with September at 63⅝c to 63¾c, after touching 63⅞c there was a decline to 62⅜@62½c.

The late firmness in wheat helped corn. September advanced to 64⅛c and closed steady, ¼c up at 63⅞@64c. receipts, 253,000 bu, last year, 303,000 bu; shipments, 259,000 bu, last year, 466,000 bu.

In oats the crowd in general was inclined to be sellers. The opening was unchanged to ⅛@¼c lower. September started at 38½c to 38⅝@35⅜c, and then fell off to 38⅛c.

Provisions were strong on light offerings with prices 7½c to 15c up. September pork sold at $21.85; September lard at $12.35 and September ribs at $12.15.

REMARKS.

Light to heavy rains fell over all districts except the Dakotas, Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin. Freezing temperatures or heavy to killing frosts occurred this morning in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska. H. W. RICHARDSON, Local Forecaster.

T. indicates inappreciable rainfall. *For yesterday. †For 24 hours ending 8 a. m. 75th meridian time.

NOTE—The average maximum and minimum temperatures and the average rainfall are made up at each center from the actual number of reports received. The "state of weather" is that prevailing at time of observation.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Big Advance Made in Wheat With Support for Buying.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 3.—Light offerings, unfavorable crop reports and a decrease of 5,609,000 bushels in the world's visible supply were influential factors in the big advance in wheat today. Sentiment favored the bulls and strong support was given the buying side. May opened ⅝c above yesterday's close and after fluctuating in a range of 1¼c, closed 1⅜@1⅞c higher than yesterday. The deferred contracts were more active. Local elevator stocks decreased 325,000 bushels for three days. Minneapolis today received 71 cars of wheat against 161 cars a year ago; Duluth 30 cars against 18 and Winnipeg 242 cars against 94 cars. May opened $1.07¾, high $1.09, low $1.07½@1.07⅝, closed $1.08⅞@1.09. July opened $1.07¾, high $1.09¼, low $1.07¾, closed $1.09. DECLINES IN STOCKS

Violent Break in Coppers Converts Early Gains Into Losses.

Reports of Heavy Concessions in Selling Prices for Copper.

New York, May 3.—A buoyant upshoot in prices accompanied the opening dealings in stocks today, which was heralded by the higher range of prices in London before the opening here. A rush of shorts to cover was a prime factor in the movement. Trunk line railroad stocks were conspicuous in the advance, but the gains extended to a point in practically all of the active speculative stocks. Great Northern preferred advanced 2⅜, Baltimore & Ohio and Canadian Pacific 2, Union Pacific 1⅝, Pennsylvania, New York Central and American Car 1¼ and Reading 1⅛. There was 8,000 shares of United States Steel sold at 80 and 80⅜ compared with 79¼ last night.

A lot of stocks was offered at the opening figures and the market reacted. Great Northern preferred gave way 1¼, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and Northern Pacific 1, and the list generally ½ to ¾. By 11:30 the market had absorbed the selling orders, and prices began to rise again. Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Reading and United States Steel rose fractionally above their opening prices. Southern Pacific gained 1⅜.

The covering by shorts, which lifted prices of stocks, was stimulated by an easier money market. News from Washington conveyed an impression that railroad legislation might fail of enactment. Rumors were circulated of a proposed forced disbursement to Southern Pacific stockholders, the proceeds of oil land sales. American Cotton Oil rose 4 on dividend rumors. Reading and United States Steel gained 1½, the preferred 1⅝. American Sugar 1¾. The trading had become very dull at noon. Bonds were irregular.

The market closed nervous and irregular. A violent break in the copper industrials turned the whole market weak and converted gains into losses. Reports of heavy concessions in selling prices for copper accompanied the break. Illinois Central and Amalgamated Copper fell 2½ below yesterday. American Smelting 3⅛, National Lead 2¼, Consolidated Gas 2⅜, Anaconda, Reading and Brooklyn Transit 2, Union Pacific 2¼, Missouri Pacific 1½, and others a point or more. Rebounds at the last showed the active part played by short sales in the weakness.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.

CUYUNA RANGE SECTION

DULUTH EVENING HERALD

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY. 2

THE CUYUNA IRON RANGE, ONE OF THE WONDERS OF THE DAY

A REGION OF UNDEFINED LIMITS AND UNLIMITED RESOURCES.

Numbers of Duluth Men Among Its Promoters.

According to its usual interpretation, the term, "Range," as applied to this region, is somewhat of a misnomer as the iron bearing formations extend in a number of ranges or lenses nearly parallel with each other and the surface is but slightly rolling, there being a conspicuous absence of any continuous chain of hills or bluffs identical with or contiguous to the trend of the mineral formations.

However, as the name, Cuyuna range, is usually applied to the whole territory and is generally understood to comprehend all the mineral districts in the north central part of Minnesota and as the name has the advantage of convenience and brevity, it will also be accepted and used in this publication as having that significance.

No one has been able to definitely fix the boundaries of the Cuyuna range. Up to this time, the chief field of exploration embraces a strip of territory extending across the central part of Crow Wing county and the west central portion of Aitkin county. Recently, there have also been quite active operations in other portions of these counties, notably in the country adjacent to Mille Lac lake, and in the northern parts of Morrison and Todd counties and southern Cass county. Evidences of the existence of mineral are traced in places quite remote from the first mentioned district, however, and explorations with the dip needle and even drillings have been carried on, to a greater or less extent, in many of the counties in Northern Minnesota. These have been carried as far east as Alborn, in St. Louis county, and westward into Ottertail county. Whether these remote explorations will result in actual mining operations, or whether these fields have any geological connection with the Cuyuna range, is unknown to the writer, but there are not lacking many enthusiasts who maintain that the entire intervening territory between these extremes will eventually be found to contain iron ore either in a continuous formation of occurring at frequent intervals.

As far as known, the only extended veins of merchantable ore hitherto proven by systematic drilling are located in the two first mentioned counties, with which this publication will deal chiefly, but this circumstance should not be construed as limiting the ultimate boundaries of the range nor as an attempt to prejudice the prospects of any portion of it.

Preliminary surveys made with dip needles have shown many lines of magnetic attractions extending partially or entirely across the territory. These lines are parallel and extend quite uniformly from the southwest toward the northeast. Where further explorations have been made by drilling they have usually located veins of ore contiguous to these lines of attraction and usually to the southeast. This is due to the fact that the attraction is exerted by the slates and schists which form the wall of the ore veins, rather than by the ore itself. In rare instances, however, veins of ore have been found directly beneath the lines of attraction. It has also been noted that some of the highest grade ores exist where the least attraction is shown.

Drill Exploration.

Drill exploration has steadily become more active since it began about four year since, and there are now fully 100 drills in operation on the range. This work is carried on by a number of different parties, most of the exploration companies formerly active on the Mesaba range, being represented, while several new concerns have engaged in business here.

In describing this range, two principal divisions are generally recognized, known respectively as the North range and the South range. The South range extends from a point a few miles northeast of Aitkin to the vicinity of Fort Ripley and follows very closely the line of the Northern Pacific railroad. Though there remain some short, unexplored gaps in this range, it seem to be pretty well established that it is practically continuous for this distance.

The systematic exploration of the North range has been chiefly confined to the district contiguous to Deerwood and extending about five miles east and west, but is known to consist of at least four distinct ranges with intervening tracts from one to two miles in width. The northernmost of these ranges or lenses crosses the Mississippi river, having been traced on both sides and beneath the bed of the river. The lenses vary in width from seventy-five to 500 feet with their upper edges usually from 100 to 300 feet beneath the surface and extending in some cases to a depth of 1,000 feet or more. The lenses generally follow the same trend as the lines of attraction, but in some cases the trend is due east and and west. There is an average dip of about forty-five degrees to the southeast, but this also varies and the lenses become perpendicular in spots. It is believed by some geologists that these successive lenses are due to foldings in the same rock formation. The whole surface of the range is covered with heavy glacial drift with a depth of more than 300 feet in places and there are very few rock outcroppings. In contrast with conditions on the older Lake Superior iron ranges, the explorer finds little surface indications to guide him, but is obliged to rely entirely upon the magnetic needle.

Though most of the veins have been located by means of the needle, it is a significant fact that no deposits of magnetic ore have been found, most of the ore on the Cuyuna range being classed as limonite or brown hematite. On the North range, deposits of red hematite are occasionally found. The formation resembles that of the Vermilion range, but the ores are much like those of the Mesaba range. Many sample assays show as high quality as most of the Mesaba ores, but the average quality of the samples taken from the Cuyuna range is not as high as the average on the Mesaba range. Enough high-grade ore has been found, however, to ensure the permanency of the mining industry on this range for many years to come, while it is considered only a question of time until the mining and shipping of much of the lower grade ores will become profitable. This time will be hastened by the completion of the new steel plant at Duluth, enabling shippers to avoid the payment of millions of dollars in annual lake freights for the transportation of worthless dross.

The exploration of this range has been conspicuous on account of the harmony which has prevailed among different prospectors and investors. On the South range, two of the most extensive holders of real estate are the Cuyler Adams interests and the Northwestern Improvement company, which is a holding organization, controlled by the Northern Pacific railroad interests, and has secured fees or leases to about 25,000 acres in this territory.

Mining.

Up to the present date most of the time and energy of the promoters of Cuyuna range development has been directed toward establishing the fact that large quantities of merchantable ore existed on this range, to the end that outside capital might be induced to engage in the actual work of mine development and of providing transportation for the products of the mines to be operated.

Actual mining operations have been chiefly confined to the work done by the Rogers-Brown Ore company, which started eight drills on the shore of Rabbit lake early in the season of 1907, and about the same time began sinking a test shaft. This was carried to a depth of fifty-five feet in order to test the surface and water conditions, and was followed by a drop-mining shaft which was carried to a depth of 150 feet and drifting commenced. This was succeeded in 1909 by a modern, five-compartment lath shaft, which has reached a depth of 300 feet or more. This shaft has recently been provided with the most durable equipment, and forms one of the most up-to-date mining shafts in the state. A 90-foot steel head frame has been installed and a new power-house erected, which is of steel frame and cover and absolutely fireproof. There are four 150-horse power high-pressure boilers and the latest type Sullivan hoist, which will hoist a five-ton skip, and Sullivan air compressor having a capacity for operating fifteen mining air drills. A special cage hoist was designed expressly for this shaft by the National Iron works of Duluth, which is an improvement in every respect over any other hoist now in use.

A stockpile of 20,000 tons of ore has been accumulated during the preliminary work, and the business of mining will now be pushed with energy. The tracks of the Soo railroad reached the shaft several months since, and it is reported that the company has engaged to ship 100,000 tons or more of ore before the close of the present season. The Rogers-Brown Ore company will employ about 300 men at this location this season.

The Rogers-Brown Ore company and an allied organization known as the Chescuytawney Ore company have leases and options on a number of tracts of land on the north and south ranges, and will eventually open a number of mines on these properties. A contract has been let to the Foundation company of New York for sinking a concrete shaft on the Nelmeyer property, adjacent to the village of Crosby, and machinery for that purpose is now being moved to the site of this shaft.

The development work of this, the Kennedy mine, has been in charge from the start of Henry J. Kruse, local superintendent of the Rogers-Brown Ore company. Mr. Kruse is a practical mining engineer of many years' experience in his native state of Michigan, and educated in mining engineering at the Michigan College of Mines at Houghton. Since locating on the Cuyuna range he has become interested in several local business enterprises. He is a director in the First National Bank of Deerwood and also in the First State Bank of Cuyuna, and is popular with all classes of people here.

Among the practical mining corporations owning property on this range may be mentioned the following well-known concerns, some of which, however, are represented on this range by subsidiary or closely allied corporations: Pickands-Mather company, Shenango Furnace company and Republic Iron & Steel company. Though none of these organizations are actively engaged in mining operations here, it is exceedingly probable that all will be in the near future. A number of citizens of Duluth, Minneapolis and other cities who have long been known as heavy operators in Mesaba range properties have become investors on the Cuyuna range, thereby attesting their faith in the future of this region.

Contrary to the conditions which prevailed during the early exploration of the older Minnesota ranges, the Cuyuna range has been well peopled for many years and the prospecting and exploration work is carried on within easy reach of several prosperous and progressive towns in which the comforts of civilization are readily accessible.

This territory also abounds in other resources, many sections having well-improved farms, and, with rare exceptions, the soil is everywhere capable of being made highly productive under suitable culture. This part of the state is abundantly supplied with pure water: beautiful lakes, mineral springs, purling streams and charming cataracts, and is a paradise for the hunter, fisherman or pleasure-seeker.

PATRICK HAMMEL.

He Has Been Largely Instrumental in Developing New Iron Range.

One of the men who has been largely instrumental in the development of the Cuyuna range is Patrick Hammel of Duluth. He was one of the first to show faith in its great possibilities, and it was due to his urging that William Rock did his first drilling on the range and demonstrated that it held monster bodies of high-grade ore. The history of these two men will always be linked with this important work of development. Today they are interested jointly in various valuable holdings on the range.

Mr. Hammel's holdings are scattered all over the Cuyuna iron range, in both Crow Wing and Aitkin counties, and he has some of the most promising ore lands in both counties. Mr. Hammel has never been a speculator. First, he has become convinced of the value of properties under consideration and then has gone ahead and acquired them. He is one of the pioneers of the Cuyuna range. He sensed the possibilities of the north range in June, 1904, and began to acquire extensive holdings. He got in on the ground floor and is already in receipt of royalties of considerable amount.

The first developed mine on the range is, with several millions of tons blocked out, on property held in part by Mr. Hammel. That is the Kennedy mine, at Rabbit Lake, which is leased to the Rogers-Brown company. Mr. Hammil obtained state leases when they were obtainable, in 1904, and has had the satisfaction of seeing them enhance in value steadily. He obtained leases for friends, notably Thomas Feigh of Duluth, who have greatly profited thereby. He selected for Mr. Feigh, on June 3, 1905, the eastern one-half of the eastern one-half of section 9, 46-29, and the south one-half of the northwest quarter and north half of the southwest quarter of section 10, 46-29. Drills on these properties have shown tremendously deep and valuable deposits of high-grade ore under both properties. Drilling on the Feigh lands is depicted in a picture upon another page. Mr. Feigh is indebted to Mr. Hammel for choosing these lands, which have developed a large fortune.

The Kennedy mine, in which Mr. Hammel has an interest, will begin shipping this season, when it is expected to market 160,000 tons. Across the Mississippi river from the Kennedy mine, in Crow Wing county, Mr. Hammel has several properties right on the iron belt, which are as promising as any that are yet unleased on the range. With R. M. Hunter of Duluth Mr. Hammel is drilling on state land, the southwest quarter of section 16, 46-29, in the center of the developed territory. Another of Mr. Hammel's properties selected six years ago is not far from Crosby and is almost certain to develop into a good mine. In fact, Patrick Hammel may be said to have interests in almost every township of the Cuyuna iron range, where active developments are under way.

He was without a doubt the pioneer of what is now known as the north range of the Cuyuna, as he as early as June, 1904, found what he believed to be a complete iron formation running from Big Rabbit lake in a southwesterly direction across township 46, range 29, which corresponded to some extent with indications found in township 49, range 26-27, some time previously.

During 1903 he secured state leases and options to about 7,000 acres north of Kimberly, in Aitkin county, and managed to interest John P. Morrow and others in some lands in that vicinity; but all these interests were allowed to lapse during the spring of 1904, when the Oliver Iron Mining company abandoned its operations in that section. Fully a year before George Crosby or B. Magoffin, Jr., gave that range a thought Mr. Hammel did what he could to induce them to look the field over.

In June, 1905 he selected certain lands in township 46, range 29, south of the heavy lines of attraction, and development has proved these lands to be the best on the range; but as these lands were considered worthless by all the experts at that time, Hammel could not interest anybody in them, and therefore had to drop them. Mr. Hammel selected lands for other parties that are showing up as well as any properties on the range.

Mr. Hammel, whose office in 633 Manhattan building, Duluth, has long been a dealer in mineral lands and mining properties, making a specialty of those on the North Cuyuna range, of which he was the first pioneer. He stands high with operators on the iron ranges and business men generally.

FAITH MADE HIS FORTUNE.

Invested Here Years Ago and Was a Cuyuna Iron Range Pioneer.

Thomas Feigh pinned his faith to the Twin Ports thirty years ago and has never had cause to regret it. He has extensive realty holdings both in Duluth and Superior that have increased tremendously in value as the years have gone by, and is the holder of valuable properties on the Cuyuna iron range, of which he is one of the pioneers. Mr. Feigh got his financial start in the Northwest country and by hard work, business judgment and thrift has amassed a comfortable fortune. All he made here he invested here. Stocks held out no inducements to him. With rare foresight he put his money in land at the Head of the Lakes, which he has helped to develop.

Mr. Feigh, who was born in County Limerick, Ireland, came to Canada in early youth, as did his brother and three sisters. He made his first investments here thirty years ago and has made Duluth his home most of the time during the last twenty years. An investment he made thirty years ago was in 160 acres of land in Superior near Allouez bay, which has greatly enhanced in value. This is merely one instance of his foresight. He was one of the first men of means to show his faith in the Cuyuna iron range, purchasing through Patrick Hammel of Duluth sections 9 and 10, 46-29, which have been drilled and shown to be underlaid with deep and extensive iron ore deposits. He also holds other promising properties on this range.

Hale and hearty, although past 60, Mr. Feigh does not look his years. His principal pastime is traveling. On his last European trip, two years ago, accompanied by two nephews and a niece, he spent five months and visited among other interesting places, Rome and the Holy Land.

Mr. Feigh is a man noted for his modesty, staunch friendship and sterling character, and has endeared himself to a large circle of associates.

HISTORICAL.

The territory included in the Cuyuna range forms a region of peculiar historic interest, as well as a field for comprehensive geological study. It lies on either bank of the Mississippi river, this portion of which was familiar to the earliest white explorers of Northern Minnesota, subsequent to the discovery of America by Columbus.

It is not improbable that this territory was also traversed by the "Goths," who visited this state in the fourteenth century and left a Runic inscription upon the stone recently discovered in Douglas county and now preserved among the archives of the Minnesota Historical society. "The sea," where their boats were left, may have been Lake Superior.

Some of the earliest Christian missions were founded in this field, and Fort Ripley was one of the extreme outposts of the United States early in the last century. Some sanguinary encounters between Sioux and Chippewa and between either tribe and the whites took place in these wilds.

The country east and south of the Mississippi was included in the original territory of the United States; but that on the west side of the river was a part of the Louisiana Purchase. Being surveyed at different periods and from different bases, there is considerable discrepancy in land descriptions on opposite sides of the river.

WILLIAM ROCK.

For a score of years Mr. Rock has been identified with the exploration of the Minnesota iron ranges and has witnessed the development of that industry from a crude, haphazard line of work into the systematic and organized occupation which it is today.

Mr. Rock was one of the first practical drill operators who began the exploration of the Cuyuna iron district and located the first merchantable ore found there. This was in June, 1904, and the ore was in section 20, township 46, range 28, where a shaft is now about to be sunk. After completing the exploration of this property, it was leased on a royalty basis to the Northwestern Improvement company.

The next year Mr. Rock began drilling in the territory now known as the "North Range," where he located some of the most valuable veins of ore which have been found there, and induced several Duluth capitalists to become investors in these properties, in some of which he still retains an interest. Among the properties here which he explored is the tract known as the "Ehrich property," on which the new steel shaft of the Rogers-Brown Ore company has recently been sunk, and the southeast ¼, southeast ¼, section 2, township 46, range 29, near which a shaft is now being sunk.

Mr. Rock has made a number of preliminary surveys since locating these mines and has operated drills in different parts of Crow Wing and Aitkin counties. He is interested in mineral lands in connection with other parties, and his knowledge of this part of the state makes him an excellent judge of property values. He has recently given considerable attention to the exploration of properties lying northeast of Rabbit lake along the line between Crow Wing and Aitkin counties.

For a number of years he was connected with exploration work on the Mesaba range and was one of the pioneers in that field. He has also spent some time in Arizona, Montana and other Western mining regions, but pronounces Northern Minnesota the richest in mineral wealth of any territory he has ever seen. He does not hesitate to predict that the Cuyuna district will become the greatest in this state or in the entire world.

H. J. GRANNIS AND J. W. HARBISON.

Both of Duluth, own the state mineral lease, covering the northeast quarter of section 16, in township 46, range 29. This lease was issued about five years ago and lies between the Thomas Feigh property in sections 9 and 10, upon which a large amount of ore has been shown up, and the south one-half of section 16, which is now being explored. This property is considered to be in the trend of the ore bodies located upon sections 10, 11 and 12, immediately northeast, but has never been explored. Mr. Grannis also owns individually the state lease covering the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 8, in township 46, range 29, and is interested in the southwest quarter of section 12, township 134, range 28, which is on the west side of the Mississippi river and in the attractive area southwest of Rabbit lake. This land is owned in fee by the Mutual Iron company, of which Mr. Grannis is president and C. H. Taylor is secretary and treasurer. Among other properties in which Mr. Grannis is interested, as shown by the records, are two state leases in what is known as the Rice River district, northeast of Aitkin, which he holds jointly with Henry Turrish. One of these leases covers the southwest quarter of section 30, in township 48, range 25, and the other covers the southwest quarter of section 2, in township 47, range 26.

DEERWOOD

FASTEST GROWING TOWN ON THE NEW CUYUNA RANGE.

Interest in the exploration and development of the Cuyuna range first began to be manifested in the vicinity of Deerwood and this village continues to be the chief center of activities connected with this range.

Several of the most active exploration companies doing business on the range make this place their headquarters and most of the supplies for drills and mining shafts brought to the range have been distributed from this station.

As a result of these circumstances, there has been a notable increase in every form of business activity at this place and the population has fully doubled in the last twelve months; building operations have received a great impetus; residences are springing up in every part of the village; a number of new business establishments have been opened and most of those previously in existence have been or soon will be enlarged; real estate values have been advancing rapidly and new property has been platted for village lots.

Among the new buildings planned for this season is an office for the First National bank, which will be constructed of solid masonry and form one of the most substantial buildings in the village. Several new hotels will be erected and the Soo railroad will build a new passenger and freight station near the shore of Reno lake, in the village of Deerwood. No other town on the Cuyuna range has exhibited so much activity during the past year as has been apparent at Deerwood.

Since the incorporation of the village about a year since, many public improvements have been undertaken and others are being planned for this season, which betoken the aggressive spirit dominating the citizens.

Endowed by Nature.

Aside from the commercial importance which Deerwood is rapidly attaining, the place possesses unmeasured assets in the way of natural attractions. Practically surrounded by beautiful lakes, it has long been noted as a summer resort and its fame in this respect is extended by every person who pays the locality a visit. Largest and most attractive of the numerous bodies of water in this vicinity is Serpent lake, famous for its clear, deep waters, teeming with excellent fish, and its high banks covered with natural timber. The shore line, which is about twenty miles in extent, is bordered with cozy cottages owned, for the most part, by citizens of Duluth, Superior, Minneapolis and other cities, a number of whom discovered the attractions of this place several years since and come here annually to spend their vacations. Launches and skiffs in great variety ply these waters in summer, a number being devoted exclusively to the transportation of passengers. Chief of this number is the new boat, City of Crosby, with accommodations for forty or more passengers, designed especially for carrying passengers between Deerwood and Crosby, but stopping also at several intermediate points.

Cuyuna Range Townsite Company.

The growth of Deerwood has been considerably accelerated by the activity of this company, which began operations about a year since by platting the First addition to the village of Deerwood, comprising forty acres adjoining the original townsite. It is the policy of this company to provide homes for the people who are being attracted to this place and men employed in the village or vicinity are given very favorable terms. One-half the lots in this addition were sold during the first six months after the opening sale and a number of buildings have already been put up thereon. The fact that no less than sixteen ore bodies have been proven within four miles of this place, and that a number of underground mines will provide employment at all seasons, makes this a very attractive location for workingmen's homes. The company is having a new road opened between Deerwood and Cuyuna, which will materially shorten the distance between these places.

The company also owns eighty acres adjacent to the station, about to be built by the Soo railroad company in Deerwood. This property is being platted and the sale of lots will begin on or about May 1, 1910. Arrangements are being made to sink a shaft near this property.

The Cuyuna Range Townsite company is capitalized at $50,000. Its officers are: S. S. Williamson, president; R. J. Sewell, vice president; F. A. Edson, secretary, and Cuyler Adams, treasurer.

CUYLER ADAMS.

Recognized as Father of the Range.

The first systematic exploration on the Cuyuna range was done by Cuyler Adams, who has been interested in property in the vicinity of Deerwood for the last twenty years or more, and who has had a summer home on the shore of Reno Lake for a good share of that period. While surveying some of his property, some years ago, his attention was drawn to the variations of the needle due to magnetic attraction in the ground, and this circumstance led him to make extended investigations, which resulted in the laying out of a number of zones or lines of attraction extending through his own and other properties. Continuing his surveys with the dip needle, he eventually explored a range of territory about thirty-five miles in extent from east to west, though not continuous through all of this range. Having been thoroughly convinced of the existence of extensive mineral deposits in this region, about seven years ago, Mr. Adams began drilling in section 16, township 46, range 28, which property has since been leased to the Northwestern Improvement Company, and its exploration is still in progress. A little later, Mr. Adams began drilling in the neighborhood of Rabbit lake on property now being mined by the Rogers-Brown Ore company.

In order to promote the development of this territory, Mr. Adams was instrumental in organizing several companies, composed for the most part of Duluth capitalists. These include the Ore Lands Mining company, the Crow Wing Mining company, the Mineral Range Development company, the Salisbury Mining company and others. Mr. Adams is either president or manager of several of these companies, and the work of exploration has been carried on with considerable vigor under his management in recent years. Several drills are kept in operation, and a number of the most valuable veins of ore on this range have been proven by these explorations. The fees to thousands of acres along the range have been acquired by the various companies which he represents, and other lands have been leased for the purpose of exploration and development. Several years will be required to complete the exploration of all these lands. In this drill work Mr. Adams is associated with his son, C. C. Adams, general manager of the Biwango Exploration company, the main office of which is at Deerwood.

In order to further the development of this range, early in the year 1909 Cuyler Adams organized the Cuyuna Iron Range Railroad company, which organization made the surveys and secured the right-of-way for a railroad from Duluth to the Cuyuna range. This road has been constructed and is now owned by the Soo Railroad company, and will form an important part of the great railway system which is being developed by that corporation in Northern Minnesota. Mr. Adams is also interested in the Deerwood Improvement company and in the Cuyuna Range Townsite company, which organizations have been instrumental in promoting the rapid upbuilding of the village of Deerwood. He is recognized as the most progressive and influential citizen of the place, and the whole Cuyuna district shares in the benefits arising from his foresight and perseverance.

CHARLES E. BENSON.

Mr. Benson carries on one of the leading mercantile establishments in Deerwood. He began business here seven years ago and has met with noteworthy success being numbered among the substantial citizens of the place at the present time.

His original store building has been enlarged and is now 45 by 50 feet and divided in several departments convenient for handling assorted lines of dry goods, shoes, furnishings, groceries, fresh and salt meats, hardware, farming implements and other goods. His customers long since learned that his goods were always right in quality and price and several people are kept busy waiting upon the trade which the store has attracted.

Mr. Benson is one of the men who aims to keep at the head of the procession in business expansion and when the village of Cuyuna began to grow, he saw his opportunity for an increase of business by opening a store at that place. The building which he erected there is 24 by 60 feet and two stories, the upper floor being arranged for a public hall. In company with Oscar Johnson, he opened a general store on the main floor of this building on the first of March, 1910. Mr. Johnson was connected with Mr. Benson's business at Deerwood for several years and is now in charge of the business at Cuyuna, which is already a pronounced success.

Mr. Benson is one of the intelligent Swedish-Americans, who have contributed so much toward the progress of Northern Minnesota. He has lived in this country from the age of 11 years spending eighteen years in Duluth, where he learned the hardware business which he carried on there for two years before casting in his fortunes with the growing village of Deerwood.

H. J. HAGE.

Measured in years of continuous commercial activity, Mr. Hage is the oldest business man in the village of Deerwood. This fact, together with the spirit of patriotism and progress which he has uniformly displayed regarding the best interests of the place, doubtless led to his election as the first president of the village. And so well were the duties of this position discharged that in the spring of the present year he was re-elected, his choice being practically unanimous.

Under his guidance, public improvements suited to the needs of the growing village are being planned and carried out as fast as practicable, and the place promises to rapidly emerge from the crude conditions common to rural hamlets and begin to assume the substantial appearance and dignified metropolitan ways which its increasing population justifies.

In July, 1896, Mr. Hage opened a general store at Deerwood, and from that date has been constantly acquiring new customers and personal friends. The demands of the business required enlargements of his original building, which is now a two-story structure, 46 by 100 feet, and comprises an up-to-date department store with stocks of merchandise in various lines fully equal in all respects to those found in many larger towns. Everything used by his customers can be obtained at this mart, and there is a constant procession of people filing in and out of the establishment, none of whom is ever required to depart without the satisfaction of knowing that their demands have been filled. A number of people are employed to wait upon this growing trade, and the business moves along without confusion or disorder.

In October, 1907, Mr. Hage opened another general store at the village of McGregor, in Aitkin county, Minn., and this undertaking has met with the same prosperous conditions which characterize all his undertakings.

His interests have expanded along various lines. Five years ago he took an active part in organizing the Deerwood & Bay Lake Telephone company, of which he has since been either secretary or president, filling the latter position at the present time. This company operates a local exchange at Deerwood and connects this place with Bay Lake, Cuyuna, Crosby and other places, supplying a service which is equaled by few local telephone companies.

Mr. Hage has been a pioneer in numerous commercial enterprises. In 1906 he opened a private bank at Deerwood, the first banking institution in the place, which was subsequently incorporated as the State Bank of Deerwood, of which he was president. This bank was capitalized at $10,000, and had accumulated deposits to the amount of $85,000 in April, 1910, when it consolidated with the Cuyuna State bank, and incorporated the First National Bank of Deerwood, an arrangement which is of mutual advantage to stockholders, depositors and customers. The bank begins business with a capital of $30,000, and is recognized as one of the most substantial banking institutions in this part of the state. Its officers are: Isaac Hazlitt, president; H. J. Hage and C. W. Gardner, vice presidents; W. J. Ernster, cashier, and J. O. Hage, assistant cashier. The bank is about to erect a substantial building exclusively for its use, which will be of solid masonry, 25 by 50 feet.

Mr. Hage is also vice president of the Security State Bank of Brainerd, which he helped to organize about two years since.

Aside from the property which he occupies, he has erected a numbr of other buildings in Deerwood, and is a promoter of various enterprises looking toward the material advancement or moral progress of the community. He owns about 600 acres of land in the vicinity of Deerwood, and has acquired interests in timber lands on the Pacific coast, where extensive logging operations are now in progress.

F. L. PITT.

The constantly growing demand for agricultural and mineral lands in this section of Minnesota has attracted to this locality a number of active and aggressive dealers in real estate, who have acquired valuable experience in this line of business in other parts of the country and who have displayed excellent judgment by selecting this territory as a field for present and future operations.

Among this number is F. L. Pitt, who opened an office in Deerwood in the spring of 1908, since which time he has bought and sold considerable property in the village and adjacent country. He gives especial attention to iron lands in the vicinity of Bay Lake and Mille Lac, where the work of exploration has recently become quite active.

Mr. Pitt dealt in real estate at Nashua, Iowa, for twenty-five years, and is an expert judge of land values. Several years before removing to this place, he was attracted by the low price of agricultural lands to begin making investments in Crow Wing county property, and his interest therein has been continuously increasing. He has been instrumental in bringing numerous settlers and investors from Iowa and elsewhere to this county, thereby contributing to the general prosperity of the community.

He has also made some judicious investments in village property and has erected several buildings there. His transactions include the sites of a number of buildings recently built or about to be erected.

In this undertaking he will soon be joined by his brother, W. S. Pitt, for many years one of the leading business men of Oelwein, Iowa.

CARLSON BROS.

This enterprising firm carries on a general merchandise and hardware business at Deerwood and deals in real estate and other property to some extent.

The members of this firm are among the pioneer residents in the vicinity of Deerwood, their father, Andrew Carlson, having settled on railroad land here some twenty-four years since. His sons grew to manhood and were educated in the public schools, developing an intelligence and capacity for business which is frequently found among the sturdy Scandinavian-American citizens of Northern Minnesota.

The mercantile business was started in a small way in July, 1906, by Carl E. Carlson. His capital at that time comprised only $200, and the stock consisted of confectionery and notions, but the venture was conducted with skill and sagacity and the growing trade soon demanded an expansion of the enterprise, and two years later Oscar and Arthur Carlson became members of the firm, which has since been known as Carlson Bros. To the original stock was added a line of general merchandise, consisting of hardware, shoes, gents' furnishings and other goods, and the business has been steadily and rapidly increasing from the start. The first building erected by the firm was a two-story structure, 24 by 40 feet, but the rapid additions to the stock required to meet the demands of customers have called for additions to the building from timo to time, which doubled the ground floor space of the original building, and in August, 1909, another building 40 feet square was put up on the opposite side of the street. This structure accommodates the hardware stock and the flour and feed trade which has grown to be an important feature of the enterprise. Still more room will be required in the near future and the firm is now considering plans for the erection of a substantial brick building during the present season.

The business is under the general supervision of Carl E. Carlson, and the hardware and flour and feed department is in charge of Oscar Carlson, who formerly gave his chief attention to real estate. He was instrumental in selling many of the lots in Deerwood which have been recently improved by the erection of buildings.

OBERG BROS.

Several members of the Oberg family are interested with others in carrying on some of the most conspicious business enterprises at Deerwood which are commonly referred to as belonging to the Oberg Bros.

Members of this family are among the oldest residents as well as the most successful and enterprising citizens of Deerwood and the development of the Cuyuna range is due in no small measure to their sagacity and perseverance.

For the last six years, they have been actively engaged in real estate transactions and are now devoting much of their attention to iron lands. Their interests include about three thousand acres of well located properties, the greater portion of which lies in the vicinity of Fort Ripley in Crow Wing, Morrison and Todd counties. There are also several hundred acres adjacent to Deerwood. A number of these tracts have already been explored and some valuable deposits of ore have been located. The first drilling on the "North Range" was done about six years ago on the Oberg farm in section 2, township 46, range 29. This was done by F. E. Oberg and R. C. Jamieson of Duluth. More thorough explorations recently made have shown this property to be among the richest on the range and it is now under lease to a development company. Jamieson & Oberg at one time had many of what are now known as the most valuable properties in this district under option, but were unable to interest sufficient capital to perfect their leases and much of this property passed into other hands before its value was proven. The Oberg Bros. have ever since been engaged to a greater or less extent in exploration work and three drills are now being operated on their properties.

Oberg Bros. also own some very desirable lake shore property on Serpent lake, one of the most attractive of the many summer resorts in this vicinity. Their holdings also include considerable property in the village of Deerwood where they have erected a number of buildings both business places and residences. Among these buildings is a structure 40 by 40 feet put up two years ago, one side of which is used for a billiard hall and the other side for an ice cream parlor and confectionery store. These enterprises are conducted in first class style and are patronized by the best class of people, an immense business being done in these lines particularly during the summer season.

In order to carry on the real estate business to better advantage, The Oberg corporation was recently organized. The concern is capitalized at $50,000 and its officers are as follows: F. E. Oberg, president; John A. Oberg, vice-president; N. P. Emil Carlson, secretary; Gust A. Oberg, assistant secretary; C. W. Oberg, treasurer.

DEERWOOD CLOTHING CO.

This is another corporation recently formed with capital stock of $20,000. Its officers and directors are: N. P. Emil Carlson, president; F. E. Oberg, vice-president and Gust A. Oberg, secretary-treasurer. This company is occupying the main floor of a new two-story building 24 by 66 feet, which is one of the most modern structures in the village. It is equipped with gas lighting system, heating plant and other up-to-date conveniences.

In this store The Deerwood Clothing company is opening a $10,000 stock of clothing and gents' furnishings, which will form one of the most complete stores in this line in this section of the state. This enterprise will be carried on by N. P. Emil Carlson and Gust A. Oberg, each of whom is well-known to have experience and other qualifications for the work which ensures the success of the undertaking. Mr. Carlson carried on business in Minneapolis for sometime and has been associated with Oberg Bros. in different enterprises in this vicinity for some years. Gust A. Oberg was formerly connected with H. J. Hage's general store at McGregor and is noted for his industry and popularity among the people of this place.

Mr. F. E. Oberg is one of the most capable and influential business men of Deerwood. He devotes his entire time and attention to the real estate business and the development of the iron properties in which he and his associates are interested. His judgment is attested by the success of many speculations which he has directed, and he enjoys the confidence of his associates and others with whom he comes in contact. He has the faculty of imparting his enthusiasm to others, and, from the beginning of his operations in Cuyuna iron properties, has been notably successful in interesting capitalists in his propositions. He has recently been instrumental in securing the investment of considerable sums of Twin City capital in this district, which circumstance is likely to be an important factor in its future development.

Altogether, these young men are entitled to much credit for the foresight, energy and determination which they have displayed in their numerous ventures. They have ever been ready to assist in the promotion of any undertaking calculated to further the public interest of Deerwood or of the entire Cuyuna range, and have been prime movers in many such enterprises. The successes which they are achieving are well merited and entitle them to the hearty congratulations of their many friends and contemporaries.

ASSAYING DRILL SAMPLES.

A profession closely allied to the exploring and mining industries is that of the iron chemist the importance of whose work is realized by comparatively few people. Transactions involving hundreds of thousands of dollars are often hinged upon the chemist's analysis of the samples of ore taken from drillings upon a given piece of property, and, as will be readily seen, it is of the utmost importance that his work shall be thoroughly accurate and reliable. During the exploration period, samples of ore are sometimes taken or sent long distances to be carefully assayed and reports from the laboratory are awaited with the keenest interest.

In order that he may command and retain the confidence of the people with whom his business is done, it is essential that the analytical chemist shall have received the most scientific training for his work and that the accuracy and privacy of his work shall be unquestioned. Everything in the laboratory, especially the tools and glassware, must be kept scrupulously clean as the slightest portion of dust or the least trace of an element common to iron analysis left on a dish or breaker may play havoc with the next determination.

The first laboratory on the Cuyuna range was opened by the Cuyuna Laboratory company at Deerwood about one year ago, and was placed in charge of A. C. Dennis, who has been proprietor of the business since March 15, 1910. Mr. Dennis studied chemistry at the Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland, Ohio, one of the most famous scientific schools in the United States, and he has practiced his art for the last nve years. Much of this period was spent with Crowell & Murray of Cleveland, one of the best known firms of analytical chemists on the Great Lakes, and in the laboratories of blast furnaces at Cleveland. Since locating at Deerwood, Mr. Dennis has been kept very busy assaying samples of ore taken from drillings by different exploration companies operating on this range, and has established a reputation as one of the most reliable representatives of his profession in this state.

E. A. LAMB.

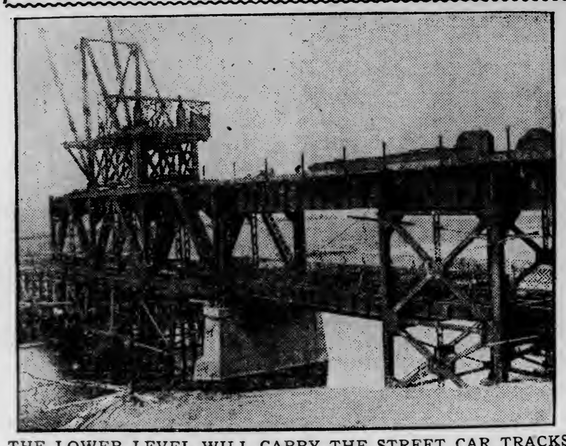
Mr. Lamb is one of the prominent dealers in iron lands at Deerwood. He came here from North Dakota early in the season of 1909 and opened an office in this village. He acquired a number of tracts of well located lands and has negotiated numerous sales and is already looked upon as one of the progressive business men of the Cuyuna district.

Mr. Lamb has had many years experience in real estate transactions and spent a number of years at Washburn, N. D., where he dealt extensively in prairie lands. He is a competent judge of land values and predicts a bright future for Deerwood and the adjacent country. He believes the non-mineral bearing lands will also rapidly appreciate in value. Though not as well suited to general farming as the prairie lands in which he was accustomed to deal, the soil is rich and well suited to market gardening and dairying. The mining towns which are growing up rapidly in this portion of the state will provide a ready market for all kinds of produce, a fact which is beginning to be appreciated by prospective settlers.

In the spring of 1910, Mr. Lamb platted Crosby Beach on the shore of Serpent lake opposite the townsite of Crosby. This is one of the most delightful locations on this charming lake for summer cottages or for residences of people doing business at Crosby. All these lots are laid out with a frontage of forty feet on the lake and a depth of from 250 to 300 feet or more. Crosby Beach is situatsd on a driveway connecting the towns of Deerwood and Crosby and passenger boats on the lake make hourly trips between those places stopping at Crosby Beach each way.

The first lots in this plat were sold April 15, and have been selling rapidly since. Building of summer homes has commenced, and among others a number of Duluth people have purchased lots with a view to erecting cottages there.

BUILDING THE BELT LINE BRIDGE



THE LOWER LEVEL WILL CARRY THE STREET CAR TRACKS, CONNECTING CARNEGIE WITH THE STEEL PLANT. THIS PHOTOGRAPH WAS TAKEN ON THE WISCONSIN SIDE OF THE RIVER, NEAR CARNEGIE.

CARNEGIE, THE NEW STEEL CITY

Great Town Planned on the Level Plateau Opposite the Minnesota Steel Plant.

Andrew Carnegie, the steel king and philanthropist, who has given millions for public libraries and technical schools, and who has declared it a disgrace to die rich, is to have his name perpetuated in a new steel town at the Head of the Lakes.

The town of Carnegie is located in Wisconsin, opposite the Minnesota steel plant. It begins ten blocks from the Belt Line bridge over the St. Louis river. The townsite is on a high, level plateau. The extenstin of the Duluth street railway to the steel plant from South Superior, for which the right-of-way has been obtained, will run the entire length of Carnegie's main thoroughfare, Union street. The street railway will cross the bridge upon a lower level than the Belt Line railroad tracks as is shown in the accompanying photograph.

Carnegie is within walking distance of the steel works and will be only ten minutes away by street car. Its founders give good reasons why it will become the business and residence center of a new steel city. On one side is the bridge to the steel plant and on the other is the site of the great terminal yards of the Steel corporation. Adjoining Carnegie is the Harding purchase of 1,500 acres, splendidly situated for the building of large industrial plants, which will naturally accompany the construction of the steel works.

The Belt Line railroad runs through the townsite and will give merchants connections with all railroads at the Head of the Lakes and the docks at Allouez bay.

Advantages of Location.

Stress is laid on the fact that Carnegie is located just the right distance away and across the river from the steel plant to escape its smoke, soot and noise, and to give the workmen ideal residence conditions only a few minutes' ride from their employment. When other industries are established on the Harding purchase men can walk to and from work. The same will be true of men employed in the great terminal yards.

Industries allied to the steel plant will be built on the Belt Line railroad between the bridge and Allouez bay, and as close as possible to the steel works to be near the supply of their raw material. The owners of Carnegie figure that factories will spring up on both sides of Carnegie and contribute to its rapid growth.

Several other things are very much in Carnegie's favor. It has a level townsite, high, dry and free from rock, making building operations cheap and easy. It has perfect natural drainage to the St. Louis river.

Thousands of men will be employed in the construction of the steel plant and must be housed, and they can find home sites at once in Carnegie. The people who are planning to make Carnegie worthy of its name say that it appeals strongly as an investment to men who labor for a living; that industries will surround it on all sides, where steady employment may be had by skilled and unskilled workers all the year around; that a home in Carnegie is the safest anchorage a man can have and that every year it will be growing in value; that no matter where a man is working now Carnegie offers him the best opportunity anywhere for investment, with the certainty of constant employment.

The business streets of Carnegie are all eighty feet in width, residence streets sixty-six feet and alleys fifteen feet. Its residence streets are called avenues and are named after well-known officials of steel interests, and include Corey avenue, Olcott avenue, Mitchell avenue and Kerr avenue.

Capitol of the Northwest Rising at the Head of the Lakes.

The booklet which has just been issued describing Carnegie is a good advertisement for both Duluth and Superior. Following are some extracts from it:

"Most people do not realize that 37,000 miles of railroad spread out like a fan from the Twin Ports and other roads are now building to them; that they have a water power second only to Niagara and are entering upon an era of industrial growth unparalleled in the world's history. The Twin Ports in tonnage are surpassed by only those of New York and Philadelphia and will soon surpass those cities.

"So far the Great Northern Power company has developed 30,000 electrical horse-power from the St. Louis river, only half of which is now utilized. This water power furnishes the light for the two cities, moves all their street cars, furnishes power for large industrial plants and is capable of being developed to 80,000 electrical horse-power.

"Electrical treatment of low grade iron ores is being perfected and it may not be long before the ores at our doors will be smelted by electricity generated by water power, thus doing away with coal.

"With the great wheat growing states and agriculture generally contributing to their growth, with the establishment of the steel works and many other manufacturing plants, with their strategic position at the Head of the Lakes, making them the natural point of supply for the Northwest, with a network of great railroad systems, the Twin Ports are destined to rival Chicago before many years, fast surpassing in importance and population Minneapolis and St. Paul, and becoming not only the first city of Minnesota, but the capitol of the Northwest.

Carnegie the Center of Development.

"Right in the center of this marvelous industrial growth is Carnegie, in the most favored location on the Belt Line, having the advantages of connections with all railroads and the nearest and best available site for a city to house the toiling thousands, and with street cars to take them to and from work. On this grand plateau just across the river from the steel plant they will live and trade. Carnegie offers limitless possibilities for merchants large and small, who will do well to buy now, when the business lots on Union street can be had for $350. Union street will be the business center of the new steel city and lots on that thoroughfare will naturally go up in prices by leaps and bounds even before the completion of the steel plant and other industries, as homes must be built now to house the thousands of mechanics engaged in the work of construction.

"You can buy residence lots in Carnegie now as low as $75, all nicely located on level ground and free from rock, which in all likelihood will be worth ten times the amount within five years. But you must act immediately. We are making the first limited offering of lots for much less than they are worth to stimulate immediate building and the consequent enchancement of value of our property."

The booklet "Carnegie," may be had free by applying or writing to the Minnesota-Wisconsin Land company, First National Bank building, Duluth.

CUYUNA IRON RANGE RAILROAD.

One of the most important industrial undertakings in connection with the development of the Cuyuna iron range and one which was conceived and executed with remarkable celerity, was the contsruction of a new line of railroad between the Cuyuna range and Duluth. This enterprise was carried out during the season of 1909 by the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Sault Ste. Marie Railway company, the work of constructing the line having been done through the medium of a subsidiary organization known as the Cuyuna Iron Range Railroad company, but the road is now owned and operated by the parent company.

The Soo Railroad company, as it is best known, and its officials, are entitled to great credit for the despatch and energy displayed in the construction of this line, while simultaneously engaged in making other extensions to its magnificent system, including the line between Duluth and Thief River Falls, a distance of 240 miles; a line, by the way, which gives this system the shortest route between Duluth and Winnipeg by a number of miles and toward the completion of which stupendous efforts are being exercised in order to have it ready for bringing grain to Duluth markets in the fall of 1910.

The Cuyuna Iron Range railroad connects with the Thief River Falls line at Lawler, whence it runs almost directly west to the village of Cuyuna the first twenty-six miles of this distance being a tangent, the longest in the state of Minnesota, while the heaviest grade is only fifteen feet per mile. A reconnoissance survey of this route was made in February, 1909, grading commenced in July and the laying of the rails was completed to Cuyuna within six months from that date. That portion of the Thief River Falls line between Lawler and Moose Lake, was completed the same season, forming a complete line from Cuyuna to Duluth. Two million, five hundred thousand yards of material was moved in making the grade between Cuyuna and Moose Lake, a distance of sixty miles.

This line of road, as well as the entire route between Duluth and Winnipeg, is conspicuous for the absence of sharp curves and heavy grades, a circumstance which will be of great advantage in the prompt handling of heavy trains loaded with such commodities as grain and iron ore. Branches or extensions of the Cuyuna Iron Range line will be completed by June, 1910, to Crosby and to Deerwood, while several other branches have been laid out to various points on the range, which will be built as fast as the development of new mines warrants or demands their construction. This road will be a great advantage to passengers, as well as to all kinds of freight business between Cuyuna range points and Duluth, as well as all points on the Soo system and connecting lines. It seems to be generally understood that the Cuyuna Iron Range line will eventually be extended into North Dakota and become one of the main through lines of the great Soo railway system, though this has not been officially announced at this date.

George M. Huss, division engineer of the Soo railroad and chief engineer of the Cuyuna Iron Range railway, has had general charge of the location and construction of the latter road, as well as of the other Soo lines in this part of the state and is entitled to great credit for the expeditious and effective manner in which the work has been carried on. During the season of 1909, in addition to laying out and completing the above described road between Cuyuna and Moose Lake, he completed the grading of forty miles of track between Lawler and Thief River Falls, while a dozen steam shovels were employed on this line throughout the past winter. As high as seventy men have been employed in the engineering department since this undertaking was commenced and the results attained could have been secured only through the exercise of the utmost vigilance, foresight and executive ability on the part of Mr. Huss and his corps of trained assistants

Mr. Huss is a graduate of Cornell university and is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. He has been engaged in railroad construction for thirty years in different parts of the world. Among the railroads built by him was a line through Palestine, from Acre to Damascus, which was financed by an English syndicate, but is now owned by German capitalists. In Minnesota, he built the line from Big Falls to International Falls, now operated by the Minnesota & International Railroad company. During the past year, Mr. Huss made his headquarters at Aitkin where he became very popular among the people with whom he came in contact, either in business or social relations. He has recently removed his office to Bemidji, in order to be in closer touch with his work in that part of the state.

VERMILION STOCKS ACTIVE.

Rose From 50 Cents to $3.50 in a Year—New Company in Field.

Considerable activity is shown in Vermilion iron stocks. Shares which were put on the market a litttle more than a year ago at 50 cents per share are now selling at $3 to $3.50 per share, or more than triple their par value.

Leading Duluth business men are backing a corporation recently formed, the Duluth-Vermilion Iron company, whose initial offeringof treasury stock is meeting with a ready sale. L. B. Manley, secretary and treasurer of the well-known Manley-McLennan agency, insurance and bonds, is president of the Duluth-Vermillion company; John B. Bisbee, prominent in iron mining, is vice president; Charles D. Brewer, the lumberman, is secretary; and Elmer N. Whyte, lumberman, is treasurer. These gentlemen, with Dr. Charles R. Holden, constitute the board of directors. All are residents of Duluth.

They are confident that the company's property possesses a large body of high grade Bessemer ore, since it has great proven mines on either side and is on the main formation of the range. The Duluth & Iron Range railroad crosses the property and a valuable townsite is one of the assets.

The property lies in the Robinson lake district, a great natural ore basin similar to the ore trough at Ely, midway between the Tower and Ely groups of mines, with the McComber mine on the west and the Southall mine on the east. This location is very favorable for large ore deposits, being in the center and low part of the basin, where the formation is widest and concentration greatest. The Duluth-Vermillion holdings extend for half a mile in one direction and three-quarters of a mile in the other, directly on the main iron-bearing formation. Drills have cut large quantities of high grade ore less than 500 feet from the property to the southwest. Drilling on the west indicates that the line of strike is directly through the Duluth-Vermillion property. Mining men regard this region as holding the next great group of iron ore producers.

The output of high grade Bessemer ore is small compared to the production of medium and low grade ores, and high grade Bessemer ore is now worth $2 per ton in the ground on the Vermillion range. Reasons given by the officers of the Duluth-Vermillion company for their great expectations are that drills 1,200 feet apart, on a direct line through their land, show high grade hematite ore, and on either side, east and west, are stock piles of the highest grade Bessemer ore. Noted mining men have rendered their opinion that the company will develop a large mine.

For development purposes the company is offering 100,000 shares of treasury stock at $1 per share, par value and has appointed Lee W. Farmer, the well-known broker, 410 Lonsdale building, as its fiscal agent.

COOLIDGE & SCHUSSLER.

In a sense, the development of iron mining in Northern Minnesota is a sequel to the development of the great lumbering industry of the state. Lands in this portion of the state were formerly considered to have little or no value aside from that of the timber growing thereon and the fees were originally acquired, for the most part, in large tracts by individuals, firms or corporations interested in logging or lumbering operations.

In many instances, after the marketable pine had been cut and disposed of, the lands were sold for trifling consideratrions. In numerous other cases, however, these properties are still held by lumbering concerns, or individuals connected therewith, and this circumstance has made the early exploration and development of the mineral ranges much more practicable than if the ownership of these lands had been scattered among many different parties with widely divergent interests. Extensive exploration or mining operations can only be carried on to advantage when considerable tracts of land can be handled collectively. In some cases, such owners have taken an active part in the exploration of their properties, while in others they have co-operated in the work by making advantageous leases to parties engaged in the work of exploration and development. This is especially notable on the Cuyuna range where lumbering operations were practically completed before it was generally even suspected that the cut-over lands possessed any mineral worth taking into consideration.

Among the property owners in this territory who became convinced at an early date of the potential value of wild lands and have taken an active interest in proving the mineral wealth of the Cuyuna range, are M. H. Coolidge and M. H. Schusseler, well known lumbermen of Minneapolis. In addition to lands previously owned by them in this part of the state for the last three years these gentlemen have been acquiring fees and leases to various tracts in the vicinity of Deerwood, in Crow Wing county. Most of these lands were surveyed with dip needles either before or after their purchase and, in the fall of 1909, three drills were at work on these properties. The location selected for beginning operations is in the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter, section 10, township 46, range 29, in close proximity to the route of the Soo railroad line which is being constructed through this township. As the owners hade sagely anticipated, some excellent ore samples have been taken from these drillings where the work is still in progress, it being the intention of the owners to make the exploration of this property very thorough. In due time, other tracts owned by these parties will be explored and there is abundant reason to believe that several rich mines will eventually be developed on their buildings.

These gentlemen are members of the Coolidge-Schussler company which has carried on extensive lumbering operations in Northern Minnesota for many years, its chief logging headquarters being at Floodwood, St. Louis county. For a number of years the company has also operated a cedar yard at New Duluth near the site of the great Steel plant now being built by the United States Steel corporation.

THE C. M. HILL LUMBER COMPANY.

This corporation, with main office at Saginaw, Mich., is one of the prominent organizations extensively interested in Northern Minnesota iron properties. The company began acquiring lands in this region about twenty years ago, and purchased many tracts lying in different counties. The timber was cut from these lands several years ago, and the company is no longer engaged in the manufacture of lumber although still dealing in timber to a considerable extent in the South and also on the Pacific coast.

In some cases, the mineral values of these cut-over lands have proved very great and their development has been given considerable attention in recent years. Some of the company's properties on the Mesaba range have been leased for some time to iron mining companies by whom they are now being operated.

Among these lands are a number of tracts in the Cuyuna range district very favorably located and likely to prove valuable ore-bearing properties. About two years ago the company began to give attention to the exploration of these properties and the work has been in continuous progress since. The company is operating four drills and is meeting with very good success in its operations in this territory which so far have been confined to township 46, range 29, in Crow Wing county. In addition to the lands originally owned the company has acquired fees and options on other properties and seems to be permanently engaged in the development and extension of its interests in this district. Some of these properties have already been leased to mining companies, but, so far as known, no active mining operations are likely to be begun this season. The leases given are on a royalty basis.

Peter Drummond, secretary, treasurer and general manager of the C. M. Hill Lumber company, with the assistance of Roger R. Hill, has given much of his personal attention to superintending this work in the past two years. But the actual supervision of the exploratory work, as well as the selection of lands, has been under the direction of B. Magoffin, Jr., of Deerwood, Minn., who remains permanently in the field. Mr. Drummond resides in Saginaw, but makes his headquarters at Duluth when in this state.

ALBERT F. GROSS.

Few men are better known in Northern Minnesota than Mr. Gross who has been successively engaged in the exploration and development of the different iron ranges of the state for a quarter-century or more. He was a pioneer on the Vermilion range and later on the Mesaba where he located "claims" which have already produced a comfortable fortune and will be adding to his income for countless years to come.

As early as 1891 Mr. Gross began making explorations in the Cuyuna district and found indications which convinced him of the existence of iron deposits in that field but, as he possessed little means at the time and was unable to interest capitalists in that field, his discoveries yielded him no profit at that time. However, he was too shrewd to abandon the field permanently and thereby forfeit the opportunity of profiting from his investigations. From time to time he acquired lands which he believed would become valuable and these holdings have been rapidly augmented in the last few years until he is now interested in properties ranging from the vicinity of McGregor, in Aitkin county, to a point west of Brainerd, a distance of over forty-eight miles. Some of these lands are owned by him individually, while other tracts are owned or leased by various organizations in which he is interested. He has been instrumental in interesting other capitalists in this territory several of whom have realized or will realize handsome profits from acting on his advice.

The drilling of these properties has been in active progress for some time and several tracts have already been proven to be rich in ore while the drilling operations are being extended to other tracts as fast as practicable. On the southeast ¼, southwest ¼, section 1, township 46, range 29, a vein of Bessemer ore has been located which will average ninety-two feet in depth and for forty feet the assays show 68.41 per cent of metallic iron and .11 per cent phosphorus. Mines have also been explored in sections 3 and 4 of the same township. These lands are among the best located tracts in the Cuyuna district and adjoin properties which have been leased to mining companies for development. Lines of the Cuyuna Iron Range railway cross these properties and ensure their early development.

Mr. Gross is still devoting much of his attention to prospecting in this district and is one of the most ardent optimists regarding the future of the Cuyuna district. He recalls the time when he could have secured most of the cut-over lands on this range for $3.50 per acre and strongly urged some of the capitalists with whom he was interested to do so but, lacking his degree of confidence, they allowed the properties to pass beyond their control without availing themselves of the opportunity.

The success which Mr. Gross has achieved is due to his experience and excellent judgment in selecting mineral properties and to the perseverance which he displays in adhering to his convictions. In common with other prospectors, he has known some bitter disappointments and has seen some rare opportunities which he was unable to take advantage of but he has always had the courage of his convictions and has often pursued his ventures to ultimate success when they were abandoned by most of his associates.

Mr. Gross relates an interesting adventure which he experienced in January, 1891. While crossing Sandy Lake, he was attacked by a pack of Indian dogs, as ferocious as wolves, and after shouting a warning to their owners in an adjacent camp, he was obliged to shoot the leader of the pack in self-defense. Not wishing to incur the ill will of the tribe, the next day he presented the owner of the dog with a sack of feed, accompanying the gift with a warning which prevented his further molestation.

FRANKLIN W. MERRITT.

President and manager of the Gorham & Garbett Co., was one of the early prospectors on the Cuyuna range, and has been one of the most active promoters of its development.

Mr. Merritt has been a practical mining man for the greater part of his life, and the judgment and experience which he had previously acquired has been of incalculable value to himself and his associates in their operations in this district. He was among the first explorers of the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges, and was familiar with the use of the magnetic needle and the diamond drill long before it was suspected that the Cuyuna district would ever become an important factor in the mineral resources of the state. Since becoming interested in this field he has been one of the most optimistic promoters of its development and has never relaxed his enthusiasm, however discouraging the prospects may have seemed to others, and the sequel is justifying his sagacity and foresight.

Mr. Merritt began operations in this field in 1905, directing his attention to the locality now known as the "North Range," where most of his work has been done, though he has some interests also in the "South Range." He has taken dip needle readings over a stretch of territory extending from range 26, in Aitkin county, westward into Todd county, and is, perhaps, more familiar with all portions of this territory than any other man on the range, which he does not hesitate to predict will become the greatest mineral region of Minnesota and of the entire world.

From time to time he has been acquiring titles and leases to desirable tracts of land, and the accuracy of his judgment is shown by the fact that among the first five properties which he bought ore has been found on four. Since accepting his present position with the Gorham & Garbett Co., two years ago, most of his attention has been directed toward the exploration and development of properties in township 47, range 29. In section 28 of this township a body of ore has been proved which is more than 500 feet in depth and nearly one-fourth mile in width. In sections 32 and 33 of the same township is found what appears to be a continuation of the same formation, making altogether one of the largest bodies of merchantable ore found on the range up this date. The ore is of the quality known as manganiferous iron ore, assaying as high as 64 per cent iron and manganese, the manganese alone running as high as 34.83 per cent. The company owns and operates several drills, and the work of exploring these sections is still in progress, being carried on in a thorough and systematic manner, which will eventually prove the exact extent and quality of the formation. In section 33 an unusual circumstance is noted. The ore is being found directly beneath the line of attraction, whereas in most locations in this district the ore vein lies to the south and east of the magnetic lines, but adjacent to them. Several flattering offers to lease such properties have beeen made by mining companies, but as yet no contract has been accepted by the Gorham & Garbett Co. This company also has a promising property in section 32, township 45, range 30, in what is called the "South Range." A number of men are kept busy in carrying on its exploration work under the supervision of Mr. Merritt.

Franklin W. Merritt represents the third generation in Minnesota of the famous family which has beeen so conspicuously identified with the exploitation of the iron ranges of the state. To this family is due the chief credit for proving the existence of merchantable ore on the Mesaba range and the building of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad. The early explorations carried on by the Merritt Brothers were done by means of a windlass, pick and shovel, test pits being sunk in many parts of the Mesaba range by this means, a rather superficial manner of exploring, as there was no means of penetrating the rock formation which frequently overlaid the ore deposits. Franklin W. participated in these early explorations, and has long been familiar with the various methods of seeking mineral veins in this state as well as in the West. For some years past he has resided in Minneapolis, and most of his associates in the Gorham & Garbett Co. are residents of the Twin Cities. His time and attention are devoted entirely to the interests of the company, and he is well known to everyone interested in the Cuyuna range.

VILLAGE AND ADJACENT COUNTRY RICH IN POTENTIAL WEALTH.

Aitkin, the county seat of Aitkin county, with a population of 2,000 or more of industrious and intelligent people, may be said to be typical of the most progressive class of Northern Minnesota towns. An inspection of this town and county discloses many features to attract the prospective investor, homeseeker, farmer, miner or manufacturer as well as people of most other callings.

Dating its existence from the construction of the Northern Pacific railroad, nearly forty years ago, Aitkin's real growth has taken place, for the most part, during the last quarter of a century, and the last decade has witnessed the founding of its commercial interests upon a substantial and conservative basis. The lumber industry, so long the predominating influence in Northern Minnesota, is practically at an end in Aitkin and adjacent territory. More or less timber will be cut and sawed here for years to come, but it will be chiefly for home consumption and will add to the assets of the county rather than reducing them. An era of conservation and development is dawning, which will be realized and appreciated within the next few years far more than its most sanguine citizens are anticipating at the present time.

The development of the Cuyuna iron range is already resulting in noticeable advantages to Aitkin which is well located to become the chief commercial center of this territory. Situated at the junction of the Soo and Northern Pacific railroads, Aitkin is in line of direct communication with every point on the range, an advantage which will become more apparent as mining enterprises progress, while exploration is continually proving the existence of new veins of rich ore contigious to the town or within its limits.

Most of the business men of Aitkin are keenly alive to the opportunities which are knocking at their doors and are disposed to make the most of the advantages which circumstances have provided. There is an agressive commercial club which is seeking to promote the best interests of the place and usually accomplishes what it undertakes. As an instance of this fact, it may be cited that when the Cuyuna Iron Range Railroad company asked for a right-of-way through the town, it was secured and donated through the efforts of the club within twenty-four hours.

Among the features in which Aitkin boasts of excelling are the largest department store between Duluth and Fargo and one of the finest high schools in the state. The business places, residences and public buildings erected in recent years are of the most modern and substantial character. Space permits the illustration of only a few, but several pages of equally attractive structures might be shown.

The streets of the town are lined with broad cement walks. There is an excellent water and sewer system and a municipal lighting plant. There are now over 14,000 feet of water main and approximately 11,500 feet of main sewer, while these services are being extended as the growth of the town demands. The bonded debt of the village is only $30,000, and the floating debt, $4,000. In 1909, the total tax rate was .0523, which included the cost of a new school building and a sinking fund. The principal officials of the village are as follows: P. O. Erickson, president; Ambrose Casey, D. M. Falconer and Dennis McMahon, trustees; Henry Beecher, recorder and O. A. Olson, treasurer.

A Cultured People.

Aitkin contains many magnificient homes surrounded by beautiful shade trees, lawns and gardens betokening that its people appreciate the blessings which tend to make life worth living. There are nine religious organizations, seven of which have houses of worship. A new church edifice is about to be erected by the congregational society. Numerous clubs and fraternities augment the social and moral culture of the people. A public library with 1,400 volumes is supported by popular subscriptions, and arrangements have been made for a $5,000 Carnegie building, which will be erected upon a desirable site recently donated by Mrs. Hogeden, wife of a leading citizen.

The press is well represented by three weekly newspapers, the Age, Republican and Independent, each well managed and reflecting the most progressive sentiments of the people while exerting more or less educational influence.

The Aitkin Age is one of the progressive local newspapers of Northern Minnesota and exerts a marked influence in the public affairs of the town and county.

The Age was established in 1883 by E. F. Barrett. The office is equipped for turning out all kinds of printing with neatness and dispatch and is admirably arranged with a view to convenience and abundant light. Its presses are operated by a gasoline engine.

B. L. Hollister, editor and proprietor of the Age, has been connected with the publishing business for some years. He founded the Aitkin Independent in 1901, but sold out the establishment the following year and purchased the Age which he has since published. He is a wide-awake and progressive journalist and enthusiastic in regard to the future prosperity of Aitkin and the Cuyuna iron district. He is actively identified with the Aitkin Commercial club and was one of the organizers of the Aitkin Mining company.

Mr. Hollister was recently appointed supervisor of the United States census for the Eighth congressional district and has made active preparations for the work which will require the service of 245 enumerators of whom fifty-five will be employed in the city of Duluth and sixteen will be required to do the work in Aitkin county. Besides the above number, several special agents will be engaged in collecting industrial statistics in the cities.

The Aitkin Republican was started in July, 1894, by E. A. Zuver and Hugh McEwen. About three months later the paper was taken in charge by A. L. Hamilton, who became the proprietor in February, 1895, and has published it to the present time. The Republican is known as a journal of pronounced sentiments which are freely expressed regarding all public questions. Mr. Hamilton learned the printing trade at Ithaca, Mich., and has had experience in that art at numerous places, East and West, including the office of the Duluth Herald, and four years or more in the government printing office at Washington.

The Aitkin Independent was founded by B. L. Hollister, Jan. 1, 1902, but was sold in the fall of the same year to Freeman E. Krech, the present publisher. Mr. Krech has been engaged in newspaper work since 1886, and is also interested in other enterprises, including the Aitkin Mining company and the First National Bank of Aitkin of which he is vice president. Among the improvements which he has added to the Independent office is a new typograph, the first automatic typesetting machine in Aitkin county, where the paper is the only Democratic organ.

Aitkin County,

With an area exceeding that of the state of Delaware, is a region of vast and unestimated resources. The remaining timber, mostly hardwood, is by no means a trifling asset and the undeveloped mine wealth cannot be prognosticated, but it is practically certain to become a prodigious source of income in due time. The county is just entering upon a period of agricultural development which is destined, in the long run, to become its greatest and most permanent source of wealth. That practically every product known to the north temperate zone can be successfully grown here, has been demonstrated too often to permit of further question. But its adaption to grass growing transcends every other quality of the soil. In this respect, Aitkin county is unexcelled by any portion of the civilized world

Red and white clover, timothy and other grasses thrive here and, when once seeded, can scarcely be exterminated. This is especially true of white clover, which is the most persistent weed with which the tiller of the soil finds it necessary to contend.

This circumstance, together with the immense yields obtained of corn, oats, barley, rye and root crops, points to stockraising and dairying as the branches of husbandry likely to yield the most satisfactory returns. And experience has shown the truth of this in repeated instances. A number of fine stock farms are to be found in the county where the thriftiest specimens of all kinds of livestock are being bred. Dairying is still in its infancy, but receiving more attention than ever before. A creamery started at Aitkin in 1907 manufactured only $6,000 worth of butter that season, but the product in 1909 increased to 139,000 pounds, valued at $30,000, the cream being furnished by 210 patrons. The number of the principal varieties of livestock in the county in 1909 was as follows: horses, 2,548; cattle, 9,943; sheep, 2,764; swine, 1,334.

Large quantities of wild fruits such as strawberries, red raspberries, blackberries, blueberries and cranberries grow almost everywhere pointing to the natural conclusion that cultivated fruits will thrive equally well if given proper attention, and a number of people are giving special attention to fruit culture, including all kinds of small fruits, apples, plums and other sorts. Horticulture has received the most attention in the neighborhood of Bay Lake, a settlement a few miles south of Aitkin, where a number of people have made this work a profitable industry.

Wild land in this county can be had from $5 per acre upwards, depending upon the location, soil, amount of standing timber and other advantages. With very few exceptions, the soil is very productive, consisting of black and sandy loams with clay subsoil. The settlement and cultivation of this county is receiving a great impetus from the vast system of drainage and roadbuilding being carried out by the state. Contracts for drainage amounting to $40,000 will be completed this season in the vicinity of Aitkin, redeeming thousands of acres of swamp land.

A number of prosperous villages and settlements are scattered through different parts of the county and there are abundant opportunities for engaging in business or securing farms at advantageous prices.

A locality which offers many inducements to settlers is found in the Milward settlement, in the southeastern part of the county. Most of the lands in this locality have plenty of standing timber to supply the purchaser with building material, fencing and fuel and many tracts will provide an excess of marketable timber. There are also numerous natural meadows and good markets are easy of access.

AITKIN MINING COMPANY.

Soon after the active exploration of the Cuyuna range was commenced, a number of citizens of Aitkin determined to participate in the work and formed an organization which was incorporated in 1908 as the Aitkin Mining company. The company is composed of about twenty stockholders, most of whom reside in Aitkin, and are quite enthusiastic concerning the future mineral developments in this locality.

The company has secured the ownership of a number of tracts of land and holds options on other tracts amounting to about 1,000 acres in all. Two drills have been operated by the company for some time, and in addition to drilling its own properties, contracts are filled with other parties and a general exploration business is carried on.

In the first drilling done by this company a body of ore was encountered at a depth of 120 feet, and at a depth of 160 feet samples of ore were taken which assayed 64 per cent iron. The drilling was continued to a depth of 220 feet without finding any bottom to the vein. Ore has been found in every hole subsequently drilled by this company, and its members have reason to congratulate themselves upon the success so far attained in the venture.

Clyde M. McKay, president and general manager of the Aitkin Mining company, was one of the original organizers of the corporation and the progress of the undertaking is largely due to his enthusiasm and good management. Mr. McKay also represents the Mueller Lumber company of Davenport, Iowa, which organization has been extensively engaged in logging on the Upper Mississippi for many years past. The logs cut in Northern Minnesota are floated down to the company's mills at Davenport and Mr. McKay superintends all its operations north of St. Paul, a position involving considerable responsibility and business sagacity.

Mr. McKay is a native of Chippewa Falls, Wis., and a graduate of the university of that state where he pursued a course in mechanical engineering before coming to Northern Minnesota.

PETER LARSON.

Mr. Larson has filled the office of register of deeds for Aitkin county for the last sixteen years, and is one of the oldest public officials in the county as regards years of continuous service.

He came to this county in childhood and has lived here for thirty-two years being educated in the public schools and St. Peter's college. Soon after his election to the office of register, he began compiling a set of abstracts for the use of the county. Six years ago he purchased another set which he keeps corrected to date and now owns a complete set of abstracts of all property in the county. He also draws and sells topographical maps of the different townships in the county for which there is a considerable demand among cruisers, explorers and real estate dealers.

Some years ago Mr. Larson began making investments in wild and timbered lands and he is now the owner of a number of tracts as well as some improved farms. He is a stockholder and director in the First National Bank of Aitkin, and is counted among the substantial and reliable business men of the place. The confidence reposed in him by the people is testified by his continued incumbency of the office which he fills.

C. H. WARNER.

Mr. Warner is recognized as one of the most progressive men and public spirited citizens of Aitkin. He has been a prime mover in many undertakings looking toward the advancement of the interests of the community, and was one of the original promoters of the agitation for state development which has attracted much attention in the last few months.

For a dozen years or more, Mr. Warner has been a stockholder in the Aitkin County State bank of which institution he is now vice president. For ten years past, he has given most of his attention to dealing in real estate especially farming lands. He has given some useful object lessons to the people of the county by developing several farms and has always been an aggressive advocate of the improvement of the agricultural resources of Aitkin and other counties in Northern Minnesota. He served several years as secretary of the Aitkin County Agricultural society, and was one of the original organizers of the Aitkin Commercial club of which he has been both president and secretary.

In recent years, he has given considerable attention to iron lands and to the exploration of iron lands in which he is interested. In 1909 he helped to organize the Nashwauk Iron Mining company of which he is vice president. The company operates in Aitkin county.

Mr. Warner was active in organizing the State Drainage league of which he was the first vice president and later served as president of the organization. It was partly due to the activity of this league that appropriations were secured from the state legislature for the extensive drainage system now being carried on in Aitkin and other counties in this section of the state.

In conjunction with other citizens of Northern Minnesota, he was active in securing the creation of the office of immigration commissioner of the state and he was appointed the first incumbent of that position which he filled for eighteen months. While holding that office, he organized an excursion of agricultural editors and editors of foreign language newspapers for a week's trip through the northern part of the state. He also arranged a series of meetings at different county seats under the auspices of local commercial clubs for the purpose of securing the co-operation and interest of the people in the subject of immigration, good roads and drainage. By this means much information was disseminated concerning the resources of this part of the state and the movement became the nucleus of a general movement in the interest of immigration to the state and state development.

For seven or eight years, Mr. Warner published the Aitkin Age, one of the most influential newspapers in the county. He has filled numerous official positions of trust and responsibility, including that of secretary of the Republican state central committee, and is recognized as one of the most capable and influential men in this locality.

EMIL E. ERIKSON.

Mr. Erickson conducts an up-to-date photographic studio at Aitkin where he located eight years ago. The building which he occupies is arranged expressly for the purpose and is equipped with the most modern appurtenances of his profession. In addition to executing artistic portraits, he gives special attention to photographing scenery and outdoor views several specimens of his handiwork being reproduced in this publication.

He is also prepared to make picture frames to order and keeps on hand the largest and best stock of moulding in Aitkin for this purpose. All orders entrusted to him in either line are faithfully carried out and he merits the patronage of the lovers of art in Aitkin county.

Mr. Erickson began the study of his art with F. A. Nelson of Little Falls, Minn., one of the veteran photographers of Northern Minnesota. Practically all of Mr. Erikson's life has been devoted to his profession and he aims to keep abreast of the times in all that pertains thereto.

J. N. MARR.

One of the progressive business men of Aitkin is Mr. J. N. Marr who engaged in the clothing trade in this place some twenty-five years since, and has continuously dealt in first-class clothing and haberdashery to the present time. He has always maintained a reputation for handling dependable goods and the best dressers in Aitkin county realize that their demands can always be satisfactorily met at his store. Whether it is an entire suit or overcoat that is required or only a single garment or some article of furnishings, shoes or hats, the most critical and discriminating customers are certain to find what they want in this place.

Mr. Marr is an optimist regarding the resources and future prosperity of Aitkin county and he began, some years ago, to invest his profits in wild lands with the result that he now owns a number of tracts in different parts of the county including several improved farms. More or less of his land is believed to contain veins of iron ore though but little exploration has been done thereon as yet.

He has great faith in the fertility of the soil of this county as a source of future wealth to its people and is making some practical demonstrations of his confidence. Among his other experiments, he has several hundred growing fruit trees and expects to see the time when Northern Minnesota will rank among the leading horticultural sections of the union.

The future of Aitkin and Aitkin county depends to a great extent upon the public spirit displayed by its successful business men and the community is to be congratulated upon having among this number men like Mr. Marr who do not hesitate to do some pioneering in their respective lines of endeavor.

E. H. KRELWITZ.

Mr. Krelwitz is a successful attorney of Aitkin who was also one of the first citizens of that place to discern the future value of lands on the Cuyuna range. He was early convinced of the fact that iron in paying quantities would be found at Rabbit lake and acquired an interest in the fee to property on which the Kennedy mine has since been developed. He is also interested in several other tracts of land on the range which have not been explored but are considered as excellent prospects. By their foresight and sagacity, he and his associates have ensured to themselves an ultimate reward which was open to many but was disregarded by most people until quite recently.

Mr. Krelwitz is a native of Michigan but spent most of his boyhood in Duluth where he finished the high school course in 1891. He studied law at the University of Minnesota and was admitted to practice in 1898. After following his profession in Minneapolis for two years, he located at Aitkin where he has since pursued a general practice. For six years previous to 1909, he served as county attorney and was also village attorney at Aitkin for a time. The people of this village and county repose great confidence in Mr. Krelwitz on account of his legal lore and he is likewise popular owing to the many excellent social qualities which he has displayed since becoming a citizen of Aitkin. His social and business connections extend to several other places in which he is also held in high esteem.

The Commercial club of Aitkin and other organizations aimed to promote the general welfare of the community find in Mr. Krelwitz an able and earnest supporter, and he endeavors in many ways to discharge the duties and responsibilities which are allied to good citizenship.

LAND

DON'T CHASE RAINBOWS

The opportunity and wealth is right at your door. The people of this country are fast waking up to the necessity for a greater agricultural development, a realization of the independence and wealth the vocation of the Farmer, the Dairyman and the Gardener has at his command today.

MILLWARD SETTLEMENT
Aitkin County, Minn.

Is located in Township 44 and 45 and Ranges 22 and 23 in the Southeastern section of Aitkin county, Minn., sixty miles south of Duluth and Superior and ninty miles north of St. Paul and Minneapolis; on the Soo main line from Duluth to the Pacific coast. Three new prosperous and progressive towns, Arthyde, Solana and McGrath are now established. This new road is opening up one of the finest districts of hardwood timber in the state. The lands are covered with a heavy growth of mixed hardwood, consisting of maple, oak, birch, elm, bass wood and poplar and in some instances may be found a good deal of soft wood timber—pine, spruce, cedar, tamarack and balsam. Nearly all of the timber is fit for sawlogs and other mercantile purposes and can be used in putting up buildings. This district has never been burned over by forest fires and all of the timber is alive and green.

IN MANY CASES THE TIMBER WILL PAY FOR THE LAND TWO OR THREE TIMES OVER.

A good many natural meadows will be found, which will cut about two or three tons of very good hay to the acre. The productiveness of the soil has been fully demonstrated. The development of the country has only been delayed by lack of railroad. It has one now.

CLEARING LANDS—The lands in the Millward Settlement will cut from fifty thousand to one hundred thousand feet of lumber, board measure to the forty acres, and from two hundred to five hundred cords of wood in addition. This means that the farmer buys standing timber on his land worth from $300.00 to $600.00 per forty and which can be cut and sold for $1,000.00 to $2,500.00 per forty. This is virgin timber, but not a pinery. You are not buying the lumberman's leavings of only pine stumps.

PRICE AND TERMS—Good lands with plenty of timber to pay for them, average about $15.00 per acre; in some cases where the timber is unusually heavy, the price is a little more. The first payment varies from $2.00 to $5.00 per acre, according to the timber on the lands and deferred payments run ten years' time. Liberal discounts are made on the cash sales.

H. B. AYRES.

Mr. Ayres is one of the pioneer residents of Aitkin and has been closely identified with the development of the Cuyuna range concerning the geological formation of which there are few people as well informed.

About twenty-nine years since Mr. Ayres was in the employ of the Northern Pacific Railway company in the capacity of civil engineer, and in 1886 he took up his residence at Aitkin, continuing for six years longer to be connected with that corporation as land examiner. Much of this period was spent in the woods. He was also engaged in mapping a considerable portion of the Mesaba range in the interest of the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad company. He was afterward engaged as geologist by the same company and made extended mineral surveys on what is now known as the Cuyuna range. The company owned considerable tracts of land in Aitkin and Crow Wing counties which were included in its grant from the state and these were thoroughly searched for mineral indications. In carrying on these surveys he made use of the dip needle to some extent and located nine of the leases now being developed, none of which were on the company's property, however.

Mr. Ayres spent a number of years in the services of the United States government, first in the forestry division, department of agriculture and, later under the direction of the United States geological survey. He examined the Cascade forest reserve in Washington, the Flathead forest reserve in Montana, the Lewis & Clarke forest reserve in the same state and the proposed Southern Appalachian forest reserve in North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia. In the last mentioned undertaking he was associated with Prof. W. W. Ashe of Raleigh, North Carolina. The reports published by the government on these surveys are quite voluminous and highly interesting to every one who realizes the importance of this work.

Since 1902, Mr. Ayres has resided continuously in Aitkin and has given much of his attention to mineral surveys in the Cuyuna district. He was one of the original stockholders in the Orelands Mining company and is interested in the Kennedy mine near Rabbit lake. He has located some excellent mineral prospects at Dam lake in which capitalists have become interested and the property is now being drilled. His mineral interests also include options on several tracts in the Rice river district and others to the north of Serpent lake and near Island lake in Crow Wing county. Mr. Ayres discovered the Rice river mineral district about twenty years ago, and has recently arranged for its exploration by means of drills.

One of the most interesting undertakings carried on by Mr. Ayres is the Jack Pine Nursery which he started in 1902 on lands which he owns near the village of Kimberly. While in the employ of the government, in 1897, he first suggested the planting of jack pines on the sand hills of Nebraska, where experiments were being undertaken in forestry by B. E. Fernow, then chief of the forestry division, United States department of agriculture. As a result of this suggestion, this has been found to be the hardiest and thriftiest timber adapted to the semi-arid regions of the West and he now finds a ready market there for the product of his nursery, shipping on an average 400,000 trees each season. He also ships quantities of the seed to France, Germany and Denmark in which countries this timber has been found remarkably thrifty. Mr. Ayres is entitled to great credit for his contributions to the science of forestry in the West as well as for his numerous other services in the benefits of which many people are participants.

PETER O. ERICKSON.

President of the village of Aitkin, has been identified with the business interests of the place for thirteen years, and has merited the confidence bestowed in him by his fellow citizens.

Upon coming to Aitkin in 1897, Mr. Erickson engaged in mercantile business in company with S. Anderson, but for the last eight years he has been sole proprietor of the establishment. He carries an excellent stock of general merchandise occupying one of the most modern storerooms in the town, and five people are employed in waiting upon the trade.

Mr. Erickson has spent two seasons in the Kootenai country of British Columbia and became so impressed with the mineral wealth of that region that he decided to invest in mining properties there. In conjunction with his former partner, Mr. Anderson, he is developing a promising lead and silver mine in that district.

Mr. Erickson served the people of Aitkin as a member of the village council for several terms before his election to his present position in the spring of 1909. He has been interested in the progress and improvement of the town at all times and is a faithful public official.

LOUIS HALLUM.

One of the leading attorneys of Aitkin, now serving as prosecuting attorney of Aitkin county, is Louis Hallum, who has carried on a general law practice here since 1903.

Mr. Hallum is a native of Minnesota, born in Fillmore county, and acquired his education in the public schools and at the state university, where he completed the law course in 1899. He practiced his profession at Battle Lake, Minn., for a time before locating at Aitkin, where he soon established a reputation as one of the prominent representatives of the bar of Aitkin county and his professional work often calls him into the courts of other counties.

While making law his business, Mr. Hallum finds time to interest himself to some extent in the public affairs of the village and county and occasionally takes the stump in behalf of some of his friends during political campaigns. He is a pronounced Republican and fully capable of expounding his principles and those of the party in an interesting manner. His principal official service has been in the capacity of county attorney, which position he has filled since January, 1909.

B. M. HUNGERFORD.

Mr. Hungerford is one of the prominent and influential citizens of Aitkin who came here in quest of health in 1875, at which time the place consisted of one store and a saloon besides the railroad station. So congenial did Mr. Hungerford find this climate that he has ever since considered himself a permanent resident. Though without capital at that time, he soon began to prosper and to invest his savings in wild lands, in which he has been one of the most extensive dealers in the county. For many years he was agent for the lands of the Northern Pacific Railway company in this county. He has improved several farms and has 600 acres of clover and timothy pasture on which he grezes large herds of cattle each season. He prepared the first collection of Aitkin county products ever exhibited at the state fair, which took first premium in competition with the entire state.

AITKIN COUNTY STATE BANK.

This institution is recognized as one of the representative financial establishments of Northern Minnesota. Every department of legitimate banking is given careful attention. Conspicuous features of the establishment are the savings department and the safety deposit vaults, in which boxes are rented at reasonable rates for the safekeeping of papers and valuables. Exchange, loans, insurance, real estate and other features are carefully attended to. The institution is a state depositary, and enjoys the confidence of the public in a noteworthy degree.

The bank building, which was erected in 1905, is a solid brick and stone structure, 40 by 50 feet, consisting of two stories and basement. The bank fixtures are modern, and include electric burglar alarms. Besides the banking offices, it accommodates a number of other offices of business and professional men.

The Aitkin County State bank was incorporated in 1895, and is capitalized at $25,000. There is a surplus of $12,500, and the deposits average $233,000. Total resources and liabilities on March 29, 1910, amounted to approximately $273,000. The officers of the bank are: C. P. De Laittre, president; C. H. Warner, vice president; E. C. Boeck, cashier, and John N. Then, assistant cashier.

E. C. Boeck, the cashier, came to Aitkin from Detroit, Minn., where for some time he was connected with the insurance, loan and real estate department of the Merchants' National bank. Prior to this he was connected with the State Bank of Slayton, conducted by C. E. Linehart, father of the present state treasurer. In his present position, Mr. Boeck succeeded J. B. Gallernault, now superintendent of banks for Minnesota. Mr. Boeck's experience has made him especially qualified for his present position, and the bank has been very prosperous under his management.

HOTEL FOLEY.

One of the most comfortable and popular hotels on the Cuyuna range is the Foley at Aitkin, conducted by W. H. Allis, who come from Iowa about a year ago to take charge of the house. Under his management the house has been admirably conducted, and is steadily gaining in popularity, and the capacity of its accommodations are often taxed to the utmost.

It is a three-story brick building, very conveniently located, opposite the Northern Pacific passenger station and adjacent to the business section of the town. The house was originally built by T. R. Foley, one of the leading business men of Aitkin, whence the name. There are forty-two sleeping rooms, beside ample office, dining room, parlors and other accessories. The building is supplied with all modern conveniences, all the rooms being light, comfortable and cheerful.

The dining room, an essential feature of every good hotel, is especially popular, accommodating numerous table boarders in addition to the throng of transient guests. The menu is always well selected, and the cookery excellent, while the service is all that could be desired.

The traveler who visits Aitkin, either on commercial or other errands, will make no mistake by registering at the Foley, whether his sojourn is to be for a brief or an extended period.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

A circumstance upon which the business interests of the Cuyuna range may be appropriately congratulated, is the reliable and conservative character of their banking institutions. This is especially true of Aitkin, which place is likely to be the financial center of many of the developments scheduled to take place on this range during the coming years.

The First National Bank of Aitkin is an outgrowth of a private banking house started in 1900 as the Bank of Aitkin and incorporated three years later under its present title. Prudent management has characterized the institution and shown increasing prosperity. The various branches of banking are handled in such a manner as to afford a maximum of convenience to the public, while cultivating confidence and protecting the interests alike of stockholders and depositors. Farm loans and safety deposits valuts are conspicuous features of the business and the insurance department represents a number of the most reliable companies. Though there is no special savings department, deposits are accepted in any amount from $1 up, thereby encouraging the owner of the small hoard, as well as the manager of large business transactions.

A site has been secured for a new bank building in the center of the business section, where a substantial structure will be erected within the next year or two.

The bank is capitalized at $25,000 and the surplus and undivided profits at the close of business, Jan. 31, 1910, amounted to $8,233.63. Resources and liabilities at that date were $317,897.77. The officers of the institution are as follows: William Davidson, president; F. E. Krech, first vice president; J. A. Healy, second vice president; Ben R. Hassman, cashier and Olaf A. Olson, assistant cashier. The board of directors includes the first four officers, T. R. Foley, Peter Larson and George H. Robinson.

Ben R. Hassman, the cashier, has been connected with the bank since 1901 and was formerly connected with the Bank of Hutchinson, at Hutchinson, Minn., and is one of the organizers of the Cuyuna State bank, which is about to engage in business at the village of Cuyuna. He is interested in real estate in Aitkin, Crow Wing and Cass counties, portions of which are being explored with a view to mineral development. He was also one of the organizers of Davidson, McRea & Co., a corporation engaged in stock raising on a large scale in Aitkin county, of which he is treasurer and general manager.

THE AITKIN AGE

Aitkin is the business headquarters for the new range, and is the only town in direct railway connection with all points on the range.

The Age has been established twenty-seven years. It costs $1.00 a year and is worth it.

BRAINERD

A CITY OF EXTRAORDINARY RESOURCES AND OPPORTUNITIES.

Natural and artificial conditions have combined to make Brainerd one of the chief cities of Northern Minnesota. Its situation upon the banks of the Mississippi river made it for years one of the important centers for logging operations on that stream, which also provides a water power capable of propelling vast industries. Tributary lakes and streams provide some of the finest fishing and hunting to be found within the confines of the United States, while attracting seekers of health and pleasure from distant cities who have contributed in no small measure to the development of the adjacent country, the advantage of which for the development of various branches of industry have been, until recently, realized by comparatively few people. Last, but not least, the discovery of great veins of iron ore in the territory adjacent to this city has ensured the establishment of great mining enterprises which, with the possibility of great manufacturing industries to be developed in the future, promises a source of income to the city the extent of which cannot be estimated.

Up to the present time, artificial influences have probably done more to promote the growth and prosperity of the town than its natural resources. Away back in the early '70s when the Northern Pacific Railway company decided to make this a division and locate its principal headquarters for the eastern end of its great system at this place, Brainerd at once became an important commercial center. Though the main offices of the company were shortly afterward established at St. Paul, its shops have always remained at Brainerd and, the growth of traffic on this great trans-continental system has demanded extensions from time to time which have combined to make this one of the great centers of railway industry in the Northwest. The yards and shops required for building, repairing and storing the equipment used on this system, cover many acres of ground and provides employment for from 1,200 to 1,500 men, who, with their families constitute a large portion of the population of Brainerd. For the care of its sick and injured employes, the Northern Pacific Railway company maintains a large sanitarium at Brainerd, which ranks among the principal public institutions of the state. Another industry established by this corporation a few years since at Brainerd is its tie treating plant, in which the railroad ties used on this part of the system are subjected to a preserving process which greatly prolongs their usefulness.

Among the improvements planned for this season by this company are a new foundry and other buildings, the estimated cost of which approximates $400,000. The men employed in the construction of these new shops and in their subsequent operation will augment the population of Brainerd to a noteworthy extent.

A number of other industries contribute to the prosperity of Brainerd prominent among these being a pulp-mill which has been in almost constant operation, day and night, for the last seven years. The establishment turns out at an average of ten tons of wood pulp daily which is sold to paper mills in Minnesota and Wisconsin for the most part. 5,000 cords of pulpwood are consumed annually, the supply being obtained from points along the Minnesota & International railway. This industry gives employment to fifty men in winter and thirty men in summer. Thomas G. Johnson, foreman of the plant, has filled that position since the mill was started and is familiar with every detail of the business, having had ten years previous experience in pulpmills at other points, chiefly at Eau Claire and Nekoosa, Wis.

Some of the other industries of Brainerd include saw and lath mills, a brick kiln, a brewery and a flouring mill.

$750,000 for Improvements.

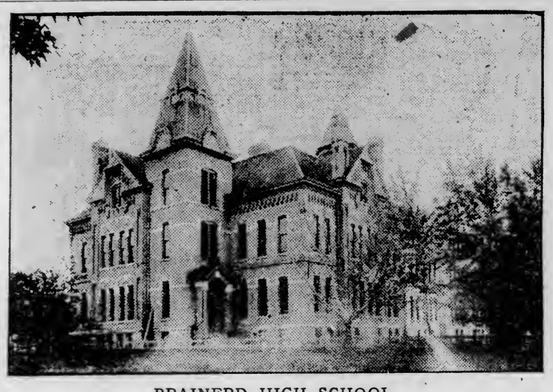
For the most part, the business section of Brainerd is substantially built of brick and stone and there are several blocks which would do credit to a metropolitan city. Many new buildings have been planned for this season, most of them being already under way or contracted for. Besides the Northern Pacific shops, above referred to, these include a new postoffice to cost $50,000, a city hall, $20,000; one business block worth $100,000; another at $15,000, and residences to aggregate $100,000. $20,000 will be expended in street paving and $2,500 of public and private funds will go toward the improvement of the parks of the city. With improvements made in the water and sewer service and other minor items, the total expenditures for buildings and public improvements during the current year will approximate $750,000.

The city has operated a municipal lighting plant since 1883, and has 900 consumers on its list. The water works system was recently purchased at an expense of $57,500, and a new pump has been installed with a capacity of 3,000,000 gallons per day and 1,300 consumers patronize this service. The assessed valuation of real and personal property in 1909 amounted to $2,321,863. The bonded debt is $167,500, and the total tax rate last year was $.04.

Besides the numerous establishments engaged in various lines of retail trade, there are several wholesale and jobbing houses located in Brainerd, and the local banks carry deposits exceeding $1,350,000. The Northern Pacific and Minnesota & International railways, provide transportation to and from Brainerd in four different directions. With the entrance of the Soo Railroad within the next year or two, Brainerd will continue to hold its rank as one of the principal railroad centers in the state.

The public institutions of the city include upwards of twenty churches owned by as many different denominations. There are a number of substantial brick school buildings, three hospitals and a Carnegie public library, erected at a cost of $12,000, and containing 5,000 volumes. There is also a Y. M. C. A. building and a brick opera house. The Crow Wing county courthouse and jail are also located in Brainerd.

If the immense natural resources and attractions of Brainerd and Crow Wing county and the vast opportunities for commercial expansion were as widely and persistantly advertised as are many places of inferior advantages, the next few years would witness a boom here unprecedented in the history of the Northwest.



BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL.

BRAINERD NEWSPAPERS.

The oldest newspaper on the main line of the Northern Pacific railroad, east of the Rocky mountains, is the Brainerd Tribune, the first number of which was issued Feb. 10, 1872, by a Mr. Russell, a journalist, who attained quite a reputation throughout this state. He was succeeded in turn by W. W. Hartley and George S. Campbell, now respectively of Tacoma and Spokane, Wash.

Since 1884, the Tribune has been published by A. J. Halstead, a veteran of forty years' experience in journalism, who has made it a recognized political power in Northern Minnesota.

Mr. Halstead has five times been elected mayor of the city, resigning the office during his last term. He was a member of the commission which compiled the new city charter adopted in 1908. He is now serving as president of the Brainerd Commercial club, and was president of the State Editorial association in 1907.

The only daily newspaper published on the Cuyuna range is the Brainerd Dispatch. This paper was started in 1881 as a weekly and since 1901 has been published both daily and weekly. In June, 1907, the plant was entirely destroyed by fire and the present equipment is entirely new and up-to-date, including a Merganthaler linotype.

The publishers are Ingersoll & Wieland. The senior member of the firm, N. H. Ingersoll, has been connected with the Dispatch since 1883. For the last ten years, he has also filled the position of postmaster at Brainerd, the duties of which absorb most of his attention. The office is of the second-class and produces a revenue of $18,000 per annum, exclusive of money order business. Six carriers are employed in the city and three rural routes start from the office, besides which eight other people are employed in the office.

The Brainerd Arena is published weekly. It has changed hands several times recently and is not under permanent management, but presents an opening for some enterprising printer and journalist.

HON. GEORGE W. HOLLAND.

Is one of the most successful pioneers of Brainerd who has become interested in the development of the Cuyuna range. He is one of the most extensive holders of real estate in the city and has been acquiring lands from time to time for many years past. These lands are located in various parts of Crow Wing county and a number of tracts of which he is either sole or part owner are situated along the range. Some of these lands are being explored with diamond drills either on the part of himself or companies in which he is interested and the general results seem to be satisfactory.

During the early days of exploration on this range Judge Holland was one of the skeptics who had little or no faith in the outcome; but men of judicial minds are usually open to conviction and his investigations of the subject have served to convert him from a pessimist to one of the most enthusiastic optimists. When men of his discernment and business sagacity become heavy investors in a proposition, the influence upon the general sentiments of the community is certain to be felt and many people of Brainerd who were once his fellow skeptics are now sanguine of the ultimate development of a great iron producing area in their midst.

Judge Holland has literally grown up with the town of Brainerd. When he located here in October, 1871, both he and the place were just at the beginning of their careers. He had taken a literary course at the University of Wisconsin and studied law at Berlin in the same state, where he was admitted to the bar. In casting about for an opening to begin practice the headquarters of the newly constructed Northern Pacific railroad in Northern Minnesota "looked good" to him and he became the first attorney to engage in practice here. He was soon after elected to the office of county attorney and for the next quarter of a century or more he was the incumbent of important and responsible public positions. After serving for fifteen years as county attorney of Crow Wing county he was elected judge of the district court and filled that position for a dozen years.

Since his retirement from the bench, Judge Holland has devoted most of his attention to his real estate investments and other business interests, which have become quite diversified. As long ago as 1881 he was one of the organizers and incorporators of the First National Bank of Brainerd of which institution he has continuously been a director since. From time to time he has made investments in city and country property which has greatly appreciated in value. He is the builder of a number of houses in the city of Brainerd. Of late he has participated in the organization of several mining companies which are promoting the development of the Cuyuna range.

Fraternally, the judge has attained to eminence in the Masonic order, being actively identified with the various local organizations and with Zurrah temple of the Mystic Shrine at Minneapolis.

CON O'BRIEN.

This gentleman is one of the successful business men of Brainerd who has been active in promoting the prosperity of the city and was one of the first to display an interest in the development of the Cuyuna iron range. Having been convinced of the existence of valuable deposits of iron ore in this vicinity in 1905, Mr. O'Brien began buying wild lands and is now the owner of about 1,000 acres of iron bearing property as well as 6,000a acres of farming lands. Of the former, eight forties have been explored to a greater or less extent with diamond drills, assays of the drill samples showing as high as 60 per cent ore.

All his lands are in Crow Wing County and he is making preparations to do some extensive improvement work on his agricultural lands. He is already interested in the introduction of improved livestock, his herd of sixty thoroughbred Jerseys being ranked among the best in the state.

Mr. O'Brien located at Brainerd some twenty-seven years since and embarked in mercantile business on a small scale, his capital at that time consisting of only $700. By fair dealing and close attention to business he built up an extensive trade, adding new lines of goods from time to time, until he became the proprietor of an extensive department store embracing all kinds of general merchandise. Twelve years ago, the establishment was destroyed by fire but he immediately set to work to replace it and within ninety days was doing business in a modern brick building 50 oy 140 feet with all conveniences. Mr. O'Brien has served one term as mayor of Brainerd and for three years was a member of the state board of equalization. He is an advocate of municipal ownership of public utilities, but usually avoids official responsibilities.

BRIDGE AND DAM ON THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER. PULP MILL ON THE LEFT, MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT ON THE RIGHT.

KEENE & McFADDEN.

This enterprising real estate firm has been in business at Brainerd since 1881, and is one of the oldest established concerns in any line of business in this city. Long experience and capable management have not only inspired the confidence of the public, but have enabled the firm to become familiar with property values and general business conditions in Brainerd and throughout Crow Wing county.

All kinds of city property are bought and sold by this firm, and a great volume of business in lands is also transacted, including iron lands, cut-over timber lands and improved farms. The lands dealt in are chiefly in Crow Wing and Cass counties. Cuyuna range iron lands have received much attention recently, and the firm has negotiated sales of a number of tracts which are being explored or developed. The growing demand and increasing value of this class of lands has directed the attention of many investors to this locality who are represented by this firm.

An extensive insurance department is carried in connection with the business of this firm, and the renting of property also receives some attention. Parties who contemplate buying or renting, or desiring to negotiate real estate loans will always be sure of a square deal by placing their business with this firm.

A. F. GROVES, M. D.

Dr. Groves is one of the successful physicians of Brainerd and was one of the first citizens of the city to realize the existence of great deposits of iron ore in Crow Wing county.

With a view of securing a desirable piece of natural meadow, in 1901 he purchased eighty acres of land about twelve miles east of Brainerd. Surveyors engaged in running the boundary lines of this tract called his attention to the pronounced variations of the compass, evidently caused by mineral attraction. Foreseeing the ultimate value of this discovery, the doctor endeavored to persuade his friends to buy adjoining lands, but was unable to impress them with the enthusiasm felt by himself.

Explorations made on these adjoining lands have since shown the existence of extensive veins of ore and the doctor has declined some offers to sell or lease his property, which would have sounded fabulous a few years ago. He also owns other wild lands which are unexplored.

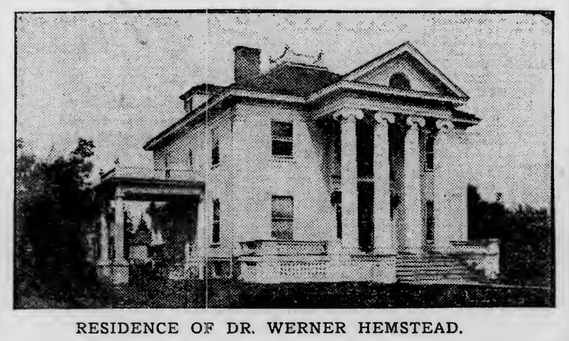
Dr. Groves is a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia university. He came to Brainerd in 1885 as consulting physician of the Northern Pacific railway, and simultaneously engaged in general practice, which he continued until four years ago, since which time he has made a specialty of diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

In conjuncture with others, in 1891 Dr. Groves opened a private hospital chiefly with a view to treating cases arising among the lumbermen of this region. After five years he sold his interest in the institution, which was the nucleus of the famous St. Joseph's hospital now conducted by the Sisters of St. Benedict at Brainerd.

DR. WERNER HEMSTEAD.

Dr. Hemstead is one of the best known citizens of Brainerd. He was one of the first capitalists in the place to perceive the advantages likely to accrue to the locality from the development of the Cuyuna range. He is interested in a number of undivided tracts of iron-bearing lands and has helped to organize several companies for the purpose of promoting their development.

Dr. Hemstead practiced medicine here for sixteen years previous to 1898. Since his retirement from professional work he has devoted his attention to his business interests, which have become quite diverse. He has always taken an intelligent interest in public affairs and has served as alderman and mayor of the city, as well as member of the legislature. His interest in the promotion of civic progress, has been further attested by his service on the school board and library board and as president of the Commercial club.



RESIDENCE OF DR. WERNER HEMSTEAD.

LOUIS KNUDSEN.

Mr. Knudsen has followed the profession of civil engineer in Northern Minnesota for a number of years and about a year ago opened an office at Brainerd, where the demand for his services has been rapidly expanding. He makes a specialty of municipal engineering of all kinds and has devoted much attention to the study of land surveys in which line of work he has had abundant practice and experience. The present activity in the exploration of mineral lands on the Cuyuna range has created a constant demand for the services of men of his training and experience. Dip needle work forms the basis on which most of the explorations have been conducted and he has been engaged to make investigations and reports on the dip needle work on various tracts of property.

Mr. Knudson fitted himself for the profession at the university of Wisconsin, a school which has long been famous for the excellent work done by its students in civil engineering and geological surveys. For several years he was located at the Head of the Lakes, during which period much of his time was spent upon the iron ranges of Minnesota, a considerable portion of his work being done on the Cuyuna range. Realizing that the demand for this line of work was certain to increase rapidly in this district, he decided to locate here and give his entire attention to the Cuyuna range. During the season of 1909, he platted several new town sites and additions to towns already existing.

Besides his other accomplishments, Mr. Knudsen is an expert draughtsman and is prepared to execute maps and blue prints of any kind. In November, 1909, he issued a map of the Cuyuna range, which is recognized as a standard of reference concerning the developmens and discoveries on the range up to that date and it is his intention to issue corrected reprints of the same from time to time, as developments progress in this territory. This map is found in the offices of all mining and exploration companies operating on this range.

Mr. Knudson already finds it necessary to employ several assistants in his work. His familiarity with the range and the reputation which he has established for practical and responsible engineering ensures the continued confidence of his patrons.

BRAINERD BREWING CO.

This organization was formed four years ago, succeeding the firm of Hoffman & Boppel, which had previously carried on the business. The capacity and equipment of the brewery have been increased and about 10,000 barrels of beer are manufactured annually. The beverage turned out here is of a superior quality and finds a ready market in Brainerd and adjacent towns in Crow Wing, Aitkin, Cass and Todd counties.

The growing reputation of this product is chiefly due to the care exercised in its manufacture and the fact that only the purest and best ingredients are used. The malt is produced in Minnesota and the best domestic hops are obtained from the Pacific coast, while a considerable quantity of German hops is also imported each season. A supply of the purest water, so essential to the production of the best beer, is obtained from an artesian well extending a number of feet below the bed of the Mississippi river. The ice used is cut from Boom lake, which adjoins the premises and is fed by living springs.

Eight people find steady employment in the brewery. Plans have been drawn for the erection of a bottling plant in connection with the establishment this season. This will cost $10,000 and employ four more people.

The Brainerd Brewing company is incorporated for $25,000. Edward Boppel is president and general manager and Werner Hemstead is secretary. Mr. Boppel is a practical brewmaster of many years' experience, having learned the business in Germany. He has been connected with breweries at different points in Wisconsin and Minnesota, and since coming to Brainerd fourteen years ago, has been continuously interested in this enterprise.

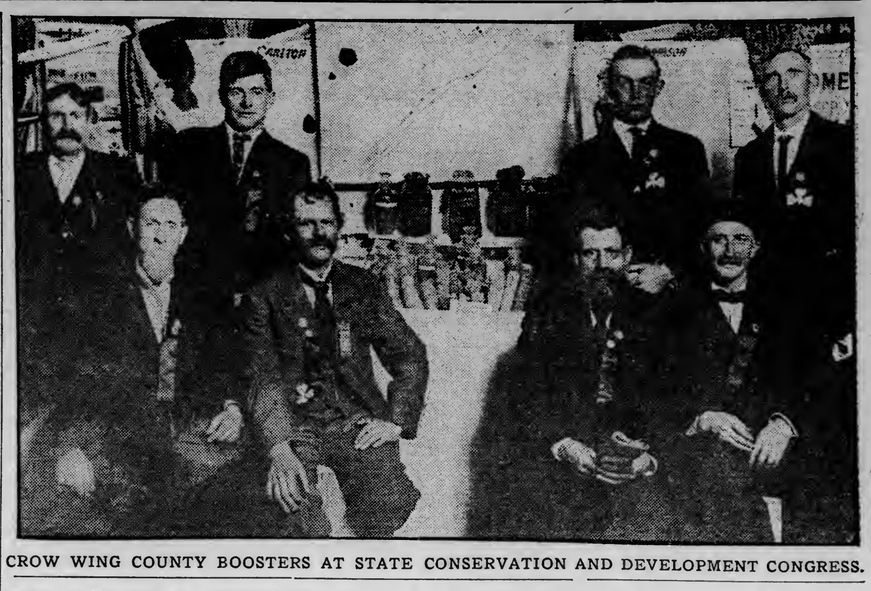
HON. S. F. ALDERMAN.

Few men in Brainerd are as well known or as highly esteemed as Judge Alderman, the present state senator from this district. He has lived in Brainerd for twenty-seven years, and is a native of East Granby, Conn., in which place he acquired his early education and began the study of law.

Soon after coming to Brainerd he was elected clerk of the district court, and filled that position for ten years simultaneously pursuing his law studies, and was admitted to the bar in 1894. Since that date he has been continuously engaged in general practice and is now the senior partner in the law firm of Alderman, Mantor & Ebner, recognized as one of the most successful legal organizations in Crow Wing county. Mr. Alderman has served two terms as prosecuting attorney of the county and four years as judge of the municipal court of Brainerd.

In the fall of 1906 he was elected state senator, and, as a member of that body, he has been distinguished as a promoter of useful legislation. Among the measures drawn and introduced by him is the bill known as the "Alderman law," limiting the number of saloons which may be licensed in any town to one for each 500 inhabitants, the effect of which has been quite marked in many parts of the state. He has also secured other legislation looking toward the enforcement of the temperance laws of the state. Another bill introduced by him, which merits special mention, makes the Torrens system of registering land titles operative in all parts of the state.

Judge Alderman has always displayed an earnest desire to promote the best interests of the community, and exerts much influence in local political councils. In 1908 he was a delegate to the National Republican convention at Chicago.



CROW WING COUNTY BOOSTERS AT STATE CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT CONGRESS.

FOURTH STREET NORTH, BRAINERD.

JOHN F. SMART.

Mr. Smart is filling a second term as auditor of Crow Wing county. He has been a resident of the county for a dozen years or more, has filled numerous positions of public trust and enjoys the confidence of the people of the county

A native of Benton county, Minn., Mr. Smart was educated at the State Normal school at St. Cloud and engaged in teaching for a time. He also spent two years at the State University. For several years he spent most of his time in the woods in connection with the lumber industry and he was also employed for one season as a timekeeper on the construction of the Soo railroad near Kenmare, N. D. These varied experiences, together with his natural tact, served to give him a general knowledge of human nature and of business affairs which he readily applied to practical use.

Mr. Smart first visited Crow Wing county at the age of 12 years, in the employ of a cattle driver, who was supplying meat to Brainerd markets. In 1898, in company with his brother, W. E. Smart, he purchased 120 acres of railroad land in Long Lake township to the improvement of which they at once directed their attention, and have since added several forties to the tract. This farm is very pleasantly situated and one of the most valuable in the county.

While living in the town of Long Lake, Mr. Smart took an active part in organizing a Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance company, which has been one of the most successful co-operative organizations in the state. He served for several years as secretary of the company, and its prosperity may be ascribed in no small degree to his careful and conservative management.

J. L. LARSON.

Mr. Larson is one of the prominent citizens of Brainerd, having carried on business here for a score of years or more and contributed in some measure toward the material prosperity of the city, while manifesting a wholesome interest in civic affairs.

He does a wholesale and retail business in flour and feed, supplying dealers in Minnesota, North Dakota and Canada.

ers in several neighboring towns as well as in Brainerd and doing an extensive retail trade in these commodities. His trade in fuel is also quite important, including all kinds of wood and coal, and his business also includes a general line of building materials such as lime, cement, brick and plaster. The work employs a number of men and two teams are kept busy delivering orders for his goods.

Mr. Larson built his present store and warehouse about ten years ago. It is a brick structure 50 by 65 feet, affording accommodations for the storage of considerable quantities of merchandise, but is, nevertheless, overcrowded at times with the goods which he finds it necessary to keep in stock to meet the demands of his customers. His own building operations comprise several dwellings which he has erected at intervals and he believes Brainard real estate to be one of the best investments available to its citizens.

His long connection with the commercial interests of the town have served to give him a reputation for integrity and stability of character and he enjoys the confidence of his associates and contemporaries. His public duties, which include one year's service as a member of the school board and two terms in the city council, have been faithfully and conscientiously discharged.

CITIZENS' STATE BANK.

A financial institution which is a credit to the business interests of Brainerd is the Citizens' State bank, which has enjoyed a notable degree of prosperity during the four years of its existence. Dominated by liberal but conservative management, its deposits have nearly doubled in the last year and now exceed $300,000. Every reasonable courtesy is extended to its patrons who have the utmost confidence in the integrity and reliability of the establishment. The accommodations include safety deposit vaults and a savings department is about to be installed. The latter feature is included in most up-to-date banks in this state and is found to be a potent influence in encouraging habits of thrift and economy on the part of people of small means while adding to the prosperity and general usefulness of the community. Three per cent interest is paid on deposits in either department of the bank.

The bank building, which was erected in 1908, is the most modern business structure in Brainerd. It was built by the Parker-Dunn corporation, which was organized by stockholders of the bank for this purpose. The building is 50 by 140 feet, consisting of three stories and basement. The walls are fireproof, of solid masonry and faced with Ohio pressed brick giving a substantial and attractive appearance found only in buildings of the first class. The banking offices are finished in marble and mahogany with furnishings and equipment to correspond causing the establishment to compare favorably in this respect with the leading banks of large cities. Besides the bank there are several stores on the main floor. The second floor is finished in birch and occupied by business offices which in point of elegance are unsurpassed in cities of equal population. The third floor is arranged for club and lodge halls and is used by several organizations of that character. The finishings are of oak and this is one of the finest third floors to be found in any building in Northern Minnesota. Every part of the building is heated by steam, lighted by electricity, supplied with running water and arranged with a view to the admission of abundant daylight.

The Citizens' State bank was incorporated in 1906 with a capitalization of $25,000, being a reorganization of the Northern Pacific bank, which was founded in 1889. The officers of the institution are as follows: M. T. Dunn, president; C. M. Parker, vice president; L. M. De Pue, cashier. Besides these gentlemen, the board of directors includes Henry Rubbel, J. W. Koop, Dr. J. A. Thabes and Mrs. S. Walker. All the officials are men of mature judgment and experience and well chosen for their respective duties.

M. T. Dunn, president of the bank, has had many years' experience in banking having followed that line of business for some time at Leroy, Minn., before locating at Brainerd, where he was active in the reorganization of the Northern Pacific bank and has ever since filled his present position. He is an optimist regarding the ultimate development of the Cuyuna range in which he was an early investor and is equally confident concerning the progress of agriculture in Northern Minnesota giving practical demonstrations of his faith in the improvement of several farms which he owns. He has long been identified with local agricultural associations as well as the state agricultural society of which he was recently elected treasurer. He has discharged various official duties here and at his former home in Leroy and was chosen a member of the first water and light board under the new city charter of Brainerd.

T. E. WELSH.

Mr. Welsh is one of the energetic and optimistic citizens of Brainerd, who misses no opportunity to extend the fame of Crow Wing county and who has taken no trifling part in establishing its reputation as one of the most productive counties in any state.

Mr. Welsh came to Brainerd eight years ago from Clark county, Illinois, and has had ample opportunity to compare Northern Minnesota with the famous "corn belt" of the Sucker state. He owns two farms in this county, one in St. Mathias township, comprising thirty-five acres of cultivated land and seventy-five acres of pasture and meadow. Lines of magnetic attraction cross this farm but, while waiting for an opportune time to arrive for the systematic exploration of the property, he is demonstrating the wealth which is to be realized from thorough cultivation of the soil. Last season he raised sixty bushels of corn to the acre and a crop of oats which weighed fifty-two pounds to the bushel. Several varieties of potatoes grown on this farm were exhibited at the recent state conservation and development congress, one specimen measuring eight inches in length.

He is giving some attention to livestock and has a herd of eight thoroughbred Red Durham cattle besides some excellent grades. In March, 1909, he purchased a brood sow for $20 and, within one year from that date, had marketed the sow and nine of her progeny for the sum of $304.95. All the feed consumed by these animals was grown on the premises.

Mr. Welsh deals to some extent in real estate buying and selling wild lands, improved farms and mineral lands. He has located a number of permanent settlers in the county and is prepared to prove by numerous object lessons that a given amount of capital and intelligent industry expended in Crow Wing county will accomplish results which cannot be excelled in any other part of the United States. He was one of the enthusiastic "boosters" for Crow Wing county at the recent conservation and development congress in St. Paul.

While the recent period of speculation in mineral properties has not obscured the other resources of the county in Mr. Welsh's eyes, he occasionally makes a lucky turn in iron properties. Among his investments in Brainerd are some lots in the outskirts of the city which he offered for sale only four years since for $25. As no purchaser appeared at the time, he retained this property and a drill hole was recently put down thereon encountering a vein of iron ore at a depth of 110 feet which proved to be 237½ feet in thickness. This circumstance illustrates the possibilities in store for the investor in Crow Wing county property. While every parcel of land may not contain ore in paying quantities, the judicious purchaser at present valuations will always be certain to receive his money's worth.

The integrity of character and straightforward business methods displayed by Mr. Welsh have won the esteem of his associates and he numbers many of the best people of Crow Wing county among his personal friends.

LEWIS E. GARRISON.

Mr. Garrison has served for the last four years as county surveyor of Crow Wing county and performed the duties of that office for four years previous in the capacity of deputy county surveyor. He is a native of Minnesota and has been familiar with his present line of work to some extent from the age of 12 years, when he began to assist his father, who was a deputy United States surveyor.

Upon coming to Crow Wing county in 1882, L. E. Garrison filed the first homestead claim in Bay Lake township and gave his attention to farming for several seasons. He was a close student of agricultural science and conducted a number of experiments which served to demonstrate the best methods of crop raising and stock breeding. He grew crops of potatoes which yielded 300 bushels per acre and proved that pork could be grown here for 2¾ cents per pound.

For many years he spent the winter seasons as a timber cruiser, and for some years past has devoted his chief attention to surveying. He is also serving as county superintendent of highways and is familiar with the geography and topography of all parts of the county. He furnishes estimates, drafts and blue prints on application and does more or less business of an unofficial nature in addition to his public duties. He took an active part in collecting and exhibiting Crow Wing county products at the state conservation and development congress at St. Paul in March, 1910.

LEWIS E. GARRISON.

OFFICE OF MAHLUM LUMBER COMPANY, BRAINERD.

MAHLUM LUMBER COMPANY.

One of the prominent business enterprises of Brainerd is carried on by this organization which does an extensive wholesale and retail trade in lumber and mill products as well as manufacturing much of the stock which it handles.

The company owns some tracts of standing timber from which its supplies are obtained, a portion being logged each season and sawed at adjacent mills under contracts with the Mahlum Lumber company. The lumber is then shipped to the yards at Brainerd for storage until sold. The company's planing mill is located here and is one of the complete establishments of this character, comprising planers, molders, resaws and other equipments for turning out planing work of every description. This is the only planing mill in Northern Minnesota operated by electric power, the company having a contract with the city for charging its motors from the municipal power plant.

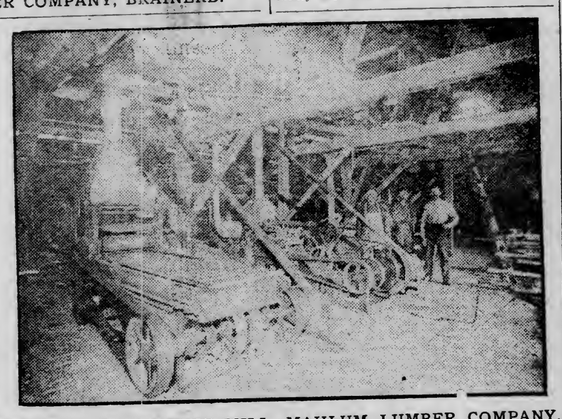
For the past five years, this company has furnished about 95 per cent of the lumber used in the city of Brainerd as well as supplying much of the trade of the adjacent country and other towns. Branch retail lumber yards have been established at Deerwood and Cuyuna where an extensive trade is also carried on. The "mill work" turned out by the company has attained a widespread reputation and the trade in sash, doors, moldings and other finished products extends to all points within a radius of forty miles or more from Brainerd.

This company is also the local agent for the famous Patterson-Sargent paints, for which it finds a growing demand among contractors and other consumers who are uniformly pleased with the goods obtained from this company.

The company's office, erected five years ago at the corner of Broadway and Laurel streets, is a modern, brick structure comprising two stories and basement, 50 by 100 feet, a portion of the main floor being rented for a store at the present time. The entire plant of the concern, including office, yards, sheds and planing mill, extends for two blocks along Laurel street and adds perceptibly to the industrial appearance of the town. An average of fifteen men are employed exclusive of the logging and sawing of the timber which is done elsewhere. Besides the native pine and cedar carried in stock, a quantity of western spruce, fir and other valuable woods is always kept on hand and the company is prepared to fill complete bills for buildings of any description. Experience has taught its patrons to have complete confidence in the integrity and ability of the concern to fill any contract which it undertakes.

The Mahlum Lumber company was incorporated in May, 1904, and is capitalized at $75,000. Its officers are as follows: Mons Mahlum, president; H. J. Spencer, vice president and F. M. Hagberg, secretary and treasurer. Each of these gentlemen is a practical business man and gives personal attention to some department of the business.

Mons Mahlum, president of the company, has been identified with the city of Brainerd since 1888. He dealt in groceries for several years and engaged in the lumber business in 1900, establishing the enterprise now carried on by the Mahlum Lumber company. He has always displayed a wholesome interest in the public affairs of the town and served for ten years as a member of the school board, successively officiating as secretary, treasurer and president of that body. He is now a member of the water and light board which is charged with the solution of some vital municipal problems.



INTERIOR OF PLANING MILL, MAHLUM LUMBER COMPANY, BRAINERD.

OLE P. ERICKSON.

One of the best known citizens of Crow Wing county is Ole P. Erickson, who has resided at Brainerd since 1881. For a number of years he was employed as lumber inspector by the Northern Pacific Railroad company, and for a dozen years previous to January, 1909, he served as sheriff of the county.

Mr. Erickson has displayed considerable interest in the agricultural progress of the county, and is giving much of his attention to the improvement of a farm near Deerwood. He produced some 600 bushels of sound dent corn last season, and is interested in swine breeding and other livestock.

His real estate holdings include 450 acres in the towns of Deerwood, Rabbit Lake and Klam Lake. Considerable of this land is situated in the midst of the mineral belt, and portions of it are now being drilled for iron ore.

Mr. Erickson is still interested in lumbering and logging, and during the past winter he filled a contract with the Rogers-Brown Ore company for furnishing a quantity of mining timber. He also furnished a quantity of timber for trestle work to be used on the Cuyuna Iron Range railroad between Cuyuna and Crosby. A portion of this timber was cut on his own lands, which are contiguous to the locations where it is intended for use.

Mr. Erickson's different enterprises have provided employment for a considerable number of men, and his business and official affairs have given him a very wide acquaintance, and he is deservedly popular with all classes.

MISS CANAN'S STUDIO.

It is generally conceded that the degree of culture and aesthetic taste attained by a city may be pretty accurately gauged by the patronage which its citizens bestow upon works of art and literature, the twin harbingers of progress and civilization.

MARIE A. CANAN.

Judged by this standard, the people of Brainerd are entitled to considerable credit as several representatives of these arts are well supported in this city.

One of the leading photographic studios in the place is conducted by Miss Marie A. Canan, a lady who has resided in Brainerd from childhood and whose skill has been developed entirely in this city. Her success is due to a natural taste for this art supplemented by ample experience and practice. Her first instruction along this line of work was received from Mr. J. A. McCall, a veteran photographer of Brainerd, by whom she was employed for some time.

For the last nine years Miss Canan has carried on a studio which has attracted the support and admiration of many of the most critical lovers of art in Crow Wing county. For several years she has occupied apartments in the Walverman block in the construction of which a studio was arranged especially for her use. It is supplied with the most modern equipments of the profession and all branches of photography receive careful attention. In connection with the work, she makes a specialty of enlarging portraits and carries for sale a carefully selected line of water colors, crayons, photo-gravures, etchings, carbons and sepias as well as a variety of picture frames.

Several of the illustrations in this publication were produced from photographs supplied by Miss Canan. The caller at this studio is at once impressed with the neatness, taste and skill displayed by the proprietor, which explains the great popularity of her work.

DR. CAMP'S FARM.

Probably the best improved farm in Crow Wing county is owned by Dr. J. L. Camp, one of the leading physicians of Brainerd, who has practiced his profession there for a quarter of a century, or more.

Twelve years ago he began the improvement of this farm, which comprises 1,200 acres and is located sixteen miles north of Brainerd and six miles from Merrifield station. One hundred and seventy-five acres of this land is cultivated, the balance being divided between woodland, pasture and meadow, and the farm is well watered by the Mississippi river and Mission lakes, on which it borders.

Especial attention is given to stock raising and dairying, there being sixty head of cattle on the farm at present, one-half this number thoroughbred Holsteins and the balance grades of that breed. Forty gallons of milk are shipped from this farm daily. His stable includes eleven head of horses, headed by an imported Belgian stallion. His flock of sheep at times has comprised 600 head, and there are now 175 Shropshires grazing on the premises. Other live stock includes twenty Poland China swine. Besides producing most of the feed consumed on the premises, this farm raises considerable quantities of hay for market.

Ample buildings have been provided, including a comfortable and attractive farmhouse. There is a horse barn, 30 by 50 feet, and a dairy barn, 30 by 52. Another barn for sheltering young cattle is 35 by 76 feet, and there is a granary, 20 by 40, besides ample shelter for other stock and produce. A silo on the premises has a capacity for 200 tons of ensilage.

This farm is crossed by a route recently surveyed by the Soo Railroad company, which, if constructed, will be a great convenience for shipping supplies to and from the place. Mineral lands have been located on the opposite side of the river, only one mile distant, but no exploration has been made on these premises as yet.

Crosby is surrounded by the largest and highest-grade Ore-Deposits in the Cuyuna District. The mines are held by a large number of interests,-thus insuring the stability of property values. It is not a one-corporation town, subject to the vicissitudes and uncertainties of such an existence.

The location is ideal;-there is an abundant supply of pure water,-and a natural drainage to the outlet of Serpent Lake.

Minerals are not reserved under the townsite.

Title is guaranteed by the state under the Torrens Act.

The rich tributary agricultural country, noted especially for the excellence of its fruits and garden produce, makes the cost of living moderate, and adds to the prosperity of the town.

Serpent Lake, along which the town of Crosby is built, is three and a half miles in length by two miles in width and teems with fish. It is the most beautiful and widely known body of water in the heart of the Minnesota lake region.

CROSBY

"THE HIBBING OF THE CUYUNA IRON RANGE."

In many respects this is the most promising of the townsites which have recently been platted on the Cuyuna range and it has a number of advantages which are unequalled by any other town, new or old, in this section of the state.

The location is an ideal one whether considered from a material oraltruistic standpoint. Overlooking beautiful Serpent lake, no more delightful spot could be selected either for building a home or spending a brief vacation while the commercial prosperity of the place is assured by the fact that a larger number of high grade veins of ore have been located in the immediate vicinity of the townsite than in any other equal area on the range.

The improvements made at Crosby up to this time have been of the most permanent and substantial character and this rule is likely to prevail during its subsequent development. The townsite having been laid out on a large cultivated farm, less delay was encountered in the preliminary work than has been the case with most villages in this part of the state which were begun in the midst of an unbroken forest. The first sale of lots was held on the 27th of September, 1909, and nearly one-half of the lots on the original plat of forty acres have already been sold. The principal streets have been graded and a number of blocks of cement sidewalk and curb have been laid. Ground is reserved for a park on the lake front and a boulevard is planned along the lake shore extending from Crosby to Deerwood, a distance of about four miles by this route. Arrangements have also been made for a modern system of water, sewer and electric lights which will be installed during the coming season. The water supply will be drawn from Serpent lake, one of the clearest and purest bodies of water in the state, which is fed by myriads of living springs. At the terminus of the sewer system, there will be an aceptic tank through which all liquid sewerage will be discharged into the outlet of the lake, the natural surface of the ground being very favorable for this arrangement.

NEW SPAULDING HOTEL AT CROSBY.
As It Appeared March 1. 1910.

The buildings already erected or under way have been constructed with a view to permanence and modern convenience. These include a brick hotel, 60 by 60 feet, consisting of three stories and basement which is modern in every detail and the most substantial hotel building between Aitkin and Brainerd. Two general store buildings have been constructed, one of which is already stocked with goods and doing business. A two-story brick bank building will be erected shortly and among other buildings planned for this season is a two-story brick office and warehouse for the Crosby Exploration company.

The "Soo" Railroad company is now engaged in extending its Cuyuna Range branch from Cuyuna to Crosby and expects to be operating trains by June to the latter place, where a modern railway station will be built. It is expected that construction work will begin this spring on two mining shafts on properties adjacent to the village. Steps will be taken this season to secure a charter and organize a village government.

All public improvements so far made have been done at the expense of George H. Crosby, proprietor of the townsite and one of the best known mining men in the state. Mr. Crosby was for some years a successful promoter of mine developments on the Mesaba range and began making investments in Cuyuna range property several years ago. The properties owned or leased by him and his associates in this territory now approximates 6,000 acres and include a number of the richest ore bodies which have been proven on the range, while much of the land remains to be explored. On one of these properties described as the N. W. ¼ N. W. ¼ Sec. 12, Twp. 46, Range 29, a body of Bessemer ore was found extending for 200 feet in depth which assays 68 per cent iron. In the S. W. ¼ of Sec. 1, in the same township, a drill has been sunk 662 feet through iron ore without finding the bottom of the vein, which is about 300 feet in breadth and known to extend for several miles in length. Several drills are kept busy exploring the Crosby interests under the general supervision of Matt Crosby, resident agent for the townsite.

The investments made on the Cuyuna range by George H. Crosby and associates, including William Harrison, the lawyer, exceed those of any other group. He is sparing no pains nor expense to make of this a model city and it is destined to become a lasting monument to his memory.

Mr. Crosby and Mr. Harrison own the largest part of the Kennedy mine.

MORE DULUTH MEN BECOME INTERESTED

F. A. Barber and A. T. McPherson, proprietors of the Central Business college, Duluth, acquired an interest a year or two since in properties in sections 32 and 33, township 47, range 29. These properties adjoin those of the Gorham-Garbett Company in the same sections which have been drilled in the last few months with very gratifying results. The same lines of magnetic attraction cross all these properties, and there is good reason to believe that a continuous vein of ore extends through them all.

Negotiations are now pending for leasing the first mentioned properties to Eastern capitalists, who intend to start drilling operations thereon at once.

This township lies northwest of the Crosby townsite, and promises to become one of the richest on the range in proven ore bodies.

NORTHERN PACIFIC SANITARIUM AT BRAINERD.

A CHARMING LAKE RESORT.

Prominent Chicago Business Man Is Developing a Summer Home and Model Farm in Crow Wing County.

To the person who has grown weary of the turmoil and confusion of city life, the quiet woods and picturesque lakes and streams adjacent to Brainerd present a vision of peace and quiet akin to the charms of paradise and not a few are the city dwellers who have discovered the attractions of this locality and are accustomed to spend extended vacations here each summer. A number of these people are owners of greater or less tracts of land bordering the beautiful lakes of Crow Wing county, in the improvement of which considerable sums have been expended and some are indulging their tastes for rural life in the cultivation of extensive farms.

One of these gentlemen who fully appreciates the beauties of nature and the joys which come from living close to the soil which produces most of the real comforts of existence, is John C. Barber of Chicago, president of the Standard Car Truck company.

Many years ago Mr. Barber was the master car builder of the Northern Pacific railway at Brainerd. Being a man of progressive ideas and mechanical genius, he began experimenting with a view to improving the methods of carrying on the work under his charge and eventually patented some seventy-four of his inventions, all pertaining to the improvement of car trucks. Eleven years since he organized the Standard Car Truck company and has since given his chief attention to the manufacture of his inventions which are in regular use upon the Northern Pacific and a number of other of the leading railroad systems of the country.

Mr. Barber has always retained a warm place in his heart for Crow Wing county and for some years has owned a cottage at Nokay lake, where he has been accustomed to fish and recreate at intervals. He has fitted this cottage with modern conveniences and improved the adjacent grounds in many ways and he and his family spend extended vacations and entertain many of their friends there in summer.

Mr. Barber has long been impressed by the wonderful luxuriance of the grass grown in this soil, which far excels that of any other locality visited in the course of his travels, which have been quite extensive. A few years ago he decided to do some experimenting along agricultural lines and began buying up tracts of land adjacent to his cottage with the result that he now owns over 1,000 acres with three miles of lake shore bordering on Nokay, Eagle and Pointer lakes. He is carrying on the improvement of this farm on an extended scale, employing five teams and ten men in the work with the assistance of the best implements obtainable. Three stump pulling machines are in use and 125 acres are already under cultivation while 300 acres more will be prepared for the plow this season.

It is his intention to engage in the breeding of thoroughbred horses and other livestock as soon as the premises can be put in proper condition. He is erecting one barn this season which will be 40 by 100 feet and other barns will subsequently be constructed on model lines embodying the most advanced ideas of farm architecture.

Some experiments are being made in horticulture and it has already been demonstrated that plums and small fruits thrive here with proper care equal to those of any other locality in the United States.

Mr. Barber is also expending considerable sums in road building and has opened a private driveway through his premises for the accommodation of the people of the neighborhood, in whose welfare he has taken a sort of paternal interest. His experiments will convey some valuable object lessons to the farmers of Crow Wing county and the influence exerted by his examples cannot be estimated.

His agricultural ventures are not confined to this county, as he is interested in a large fruit ranch in Pasadena, Cal., and is giving some attention to the cultivation of the Eucalyptus tree which makes railroad ties at three years' growth in that state. For general farming and stock-raising, however, he believes Crow Wing county to be unsurpassed by any place on the globe.

Mineral explorations have shown the existence of iron ore within one mile of Mr. Barber's property and he contemplates starting a drill on his own land in the near future. He fully realizes, however, that the greatest permanent income of Crow Wing county must come from its productive soil encouraged by intelligent and persistent cultivation.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION —OF— EBERT, WALKER & McKNIGHT COMPANY.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That we, the undersigned, have agreed to and do hereby associate ourselves together as a carporation, under Chapter 58 of the Revised Laws of Minnesota for 1905, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto; and to that end we do hereby execute the following certificate of incorporation, to-wit:

FIRST.

The name of this corporation shall be Ebert, Walker & McKnight Company, and its principal place of business shall be the City of Duluth, Minnesota.

SECOND.

THE GENERAL NATURE OF ITS BUSINESS SHALL BE: To purchase, own, hold, sell, option, lease, mortgage, convey, manage, improve, operate and deal in lands, tenements, and hereditaments and in all kinds of property, real, personal, or mixed, tangible or intangible, and any rights or interest therein; to act as agent in the purchase or sale of real and personal property, and in the writing of fire, life, accident, casualty, fidelity, liability, marine and other forms of insurance, and in the writing of surety bonds; to broker insurance; to act as agent of owners or lessees in renting, improving, repairing and managing real estate and buildings situate thereon, and in collecting the rents, profits and issues thereof; to buy, own, hypothecate, hold, sell and transfer all kinds of commercial paper; to loan money on real, chattel, or personal security, or with or without collateral of any kind, and to negotiate all such loans as the agent of others; to buy, sell, own, hold, transfer, and otherwise invest and deal in stocks and shares of other corporations, bonds, debentures, mortgages, book accounts, and all other pecuniary obligations and items or evidences of indebtedness, and to act as agent therein; to borrow money and to execute, give and issue all forms of commercial paper and written evidences of indebtedness; to engage in and carry on wholesale and retail merchandise business; and to do all other such acts and to transact all other such business as may properly be incident to and necessarily connected with the lines of business above specified.

THIRD.

Said corporation shall commence on the first day of May, 1910 and continue for a period of thirty years.

FOURTH.

The names and residences of the incorporators are as follows: George H. Ebert, Duluth, Minnesota; Thomas W. Walker, Duluth, Minnesota, and Alex G. McKnight. Duluth, Minnesota.

FIFTH.

The management of the affairs of this corporation shall be vested in a board of five directors, who shall be elected at the regular annual meeting of the stockholders, to be held on the first Wednesday in May in each year, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the principal office of said corporation, and no notice of the annual meeting need ever be given. The first Board of Directors shall consist of the following members: George H. Ebert, Duluth, Minnesota; Thomas W. Walker, Duluth, Minnesota; Alex G. McKnight, Duiuth, Minnesota; M. E. Ebert, Duluth, Minnesota, and G. W. C. Ross, Duluth Minnesota, who shall hold office until the first annual meeting, and until their successors are elected and qualified.

Any written resolution signed by all the members of the Board of Directors shall have the same force and effect as though adopted at a regularly called meeting of said Board.

Any written resolution signed by all of the stockholders of the corporation shall have the same force and effect as though adopted at a regularly called stockholders' meeting.

SIXTH.

The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be $50,000, to be paid in cash or property, as the Board of Directors shall from time to time determine, and shall be divided into 1,000 shares of $50 each.

SEVENTH.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which the corporation shall at any time be subject shall be $100,000.

EIGHTH.

The officers of this corporation shall be a President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer, who shall be elected at a meeting of the Board of Directors, immediately following the annual meeting. The following shall serve as officers of said corporation until their successors are elected and qualified: President, George H. Ebert; vice president and treasurer, Thomas W. Walker; secretary, Alex G. McKnight. The Board of Directors shall adopt all by-laws and regulations necessary to the management of the business of the corporation, which by-laws shall remain in force and effect until and except as amended by the stockholders, at any regular or special meeting.

The first anual meeting of the corporation shall be held at room 314 Torrey building, in the City of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 4th day of May, 1910, at ten o'clock A. M., which meeting shall be held without further notice.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF: We have hereunto set our hands this 28th day of April, 1910.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION —OF THE— WEST DULUTH MERCANTILE COMPANY.

We, the undersigned, for the purpose of forming a corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter Fifty-eight (58), Revised Laws of Minnesota for 1905, and any amendments thereof, do hereby associate ourselves as a body corporate, and do hereby adopt the following Certificate of Incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of the corporation shall be West Duluth Mercantile Company. The general nature of its business shall be to conduct and operate a general mercantile store; to establish and carry on therein the business of wholesale and retail dealers in groceries, provisions, meat and meat products, farm products, bakers' goods, confectionery, fruits, tobacco, cigars, stationery, books, notions, dry goods, millinery, gents' furnishing goods, hats and caps, boots and shoes, drugs, perfumery, toilet articles, leather goods, musical instruments, ammunition, hardware, cutlery, lamps, paints and oils, wallpaper and painters' supplies, silver, china and glassware, plated goods, furniture and agricultural implements.

To acquire by purchase or otherwise property, real and personal, and the good will, rights and assets of all kinds under such terms and conditions as may be deemed advisable, of any person, firm or corporation, and to pay for the same in cash, stock, bonds or other securities of the corporation.

The principal place of transacting the business of this corporation shall be the City of Duluth, County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The time for the commencement of this corporation shall be May 16, 1910, and the period of its duration shall be thirty years.

ARTICLE III.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this corporation are John Nyman, John Asplund, John Peterson, Charles Mattson and William Holm, all of the City of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota.

ARTICLE IV.

The management of this corporation shall be vested in a Board of Directors, composed of not less than seven (7) and not more than nine (9) members. The names and addresses of the first Board of Directors are John Nyman, John Asplund, John Peterson, Andrew Grandlund, Emil Norlund, Charles Mattson, Anton Granquist, Charles Hill and William Holm, all of the City of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota.

The first officers of this corporation shall be: President, John Nyman; Vice President, John Peterson; Secretary, John Asplund; Treasurer, John Peterson, and Manager, William Holm. All of the above named officers and directors shall hold their respective offices aforesaid until the first annual meeting of the Corporation, to be held in May, 1911, at which time, and annually thereafter, a Board of Directors shall be elected from and by the stockholders of this corporation. The annual meeting of the corporation shall be held at its principal place of business on the second Monday in May in each year. Immediately after the election of directors, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the directors shall meet and elect from their number a president and vice president, and from their number or from the stockholders a secretary, treasurer and a manager. Any office except that of president and vice president may be held by one person. The directors and officers of this corporation shall hold their respective offices until their successors have been duly elected and entered upon the discharge of their duties.

The first meeting of the stockholders and of the Board of Directors shall be held at Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 16th day of May, 1910, at 8 o'clock P. M.

ARTICLE V.

The amount of the capital stock of this corporation shall be Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000.00), which shall be paid in, in money or property, or both, in such a manner, at such times, and in such amounts as the Board of Directors shall order. The capital stock shall be divided into Five Thousand Shares (5,000) of the par value of Five Dollars ($5.00) each.

ARTICLE VI.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00).

ARTICLE VII.

The by-laws shall provide that at all elections of directors each stockholder shall be entitled to cast as many votes as shall equal the number of shares of stock held by him, multiplied by the number of directors to be elected, and they shall further provide that such stockholder shall have the right, if he so desires, to cast all of such votes for a single director or distribute them among the number to be voted for or any two of them as he may see fit.

ARTICLE VIII.

The corporation shall at all times have a first lien on all the shares of its stockholders and on dividends declared thereon for any and all indebtedness of such stockholders to the corporation.

CUYUNA

AN UP-TO-DATE MINING TOWN.

The present is an age of swift accomplishments. Dispatch is the watchword of modern industry and commerce. Undertakings of a character which formerly involved protracted planning and deliberate consideration supplemented by plodding, time-consuming labor, in these modern times are conceived and executed with a promptitude which our progenitors would have deemed impossible.

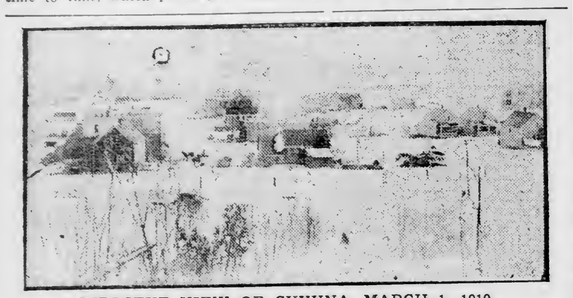
This circumstance is perhaps best illustrated in the rapid development of many Western cities and towns as compared with the gradual improvement of most municipalities which were founded one or more generations since and which have scarcely been able to keep pace with their Western contemporaries, either in growth of population, business activity or public improvements. And these conditions are nowhere more clearly seen than in the iron country of Northern Minnesota, where a few months often suffice to witness the upbuilding of a prosperous city in the midst of a wilderness. Several such cities have come, during the few brief years of their existence, to be classed among the thriftiest and most substantial towns of equal population in the Union, while others are springing into being, from time to time, which promise to outdo any of their predecessors in point of durability and civic culture.

One of the latest additions to this list of potential cities is Cuyuna, a hamlet founded a few months ago under the most favorable auspices and one which already promises to outstrip some of its neighboring villages of a generation or more of growth.

Among the assets which ensure the permanence and growth of Cuyuna are an abundance of undeveloped iron mines lying in close proximity to the townsite as well as the only mine on the Cuyuna range which has begun producing ore ready for shipment. It is at present the terminus of the Cuyuna range line of the Soo railroad and is likely to always be on the main line of this great thoroughfare, from which many spurs and branch lines are being laid out and several are already in course of construction. Numerous other town sites are being planned on this range and others may be in the future but few, if any, can boast of as many essential advantages as are found at this location. Before the close of the present season, the Rogers-Brown Ore company will have 300 or more men at work at the Kennedy mine and the operations of this corporation and others in immediate proximity to Cuyuna will increase each season for years to come.

The first permanent building at Cuyuna was erected in the late fall of 1908 and for a year past the sound of carpenters' hammers have kept up a continual echo. The construction of residences, business places and public buildings is progressing at present with greater activity than ever before. Among the completed structures are four general stores and three hotels. A four-room public school building, in course of construction, will be ready for occupation before the opening of the next fall term. Among the structures to be erected this season are a substantial bank building, a drug store and hospital, a large department store and a Congregational church. Arrangements are under way for incorporating the village of Cuyuna, which will doubtless be an accomplished fact within the next few weeks. The people already located here are loyal and enthusiastic regarding the future of the town and are determined to make it a place in which they may conscientiously invite their friends as well as strangers to settle. As a notable contrast with many mining towns, there is a conspicuous absence of boisterous and undesirable citizens.

There are favorable openings at Cuyuna for a number of lines of business, each of which would meet with a liberal patronage as soon as they could be established.



BIRDSEYE VIEW OF CUYUNA, MARCH 1, 1910.

McDONALD'S HOTEL.

The demand for hotel accommodations in new and growing towns is always much greater, in proportion to population, than in cities and villages which have attained their greatest growth or passed the most rapid period of expansion in their development. This is, perhaps, due in part to the fact that single men are more likely to become pioneers than men with families while of the latter class a considerable portion find it most practicable to board until such time as their business affairs have been definitely and permanently arranged or until suitable homes can be prepared for their accomodation. Many transient guests are also found in the town, new or old, which is growing rapidly. Cuyuna is no exception to the rule noted above and one of the first buildings constructed on the townsite was a hotel and several others have been built from time to time in order to keep pace with the demand which continues to increase as the other business interests progress.

McDonald's hotel was opened on the 15th of February, 1910, and has been filled to its capacity since that time. The building is 24 by 60 feet and two stories in height containing besides the other usual apartments, sleeping rooms for twenty-four guests while the accommodations for table boarders is practically unlimited. The furnishings are new and everything about the place is conspicuously neat and orderly. The meals served are so appetizing that the departing guest soon seeks an excuse to return.

The proprietor, C. P. McDonald, is a native of Faribault, Minnesota, but is no stranger to the northern part of the state having spent several years at McGregor and is in close touch with the spirit of the people in this section. He already finds the building inadequate to meet the demands of the public and is preparing to enlarge it during the present season.

EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF MINNESOTA IRON MINES

Apprehension has often been expressed by people unfamiliar with conditions and circumstances that the ore deposits of this region would be exhausted within a few years and the mining industry would, consequently, soon come to an end.

When it is borne in mind that the quantity of merchantable ore known to exist in this region at the present time is many times as great as the quantity known to be in the ground ten years ago and, although the shipments of ore have increased many fold during this period, the quantity mined in any recent season would not equal the new discoveries made during the same time, there appears to be little ground for apprehension, and it may be safely predicted that the mining and shipping of ore from these ranges will continue through many generations.

The business of exploration, formerly carried on in a crude and more or less haphazard manner, has developed into a vast industry managed and directed by scientific principles and pursued in a thorough manner, which not only proves the existence or non-existence of ore in the ground, but enables the quantity, quality and value of such minerals as are found to be very closely estimated.

An Important Industry.

The exploration and development of the Minnesota ranges has been chiefly carried on along new and original lines. From the start no two geologists have exactly agreed upon the character and extent of the formations, and many theories have been promulgated from time to time regarding the origin of these ore fields and fixing the boundaries beyond which it was not believed possible for the deposits to extend.

The wisest and most farseeing are liable to be misled until the exact nature and extent of the formations have been shown up by a systematic and regular exploration through the use of the diamond drill. While this is an expensive method of prospecting, it is by far the most accurate and satisfactory of any yet devised. This method of proving the nature and extent of mineral formations has been instrumental in revolutionizing systems of mining in many parts of the world. Considerable skill and experience are required in securing reliable samples, as the means necessary for securing such samples varies considerably in the case of different metals and of various formations of the same metal.

When drilling in ore, samples are taken every few feet, which are carefully labeled and stored away, enabling the drill contractor to report at any future time on the character of the formation through which he has drilled, at any given depth, though years may have elapsed since these samples or cores were extracted. His business is one of a confidential nature, and only his employer, the owner of the property or other parties directly interested are entitled to know the result of his discoveries.

Exploration has become an organized industry in which a number of individuals, firms or corporations are engaged, representing thousands of dollars of invested capital, and hundreds of people find regular employment in this work.

The extent and volume of this industry may be better judged when it is known that, for several years past, the amount of money annually disbursed in Minnesota in this line of work has exceeded $1,000,000.

Black Diamonds.

The development of the Minnesota iron ranges has created or stimulated many kindred industries, some of which exist in remote portions of the earth.

Among the mountain fastnesses in the interior of Brazil, flourishes an enterprise which has been carried on by the natives of that country for ages with varying degrees of prosperity, but which has enjoyed an unprecedented activity in the last few years. During the period of active exploitation of the Minnesota ranges, the product of this industry has not only been multiplied many times but its proportionate value has increased tenfold and it has become the basis of vast commercial enterprises with headquarters in the principal cities of the world, the transactions of which extend to every important mining region on the globe.

The region from which this product is obtained is rarely visited by white men, being accessible only by means on a journey, on the backs of donkeys, of 200 miles or more from the port of Bahia. In this remote region are found the famous black diamonds, or carbons, an essential equipment of the diamond drill and one of the most expensive items connected with the business of mineral exploration.

These precious stones are occasionally found among the crevices and ledges of rock upon the mountain sides but most of them are carried by torrents to the valleys and become embedded in the bottoms of streams where they are sought by hundreds of natives. The tools and methods used are of the crudest sort, varying but little from those in use several generations ago, when the existence of this diamond field was first made known to civilized men. The stones are fished up from the bottom of the streams after which they are carefully sifted and tested by means known only to the native experts. The value of those showing the required qualities is determined by careful weighing, certain red beans, grown in that country being used as weights. These beans are of uniform weight and are called "karrats," hence, the karrat or carat, has become the standard by which the value of diamonds is estimated throughout the world.

Practically the world's supply of black diamonds comes from Brazil. The annual production has been estimated at 25,000 carats, more than half of which is marketed in the United States and Canada, and by far the greater portion of this amount is sold to drill operators in the Lake Superior mining region. The demand has increased to such an extent that carbons, once valued at $8 per carat, are now worth from $75 to $95 per carat.

These black diamonds or carbons are the only substance known of sufficient hardness to cut all kinds of rock and are indispensible in all diamond drill operations. When received in this country they are broken into somewhat irregular cubes which are rarely more than one-fourth inch in diameter, and valued at from four to eight carats each. From four to six of these cubes are riveted into the malleable iron face of each drill bit, to form the cutting surface. When sufficiently worn they are successively reset until each corner of the cube has served its purpose.

From the above synopsis it will be seen that the black diamond business bears an important relation to the exploration and mining industries.

THE GREAT OAK OF FRANCE.

Youth's Companion: Near Dax, in Southwestern France, exists a very remarkable oak, wichh is an object of veneration for the inhabitants of the surrounding regions. Its short trunk is encircled with gigantic raised roots, giving it, at the level of the ground, a circumference of eighty-two feet.

The massive branches spread over a circle so broad that 500 persons can find room beneath them. The age of the tree is estimated to be not less than 2,000 years, yet it shows few signs of decrepitude, although the interior of the trunk is hollow. It is the first tree in the neighborhood to cover itself with leaves and the last to be deprived of them. At the junction of the immense branches are two cavities, which are always full of water, and the peasants ascribe miraculous properties to this water. Once every year there is a pilgrimage to the sacred oak of Quillaco, and at midnight between June 23 and 24 the pilgrims begin their devotions around the foot of the tree.

BUCHANAN'S HOTEL, CUYUNA.

FRANK B. BUCHANAN.

Mr. Buchanan fills the office of postmaster at Cuyuna and is also well known as the proprietor of Buchanan's hotel. He is one of the earliest pioneers in this locality having located at the Kennedy mine in June, 1907, and has been a continuous resident to the present time.

In July of the same year he opened a boarding house which he conducted for the accommodation of employes of the Rogers-Brown Ore company for the next two years. At the end of that period, he began the construction of his present hotel in the village of Cuyuna which was completed in October, 1909. The house has enjoyed an excellent patronage from the start and is known as one of the neatest and most orderly, popular-priced hotels on the range. There are rooms for thirty guests, but, owing to the increasing population of the place, it is likely that it will be necessary to enlarge the building in the near future. The structure consists of two stories and a basement, 24 by 62 feet and is one of the most substantial and durably constructed buildings in the village.

Mr. Buchanan lived for ten years at Aitkin, where he was employed as a logger and cruiser. Soon after opening the hotel, he was appointed deputy postmaster at Cuyuna, and has since performed the duties of that office receiving the formal appointment as postmaster in February, 1910. He carried the mail at his own expense between Cuyuna and Deerwood until March 14, 1910, when the government established a star route between these places with a daily service. This will be superseded by railway mail service when the Soo railroad begins to operate a regular passenger service to Cuyuna which will doubtless be within a few months.

Mr. Buchanan is popular with all classes of people in Cuyuna and merits the regard in which he is held.

EDWARD GUSTAD.

The demand for buildings in which to reside or carry on business has steadily increased at Cuyuna since the first opening of the townsite and this demand still taxes the energy and ingenuity of the mechanics and contractors who reside there while urgent demands are made upon the services of a number residing in neighboring towns or more distant places.

More than one-half of the buildings constructed here have been put up by Edward Gustad, an enterprising contractor, who had previously carried on the same line of business for some years at Aitkin.

Mr. Gustad was one of the pioneers who located at Cuyuna in the spring of 1909 since when time he has been kept very busy. He now employs a dozen or more mechanics and has established a reputation for reliability and despatch which attracts many new applications for his services and secures the awarding of many contracts in competition with others who have begun to realize the importance of the building operations, present and future, at Cuyuna.

The buildings erected here by Mr. Gustad include two stores, one hotel, a number of private residences and six apartment houses with accommodations for eleven families built for the Rogers-Brown Ore company for the use of the company's employes. Among those now under contract and nearly completed are the new four-room public schoolhouse, which is 49 by 63 feet and two stories high and the new two-story hospital, which is 24 by 60 feet. This list includes some of the best and most substantial buildings in the town to which he points with the natural pride of the successful artisan.

The inevitable growth of Cuyuna and other towns on this range is certain to create a steadily increasing business for men like Mr. Gustad, who believe in doing all things well and make of every patron a standing testimonial to their skill and handicraft.

CUYUNA

The new town on the Cuyuna Range.

Open for investments.

Lots sold six months ago have more than doubled in value.

Adjoining the Rogers-Brown properties and the Kennedy mine, which is now ready to ship ore.

Cuyuna is at present the terminus of the Cuyuna Range line of the "Soo" railroad and branches leading from Cuyuna to other rich deposits of ore which will be developed in a very short time.

Cuyuna has a school building which would be a credit to any town in the state.

Opportunities for all classes of business.

First-class opportunity for some one to put in an electric plant, which would be a very paying proposition.

The Rogers-Brown Ore company at the present time have 150 men on their payroll and will double the force May 1.

Cuyuna, in a very few years will be what Hibbing is to the Mesaba Iron Range, classed as one of the best towns in the United States.

Cuyuna has been blessed with having the largest deposit of iron ore and as high a quality as has ever been found in Minnesota, which is recognized by all the mining experts in the country.

For an investment there is no need of any one looking farther than the town of Cuyuna or any place on the Cuyuna Range.

The new town will soon be provided with a beautiful hospital, built by Dr. Sewell,, which will be first-class in every sense of the word.

The prices of the lots are from three hundred and twenty-five dollars ($325) to five hundred ($500) at the present time.

ROOSEVELTS RECEIVE ROYAL ATTENTIONS ON VISIT TO NORWAY

King and Queen Meet Ex-President and Party at the Station.

Schools Are Closed So Children May See the Traveler.

Nobel Peace Prize Address to Be Delivered Thursday at Christiania.

Christiania, May 4.—The capital of Norway, which was in mourning yesterday for Bjornsterne Bjornson, was red, white and blue today with the entwined flags of the United States and the Norwegian monarchy, in honor of Theodore Roosevelt. All of the public buildings and most of the private houses were lavishly decorated.

The reception given the former president was unique and impressive. There was no cheering at the railway station, but the crowds that occupied the adjoining square and every point of vantage on the roofs and in the windows of nearby buildings uncovered respectfully. Cheering is rare in this country.

Met by King and Queen.

The Roosevelts arrived here soon after midday, having been brought from the Southern extremity of the kingdom on a special train provided by the government. Mr. Roosevelt was signally honored by King Haakon and Queen Maud, who came to the station personally to greet the party. The platform of the station was covered with a red carpet, and inside the building a temporary stand had been erected for the receiving party. This was occupied by the king and queen, with a large suite—all of the members of the cabinet, members of parliament, city and state officials, professors of the university and other distinguished members of society.

At the train drew in and Mr. Roosevelt stepped down, his majesty crossed the platform and, without waiting for an introduction, shook hands with the former president. He then presented to Mr. Roosevelt the queen, and Mr. Roosevelt presented Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel and Kermit to their majesties.

Escorted Queen Maud.

Greetings exchanged, the queen took

NEGROES' EYES ARE THE BETTER

Southern Doctor Compares Physiques of Races at Medical Meeting.

Washington, May 4.—The white man's educated ancestor has bequeathed to him a lot of afflictions from which the negro of today is free, according to the declaration of Dr. J. L. Miner of Memphis, Tenn., made to the American Ophthalmological society, one of the constituent organizations of the Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons.

A comparative study of children in the two races, Dr. Miner said, showed that negro children had a better average of normal visions than white children, and that the negroes showed a remarkable absence of refractive errors. The existence of these characteristics in children, he contended, was doubtless due to ancestry.

Work by Departments.

The congress, in its eighth triennial session here, began today a discussion of all medical, surgical and therapeutic questions on the program of the convention.

The conference was divided and programs were carried out in each of the gynecological, dermatological, laryngolical, surgical, climatological, orthopedic, pediatric and medico-psychological departments. More than 1,000 delegates are attending the conference.

CHILD KILLED BY FALL DOWN STAIRS

Three-Year-Old Boy Bumps Down Three Flights in Tenement House.

New York, May 4.—A fall down three long flights of steep tenement house stairs caused the death in Governeur hospital early today of 3-year-old Michael Sexton. The child was playing on a narrow landing at the door of his parents' apartment on the fourth floor and slipped over the top step, not stopping until he had bumped all the way to the foot of the last flight. His skull was fractured.

TAFT TO TALK TO THE FARMERS AT ST. LOUIS.

St. Louis, Mo., May 4.—Including President Taft, nineteen speakers are on today's and tonight's program of the National Farmers' union rally. Three women, Mrs. Frank De Garmo of St. Louis, Mrs. Ella S. Burton of Kansas and Miss Kate Barnard of Oklahoma, will address the delegates today.

Executive sessions of the farmers' anion, which are held daily, promise to bring about stirring resolutions late in the week. No officials will be elected at this rally. The next meeting place will be selected by a committee after the convention adjourns.

LANDSLIDE FOR KELLER

Republicans Elect Mayor of St. Paul By Almost Five Thousand.

Also Get Five Out of Nine Members of the Assembly.

St. Paul, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—By a majority never before realized in St. Paul, the Republicans yesterday elected Herbert P. Keller mayor over Henry G. Haas, his Democratic opponent. The official figures today give Keller a majority of 4,918 votes.

The Republicans also elected W. H. Farnham city comptroller and S. A. Farnsworth as treasurer. For the assembly the Republicans elected five of the nine members and for the board of aldermen the Republicans elected four of twelve members.

This is the first time since 1902 that the Republicans have been able to elect a mayor.

The total vote polled for mayor was 29,992 as against 31,042 for mayor two years ago.

Keller carried the First, Second, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth wards. He lost

BOYS DO BATTLE FOR LOVE OF GIRL

Strip to Waist and Fight Bare Knuckled Until One Is Knocked Out.

San Mateo, Cal., May 4.—Stripped to the waist and using bare fists, David Caldwell and Otto George, two freshmen of the local high school, fought an eight round battle in the basement of the school yesterday. Caldwell finally winning by a knockout. The boys are said to be rivals in love and a bitter feud between them resulted in the encounter.

The blow that lost George the fight rendered him unconscious, it is reported, and it was long after the referee counted the fatal ten before he recovered.

George, it is said, has challenged Caldwell to a return fight next Saturday.

CARS CRASH; TWO KILLED

Ohio Electric Railway Has Fatal Wreck at Urbana.

Seven Are Seriously Hurt and Eleven Have Minor Injuries.

Urbana, Ohio, May 4.—Two men were killed, seven persons seriously injured and eleven received minor hurts early today, when a freight car going south on the Ohio Electric railway collided head-on with a passenger car coming north from Springfield on a hill just south of this city.

The dead:

W. H. FERGUSON of Springfield, motorman of the passenger car.

M. M. ROARK, a passenger, of Urbana.

The seriously injured:

Glover Tense, St. Paris.
John Carns, Urbana.
Emily Dornor, Urbana.
James P. Weston, Urbana.
Grant Willett, Urbana.
John Carpenter, Urbana.
Warren Davis, conductor of freight car.

It is feared that several of these may die. Eleven others, all passengers, received minor injuries. Some of the injured were taken to Springfield, while others are being cared for here.

The collision is believed to have been caused by the failure of the brakes on the freight car to work properly. The crew of this car declares that the car, going down the hill, became unmanageable.

BOTH HOUSES VOTE TO RAISE MAINE

Battleship Will Be Taken From Havana Harbor and Bodies Buried.

Washington, May 4.—After twelve years the ill-fated battleship Maine is to be removed from the Havana harbor, and the bodies which went down with the vessel will be interred in the national cemetery at Arlington. A bill providing for such removal and burial, which has been passed by the house, was today passed by the senate.

HYDE'S TURN IS AT HAND

State Is Nearly Through Introducing Evidence in Murder Trial.

Medical Expert Again Quizzed as to Poison in Col. Swope's Body.

Kansas City, Mo., May 4.—With prospects bright for the state to finish its testimony in the Hyde case today, the trial started with Dr. Victor C. Vaughn on the witness stand this morning. His direct examination was practically completed when court adjourned last night.

Mrs. Logan O. Swope will be the next and last witness for the prosecution.

How many witnesses the defense will offer and who they will be is something that is known only to the attorneys for Dr. Hyde.

John H. Atwood, the prosecution's attorney, who, until his illness began Monday, examined all of the medical witnesses, was in court again today. He did no active work, however, Mr. Reed continuing his examination of Dr. Vaughn.

Many Fail to Get In.

Hoping to see Mrs. Swope on the stand, the spectators arrived early today. As usual, many were turned away, because there was no room.

"Was there anything in the stomach of Col. Swope from which cyanide could have formed?" asked Mr. Reed.

"Nothing," answered the witness.

Mr. Walsh took the witness twenty minutes after court opened. Dr. Vaughn testified, on direct examination, that the failing temperature of Co. Swope was a sign of his having received a respiratory poison. Mr. Walsh asked the witness if the application of an ice pack and the giving of a bath would not cause the temperature to fall. Dr. Vaughn said such would be the case, but he did not know these things had been done.

NORTH DAKOTANS DRAW, CUTS INSTEAD OF GOING TO POLLS AT PRIMARY.

Dickinson, N. D., May 4.—M. S. Cuskelly of Oakdale and W. P. Owen of Manning, two Dunn county Republicans. Both were candidates for the house of representatives, but instead of fighting it out in the primary election they decided to draw lots. The drawing was done by Miss Helen Ishum. Mr. Cuskelly was successful, and his election is assured. He has been a rancher of Dunn county since 1880.

TAFT LIKELY TO USE VETO?

President Refuses to Discuss Railroad Legislation Now Pending.

Says in St. Louis That It Depends on How Bill Finally Passes.

St. Louis, May 4.—The possibility of a veto of the railroad bill as it will come from congress in an emasculated form was suggested to President Taft here today. The president would not discuss the matter in any way, however, saying laughingly he is not as familiar with the bill as it stands today as he was when it was first presented to congress.

The president added he would go over the bill carefully and his future action would depend entirely on the shape in which the measure finally passed.

President Taft on his arrival here today at 8:30 a. m. was met by the reception committee of the Business Men's league, Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson and Governor H. S. Hadley. The presidential party was taken to the St. Louis club as the guests of the Commercial club at breakfast.

Talked to Farmers.

The address to the farmers' convention was delivered at 11 o'clock. After a drive through the business section of the city the president was the guest at a lunch given by the Business Men's league at the Southern hotel.

From the lunch President Taft was driven to the National league baseball park, where he witnessed the opening innings of the Cincinnati and St. Louis

BICYCLE THIEF IS KILLED BY OFFICER

Boy Dies in Hospital From Wound Received During Chase.

New York, May 4.—Morris Brownfield, a youth of 19, who was shot in the back by Policeman Robert Ferris in Brooklyn yesterday, died early today in a hospital. Ferris had caught the boy stealing a bicycle. After firing two shots in the air, in an attempt to frighten the fugitive, the policeman aimed lower, and Brownfield fell from the wheel, mortally wounded.

REYBURN AND DAHLMAN PRESIDE AT MEETINGS.

Rochester, N. Y., May 4.—Mayor John E. Reyburn of Philadelphia presided at the morning session of the national conference on city planning today. The topic under discussion was the "circulation of passengers and freight in its relation to the city plan."

James G. Dahlman, mayor of Omaha, was scheduled to preside at the afternoon session, when it was proposed to consider "some problems of legal and administrative procedure affecting the city plan."

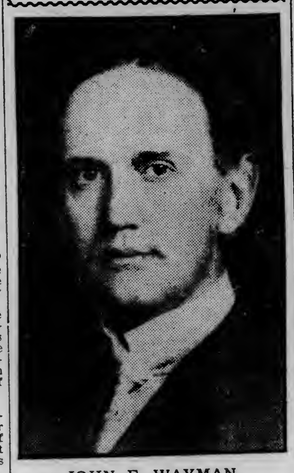
ILLINOIS SOLON HAS CONFESSED TO BRIBE IN LORIMER AFFAIR

IS FOLLOWING UP BRIBERY CHARGES



JOHN E. WAYMAN,
State's Attorney at Chicago.

Wayman's Secret Trip to St. Louis Is "Highly Successful."

Murnane Says They "Got a Squeal" But No Name Is Given Out.

Prosecutor Declares Two Democratic Members Will Give Testimony.

St. Louis, Mo., May 4.—John E. Wayman, state's attorney of Cook county, Illinois, came to St. Louis yesterday in connection with the Lorimer bribery investigation, and when he left at 11:45 p. m. for Chicago he had in his possession a confession he got at a hotel from one of the state legislators who is accused of taking $1,000 for his senatorial vote.

Both Wayman and William Murnane, a Chicago detective who accompanied him, refused to give the name of the man who "squealed."

Wayman and Murnane both stopped at the Southern hotel, where Murnane made the following statement in the presence of Wayman:

"We came here to meet a member of the Illinois legislature, because this is the most convenient place, all things considered. We have been here the greatest part of the day and you can say that we got all we were looking for. You might say that we got a 'squeal.'"

While in St. Louis, Wayman called on Circuit Attorney Seebert G. Jones. Earlier in the day Michael Link, representative from the Forty-seventh district in the Illinois legislature, was visited on his farm near Nameoki.

SAYS TOGAS ARE BOUGHT

Ex-Senator Mason Makes Statement Regarding Seats in Senate.

Declares Half of Them Can Be Said to Be Purchased.

Chicago, May 4.—"I believe that 50 per cent of the seats in the United States senate can be said practically to have been purchased!"

This statement was made here today by Former United States Senator William E. Mason, in the course of an interview, in which he urged the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

A morning paper quotes Senator Mason as saying that he had heard at Springfield, before the election of Mr. Lorimer, that the honor was for sale, and that the senatorial toga would go to the highest bidder. Mr. Mason, however, today denied that he had made any such allegation.

Mr. Mason was a candidate for the senatorship, but withdrew his name before the last vote, when Mr. Lorimer was chosen.

CHIEF WITNESS IN HEIKE CASE SICK

Richard Parr May Have to Have Operation for Appendicitis.

New York, May 4.—The illness of one of its chief witnesses may seriously hamper the government in its prosecution of Charles R. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, whose trial on sugar underweighing conspiracy charges is set for May 16. The supreme court in Washington, on Monday threw out Heike's immunity plea and the long delayed trial was expected to be begun next week.

Today, however, there was manifest anxiety on the part of the prosecuting officials over reports of the condition of Richard Parr, the customs official who discovered the fraudulent device by which the government was deprived of duty on sugar imports. Parr is is threatened with appendicitis and an operation may be necessary.

ARE ALARMED FOR McCUMBER

Relatives and Friends Have Anxious Night Beside North Dakota Senator.

Washington, May 4.—Senator McCumber of North Dakota still is seriously ill at Garfield hospital in this city. His family and friends were much alarmed lats night, but he secured some rest and this morning had apparently recovered the lost ground.

The senator is very weak and has been unable to assimilate nourishment since the second operation performed on Monday. This morning Mr. McCumber seemed to have an appetite and his physician said that with rest and quiet for a few days he would show great improvement and that unless new complications developed his recovery was assured.

CLAIMS HOAL IS OF UNSOUND MIND

Defense Says the State Should Treat Young Murderer on That Basis.

Corydon, Ind., May 4.—The jury which is to try Thomas Jefferson Hoal on the charge of murdering Cashier J. H. Fawcett, in an attempt to rob the Merchants' National Bank of New Albany last November, was completed today. Prosecuting Attorney Walter V. Bulliet made the opening statement for the state, reciting the details of the crime. Attorney A. L. Douglas, for the defense, said Hoal was a mental defective and that the state should treat him as a man mentally unsound.

BUREAU OF MOTOR VEHICLES PLANNED

Chicago Automobilists Are in Favor of Action at Washington.

Washington, May 4.—A petition, putting Chicago automobilists on record as favoring the bill for the regulation, identification and registration of motor vehicles engaged in interstate travel, was presented by Harry T. Clinton, secretary of the Chicago Motor club, to Chairman Mann of the house committee on interstate commerce today. The bill was introduced by Representative Cocks of New York, and there is to be a general hearing on the measure before the committee Thursday.

The measure, among other things, creates and abolishes as a part of the department of commerce and labor "the motor vehicle bureau," to be composed of a commissioner, appointive by the president, together with an assistant and a clerical force.

TRIED FOR THEFT OF INCUBATOR BABY

Five Defendants Are Brought Into Court in Kansas.

Holton, Kan., May 4.—Five persons were brought to trial in the county court here today charged with complicity in the sensational kidnaping at Topeka last August of Marian Bleakley, the "incubator baby" of world-wide fair fame. The defendants are Mrs. Stella Barclay of Buffalo, N. Y., who once adopted the child and who is alleged to have planned the kidnaping; Joseph N. Gentry, a Kansas City detective; Frank H. Tillotson, in whose employ Gentry was; Robert Randolph, who is said to have driven the motor car in making the escape with the child, and David Gregg of Topeka, alleged accomplices.

Marian Bleakley was recovered in Kansas City, and after a sensational battle in the courts, was turned over to her mother.

CONSERVATION TAFT'S THEME

President Tells Farmers That He Wants National Bureau of Health.

St. Louis, May 4.—Addressing a joint meeting of the Farmers' union and the people of St. Louis at the Coliseum today, President Taft devoted himself to a technical discussion of the subject of conservation, almost the duplicate of his Chicago speech March 17. He declared the term covered a wide range of subjects.

But as concerns congress at this time," he added, conservation resolves itself into the necessity of passing at once the bill which will give to the executive unquestioned authority to withdraw lands for power sites and other purposes. With this power in the hands of the president of the United States we can comfortably lay and by discuss and devise the best means of disposing of the great public domain to the benefit of present and future generations."

Governor Hadley introduced the president at the farmers' convention, and declared that the great movement of conservation had no more "earnest, sincere and effective friend than President Taft."

The president called out laughter and applause from the agriculturalists by announcing that he was probably the only man in public life in the country who would admit that he had never had any farming experience.

Wants Bureau of Health.

Turning to the subject of conservation, Mr. Taft said there were few people who had a definite idea as to just what conservation really meant. The first great subject of conservation, he declared, had to do with human life. In this connection, he again urged the establishment of a national bureau of health.

Speaking of the improvement of rivers and harbors, President Taft stated anew his position that movers for the deep waterways lakes-to-the-gulf plan must "show him" to get his support for a plan he now disapproved.

"Any waterway improvement which is found worthy," said the president, "should be put through as economically and as quickly as possible, but a waterway bill ought not to constitute a pork barrel, or be passed for the purpose of sending somebody back to congress."

Freight Agent Here.

J. T. Ober, general freight agent of the Omaha, is in the city today. Mr. Ober stated that at the present time the freight situation is good, with indications that the business of Western lines would be increased the present month.

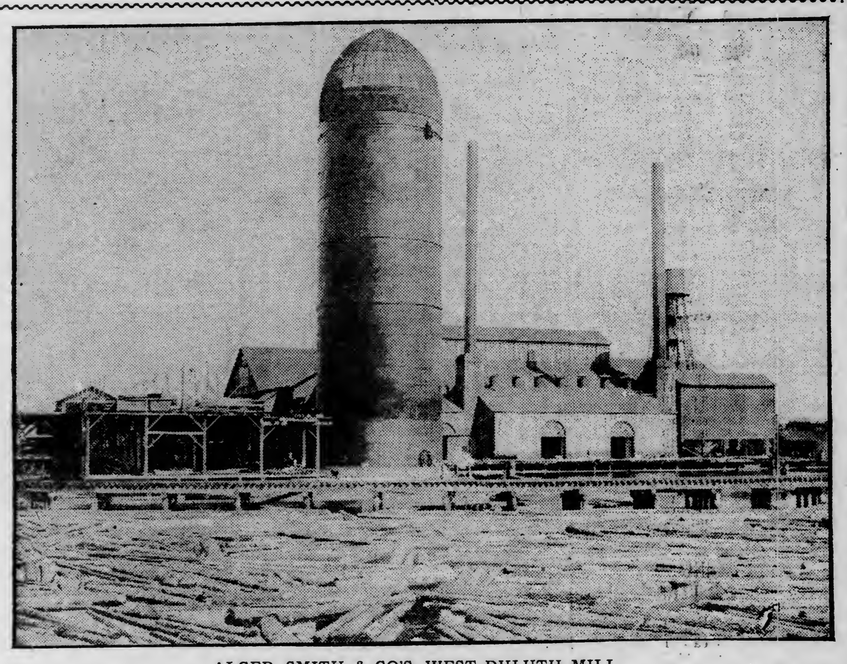
WEST DULUTH INDUSTRIES



ALGER, SMITH & CO'S. WEST DULUTH MILL.

The West Duluth mill of Alger, Smith & Co., is one of the oldest industries of West Duluth. It was erected nearly twenty years ago by Mitchell & McClure and has been operating almost constantly since. Alger, Smith & Co. secured control of it seven or eight years ago and has operated it on a double shift during the summer seasons.

The company owns seventy-five acres for yards and mill site and the mill has a capacity of 170,000 feet every ten hours. About 300 men are employed during the operating season and the payroll amounts to about $17,000 or $18,000 a month. The 1910 operating season of the mill opened about a month ago.

WEATHER: Partly cloudy weather tonight and Thursday. Not much change in temperature. Probably frost tonight. Moderate to brisk easterly winds.

FLEES INTO THE WOODS

Angered By Refusal of Loan, Paul Perpich Stabs Fellow Workman.

Victim Receives Scalp Wound But Is Not in Danger.

Because he had been refused a loan of money, Paul Perpich, 35 years old, used a knife on a fellow workman, Peter Povich, this morning before breakfast in a boarding house at New Duluth. Povich sustained an ugly wound on the head, but will recover. Perpich is a fugitive from justice.

Both of the men are employed as laborers at the site of the steel plant. They had been living at a private boarding house and arose this morning about 5:30 o'clock. Just as the men were about to sit down to their breakfast Perpich asked Povich for a loan.

Povich refused and a quarrel followed. Perpich drew a knife and struck Povich across the head. The blade struck one of the larger bones of the skull and glanced off leaving a deep wound. The injury, although painful, is not looked upon as serious and the man did not go to a hospital.

After the affair, Perpich picked up his dinner pail and left the house. Outside, he threw the pail to one side and ran to the brush. Other occupants of the house notified Otto Krueger, a special police officer at New Duluth, and telephoned the West Duluth police to be on a lookout for Pervich.

Lieut. Wilcox of the West Duluth department with Officers Peterson and Brouillette left for the scene at once. The two patrolmen were left at Sixty-third avenue west and Lieut Wilcox drove along Grand avenue in the direction of New Duluth. At Seventy-third avenue west he noticed three men coming up the road.

When the men saw the rig driving towards them, they stepped out into the underbrush. Lieut. Wilcox, acting on the suspicion that some of the men might know something about the affair, stepped to the nearest telephone to notify the marshall at Proctor to watch for them.

Driving back to Sixty-third avenue west, he picked up the officers stationed three and started up the Morris Thomas road in the direction of Proctor, where it was supposed that the men were going. A farmer coming from Proctor told the police that he had passed three men.

An automobile, which happened along about this time, was stopped by the officers and the driver consented to take the officers aboard. Three miles up the road, the men were overtaken and the one answering in some respects to the description of Perpich was arrested on suspicion.

At the police station, the man gave his name as Louis Popovich and denied any connection with the affair at New Duluth, although he admitted that he had come from there this morning. He said he was bound for Proctor in search of work. The police this afternoon stated that after an investigation, it is thought that the suspect is not the right man. He will probably be released.

WEST DULUTHIANS GOING TO ALASKA

Party of Five Leave for Fairbanks to Develop Claim.

Five West Duluth citizens have purchased tickets for Fairbanks, Alaska, over the Northern Pacific railroad, and will leave today or tomorrow for the for North, where they have an interest in a claim in the rich mining district near Fairbanks.

Phillipe Toembly has been in Alaska before, going there in 1897, and returning in 1906. He located a claim at that time and at the present time is going with his friends to develop his possession. Thomas Curren, William Martin, Thomas Bouillett and J. T. Arseran are the names of the men who are going with him. They are all of West Duluth.

The West Duluthians will go direct from here to Seattle, and will take the first boat from Seattle to Alaska. The claim located by Mr. Toembly is supposed to be a very rich one and he and his friends will devote their energies to developing it. Mr. Toembly made some money from his first trip to Alaska, and he is sanguine that there is more money to be secured from his holdings.

AUTO OWNERS PROTEST AGAINST BROKEN GLASS.

Automobile owners at West Duluth are clamoring because the ordinance relating to throwing glass in the street is not more strictly enforced.

It is claimed that broken bottles and other pieces of glass have been strewn along some of the street, special reference being made to Grand avenue.

Near the brewery at Forty-third avenue west and Grand there is a spot in the road, where a case of bottles evidently fell out and smashed in the road way. The glass has never been cleaned from the street.

PETITIONS HAVE MANY SIGNATURES.

The petitions, which have been circulated at West Duluth, New Duluth and vicinity, asking the state fish and game commission to restock the St. Louis river with pike, black bass and crappies have been generally signed. The signatures, which number about 300, will be sent to the commission in St. Paul some time this week.

IS TO REPRESENT THE IRVING SCHOOL.

West Duluth's representatives in the Wallace cup oratorical contest to be held on the evening of May 13, at the Blaine high school in Superior, have been selected.

Barbara Fecor will give an oration and Miss Eva Ketchum was selected to take part on the declamatory section. The alternates chosen were George Deatherage and Loretta St. Germaine.

Four high schools, two in Superior and two in Duluth will compete. The West Duluth representatives are from the Duluth Industrial high school.

AGED MAN PASSES AWAY AFTER YEAR'S ILLNESS.

Xavier Socier, 73 years old, died this morning at his home, 221½ North Forty-first avenue west, after an illness of a year. Death was a result of old age and a general break-down. Socier is survived by a wife, four daughters and one son. He has been a resident of West Duluth for the past twelve years.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 9 o'clock from the St. Jean Baptiste church, Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street. Burial will be at Calvary cemetery.

THE "1910 COMET CLUB" GIVES PRETTY DANCE.

The first "May day" dance of the "1910 Comet club," given last night at Wade's hall, was a decided success, and it is probable that they will be continued in the future. The club was recently organized by a number of young men at West Duluth. They introduced an innovation in the form of a "starlight" dance with a pretty effect. The lamps were turned out and the illumination was furnished by many small colored incandescents strung along the ceiling.

Wife Charges Non-Support.

Earl Le Flare, teamster, was arrested last evening at West Duluth on a charge of non-support, preferred by his wife, who claimed that he spent most of his time loitering around saloons. He will be arraigned today in police court.

West Duluth Briefs.

Frank Soderman has returned to his home in St. Paul after spending a few days at West Duluth.

Hurst. Watch repairing. W. Duluth.

Mrs. Dan McKinnon of North Fifty-second avenue west is at St. Mary's hospital.

Mrs. M. Allard and son of Scanlon have moved to West Duluth and will build a home at Fifty-fourth avenue west and Bristol street.

The ladies of St. James' Catholic church will give a card social and musical entertainment at Gilley's hall Thursday evening, May 12.

Big sale on popular-priced trimmed and untrimmed hats Friday and Saturday. Bee Hive Millinery, 5613 Grand avenue.

The 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Willie of Raleigh street, who was operated upon for appendicitis at St. Mary's hospital, is reported to be recovering.

The Young People's Society of the Swedish-Finnish Evangelical Lutheran church will be entertained tomorrow evening at the home of Gunnard Frost of 102 South Forty-eighth avenue west.

The West Duluth Republican club will have its monthly meeting Saturday evening at the West Duluth Commercial club rooms. There will be several speakers and a good program.

New spring styles in millinery. Miss S. Lingren, 305 Central avenue.

Rev. Arthur J. Hoag, retiring pastor of the West Duluth Baptist church, who left last evening for Chicago, from where he will go to St. Paul to take up his new work, was a guest of honor at a surprise party given early in the evening at the home of Forest Kent of 325 North Sixtieth avenue west.

Boston, Mass., May 4.—Turning to butter a large part of the milk that is being held from the contractors who refuse to pay winter prices for it, is now the occupation of the farmers who are engaged in the milk war in Massachusetts. Boston consumers felt no effect of the milk situation today and contractors said that there was no possibility of a milk famine.

OPPOSES DEMAND OF CHURCH WOMEN

Bishop Hendrix Tells Them They Should Not Seek Laymen's Rights.

Asheville, N. C., May 4.—Bishop E. R. Hendrix of Kansas City, in making the Episcopal address at the Lutheran Methodist conference here today, flatly opposed the demands of the women of the church for laymen's rights and representation in conference. He said the demands were "not in harmony with the church's idea of what was woman's place in the church, in the home and in society."

The address complimented women for their devotion to the church.

VIGOROUS RECOVERY IN STOCK MARKET.

New York, May 4.—Vigorous recovery in the stock market today was based on reports that sales had been effected of large new issues of railroad bonds to foreign purchasers, especially in Paris.

No official anouncements were made on the subject, but a break of one-half gave color to the rumors. The amount of the bonds thus placed abroad was variously estimated at $50,000,000 to $100,000,000.

New York City revenue warrants and bond issues of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, and Northern Pacific and Southern Pacific companies figured in the current reports.

EASTERN COLLEGES.

It has been asserted that the Eastern universities are losing ground in the states outside of their own division (that is the North Atlantic), owing to the increasing competition of the leading state universities of the Middle West, but as a matter of fact the total registration of Columbia, Cornell, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Princeton and Yale for the year 1909 in divisions outside of the North Atlantic and in foreign countries shows a gain of 146 over the preceding year, and of 507 students over 1905, says the New York Sun.

This increase would be much larger were it not for the advantages offered in institutions like Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. These are the only state universities that draw over 20 per cent of their student body from other states than their own, and they can lay claim, therefore, to having become national institutions. Michigan today draws students from every state of the Union but one (Delaware), including 391 from New York state, 148 from Pennsylvania, and 69 from foreign countries, attracting 620 students from the North Atlantic division, or 176 more than in 1905.

It must not be forgotten, however, that many of the students registered at the various state universities would not go to college at all if it were not for the advantages just mentioned. With many of them, says the American College, it is a question of the state university or none at all, and not of selection between the state institution and a representative Eastern university, and a fair percentage of these very students are apt to turn up later on in the professional or graduate schools of an Eastern institution, having earned money through teaching or in other ways after graudation from the state university.

MARINE NEWS

NO FREIGHT FOR THE EAST

Small Cargoes for Line Boats From Head of the Lakes.

General Movement Is Dependent on Situation at the Soo.

There is little change in the marine situation at the Head of the Lakes. The situation "lacks tone," as the agent of one of the vessel lines put it today. The blockade at the Soo and the scarcity of east-bound freight have made the situation quiet here.

There is a large amount of ore to go down the lakes, but until the locks at the Soo are in condition to permit free passage of vessels, there will not be even a heavy movement in ore.

The coal movement continues heavy, with a large amount of coal on the way to the Head of the Lakes. The docks here have received very little coal, and they were thoroughly cleaned out of their winter's supply before the present movement began.

Package freight agents stated this morning that there was little prospect for a heavy eastbound freight movement—at least for some time.

Vessel agents here do not attempt to explain why the eastbound movement in package freight is so light. There is a brisk demand in the West for the freight moving from the East, but a very light demand for merchandise and other package freight in the East.

However, the opening of the American lock at the Soo is expected to give an impetus to the marine movement that will be gradually reflected in all lines.

HAMONIC IS COMING ON FIRST TRIP.

The big steamer Hamonic of the Northern Navigation company is expected to reach the Head of the Lakes today on its first trip of the present season. The Hamonic has not yet commenced its regular passenger schedule run, but will take passengers.

The Hamonic is one of the biggest passenger boats making Duluth. The boat is 341 feet long and has a beam of 50 feet. The Hamonic was built last season, and is one of the finest and most up-to-date vessels on the Great Lakes.

Raising the Halstead.

The work of raising the Halstead, the lumber barge that was damaged by being swung against the south abutment of the canal entrance, and which sank after being towed by the steamer Prentice to a spot near the Peavey elevator, was began today. It is expected that the barge will be raised by tomorrow.

RAILROADS

MAY BUILD ELECTRIC LINE.

Center and Hettinger, N. D., May Be Joined Thereby.

Mandan, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a large portion of the right-of-way already secured, it begins to look as though the proposition of building an electric railway line from Center, Oliver county, to Hettinger, is something more than a myth. This line will cross the Northern Pacific at New Salem, and will touch at several inland towns. Through the territory that it will pass there are some splendid lignite coal lands, and it is from this coal that the power will be secured. Charles Whitmere is in charge of the right-of-way work and finds that the farmers are greatly interested in the proposition and willing to do all in their power toward getting the line through.

TO LAY HEAVIER STEEL.

Great Northern to Improve Grand Forks-Barnesville Line.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Announcement is made by the Great Northern railroad officials that all of the steel between this city and Barnesville, Minn., will be relaid this year, the present seventy-pound rails being replaced by ninety-pound rails. This action is taken by the company so that better time and heavier trains can be run over the line. Material is already beginning to arrive at Barnesville, where the work will be commenced, and it is to be pushed just as rapidly as possible. About $1,000,000 will be expended in making the change.

WANTS RECEIVER FOR PACIFIC COAST ROAD.

San Francisco, Cal., May 4.—In a suit begun yesterday in the United States circuit court the appointment of a receiver for the San Francisco Vallejo & Napa Valley railroad, is asked and charges are made against two of the officials of the company. The suit is brought by Ralph W. Boyer of Milford, Mass., a stockholder in the organization, who alleges that the road has been in an insolvent state and has been operated for a year at a loss.

SCHOOL BOYS INTERESTED

Young Athletes in Training for Their Annual Field Day.

Entrants Classified on Weight Basis for Events This Year.

Great interest is being taken by the boys of the city in the interscholastic meet to be held at Athletic park Saturday afternoon, May 22. The event is held annually under the auspices of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. Some years ago The Herald donated a cup, and for this cup the boys contest annually. The Washington grade school athletes have twice succeeded in winning the trophy, and if they win again this year it will become their property.

The official entry blanks have been printed for this year. There are four divisions. The midget division consists of boys weighing over 70 and under 90 pounds. The middleweight division consists of boys of 105 and under 120 pounds. The lightweights are boys of 90 and under 105 pounds, and the heavies are boys of 120 pounds and over.

The boys take part in the events under which they are classified as to weight. There are dashes, broad jumps, standing jumps, high jumps, a relay race, a quarter-mile run, a shot put, a potato race, a tug of war and other interesting events.

Under the conditions of the meet, the boys must all be up in their studies to at least a passing grade. The entries must be in the hands of J. R. Batcheler of the boys' department not later than Thursday, May 20.

Plans are going merrily on for the big kite tournament, which will be held on the shore of Lake Superior at Lester park May 14. Boys in all parts of the city are making kites, and each one hopes to land a prize. Prizes will be awarded for the strongest puller and the best decorated kite.

THREE I LEAGUE SEASON OPENS

Mayors Declare Half Holidays and Take Part in Ceremonies.

Waterloo, Iowa, May 4.—The Three I league season opened here today with Dubuque as the opposition team. Mayor Rector proclaimed a half holiday and many stores and offices were closed. A special excursion train came from Dubuque bringing a brass band and enthusiasts. A parade led by two bands included all city officials and prominent men in the baseball world. Al Tearney of Chicago, president of the league, served the first ball.

Four Mayors in Parade.

Davenport, Iowa, May 4.—Mayors of Davenport, Rock Island, Moline and Bettendorf, Iowa, rode in a parade that preceded the opening game of the Three I league season here today. The contest was between the Davenport and Rock Island teams, between which intense rivalry has existed for years. Mayor Mueller pitched the first ball, while Mayor McCaskrin of Rock Island, donning a mask and big glove, received it as backstop. It is the tenth anniversary of the first game in the league.

Peoria at Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., May 4.—The opening of the Three I league season took place in Springfield today with the Peoria team as the opponent. Good weather attended the opening. An automobile parade included the players of both teams, city, county and state officials and invited guests from Peoria. A band headed the procession and gave a concert at the park prior to the game. Kormer, just purchased from the New York Nationals, played center field.

Opening at Danville.

Danville, Ill., May 4.—For the first time in ten years residents of this city were privileged to see Three I league baseball. The season was opened with a parade, hundreds of automobiles and fraternal orders being in line.

WISCONSIN-ILLINOIS LEAGUE SEASON OPENS.

Racine, Wis., May 4.—The Wisconsin-Illinois league baseball season opened today in four cities of the circuit. Clear but cold weather prevailed in all of these cities.

Madison, last year's champions, made its initial appearance here and the team was accompanied by Mayor Shubert and 100 fans. They were met at the depot by bands and a howling mob of rooters and a big automobile parade followed. Business is suspended for the day.

Mayors of four Wisconsin cities, Racine, Madison, Kenosha and Burlington, rode in an automobile at the lead of the parade.

Rockford opened at Aurora. A half holiday was proclaimed throughout the city, a parade preceding the game.

Fond du Lac opened at Oshkosh and Green Bay opened at Appleton. Mayors and city officials of all these cities took prominent parts and business houses and factories closed for the afternoon.

SUBMIT DATES FOR REGATTA

Kenora Officials Suggest July 28 and 29 for Rowing Races.

Officials of the Duluth Boat club today received from the officials of the Kenora Boat club tentative dates for the holding of the annual regatta of the Western Rowing association.

July 28 and 29 were the dates submitted to the local officials for their approval or disapproval. It is believed here that the dates submitted tentatively are a trifle too late in the season. Just what the other members of the association will have to say in this matter will be brought out later.

There is meeting of the conference committee of the boat club called for this evening, and the matter of the date for the holding of the regatta will come up for consideration then.

While an opinion has not been secured from the oarsmen as yet, one will be secured before the meeting this evening. It is believed that the middle of July is late enough for the holding of the big Western aquatic event, especially when the men begin training as late as the American members of the association, Duluth and St. Paul, do.

As stated previously in The Herald, the schedule of races for the three departments of the club-motor boat, rowing and yachting will be passed upon this evening.

The consideration of the date for the Western regatta is a very important matter, as quite a few Duluth people have signified their intention of going to the Canadian summer resort this summer to witness the regatta.

Barnesville Has $14,000 Fire.

Barnesville, Minn., May 4.—The A. B. Spencer drygoods, clothing and jewelry store here was gutted by fire at an early hour yesterday, causing a loss of $14,000. The origin of the fire is a mystery, and a suspicion of incendiary origin is held by the owner, Mr. Spencer places his loss at $13,000, insurance about half. The building is owned by H. G. Tweeton, who places the damage done to it at $1,000.

ALL BOOK-MAKING PUT UNDER BAN

Agnew-Perkins Anti-Oral Bill Is Passed By New York Senate.

Albany, N. Y., May 4.—Following a conference today with Governor Hughes, Senator Newcombe succeeded in having the senate strike out his amendment, made yesterday, to the Agnew-Perkins anti-oral book-making bill, and the measure was passed in the form which prohibits book-making "with or without writing."

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

MANY people are waiting anxiously to hear A. J. McGuire say that under no circumstances will he become a candidate for the state senate. The superintendent of the Grand Rapids experimental farm is generally well liked, his ability is without question and his motives always good. But he is not fitted for service in the legislature, say the politicians. If the other men who make up that distinguished body of law-makers were of the same mental and moral stature as the boss of the Northeastern experimental farm, then he would belong there, but they're not, McGuire is worth more to the state as an agriculturist than as a lawgiver, say the politicians and the farmers. He was in the city yesterday and attended strictly to his business connected with the affairs of the experimental farm to the exclusion of political dickering. The men who are inclined to cry down McGuire's candidacy for the senate declare they have no particular interest in any other candidate in the Fifty-second district, although Dan Gunn, the incumbent, seems to be generally conceded a re-election.

Keller Wins In St. Paul.

Herbert P. Keller's victory in the mayoralty fight at St. Paul is purely a local manifestation. The campaign in the capital city was waged as a party fight, but along non-partisan lines. Tax rates cut a big figure and so do other local municipal issues, as they should in such a campaign. Keller is pledged to do what he can to equalize taxation, and with the assembly dominated by his own party he may be able to accomplish much.

The defeat of Henry G. Haas, it is said, cannot be ascribed entirely to Keller's popularity and good qualities as a campaigner. The elimination of Dan Lawler from the mayoralty sweepstakes undoubtedly was resented by many Democrats, and they took speedy revenge on the powers that be in St. Paul for said elimination.

Mr. Keller should make a good mayor. He is thoroughly well acquainted with the needs of the capital city and has been one of the most effective forces for good in the city council for some years. The Republicans have had no chief executive of the city for fourteen years, and may be expected to make the most of their opportunities in the way of patronage. It will be interesting to watch what will be done to the police department, which has been the pride of succeeding Democratic administrations. John J. O'Connor is chief of the department.

The success of Maj. W. C. Handy, Republican candidate for the assembly, will be reason for gratification throughout the state. Maj. Handy is widely known and exceedingly well liked. As managing editor of the Pioneer Press before the advent of Mr. Grasty he was a forceful factor in many of the affairs of the state and in the assembly he may be counted upon to fight for the people. The major, a Maryland man, is a Democrat by birth and instinct and a Republican by reason of environment. One can't always be blamed for his environment.

E. G. Rogers, another new member of the assembly, was formerly clerk of the supreme court, and two years ago he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress against Fred C. Stevens, who beat him handily.

Tom Kane, who led the assembly ticket, is the man who is expected to lead the fight next fall against Stevens. The measure of his popularity is indicated by the fact that he leads all the candidates. Mr. Kane is one of the ablest Democrats and public men in the state and from the vantage point of St. Paul's city hall he will be able to make himself heard and known all over the not very extensive Fourth district. The election of Mr. Kane is a distinct encouragement for those who are urging him to enter the congressional race.

Democratic Convention.

Tomorrow the executive committee of the Democratic state central committee will meet in St. Paul at the Merchants hotel. The purpose of the gathering is to decide upon the date of the state convention and discuss other matters of vital importance in the coming campaign.

Judge Jaques will be the Duluth representative at the meeting, and it is probable that the Eighth district congressional situation will be thrashed over.

Another subject which may come up is that of the Democratic candidate for United States senator. It has been reported that the plan suggested is to make John Lind the party candidate for the upper house at Washington.

It is certain that an effort will be made to bring out a large number of candidates for the legislature, and St. Paul and Minneapolis are expected to set forth their respective arguments why the state convention should be held—in Duluth.

Mankato on Trial.

Mankato is about to enter upon one of the most interesting campaigns ever witnessed in Minnesota. Having adopted the commission form of government, the voters must now choose the officers who are to administer the affairs of the city, and party politics will not enter into the election. Political affiliations are not considered in placing the names of candidates on the ticket and the voter is to decide for himself which of the several candidates are best fitted to transact the business of the community.

Remarking that it would be very easy to throw a monkey-wrench into the municipal cylinder and jolt the entire plant from its foundation, the Mankato Free Press says:

"The utmost care should be used in the selection of the men who are to be in charge of the taxpayers' business during the next twelve months.

"These men will necessarily encounter a number of perplexing problems, and upon their solution will depend in a large measure the success or failure of the charter which the people have just adopted by such a large vote. Considerable thought should be given to the choosing of the men who are to launch this modern system of government upon the municipal sea.

"Due consideration should be given to the capabilities of the several candidates for mayor and aldermen. The best and most competent men should be chosen regardless of their party ties or the section of the city in which they live. Broadguaged men will always work for the best interests of a community and those who pay the bills, no matter in what part of the town their homes are. These are the kind of men we want in office, and it is up to the people of Mankato to put them there."

Platform of the G. O. P.

Representatives Lindberg and Davis may be read out of the Republican party when the state convention of that organization is held next month. At least, it is likely that the surest inference they will be able to draw from the platform declaration of the Minnesota G. O. P. is that they are undesirable tarriffers.

Down at Washington the men who have most dependence on party and partisanship are said to be concocting the dish that is to be set before the people of Minnesota as the best that Minnesota Republicans can put forth. It is unlikely that the members of congress will permit their agent, the convention, to say things that will have a tendency to hurt them at court.

The proposition that confronts the party in the state is a disquieting one, apparently. Governor Eberhart wants a declaration for genuine downward revision; Tawney wants an assertion of his immaculate goodness and a declaration for a tariff commission; Nelson wants to stand in with the administration and strenuously oppose any plank that will interfere with this purpose; Stevens, Nye and Miller are gentle insurgents who really don't want anything but to be let alone; and what Frank B. Kellogg wants has not been disclosed.

RUTH BRYAN OWEN IS IN KANSAS CITY

Newly Married Couple Will Go to Jamaica, Where Lieutenant Is Stationed.

Kansas City, Mo., May 4.—Lieut. Reginald A. Owen and his bride, who was Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt, en route from Lincoln, Neb., to Jamaica on their wedding trip, spent last night in Kansas City. They plan, it was stated this morning, to depart for the South late today.

Lieu. and Mrs. Owen reached Kansas City late last night and went to the Baltimore hotel. Lieut. Owen registered illegibly and it was some time before their presence was known.

"We are going to Jamaica, where I am stationed," said Lieut. Owen in response to inquiries.

The clerk at the hotel this morning said that the couple had left their room early and that it was not known when they would return. It was stated, however, that they intended ot remain in Kansas City at least today before resuming their trip South.

HAD BRIEF EXPERIENCE IN THE ROLE OF EDWARD PAYSON WESTON

Joseph L. Maitland, nee Barney Oldfield, nee Edward Payson Weston, is again Barney Oldfield.

In the long ago Mr. Maitland bought an automobile. It followed that Mr. Maitland came to be called Barney Oldfield. Being manager of the Bijou, Mr. Maitland was reconciled to the need of having a stage name, but as his car was far and away ahead of the old-time stage he did not concede that it was essential for him to be burdened with numerous names.

At any rate, he tolerated it when people called him Barney Oldfield and tried to live up to the implied reputation.

Then, later, he sold his car. Those who have not autos must, perforce, walk. And Mr. Maitland was no exception to this rule. He pedestrianed. Therefore he lost his name of Barney Oldfield.

"His name is dead. Long live his name!" cried his friends.

And they dubbed him Edward Payson Weston.

By this time Maitland had given up all hope of dodging whatever names might be handed him and he tamely submitted. It is the fate of pedestrians tamely to submit. Especially when their friends drive autos. If their enemies drive autos, they do worse than submit. They often may be ground in the dust. Probably it was the thought of this that actuated Maitland. However that may be, he bought another car. When he bought it he was assured by the seller that it was a good car, and he ought to know.

Last night, with the agent at the wheel, he gave that car a tryout. The machine was about seven miles from the nearest—gasoline depot—when the agent turned to the purchaser and remarked:

"Say, Weston. Goin' some, eh?"

Just then there was a loud report and one of the rear tires collapsed. It took quite a while to repair the damage and during that time the agent got all mixed up. Some of the time, when he was thinking of what it would mean had the trouble been more serious than a puncture, he called Maitland "Weston." In his more optimistic moods he referred to him as Oldfield. Maitland, shivering, said "Stung!"

But misfortune cannot continue always, as the poet says, and in the end (not of the tire), the puncture was mended and the car sped Duluthward.

On the way home, Maitland was at the wheel. That's why he has again become Barney Oldfield. Barney says he is going to have a bit of horseshoe nail gold plated and says he will keep it as a memento of the occasion, making the pretense that the nail and not the name of Weston was responsible for the puncture.

Unbreakable Glass.

A glass factory in France has produced a new glass that will not break. The composition of the glass is heated to boiling point and then is plunged into water brought to a freezing point. There is no new invention in the science of brewing that can improve Golden Grain Belt beer. It is the home beverage and within the reach of all. TRAVELING MAN DISAPPEARS

Search Is Being Conducted Throughout United States for Albert F. Kellogg.

Traveling men and others who visit Duluth hotels are becoming deeply interested in the disappearance of a young man who is said to be probably in this section of the country. Many knights of the grip are keeping a weather eye open for the missing man, who is himself a commercial traveler and the son of a traveler.

The notices posted in the hotels tell of the disappearance on Feb. 17 of Albert F. Kellogg, who was last seen going out of the Hotel Statler at Buffalo. His father, N. S. Kellogg, 64 Waterbury avenue, Richmond Hill, L. I., is directing the search form the East.

Kellogg, Jr., is 22 years old, 5 feet 1 inches tall, and weighs 160 pounds. He is smooth shaven and has a scar on the upper left side of his forehead. His hair is dark brown, heavy and wavy. There is a light spot in his hair on the back of the head far down.

He carries a silver open face watch, a bronze medal pendant inscribed, "1907—12 lb. shot put," and a small signet ring, which he wears on the third finger of his left hand, with the initials, "L. K. J."

FIRE-EATER NEARLY PERISHES IN FLAMES.

New York, May 4.—Raschi Mundi, a Hindoo, makes his living as a fire eater, but he nearly lost his life last night in flames. He was rehearsing a new act when he spilled a bottle of ether over himself and instantly was enveloped by the blaze. Mundi ran howling into a nearby park. There a man threw him into a fountain in time to save his life.

AMERICAN TOBACCO DIVIDEND DECLARED.

New York, May 4.—The American Tobacco company today declared a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent on the common stock and an extra dividend of 7½ per cent. A quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent was declared on the preferred. All these dividends were the same as those for the last quarter. The extra dividend declared a year ago for the corresponding quarter was 5 per cent.

GRAND JURY IN SESSION

The May Term of the District Court Is Opened.

Few Criminal Cases of Importance to Be Heard.

With the call of the calendar, the May term of the district court was opened this morning.

There were 129 cases on the calendar. There are sixty-six court cases and forty-one jury cases. Eleven were stricken from the calendar, eleven were continued and 107 were marked for trial.

A great number of court cases are these that have come over from the April term.

The grand jurors, were instructed by Judge Dibell and immediately went into secret session. The criminal calendar, it is not expected, will be heavy. Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Greene is assisting the jurors by presenting evidence to them. Mr. Greene will appear for the state at the present term.

The grand jury is composed of the following: N. B. Shank, foreman; Clifford C. Ferguson, James L. Cromwell, Charles A. Ethbridge, John E. Evjen, N. Carmichael, A. A. Barr, Matt Anderson, W. P. Mars, Frank L. Cowen, Fred B. Ferguson, John Lowery, Charles L. Rakowsky, Clarence E. Taylor, Albert E. Bawdenm, W. R. Hallan, Jr., Wade G. Dent and Alex H. Donald.

WILL PRESENT PLAY.

Emerson School Alumni to Appear in Three Act Comedy.

"College Chums," a comedy in three acts, will be presented by the Emerson School Alumni association, June 2. Those who will take part are as follows: Frank Page, Hurbert McMeekin, John Maginnis, John McArthur, Ed McArthur, Ralph Page, Glen Goldsmith, Harry Parfett, Edward Stevens, Miss Mille Denham, Miss Della Perry and Miss Mabel Guyette.

At a meeting of the alumni association last evening in the school auditorium, it was decided to hold the annual banquet Friday evening, June 10, and to extend invitations to the seventeen members of the June graduating class and the faculty of the Emerson school.

The banquet will be served by one of the church societies. Miss Allee Jensen, Miss Dell Perry, Miss Elizabeth Donovan and Ed McArthur are a committee on arrangements for the affair.

SOUTH DAKOTA PASTOR MAY BE EXTENDED CALL.

Rev. Thomas MacMurray of Mitchell, S. D., will preach next Sunday at the Second Presbyterian church, 1515 West Superior street, on "Mother's Day."

THOMAS J. MacMURRAY, Who will Probably Be Called to the Second Presbyterian Church.

His subject has been announced as "The Queen of the Home."

Rev. MacMurray may be called to the Second Presbyterian church as its regular pastor. The church has been without a pastor since the resignation of Rev. James L. McBride, Dec. 5 last year.

Flags for Decoration.

The Adams Athletic association will entertain tomorrow evening at a dancing party at Lincoln Park pavillion. The decorations for the affair will be flags of the various countries. Last evening, the Third Regiment band gave a dance at Lincoln Park with a committee from the Adams association in charge. The band will give parties at the pavillion every Tuesday evening during the summer.

Revival Meetings Begin.

Beginning tonight, a series of revival meetings will be held for two weeks at the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street. The meetings will be conducted by Rev. Edward Erickson, pastor of the congregation and will be held every evening except Saturday and Monday.

West End Shortrails.

Mrs. R. H. Wellington of 217 North Thirty-fourth avenue west entertained the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the Grace M. E. church at her home this afternoon.

The funeral of Mrs. Bertha Grams, 75 years old, who died Monday afternoon at her home in Hermantown, was held this morning from the residence of her granddaughter, Mrs. John Golez of 2011 West Third street, with services at St. Mary's Polish Catholic church, Fourth avenue east and Third street. Interment was at the Polish cemetery.

Edward Leaneau, gunner's mate on the United States ship Virginia who is serving his third term in the navy, is home on a furlough. He is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Leaneau of 2323 West Fifth street.

Miss Hilda Carlson of Chicago and Herman Lindberg of Swan Lake were married last evening at the parsonage of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, 2305 West Third street, with Rev. C. G. Olson officiating. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John Lindberg of this city. They will make their home on a farm near Swan river.

Erwin Schumacher was surprised by a number of his young friends Monday afternoon at his home, 2707 West Fourth street. Games were played and a lunch was served. There were thirteen guests.

Mrs. Charles A. Hammer of 3627 Coates street entertained the Westra Society of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church at her home this afternoon.

Mrs. N. Bailey of 2127 West Fourth street, who has been ill at her home is reported to be improving.

The Epworth League Sewing Circle of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church held a May sale last evening at the church parlors. The young ladies cleared a substantial sum.

Mrs. Frank Peterson and Mrs. Charles Sandberg will entertain the Ladies' Aid Society of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church tomorrow afternoon at the church parlors, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street.

Mrs. William Thompson of Cardill, Can., is a guest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Reader of Twenty-sixth avenue west and Helm street.

The Sixth Ward Business club met last evening and several matters of importance to the hillsiders were discussed. It was reported that several new lights were needed on the hillside. A report was submitted from the park committee, which has started to take up the Central park proposition.

AMUSEMENTS

"The Round Up."

There is a pressing demand for seats at the Lyceum theater where "The Round Up" with Maclyn Arbuckle will be seen for the first time in Duluth next Monday evening. This famous play of Western life has made a genuine sensation in all the large cities, it comes to this city with the great cast unchanged and with all the sensational and comedy features retained. Whether one gives precedence to the amusing incidents as supplied by "Slim" Hover, the jolly sheriff, to the spectacular outfit, or to the thrill of the Indian's fighting, there's no diversion of opinion regarding the complete success of the production. The cast includes: Maclyn Arbuckle, Albert Phillips, Joseph M. Lothian, Sidney Cushing, Elmer Grandin, William Conklin, S. L. Richardson, James Asburn, Jacques Martin, Ogden Crane, Fred R. Stanton, "Texas" Cooper, Grace Benham, Marie Taylor and Pauls Gloy. The engagement is for one week with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Throngs of Eager Women Share the Wonderful Economies of Duluth's Greatest Sale of Silks

THAT this is by far the greatest silk buying opportunity ever offered Duluth women was the unanimous verdict of today's throngs. It's a rare thing to get silks at 33 1-3 cents on the dollar so early in the season, but The Glass Block Store performs many unusual merchandising feats. A purchase of 18,000 yards of high grade silks would "swamp" many stores, but for us it means but a week of spirited selling.

The second day of this sale begins tomorrow with unbroken assortments and limitless choosing from the season's newest fabrics at Half Price and less. Come early for the best choosing.

BOY GETS $13,750 FOR LOSS OF LEG ON RAILROAD.

New York, May 4.—Thirteen thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars for the loss of a leg was awarded to Harold Schaffler, the 15-year-old son of a policeman by the appellate division of the supreme court yesterday affirming a decision of the lower court against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company, largest verdict ever upheld here for such an injury.

MARK TWAIN'S ESTATE ALL GOES TO DAUGHTER.

Redding, Conn., May 4.—The will of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) filed for probate here, leaves the entire estate to the surviving daughter, Clara Langhorn Clemens, wife of Ossip Gabrielovitch, the amount of the estate is not given.

The will was drawn Aug. 17, 1909, and provides that the estate should be divided into two equal parts, the income to be apportioned to the two daughters quarterly. It was provided that in case one daughter died the estate should go to the surviving daughter. Miss Jean Clemens, the second daughter, died last Christmas time.

GIRL WHO WAS KIND TO UNCLE GETS $40,000.

Chicago, May 4.—A sweet disposition and her kindly treatment of her uncle, Benjamin D. Magruder, former justice of the Illinois supreme court, who died April 21, won a fortune for Miss Elizabeth Magruder of San Antonio, Tex. She is named sole heir and executrix of the $40,000 estate of the late jurist in his will, filed here.

Man Strangled by Pump.

Hartford City, Ind., May 4.—Winfield S. Fowler, who came prospecting to the Indiana oil field from Virginia two years ago, was standing alone near his pump yesterday. He wore a long "overall" coat, buttoned tightly at the throat. A whirling shaft caught the tail of the coat, ripping it up the back to the neck band and garrotted him.

Kellogg Goes to Europe.

New York, May 4.—Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul, Minn., the government attorney in the Standard Oil and other suits, sailed yesterday on the steamship Kron Prinz Wilhelm for a rest in Europe. He was accompanied by his wife.

"I expect to return in September," the attorney said, "to take up the fight aggressively against the law-violating trusts."

Ex-City Treasurer in Pen.

Camden, N. J., May 4.—Ira S. Champion, former treasurer of Ocean City, N. J., was sentenced to four years at hard labor in the state prison on a charge of forgery.

CIRCUS LIONS ATTACK KEEPER DURING PARADE.

Forest City, Iowa, May 4.—George Tardy, a lion keeper, was almost killed here during a circus parade when an enraged male lion sprang upon him. One arm was almost torn from his body and his throat and back were terribly lacerated. Two female lions in the same cage followed their male in the attack and the three fought desperately for possession of their victim. Elephant keepers drove off the lions with bull hooks and removed Tardy from the cage.

Haskell Gets Delay.

Tulsa, Okla., May 4.—The trial of Charles N. Haskell, governor of Oklahoma, and five other men in the Muskogee town lot cases, has been continued until the next term of the federal court. The postponement precludes any further action during the next five weeks.

Ban on School Societies.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 4.—Fraternities and sororities at the Bridgeport high school will be abolished by the board of education, beginning with the next school year, as the result of an investigation of the recent initiation of Miss Lorain Clark into a sorority. Fayette C. Clark, father of Miss Clark, alleged that as a result of the initiation his daughter has become so ill that she had to be sent to a sanitarium.

BOY ADMITS SETTING FIRE.

Dubuque, Iowa, May 4. — Walter Smith, 24 years old, has confessed, according to the police, to setting fire twice to the Grand opera house Monday during a performance. The police have been trying for some time to solve the origin of the fires by which the Bijou theater and the Standard Lumber company's plant were recently destroyed and they say they will hold Smith in the hope that he may know something about these fires.

Another Big Eau Claire Fire.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 4.—The second destructive fire in Eau Claire in four days yesterday destroyed the factory of the Linderman Box & Veneer company, entailing a $40,000 loss, practically all covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown. The company employed 150 men.

HARD TIMES ARE FOE TO CANCER

Fish Diet and Dark Skin Also Ward Off Disease, Says Doctor.

Washington, May 4.—Hard times as a preventive of cancer was given a boost before the American Climatological association here today, and the speckled trout, denounced in medical journals as one of the chief causes of cancer, was given a clean bill of health, in a paper read by Dr. R. G. Curtin of Philadelphia.

"During hard times," said the doctor, in substance, "when the poor have to live on a scant amount of food, and that of an inferior grade, cancer among them decreases to a wonderful extent, so that the stress accompanying the occasional panic works for an improvemen in health at least in that respect."

Dark-Skinned People Safe.

Negroes and dark-skinned peoples, he added, were more nearly immune from cancer than others, and the better fed the people, the more liable to attack by the disease they were. Temperate regions contained more cases of cancer, he continued than those less temperate, and in the countries where fish abounded, especially the much-suspected trout, cases of cancer were much more rare than in others.

Overnutrition is the cause of cancer, he said, and that theory was the basis for his unique statements.

FINAL PULL OF DRAGNET

Books of the Census Will Be Closed Thursday Night.

Number of People Missed Will Be Comparatively Small.

Supervisor Byron L. Hollister, Assistant Supervisor J. W. Allen, enumerators, inspectors, representatives of the Commercial club and the real estate exchange and public-spirited citizens are working on the final cleanup of the government census in Duluth.

By order of the directors of the census, the books in Duluth and all other cities throughout the country must close tomorrow night. Duluth people who have been missed still have an opportunity to get into the count. Anybody who thinks that he has not been counted should use the mails or the telephone in order that Duluth may show its full strength.

A dragnet is being used to gather in the stragglers, and it will be strange if very many escape. The wholesale houses, business places and office buildings are being visited by special agents of the department. Today and tomorrow automobiles will be taken to visit houses which were reported vacant by enumerators. If people have moved in since the enumerator visited the district, they will be taken. Pay-rolls, membership rolls of lodges and other lists of names are being checked over, and the census officials are willingly checking over hundreds of names in order to get one straggler.

The mails and telephones have been freely used by public-spirited citizens. A number who have been missed have failed to call up the census office, but they are comparatively few. On every hand public spirit has been shown, and people have evinced a disposition to aid the government forces in every way possible.

The population of Duluth as fixed by this census will stand for ten years. In 1915 a state census will be taken, but it is used principally for state purposes and does not get into government statistics. Duluth people who want the city to show its full strength in the census now being taken are doing everything they can to secure a complete and accurate census, and those in charge of the work believe they will succeed.

Some people will be missed. The number will be comparatively small, however, for the dragnet which has been used since Saturday has taken hundreds who were missed by the enumerators on their regular rounds.

It is practically up to the people now. The census officials have covered both business and residence districts, and have done all they can to get every person in the city on their books. If people who have not been counted will do their part, the census of Duluth will be accurate and satisfactory to all concerned.

DYER DIES TRYING TO SAVE HIS $100

Burns to Death Rather Than Leave Money in His Shop.

New York, May 4.—Edward Heide, senior member of the dyeing firm of Edward Heide & Co., was burned to death today because he was determined to save $100 in cash. The money was in Heide's coat, left behind in the dye shop from which he had been dragged after an explosion of dye stuff had set the place on fire and had narrowly missed killing him outright.

Heide's partner, Anthony Gerner, rescued him in the first instance from the burning room on the second floor of the Grand street building, and beat out the flames which had communicated to Heide's clothing. Heide, however, refused to leave the building.

NEW EFFORT TO AVERT RATE WAR

Another Eastern Railroad Conference Is Held in New York City.

New York, May 4.—Another effort to avert the impending freight rate war due to differences between Eastern railroads over the import differential to Chicago, was made today when representatives of commercial bodies of Philadelphia, Boston and Baltimore met officials of various railroads at a conference in the offices of the Trunk Line association here.

After the failure of a similar conference held Thursday last to arrive at an agreement, the Pennsylvania railroad announced that, tiring of the fruitless efforts to bring about an amicable adjustment of the controversy, it would, on June 11, cut the 69 per cent import rate to Chicago to 61 cents, 6 cents below the present Boston rate. At the same time it was declared the Philadelphia & Reading and the Baltimore & Ohio would join the Pennsylvania railroad.

Today's conference was held at the request of the Boston & Main railroad, which refused to advance its rate from 67 to 70 cents per 100 pounds to equalize the charge in comparison with the 69-cent rate from Philadelphia, which is 300 miles nearer Chicago than Boston.

TEN THOUSAND MEN IN BUILDING STRIKE.

Boston, May 4.—Although 10,000 men, connected principally with the building trades, continue on strike in fifteen New England cities today, the general situation of building unrest has somewhat eased by an agreement to submit to arbitration its differences between the New England Investment & Security company and the 1,200 employes of its trolley lines in Springfield, Worcester and Western Massachusetts.

Falls, Breaking Neck.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 4.—John Murphy of Chippewa Falls, while working on the new Soo railroad bridge across the Eau Claire river yesterday afternoon, lost his footing, falling to the river bank thirty-five feet below, breaking his neck and dying instantly. He leaves a wife and two daughters.

DIFFERENCES ADJUSTED

City and State Agree on the Testing of Cattle.

Health Commissioner Claims He Has Secured Desired Changes.

BEST MILK IN AMERICA.

"Duluth has the best and purest supply of milk in the United States," said Dr. J. C. Ward, head of the bureau of animal industry of the state of Minnesota, during his visit to Duluth, according to Dr. H. E. Webster, health commissioner.

Dr. Ward stated further that he didn't know of a city which is giving the question so much thought and attention with such excellent results.

He declares that the conditions are ideal and that the regulations in force are of the very best. Every possible source of the supply is investigated regularly and all compelled to live up to the regulations on penalty of being put out of business.

The differences between the state and city over the requirements for testing tubercular cows have been settled to the satisfaction of both parties to the controversy following a meeting between Dr. J. C. Ward, head of the state animal bureau, and Dr. H. E. Webster, local health commissioner.

The city inspector is not given the authority to condemn cows and order them killed on his own responsibility, and the state does not enforce an arbitrary rule that temperature must rise to 105 deg before the cow shall be condemned.

All testing is to be done by the deputy state veterinarian under the supervision of the city health department, the latter to keep a separate official record of all cows tested. The veterinarian will order the cows killed, which will enable the owner of the animal to collect the loss from the state. Both the milk inspector and the veterinarian will be present when cows are tested for tuberculosis.

Three conditions were agreed upon to govern the condemnation of cows. The first is that a cow which shows clinical symptoms of tuberculosis and shows no reaction after an injection shall be condemned. The reason given for no reaction in this case is that the cow is so far gone that no reaction will result.

The second is that the cow which shows a rise of temperature after the injection of tuberculin followed by depression and other symptoms, such as shortening of the breath, shall be condemned.

The third condition is that when an animal in a herd which has previously been tested and no tuberculosis found, has a reaction of 2 per cent and shows no constitutional disturbances shall be retested in six weeks.

Dr. Webster states that in making this agreement with the state he has gained all for which he contended, the principal objection to the state regulations being the arbitrary ruling that a cow should show a temperament of 105 deg before it could be condemned. Dr. Webster asserts, and Dr. Ward seems to agree with him, that a cow can have tuberculosis and not show such a high temperament after the injection.

BERLIN READY FOR ROOSEVELT

Program for His Visit There Is Announced at the Embassy.

Berlin, May 4.—The American embassy today announced the complete program for Mr. Roosevelt's visit in Berlin.

Mr. Roosevelt will be the personal guest of Emperor William on the day of his arrival, May 9, and the day following. On May 11 there will be a dinner at the embassy, at which Mr. Roosevelt and the emperor will be the guests of honor. On the following day the former president will dine with Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, later going to the embassy to become Mr. Hill's guest.

On May 13 the ambassador will give a luncheon at which Mr. Roosevelt will meet many German leaders in the fields of science, industry and finance, including Count Zeppelin. At 10 o'clock that evening there will be a reception for specially invited Americans who are members of the American colony, the Association of Commerce and Trade, the Woman's club, the Harvard club and the American embassy and consulate.

Will Meet German Hunters.

Joseph C. Crew, second secretary of the American embassy, will give a luncheon for Mr. Roosevelt on May 14, when a number of hunters of African big game will be present. That evening there will be a dinner at the embassy, followed by a reception for the diplomatic corps, German officials and the University officials. The Roosevelts will leave for London at noon of May 15.

STATUS OF NEW DIOCESE

Bishop Corbett Will Have Nearly 20,000 Catholics Under His Charge.

Over 36,000 People Are Left to the Diocese of Duluth.

The current issue of the Cathedral Bulletin, a publication devoted to the affairs of the Catholic diocese of Duluth, gives the status of the Duluth diocese since the formation of the new diocese of Crookston and the status of the new diocese, showing the diocese of Duluth with a population of Catholics, white and Indian, of 36,545, and of the diocese of Crookston, white and Indian, of 19,567.

The statistics on the diocese of Crookston show that Rev. Timothy Corbett, pastor of the Cathedral parish, who has been chosen bishop of the new diocese of Crookston, will not step into an undeveloped territory, but will have large responsibilities at the beginning of his episcopal work, as well as the responsibility of developing his diocese and increasing the strength of the church in it.

The status of the two dioceses under the new order of things is asfollows:

Father Corbett has not yet been relieved of his pastorate, but it is expected that next Sunday will be his last as pastor of the Cathedral parish. He will then go into retreat until the time of his consecration as bishop of Crookston, May 19, at St. Paul. At that time, six bishops will be consecrated by Most Rev. John Ireland, archbishop of St. Paul, and the ceremony will be the most notable in the history of the Catholic church in America.

Had Father Corbett remained in Duluth until June, he would have rounded out twenty-one years in the service of the church and the Cathedral parish here. He came in June, 1889, a few months before Bishop McGolrick arrived as the first bishop of the new diocese. Duluth was little known then. Its population was about 33,000. The property of the Sacred Heart parish consisted of three lots, on which were the church, the parish house and the old St. Thomas school. The school building was practically new, having been opened in 1885, but the church was an old wooden structure, heated by stoves and furnished poorly. The residence was small and had to be enlarged on the arrival of Bishop McGolrick.

July 2, 1892, church and residence were destroyed by fire. Father Corbett and Bishop McGolrick lost no time in preparing to replace them. A temporary place of worship was fitted up in the school building and four days after the fire a meeting was held at which steps were taken to raise money for the erection of a cathedral. The foundation was constructed, but the panic came and the work was held up. Finally the cornerstone was laid July 15, 1894, and July 26, 1896, the new cathedral was dedicated.

Father Corbett's work in connection with the building of the new cathedral is only an instance of the effort he has put forth to build up the parish, during his pastorate. In 1904, the cathedral school, a large brick structure, was opened to the children of the Parish. It occupies the site on which the old St. Thomas school stood. In 1907, the Christian Brothers came to Duluth and opened the special department for the boys in the cathedral school and a home for them was erected, largely through Father Corbett's efforts. Father Corbett must leave unfinished, the new cathedral high school, a fine structure in course of erection at the southeast corner of Second avenue west and Fourth street.

Father Corbett's work in building up the parish in a material way has been no greater than in a spiritual sense. He has ever been a zealous worker for the cause to which he is dedicated, and his selection as bishop of the new diocese insures that the church's interetss will be well cared for.

A number of Duluth people will attend the consecration ceremonies at St. Paul and a much larger crowd will go to Crookston in June to attend the new bishop's installation as head of the new diocese.

SEE THE WONDERFUL INNER-PLAYER

Let Us Show You How Easy It Is to Play an Inner Player

You don't have to be an expert musician to play the Inner-Player. It responds to every touch—it has a wonderful expression—it does not sound mechanical. You can play the instrument by hand, as well as with the Inner-Player device. The Inner-Player pianos are made with the combination 88 and 65-note scales—or with the 88 or the 65-note scale alone. You can use rolls of either the pin—or pinless kind. We will show you how to operate the Inner-Player.

Piano---Now Being Shown in Our Window

This is well worth your attention—it shows every detail of construction—each part is described and designated by a colored ribbon leading to the part.

Remember the machanism is fully guaranteed for five years—as well as the piano itself. Every part is built from the ground up, by the Cable Company—no assembled parts from other makers.

Inner-Player Pianos Are Not Ordinary Pianos With Actions Insertedin the Cases

The Cable Company build the Inner-Player pianos complete—the player and the piano are all made in one factory and installed under the direct supervision of the Cable experts—that's why they can be fully and absolutely guaranteed.

You are not buying a piano of one make, with the player device made by someone else and put in the case—these ordinary player pianos never operate smoothly—the adjustments cannot be, and are not properly made—and they never give satisfaction.

The Inner-Player being made and assembled in one factory is absolutely uniform in construction—all parts are built to give the very best service. The Cable Company could not afford to guarantee an instrument they were not absolutely certain would fullfil every test.

Don't make the mistake of buying an ordinary player—piano simply because it has a player device. Be sure to see the INNER-PLAYER.

INNER-PLAYER
The name adopted to describe exclusively the player action manufactured only by the Cable Company

A Bachelor's Evening

An INNER-PLAYER Piano provides entertainment for the man and his friends.

It banishes lonesome hours and gives access to the whole world of music. Play your favorite opera selections, the works of the masters—any class of composition you like best.

Think of being able to produce the best of music without first having to take a long course of lessons.

The INNER-PLAYER device takes care of the technic—makes education of your fingers unnecessary, because it produces under your direction, the effects obtained when the skilled pianist strikes the keys.

All you have to do is to pump the pedals and move three little levers. You give the impulse and the INNER-PLAYER responds as you wish it to.

You can put your individuality into the music or you can play it after the idea of the composer because the patented features of the INNER-PLAYER give you absolute control over the effects.

We will show you how easy it is to use an INNER-PLAYER Piano. Call and let us show you its special points of interest.

Inner-Player Pianos Are Fully Guaranteed By the Maker as Well as By Ourselves.

This is a big item—worth considering. Only the most prominent dealers handle the Cable INNER-PLAYER pianos—thus you know absolutely that a guarantee carries some weight—it is good. The Cable Company have devoted years, have employed the best piano experts, and use only the best materials in making INNER-PLAYERS.

For this reason they fully guarantee every instrument—not only the piano itself, but the player device—for five years.

Anyone can play an INNER-PLAYER—for that reason it will get harder usage than an ordinary piano and must be built to stand and assure lasting service.

Try one of the instruments, see how perfectly and how smoothly it is operated—difficult compositions are easy to play—these pleasing results are made possible by the fact that the Cable Company use patented features not found in any other player. When you buy an Inner Player—you buy an instrument made as well as human ingenuity can make it. Be sure you buy the Cable INNER-PLAYER.

These Wonderful Instruments Are Sold By Us on Easy Monthly Payments

You can as well afford the best as the second best—we make it possible for you to own one of these splendid INNER PLAYERS on such easy, satisfactory terms that it is soon paid for. You will always be glad you put your money into a high-grade, reliable, fully guareed instrument. Come in and see the Cable Inner-Player. Try it. See how easy it is to operate. Don't make the mistake of buying a player-piano that is bought in sections and put together to give forth musical notes—it plays mechanically, but not naturally. The Inner-Player plays music like the manual playing of the skilled musician.

DETWEILLER BACK IN SAN FRANCISCO

Returns After Three Years' Refuge in Europe---Ready to Be Tried.

San Francisco, May 4.—After being lost to sight since March 23, 1907, when he was indicted on thirteen counts on charges of bribing the supervisors of th Ruef-Schmitz regime, A. K. Detweiller of Toledo, Ohio, former vice president of the Home Telephone company, this state, surrendered late yesterday to Superior Judge Lawler, who immediately released him on bonds of $130,000.

In a statement, Detweiller said he had been traveling in Europe for his health the greater part of the time since the indictments were returned, and that he had returned the moment his physicians told him he could undergo trial without endangering his life. He declared his return was voluntary. He will be arraigned May 6.

When the Ruef-Schmitz board of supervisors advertised the sale of a franchise for a competing telephone system in 1906, Detweiller came here from Toledo and successfully bid for the privilege. In March, 1907, the grand jury returned thirteen true bills charging him with bribing members of the board of supervisors to act favorably on the bids submitted to his company.

INSPECT THE PROPOSED ROUTE

Mayor and City Engineer Go Over East End Hillside District.

Mayor Cullum and City Engineer T. F. McGilvray went over the route of the proposed street car extension on the hillside, branching upwards from the Fourth street line at Fifth avenue east, yesterday afternoon. They state that their investigation has satisfied them of the advisability of the line, as the grades are practicable and many people would be served who are now compelled to walk considerable distances to get to a car line. The proposed route was outlined in The Herald yesterday. Herbert Warren, general manager of the street car company, denies that the extension is contemplated, adding that the company has not been approached on the matter.

TO PREACH ON TUBERCULOSIS

Archbishop Ireland Asks the Priests to Tell of Ravages of Consumption.

Archbishop Ireland has notified all the pastors, in the archdiocese that on Sunday, May 8, they will be expected to read before their congregations an article covering the ravages of consumption.

The article on tuberculosis will be published in the Cathedral Bulletin. The archbishop also makes the following suggestions in the notification sent the priests:

"The health of the people is a matter of such vital importance to the welfare, temporal and spiritual, that I feel I am serving both charity and religion, instead of trespassing unduly upon the territory of either, when I bid you speak of it inside the chancel railing.

"Among the maladies afflicting humanity in the present time the most prevalent and the most terrible ravage is tuberculosis, or, as heretofore more generally called, consumption.

"Preach then, reverend father, to your good people the means and

TOTS PLAY IN ROOM WITH DEAD PARENTS.

Hamilton, Ohio, May 4.—Too young to realize that a tragedy had made them orphans and that their father was the author of a double homicide, the two children of Carl B. Schuck and his wife romped gleefully over the lifeless forms of their parents yesterday afternoon.

Policemen attracted to the house by two shots found that Mrs. Schuck had been killed by her husband and that he had turned the revolver on himself. Schuck formerly was a policeman, but recently was dismissed from the service.

From the childish prattle of the tots the police gleaned that a quarrel between the husband and wife preceded the double tragedy.

Bjornson Funeral Held.

Christiania, May 4.—The funeral of the late Bjornsterne Bjornson, the Norwegian poet, who died recently in Paris, was held yesterday with imposing ceremonies. It was attended by the king and queen, the members of the various legations, and many high officials. Great crowds flocked to listen to the addresses, the principal one of which was delivered by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the explorer.

HEARST NEED NOT PAY DAMAGES FOR THE CITY.

New York, May 4.—William R. Hearst won a legal victory over the city of New York in the supreme court yesterday, when Justice Greenbaum dismissed a test case to compel Hearst to pay damages obtained against the municipality for deaths and injuries of persons in the explosion of fireworks near Madison Square Garden in 1902, when Hearst was celebrating his election to congress. The justice held that Hearst had the necessary permit and the city had no right to take such a risk.

Judgments aggregating $1,717,260 have already been obtained against the city and there are many suits yet to be tried. The total damages asked for are nearly $3,000,000.

LOTTIE COLLINS IS DEAD.

Creator of "Ta-Ra-Ra-Boom-de-ay" Passes Away in London.

London, May 4.—Lottie Collins, formerly a well-known music hall artist, died on Sunday of heart disease.

It was the song of "T-ra-ra-boom-de-ay" which won fame and fortune for Miss Collins.

A few days after she first sang the tune in a London music hall in 1892 it had spread all over the city until it was being sung by every one.

Other singers took up the melody and soon it became the most popular ever heard in London.

The tune was not long in crossing the Atlantic and going into every part of the United States, where it carried along the name and fame of Miss Collins.

KENNEY & ANKER,

The Home of Good Clothes for Men and Boys.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The activities at Neighborhood house will be continued during the summer. The work among the young people of the West end has met with a most hearty response, and the boys and girls of the neighborhood are keenly interested in the class and entertainments provided for them. There are two large classes in sewing for the little girls and for the older ones, and during next few months Mrs. Catlin, who has a broad experience in such classes, will be in charge.

There are three boys' clubs at Neighborhood house, in charge of Miss Jean Poirier, and they will continue their work during the summer months. The circulating library and reading room at the house are maintained by the public library. Those interested in the work are invited to visit any of the meetings of the clubs or classes.

HOME WEDDING.

Miss Blackmarr Becomes Bride of W. W. Wells.

At a pretty home wedding this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jessie Blackmarr of Lakeside, her daughter, Miss Mary Jessie Blackmarr, became the bride of William Wadhams Wells of this city. Only the members of the two families were present for the ceremony which was read at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. H. B. Sutherland of the Lakeside Presbyterian church. There were no attendants. The bride wore a pretty frock of soft white silk and wore a long tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses.

Mr. Wells and his bride left on an afternoon train for a wedding trip. After their return they will be at home at 2115 Puleston street.

The out of town guests at the wedding were: Mrs. Myron Stephenson of Mason City, Iowa, who is the house guest of Mrs. Blackmarr and Miss Wells of Saginaw, Mich., who is the guest of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Wells.

BOTH PREACHERS.

Husband in Duluth and Wife at Minneapolis.

While the Rev. S. M. Dick of Minneapolis was preaching at Duluth last Sunday in the pulpit of the First Methodist church his wife was attending to the duties at home and she expounded the doctrine of "The Mission of Pictures" in the home pulpit of the Wesley Methodist church of Minneapolis.

"There are pictures," said Mrs. Dick, "that do a great deal of harm and pictures that do a vast amount of good. High art is not immoral when along lines of morality and purity. There are many pictures that for morality and purity of thought can never be surpassed. Only pictures of the best and purest subject should be selected for the younger generation. Since the middle ages, our beloved Saviour, Jesus Christ, has been the central figure in all the worlds greatest paintings."

SINGS IN PRISON.

Miss Farrar Gives Pleasure to Federal Prisoners.

Atlanta, Ga., May 4.—The gratitude of the more than 800 inmates of the Atlanta federal prison, expressed in vigorous applause and even more eloquently in the tear-dimmed eyes of the men, was the abundant remuneration of Miss Geraldine Farrar, one of America's brilliant operatic singers, who yesterday sang for the prisoners from the stage of their ample, but barren auditorium.

To the strains of "America," played by the prison band, the several hundred convicts marched into the auditorium.

Mayor Maddox made a brief address to the prisoners and presented the singer. Miss Farrar played her own accompaniments and the applause of the men responded to her selections, "Annie Laurie," "Coming Thro the Rye," an operatic selection and a simple ballad. Her audience included men taken from almost every walk of life. Charles W. Morse, the New York banker, was there, but just which of the many hundreds, all clad alike, he was, the pretty star and the few visitors were not informed.

YOUNG MEN AND MAIDENS

By MISS EXPERIENCE.

When They May Marry.

The legal age at which persons may marry in the United States is 21 years for the man and 18 for the woman. In France the man must be at least 18 years of age. In Portugal a boy of 14 is considered marriageable and a woman of 12. In Greece the man must have seen at least 14 summers and the woman 12. In Spain the intended husband have passed his fourteenth year and the woman her twelfth. In Austria a man and a woman are supposed to be capable of conducting a home of their own from the age of 14. In Turkey any youth and maiden who can walk properly and can understand the necessary religious service are allowed to be united for life.

Give Him His Dismissal.

"We have been engaged for six months" writes Ada G., "and lately he seems to have altered. When I say things he twists them and when I object he laughs. It makes me feel I care less for him, and I don't like the tone he has lately taken, and my people would stop the whole thing if they knew certain things that he says." Tell your mother and ask her advice. I don't think he is showing a very nice view of himself at present, and it might be well to consider seriously if you are likely to be happy as his wife. If not, break it off, even if the marriage is so near. Better that than to be unhappy all your life to come, isn't it?

It Might Be Worse.

"My hitherto unchecked experience in love has broken into two periods," David L. writes, "and after the rich, warm summer time of a brand new engagement I have entered upon the cold, cheerless winter of a broken troth." Too bad, David! But clothe yourself in the grateful and comforting overcoat of philosophy until the summer, now opening, brings you a new sweetheart at the seaside or among the mountains. You will find her, never fear. Meanwhile, David, the icy breezes of your poetical winter might have been more penetrating if you had given the girl some expensive presents for which you might still be paying on the installment plan.

Not Difficult to Capture.

A man who poses as a woman hater is the easiest prey for the maidens with matrimonial intentions.

THE RIGHT SIDE AND BRIGHT SIDE

By CARA REESE.

Look on the bright side, it may not be smallpox after all, only a rosy boil making appearances as a cleanser of the system.

And possibly a blind boil at that without inflammation sufficient to bring it to a head and with only a temporary soreness and stiff neck. Look on the bright side as long as there is a rose-colored speck on which to rest the vision. This thing of jumping at conclusions of a deleterious sort is frequently carried too far. Because a fair skin is marred for a time with an unsightly blemish need be no excuse for the desertion and stampede of the household and the affrighted cry of the quarantined. Because a mysterious swelling is suddenly developed on a heretofore comely countenance is no reason why the growth should be instantly labeled malignant and terror take possession. Because the unsavory and unclean have been unearthed and uncovered need not induce fear and frenzy over a certainty of general pollution.

Look on the bright side; it may not be a condition of leprosy, but only a slight eruption due to bad blood in spots. To be sure, there is always something wrong with the general system when inflammation or disease appear. A sanitary living needs to be prescribed and enforced and a proper diet should be ordered and provided; sometimes hospital treatment and the surgeon's knife.

But you make a mistake as an individual when you twist and squirm in strenuous endeavor to see the worst or to think the worst or prophesy the worst about anything whether illness, or conduct, or circumstances. Your mental attitude in determining to believe the worst is a strong factor toward inducing the worst. Never forget that the worst comes soon enough without you encouraging or beckoning or running after it.

And it is wise policy also in the momentous affairs of life to look on the bright side rather than to be a fragment of a general mass which is imperceptibly giving a wrong shove to conditions by fixedly gazing at shadows of blinking at nighthawks. No condition is so serious but that it has a bright side for those who are keen for the bright side. It takes some searching sometimes, and possibly an individual flashlight, to penetrate the gloom or the depression or discouragement. Also there are fool depths where vapors are poisonous where only the safety lanterns may shed its rays.

But never mind, keep your face toward the sunlight even though a mantle of gloom intervenes. Keep your faith in human nature even though there be crime and sins committed which you do not understand. Keep your own life joyous even though the dispensations are apparently hard knocks from beginning to end. Never give credence to the worst as long as a thread of hope remains. With one single resolute countenance turned toward right and the bright side, even a Sodom and Gomorrah might be saved.

WOMAN'S WORKADAY WORLD

By POLLY PAGET.

Show me a lady who does her own housework and in the majority of cases I will show you a happy, healthy woman.

I say in the majority of cases; for if a lady, or any woman, has, for one reason or another, to do her own housework, and does not know how to set about it intelligently and systematically, she will always be an unhappy, bedraggled creature.

But the woman who does not leave her brains in the cupboard when she takes out the broom; as some do, has at her command an exercise which is not only health-giving and invigorating, but a worry and money-saver. Further, are not housemaids, as a class, allowed to be among the prettiest of girls?

Theirs may not be a strict prettiness of feature, but it is the prettiness of fresh skin, brigit eyes and well-developed, supple figure. And yet ladies who would almost give their heads to possess or retain such natural charms fly to foreign baths, wearisome and complicated systems or drill or physical exercises, when within their own homes lies the young and attractive.

By housework I do not mean the very rough forms of such labor, though I myself employ no hired hands, but dusting, ironing, furniture polishing, cooking and washing.

And not only is housework a healthgiver, but it is a worry-saver. How often do you hear a mistress bewailing the misdeeds of her servant—the breakage of some valuable piece of china, the scorching of some treasured lace!

Yet, to my mind, the mistress has small claim to sympathy. A woman should not have valuable things unless she is willing to take the trouble of looking after them herself. I don't say that the mistress will never drop or burn things—for she is as human as her servant, as it will be well for her to discover—but at all events she will know that it is nobody's fault but her own.

Moreover, the servant problem becomes more difficult every day, and it looks as if in the future ladies will have to do their own housework, or certainly a great part of it.

But servants or no servants, I recommend housework to ladies as a means of simplifying the worries of domestic life and as a sure and certain road to health and happiness. "Books, dreams, are each a world," says Wordsworth; and they are that, but there are worlds besides, and our workaday world is one of them and claims its share of us no less than the world of books and the world of dreams.

THE EVENING STORY

THE LOVE THAT REVIVED

(By Geraldine Nelson.)

"Why don't you stay here always?" Dot asked regretfully.

"Because I have to work, little woman," Bob Harvard answered with a sigh.

"Nobody works because he likes to work," Dot stated, from the experience of her eight summers of life. "Why must you work?"

"Because I am not rich," and Rob added more daffy-down-dillies to the bunch he had gathered.

"Who are those flowers for?" the child now inquired.

Bob was startled. Instead of the sweet childish face before him there rose before his mental vision the features of a singularly beautiful girl. They seemed strangely out of place in this simple country scene. There beauty was the beauty of the great city and needed the setting of wondrous hats and frocks.

"Bob!" the child exclaimed, as he delayed replying to her inquiry. "Who are those beautiful flowers for?"

"They are for a lady in New York, Dot."

"Is she pretty?"

"She is the most beautiful woman I ever have seen."

"Do you love her like Prince Goldenlocks did?"

"I don't know, Dot," Bob replied almost without thought. If he had considered the question at all he might not have answered.

"Of course she loves you," Dot suggested.

"No, she doesn't."

Dot looked incredulous. It was impossible that any one should not love Bob.

"Hasn't she got any flowers of her own?" she inquired next.

"Oh, she has beautiful flowers sent to her every day."

"She'll like these better though," said Dot.

"I'm afraid she will laugh at them," was Bob's reply and Dot flared up at once.

"They're my favorite flower," she said indignantly. "And Daddy's and Muriels," she added.

At the mention of the last name another face rose up before him—a sweet winning face that was in harmony with the surroundings. He turned his back suddenly on his little comrade and became deeply interested in the antics of an imaginary beetle.

"I love Muriel almost more than I love anybody," volunteered Dot.

"Yes," replied Bob, absently.

"Don't you?" inquired Dot, cheerfully.

The imaginary beetle became absorbingly interesting. What was Muriel like now, he wondered. He had not seen her for more than three years. By some ill fortune she had been away from the place during each of his visits. What hopes he had felt for the future in those old days? He found himself startled at the trend of his own thoughts.

A great longing to see her once more swept over him. He realized, guiltily, that he had been in the place two whole days, and had not even had the decency to call at her house.

He had moped about pipe in mouth, in the quiet country lanes. He had been sick with jealousy, because men whom he considered fools, received kind treatment from a woman who would have made his life a burden.

He realized this now. And he also realized that the cure for this malady had lain within easy reach all the time, and cursed his blindness in not seeing it before.

Again Dot broke in upon his reveries.

"You will come back to my birthday party, won't you, Bob?" she asked. "It's going to be from seven to half past ten. And all the house is going to be done with flags and lanterns. Muriel is coming to help put them up. Mr. Watson wanted to come and help, too, but I don't like him. Mother said he only wanted to come because Muriel is coming."

Bob experienced a feeling of extreme dislike toward the unknown Mr. Watson. Three years is a long time. Why should she have remained fond of him? For the last year he had hardly ever written to her, whereas Mr. Watson, being doubtless a sensible fellow—"

He again cursed himself inwardly.

"Are they great friends, then?" he inquired casually.

"He is," replied Dot.

"And Muriel; doesn't she like him?"

"I expect she does. He gives her chocolates."

"Oh!"

"And he writes letters to her when he's away. One came when I was there the other day, and she tore it up. I asked her why she didn't put it away in a drawer like she does yours, and—"

"Look here, Dot, you mustn't tell me all this."

"Dot, are you there?"

Sweet as the voice was it startled Bob and his little friend. A girl was coming down the winding path between the trees. She had appeared from behind a massive rhododendron bush, with startling suddenness. Her white dress outlined against the dark green leaves, showed off her graceful rounded figure. She wore no hat, and the light summer breeze had touched her hair more deftly than a prince of coiffures could have done.

"Muriel!" cried Dot, as she rushed toward her friend. The girl seemed scarcely to notice her, though her hand fell gently on to the small shoulder. She was gazing earnestly at Bob. Suddenly her face broke into a smile and she advanced holding out her hand.

"Mr. Harvard!"

"Why?" protested Bob, keeping her hand in his a full second longer than even the demands of old friendship necessitated.

"I—I didn't know—if—" she began.

"I do," said Bob. Whereat they both blushed.

"So you have been gathering flowers," the girl remarked, recovering herself.

Before he could reply, Dot broke in.

"They're for somebody very, very beautiful, and she lives in New York, and he doesn't love her and she doesn't love him," she poured out in one long sentence. As she was drawing in a deep breath, with a view to a second statement, Bob stopped to pick up the flowers.

"They are for someone very, very beautiful, and she doesn't live in New York and I do love her and—I hope she loves me," he said.

"That isn't what you said:" exclaimed Dot, in extreme indignation.

"It is what I say now." he replied gravely, as he held them out to Muriel. "I know that they aren't of much value to you—as you have so many of them round here—but—but, if you would take them—"

He was looking deep down into her eyes as she spoke, and it is only when eyes wish to be deeply looked into that their real depths can ever show.

"Oh, they are lovely!" she cried, taking the great bunch in both her hands. "Of course I'll accept them."

She turned away and buried her face amid the gleaming yellow petals.

Dot, meanwhile, had discovered that a steadily reproachful glance is a quite useless thing when the person at whom it is directed is obviously paying no attention.

"You said," she began severely, "that she lived in New York, and you said —"

"That was hundreds of years ago," interrupted Bob cheerfully.

Muriel's eyes twinkled as she lifted her head from the flowers and turned to face him.

"A little bird told me that there was a certain Miss Fortescue up there," she said.

"A little bird told me that there is a certain Mr. Watson here," he replied.

"How absurd!" she laughed.

"I'll tell you what," he suggested "We'll strike a bargain."

"I'll forgive you about Mr. Watson if you forgive me about Miss Fortescue."

"I don't expect there's much to forgive on either side," said she.

And just at this point a little fairy whispered in Dot's ear that it was her bounden and immediate duty to chase the speckled hen off the flower beds. So she went.

TRY THIS DINNER

Dried Split Pea Soup.

This is a very nourishing dish; 1 pint of dried peas, 2 onions, 1 turnip, 1 carrot, some outside leaves of celery, 1 teaspoon of salt, ½ teaspoon pepper. Soak the peas for twelve hours, then put them on to boil in two quarts of cold water. Wash and cut up the vegetables, and when the water boils add them to the peas, also the salt and pepper; if desired, and let boil slowly for three hours. Stir often. After that time pour through a sieve, rub all through that is possible and put back into the saucepan to get quite hot. Serve with crisp toast cut into dices.

Meat—Hashed Duck.

One can of duck, 2 cupfuls of stock, 1 tablespoonful of dripping or butter, 1 small onion, 1 tablespoonful of flour, salt and pepper, a few drops of lemon juice, 1 slice of toasted bread.

Cut the onion very small and fry it in the hot dripping; put in the duck cut into meat pieces, season with salt and pepper; let them brown, then add the flour, pour in the stock gradually, and let all simmer gently for about half an hour.

Take out the pieces of duck, dish on a hot dish, moisten the sauce with a little more stock or water if too thick, let it boil up, add a squeeze of lemon juice and strain over the duck. Cut the toasted bread into small pieces, put round the dish and serve.

Vegetables—Parsnip Balls.

Mash cold boiled parsnips, season and roll into tiny balls. Dip in egg and crumbs, fry delicately brown in deep fat.

Dessert—Imperial Cream.

Make a good lemon jelly, and in half put enough cranberry juice to color. Harden it in a shallow pan. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff and whip in the uncolored half of the lemon jelly. When nearly stiff enough to drop stir in small squares of the pink jelly. Mold and when ready to serve turn out on a dish and garnish the base and top with macaroons soaked in wine. Pour a rich boiled custard round the mold.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To Wash Long Chamois Gloves.

Make a lather of lukewarm water and good white soap. Add one-half teaspoonful of borax to the water. Wash the gloves, squeezing and patting gently until the dirt is out. Do not wring or squeeze hard. Rinse in more lukewarm water, and lay on a thick towel, until most of the water is absorbed. Then hang up to dry, and when almost dry, pull and stretch gently into shape and rub between the hands.

Lasting Stove Polish.

To make lasting and lustrous stove polish, shave the polish fine all at one time, and add turpentine to the consistency of thick cream. You will always have it ready and it will last three times as long and be much more lustrous than if water be used.

• • •

Safety Pins as Eyes.

After sewing the hooks on the placket of a skirt, fasten tiny safety pins on the opposite side, underneath. These form capital eyes, do not tear out the material and are much easier to get in the right place than are the eyes that have to be sewed on.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

PROBLEM IS VEXING ONE

Systems for Caring for Poor in Different Counties Being Considered.

Whether to Observe County or Township Plan Not Fully Determined.

Marshall, Minn., May 4.—State authorities having condemned the Lyon county poorhouse, the county commissioners are considering the advisability of continuing the present plant or adopting the township system of caring for dependent poor. Upon investigation in thirty-seven counties, they find that sixteen are following the township and twenty-one the county plan.

The law allows the commissioners to raise money for the building in two ways: They may submit the question to the people for a vote on the issue of bonds for the purpose, or they may create a sinking fund. In either case the money comes from the taxes.

Several years ago the Lyon county board created a poor sinking fund which has now accumulated means to erect a $15,000 building.

Question Building Fine Home.

Last year $1,421 were expended for the poor at the farm, while outside the farm the poor were helped to the extent of $3,223. The farm consists of 160 acres and is valued at $10,000. Some think it would be unreasonable to put up a $15,000 building, thus making a better home for the paupers than many of the farmers and taxpayers possess. There are, at the present time but two inmates at the farm, both of whom are able to do some work.

In surrounding counties it was found that the care of the poor is an important factor in the business of the commissioners. Several of the counties think it is more economical to let each village and township care for its own dependent poor, the county caring for only the transient poor.

Brown county has a $25,000 poorhouse and many of the taxpayers maintain that it would be vastly cheaper to boardits paupers at a hotel than to maintain such an institution. The expense of running the place is said to be $8.40 a week for each inmate.

SANDSTONE PLANS ON ENTERTAINING

State President Hendrix of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Sandstone, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A reception will be tendered Miss Rozette Hendrix, state president of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, at the Good Templars' hall next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Special music will be furnished for the occasion.

On Sunday evening union services will be held in the town hall at which Miss Hendrix will deliver a lecture. A good musical program has been arranged and a large attendance is anticipated.

To Give Temperance Bouquet.

A banquet will be given Friday evening, May 13, at Larson Bros.' opera house under the auspices of the civic and temperance societies of Sandstone. E. E. Loebeck will be present to address the gathering, and a number of local speakers will also deliver some short speeches. Good music and singing has been provided for.

Rev. Hans Hilley, who has been in charge of the M. E. church here, has tendered his resignation.

The date of the high school play, "Farm Folks," has been postponed one week and will be presented by the seniors on Friday evening, May 20. Commencement exercises will be held June 3 at Larson Bros.' opera house.

The Banning Tigers defeated the Groningen Gophers at baseball at Groningen last Sunday by a score of 18 to 16. Batteries: Groningen—Roth and Linquist; Banning—Misgen and Smith.

NORBERT SERO PAYS BIG FINE

Former Assistant Indian Farmer Settles Sensational Case.

Ashland, Wis., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Former Assistant Farmer Norbert Sero of the Bad River reservation, entered a plea of nole contendere, before Judge Parish at Washburn on Monday, and paid a fine and costs of $485 on a statutory charge preferred by two Indian women of Odanah.

This is the outcome of a sensational case in which Sero and Special Agent Brents of Oklahoma figured a year ago. Special Agent Johnson, who has recently raided a great many places in Northern Minnesota, was raiding places on the Bad River reservation, assisted by Sero and Brents. A trap was laid for Sero and Brents, they claim, and they were caught in a roadhouse with two squaws. Sero was convicted by a jury, but succeeded in getting the verdict set aside. Brents subsequently entered a plea of nole contendere and was fined $200 and costs, and Sero finally did the same. As a sort of side issue, several Indians were forcibly removed from the reservation, and one of them was arrested for going back without permission, but was acquitted at La Crosse.

Then came the senatorial investigation, in which Senators Clapp and La Follette, Paige of Vermont and Brown of Nebraska figured. Sero was a fearless officer on the reservation, but was mixed up in feuds, which impaired his usefulness. He started a divorce case against his wife, in which he finally lost out, but is still in the government service, as is Brents.

A Bright Shine for Nickel Plate.

Nickel faucets and bathroom fixtures are ornamental so long as they are kept bright. The trouble is to keep them bright. There are many substances on the market which profess to keep plated ware in bright, shiny condition, but most of them are to be avoided as they contain harsh, gritty substances which scratch the nickel and silver plate. Warm suds of Gold Dust washing powder and water will, however, clean these fixtures thoroughly and safely. If they are dim, rub a little of the Gold Dust directly on the surface, rinse and rub dry with a piece of soft linen or flannel. Nickel lightly washed each week in Gold Dust and water, and wiped with a soft cloth, will never get dull or need hard rubbing, but will be easy to keep bright and clean as a piece of glass.

FRENCH CLUB ELECTION.

Joseph Oullette of Calumet Chosen President.

Hancock, Mich., May 4.—At the election of the United Societies of the French Naturalization Clubs of the Copper Country held at Hubbel Sunday officers were elected as follows: President, Joseph Oullette, Calumet; vice president, C. O. Olivier, Hancock; secretary, C. E. Rouleau, Hancock; assistant secretary, Ernest Tnibault, Dollar Bay; corresponding secretary, Leon d'Aoust, Hubbell; treasurer, George Vallier, Hubbell; honorary president, F. O. Mayotte, Hancock. Calumet will entertain the next annual session of the socities in May, 1911.

GOING IN FINE STYLE.

Elks of Upper Peninsula to Have Special to Detroit.

Hancock, Mich., May 4.—The Elks of the upper peninsula who attend the grand lodge of the order in June will go in a special train, according to arrangements made at a meeting of representatives of the several lodges on Sunday.

It was decided that all the upper peninsula lodges should go to Detroit in a body, wearing miners' uniforms—all except the boots. James S. Maney of Duluth, assistant general passenger agent of the South Shore road, was present and submitted various routes to Detroit. The ones favored at the meeting were combined rail and boat routes. The one selected is via the South Shore railroad to St. Ignace and D. C. boat to Detroit.

A special train will leave Calumet at 7:30 a. m. on Saturday morning, July 9, leaving Hancock at 8:30. A stop of three-quarters of an hour at Marquette for rest and dinner will be made.

No special arrangements will be made for accommodations at Detroit, the matter being left to each lodge. Hancock to Detroit will be $14.50.

POWERFUL FIRE PUMP

Purchased in Duluth Being Installed in Marquette Prison.

Marquette, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas Kane, the engineer at the Marquette prison, is engaged in the installing of a powerful fire pump, recently purchased from the Marshall-Wells Hardware company at Duluth. It is being placed in the Carp river flats, below and but a short distance from the prison, on a concrete foundation.

It will enable the throwing of several powerful streams of water to fight fire, within a few seconds after an alarm is turned in, and will give the prison fairly good fire protection, a thing it has lacked ever since the institution was opened. The pump now in use is of small capacity and does not throw enough water to count against a fire.

MARINETTE BOYS TAKE MENOMINEE MAN'S AUTO.

Marinette, Wis., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Myron Sperry and Vincent Colborn, youngsters belonging to prominent local families, were ordered to pay a fine of $25 or spend fifteen days in the workhouse, by Judge Everett, in the police court. The lads were convicted of taking the automobile of C. M. Dalrymple, salesmanager of the Lloyd Manufacturing company, Menominee, from in front of the Colonial hall, where he was attending a ball given under the auspices of the Marinette club.

SANDSTONE FINNISH CHURCH HAS ELECTION.

Sandstone, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Finnish Evangelical Lutheran congregation at their meeting in the Norwegian Lutheran church Saturday elected the following officers: Andrew Wahtola, president; John Harris, treasurer; Isaac Rivers, secretary; John Pistena, Hiskias Knitunen and Arvid Mattson, trustees. The present pastor, Rev. Adolf Rueppa, was retained in the pastorate. It was also decided to hold Sunday school for three months at least, to begin at the close of the public schools in June.

BLACK HAND SUSPECTED OF HURLEY, WIS., MURDER.

Hurley, Wis., May 4.—An Italian shoemaker, known as Frank John Cummin, was shot and killed in his shop here Monday afternoon. It is thought that the murder was committed by a member of the Black Hand. There have been no arrests.

FARGO SONS OF NORWAY TO HONOR LATE POET.

Fargo, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Sons of Norway, in conjunction with the Fargo Commercial club, Monday, cabled Herbert H. D. Pierce, United States minister at Christiania, requesting that he, in company with Theodore Roosevelt, place a wreath on the grave of the late Bjornstjerne Bjornson. Money for the purpose has been forwarded.

Anoka, Minn., May 4. — Dr. Fred Ghostley of International Falls died here Monday at the home of his mother. His wife is a practicing physician and they were conducting a hospital in the Northern Minnesota city when he was stricken. He was a native of Hennepin county and was educated at Valparaso, Ind., and at the Hamline medical college.

TREMENDOUS SALE OF MONTANA STATE LANDS.

Lewistown, Mont., May 4.—The receipts from the sale of state lands, just concluded here, exceeded by more than $200,000 the largest estimates.

The total was $1,204,050 for 47,500 acres, making an average of $25.45 per acre. It was the most important sale ever held in Montana and probably in any Northwestern state. The high figure reached on one tract, $64 per acre, is a record; as is the average price.

MINNESOTAN FIRST MAN TO DRAW CLAIM.

Kalispell, Mont., May 4.—Patrick Quigley of Rosemount, Minn., was the first man to draw a claim on the Flathead Indian reservation at the opening here Monday. His name was third, but owing to the absence of one and two, he had first choice and selected a quarter section near the government town of Big Arm, on the long bay that runs west of Wild Horse island. The first half dozen locations were in the same vicinity.

TWO WOMEN ACCUSED

Of Robbing a Man in East Grand Forks Saloon.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because, it is charged, she "relieved" John McDonald of $50 in a local saloon, June Johnson, a negress, and Florence Johnson, her companion, are in trouble. June Johnson was arraigned in municipal court yesterday afternoon, but Florence is not yet under arrest. The affair is said to have occurred Monday evening.

BENSON COUNTY GOING AFTER BETTER HIGHWAYS.

Minnewaukan, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Believing that Benson county automobile owners are particularly anxious that the roads of the county be permanently improved, the local Commercial club will call a convention to be held here to discuss the situation. Farmers will also be invited and some general plan of action adopted. For the last two or three years some action of this kind has been under consideration.

LUMBER COMPANY SUED IN MENOMINEE CIRCUIT COURT.

Menominee, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The circuit court convened yesterday, Judge Richard C. Flannigan presiding. The first case called was the Estate of Henry Beaulier vs. The Crawford Cedar & Lumber Company. Beaulier was killed while endeavoring to assist a driver for the Crawford company out of the deep snow in which he was having trouble with his logs. The logs rolled from the sleigh crushing the young man to death.

MURDERED FOR $5.

Aberdeen, S. D., May 4.—In a quarrel over $5 claimed to be due him for wages, a farm hand known as "Red" shot and fatally wounded Dick Mock, a prominent farmer at Forbes, N. D. The farm hand surrendered to the police.

Helping Grand Forks Enumerators.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the population of Grand Forks has been increased fully 1,000 persons through the activity of the Commercial club in assisting to secure a correct enumeration is contended by officials of that organization. In one ward the club found such conditions as to warrant a complete recount, which is now in progress.

Franchise Case Continued.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The case involving the franchise granted to the Tri-State Telephone company was set for next Monday afternoon. It was scheduled to come on for a hearing yesterday but as neither side was ready yet for the fight the continuance was granted by Judge Watts of the district court at Crookston.

Woman Gets Wrong Bottle.

Sauk Rapids, Minn., May 4.—Mrs. Harry Grimmer is recovering from taking chloroform by mistake a few nights ago. She intended to take some medicine for neuralgia but got hold of the chloroform bottle and swallowed a large dose. A physician was summoned and saved her life.

Ashland Ore Shipments.

Ashland, Wis., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ore shipments from the port of Ashland for April were 218,000 tons.

Madison Minister in Demand.

Madison, iWs., May 4.—Rev. F. A. Gilmore, pastor of the First Unitarian church of Madison, has received two calls and it is said to be possible that his successful pastorate of ten years will soon be terminated. One of the calls comes from Boise, Idaho. Mr. Gilmore is now in that Western city. The other call comes from the Unitarian church of Allegheney, Pa.

Menominee's Treasurer Busy.

Menominee, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday County Treasurer William A. Pen Gilly collected $41,110 for liquor licenses, the total amount for the city and county saloon licenses for the ensuing year.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Royalton—Mrs. Wilson, one of the pioneer settlers of Royalton passed away Saturday evening, death resulting from dropsy. She was the mother of George Wilson. The funeral was held in Royalton Monday morning.

Moorhead—The fire department was called to Norman Young's New Midway Sunday night, to extinguish a blaze in the basement of the building which had broken out in a pile of boxes, on the rear floor. Good work on the part of the firemen kept the fire confined to the place where it originated, although at times it was a little stubborn.

Breckenridge—The Rev. C. B. Elliott, pastor of the Baptist church has resigned and will go to Portland, Or., to take charge there. Before going West he will attend the Baptist Northern convention at Chicago this week.

Fertile—The remains of Mrs. G. A. Kyllander were shipped here from Crookston and laid to rest Tuesday. She died at Bethesda hospital, Crookston, Friday afternoon. She was 26 years of age and leaves a husband, who, with her mother, Mrs. Julson of Fertile, and her sister, were present when the end came.

Crookston — Saturday afternoon James Hays entered a plea of guilty before Judge Watts to stealing an overcoat from the barn of Smith & Sinclair at East Grand Forks a short time ago, and was sentenced to six months in Stillwater. Deputy Sheriff Kelly taking him down Sunday evening.

Winona—Bishop Edsall of St. Paul paid his annual visit to St. Paul's parish Sunday. The main interest of the call centered in the confirmation services, which were held in the morning at St. Paul's church. A class of twenty-eight, fourteen adults, were confirmed.

Rochester—An enthusiastic meeting of the Ministerial association was held Monday. At the request of the ministers, Mayor Thompson was present and conferred with them as to ways and means for the betterment of moral conditions in and about the city.

Winona—Fishing on Lake Winona has begun and the prospects are that many thousand fish will be taken out of the lake the coming summer.

Red Wing—William Boothroyd, aged 77, one of the early settlers of Red Wing having come here in 1855, died at 2 o'clock Sunday morning at St. John's hospital.

Little Falls—Paul Lemanzik, a Broadway saloon keeper, who was arrested last week for selling liquor to a minor, was tried before Justice Gerritz, Monday. Lemanzik pleaded guilty to the charge, which was made by Frank Zurawski, who claimed that the defendant had sold liquor to his 19-year-old son Stanislaus. Lemanzik was fined $25 and costs.

Fergus Falls—J. W. Mason has resigned his position as attorney for the Great Northern Railway company, the resignation taking effect May 1. Mr. Mason's resignation will give him more time to attend to this practice and incidentally to carry on his campaign for judge of the district court.

St. Cloud—A. H. Turrettin and others, including some St. Cloud men, have made application for the reservation of the title "East Side State Bank of St. Cloud." Those interested in the proposed bank have not yet perfected their plans but it is quite probable that the bank will be opened in the near future. Mr. Turrettin is cashier of the Benton County State bank at Sauk Rapids.

Mankato—The remains of Fred Braggon were brought back from New Westminster, B. C., by the sister Sunday. They were taken to the undertaking rooms of Landkamer Bros. & Davidson, and funeral services were held there at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, the interment was made at Minneopa cemetery.

Winona—Conductor Bennet of the Milwaukee road was arraigned in the municipal court Monday morning, charged with having blocked the South side crossings. He was found guilty and fined $10. It is understood the officials will take drastic action to make the railways live up to the city ordinance in regard to blocking street crossings.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

There were 150 fish, running from the minimum legal length to a pound or more. They were taken on the Slapneck creek by O. M. McLaughlin, John Little and G. Paulin and most of them were caught Sunday.

Negaunee—Fred Chapman, a well-known Negaunee boy, who has been at Butte, Mont., for some few years past, and who recently returned to this city, was married Saturday at Marquette to Miss Jennie Northey of Negaunee. The wedding was a surprise to the friends of the bride and groom in this city.

THE VALUE OF PROPRIETARY MEDICINES

Is proven by the very large percentage of physicians' prescriptions for same remedies found in every drug store in America, but as they are written in Latin, few patients realize this fact.

The old standard proprietary medicines like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that have stood the test of time, deserve a place in every family medicine chest, and it is most certain they would not be prescribed by physicians if they were able to devise a formula equally as efficacious.

LADIES, ATTENTION!

Several weeks ago, we gave you an opportunity through your home dealers to test one of our 50c Toilet Preparations, at the small cost to you of 10c; not because it was not worth more, but because we wanted you to know for yourself, the QUALITY of our TOILET PREPARATIONS. YOU KNOW that we would not have dared to have made this offer if our Toilet Preparations were not the ACME of PERFECTION. You were pleased with the results; you could not have been otherwise.

We Want You to Know More About Our Other Preparations

If your mirror reflects a complexion that is sallow, lifeless or muddy—a skin that is rough, coarse-pored, or marred by wrinkles, fine lines or blemishes, follow our special instructions, JUST ONCE, and you will be delighted with the results.

Cleanse the face and neck thoroughly with the E. BURNHAM CUCUMBER and ELDERFLOWER CREAM. Use a soft cloth, carefully removing any excess cream; then apply a little of the E. BURNHAM KALOS-OZONE MASSAGE CREME, massaging with the balls of the fingers, until the cream disappears. Then apply just a speck of the E. BURNHAM ROUGE, spreading it evenly over the cheeks. (If the skin is rough, omit the powder.) Be careful to give the neck the same treatment that you powder, do the face. Pass both hands lightly over the entire face and neck, so as to remove any stray particle of powder remaining. The results will be AMAZING. This treatment will protect the complexion from the ill-effects of exposure to the sun and the winds. DON'T DELAY this treatment. "Procrastination is the thief of time."

Our booklet, "HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL," contains a list of our line of Toilet Requisites. Ask your dealer for one.

These preparations are for sale at all first-class dealers. If your dealer cannot supply you, we will send direct upon receipt of price. Dept. C-53.

ARE YOU COUNTED?

Have the census enumerators counted you or those who live with you?

It would be a miracle if they had reached everybody; it is a certainty that they have missed some.

If you are among the missing, or if you know anybody else that is, make it your duty to report it at once. The count must close tomorrow night, and those who are not counted by that time will not be counted. The census of Duluth will be that much short.

It is highly important to Duluth and to every citizen of Duluth that the count shall be complete. If many are missed, this city will not take its proper position among the cities with which it is competing. In almost all of these cities extraordinary efforts have been made by the citizens to see that the count is complete. In some of them, it may be, the returns will be padded. Duluth wants no padding, but it does want a complete enumeration; and that is impossible unless every person who believes that he has been overlooked takes the trouble to see that he gets counted.

For your city's sake, and for your own sake as a citizen, see that you and your neighbors are counted.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S CHILD.

When President Taft gets back from his latest biweekly tour and stands face to face with the mutilated form of the administration's railroad bill, he will realize that it is a wise father that knows his own child.

Both houses are actively engaged in altering the bill beyond recognition; and, thanks to the insurgents and Democrats, every change is for the better.

One detail furnishes an illuminating parallel between the motives of the administration and the standpatters, and those of the insurgents in both parties.

The administration wanted to let railroads make traffic agreements freely, without regard to the anti-trust law. The insurgents and Democrats of the senate were willing, providing the interstate commerce commission, acting for the people, was given a chance to pass upon these agreements. But rather than let it go that way the administration standpatters have consented to kill the provision altogether. According to their view, the railroads must be allowed to make any agreements they please, without interference, or the matter must stand as it is. Theirs is the railroad view; the view of the allies is the people's view.

GERMANY AND HER WORKING PEOPLE.

Frederic C. Howe contributes to the Outlook a review of Germany's dealings with her workers which shows in a new light the breadth and depth of the characteristic German thrift.

It was like Germany to see that in its workers it has a force worth conserving and protecting. The workers there are not considered solely as a means of exploitation for the benefit of the few, though not even in Germany has the worker yet achieved his rightful share of the products of his toil. But Germany has gone farther than most nations in conserving labor's interests, and it has done many things that in this country exist only in the dreams of "reformers" who get little but ridicule for their pains.

Prof. Howe quotes the imperial minister as having said in the Reichstag three years ago: "If Germany has experienced a vast industrial expansion equaled by no country in the world during the same time, it is chiefly due to the efficiency of its workers. But this efficiency must inevitably have suffered had we not secured to our working classes, by the social legislation of recent years, a tolerable standard of life, and had we not, as far as was possible, guaranteed their physical health."

This "social legislation," be it remembered, is the type of legislation which has least courtesy in the law-making bodies of this country, because they have been so busy making laws for the benefit of large interests that they have had no time to do anything for the largest interest of all, the interest of the working classes.

Says Mr. Howe: "Germany is not burdened with the economic philosophy which America inherited from England. Germany does not look upon the state as an unmixed evil. She does not believe in unlicensed individualism; she does not permit the struggle for existence to weed out the so-called weak and incompetent. Germany recognizes that modern industry has made those who labor dependent upon other causes than their own thrift or willingness to work; they are not incompetent or unfit because they have no job. The aid of government has been extended to the worker as well as to the land-owner, who is protected from American wheat; to the manufacturer, who is shielded from competition; and to the ship-owner, who is subsidized from the nation's treasury. To some extent, and to a remarkable extent in comparison with other countries, Germany has extended the strong arm of the state to the relief of the weak as well as to the support of the strong. The average German is probably no more humane than the average American. But he is certainly far more humane in the legislation which has been adopted in recent years. He is also far wiser. And he has no written Constitution through which Privilege can drive a four-horse team with ease but which closes fast around any attempt to use the powers of government for the protection of the many."

This is why Germany has compulsory education, compulsory physical examination of public school pupils, compulsory exercise in schools, industrial education, free textbooks and free breakfasts. This is why Germany, while not yet recognizing the worker's inherent right to a job, takes legal steps to see that he has a job, and protects him with insurance against accident, sickness and old age.

This is a sharp and merciless contrast with the system in force in this country, where every effort of government has been directed to the making of great individual fortunes, regardless of the welfare of the masses, because until recently everybody indulged the hope that one of those great fortunes might come to him. With the closing of all doors of opportunity, a new temper and a new viewpoint is becoming evident among the people of this country—hence the discontent, unrest and political upheaval that characterize the times.

"THE BEST TARIFF BILL EVER PASSED."

The Republican national platform of 1908 promised tariff revision. It is true that the platform did not explicitly state that this revision would be downward; but the promise was a response to a widespread demand from the people to be relieved from the oppressions of high prices bred by too high tariff taxes.

During the campaign William Howard Taft, running for the presidency on that platform, emphatically construed the party promise to mean revision downward, and he added that the party would be held responsible by the people for its failure to keep that promise.

During the extra session in which the tariff was revised—not downward, in the interests of the people, but upward, in the interests of a greedy and powerful few—the president stated that he did not know much about the tariff, and instead of demanding that the right kind of revision be made, he took the stand that the president ought not to interfere in legislation, and played golf. Nevertheless, he could and did interfere in legislation to prevent the passage of an income tax law, and now he is interfering in legislation to procure the passage of his administration measures, and to prevent their amendment by men who stand for the people.

After the bill was passed the president pronounced it the best tariff law ever passed by the Republican party, and to support his view he used figures prepared for him by Payne, Aldrich and other supporters of a tariff in the interest of the "interests."

What is the result of it all?

The people have not been convinced by the president that the Aldrich-Payne-Taft law is a good measure, that it is an honest response to their demand for relief or that it is an honest compliance with the party promise. If anything has been effected, it is a popular conviction that the sort of tariff law now approved by President Taft is the best that ever can be hoped for from the Republican party.

Since the tariff law was passed, five members of congress have died. Five men have been elected in their places. In each of these elections the tariff was an issue; in most of them it was the main issue. In not a single instance has a Republican been elected to fill a vacancy. In not a single instance has a man been elected who approved the Aldrich-Payne-Taft tariff law, or who failed to rebuke it and the system that gave it being.

Two of these five elections were in Virginia and Georgia, where the election of Democrats was certain. One was in Missouri, where the Republicans nominated a standpatter because the district was close and they thought they could bluff it through. In that district a Democrat was elected by the largest majority in years. The other two were in New York and Massachusetts, and in each the Republicans nominated a standpatter who was defeated by men running on the Democratic ticket, though obviously they were voted for with entire disregard of partisan considerations. In each of these latter two cases old-time Republican majorities so large that they seemed unreversible were turned into overwhelming Democratic pluralities.

On the whole, doesn't it seem that that "best tariff bill ever passed" and the party that created it are having rather hard sledding?

SQUEEZING OUT THE WATER.

What a splendid thing for the consumer it would be if the stock market would stay where it is now! One of the main reasons why the consumer has hard sledding is because, on every hand, he is compelled to pay for dividends on stocks that are excessively watered. If the water were squeezed out, and dividends required only on actual values, the consumer's obligation to those in control of industry would be very much lightened.

So far this year the stock markets have been busily engaged in squeezing out the water. There can't be much left; and if dividends were based on present quotations instead of normal values, the consumer would have his burden lessened very much indeed.

But it is to be feared that the present condition cannot last. Stock exchange quotations have little relation with values. They are the results of professional manipulation. Now, the public must be pretty well scared out of the market. It has dumped most of its holdings at a loss, and the big fellows have absorbed them. Pretty soon, that side of the deal being complete, the big fellows will begin to push prices up again. When they get pretty nearly to the top the public will be encouraged and will dash madly in and buy back its holdings at prices representing a fat profit to the manipulators, who will then start squeezing the water out again.

What a fine thing for the consumer it would be if he could catch the stock market, some time, at about its present level, and use that level as a basis for readjustment of dividend requirements!

THE HOUSE FLY.

Even though the unusually early spring has been touched with frost in spots, the house fly is beginning to make its busy, cheerful appearance in the home, so it is time to begin the annual campaign against this prevailing nuisance. The house fly, for all his innocent looks, is a dangerous factor. Most impolitely, he comes to the home fresh from the nearest place of filth, bringing uncleanness and the germs of disease on his hoofs. Nothing delights him more than to wipe his unclean feet on the dainty things to eat that furnish forth the family table.

Besides the obvious device of screens, the best way to attack the fly nuisance is with cleanliness. Flies breed in foulness, and if there is no foulness there will be no flies. If this or any other city ever achieves the perfectly clean community, the day of the fly will be over.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

WHO IS PAYING THE EXPENSES?

To the Editor of The Herald:

Who are the private interests paying the expenses of E. M. Morgan, former assistant city attorney, who was appointed by the council Monday night to act as special assistant in investigating the dock and terminal question? I believe that the people of Duluth have a right to know, as they are the ones most vitally interested. If any particular interests wished to post themselves on the matter I see no reason why they could not have retained Mr. Morgan privately without having recourse to appointment by the city council. If a public organization is furnishing his compensation, why should it hide its light under a basket? Probably there is some good answer to these questions, but I believe the best and most satisfactory would be an open, above-board announcement telling who is paying Mr. Morgan.

DELAYS AT THE BRIDGE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

What is going to be done about the delays at the Interstate bridge. In this day when things are supposed to move quickly, it is not pleasant to sit in a street car for thirty fat minutes as was the case last night and wait until the man employed for that purpose is good and ready to turn the bridge. Last night they began to swing the bridge when a boat whistled somewhere near the center of the harbor. More than thirty minutes passed before the boat was finally through. The tired and hungry passengers grumbled, of course, as most folks would, but there was very little satisfaction. I have heard lots of traveling men say: "I had worked Superior and was tired. I wanted to come over to spend the night in Duluth but I dreaded the delays of making the trip and so I stayed in Superior all night." That is just the point. Not only are the residents of the two cities being held up but Duluth business houses and hotels are not getting the business they would if the action was quicker at the bridge. Some time after 1 o'clock they swing the bridge open. After that it is impossible to get across. Of course all good people should be in bed by that time and that no doubt is the way the officials figure. The other night it happened that I was across the bay and something happened to the machine in which I was riding. We finally got it fixed but when we got to the bridge we found it drawn. The watchman on the pier shot all the cartridges in his revolver but the bridge tender either was deep in the hay, or he didn't care to hear. These delays are numerous and many times there is little excuse for them. Is there not something we can do to make the delays less numerous?

Will They Get Wise?

Emporia Gazette: Another Democrat has been elected to congress from a Republican district, this time in New York. Local influences had some bearing upon the result of the election, but the chief cause of the Republican defeat was the dissatisfaction of the voters with regard to the tariff bill.

Those statesmen and patriots who insist, with frantic vehemence, that the Payne tariff law is the best and wisest and noblest and most benevolent thing that ever happened in this country, and who denounce as traitors to the party those Republicans who criticise it, may get wise to the real state of public opinion after a while.

The tariff law is being eulogized by members of the cabinet, by senatorial spell-binders, by the president himself; it is described as the greatest revenue producer ever devised, and, while producing wonderful revenues, it goes right ahead relieving the burdens of the people. It is nothing short of a phenomenon, that tariff law, and yet the people are not satisfied with it. The spell-binders go before the people, and show changes made in this schedule, and revisions made in that schedule, and improvements made in t'other schedule, and the people shake their heads and are not convinced. They haven't time to follow up all the entanglements of the tariff law. They have their own idea of what honesty is, and that is their opinion that the Republican party gold-bricked the country when it worked off the Payne law as a "best as good" substitute for the downward revision that was faithfully promised.

All the fine speeches in the world won't convince the people that the substitute is just as good as the article that was promised. They are showing their disgust and resentment at the polls, every time they get a chance.

And still the spell-binders, blind to the signs of the times, and the temper of the people, are talking the same old tommyrot. Will they ever get wise?

Then prices must be raised as high as possible, in order to pay much dividends as possible. MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Tired of Self-Appointed Tyrants.

Cambridge Independent Press: The rule or ruin policy of Cannon, Aldrich and their kind, will soon have to give way to the more progressive wing of the Republican party or the people will turn the management of the government over to the Democrats. Albert Lea Standard: Public sentiment, the newspapers and magazines, the Democrats and progressive Republicans, are what have awakened the conscience of the people and are driving some of the stoolpigeons of plutocracy from power, but the patriotic task has only begun. Aldrichism, Cannonism, Taftism and the System for which they stand, are yet intrenched and relentlessly riot in the enormous spoils of the tariff and special privileges, and it will require the best of wisdom, persistence and patriotism of the free men of all political parties to reform the government and restore it to the people, to justice and to more equal rights for all.

A Subterfuge for Delay.

Elk River Star-News: The proposed tariff commission is all right in a way, but it will not provide a revision of the tariff for at least ten years. The people suffering under the present tariff law want relief right away.

Tawney.

Ada Herald: The Republicans of Minnesota are going to concentrate all their forces in the congressional fight in the First district this year and all the efforts of the party will be put forth to return Jim Tawney to congress. Tawney is the only Minnesota congressman who voted with the standpatters on the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill and the Republicans are apparently willing to sacrifice every office from governor down to secure his re-election. How do the rank and file of the party like it? Are they going to put their stamp of approval on such a move?

The Call of the Trees.

Dream-voices of the twilight
Upon the drifting breeze,
Across the years there follows
The whisper of the trees;
The ripples of the maples
Where memory entwines—
The dream-song of the cedars—
The murmer of the pines.

The clamor of the fray,
I hear them calling, calling
From far, and far away;
The call of little voices
That whisper soft and low
On lost winds of the twilight
From long and long ago.

They whisper of a springtime
When life was still a dream
Of love in youth's sweet morning
By vale and singing stream;
Of orchard, lane and meadow
Two dreamers used to know
Through tangled bed and blossom—
The drift of April snow.

They speak of vanished seasons
Before the world grew old—
Before the heart grew heavy
Within the toiling fold;
Before the bending burden
Upon the dreamer's back
Had left him worn and weary
Upon a lonesome track.

They call across the shadows
In whispers from above
An evensong of childhood—
A lullaby of love,
Just as they used to mingle
When early dusk would creep
Their crooning where a mother sang
Her little boy to sleep.

The city lights were beckoned
The dreamer and his dream;
The bugle call has sounded
To where the sabers gleam;
The storm and strife of battle.
Loud-echo of the breeze,
But over all them follows
The whisper of the trees.

The call of little voices
That whisper from above
An evensong of childhood—
A lullaby of love;
The ripple of the maples
Where memory entwines—
The dream-song of the cedars—
The murmur of the pines.

Taft No Politician.

Life: We wish at times that President Taft would admit to himself that he is a great failure as a political president and quit bothering with that end of his job and with justification of his course and defense of his policies and concentrate his powers on the mere duties of his office. As long as he is such a bad politician—and he seems a mighty bad one—he ought not to waste on futile essays at political leadership powers so valuable and rare as his for administration. He is an exceedingly honest and able man and a great administrator. He is doing admirable and important work all the time that few observers have the brains and knowledge to understand, and he loses the effect of it, so far as he himself is concerned, by making political speeches which everybody understands and hardly any one likes. We wish he would let the Republican party go hang—split if it will, bust if it must—and just mind his job and the country's needs. He is eminently qualified to do that. He does not seem to have an unusual gift for the selection of cabinet officers, but otherwise he has qualifications fit to make him a great president, and will prove to be a great president if he can put his weight in where it will tell.

LAISSEZ FAIRE.

Robert Hunter in Chicago Daily Socialist: The above is the name of a politic that the powerful claim they believe in.

It means "Let alone." It means that the community must not interfere in behalf of the weak, nor aid of the strong.

It is the politic upon which our government is said to be founded and it has been called the politic of "Everybody for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

Those who are successful say that it is a fine doctrine, that it means unlimited competition, unlimited struggle, and the survival of the fit.

They say every one should have freedom to battle and to win, if he can.

And they claim that Laissez Faire permits a free race in which the swift always wins. And so nearly all the leaders of both parties say they believe in Laissez Faire.

When the judges declare unconstitutional laws limiting the hours of work they speak in the name of Laissez Faire.

When the trusts want to escape the law they plead in the name of Laissez Faire.

When the rich fight Socialism they say it is because Socialism would hurt Laissez Faire.

And who is this Laissez Faire, anyhow, that has become such a terrible bogie?

Well, I'll tell you. It is a secret, but I'll tell you. He doesn't exist. He is just gas and wind. He is a goblin.

If Jack Johnson should go to Mr. Rockefeller's estate and beat up Mr. Rockefeller and take his property away from him, Mr. Rockefeller would run to the courts, not to Laissez Faire.

If the workers were to gain control of congress and do away with the protective tariff, the powerful would denounce Laissez Faire.

And so the rich, not believing in Laissez Faire, have built up about themselves every kind of protection.

They protect the gold with steel vaults and granite buildings, they protect their industries with a Chinese wall called the tariff.

They protect their houses and estates by private property laws, by police and militia.

They protect property by owning political machines and political bosses.

They protect their loot through lying politicians, corrupt legislatures and corrupt legislatures and corrupt judges.

They protect their interests by lying newspapers and lying books and false philosophies.

They destroy Laissez Faire to get rich and barricade themselves behind Laissez Faire to keep rich.

They fight for special legislation, special franchises and special grants, but when the poor come they comfort them with Laissez Faire.

They protect themselves by rebates, by special favors, special education, special doctors and special laws.

They believe that for themselves there is need of every aid the government can give, but for those they oppose they believe in Laissez Faire.

They believe in bounties, subsidies, high tariffs, special laws, corrupt judges, political bosses, for themselves, but the poor, they are convinced, should paddle their own canoe.

They believe in loaded dice when they throw them; in marked cards when they play them; in stuffed ballot boxes when they stuff them; in corrupt judges when they own them.

And they call this a fair field and a free race. They call it Laissez Faire.

And so this theory, like many another before it upon which the world has been wrecked, is for use only to destroy one's enemies, not to injure oneself.

Adulteration.

Puck: The song of sixpence being duly sung, to say nothing of the pocket full of rye, the pie was opened and the four-and-twenty blackbirds which had been baked therein began straightway to sing.

Was not that a dainty dish to set before the king?

At all events his majesty regarded it severely.

"If blackbirds, why not benzoate of soda?" he reflected, and resolved on the spot to make the pure-food laws even more stringent in their operation.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Buffalo Express: "The new night watchman only lasted a week."

"What was there against him?"

"Somebody from the office went to his house in the daytime and found him up and dressed."

Yonkers Statesman: Mrs. Myles—Who is that man throwing that kiss to?

Mrs. Styles—It must be you, dear. He wouldn't be throwing me a kiss.

Mrs. Myles—Why not?

Mrs. Styles—Because it's my husband.

Cleveland Leader: "What's the matter tonight?"

"Trolley car accident."

"Heavy? What happened?"

"I got a seat."

Tit-Bits: "Old Grabber ought to be satisfied with the money he has."

"He is satisfied—so much so that he wants a lot more of exactly the same kind."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Peace has her victories no less renowned than war."

"But less profitable. Nobody ever hangs up gate money for a debate."

Judge: "My priceless landscape is ruined by sticks and leaves!"

"Brace up, old man; that's the first touch of nature I've ever seen in your pictures."

Chicago Tribune: "Algy, have you learned how to run your automobile?"

"Have I? Say, old man, I can scare a pedestrian half to death and not touch a hair of him!"

Pittsburg Post: "Can I make speed on this typewriter?"

"My dear sir, this machine is so speedy that we have equipped it with a honk-honk horn instead of a bell."

Buffalo Express: "Hartney is a lucky fellow—never bothered by women who wish to ride in his automobile."

"Why is that?"

"His license number begins with a 13."

Boston Transcript: Griggs (meeting friend)—Hello, Briggs; what's in the wind?

Briggs—Dust, confound it!

Pass the Plate.

Life: They ought to pass the plate at church weddings. It comes natural to do it in church, and to do so would add a pretty and useful employment to the duties of the ushers, who always have a little spare time before the bride arrives.

And, really, getting married is more expensive than ever, and though wedding presents are excellent in their way, what the young people usually need the most is cash.

Instead of the list of gifts which the newspapers sometimes print, we should read: "The collection yielded $4,000,000." That would be nice. It is much easier to store and care for money than plate and glass. And money always fits and there is no such thing as an embarrassing duplication of dollars.

ROCK CRUSHER IS NOW BEING USED

Making Material to Improve the Hibbing-Chisholm Road.

Hibbing, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The rock crusher, which was received a few days ago by the board of supervisors of the township is now at work near Chisholm on the Hibbing-Chisholm road. About 200 yards have been crushed so far on the road about two miles from Chisholm running toward Hibbing to the Burt dump. It is probable that the new road running toward Hibbing and Chisholm will not be built this year the township having a large amount of other work.

VIRGINIA'S WHITE WAY NOW ASSURED

Park Board Given Money to Improve Chestnut Street This Year.

Virginia, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia's white way is assured as the city council last night directed that $12,500 be turned over to the park board for fitting up Chestnut street in accordance with public wish. The money came from the $25,000 received from the county for the courthouse site.

Several requests from property owners for paving were received as follows: Chestnut street between Central and Virginia avenues; Central avenue from Willow to Sage street; Maple street from the railroad to Virginia. The usual ordinances granting the requests will be drawn and this year should see a lot of paving in Virginia. Property owners want South Central avenue cut down and a new grade established before paving is done.

Aldermen Boylan, H. O. Johnson and Weber and City Engineer E. F. Johnson will go over the ground, and if they deem the lowering of the grade practical an ordinance covering the proposition will be presented to the council.

Liquor licenses were granted to Charles Oberg, Matt Derosia, Gust Johnson and Everett A. Heagle, the three former being renewals. Heagle will operate the place formerly conducted by Matt Johnson, who was refused a renewal of license for having violated the closing hour law.

Meat Inspector John Byrne was instructed to make a weekly report.

Property owners on the north side petitioned for arc lamps, the matter being referred to Aldermen Kimball, E. C. A. Johnson and Osborn.

Property owners along the east side of Central avenue, between Maple and Spruce streets, petitioned for cement walks, and the property owners on the north side of Hickory street, between Central and Virginia avenues, want a six-foot walk.

The H. L. Bartlett company, who have the contract for putting in the curb and gutter on Central avenue were paid $825.60 on their contract.

The Virginia Electric Power & Water company asked permission to swing the sewer pipe laid at the rear of its plant in order to allow the company room to erect a $225,000 water storage tank.

Street Commissioner Christopherson was instructed to install new steel signs and house numbers throughout the entire city.

City Clerk Bickford was instructed to notify the police and fire commission to enforce the ordinance relating to rigs and vehicles standing in front of the several liveries on Chestnut street. A portion of the street in front of these places is being used by the liverymen for storage purposes and the council wants the nuisance abated.

A Real Family Remedy

A family remedy is one that any member of the family—man or woman or child—can use with safety in those common ailments which from time to time attack some of its members. A boy cuts himself or runs a nail into his foot—a small matter in itself, but if not properly attended to, lockjaw may set in, and death in its most horrible form will result. Or a slight cold may attack the most robust member of the family—nothing serious in itself, and yet every case of chronic catarrh, bronchitis, pneumonia, tuberculosis, or consumption, starts with a common cold, which, if neglected, ends in death, perhaps after years of intense suffering.

When the celebrated Swedish chemist, Dr. P. Hakansson, discovered the antiseptic and antitoxic known as Salubrin, the discovery was hailed by the medical profession of Sweden, (where physicians are paid by the government for teaching the public how to avoid sickness and to cure common ailments without having to call in a doctor,) as a most valuable medical discovery, and on recommendation of the medical faculty of the Royal University of Lund, the government remitted the tax on the alcohol used in the manufacture of Salubrin, thus enabling Dr. Hakansson to produce Salubrin at such a low price that even the poorest person can afford to keep a bottle on hand for cases of emergency. As a result, Salubrin has become the one great family medicine of Sweden, the annual sales amounting to over 1,250,000 bottles in a population represented by little more than one million families.

Salubrin has proven equally efficacious in all cases of external injuries and ailments, such as wounds, sores, skin eruptions, as well a affections of the mucous membrane such as catarrhal and bronchial troubles, and is used either externally as a linament or internally in five to ten parts of hot or cold water, or is inhaled as a vapor. In every case Salubrin destroys all disease germs and assists nature in removing or overcoming the ailment. No one who ever tried Salubrin will be without a bottle in case of need. 50c at druggists.

HIBBING COUNCIL RECEIVES REPORTS

Many Other Routine Matters Are Acted on By the Body.

Hibbing, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Various monthly reports were received by the village board last night and other routine matters disposed of.

The police department's report showed a total of 207 arersts for last month and the disposition of cases was as follows: Suspended sentence, 62; lodged only, 62; paid fines, 28; sent to Duluth, 17; forfeited bail, 6; pending, 3; bound over to grand jury, 2; dismissed on motion, 3; taken to Adams hospital, 1; taken to Virginia, 2; settled with complaining witnesses, 3; held for relatives, 1.

The report of the municipal court for the week ending Saturday, April 30, showed receipts of $124.65.

The report of J. L. Stewart, village accountant, for month of April, showed total collections of $8,006.77.

The petition of Thomas Moore, L. W. Morgison and others to have a fire alarm box placed on Lincoln street, either on Fourth or Fifth avenues was granted.

Application for permission to move the two-story frame dwelling, known as 608 Third avenue, to the corner of Garfield street and Fourth avenue was granted to H. P. Reed. The purpose of removing the building is to erect a solid brick building by the owner.

T. C. Congdon was ganted a permit to build an addition in the rear of the building occupied by the Hibbing pharmacy. The addition is to be of brick and stone.

O. W. Randall was allowed to move a house and barn at 318 Pine street to the village of Alice.

The following liquor licenses were granted: Henry Carlson, 107 Third avenue; W. J. Rezac, 224 Pine street; McCarthy & Pomeroy, corner Pine street and Third avenue, and J. E. Morrissey, 412 Third avenue.

The final estimate of Graham-Young, contractors of the new subfire station, was allowed.

The payroll for the month of April was allowed.

ALL OF ACCUSED ARE IN CUSTODY

Seven Men Alleged to Have Assaulted Wilcox Are Under Arrest.

Virginia, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the capture of Mat Cookovich, the seven men implicated in the assault upon Harry Wilcox, the Oliver Iron Mining company's policeman, have been rounded up and are now in custody. Cookovich was arrested by Chief D. F. Foley, who found him working for the company at the Alpena mine. The chief is of the opinion that Cookovich had little to do with the assault upon Wilcox, but he is being held as a witness more than a participant in the affair. The rounding up of these men is considered a clever piece of detective work, as only a meager description of the men could be secured.

Chief D. F. Foley of the Oliver force and Chief Ellis Walsh of the Virginia force are receiving big credit for their work.

Peter Dundovich, Mat Serge, Joe Curbin and Mat Cookovich, the last ones captured, were taken to Duluth today by Deputy Sheriff Owen Gately, where they will be confined in the county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

TO BETTER SYSTEM.

Chisholm Water Commission Decides Upon Many Improvements.

Chisholm, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A meeting of the water, light, power and building commissioners was held yesterday afternoon, all the members being present.

It was decided to instruct C. D. Purple to write Consulting Engineer D. W. Mead of Madison, Wis, asking him to prepare plans and specifications to enlarge the pumping station and to make other alterations as outlined in his report received at the last meeting of the commission. The report recommended a new steel water tank, additional distributing water mains, new parallel main on Lake street, the reconstruction of the pump and boiler house and a new pumping engine, boiler and a new settling basin. It was decided to commence the work as soon as possible. It was also decided to build a steel tank of 300,000 gallons capacity to replace the wooden tank now in use.

The matter of having power supplied by the Range Power company was favorably received.

Supt. Ron Sullivan was instructed to order all necessary water mains above the eighty-one tons or 4,500 feet now ordered, or those necessary to lay mains to the new schoolhouse.

TWO HARBORS CHURCH IS TWENTY YEARS OLD.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Swedish M. E. church celebrated the twentieth anniversary of the beginning of the church opened by a song from the audience, followed by a prayer by Rev. J. A. Anderson of Marquette, Mich. Miss Florence Feidler of Superior rendered a solo, "Hold Thou My Hand." Rev. T. S. Oadams of the First M. E. church extended the greetings of his church to the members of the Swedish church. The next number was a piano duet by Miss Feidler and Miss Gafvert.

Rev. J. A. Anderson spoke in Swedish on the progress the church had made in twenty years, being present at the dedication ceremonies. The Girl's chorus gave "Pilgrims of the Night."

Dr. M. K. Knauff congratulated the Swedish people of the city and he also gave a short history of the Swedish Protestant church.

After a piano duet by Misses Lundquist and Pearson, Rev. Edward Stromberg of Superior gave a recitation in the Swedish language. Miss Feidler sang another of her beautiful solos and then Rev. Frank Gustafson spoke in Swedish, telling of his experience here twenty years ago. Rev. J. F. McLeod greeted the Swedish church for the First Presbyterian church.

Rev. E. A. Wahlquist recited the history of the church. There have been ten pastors during the twenty years. The church started out with about seventeen members and have about sixty-five members now, though they have had 155 members. They own the church and parsonage, worth about $8,000 clear of debt.

Rev. T. S. Oadams gave the benediction and the congregation departed.

EVELETH PLANS MUCH CITY WORK

City Water Mains and Sewers Are to Be Generally Extended.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work of extending the city water mains to the recently annexed territory was commenced by the city council. The city engineer was instructed to draw up plans, specifications and estimates for the building of mains from Adams avenue and Garfield street into the annexed territory on Adams avenue; mains on Garfield street to Adams avenue; mains on Cleveland street to Adams avenue, and Harrison street to Adams avenue; also A avenue to Harrison street; and sewer extensions on Garfield and Harrison streets; sewers from Adams avenue to Roosevelt avenue on Hayes street.

The city engineer submitted estimated cost for construction of sewers for the entire length of Douglas avenue amounting to $4,492.20. The estimates were accepted. The city engineer's estimate for sewers between Monroe street and Fayal road and Kimberly and Carrie streets, amounting to $351.19 was accepted.

The matter of making a "great white way" on Grant avenue, the main local thoroughfare was discussed, and it was suggested that eight lamps be installed in each block. The matter was referred to the light and water committee for action.

A resolution awarding the telephone franchise to the Mesaba Telephone company for a period of twenty-five years for a fee of $25, in which the old maximum and minimum rates are set, was adopted, and an amendatory ordinance setting the residence rates for single lines at $25 per year; residence party line, $18 per year; and business places, $40 per year, was also adopted. District Superintendent Lister of the Mesaba Telephone company said the telephone company would remove their poles off Grant avenue, if the same was necessary in the installing of the "great white way."

The police department's report showed $329 in fines collected for the month of April.

The question of improving local sanitary conditions was thoroughly discussed, and the city clerk instructed to advertise for 500 slop cans to replace the present inadequate wooden barrels. The application of the Valari brothers for a transfer of their liquor license from their present location to the building at present occupied by John M. Bradish, who will occupy the basement of the same structure now under construction, was granted. John Palm was granted a renewal of his liquor license.

CITY ASSESSOR RESIGNS.

C. W. Stark Quits His Job in Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the city council Monday evening C. W. Stark resigned as city assessor. The resignation was accepted and John B. Boyer was appointed to fill the vacancy. Mr. Boyer appointed Frank Kempffer as deputy assessor. Mr. Kempffer was also deputy under Mr. Stark.

The Austin-Western company presented the only bid received in response to a call for bids on a rock crusher. The matter was laid over for one week to permit the committee in charge to perfect arrangements with the Duluth & Iron Range railroad and the Minnesota Iron company for a new location for the crusher. The city expects to do considerable street work and will require crushed rock faster than the present crusher can turn it out. The proposed grading and macadamizing of Cedar and Poplar streets, if contracted for, will require considerable crushed rock, aside from other work that may become necessary.

PROMOTIONS ARE MADE.

As a Result of Starting the Coleraine Concentrator.

Coleraine, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the opening of the new concentrating plant there have been several promotions among employes of the Oliver Iron Mining company.

Alexander King has been made chief chemist, a position to be coveted at this time, as the entire force of chemists have just moved into one of the best chemical laboratories on the range.

The former chief, J. C. Mott, has been promoted to first assistant superintendent of the concentrator. This, too, is a fine position and places Mr. Mott in line for still further advancement.

FAMILY FOOD.

Crisp, Toothsome and Requires No Cooking.

A little boy down in N. C. asked his mother to write an account of how Grape-Nuts food had helped their family.

She says Grape-Nuts was first brought to her attention in Charlotte, where she visited.

"While I was there I used the food regularly. I gained about 15 pounds and felt so well that when I returned home I began using Grape-Nuts in the family regularly.

"My little 18-months-old baby shortly after being weaned was very ill with dyspepsia nd teething. She was sick nine weeks and we tried everything. She became so emaciated that it was painful to handle her and we thought we were going to lose her. One day a happy thought urged me to try Grape-Nuts soaked in a little warm milk.

"Well, it worked like a charm, and she began taking it regularly and improvement set in at once. She is now getting well and round and fat as fast as possible and on Grape-Nuts.

"Some time ago several of the family were stricken with La Grippe at the same time, and during the worst stages we could not relish anything in the shape of food but Grape-Nuts and oranges, everything else nauseating us.

"We all appreciate what your famous food has done for our family."

ODD FELLOWS OF AURORA CELEBRATE

Anniversary Observed Tuesday Evening in a Very Fitting Manner.

Aurora, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Iron Belt lodge, No. 239, I. O. O. F., of Aurora, celebrated the ninety-first anniversary of the order at their lodge rooms last night. The families of the members and friends of the order were present. The evening was a most enjoyable one.

A neatly arranged program was given as follows: Singing of the national air; Odd Fellows' anniversary ceremony; music by orchestra; address by the chaplain, Rev. J. W. Schenck; address by the noble grand, Capt. J. H. Polglase; orchestra selection; solo by Fred Hill; duet by Miss Levin and Mrs. Lord; reading by Mrs. A. W. Corwin; orchestra selection; solo by Miss Wiley; quartet by high school girls; orchestra selection.

Rev. J. W. Schenck in his address spoke interestingly of the origin of the order. Capt. J. H. Polglase spoke of the work and accomplishments of Odd Fellowship and gave the story of the origin of the three links.

The program was very interesting and was concluded by a generous luncheon.

SMITH VISITS WINONA.

Eveleth Banker Is Looking After His Political Fences.

Winona, Minn., May 4.—Walter J. Smith, president of the Miners' National Bank of Eveleth, was in the city Monday calling upon prominent Republicans. He is an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for state treasurer of the coming convention at St. Paul next month, and has been getting acquainted with people here that they may better know who they might be voting for.

OLD ENGINEER DEAD.

Virginia, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Alfred D. Anderson, who died Monday at Clear Lake, of paralysis, was shipped yesterday to New Richmond, Wis., for burial, accompanied by Mrs. Anderson. The deceased was about 52 years of age and had been employed several years as locomotive engineer on the Sand lake branch of the Rainy Lake railroad. He is survived by his widow.

RAISING CUB BEARS BY BOTTLE METHOD.

Ely, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five cub bears being reared by the bottle method are objects of curiosity in the rear of the Exchange hotel. The little fellows were found by national forest rangers and belong to J. G. Coxe.

HIBBING FOR BETTER ROADS.

Commercial Club Adopts Resolution for $5,000,000 Bonds.

Hibbing, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club club Monday evening adopted unanimously the following resolution declaring for a bond issue of $5,000,000 by St. Louis county for the purpose of building better roads:

"Resolved, that is the sense of the Hibbing Commercial club that the county of St. Louis should be bonded in the sum of $5,000,000 for the building of good roads, the sum to be spent each year, and the money to be distributed among the different commissioner districts in proportion to their assessed valuation."

The proposal and adoption of this resolution followed a report by Mr. Silliman of the meeting of the county club at Biwabik and a lively discussion of the good road conditions and the situation as to farming in St. Louis county. Mr. Silliman declared in support of his resolution that abond issue of $5,000,000 would be paid back, interest and principal both, by the increased amount which will come to the county in taxes from the settlement that will result from this expenditure for good roads, leaving to the people of the county, as a pure profit, all the advantages which will accrue from a large agricultural population, such as the home supplying of the home market, the export of dairy and food products, etc.

Brush Fires Near Nashwauk.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Brush fires are burning near here and while the village is not particularly menaced there is more or less nervousness on the part of the citizens lest the flames get beyond control and do heavy damage. Settlers burning slashings are blamed for the fires.

Assault Negro Musician.

Chisholm, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Freeman is looking into the charges against four men who are alleged to have set upon and beaten Tom North, colored, a musician in a local saloon, who was picking his banja when the gang attacked and badly beat him for no apparent reason.

Big April Ore Receipts.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ore receipts for the month of April at the local docks aggregated 393,929 tons, while during the month of April 1909, the receipts were but 68,451 tons, making an increase for April of this year of 325,478 tons.

Eveleth Disturber Fined.

Eveleth, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mike Stonatick was yesterday haled into municipal court for attempting to resist an Oliver Mining company officer recently while the latter was trying to put a friend of Stonatick's under arrest. Stonatick was fined $25 and costs, which he paid.

Damage Suit Settled.

Virginia, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The personal injury suit of John Anderson against the Mohawk Mining company was settled, the stipulation not being given out. The parties in the next action for trial not being prepared at this time, the court took an adjournment until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Eveleth, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward J. Thomas, manager of Marvin Van Buskrick, a local sprinter, has completed arrangements with T. H. Deering of Virginia, manager of Stanley Watt of Virginia, for a match May 15, before the range town offering the best inducements.

PEACEMAKER WORSTED.

South Dakotan Struck Over Head Stopping a Row.

Sisseton, S. D., May 4.—Lawrence La Fromboise, whose home is just across the line in Day county, was seriously injured in a drunken row near Waubay. He has been unable to speak or to swallow any food or water since his injury eight days ago. He has had frequent convulsions and is not expected to live. The injury which he sustained was a blow upon the head with a spade, causing intracranial hemorrhage and pressure on the brain.

It is reported that the two Owens brothers, who are quarterbreeds, were engaged in a drunken altercation when La Fromboise attempted to pacify them. Both of the combatants turned upon the peacemaker and proceeded to beat him. Information charging murder will be sued upon in the event of La Fromboise's death.

MINOT BUILDING BOOM.

Over Half Million in Expenditures Planned This Year.

Minot, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—With over $600,000 worth of new improvements either under way or about to be commenced in this city, it looks as though Minot will uphold its reputation for progress for at least another year. The great growth of the northwestern section of the state is responsible for the rapid development of the city. One of the larger buildings to be erected will be that of the Internatfonal Harvester company, costing $100,000, and the new Soo depot, $85,000. There will also be an addition to the Lexington hotel, costing $40,000, two new flat buildings, $40,000 each, as well as several smaller buildings including a new Zion church, Carnegie library and packing plant of the Armour company, costing $25,000.

FOUR CHILDREN DEAD.

Unfortunate Family Is Rendered Childless in One Year.

Park River, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four times within a single year Mr. and Mrs. E. Herwick of this city have been bereaved by the death of a child and today they are childless. Twelve months ago four children, the eldest a boy of 6 years old, were apparently in the best of health. The death of the last child took place very suddenly. He was seated at the breakfast table when he suddenly became ill. Two physicians were summoned, but the little fellow died three hours later. He was 4 years of age.

NEBRASKA DEMOCRATS

Are Reported Badly Split Over the County Option Question.

Mayor Dahlman of Omaha Blames Bryan for the Trouble.

Rochester, N. Y., May 4.—Democrats as well as Republicans in Nebraska are rent asunder, and it seems doubtful whether they can recover in time to carry the state this fall.

This is the assertion made here by James C. Dahlman, the "Cowboy Mayor" of Omaha, chairman of the Nebraska state Democratic committee, and erstwhile close political friend of William Jennings Bryan. Mr. Dahlman is attending the national conference of city planning, and talked freely of the Nebraska political situation.

Bryan Splits Party.

Mr. Bryan's recent stand on county option has split the party wide open, according to Mr. Dahlman, and has made the question of reconciliation of the contending forces as improbable as the union of insurgents and stand-patters in the Republican ranks.

"We elected a Democratic governor and legislature," said Mr. Dahlman, "on a platform that pledged the people of Nebraska to no interference with the local option law, and certainly pledged the party to pass no legislation inimical to a certain home-rule doctrine in the matter of the liquor question. One of the first things the legislature did was to pass a fool law that closed every saloon in the state at 8 o'clock at night. In itself that was sufficient to damn the party in the eyes of the liberal element, which is a large part of the Democratic rank and file.

Many Follow Leader.

"And now comes Mr. Bryan, fresh from another journey in foreign lands, and insists that county option—something broader than the local option we have enjoyed for thirty years—is the thing above all things for which the Nebraska Democrats must stand.

"For the first time in the years Mr. Bryan has been before the public I have disagreed with him. Hundreds of Democrats, more influential in the party councils than I, stand with me. Many are with Mr. Bryan.

"We will meet in our state convention July 26 to draft the party platform. Mr. Bryan will be there insisting on his new doctrine. Many of us will be there to be equally positive that home rule is all sufficient in such matters. We do not want to depart from the old Democratic doctrine that each community has the sole right to govern its own affairs, especially in a question such as this. The result, it appears now, will be nothing short of a breach almost impossible to bridge.

"But this peculiar situation confronts both parties in Nebraska under the new law we have: The Republicans will have their state convention at which they will draft their platform. They are as widely split on the tariff as we are on the liquor question. Where will they end? That is the question.

"Three weeks later the primaries of both parties are held all over the state. I am not enough of a prophet to foretell the outcome."

FREIGHT STEAMER DAMAGED.

Collision Occurs Off Cape Cod, But Nobody Is Hurt.

Provincetown, Mass., May 4.—The freight steamer Santurie, which was in collision with the northbound tank steamer Ligonier off Cape Cod last night, arrived here at dawn today with a twelve-foot hole in her starboard side and her after-compartment full of water. No one was injured during the accident, but half the crew of the Santurie jumped on the Ligonier.

The collision took place off Cap Cod light last night about 8 o'clock in the midst of a dense fog. The Santurce had discharged a heavy cargo of sugar in Boston and was bound for New York. The Ligonier with several hundred thousand gallons of oil from Port Arthur, Tex., was making for Beverly.

The Ligonier struck the Santurce on the starboard side abreast of the main rigging. The Ligonier is equipped with wireless and Capt. Cates immediately notified a shore station in Boston of the collision and stated that he would remain in the vicinity until Monday.

ETHEL CROKER WEDS RIDING SCHOOL GROOM.

New York, May 4. — Ethel Croker and John J. Breen, a groom at a New York riding academy, were married recently in Hoboken, N. J. The justice of the peace, who officiated, has issued a sworn statement that the Miss Croker concerned was a daughter of the former Tammany chief and Breen the riding academy groom. He had kept the secret the justice added, at the request of Breen. Miss Croker's family declines to discuss the justice's statement.

Women are taking an active part in the municipal campaign now in progress and will be Miss Morgan's first opportunity to participate in a political movement where women may vote.

Miss Morgan is an ardent advocate of woman suffrage.

REPUDIATES CHARGES AGAINST C. A. SMITH.

Portland, Or., May 4. — Affidavits made by S. A. D. Puter, five years ago, against C. A. Smith of Minneapolis, were repudiated by him yesterday when he took the witness stand in the trial of the suit of the government against Smith and associates.

The suit against Smith is to secure the cancellation on the ground of fraud of patents to timber lands in Oregon valued at $800,000.

Puter, who was convicted in the original Oregon land fraud cases, made the affidavits five years ago in the presence of former President Roosevelt. In the affidavits he accused Smith of having knowledge of the fraud.

MINNESOTA OVERLOOKED.

Railroads Discriminate Against This State in Making Rates.

St. Paul, Minn., May 4.—In an effort to secure form Minnesota the same homeseekers' rates as are given by the Western Passenger association to points in Dakota, Canada, Montana and other states, the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission has asked Attorney General Simpson to make formal complaint to the interstate commerce commission alleging that the present rates are discriminatory and asking that Minnesota be given the same rates in proportion to mileage as other states enjoy.

Until two years ago, Minnesota had the same rates from Eastern points as other states, but shortly after the passage of the 2-cent fare law and the freight rate reductions, the Minnesota homeseekers' rates were withdrawn. At present rates of about one and one-half fare for the round trip are quoted from Chicago and Eastern points to a large number of points in the Dakotas, Wisconsin, Michigan, Kansas and Nebraska, practically all the states west and south of here and also to Western Canada. As a result, a man looking for land can go cheaper to points in Dakota than he can to Minnesota, and when a land agent starts out with a party he naturally forgets Minnesota. As an advertising matter alone, it makes a difference to Minnesota because the state is left out of announcements of homeseekers' rates.

HOUSE AND SENATE BOTH AMEND BILL.

Washington, May 4.—In both the senate and house the traffic agreement provision was stricken from the railroad bill yesterday. The senate went still further and struck out section 12, dealing with the combination of railroads. This section was not considered by the house. The long and short haul clause of the house bill was agreed to by the house in the form in which it came from the committee, except that it provided for an investigation by the interstate commerce commission of data relating to that class of rates.

A house bill creating an art commission for Washington was provided by the senate.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Colds, Croup, and Whooping Cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovvery could practically all the states west and south of here and also to Western Canada. As a result, a man looking for land can go cheaper to points in Dakota than he can to Minnesota, and when a land agent starts out with a party he naturally forgets Minnesota. As an advertising matter alone, it makes a difference to Minnesota because the state is left out of announcements of homeseekers' rates.

WARD COUNTY FAIR.

It Will Be Held at Minot Next September.

Minot, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ward county fair will be held in Minot some time in September this year. The management had intended holding the fair in July, but the association could not possibly get things in shape by that time. After this year, they hope to hold the fair meetings in July.

By holding the fair in September this year the farmers will have an opportunity of displaying some of the grain in the bundle besides garden vegetables and fruits. The premium list will be out soon, it is believed. J. A. Roell has been secured to prepare it this year and he may have assistance. It is the idea of the management to give larger premiums than usual on the more important products and breeds of live stock, and it will pay the farmers to compete.

HELP UNFORTUNATE ONE.

Kind-Hearted North Dakotans Put in Woman's Crops.

Goodrich, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another instance of where the neighbors came to the rescue of a stricken farmer is reported from near this city, Mrs. L. L. Anderson being the beneficiary. Several years ago her husband died and since that time she has had three children to provide for. Noticing that no move had been made this spring to care for the work, neighbors have taken a hand and are now putting the land in shape for seeding, which will be done immediately. Through this action the woman and her children will be provided for.

The Opulento.

Minnesotans In Big Company.

Helena, Mont., May 4.—The Smith River Development company, a million dollar concern, which intends to extensively operate in Meagher county, has filed articles of incorporation here.

The incorporators are Lewis Penwell, G. J. Welsh, C. B. Witter and H. H. Pigot of Helana; R. J. Perkins of St. Paul; R. M. Calkins, an official of the Milwaukee road, of St. Paul; R. M. Hodgens of Butte, and T. M. Hodgens of New York.

CHINESE OBJECT TO RAILROAD PLAN

Rioting in Hunan Province Puts Pekin in Awkward Position.

Changsha, China, May 4.—The recent rioting in this province has placed the Chinese government in an embarrassing position regarding the proposed Hankow-Canton railroad loan. Evidence accumulates that the disturbance was deliberately planned by influential persons as a warning to the central authorities not to meddle in the affairs of Hunan province, and to make plain the determined opposition of the Hunanites to foreign participation in the railway construction.

Millions of Chinese are imbued with the idea that the government is yielding weakly to foreign influence which is seeking political control in China. Pekin realizes the situation and a protracted delay appears inevitable.

Planned Every Move.

It appears that instigators of the rioting employed a large band of revolutionists, who used the scarcity of rice as a pretext to stir up a popular demonstration. The destruction of property and the looting had been carefully planned. For a month before the outbreak the revolutionaries lived outside the south gate of the city, where the rioting began. Members of the organized party wore distinctive badges and directed the movements of the mob.

Outwardly the situation in Changsha and the adjacent country appears to be improving. The United States gunboat Villalobos is expected here soon.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL WILL BE ENLARGED.

St. Luke's Hospital association held its annual meeting at the hospital late yesterday afternoon. The following directors were re-elected: Mrs. W. R. Stone, T. T. Hudson and Henry Taylor. J. H. Hearding was elected to succeed the late F. L. Gilbert. The directors elected Dr. A. W. Ryan, president and Henry Taylor, secretary-treasurer.

The hospital will be enlarged by the building of three stories on the addition in the rear of the main building, which is a basement and one story in height.

COSTS $1,448.94 FOR JUDGES TO GO TO FUNERAL.

Washington, May 4.—The expenses of the justices of the supreme court of the United States on a trip to Albany, N. Y., to attend the funeral of the late Justice Peckham amounted to $1,448.94. When the bill was presented to the auditor of the treasury, it was turned down. The comptroller of the treasury then was appealed to, and he overruled the auditor.

Income Tax Beaten Again.

Albany, N. Y., May 4.—A second attempt to pass the resolution favoring the federal income tax failed in the assembly yesterday. By a vote of 75 to 67 the house refused to sustain a motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution recently was defeated. Only one vote was lacking.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

DULUTH IN FIRST GAME

White Sox and All Stars Will Clash at Athletic Park.

Big Kenney and Mack Cook Will Be Opposing Slab Artists.

At Athletic park this afternoon the fans will be given their first opportunity of seeing the Duluth Minnesota-Wisconsin pennant winners in action. The leaguers will line up agaist the All-Stars of this city, a team composed of the fastest amateurs in this part of the country.

Mack Cook, a pitchor who has dazzling speed and a spitter that has mystified many of the amateurs of this part of the state, is scheduled to mount the mound for the All-Stars. Kenney, the big twirler who has pitched several good games for the Sox on the trip, will start the game for the Sox. It is very probable that several of the other twirlers will work this afternoon.

Frank Schaefer, the crack amateur catcher of this city, may be seen with the amateurs. Dick Thorsen will also be seen with the All-Stars.

The game this afternoon will be played for the benefit of the Lats family, whose son was killed in an accident that occurred before one of the games last summer. The All-Stars have donated their services to the cause and all the receipts will be turned over to the family.

Play will begin at 3:30 and a hard contest is expected. The amateurs

REDDERSDORF,
Who Will Probably Work Part of the Game.

have a very strong aggregation and are confident of giving the professionals a hard run for the decision. The game will give the fans the first opportunity of looking over the men.

Buzinsky will be behind the bat, with Kozier at first, Darby at second, Dagget at short and Sweeney at third. Taylor, Neelon and Anderson will play the gardens.

Yesterday afternoon the team went through a two hours' work out. Later in the afternoon the high school squad appeared and a scrub game was played.

As stated in another column on this page, the men look good. They handle themselves like ball players, which is always encouraging. All of the men are likely looking players and in the short game of yesterday afternoon the infield worked smoothly.

The men were given signal practice part of the afternoon. Last year Duluth won the pennant with inside baseball. Darby O'Brien has more inside stuff than most of the other managers combined. If the team the present season can learn the same degree of inside baseball, it will have a decided advantage.

Duluth had a heady lot of youngsters last year. Breen, Kohl, O'Brien and McCrone were boys who saw an advantage quickly. These are the kind of players Darby wants, and from the looks of the members of the present squad, he has secured a clean lot of players.

The game this afternoon will furnish a further line on the abilities of the men. The team that will oppose the Sox is strong enough to bring out the baseball playing ability of the men signed by Darby. In fact, there is no cinch on the Sox winning the contest.

Real baseball games are where the ability of a player is brought out. The fans who watched the practice of yesterday afternoon will learn more by the game of this afternoon.

Mr. Kuehnow has arranged for a special street car service to and from the grounds.

Opening at Evansville.

Evansville, Ind., May 4.—Ideal weather marked the opening day of the Central league season here with the South Bend team. Crystal or Covington will pitch for Evansville, while Moffitt or Lindsay will be on the rubber for South Bend. The game will begin at 3:30 and be preceded by a parade from the downtown district to the ball park. Mayor Hellman will start the contest by pitching the first ball.

First Game at Zanesville.

Zanesville, Ohio, May 4.—The Central baseball league season will open here this afternoon with a game between the Fort Wayne, Ind., and Zanesville, Ohio, teams. The game will be preceded by an automoblie parade and the dedication of the new ball park, Athletic field.

The day was observed as a half holiday by all grocers and many other merchants and manufacturers. Mayor Gorrell will pitch the first ball.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

How They Look.

A handful of fans yesterday afternoon had an opportunity of watching the members of the White Sox squad go through a light workout. The cold and chill wind made hard work inadvisable; but enough of the ability of some of the men was observed to lead to the opinion that Duluth has a very fast infield.

Going around the infield from first base, Kozier looks good. The big chap handles himself like a baseball player. He dug some out of the sand yesterday like old "Scoops" Carey used to dig them out for the Orioles. At bat he slammed one far out to the flag pole. His team mates say this is a habit of the big chap.

Darby O'Brien is at second. The harp says he is faster than ever. "This will be my greatest year," said the Irish Orator yesterday. He was chasing around as lively as a colt yesterday. Darby looks in much better condition than he was in last season, at that.

Dolly Daggett at short is awfully fast. Yesterday on every ball hit down into his territory he showed his speed. This isn't saying just how good a fielder the little chap is, or how much ground he covers; but if he can use his natural speed to advantage, he should cover an immense amount of territory.

Sweeney at third looks good and moves like a ball player, though the little work he did yesterday failed to show his true class. On the trip Sweeney has been playing great baseball. In one game he accepted 11 chances without a skip. He is Irish and that should help some.

The outfielders did little yesterday that would lead to an estimate of what they can do. Anyway we all know what Neelon and Taylor can do. Anderson is the only new gardener in the lot. He is very fast upon his feet and runs like a deer. He should cover lots of ground; whether he does or not, will be brought out later.

Buzinsky, or Busby, as the players call him, was back of the bat and handled himself like a ball player. He was taking no chances with his arm in the raw wind, and just how he pegs is another piece of knowledge that is left for the future and warmer weather.

The pitchers didn't let loose, for the brand of weather is the kind that puts kinks in arms. Marlon and Dauss are on the hospital list. Marlon felt better yesterday and threw a few balls by way of warming up his arm. The big fellow believes he will come around all right in a week and be ready to open the season.

One swallow doesn't make a summer, Archie, and one day's practice in the cold and raw wind hardly gives you a very definite line on a bunch of baseball players. There is no use attempting to get a line on the players until the weather begins to rub some of the kinks out of their systems.

On the mere workout indulged in yesterday the men on the infield showed they were fast. The hitting ability of the team is something that even Darby O'Brien does not know at the present time. So far the boys look good—but remember, Arthur, it is very early.

Gotham's Round Table.

In Shanley's they have a way of settling events, even before the events are pulled off. The decision reached at the Shanley round table, is generally final and irrevocable.

Round the round table the other evening were gathered such celebrities as James J. Corbett, Kid McCoy, Charley White, Inspector McLaughlin, Tom O'Rourke, and others—such a gathering of genius as would awe the most blase and hardened waiter in the trade.

Naturally the discussion led to those channels of conversation that are being explored by every one, from Bill Taft's cabinet to the cook of a Chinese eating house—the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

Then and there the result of the fight was settled. Jeffries is going to win. The why and wherefore of the result has been given out. It looks bad for Li'l Artha.

Maybe these men, who certainly know the insides of the fighting game, believe Jeff will win. Their opinion is worth a great deal and when they say the white man has by far the better chance, the statements cannot but help influence the opinion that is being formed in regard to the chances of the two men.

In New York Jeffries will be a very strong favorite. People in New York are easily led, for some reason or other. They have not the independent opinion of the people of the West—of the people of Chicago, for instance. Therefore, when such a table rules that Jeffries has by far the better chance, little old New York will go hard for the retired champion.

New York's opinions, at least many of them, are formed around the tables of Shanley's and other scenes of similar gatherings. James J. Corbett has as yet to pick a winner of a fight; let every one hope that his prediction in favor of the chances of Jeff, does not mean a hoodoo for the big fellow.

Duluth's Great Opportunity.

San Francisco has its Portola week; Omaha has its corn palace; New Orleans has its annual Mardi Gras; Portland has its rose festival—all of which have brought fame and good round dollars to those cities.

Some business men have in the past suggested that Duluth, being the Queen of the Lakes, should hold an annual carnival, an event that would be typical of the industrial activities of the city. Being the Queen of the Lakes, it would be fitting and appropriate that a water carnival be given as an annual event.

The idea has lain dormant, but has not been forgotten. It bids fair to be carried out by the Duluth Boat club. The motor boat committee of the club has already given the idea serious thought.

It is planned to give a series of water races each year. The present year will see the first of these motor boat events. They are closely patterned after the events held at Peoria, Ill., where, in addition to the motor boat races, they have fireworks and a general gala time.

Some day Duluth should be a great motor boat center. The sport is just taking hold here. Planning with the belief in view, the members of the motor boat committee believe some day Duluth can hold a regatta and carnival the equal of the one annually held at Peoria.

The opportunity of Duluth is at hand. The idea is there for the business men to take hold of. It would mean fame and advertisement for Duluth. It would be almost unique in American cities.

Duluth needs advertisement, and the suggestion of the motor boat committee to hold an annual water carnival is surely worth investigating.

VICTOR LOWERS ODDS ON DONAU.

Louisville, Ky., May 4.—Donau's handy victory in the Camden handicap at Lexington yesterday has seriously disturbed the betting odds for the Kentucky derby to be run here next Tuesday. A month ago Donau was held at 10 to 1; now it is impossible to obtain better than 3 to 1 against him.

THE STRONG INDEPENDENT BASEBALL TEAM OF THE HUSTLING MESABA RANGE TOWN

EVELETH INDEPENDENT BASEBALL TEAM.

Eveleth, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth independent team which will this year represent Eveleth on the diamond is composed of many fast and strong players of long experience in the national pastime. The boys have been playing together for the past few years and compose a well-balanced nine. The management has secured many strong games for the Independents, and the Gilbert team has been already defeated. Next Sunday and Monday the team will play the strong Chisholm city team at Chisholm, during the Modern Woodmen of America gathering there.

The men composing the team are all employed in this vicinity and the team is strictly a home talent one, with the players playing solely for the sport to be derived, instead of the salary. The members composing the team are Harold Hubink, catcher and manager; Fred Richards, pitcher; William Brown, Tony Van Buskirck, captain; Walter McDonald, Marvin Van Buskirck, infielders; Nick Thomas, L. Hegner, Nat Given, Bert Hellstrom, A. Johnson, outfielders.

MINNY LEAGUE NOTES

Daggett, the little shortstop of the White Sox, reminds one in his movements of Andy Oyler of Minneapolis. Apparently the little fellow is as fast as a bullet. A man as speedy as Daggett on his feet should cover all sorts of ground. Darby says he has the speed to cover a world of territory and the arm to beat the runner to the bag.

• • •

Graves, playing center field for Winona, has been pasting the pellet on the nose in the few games played by Winona. In addition to the hitting he has been doing, Graves has been doing some mighty sweet fielding. With Graves, Happy Crangle and McNutt in the patch, Uncle Joe Killian has an outfield that will shape up well.

• • •

Old Man Kozier has a way of coming in and fighting the nasty, choppy grounders. Yesterday at practice he dug several out of the sand that ordinarily would have gone by. The greatest weakness of the big fellow is his slowness on the paths. They do say that when he slaps the spheroid it travels far and fast. It will take a healthy hitter to make the fans forget Merry McCrone.

Goodman, third sacker for Winona, has reported to the Winona management in great condition. Goodman has informed Killian that the present season will be the best he has ever enjoyed. Goodman is one of the best guardians of the hard angle of the diamond.

• • •

There are a nifty bunch of Germans trying for the La Crosse team, which, by the way, is very natural, as La Crosse is a conservative, quiet German settlement. Klein, Kuehn, Dietzler, Hanus, Schoenur, Berens and Kroner are some of the Teutons battling for baseball fame in John A. Elliott's town.

The Eau Claire squad has been cut down to the following players: Nicholson, Morrow, Schern, Worman, Nichols, Shane, Couture, Malone, Benrud, Newell, Kading Schoonhoven, Moore, Breyette, Kick, Walbaum and Thrall. It is very probable that the squad will be further reduced.

By their performance in easily trimming the strong colored Gophers of St. Paul, a team that has beaten the St. Paul American association team some few times in the past, the Eau Claire team strengthens the opinion prevalent around the circuit that Schoonhoven has the dark horse. The playing of the Angels so far the present season has marked the team as one that will bear watching from now until the season is well under way.

Mique Sweeney, the lad, Mr. Kuehnow has secured to guard third for him, looks the typical ball player. He is a slim chap, with spikes like Ty Cobb They say he can run the bases like an Indian and has a whip that works something on the order of the Breen heave. If Sweeney can hit them out, he will prove one of the stars in the league, according to the sage information by the Irish Orator.

• • •

The playing of McCulloch, the redheaded first baseman of the Superior team, has been one of the features of the spring training trip of the Kickers. The boy has shown great improvement over the form he displayed last season, and if he continues in his present form, will be a fixture at the first station.

• • •

O'Dea apparently needs more hurlers. The rest of the team has been going fairly strong on the trip, with the pitching staff proving erratic. It is early as yet, however, and the old weather is not the kind that is conducive to a pitcher showing his best form. Mack Cook, the local amateur, may be given a trial with the Superior team in the coming series with Duluth.

• • •

Duluth will have one of the heaviest pitching staffs in the league. Two men, Reddersdorf and Howard are taller than Babe Marion. It is a well known fact that scouts and baseball managers look at the big hill workers first and longest. If size counts so much, the mound dwellers that Duluth has under contract should prove puzzlers to the opposition.

• • •

Already the towns in the southern end of the circuit are preparing for the opening of the season. Duluth will open the season at Winona and that town is preparing to make the opening the occasion for a gala day. Business will be suspended that afternoon and the teams will be escorted to the ball park by a band. The mayor will throw the first ball and there will be speeches and other appropriate doings.

Red Wing, the newcomer into the Des Moines franchise might go to Oklahoma City.

"I think Des Moines is the best town in the league, outside of Denver, and I am going to invest more money in my team. We have 10,000 tickets already sold for the opening game there."

TOMMY BURNS IS COMING TO AMERICA.

Victoria, B. C., May 4.—Mrs. Noah Brisso, wife of Tommy Burns, and Manager Keating were among the passengers on the steamer Makura, arriving here yesterday from Australia. Burns is to follow by the Matuka, leaving Sydney next Monday. Keating left for San Francisco last night to complete arrangements for the Burns-Langford match.

BALRONIA WINS FEATURE OF EMERYVILLE CARD.

Oakland, Cal., May 4.—Balronia led all the way in the fourth event, the feature of the card at Emeryville yesterday. Chester Krum was favorite, but Buxton was of little assistance. The third race resulted in a close finish, Thomas out-riding Taylor and Coburn and landing Redeem winner in the last jump from Beauman and Tremargo.

AGNEW BILL APPLIES ONLY TO HORSE RACES.

Albany, N. Y., May 4.—The senate yesterday amended the Agnew bill prohibiting the publication of betting odds so as to make it apply solely to bookmaking on horse races. As introduced the bill was interpreted to include in its prohibition betting odds on boat races, football, baseball and amateur sports.

STEEPLECHASE IS FEATURE AT PIMLICO.

Pimlico, May 4.—A good crowd witnessed a fair card here yesterday. The feature, the Crickmore memorial steeplechase handicap, was won in striking fashion by Thistledale, equal favorite with Bigot, whose mishap at the seventh jump put him out of the running. In the opening event for ycungsters, Lochiel won handily.

FAVORITES WIN EVENTS AT AQUEDUCT.

Aqeduct, May 4.—The summer weather and a fairly good card drew a good crowd yesterday and some interesting racing was seen. The public had a fair afternoon as the favorites managed to get home in the majority of the events. In the feature of the card the Suffolk selling stakes, Ladazette, heavily played and the 5 to 2 favorite, was easily returned the winner. Campeon made a new track record for 6½ furlongs when he won the third race by a head from Beaucoup. He stepped the distance in 1:18 4-5.

"Play Ball" at Wheeling.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 4.—Although showers are predicted the sun is shining brightly today for the opening of the Central Baseball league season between the Wheeling champions of 1909 and Dayton, Ohio. Preceding this afternoon's game a parade of the home and visiting clubs was held, many business houses closing at noon for the event.

President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburg baseball club will pitch the first ball of the season this afternoon while President Frank R. Carson of the Central league will be at the receiving end.

MINOT AUTOMOBILE SHOW STARTS THURSDAY.

Minot, N. D., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow the big automobile show, the first ever held in Minot, will be opened. This city has become the distributing point for automobile dealers in the northwestern section of the state. Many farmers are purchasing machines this year and that fact has added interest to the show as many will come here to attend it. Every arrangement is complete for the enterprise.

The Glidden Pathfinder.

Wichita Kan., May 4.—The Glidden tour pathfinder car, which spent last night in Wichita, left at 8 o'clock this morning for Newton, Kan. The route to Kansas City from Newton will be made by way of Emporia. Recent heavy rains have made the roads in Kansas heavy.

CENTRAL AND NORMALS.

The Central high school team will play the Superior normal this afternoon in Superior, the game being played across from the school. Scanlon will probably be on the mound for the locals.

Saturday afternoon Nelson Dewey will be played at Athletic park, while next Wednesday the hated rival of the local institution, Blaine, will be encountered at Athletic park.

The high school boys have been practicing every afternoon for the past week and are in fairly good condition. The Superior normal is reported to have a very strong team.

BASKET BALL RULES TO BE DISCUSSED JUNE 5.

Philadelphia, May 4.—Announcement was made today that the annual meeting of the intercollegiate basket ball rules committee will be held in New York June 5. Delegates from all sections of the country will be present to discuss possible changes in the rules for next winter.

TO ARRANGE FOR INTERNATIONAL RACE.

New York, May 4.—The Dixie II, Frederick K. Burnham's record-holding speed boat, will probably be the American defender in the race for the British international trophy, or Harmsworth cup. The race will be held off Larchmont, in Long Island sound, on Aug. 20.

James C. Blair, Jr., representing the regatta committee, will reach England early next week to perfect arrangements.

REFEREE TO BE SELECTED

Berger and Little to Confer on Question of Third Man in Ring.

San Francisco, Cal., May 4.—Champion Jack Johnson will be host today at an afternoon affair at his training camp on the ocean beach at which promoters and principals in the Jeffries-Johnson championship match will be invited.

Jeffries may send regrets. The meeting will be a business one and an effort will be made to select the referee for the big fight. Action on the referee was deferred yesterday pending the formality of depositing $30,000 more of the purse in a local bank. Under the original articles of agreement May 4 is the last day upon which the man who is to officiate July 4 in the ring can be chosen and it is said that both Sam Berger, representing Jeffries, and George Little, Johnson's manager, are ready to submit their selections.

Eddie Smith of Oakland and Jack Welch and Eddie Graney of San Francisco still are considered the most likely possibilities.

After the meeting at the bank, Johnson spent the rest of the day in his automobile, spinning around town.

Jeffries at Oakland.

Oakland, Cal., May 4.—Brown and ruddy from his outdoor work, James Jeffries came up from his training quarters at Ben Lomond late yesterday to escort his wife back to camp.

In spite of his trainers' advice to lay off a day or so and take things easy, Jeffries plans to return to camp today, taking an early train. He says he does not wish to break training for more than a day.

"It is no longer any effort for me to work," he said, "and I know I'm soon going to be in bully shape. I wish the fight was the fourth of next month instead of the Fourth of July. I know I could be at my best in another four weeks."

The dash that characterized Jeffries' work of Monday was apparent again in his forenoon work yesterday, and Bob Armstrong came in for a sound drubbing when he sparred for four rounds. The stiffness and soreness in the right shoulder which has been bothering Jeffries seems to have disappeared.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE WILL HOLD MEETING.

The meeting of the conference committee of the Duluth Boat club is scheduled for this afternoon or evening. At the meeting, the racing schedule of the rowing, motor boat and sailing departments will come up. The summer program of the field department will also come up for consideration. It is expected that schedules for the summer's events will be decided upon at the meeting.

"CONVERT WORLD" LAYMEN'S SLOGAN

Big Missionary Meeting Is Continued in Chicago.

Chicago, May 4.—The second day's session of the Men's National Missionary congress was opened today with another general meeting, which was attended by all the delegates. The meetings yesterday were marked with great enthusiam and today "world-wide evangelization in the present generation" was the cry of the delegates. Besides three general meetings there were several conferences of different departments. These included gatherings of lawyers, physicians, Sunday school workers, business men and editors.

Bishop Charles P. Anderson of Chicago made the principal address yesterday. Among other things he said: "Enough energy and money are wasted by rivalry and overlapping of the different denominations in America to preach the gospel to the entire world. We must get together and stop this waste.

ROOSEVELTS RECEIVE ROYAL ATTENTION ON VISIT TO NORWAY

the colonel's arm and the king offered his arm to Mrs. Roosevelt. Followed by Miss Ethel and Kermit, they walked through the royal waiting room, which was half filled with flowers and flags, to the carriages which were in waiting. The party drove at once to the palace. After a brief stop at the palace, the Roosevelts still accompanied by the king and queen and a few members of the royal household, drove to the American legation, where they had luncheon as the guests of American Minister Peirce.

The luncheon was followed by a reception.

If his present plans are carried out, Mr. Roosevelt will remain here until 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, at which time he will proceed for Stockholm.

Tomorrow he will deliver the Nobel prize address at the National theater and in the evening he will be entertained at a banquet. On Friday he will receive the doctor's degree from King Frederick's university.

King and Queen at Station.

Mr. Roosevelt was formally received at the railroad station today by King Haakon and Queen Maud. With the royal party were Premier Konow, foreign minister Irgens, the president of the Storthing, C. C. Bernel and members of the Nobel prize committee.

The meeting of their majesties and the former president was cordial. During the exchange of greetings the band played American airs. Great crowds in the streets cheered Mr. Roosevelt as he drove to the palace. The buildings along the way were elaborately decorated, American flags being entwined with the Norwegian colors.

From Kornsjo to the capital the Roosevelts occupied a special train sent for them by the government. The train was in charge of Superintendent of State Railways Aas and his staff, who are responsible for the safe movements of the royal train.

The conductor wore broad leather belt bearing the arms of Norway. There was special significance in this, as the belt is designed to indicate that royalty is traveling. A dining car was attached to the train, and this morning the Roosevelts breakfast consisted of fruits, oatmeal and cream, fresh caught trout and bacon and eggs.

Greeted for Nobel Committee.

Dr. Hagerup, Norwegian minister to Denmark and twice premier of Norway, was on the train and greeted Dr. Roosevelt on behalf of the Nobel prize committee.

At Rygge the train party was joined by Herbert H. D. Pierce, American minister to Norway, and Charles D. White, secretary of the American legation.

The forenoon trip through the southeast corner of Norway was enlivened by frequent demonstrations. At every place along the route the school children had been given a partial holiday in order that they might see the distinguished American. The train stopped at a few stations and steamed slowly past others. In every instance children crowded the station platforms and waving their hats and handkerchiefs, gave a variety of school yells.

"Like American Yell"

There was a large gathering at Moss, where a stop was made. Boys from the high school gave nine short cheers, which drew Mr. Roosevelt to an open window of the car.

"That sounds like an American college yell," he said. "I wish you and the grownups good luck."

The boys cheered again as the train drew out of the station.

Two Danish Loving Cups.

Copenhagen, May 4.—Col. Roosevelt was the recipient here yesterday of two loving cups, one bearing the Danish coat of arms and the other the American arms, and also four placques from he royal porcelain works, upon which were pictured several wild beasts. In making the presentation, the manager of the works told Mr. Roosevelt that they were "wild beasts of Africa."

Mr. Roosevelt accepted the placques graciously, and while examining the figure of an elephant, looked up suddenly and said smilingly:

"This is not an African elephant."

"That is quite true," replied the manager. "These pieces were made specially. We have no study of African elephants, and so used Asiatic."

The incident caused a great deal of amusement, and the colonel remarked: "I am very glad to have all kinds of elephants."

Guest of the City.

The municipality gave a dinner at the city hall in honor of the ex-president, which was attended by 250 of the leading men of the city. This took place at 6 o'clock in the evening, so as to allow plenty of time to catch the train. The lord mayor presided, and all the members of the cabinet were present.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a speech, touched upon the similarity of the problems confronting all free countries. He was cheered when he left the dinner, and the big crowds that had gathered outside the city hall repeated the ovation.

During the course of the day the Roosevelt party returning to Copenhagen from Elsinore on the steamer Queen Maud, passed between squadrons of Danish and Swedish warships that accorded honors to the former chief executive of the United States which are usually paid only to royalty.

S. S. S. CURES OLD BLOOD TROUBLES

The only possible way to cure Contagious Blood poison is to remove the cause by purifying the blood. This is just what S. S. S. does; and it is the only medicine that absolutely and thoroughly cleanses the circulation of every particle of the germs and virus of the disease. Mercury, Potash, and other strong minerals are often used in the hope that such powerful treatment will kill the germs, but this can not be done, and when the mineral medicines are left off the trouble always returns with its aggravating symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, skin eruptions, falling hair, yellow skin splotches, swollen glands, and often running sores. The ability of S. S. S. to cure Contagious Blood Poison comes from its unfailing blood-purifying properties. It goes into the circulation and removes every trace of the infection, makes the blood rich and healthy, and leaves no dregs of the virus to break out later on. S. S. S. does not contain a particle of mineral in any form, but is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks each of which has a direct and specific action in cleansing the blood. In addition it contains the extracts of certain botanical herbs which make it the finest of all tonics, which is a necessary quality for a medicine in curing Contagious Blood Poison. Home Treatment book, containing much valuable information and instruction to be found nowhere else, will be sent sealed and post paid, free to all who write and request it.

FORECAST TILL 7 P. M. THURSDAY.

For Duluth, Superior and vicinity including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges—Partly cloudy weather tonight and Thursday. Not much change in temperature. Probably frost tonight. Moderate to brisk easterly winds.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

Observations taken at 8 a. m., seventy-fifth meridian time. Air pressure reduced to sea level.

Isobars, or continuous lines, pass through points of equal air pressure.

Isotherms, or dotted lines, pass through points of equal temperature; they will be drawn only for zero, freezing, 90°, and 100°.

Symbols indicate state of weather: ○ clear; ◒ partly cloudy; ● cloudy; (R) rain; (S) snow; (M) report missing. Arrows fly with the wind. First figure, temperature; second, 24-hour rainfall, if it equals .01 inch; third, wind velocity of 10 miles per hour or more.

FAIR

The weather man is cavilling the turn quite regularly on the fair weather, but nobody would complain if he would put the northeast wind under wraps and put a few extra units into the sunshine. Duluth has known blizzards in May, however, so let's all rejoice for what we have.

A year ago today was cloudy with a promise of rain held out.

The sun rose this morning at 4:47 and it will set at 7:22, giving fourteen hours and thirty-two minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The western disturbance has increased in intensity but remains central over Utah. During the past twenty-four hours it caused rains in Southern Utah, Nevada and Oregon, and warmer weather throughout the Northwest, the Rocky mountains and eastern slopes. The Minnesota high pressure has moved its center to Lake Superior. It caused further frosts in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, the Lake region and Ohio valley states this morning, and somewhat cooler weather in the Lower Mississippi and Ohio valleys and Southeastern states. A continuance of northeasterly winds is indicated for the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes—Moderate northeast to east winds. Fair tonight and Thursday. Slightly warmer Thursday.

Chicago, May 4.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours, ending at 7 p. m. Thursday:

Upper Michigan—Fair tonight with heavy frost; Thursday, fair and slightly warmer.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight and Thursday; slowly rising temperature; frost tonight.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Thursday; warmer in south and west portions tonight; frost in east portion tonight.

Iowa—Fair and warmer tonight; Thursday increasing cloudiness and warmer.

North Dakota—Fair and warmer tonight; Thursday, increasing cloudiness.

South Dakota—Increasing cloudiness and warmer tonight, becoming unsettled Thursday.

Montana—Unsettled weather with probably rain tonight or Thursday; colder in north and west portions Thursday.

TAFT LIKELY TO USE VETO?

clubs' game. From there he was driven to the American league park, where the Cleveland and St. Louis clubs played.

After the ball game, President Taft will motor through the residence section and will be taken to a dinner of the Traffic club. When he is finished speaking at the Traffic club's dinner he will be taken to his train, which is scheduled to start for Washington at 1:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

Talks About Canal Work.

Mr. Taft at the conclusion of breakfast spoke briefly. He referred to the fact that the Commercial club of St. Louis had visited Panama some years ago and had warmly indorsed the canal project. He said he hoped the club would find an opportunity to go again.

"It needs two trips," continued the president, "to the isthmus to understand what is being done there; to realize the enormous enterprise that is being carried on by the army engineers without noise, without advertising, and, I am glad to say, without slander or scandal.

"It is of inestimable benefit to have men in charge of a work like this in whom the people have absolute faith. Slanderers, blackmailers and makers of scandal are met by the high confidence the people have in the army engineers, and their wares are no longer marketable."

ocratic state representatives who will give important evidence before the special grand jury in regard to the alleged bribery in the election of William Lorimer as United States senator," said State's Attorney John Wayman today on his return from a mysterious visit to St. Louis and the southern part of Illinois.

"These witnesses will appear before the grand jury on Saturday and tell some important things about the election of Mr. Lorimer," continued Mr. Wayman. "I am not at liberty to give their names, but I will say they are members of the state legislature whose names have not been mentioned thus far in the investigation. Their identity will be a complete surprise.

Was "Highly Successful."

"I brought no one back with me. I left Detective Murnane of my office in St. Louis to finish up the work there. The two men in question will positively appear before the jury on Saturday.

"I consider that my trip to St. Louis has been highly successful. I have nothing more to say."

Mr. Wayman disappeared after the grand jury session Monday and did not say where he was going. It was not known here until word came from St. Louis last night that he was there. The grand jury was in session only a short time and no evidence was heard in the Lorimer case because of Mr. Wayman's absence.

Fifteen Solons to Testify.

At his office today State's Attorney Wayman said that he expected fifteen state representatives and senators would appear before the grand jury before its sessions are concluded.

The first witnesses today were Representative Charles A. White, who alleges that he accepted $1,000 to cast his vote for Lorimer; Senator Albert E. Isley of Newton, Ills., who made the first speech in the legislature denouncing Lorimer as a candidate, and Representative Henry A. Shephard of Jerseyville, Ills.

Representative Thomas Tippet of Olney, Ills., was present at the state's attorney's office. Tippet was a candidate for the minority leadership against Lee O'Neill Browne, who is alleged by Representative White to have disbursed the so-called Lorimer "slush fund."

The three legislators, all of whom are Democrats, said they were present in answer to telegrams from State's Attorney Wayman. Tippet and Shephard voted for Lorimer, but Isley held out for the Democratic candidate, Stringer. Shephard is one of those alleged by White to have been at the Southern hotel, St. Louis, when the "jackpot" composed of miscellaneous bribes was distributed.

Will Tell Common Gossip.

To reporters Mr. Isley said that he would testify as to the common gossip at Springfield that Democratic votes were being bought with money in behalf of the Lorimer candidacy.

That State's Attorney Burke of Sangamon county, of which Springfield is the seat, intends to push an independent inquiry into the bribery charges, was made evident here today when a subpoena was served on White commanding his appearance before the Sangamon county grand jury next Monday.

TELLS CONDITIONS AT STEEL WORKS

Bureau of Labor Report Says Men Worked Seven Days a Week.

Washington, May 4.—The report of the bureau of labor upon the conditions at the Bethlehem Steel works at South Bethlehem, Pa., which was submitted to the senate today, says that 2,322 men worked twelve hours a day for seven weeks, a large percentage of these laborers earning only 12½ cents an hour.

'The automobile which made and holds the transcontinental record is unequaled as a traveler upon American roads.

Four years ago a Model H six-cylinder Franklin set the ocean-to-ocean record, and its time has never been equaled or approached. In fifteen days, two hours and twelve minutes it covered the distance from San Francisco to New York.

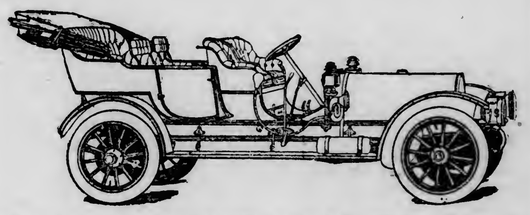
That achievement stands, and has stood, a constant challenge to all.

The transcontinental run, in anything like record time, is the greatest of all automobile touring tests. It presents every known type of difficulty, from mud flats to steep mountain grades, from miles of sand to rocky climbs.

That the Franklin makes the fastest touring time everywhere on American roads is due not only to the power of its engine but to the resiliency of construction.

Resiliency gives not only riding comfort and makes the automobile a smooth and easy traveler, but the more resilient an automobile is the stronger and lighter it can be.

Franklin Model H is the highest example of six-cylinder engineering. There is a peculiar charm in its six-cylinder smoothness and flexibility. It takes the hills as only a perfect six-cylinder can. It is exceptionally quiet. There is a complete absence of the jarring and jolting; you feel no vibration. It is difficult to realize that a big, powerful automobile can be guided and maneuvered with such freedom and ease. It rides like the finest carriage. It answers any tests to which it is put on hills or levels.



Model H, six-cylinder, 42-horse-power, $3750 f. o. b. Syracuse. (Top extra)

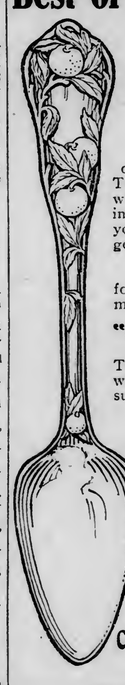
Best of All Our Oranges and Lemons Are "Sunkist"



We pick, pack and ship over 20,000 cars of California oranges and lemons each season from our 5,000 groves. These are of varying grades. From all this vast quantity we select the finest—the superior grades—which we wrap in tissue paper bearing the famous "Sunkist" label so that you may know them as the choicest fruit. So be sure to get "Sunkist" oranges and lemons at your dealer's.

He has a fresh supply today.

"Sunkist" oranges ripen on the tree. The warm California sunshine gives a tender, sweet pulp, matured and made exquisitely juicy by Nature.

"Sunkist" Navel Oranges Are Seedless

These oranges are distinct, full-flavor, thin-skinned. They are picked by gloved-hands; thoroughly cleansed; wrapped in "Sunkist" tissue paper; packed carefully to insure firm, unbruised fruit.

How to Tell "Sunkist"

Each "Sunkist" orange and lemon is wrapped in tissue paper upon which is printed the "Sunkist" label. Lemons or oranges without "Sunkist" wrappers are not "Sunkist" brand.

Free—Heat Rogers' Orange Spoons—Send us 12 "Sunkist" orange or lemon wrappers and 6 two-cent stamps for postage, packing, etc., and we will send free, a Wm. Rogers & Son full standard, AA plate orange spoon. For each additional spoon send 6 two-cent stamps and 12 wrappers. You can easily have a full set. Get a dozen "Sunkist" oranges or lemons and send for your first spoon. Address

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS

Exercises Will Be Held in the Schools Friday, May 27.

Rev. J. W. Powell Will Preach to Veterans May 29.

The joint committee of Culver and Gorman posts, G. A. R., and the committee of the Citizens' staff on plans for Memorial day, met at noon today and talked over the plans for the observance of the day in Duluth. All of the details have not yet been arranged, but the general program has been decided upon.

The usual exercises will be held in the schools of the city on May 27, the Friday before Memorial day. At least one member of the Grand Army and one member of the citizens' staff will visit each school in the city and they will talk to the students on the proper manner of honoring the departed heroes of the nation.

Sunday, May 29, Memorial services will be held in the Endion M. E. church. They will be attended by the members of the two Grand Army posts and others. Rev. John Walker Powell, pastor of the church, will preach an appropriate sermon.

The usual plan of observance will be followed on Memorial day. The parade in the morning will be headed by the Third Regiment band and the procession will include the members of the Grand Army posts, Spanish War veterans, Sons of Veterans, the three Duluth companies of the Minnesota National Guard, the two divisions of the Minnesota Naval Reserves, members of the citizens staff and pupils of the Sixth Seventh and Eighth grades and the high schools of the city.

The decoration of the graves of soldiers buried in Duluth will be followed by exercises a the First M. E. church. The speaker will be Rev. Alexander Milne, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational church. Lincoln's Gettysburg address will be read by Warren E. Greene. The musical program will be in charge of Horace W. Reyner.

The parade will be the most pretentious ever attempted. It will be in charge of Lieut. Col. Resche, M. N. G., and the different organizations will urge their members to turn out and do honor to the nation's dead.

OLDEST DAUGHTER OF KING EDWARD OF ENGLAND AND HER HUSBAND

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF FIFE.

This is a new photograph of King Edward's oldest daughter, the Duchess of Fife and her husband. The duchess was Princess Louise, princess royal and was born on Feb. 20, 1867. She married the duke on July 27, 1889. They have two children, Alexandra Victoria and Maud Alexandra. The Duke of Fife was born on Nov. 10, 1849, son of the fifth earl and Agnes daughter of the seventeenth Earl of Erroll. He owns about 249,300 acres of land. He was for nine years vice president of the Chartered Company of South Africa.

COPPERS HAVE BETTER TONE

Close at Top of Slight Bulge Caused By Overselling.

The market was oversold today and it displayed some strength. After a firm opening stocks fluctuated within a narrow range, closing at the top of a slight swell. There was no significance to the trend of the market and values were firm only because there was considerable profit taking by shorts. There was no buying of an investment character and the public was not interested. The professional element did not accumulate for speculative purposes and there were no indications of assistance from strong financial interests.

Outside of the support from shorts, the strength was of a reflected character. It was communicated from the railroads which were firm because of a higher London market after the holiday there and an advance in Southern Pacific, which, it is rumored, will soon cut a "melon." The industrials were stronger because of a fair volume of buying in Steel, which gave that issue a moderately healthy tone although only continued accumulation held it up. The decline in the volume of the pig iron and steel business is not conducive to bullish activity in Steel.

The copper metal situation is weak. There is no fixed quotation for the metal and prices are demoralized. The large consumers are not in the market and there is talk on the part of the selling agencies of reducing prices drastically to stimulate the consumptive demand. Calumet & Hecla cut prices a few days ago to 13c in order to get business and similar methods may be forced upon other selling agencies if they desire to get rid of their stocks.

The full paid Butte-Alex Scott sold at $5.93¾; Butte-Ballaklava at $9.50; Butte & Superior at $1.87½; Calumet & Corbin at 76 cents; Calumet & Sonora at $17.25 to $17.12½; Keating at $1.12½; Sierra at $3.13¾.

Amalgamated sold at $65 to $66.37½ and down to $66; Butte Coalition at $18 to $18.25; Steel common at $80.37½ to $81.62½ to $81.50; North Butte at $30.50 to $31; Superior & Pittsburg at $11.50 to $11.25.

It was announced today that the North Butte Mining company will issue 10,000 shares of its treasury stock for the purchase of the Croesus claim, which lies between the Berlin and the Jessie. The company has complete ownership of the Croesus and it is likely that development work on the property will be prosecuted vigorously.

Of the 600,000 shares of North Butte, 400,000 are outstanding.

John A. Percival, secretary of Butte Ballaklava; M. W. Lee and J. H. Robbers of Duluth have returned from an inspection of the mine at Butte. Mr. Percival said that the production of copper in April was 457,000 pounds and of silver 26,000 ounces. The average returns per car for the month amounted to $795. The April record was made with the old holst. The new holst is now in operation. The May production will be twice that of April.

The ore sent to a smelter came from the 800-foot level where the company is opening one of the largest and most valuable deposits that has been encountered in the Butte district in several years, said Mr. Percival. The vein in the west drift on the 800-foot level was thirty feet wide and the foot wall had not been reached, according to the last news received here. The same body of ore has been encountered on the 900-foot level.

OBITUARY

Levi M. Stewart, supposed to be the richest man in Minneapolis, died Tuesday afternoon of inflammation of the lungs and senility. Mr. Stewart had been at death's door for over a year. He was the largest real estate holder in Minneapolis and his estate is computed to be worth many millions. For many years he lived the life of an eccentric old bachelor in a small wooden shanty situated in the heart of the city.

Rev. Samuel J. Rogers, retired minister of Minneapolis, was stricken with apoplexy while addressing the Minnesota Congregational conference in Minneapolis, May 3. He was removed to a hospital and died two hours later without regaining consciousness.

John Scott Beatty, 90 years old, a veteran of the Mexican and Civil wars, is dead in Anoka, Minn., at the home of his son, Frank Beatty. At the age of 8 years he was presented to Andrew Jackson and, seated on the knee of "Old Hickory," he pledged himself to always vote the Democratic ticket. He kept his vow and to the last was a staunch Democrat. His death was caused by ailments incident to old age.

John L. Beveridge, former governor of Illinois, died today at his home in Hollywood, near Los Angeles, Cal., May 3. John Lourie Beveridge served four years as governor of Illinois, beginning in 1873. He entered the volunteer army in 1861 as major of the Eighth Illinois cavalry and participated in the battles of Fair Oaks, Malvern Hill, Fredericksburg and Gettysburg. In the winter of 1863-64 he organized the Seventeenth Illinois cavalry, of which he was commissioned colonel. He served to the end of the war, when he was mustered out with the brevet rank of brigadier general. In 1870 he was elected congressman at large. Two years later he was chosen lieutenant general and when Governor Oglesby was elected to the senate Gen. Beveridge succeeded him. He removed to California fifteen years ago. Kuhne E. Beveridge, the sculptress, and Baroness Ray von Wrede are grandchildren of the decedent.

John K. MacComber, aged 76 years, a prominent Iowa attorney, died suddenly at his residence, in Des Moines, May 3. He was born in Massachusetts and was educated at Ames and in Cornell university. He was prosecuting attorney of Polk county four years.

Dr. Noah Knowles Davis, who had held the chair of moral philosophy in the University of Virginia for many years, died at Charlottesville, Va., May 3.

Cyrus Saxton, who was prominent in the early history of Northwest Missouri as a freighter, died at his home near St. Joseph, Mo., May 4, aged 76 years.

OSTRICH A WARY BIRD

About Hiding Its Head in Sand—Beauty of Feathers.

In real life the ostrich, like that other proverbial idiot, the goose, is one of the wariest of birds and most difficult of approach. The eggs are laid in a hollow in the sand, several females using the same nest (the male bird being polygamous), around which the sand is again banked up to the height of a foot or two, one such nest having been known to contain as many as eighty eggs, though from thirty to thirty-five is a commoner number.

In the more tropical parts of its habitat, it is true, having covered the eggs with sand, the birds leave them—at least in the daytime—that the sun may do the incubating. We may indeed rest assured that nature would not allow ostrich eggs to be left to the ripening of the sun if experience had not shown that it was better for the eggs. In more temperate climates the birds do their own incubating, and while the hen ostrich possesses a normal share of the parental instinct, in the male bird it is developed in a quite unusual degree.

It is the male bird that sits upon the eggs at night, while in the daytime the hens relieve each other, and to such lengths does he carry his paternal solicitude that when individual eggs are particularly long in hatching he is said to crack them with his beak and shake the youngsters out. Later the father seems to risk his own life lightly to protect his family. Often on the approach of an enemy he has been known to throw himself on the ground and pretend to be crippled, like other and more familiar birds in England, and even to make repeated feints of attacking a man on horseback until the young have had time to get away.

That ostriches hide their heads in the sand and think that their bodies are thereby hidden seems to be pure myth, says the London Times. Old birds on the nest and young birds when seeking to evade notice squat close to the ground and stretch their necks out flat on the sand. In the case of the young, which harmonize as perfectly with their sandy surroundings as a young ringed plover do with the stones on a beach, the ruse is said to render them almost invisible; and on the wide expanses of the desert it is evident that the upright neck of a sitting bird would render it unnecessarily conspicuous to a marauding enemy. But there is no more ground for accusing the ostrich of "self-illusion" than there is of bringing the same charge against the partridge chick, which by merely sitting still among the grass practically disappears from sight.

Perhaps man would have been more courteous to the ostrich if the ostrich had insisted more punctiliously on its dignity, but it is not proud. With a finely catholic appetite it does not hesitate to beg or swallow pence from the humblest visitor to the Gardens, so that in course of time the bird may become a perambulating savings bank. An ostrich has been known to pick up and swallow bullets hot from the mould.

One which died in the Zoological Gardens had by assiduity accumulated nine-pence-halfpenny in coppers, and Cuvier found inside another metal odds and ends to the weight of almost a pound. Yet another is recorded to have died possessed of a silver medal and the cross of an Italian order, both of which may be assumed to have been more valuable to the original owners than to the bird, for though the ostrich may have a coat to its stomach, as a writer pointed out at the time, it can only be regarded as at best an indifferent surface for display.

The beauty of an ostrich feather is largely owing to the fact that in the eye of science it is what is known as degenerate. In the feathers of ordinary birds which are used for flight the barbs, the individual plumes or filaments on either side of the quill, are furnished with minute hooks, of which Dr. Gadow has reckoned about 800,000 on fifteen inches of a crane's feather. By these one barb fastens itself to the edge of the nest, so forming a continuous web, in which, as we all know, it takes some appreciable force to make a fissure.

In the ostrich the feathers, having become idle, have lost the hooks, so that each barb falls loose and unsupported by its neighbors. Having ceased to overlap so as to form an air resisting surface for purposes of flight, moreover, the barbs on both sides of the ostrich feather have grown to equal length, whereby not only is its beauty enhanced but it has furnished man with an emblem of the justice which leans not to one side or the other.

As an article of diet itself the ostrich under the Mosaic law was classed among the unclean fowl; but it has always been highly prized by many African tribes, and it is said that the thighs of a young ostrich make excellent meat. Heliogabalus is credited with serving at a single supper the brains of 600 of the birds, while the pseudo Emperor Firmus claimed to have himself eaten a whole ostrich at a sitting, a feat the miraculousness of which would depend considerably on the age of the ostrich.

Its flesh, however, fortunately for it, can never be as valuable as its feathers, and, most ancient of birds, we may be sure that it will also, even though in captivity, be one of the last to survive. Dead ostriches do not grow feathers, and just as certainly as man's greed will conspire with woman's vanity to exterminate the white egret, the lyre bird the greater bird of paradise, and many another creature of beatuiful plumage, so will the same motives insure the perpetuation of the breed of ostriches. In its feathers it carries a charm to secure it immortality.

Turkish Bath Cures Rheumatism at Home

Costs But 2c a Bath, and the Body Is Rid of Uric Acid Poison, With Astonishing Rapidity.

Quickly Cures Kidney Trouble, Nervous Prostration and All Skin Diseases.

The Robinson Thermal or Turkish bath, taken at home, is becoming a rage. Those who have used the bath have been completely carried away with enthusiasm because of the astonishing results obtained.

Well-known physicians say that the Robinson Thermal Bath at home, is about to become an almost universal conquerer of disease. This is not an exaggeration. Any man or woman can prove its results inside of 24 hours, in some cases 30 minutes.

In cases of rheumatism, especially, the uric acid poison is extracted from the system through the pores, almost as liquids are sucked up through a straw. Drugs merely smother the poison or ease the pain. They do not extract the poison from the body.

Just read this letter:

"I loaned my cabinet to an old friend all crippled up with rheumatism, last May. Feet, legs and hands badly swollen. He had spent some time at different Hot Springs without relief. A week ago he started in to use the cabinet, taking the steam heat in the morning and the dry heat at night, before going to bed. He kept this up a week, and yesterday and today he was as well as ever."

"GEO. A. FREEMAN,
"Mgr. Temptation Mining & Milling Co., Silverton, Colo."

Any one can now take Robinson Thermal baths at home and at a cost of only about 2c a bath. They are the best spring medicine, too. They make the thick, sluggish blood normal, take out the impurities and cure "spring fever" right off. The only way to take these baths is by the use of the Robinson Thermal Bath Cabinet, which is a unique and marvelous invention.

The Robinson Thermal Bath Cabinets can now be seen and examined in Duluth at A. E. Swedberg, White Swan Drug Co., Lyceum Pharmacy and Lenox Drug store—two stores, W. A. Abbett—three stores, A. C. Le Richeux—three stores, Holmberg Drug Co., Superior; H. J. Cameron, Superior; A. J. Lindgren, West Duluth; Red Cross Pharmacy, Superior, Wis.

Ask the dealer also for a copy of that great book, "The Philosophy of Health and Beauty." The regular price is $2.00, but you can get one free now for only a limited time.

If you cannot go yourself, just send your name and address to the Robinson Manufacturing company, Suite 16, Snowflake Bldg., Toledo, Ohio, for full information, free.

AMERICAN LOCK OPENS

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—This afternoon, about 2 o'clock, water was let in the American canal. Preparations did not go on as rapidly as was expected yesterday, and the intention to fill last night had to be abandoned. Early tomorrow morning locking will commence. It is figured that it will take forty-eight hours, or over, to clear away the waiting vessels.

RECEIPTS AND SHIPMENTS

Report of Duluth Collector of Customs for Month of April.

Exports from the port of Duluth to foreign countries during the month of April were valued at $477,357, according to the report of L. M. Willcutts, collector of customs. The value of the imports from foreign countries was $11,477.

There were ninety-one arrivals and 112 clearances recorded at the office of the collector during the month. The receipts amounted to 71,840 tons, itemized as follows: Coal, 59,485 tons; sugar 900 bbl.; cement, 1,100 tons; fresh fish, 7,976 bbl; salt fish, 69,000 bbl; merchandise, 3,152 tons.

The shipments from the port of Duluth amounted to 389,068 tons, itemized as follows: Wheat, 1,054,500 bu.; flax, 21,000 bu.; feed, 800 tons; ore, 340,200 tons; copper, 150 tons; lumber, 6,575,000 ft.; lime, 1,100 bbl.; merchandise, 923 tons.

Thirty-seven boats arrived at Two Harbors and the same number cleared. Receipts consisted of 3,000 tons of coal and shipments consisted of 249,308 tons of ore, 500,000 ft. of lumber and 900 cords of pulp-wood.

SUPERIOR

STANDARD OIL IS GIVEN PERMIT

Three Aldermen Change Attitude and Council Reconsiders Its Action.

Reconsidering the action taken at the last meeting, the council last evening granted a permit to the Standard Oil company to erect its tanks on the property along the St. Louis bay front. When the proposition was first voted upon, the council turned it down, but three of the aldermen changed their votes last evening, and the resolution was carried by a vote of 12 to 8.

The aldermen voted as follows:

Yea—Anderson, Domsch, Dillon, Ekstram, Hallam, Idler, McGuire, Morrisette, Shafer, Tomlinson, Weiss.

Nay—Cymiskey, Hagreen, Keaough, Kennedy, Paddock, Roise, Russel and Sorenson.

Changed since last vote—Domsch, Ekstrom, Shafer.

The John avenue paving matter came up at the council meeting last evening, but property owners present disagreed as to what kind of pavement was wanted. Those having property south of Winter street want a nobleless pavement, while those north wanted a brick pavement. The council will reject all offers and readvertise for bids. The avenue is to be paved between Third and Belknap streets.

The council ordered a large number of sidewalks laid in various parts of the city. The First ward comes in for considerable work. Practically all of the walks are to be laid five or six feet wide, the principal exceptions being the walks on Baker and Walker avenues, which are to be but four feet wide, and those on North Third street and North Fifth street at the West end, which are required to be eight feet in width.

* * *

It was learned at the council meeting last evening that President Pennington and Chief Engineer Green of the Soo line would be in Superior the latter part of the week to hold a consultation with Mayor Crumpton and the city council in regard to the building of the proposed ore dock line through the Ninth ward.

TAX COMMISSION DOES NOT FAVOR THE CHANGE.

Superior will meet with but little encouragement in her efforts to have the state laws affecting the taxation of railroad terminals changed should the matter be brought up before the next session of the legislature, as far as the state taxation commission is concerned, according to N. P. Haugen, a member of the commission, who was a guest in the city yesterday.

Mr. Haugen stated that he does not think it wise to make a change in the proposed method of taxation, for fear that the whole plan of taxation of the railroads might be upset.

Dean Russell Lectures.

Dean H. L. Russell of the state agricultural school at Madison spoke last evening to a fair-sized audience at the Commercial club. He paid tribute to the possibilities of Northern Wisconsin, declaring that it will become more important within the next twenty-five years than the southern part. The lecture was illustrated.

PLEADS GUILTY TO RAISING BILL

Hiram Lepper Will Be Taken Before Court at St. Paul.

Hiram Lepper, alias Charles Cook, pleaded guilty to "raising" a United States silver certificate from $1 to $10, when arraigned before United States Commissioner T. H. Pressnell this morning. He was taken to St. Paul this afternoon by Deputy United States Marshal J. G. Mallory and in default of $1,000 bonds, he will be held in jail at St. Paul until the meeting of the grand jury June 1. It is expected that an indictment will be returned against him by the grand jury and he will be sentenced at that time.

Lepper was arrested at Superior last week on a charge of drunkenness. Several $1 bills, so altered as to show an attempt at raising their denomination, were found on him and suspicion was aroused that he had been guilty of a crime. Frank W. Sommers, a United States secret service man, was called from St. Paul and he identified Lepper, who had previously served five years in the federal prison at Atlanta for the same offence. On being indentified Lepper admitted his guilt.

The charge on which he was arraigned today grows out of an offense alleged to have been committed at St. Paul, April 22, when Lepper is said to have passed one of the raised bills. He admitted his guilt and philosophically said he was ready to suffer for the crime.

QUEEN CARES FOR THE SICK.

Bystander: If Ferdinand of Bulgaria is unpopular in the land of his adoption at least his marriage has won approval. For Queen Eleanor nursing has always been a favorite pastime, and nothing touches the heart of a people so much as a queen who can care for the sick. As queen of Bulgaria she now continues the work she undertook as princess of Reuss, when she worked with heroic devotion during the campaign in Manchuria, and has already founded a home for the blind and another for the deaf and dumb in Sofia.

Queen Eleanor has never been fond of the pomp of court life. In the little principality of Reuss she avoided all but charity functions, and possibly does not look forward with much pleasure to court balls and court functions, for which the primitive society of Sofia has so long pined. King Ferdinand has the old French love of ceremony. When he visited Marienbad with his late mother he could be seen climbing up the hills followed by a suite, for without his suite he never travels.

PROMINENT MEMBER OF SOCIETY IN THE EAST

MRS. BENJAMIN THAW.

New York, May 4.—Mrs. Benjamin Thaw is a prominent member of society in Pittsburg, New York and Newport. The Thaws recently sold their New York home, and leased the Livingston Beelman house on Fifth avenue at an annual rental of $50,000. They have homes in Pittsburg and Newport as well as in New York. Each of these homes is fitted with a superb music room. Mrs. Thaw has a good mezzo soprano voice. She was formerly Miss Elsa Dows. Her daughter, Miss Henrietta, will soon make her debut in society.

ALL HER MONEY IN THE FLAMES

Mrs. Borske Kept Her Savings in Mattress and Sofa.

Frantic with fear that her little hoard of savings would be destroyed, Mrs. M. Borske fought with the firemen yesterday afternoon to get into her burning house at 21 East Tenth street. The firemen prevented her from risking her life, and when at last they understood her motive they made every effort to save her money.

Distrustful of banks, Mrs. Borske had hidden away in a mattress $65 and in a lounge was $25 more. When flames attacked the house she was away from home, but no sooner did she arrive on the scene than she attempted to enter the building.

Firemen held her away from the entrance while she cried and moaned in anticipation of her loss and it was some time before she succeeded in making them understand what she wanted. Then they braved the flames and threw out the mattress, in which the $65 was found intact. The lounge, however was burned and only $5 of the $25 stowed away in it was recovered. That was a gold piece. The other $20 was in paper.

BAR ALCOHOL FROM DRUG STORE GOODS

Pharmaceutical Association Advocates Such Action at Its Meeting.

Richmond, Va., May 4.—The most drastic and important action taken by the American Pharmaceutical association since that body convened here yesterday morning, occurred today when the convention as a whole placed itself on record as advocating the abolition of alcohol as a commodity of sale in all American drug stores, and earnestly urged the elimination of all traffic in what is termed "habit-forming drugs," as harmful to public morals and detrimental to the best interests of the American people.

FRENCH SAVING WAYS.

New York Sun: "One of the things that strike a foreigner visiting New York," said an observant Frenchman the other day, "is the fact that so many Americans have no idea of the value of money. They do not know how to economize in little things, or if they do they do not care to.

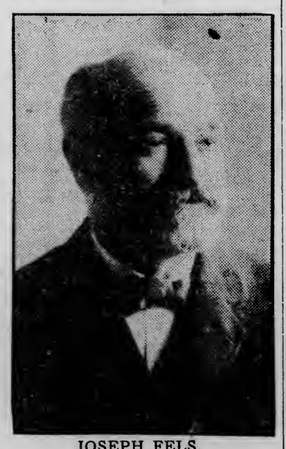
"Saving $5 may appeal to them, but saving 5 cents—no. In France we believe that saving the 5 cents makes it possible for us to save $5.

"Here is a case in point: The other day I saw a woman, evidently of the poorer class, and a child climb up the stairway of the Sixth avenue elevated station at Twenty-eighth street. She got off the train at Twenty-third street. She paid 10 cens for the ride, and she probably paid the same sum going back. In Paris anybody would have walked the distance.

"I was amazed upon going out of my hotel the other day to see a big, husky cab driver having his boots polished. He probably paid 10 cents for the job. In Europe a cab driver would have had his own brushes and blacking.

"It is this saving habit that makes France a rich country and gives our people the wherewithal to buy American securities. It is the absence of the knowledge of how to save in small things, or putting of it into practice, that keeps so many of your people from being thrifty and makes the distance so great between your millionaires and your ordinary laborers."

MILLIONAIRE WORKING FOR SINGLE TAX IDEA



JOSEPH FELS.

Philadelphia, May 4.—Joseph Fels, "millionaire agitator," is a new type of philanthropist. He recently caused a sensation in a speech at Chicago by stating that the only way to get rich nowadays is by robbing the people. Mr. Fels, like Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller and Mrs. Sage, has established a fund, but his fund is not for libraries, investigation or charity. He does not believe in charity. The Fels Fund of America, aggregating $250,000, will be used in a propaganda of the Henry George singe tax theory, which means the government ownership of land values. Mr. Fels lives in Philadelphia and is head of a soap company.

MAY BE SUCCESSOR OF GATTI-CASAZZO

HENRY RUSSELL.

Boston, Mass., May 4.—Henry Russell, director of the Boston Opera house and advisory associate of the Metropolitan, has been mentioned as a possible successor to Gatti-Casazza when the latter's contract with the Metropolitan expires. Mr. Russell has had wonderful success with grand opera in Boston. He is now in Paris looking for new voices. He has announced through the press an invitation to all unknown singers to let him hear their voices.

SCORES IN HEINZE CASE

Prosecution Drives Schultze to Say He Believed in Syndicate.

Is First Big Gain Made By the Government in the Trial.

New York, May 4.—With the mass of documentary evidence in the government recalled Max H. Schultze of the Otto Heinze firm and questioned concerning his accounts as trustee for certain United Copper dealing through which it was sought to prove the defendant's relation to the stock pools, when the case against F. Augustus Heinze, charged with misapplying the funds of the Mercantile National bank and over-certifying the checks of his brother's firm, Otto Heinze & Co., was called before Judge Pough in circuit court today.

Mr. Wise finally got him to say he thought there was a syndicate of 225,000 shares of United Copper stock in 1907. Mr. Wise asked him about the heavy dividends paid F. A. Heinze, himself, and others, and was told the books would have to show whether they were members of the syndicate. The books are missing.

Big Point Gained.

The prosecutor then asked Mr. Schultze this question:

"You must say that these persons were beneficiaries of that 225,000 shares syndicate when I show you that a 1¾ quarterly dividend on a capital of about 250,000 shares of copper stocks amounts to the sum paid out?"

"Yes, I must so answer," was the reply.

This evidence regarding the existence of a syndicate in 1907 was the first big score made by the government.

SENATE PASSES THE PENSION APPROPRIATIONS.

Washington, May 4.—In less than fifteen minutes' time the senate today considered and passed the pension appropriation bill carrying about $155,000,000. Senator Scott, who was in charge of the bill, said that 31,000 pensioners had died last year.

THE SECRET OUT.

A young man from Kansas City was talking to a young woman from the same town whom he had met by accident at a matinee in New York. The woman was married. The man was not, says the New York Sun.

"You've heard that we're to have a new union station back home?" the woman asked, to make conversation.

"Oh, of course," the young man answered. "I get all the news. I get a letter from Kansas City every day."

The woman began to laugh.

"So when you go back home for that vacation you're going to be married," she mused.

"How did you know that?" the man cried. "We both said we wouldn't tell, and now she's—"

"You told me yourself a few seconds ago, everything but the date," she answered. "You see, no matter how fond your brother may be of you, or your uncles or aunts or your mother or father, none of these would send you a letter every day. There's only one person who writes a letter every day, and that's a girl who's engaged to be married. For the rest of my sentence I added two and two."

"You're right," the man mused. "Say, a married man must have to play close to the bases. It must be like living with a mind reader."

PORCUPINES KILL ALASKAN TREES.

Cordova North Star: Milo Kelly says that porcupines kill more timber on the coast of Alaska than is used for commercial purposes.

"Wherever you go along the coast," said he, "you will notice dead standing timber. There are whole patches of these in places. In nine cases out of ten the causes can be traced to the work of porcupines. They ring the trees in hunting for the soft bark next the sap.

"The government is now going to lots of trouble and expense to conserve the timber along this west coast but is overlooking the most destructive of all agents. The thing for the government to do if it wants to save the timber is to find some method of killing the porcupines."

STEEL TRUST SWELLS FUND

Adds $8,000,000 to Pension Allowance Made By Carnegie.

Total of Twelve Million Dollars to Be Managed By Trustees.

New York, May 4.—The United States Steel corporation today announced that it had established a fund of $8,000,000 for pension purposes and would consolidate this fund with the $4,000,000 fund heretofore created by Andrew Carnegie. This joint fund will be administered for the benefit of employes by a board selected jointly by the corporation and Mr. Carnegie.

This announcement was made in a statement by Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corportion.

The trustees of the pension fund, it is announced, will be:

E. H. Gary, George W. Perkins, J. H. Reed, Andrew Squire, J. H. Hoyt, H. K. Knapp, R. C. Bolling and Frank D. Adams, appointed by the United States Steel corporation, and Charles L. Taylor, W. B. Dickson, Robert A. Franks and H. R. Tener, Jr., appointed by Mr. Carnegie.

MISS ANGLIN ON DRESS.

"Save on Frocks and Put the Money Into Furs."

"My clothes creed is well summed in three statements," says Margaret Anglin in Human Life. "First, I believe in saving in the number of frocks and putting the money into good furs.

"Furs are very expensive and they are constantly growing more so. Nevertheless they are so becoming to all women that it pays to sacrifice other things in the wardrobe to buy them, and to buy good ones.

"Next, I believe in having good, well cut gowns, little trimmed, but plenty of jabots and guimpes and yokes and collars, so that there can be fresh things for the neck every day. I like the intimate things, those clothes that touch the skin, to be dainty.

"Third, I believe in the tailor gown, but I like it trimmed and softened. The adorned French and American tailormades I prefer to the unadorned English styles, which are too trying for any woman.

"To this creed I would add that if I were very poor and able to have but few clothes I should make a point of having my gowns made just alike. Then no one would ever know which were new and which old. I should always wear black in the day and white in the evening.

"But every one likes to dilate upon his creed, so let me add something by way of elucidation and elaboration to mine. First, as to furs. I prefer dark furs. They look richer and as a rule are more becoming. Personally I like the longhaired furs, but if I were of less height I should wear the shorthaired ones. Mink is the favorite, as it should be, of short women.

"For the street I like the plainest gowns in cut and color I can get; but I will not wear the English tailormade frock, which in every respect except bifurcation is exactly like a man's business suit. The French and Americans trim these suits, feminizing them wit, trying plgit and bay, and she was finally taken to the house of Ini Rajah Pipit, where she obtained rice to eat and seeds for planting padi, a single padi seed being about the size of a large mango fruit. She married a man called Sakumbang Maron Bunsu Chenaga Umbang, and she and her husband farmed the land, finding the work not at all laborious.

The padi was only planted once, and it lived for many years, bearing fruit continually; the baskets for the padi could walk to the farm, and on their arrival there the padi jumped into them of its own accord and the filled baskets walked home again, and when it was being dried it jumped up and down and husked itself. One day Dayang and Petri took a winnowing basket and began to reap the padi herself, and this rash action of hers at once caused the padi to stop reaping itself, and, what was more, caused it to give only one crop before it died as it does today.

NEW CHIEF INSPECTOR FOR POSTAL DEPARTMENT

ROBERT S. SHARP.

Robert S. Sharp, the new chief postoffice inspector, was collector of internal revenue for the Tennessee district. He succeeds F. B. McMillin, who resigned more than a year ago. Mr. Sharp's father at one time was chief postoffice inspector.

BROOKLYN GIRL WILL WED AUSTRIAN BARON

MISS IRMA GRATZ
Of Brooklyn.

New York, May 4.—Miss Irma Gratz of Brooklyn has announced her engagement to Baron Alfred von Lazarin-Jablanitz of Austria. The baron is a lieutenant in the Sachsen Hussars. Miss Gratz plans to tour Europe, returning in time for the wedding next fall.

rows of braid that brighten it. And the bodice is of black chiffon with pipings of pale blue silk, and with it I wear a fresh guimpe of lace or embroidered linen or of white chiffon every day. Odds and ends left from a worn out white frock work up finely into dainty accessories like this that make a costume charming.

"One rule I always follow—I never wear in the house the gown I have worn on the street. The moment I come into the house, no matter how tired I am, I slip off the street suit and get into a house gown.

"The change in itself rests me. I do this in part from hygienic motives, in part from artistic ones. The street gown is not sanitarily fit to be worn in the house until it has been well brushed and gone over to rid it of any germs it might have accumulated on the crowded pavements, crowded in more than one way. But artistically the street gown is also impossible. It doesn't go with the furniture."

BORNEO VIEW OF CREATION.

Rev. William Howell in Sarawate Gazette: Many and various are the Dyak accounts of the creation, and none of them coincide. They are unable to describe or to say who is the Deity (Petara), but they say in one of their accounts of the first appearance of mankind that the Petara gave birth to a boy who was without his members and cast him into a pit, when he became Pulang Gana, the god of the earth.

The second child born to the Petara was a girl, and she had no nose, so was set adrift on a river, becoming Rajah Jewata, the god of fishes.

The third child was without any human form, and it was placed on a bought of a tree, where it became an orchid.

The fourth child was a girl, who was named Sitt Permani, and she was cut to pieces, the bits becoming padi, pumpkins and other plants.

The fifth child was a boy, and he was called Hiang Pinggang, as he had a white stripe round his waist, and he became Ini Anda and lives in the heavens.

The sixth child became animals and birds, while the seventh was a girl, and Ini Rajah Pipit called her Dayany Petri.

All the brothers and sisters lived on charcoal, but she alone refused to eat wit, crying plgit and bay, and she was finally taken to the house of Ini Rajah Pipit, where she obtained rice to eat and seeds for planting padi, a single padi seed being about the size of a large mango fruit. She married a man called Sakumbang Maron Bunsu Chenaga Umbang, and she and her husband farmed the land, finding the work not at all laborious.

The padi was only planted once, and it lived for many years, bearing fruit continually; the baskets for the padi could walk to the farm, and on their arrival there the padi jumped into them of its own accord and the filled baskets walked home again, and when it was being dried it jumped up and down and husked itself. One day Dayang and Petri took a winnowing basket and began to reap the padi herself, and this rash action of hers at once caused the padi to stop reaping itself, and, what was more, caused it to give only one crop before it died as it does today.

COCKTAILS IN CHINA.

When you leave the train at Nankon, twenty-seven miles from Pekin, and make your way toward the Great Wall of China, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, you proceed along a dusty road in summer and a sea of mud during the rains. The journey is on donkeys or in chairs carried by coolies.

In the middle of the Nankon pass there is a Chinese inn where the caravans halt. The manager offers travelers accommodations acording to Chinese customs, but European beds are placed in the dais in the compartment, and it is even possible to procure a bottle of champagne or a glass of beer before retiring.

In fact, in many ways the enterprising host has an eye for business. He has learned how to mix cocktail and travelers can procure baths. These Chinese inns are found beyond the wall on the road to Kalgan, where the railway will run in the near future.

As you get further inland European comforts and ideas of civilization depart, but it is possible almost anywhere along the main road to purchase soda water. The inns are invariably built in the form of a square. At one side distinguished travelers and Europeans stop, and opposite the coolies and servants live. The chairs, carts and wheelbarrows are always placed in the quadrangle.

REPAIRS AT FOLEY MINE

John Hosking Takes Charge and Fitting Up Camp Buildings.

Plans for Development Work Not Fully Worked Out Yet.

Mine Center, Ont., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Hosking has taken local charge of the Foley mine and the work that will be done there this season. He is fitting up camp buildings just now and will follow that with repair work of different kinds.

During the years of idleness, the Foley mine has suffered less than any other around here from theft of movable property. Aside from natural deterioration and theft of a few hand tools, bedding and cook house utensils, the property is intact. In the warehouse there are fittings, extra parts and supplies that must be worth several thousand dollars. Nominal expenditure will replace needed iron and woodworking tools.

John L. Morrison of Duluth, president and general manager of the Foley Mines company, limited, recently was here to arrange for Mr. Hosking's regime. He stated that men will be added to the working force from time to time, as conditions require and permit.

"Conditions have greatly changed for the better in the past few years," said Mr. Morrison, "particularly as to transportation facilities. I believe that care and good management can be made to tell a story much different from the one ten years ago.

"The present management of the Foley gold mine will go carefully. We have considerable repair work to do. After that is finished, we expect to get down to development work. Our plans as to that are fully worked out. We will unwater the old workings in due course, but, on the start, we may do considerable work on several veins of rich promise which we hardly touched when the mine was operated before. This course would mean much for the development of the mine and would not require heavy expense for fuel, power and other things when we are getting things shaped up."

Stopping Place in Prospect.

C. H. Wilson, who has been caretaker at the Foley mine for three years, has moved his family to Old Mine Center and will occupy the Louis Hamil cottage. J. D. Davis, the hog fancier, is on a trip to the Saskatchewan country and talks of moving out there to his ranch with his family. In that event, Mr. Wilson has under consideration a plan to take Mr. Davis' property at Old Mine Center.

If this deal is made, it will mean the thorough repair of the old Randolph hotel property. This will give a commodious and comfortable stopping place for prospectors, mining men, tourists and sportsmen. By raising his own meat and vegetables and with the berries that grow so prolifically in the woods, Mr. Wilson believes that he can set a table that will draw travel for hundreds of miles.

"There's as fine soil here as any place in Canada if cleared and drained," says Mr. Wilson, "and I propose to acquire and improve several hundred acres of it. There is splendid fishing and shooting in the Rainy Lake country. Those seeking rest and recreation are beginning to hear of this region, especially in the Twin Cities. I propose to do my part and to make a little fortune at the same time. My plans embrace the operation of a commodious steamboat on Rainy Lake and tributary waters. Then, with a revival in mining and a return of the skilled labor that left here for Cobalt, British Columbia and the Minnesota iron ranges, this part of Canada once more will be thrifty and a credit to the province of Ontario."

Record in Vegetables.

A. M. Robertson has demonstrated the practicability of raising vegetables here. He has a record in the potato and root line and has matured cabbage, melons, tomatoes, cucumbers and many other kinds of garden vegetables. He also has made a profitable record in dairying and poultry raising. Jack Davis has a wide reputation for thoroughbred hogs, raised on the townsite of Old Mine Center. They grow fat on berries and a root that grows in the swamps. Jack Young will test Russian alfalfa this season. With a combination of vegetable growing, dairying, hay production, blooded live stock, poultry, mining, and tourist and sportsman travel, what was once a wilderness in the Rainy River district, and which has been at low ebb in the more important lines of activity for several years past will grow and thrive wonderfully. Mine Center promises to become a very important point on the Ontario map. Capitalists, politicians and homeseekers will be quick to recognize these facts.

James Foulis is working a one-stamp mill at his mining claim on Gold island in Lower Manitou Lake. He recently took out to the Canadian Pacific railroad twenty-two ounces of amalgam worth at least $200, which his little mill pounded out in twelve days.

Some time ago a mining claim in the Van Horne belt, tributary to Wabigoon, was sold for $1,500 cash. An offer recently was refused for another claim in the same belt. The property shows surface values of $27 a ton.

Mr. Sowden, secretary-treasurer of the Northern Development company, is in the Manitou district for the purpose of making a mill run of ore from the Paymaster mine.

The Thurber Process.

At Kenora for a year past deep interest has been shown in the new process for gold extraction, patented by Mr. Thurber, formerly manager of the Combine mine on Lake of the Woods. Capt. Machin, M. P. P., and Maj. Vereker financed this enterprise in its early stages. They recently sold their rights and interests to responsible people. It is intended to apply the process to practical gold mining and, for this purpose, a plant of ample capacity soon will be installed on a property near Kenora.

Mr. Thurber maintains that the gold bearing veins and dykes in the Rainy River district yield a very much higher percentage of gold by his process than any standard reduction process or fire assay will show. Although practical and experienced mining men are slow to take up new and "patent" processes, all who have had their attention called to Mr. Thurber's discovery sincerely hope that his claims for it can be proved and maintained by operation on a large and practical scale.

WANTS TO HEAR OF WHITE SLAVES

Rockefeller Grand Jury Asks for Specific Information.

New York, May 4.—The Rockefeller grand jury investigating the "white slave" trade in New York is seeking more specific information in the matter, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., the foreman, today issued a statement in which he says:

"Before closing its investigation the grand jury desires to announce publicly that it will be glade to receive definite, specific information as to the existence in this country of any traffic in women for immoral purposes from any citizen or officer or any other individual who has such information."

Mr. Rockefeller says the information developed so far has in most cases been of a general rather than specific character.

SPEECH RESTORED AFTER YEARS.

London Evening Standard: A remarkable case of a dumb woman recovering her speech was reported from Leeds. For eleven years Mrs. Ada Collingwood, the wife of a carpenter, had not been able to utter a single word. A fortnight after her marriage she had a paralytic seizure which left her speechless. Doctors and specialists were consulted, but from none of them did she derive any benefit.

A few mornings ago, however, Mrs. Collingwood after a fortnight's illness in bed suddenly uttered the word "the," and slowly but surely she is recovering her voice.

ADVOCATES INCOME TAX

City Assessor Rakowsky Would Abolish Personal Property Tax.

Would Have Heavy Penalties Provided for Concealment of Income Sources.

Charles L. Rakowsy, city assessor, favors the abolition of the personal property tax in the interests of the small taxpayer.

He would substitute an income tax under state regulation to make the more wealthy men, who now go almost unscathed, stand a more just share of the burden of taxation.

Mr. Rakowsky has not evolved a lengthy, detailed plan of operation, but he believes that it could be worked out satisfactorily after investigation by competent men. He is confident that it would be a big improvement over the system now in vogue.

"Our books show that the small fellow pays by far the greater part of the taxes," said Mr. Rakowsky this morning. "Those who have modest homes of their own, with a comparatively small amount of personal property, stand the greater part of the expense of conducting the government. The wealthy man, with heavy holdings of personal property from which they derive revenues, are hardly touched. As it now is, it is practically impossible to learn the extent of their personal property. It's an injustice to the vast majority of taxpayers, but with the laws as they are now constituted the situation cannot be remedied.

"Many people absolutely refuse to sign any statement of their personal property. The law says that they shall sign such a statement, but that is as far as it goes. The refusal is not even made a misdemeanor and no punishment is provided for failure or refusal to attach their signatures to the blanks furnished for that purpose."

Mr. Rakowsky would have a law put on the books of the state compelling all to sign a statement of their personal property under oath, on penalty of being sent to the penitentiary. The business man would indicate what his income was for the year, from all sources, under his plan. In addition to that he would be obliged to state the salaries paid to all the men under him. He is of the opinion that when all the lists were checked against each other a vast amount of hidden personal property would be brought to light.

Mr. Rakowsky used a mining company as an example in discussing that phase of the subject. "Supposing we secured a statement of that kind from a man reputed to be wealthy and it didn't show that he was receiving any dividends from mining stock," he said. "Then we get a list of stockholders from the mining company, with the amount of stock held by each and the dividends paid on each share. If the man in question held such stock and was trying to cover it up, we would unmask him. He would be in danger of going to prison under such a law. After one or two had been sent behind the bars for concealing personal property bringing them an income, others would take warning and think twice before they attempted the same thing."

Mr. Rakowsky states that exemptions would have to be made for the man earning a moderate salary. He said that he had not gone into the matter sufficiently to be able to have an idea as to what that exemption ought to be. But he is firm in the opinion that most of the injustice of the present system would be eliminated if such a law could be secured.

KILLING TWO BIRDS.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: A neatly dressed woman rushed into a Euclid avenue grocery yesterday and priced the different sizes of pots of baked beans that the grocery keeps put up hot ready to take home and serve.

"I gues sthe small size will do," she said, hesitating.

"How many do you desire to serve?" inquired the clerk, ready to adviso.

"Oh, I'm not buying them to serve," the customer replied. "Of course I shall use them, but I'm getting them to keep my hands warm on the car. I came away from home without either muff or mittens."

IT'S BORN IN THEM.

Eugene Walter, at a dinner, was accused of pessimism.

"Well," said Mr. Walter, "I am not a pessimist, but I don't believe that human nature is by any means angelic. We are all much alike. The best we can do is to curb our faults and favor our virtues."

"What faults should I curb?" a very pretty young lady asked.

"Well, said Mr. Walter, "I should think you'd have about the same faults to curb as a little girl I talked to yesterday. She's a charming little girl, and as we conversed alone in the drawing room while waiting for her father and mother to come down, I said to her:

"'Have you got a sweetheart?'

"She smiled and wriggled. 'Yeth,' she said softly.

"'Well,' said I, 'I'll give you a quarter if you'll tell me who he is.'

"'Tommy,' she answered in a low voice, and I gave her the quarter.

"A few minutes afterward she said suddenly:

"'Now, if you'll giva me another quarter, I'll tell you who my other sweetheart ith.'"

PROPOSALS FOR STATE PRINTING

Proposals are hereby solicited for doing the following described printing and binding of the State of Minnesota, for the period of one year, commencing the first day of August, 1910, and ending the thirty-first day of July, 1911. Such proposals will be received at the office of the Secretary of State in the Capitol in the City of St. Paul, Minnesota, until the hour of 12 o'clock noon, on Tuesday, the seventh day of June, 1910, and will be thereat, immediately thereafter, opened in public by the Printing Commission of the State of Minnesota. Said printing and binding consists of that required by the first, second, third, fourth and fifth classification of state printing, and is as follows:

Class 1. All bills for the Senate and House of Representatives and all resolutions and other matters not in pamphlet or book form that may be ordered printed by either or both houses, or by the officers of either.

Class 2. The Journals of the Senate and House of Representatives, including reports and other documents, properly forming part of such Journals.

Class 3 (a) All other reports and documents ordered printed in pamphlet or book form by either branch of the Legislature, or authorized or required by law to be so printed, except the Legislative Manual.

(b) The Legislative Manual, commonly known as the Blue Book.

Class 4. The laws and joint resolutions passed by the several legislative sessions.

Class 5. All blanks, circulars and stationery required by the legislative or executive departments, and all other necessary state printing not included in the foregoing classes nor otherwise provided for by such law.

Such proposals for printing must state the fixed rate of composition, press work, ruling and binding, respectively. Such rates must not exceed the maximum rates established by said Printing Commission, and must include the furnishing of paper stock and all material required to complete the work. Each bid must be in writing, sealed and addressed to the Secretary of State of Minnesota, may be for one, or more, of the foregoing classes, or subdivision of said Class 3 as hereinbefore set forth, and must be accompanied by a bond in the penal sum of at least ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for each class or said subdivision. Included in such bid, approved as to form and execution by the Attorney General, executed by the bidder, with sufficient sureties to be approved by said Printing Commission, conditioned, among other things, that the bidder will, within ten days after the acceptance of his bid by said commission, enter into a written contract with the State of Minnesota in accordance therewith, and thereafter, perform such contract according to its terms and in accordance with the specifications hereafter mentioned. Bids unaccompanied by bonds will not be considered. The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved. Upon the rejection of any bid the bond accompanying the same will be returned. Blank bonds, proposals and copies of said specifications are now on file in the office of the State Expert Printer at the Capitol, in the City of St. Paul, and may be had upon request.

Dated St. Paul, May 2, 1910.

MUSICAL COMEDY STAR TURNS DOWN OFFER OF $1,000 A WEEK

NORA BAYES.

Nora Bayes, wife of Jack Norworth and a former star in the "Follies of 1909" cast, has refused the offer of Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., to go back under his management at a salary of $1,000 a week. The offer was made in open court before Justice O'Gorman, who reserved decision upon the application of Ziegfeld to make permanent the temporary injunction he obtained against Miss Bayes and her husband. Ziegfeld declares that Miss Bayes quit his company last fall without cause. Miss Bayes replies that Ziegfeld wanted her to appear in tights and that he showed partiality toward another actress. Miss Bayes is now starring in the Shubert play "The Jolly Bachelors," at the Broadway theater, New York.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—

DEFAULT has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed by Peter Norman, widower, of Virginia, Minnesota, mortgagor, to Sattler Liquor company, a corporation, of Duluth, Minnesota, mortgagee, bearing date December 17th, 1906, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 19th day of December, 1906, at 11:45 o'clock A. M. in Book 233 of Mortgages on page 66.

Said default consists in the nonpayment of $310.93 of the principal of the note referred to in said mortgage, together with $94.63 interest thereon.

The name of said Sattler Liquor company, which is a Minnesota corporation, has been duly changed since the execution and delivery of said mortgage, to Sattler Brothers company, which is now the name of said corporation.

By reason of such default, the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has ever been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage.

The property described in said mortgage and thereby mortgaged is the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter (SW¼ of NW¼) of Section twenty-nine (29), and the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter (SE¼ of NE¼) of Section thirty (30), all in Township fifty-seven (57) north of Range twelve (12) west of the fourth principal meridian, in St. Louis County, Minnesota, containing eighty (80) acres.

There is claimed to be due and is due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of $405.56.

NOW THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statutes in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises above described, which sale will be made at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the sheriff's office in the County Court House in Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on Thursday, the 2nd day of June, 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage and taxes, if any, due on said premises, and twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorneys' fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated this 18th day of April, 1910.

ADVANCE NOT MAINTAINED

Wheat Has Bulge at the Opening, But Slumps Later.

Flax Also Shows Strength, But Fails to Hold Advance.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 4.—In a choppy market today, May wheat gained ¼c, July lost ⅛c and September lost ⅛c from yesterday. After the opening bulge, values sagged and the decline was accelerated toward the close by selling on reports of rain in Central Nebraska. At the close, short covering in the May option caused that month to close strong.

May wheat opened at $1.10¼ bid and sold at $1.11¼, then slumped to $1.09¾, sold at $1.10¼ and closed $1.10¼ bid. July opened $1.09⅞ bid, sold at $1.10, $1.09⅜-⅞, $1.10⅝, $1.10⅜, $1.09⅞, $1.10, $1.09½ and closed $1.09¾ asked. September opened $1.02 bid and sold at $1.02⅛ and $1.02, closing at $1.01¾ asked.

Flax had a bulge toward mid-day, but lost most of it. Trading was light and values advanced on a few bids. The short interest is believed by most people to have been almost eliminated. All of the stuff in store here has been delivered on contract. May opened at $2.37 bid, sold at $2.40, $2.39¼ and closed $2.38¼ bid, ¼c higher than yesterday. July opened $2.31 bid, sold at $2.34 and $2.33½, closing $2.33 bid, 1½c higher than yesterday. September opened $1.75 asked, sold at $1.75½, $1.77, $1.76½ and closed $1.76¼ bid, 1¼c higher than yesterday. October was $1.67½ bid.

Oats closed ⅛c up, barley and rye were unchanged. Durum closed on a par with yesterday.

After a bulge at the opening, the market became topheavy and sagged. The bulls appeared to be willing to accept profits and did not indicate a disposition to press their advantage further. Trading was light, both sides being in a waiting attitude and inclined to proceed with caution.

Cables were higher and the opening was influenced by the strength abroad. Frightened shorts, fearing a continuation of yesterday's upturn, covered in a period of active trading. As the session wore on they gained confidence and this class of support was withdrawn. There was very little buying from the long side, and the market became listless and lost most of the early gain.

Although crop news was distinctly bullish, the bulls did not attempt to impart any new phases of the crop situation to the market. The news consisted of reiterations and amplifications of previous assertions. It was said that insects are prevalent in Oklahoma and that rain is seriously needed in some portions of that state as well as in many localities in Kansas and Nebraska. A small amount of rain fell in the northern part of Kansas today.

While the bulls regarded these messages favorably they hesitated to test the effectiveness of the reports as market influences or to sound the opinion of the trade by market activity. As usual they asserted that the plant is deteriorating and that in those portions of the Southwest which have not figured prominently in crop news reports the stand is thin and the plant is susceptible to attack by insects which are becoming numerous.

Holdings in the deferred months are so large that the technical position of those futures is extremely strong. The firm position of the distant options is justified by the actual crop situation, say the bulls, regardless of any heavy long interest that may exist. In the event of further damage to the growing plant these holdings would present a serious obstacle to those traders bearishly inclined. Bartlett-Patten and their following, alone, are estimated to be long about 18,000,000 bu of the Chicago September option.

Bears were not inclined to be aggressive. At this period of the year unexpected frosts of a killing nature and possible freaks in the weather are liable to upset the market and furnish sudden and effective ammunition to the bulls. The bears are inclined not to take any risks until the weather becomes more settled.

Much of the trading is in contracts. There is very little pressure of cash wheat on the market and many operators do not look for prices to decline materially under these conditions. Contract wheat stores here amount to between 2,000,000 and 2,500,000 bu. Exact figures cannot be given on account of the unknown quantity of this class of grain which is classed as special bin. Contract stores at Chicago are exceedingly small and closely held. On account of the short interest there which was enlarged on the last severe decline and which is now becoming restless because of a strong and stubborn market, it seems probable that an attempt will be made to gather the contract stores here in a restricted holding for interests involved in the Chicago market.

Northwestern cash markets occupied a firm position today by reason of the small receipts and a slightly improved milling demand. City millers bought moderately and outside millers, Minneapolis said, were more active than for some time. The premium of 1c over the near option for choice North Dakota stuff was paid here by mills. Elevators bought on a basis of the May price.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Wheat was strong at the start, with offerings light and shorts excited, and values were 1d to 1¼d higher. Buying was due to the sharp advance in both America and Buenos Ayres markets and the unfavorable American crop advices. Following the opening the market further gained ¼d to ⅝d, with the principal strength in July. There is a general improvement in the demand for both cargoes and parcels, and the continent is buying. This demand is brought about largely by fears of a heavy falling off in Russian shipments. Later and toward mid-day, there were some speculative selling and profit taking, and part of the later advance was lost, but again the market steadied on the good bidding for both Australian and Manitoba, which was firmly held. At mid-day the market was highly excited, with prices, ⅞d to 1d off from the high of the morning and ⅜d to ⅝d higher than yesterday. The corn market continues unquoted."

Reports to The Herald from the Northwest indicate that the recent cold weather has not hurt the spring wheat seed or plant. The grain has taken deep root and seems to be in a condition to withstand any rough weather that may materialize.

Poehler Summarizes the Northwestern crop situation as follows: "Crop conditions, in spite of the recent rough weather and the further cold of yesterday, continue promising. Further rains in some localities would do much good. With seasonable weather in the near future, the promise for the Northwest crops will become the best on record."

"My special May reports from over 1,000 correspondents are emphatic on one point—except where large winter wheat plowing up operations are proceeding; they show no particular effort to increase the 1909 corn acreage," wired E. W. Wagner of Chicago. "Reports of increase are thus mainly from Indiana, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas. Estimates of acreage from these states, as compared with last year, run: Indiana and Nebraska, 100 to 105 per cent; Missouri, 100 to 110 per cent; Kansas, 105 to 110 per cent. In other states presence of liberal supplies has evidently restrained increased acreage enthusiasm. Majority of the reports outline similar acreage to those planted one year ago. The 1909 corn acreage was a record at 108,700,000."

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Profit-Taking Saps Strength After Opening in Wheat Pit.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 4.—Continued unfavorable crop reports made the early market strong and May sold up to $1.09¾. Profit taking later in the session made the market easier and the near option sold down 1¼c below the early high and closed ¾@⅞c lower than yesterday's close at $1.08¾. Local elevator stocks of wheat decreased 425,000 bushels for four days. Wheat and flour shipments so far this week are 484,938 bushels in excess of the wheat receipts. Minneapolis today received 77 cars of wheat against 145 cars a year ago; Duluth 17 against 7 and Winnipeg 208 against 77. May opened $1.08⅜, high $1.09⅝, low $1.08⅜, closed $1.08⅝. July opened $1.09¼, high $1.09⅝, low $1.08⅛, closed $1.08⅜. September opened $1.01¾, high $1.02⅛, low $1.00⅞, closed $1.01.

Cash wheat was firmer today. There was keen competition for the choice offerings. Demand continued in excess of the daily receipts. No. 1 northern sold for 1½@⅞c above the May option. Closing prices on track: No. 1 northern, $1.10¼@1.11¾; to arrive, $1.09¾@1.11¾; No. 2 northern, $1.08¼@1.09¾; to arrive, $1.07¾@1.09¾. No. 3 wheat, $1.05¼@1.07¾. No. 3 yellow corn, 57@58c. No. 3 white oats, 42¾@43¾c. No. 2 rye, 71@73½c.

Millsuffs—Shipments, 1,517 tons. No change. Bran, $18.00@18.25.

Flour—Shipments continued heavy and millers reported a slight improvement in the demand. Prices held firm. Shipments, 49,076 bbl. First patents, in wood, f. o.b. Minneapolis, $5.30@5.50; second patents, $5.10@5.30; first clears, $4.15@4.25; second clears, $2.90@3.20.

Flax—Receipts, 9 cars; year ago, 4; shipments, S. Demand continued strong at even May price. Closing, $2.38¼.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Bears Forced to Cover By Resistance to Selling Pressure.

Close Generally Strong at About Highest Prices of Day.

New York, May 4.—Early prices of Americans in London showed violent recoveries from the closing here yesterday and opening prices in New York showed convulsive rebounds in sympathy. The principal speculative issues, such as United States Steel, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Reading showed wide quotations on running sales. The advance ran in Southern Pacific to 2½, American Car 2¼, Reading 2⅛, Canadian Pacific 2, Virginia-Carolina Chemical 1⅝, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred and North American 1½, United States Steel 1⅜ and the active list generally from a large fraction to a point.

Profit-taking sales held the market in check for awhile, American Smelting losing its rise of a point and other leaders a large fraction. Brisk buying then developed in the grain carriers and the whole market moved up to above the opening figures. Trading became gradually duller as prices advanced, Reading 2⅝, Union Pacific 2⅜, St. Paul 2, Atchison 1⅝, Rock Island and Amalgamated Copper 1½ and Wabash preferred, Central Leather, Brooklyn Transit and American Cotton Oil 1⅜. Westinghouse Electric sagged 1.

A violent decline in foreign exchange rates gave color to report that large blocks of new railroad bonds had been sold to foreigners. Rumors placed the amount at over $100,000,000. Money rates in London were easy and orders for stocks came from that center. The abrupt recovery in stocks was attributed largely to these causes. The professional element viewed the recovery with some suspicion, having in mind the failure yesterday of a similar rally to hold. St. Paul gained 2⅝; Northern Pacific, 2⅜; United States Steel, 2¼; Wabash preferred and American sugar, 2, and other prominent stocks between 1½ and 2. Prices were shaded before noon. Bonds were firmer.

The market closed generally strong and quiet. The power of resistance to selling pressure shown by prices alarmed the bears and they bought to cover. This caused another buoyant rise to the highest prices of the day. Southern Pacific was carried 4¼ over last night, Union Pacific and Reading 3⅜, Rock Island and Colorado & Southern 3¼, Louisville & Nashville 2½ and New York Central, American Smelting and National Lead 2. Only slight concessions were made in the late prices.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 4.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of four points in response to steady cables, and held around the initial figures during the early session. Business was comparatively quiet. Leading bulls in the old crop months gave the market support on slight setbacks, but seemed willing to sell on equally small bulges and while private reports from the Southwest were bullish on new crop prospects, they failed to stimulate any general demand in consequence.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 15.30; middling gulf, 15.55; sales, none.

Futures closed steady. Closing bids: May, $14.86; June, $14.75; July, $14.69; August, $14.06; September, $13.14; October, $12.67; November, $12.53; December, $12.50; January, $12.46.

COAL TAR DYE FOUND IN CANDIES SOLD IN THE STATE IN APRIL

Minnesota Chemist Reports on Examinations of Food and Sweets.

Short Weights of Corn Meal Discovered---Many Labels Are Illegal.

Some Oils Are Found Impure ---Samples Taken in Different Sections.

St. Paul, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Julius Hortvet, chief chemist of the laboratory of the state dairy and food department in the old capitol building, has reported that during April, 1910, he had examined 244 samples of food and drink, and found 121 of them to be in violation of state food laws. These samples are collected from dealers all over the state by state food inspectors, and are sent to the laboratory for analysis. When something wrong is discovered, there is a warning, and perhaps a prosecution.

Four samples of wine were analyzed. Two were found to be imitation wines. Seven samples of other liquors were examined and found all right.

Of two samples of baking powder analyzed, one was found to have the names of the ingredients wrongly labeled. The other was all right. Two samples of cream of tartar were found to be pure.

Out of eight samples of catsups, three were found to contain an excess of one-tenth of 1 per cent of sodium

PLAN REUNION AT GETTYSBURG

Arrangements for Coming Semi-Centennial Are Being Made.

Philadelphia, May 5.—Satisfactory progress in the arrangements being made for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg in July, 1913, was reported today by the Pennsylvania commission at a meeting at the Union league. Letters have been received from the governors of nearly all the states, cordially approving the plan and promising their co-operation.

It is expected that within a few weeks representatives will be appointed by all the states in the Union, and that by October the project can be taken up at a meeting to be held on the battlefield. The delegates will meet at Harrisburg, Pa., pay their respects to Governor Stuart, and from that time on be the guests of the state of Pennsylvania.

The co-operation of President Taft and of the national government is already assured, according to a report of a special committee which recently visited Washington, and resolutions for national support will be introduced in congress in the near future.

PROF. HERMAN V. HILPRECHT.

Prof. Herman V. Hilprecht of the University of Pennsylvania has sailed for Naples. A short time ago the tablet which Prof. Hilprecht said he discovered in Palestine and which he claimed upheld the Biblical story of the deluge was denounced at a meeting of the American Oriental society as a fraud for purely sensational purposes. He has made a number of trips to Asia Minor, Syria and Palestine in the interest of science.

IS ON WHITE SLAVE TRAIL

Whitman Is Expected to Make More Arrests in New York Cases.

College-Bred Women Are Acting as Sleuths for the State.

New York, May 5.—Additional arrests were expected hourly in the "white slave" crusade as the result of the statements made to District Attorney Whitman last night by Harry Levenson, the self confessed "white slaver."

Levenson's sensational account of "stockades," where girls are kept ready for delivery is believed to have been accompanied by revelations of other

ROOSEVELT DELIVERS LECTURE ON PEACE IN NORWEGIAN CAPITAL

Declares War Is Justified When It Is Aid to Righteousness.

Tells His View of What the Powers Should Do---Lund Praises America.

Christiania, May 5.—Theodore Roosevelt delivered his address on "International Peace" before the Nobel prize commission today.

The former president of the United States entered upon the most difficult field of European politics, and in the conclusion of a carefully worked out thesis advocated an international agreement that would serve to check the growth of armaments, especially naval armaments, and the formation of a league of peace by those great powers mostly bent on universal concord, "not only to keep the peace among themselves, but to prevent, by force, if necessary, its being broken by others."

What Mr. Roosevelt had to say today before the king and queen of Norway and other representative personages constituted the bases of the private conversations which he is having with the statesmen of Europe as occasion rises, concerning the practical possibilities of collective action by the various governments for the enforcement of universal peace.

Peace and Righteousness.

Mr. Roosevelt said that it must be borne in mind ever that the great end in view was righteousness; and he explained that peace, generally good in itself, was never of the highest good unless it came as the handmaid of righteousness. It became a very evil

MASSACHUSETTS MILK WAR STILL ON

Boston Is Said to Be Getting Some That Is Unfit for Use.

Boston, Mass., May 5.—Still plentifully supplied with milk, Boston today watched with interest the battle of endurance between the contractors and producers. On the one hand it is a question of how long the contractors will be able to supply milk to the local market without the help of the farmers of New England, while on the other hand the farmers are facing the total wiping out of the income they have derived from the sale of their milk.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald today notified Chairman Durgin of the Boston board of health that it was reported that much milk unfit for use was being brought into Boston and that a more thorough inspection must be made.

SAYS CHURCH MUST WORK

Speaker at Chicago Declares Missions Will Save Its Life.

Stephen J. Corey of Cincinnati Talks on Breadth of Christianity.

Chicago, May 5.—"Unless the church carries the gospel to the heathen lands it will die."

With these words as a keynote, Stephen J. Corey of Cincinnati, secretary of the board of foreign missions of the Disciples of Christ, opened today's session of the Men's National Missionary congress. Mr. Corey continued:

"The church needs a world-wide field to conserve its own life. The shores of time are strewn with the wrecks of little, peevish churches that had no world vision. The church needs the world-wide missionary spirit to purge it of selfishness.

"A World-Wide Religion."

"What will drive worldliness out of the church? What will put avarice and covetousness in their graves? What will cleanse the clogged channels of Christian benevolence? Missions—world-wide missions. The religion of Jesus Christ is a world-wide religion. The agency through which this religion operates must have a world-wide field or become ineffective and imbecile.

"If the religion of Christ is not big enough for a Chinaman it is not big enough for an American. If the church isn't big enough to carry itself to a Chinaman it will not carry itself with efficiency across the street or around the corner."

MAKES RAILROADS SHOW WHY RATES ARE TO BE RAISED

Washington, May 5.—The house today adopted by 166 to 77 an amendment to the railroad bill providing that when a railroad, in competition with a water route, lowers its rates, such rates cannot be increased without a showing on the part of the railroad of new reason for such increases.

SENT BACK TO STATES

Alleged Abductor of Girls for Immoral Purposes Is Deported.

Girls Whom Vincent Took Through Duluth Tell Their Story.

Fort Frances, Ont., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Vincent of International Falls, who recently kidnaped two young girls at Appleton, Wis., for "White Slavery" purposes and was arrested at Port Arthur on a description sent out from Fort Frances, has been deported and is now in the hands of the police at International Falls.

Vincent is a well known character in Northern Minnesota and along the Canadian border, and, it is alleged, has been engaged in the white slave traffic for some years. Some seven years ago he took a young woman of prepossessing appearance to International Falls, whom he passed off as his wife, but who was, it is alleged, a white slave victim. She was kept over a saloon and one night during a drunken carousal the saloon took fire and burned down and the next day the charred remains of the young woman were found in the ruins. As one of the residents of the place put it at the time, "Vincent has lost his meal ticket."

The last crime Vincent is charged with is the abduction of Miss Lillian Neuman and Miss Sylvia Graham from Appleton, Wis. It is the old story of promises of easy work and big money to be earned. Alluring the girls away, Vincent took them to Milwaukee and there kept them at the house of a woman whom he said was his mother-in-law. From there he induced them to go to Superior and Duluth, but finding it getting too warm for him, he decided to get across the line to Can-

FORGER WORKS BOSTON BANK

Gets Bogus Checks Cashed Amounting [illegible] Five Thous[illegible]rs.

Boston, Mass. [illegible]erations of a clever forge[illegible]red almost $5,000 in cash, [illegible]n revealed to the Boston [illegible]ties by the officials of the [illegible]wmut bank, which lost tha[illegible]ugh bogus checks. Three checks, two for small sums and the third calling for $4,875, were used by the man, who gave his name as "Samuel Cohen." They all bore the alleged signature of Allen Arnold, head of the banking and brokerage firm of Allen Arnold & Co.

"Cohen" had previously transacted a small amount of business with the brokerage firm, and was slightly known at the bank, so that the checks were readily cashed.

The forgeries were committed over two weeks ago, but were not discovered until this week.

The bank was the only loser, and the sum was quickly made good by President William A. Gaston.

SENATE "REGULARS" DECLARE WAR ON THE "INSURGENT" FORCES

Organize to Manipulate All Measures Introduced By Progressives.

Taft Is Said to Have Given His Sanction to the Movement.

Action Is Declared to Be the Only Hope of the Administration.

Washington, May 5.—Through the formation yesterday of an organization which its leaders claim represents a clear majority of the entire senate, and to be made up wholly of Republicans of the "regular" wing, a movement was started with intent to settle the question whether the senate shall remain conservative, become radical, or be thrown into political chaos so far as concerns any coherent policy in regard to the administration's legislative program.

Senator Aldrich called the regular Republicans together and confronted them with a grim description of the possible political effect of their apparent defeat at the hands of the insurgent Republicans and Democrats over the fight over the traffic agreement of the administration railroad bill. He asked his associates whether they were ready to submit to domination by such a combination. Any such surrender, he warned them, meant the failure of the Taft policies and the downfall of conservative control, not only in congress but in the Republican party generally.

War on Insurgents.

Some one reminded Senator Aldrich that senators then and there gathered together were not in agreement on all points, whereupon he replied that they must get together and let the details be secondary. Otherwise, he said, con-

THOUSANDS VACCINATED

Everybody on Ship, Port Officials and Reporters Given Virus.

One Small Boy With the Smallpox Starts Something Big.

Philadelphia, May 5.—A 17-year-old immigrant boy suspected of having smallpox caused 2,700 persons to be vaccinated compulsorily on the North German Lloyd steamship Main last night and early today. The Main arrived here yesterday from Bremen with 2,365 immigrants and forty-five passengers.

Three days out from Bremen the boy was suspected of having chickenpox and was landed Tuesday night at the government quarantine at Reedy island. As the passengers were disembarking here yesterday word came from Reedy island that the boy possibly had small pox.

Taken Back to Ship.

Eight hundred immigrants, who had departed on a Baltimore & Ohio special train, were intercepted near Baltimore and brought back to the ship during the night. Also 175 other newcomers were rounded up in the streets in the southern part of the city and returned to the Main.

Every one had to submit to vaccination, including the captain of the ship and his crew, every policeman, longshoreman and customs official, who was on the ship or dock when the quarantine was established, and several newspaper men.

The quarantine was lifted today.

MEN THREATEN TO TIE UP FREIGHT

Railroad Employes in Chicago Will Vote on Question of Strike.

Chicago, May 5.—Whether 4,000 union freight handlers of twenty-three railroads entering Chicago shall stand pat for a flat 10 per cent increase in wages for hour men and $5 a month for others and go on strike tomorrow, or accept the compromise terms offered by the roads, will be determined by a vote to be taken tonight. More than 3,000 of the men who quit work yesterday afternoon returned to work today pending the outcome of the balloting. Only two roads, the Chicago-Great Western and the Rock Island, have accepted the terms presented by the employes.

Watches Drug on the Market.

Boston, Mass., May 5.—The 3,500 employes of the Waltham Watch company's factory will be idle from June 30 until July 25, according to notices posted at the works. The factory has been closed five times since last December, due to the production being much in excess of market needs.

WITNESSES IN THE HEINZE TRIAL UNDER SURVEILLANCE

District Attorney Shows Move By Questions in Court.

Gets Admission That Eckstein Saw Defendant Over Night.

New York, May 5.—Indication that the government is keeping a close watch on its witnesses was supplied by the first question put at today's session of the trial of F. Augustus Heinze in the United States circuit court.

"Since yesterday afternoon you have conferred with the defendant; isn't that true?" United States District Attorney Wise demanded of Frederick C. Eckstein, who resumed the witness stand.

Eckstein admitted that he had.

Eckstein is the clerk in the United Copper company offices who testified yesterday to holding large blocks of the company's stock, presumably for the convenience of a syndicate in market operations. The government is seeking to connect Mr. Heinze with these operations in an effort to show that the funds and credit of the Mercantile National bank were unlawfully employed for speculative purposes while he was president of that institution.

A loan of $600,000 was shown to have been taken out in Eckstein's name from the Mercantile bank, on Aug. 5, 1907. The government contends that this was used for United Copper purposes.

NEW YORK BAKERS' STRIKE MAY GROW

Additions to Ranks of Idle Men Are Looked for on Saturday.

New York, May 5.—Bread was more plentiful here today, but there were still evidences that the strike of the bakers in the big shops was seriously affecting the supply. Pastry was ever more scarce than bread, owing to the concentration of the baking forces of the big establishments upon the task of breadmaking.

The large bakeries claim to be making excellent headway against the walkout of their men, but the latter assert than few strikebreakers have been secured and declare their ranks not only are holding firm but that important accessions are in sight.

The French bakers are now demanding concessions from their employers and threaten to strike on Saturday, which is also the day set by the strike leaders for a general walkout of bakers if the employers do not come to terms before then.

BIGAMIST WITH NINE CHILDREN GOES FREE.

New Orleans, La., May 5.—Joseph Vauthier was acquitted of the charge of bigamy in St. Barnard parish last night, after his attorney made a plea for acquittal on the ground that the defendant was the father of nine children. All of the nine children were in court. No attempt was made to controvert the fact that Vauthier had illegally married a second wife. Vauthier claimed that he was intoxicated.

THREE HUNDRED MEN MARCH TO ATTACK ILLINOIS MINE

Workmen Flee and Mob Goes to Threaten Other Workings.

Riot Occurs at Kellyville and Other Outbreaks Are Feared.

Danville, Ill., May 5.—Three hundred miners of this city marched on the Southwestville coal mines today, declaring they would drive out of the mines the men who had returned to work pending an agreement between the strikers and their employers.

Many families in the district are said to be starving because of the shutdown of the mines, and the situation is declared to be desperate.

The sheriff hastily organized a posse to start immediately for the scene of the trouble.

The mines of Southwestville are eight miles south of this city, on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad.

Before the sheriff's posse had started, a telephone message brought the news that the miners at work at Southwestville had fled from the pits on the approach of the mob.

At Kellyville there was a short struggle with sticks and stones. The invading miners then moved on the Vermillion mines, two miles south of Southwestville.

The sheriff and his men are prepared to leave on call if a riot seems imminent at the Little Vermillion mines.

FORECLOSING ON MORSE RESIDENCE

Mortgagee Complains That Interest and Taxes Are Unpaid.

New York, May 5.—Foreclosure proceedings are pending against the Charles Morse residence in Fifth avenue, which is still occupied by Mrs. Morse. The property was sold last year under a second mortgage and title has been held since then by a corporation, which was declared to have been acting for Mrs. Morse. The corporation mortgaged the property again for $250,000 and it is on this mortgage that foreclosure proceedings have now been begun. The complaint states that interest of $8,200 and taxes of $5,400 are unpaid.

FINDS BOTTLE; TAKES DRINK, AND IS DYING.

Montclair, N. J., May 5.—George Botts found a half pint bottle in the street here last night. The bottle contained a liquid which looked like whisky, and Botts swallowed the contents at a gulp. The supposed whisky proved to be muriatic acid, and Botts is dying in the Mountainside hospital.

WANT SOO TO BUILD DEPOT

West Duluth People Ask That Franchise Provisions Be Carried Out.

Soo Line Assumed Obligations Taken By Wisconsin Central Company.

West Duluth Commercial club members are much interested in what steps the Soo line will take in regard to the erection and maintenance of a freight and passenger station west of Forty-sixth avenue west, as provided in the franchise of the Wisconsin Central railroad, which has since been acquired by the Soo.

When the Soo line took over the Wisconsin Central road it put itself under obligations to live up to the terms of the old franchise, according to E. M. Morgan, former assistant city attorney, who took a hand in drawing up the franchise which was granted the Wisconsin Central road by the city.

Since the acquisition of the Wisconsin Central line the Soo has altered the plan for entering Duluth from Superior. The Wisconsin Central officials had planned to run the line via the Grassy Point bridge and West Duluth, but the Soo people have secured a right-of-way of Connor's Point and over the Interstate bridge.

This, however, will not release the Soo line from erecting and maintaining a station at West Duluth, west of Forty-sixth avenue west. According to the terms of the franchise the depot must be built before Jan. 1 of next year. It is thought by some that a spur may be built to West Duluth.

The matter will be brought up by the Commercial club meeting tomorrow evening. If the Soo line officials show any disposition to slight West Duluth in this regard, the Commercial club, it is understood, will take an active part in seeing that the city gets the full benefit of the terms of the franchise.

The Commercial club at its meeting tomorrow night may ask the board of public works to see that some repairs are made to the Proctor road. Since the water mains have been placed between West Duluth and Proctor, the road has been in poor condition.

• • •

It is also probable that the Northern Pacific road will be requested to provide an additional waiting room for women at their depot at West Duluth.

TIED UP NEIGHBORS' CHICKENS WHEN THEY ENTERED HER HOUSE.

When her neighbors' chickens made themselves a nuisance around her premises, 6 North Sixty-first avenue west, Mrs. Mary Rosenquist, a widow remonstrated with the owners.

But when the fowls took the liberty of entering her house whenever the door was left open, she tied them up by the legs. A neighborhood quarrel followed.

Mrs. Rosenquist came to Lieut. Wilcox of the West Duluth police department this morning with her grievance. She claims that the neighbors show no disposition to keep their poultry at home.

No arrests were made today.

Library Branch Popular.

The West Duluth branch of the public library grows in popularity with every month. During April, there were 1,000 more books taken from library than during the same month of the preceding years, and the attendance at the library exceeds that of a year ago by 1,123. Sixty-four new cards were issued last month, making the total near the 3,000 mark.

MEMBERSHIP CONTEST.

Proctor Y. M. C. A. Inaugurates Campaign—Prizes Are Offered.

Another membership contest has been launched among the Y. M. C. A. workers at Proctor.

The contest will be an individual one, in which four prizes will be offered to those securing the most new members before May 31. An effort will be made to boost the membership of the Proctor organization to the 300 mark.

The prizes are as follows: First prize, large oak davenport, leather finish, valued at $50, given by the local Y. M. C. A.; second prize, large dining room electric dome, valued at $25, donated by the Bruggess Electric company of Duluth; third prize, a $5 pair of shoes and a $5 hat, donated by the Big Duluth Clothing company; fourth prize, a year's membership in the local Y. M. C. A.

Still a Fugitive.

Paul Perpich, who yesterday stabbed Peter Povich in a quarrel over money matters, in a boarding house at the steel plant site is still at large. The wounded man left for the range today, where he will be cared for by friends.

Dies at Virginia.

Selim Lefoure, whose family moved recently to 510 North Fifty-second avenue west, died Monday night at Virginia, where he went a month ago in search of work. The body will arrive at West Duluth tomorrow and the family will make arrangements for the funeral.

When Lefoure left for the range his family then resided at 1015½ Minnesota avenue, Park Point, but two weeks ago, they moved to West Duluth. Surviving him are a wife, a stepdaughter and an adopted son.

New Co-Operative Store.

Socialists at West Duluth have organized a new co-operative mercantile company to deal in general groceries. The capital stock will be $50,000. It is the intention of the new company to acquire the store owned by the National Co-operative company at 5511 Grand avenue. At a preliminary meeting yesterday, the following officers were chosen: John Smith, president; Andrew Magnuson, vice president; P. G. Phillips, secretary, and John Hanson, treasurer.

West Duluth Briefs.

Degree of Honor lodge will give a dancing party Friday evening at Gilley's hall, Central avenue.

John Nienela of Sixty-third avenue west, who was arrested yesterday for allowing cattle to run at large, will be arraigned in the West Duluth justice court this afternoon.

S. J. Nygren is remodeling the front of his store building at 310 Central avenue. The place was recently vacated by a furniture firm.

Miss Emil Zauft entertained the West Duluth branch of the W. C. T. U. this afternoon at her home, 5810 Wadena street. "Progressive Temperance" was the subject under discussion, with Mrs. Charles Holt as leader.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the St. Stephen's Evangelical Lutheran church was entertained this afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Laubach of 518 North Fifty-seventh avenue west. Tonight she will entertain the young people's society.

Hurst Watch repairing, W. Duluth.

The annual spring festival of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Ellm Swedish Lutheran church will be held tomorrow night and Saturday evening at the church, Fifty-sixth avenue west and Elinor street. A supper will be followed by a musical program each evening.

TRUST'S GRIP WEAKENED

Klaw & Erlanger Are Seriously Affected By Latest Defections.

Fine List of Attractions Expected at the Lyceum Next Season.

Late this afternoon, the following telegram was received by The Herald from Charles A. Marshall:

"We are open for every good attraction that wishes to play Duluth and the Copper and Iron circuit offered by any producer, Klaw & Erlanger's personal shows included. They have 'Ben Hur,' also 'The Round Up,' which comes to the Lyceum next week. The policy for the Copper and Iron circuit, the Walker circuit and the Cort circuit will be strictly independent."

The desertion of Klaw & Erlanger by John Cort with his string of theaters in the Northwest and by smaller circuits following in Cort's footsteps may result in the grip of the theatrical syndicate being released from the entire United States. The defection, coming so soon after Julius Cahn had turned his 400 theaters over to the Shubert stars and Mose Reis had broken away with his 100 theaters in the Middle states, is a severe blow to the Klaw & Erlanger Booking agency.

The power which the theatrical syndicate mercilessly used in controlling the dramatic fortunes of the United States has been broken it is believed. Not only managers of theaters, but producing managers including William A. Brady, Liebler & Co., Daniel V. Arthur and others, have withdrawn from the domination of the trust.

John Cort, in an interview published in New York, gives his reasons for breaking away from the control of the syndicate and, as the Lyceum theater here was in the same position as the Cort theaters, what he says is interesting:

What Cort Says.

"Of course, Erlanger dropped our houses from his bookings—but after I had signed a contract with the Shuberts," he said. "The reason I made the change of allying myself with the Shuberts and adopting their open door policy was that the best Klaw & Erlanger could offer me for the coming year was a total of fourteen productions for the entire season. This list of fourteen productions did not include a single star, and did include a lot of plays that have already been seen in my theaters.

"My contract with the Shuberts is for thirty first-class stars and attractions each season for five years. I have approved the list of stars and attractions with which they are to supply me, and I am guaranteed that they will fulfill their contract.

"There is a wide movement on foot to throw the entire United States open to all attractions, and this will be done within the next few days. The reason for this is that Klaw & Erlanger, through their pernicious methods, have driven a large majority of the producing managers into bankruptcy, so that theater managers throughout the country have had to take a decided stand or turn their playhouses into garages. My theaters will have the finest list of attractions next season that has ever been seen in them."

Charles A. Marshall, who has been in New York for some time arranging terms with the Shuberts preparatory to declaring the "open door" policy at the Lyceum and the other theaters of the Copper and Iron circuit, is now on his way to Duluth. He will stop off in Northwestern Theatrical Managers' association may 11, and will be back in Duluth the latter part of the week.

It is expected that Duluth people will see some of the best of the Shubert stars next season. Thirty first-class productions will start for the Northwest immediately, it is said, and others will follow when the regular season opens in the fall. Not only will Shubert productions be seen here, but the big shows produced by William A. Brady, Liebler & Co., Lew Fields, Fred C. Whitney and Daniel V. Arthur will follow this circuit and the prospects are that the Lyceum will have a list of attractions next season that will prove the wisdom of the change.

Among the stars booked by the Shuberts are: Sothern and Marlowe, Maxine Elliott, Forbes-Robertson, Grace George, Blanche Ring, Louis Mann, William Faversham, Marie Dressler, Otis Harlan, Bertha Kalich, Mme. Nazimova, Marietta Olly, Mary Mannering, Bertha Galland, John Mason, Wilton Lackaye, Sam Bernard, Marie Cahill and William Hodge.

RAILROADS

DIRECTORS ARE CHOSEN.

Lake Shore & Nickle Plate Roads Hold Annual Meetings.

Cleveland, May 5.—The annual meetings of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern and Nickel Plate railroads, were held in Cleveland yesterday. Each road elected three directors to fill vacancies caused by death or resignation.

On the Lake Shore board, James Stillman succeeds D. O. Mills for a one-year term, L. Cass Ledyard succeeds Hamilton McK. Twombley for a two-year term and Marvin Hughitt is confirmed as successor to E. H. Harriman.

Among the three-year term directors, all of whom were re-elected, are F. W. Vanderbilt, W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Chauncey M. Depew, William H. Newman and W. C. Brown.

In the case of the Nickel Plate, Messrs. Newman, Ledyard and Hughitt succeed J. S. Kennedy, Ralph Hickox and Mr. Walters.

Want Raise on Reading.

Philadelphia, May 5.—Representatives of the conductors and brakemen of the Philadelphia & Reading railway are in negotiation with General Manager Dice for an increase in wages. They were not included in the 6 per cent advance made effective from April 17. An amicable agreement is fully anticipated, probably this week.

COREY SEES NO BUSINESS CLOUD

President of Steel Corporation Gives Interview in New York.

New York, May 5.—William E. Corey, president of the United States Steel corporation sees no clouds on the financial horizon and thinks the United States is in for a most prosperous business year. Mr. Corey, before he sailed for Europe today, said:

"There is nothing in the business situation that would warrant pessimism. With fair average crops, the current year should be one of the most prosperous in history.

"Recently there has been satisfactory improvement in the steel business, and the steel mills of the country should be kept active for the rest of the year. Prices for steel are holding firm, and from present indications we will obtain average prices this year, which will assure manufacturers a reasonable margin of profit."

PLAN TO AVOID THE MIDDLEMAN

Farmers and Labor Leaders Talk Over Scheme for New Society.

St. Louis, Mo., May 5.—Officers of the American Federation of Labor and of the different farmers' organizations in convention here continued today to discuss a plan of co-operation. A new organization to be called the National Farmers' Scientific Co-operative society probably will be the result of the deliberations. The new organization will endeavor to do away with the middleman and the speculation on farm products.

Today's program of the farmers' rally was devoted largely to grain men. Representatives from grain and produce exchanges of the large cities attended the meetings. Twenty speakers were on the day's program.

MOURN DEATH OF DOCTOR.

International Falls Regrets the Passing of Dr. Ghostly.

International Falls, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—General regret is expressed here over the death at Anoka, Monday, of Dr. Fred Ghostly, the announcement of which was received in a telegram to Dr. Monahan of the Minnesota & Ontario hospital.

Dr. Ghostly was one of the physicians of the hospital in this city, locating here about the middle of February. For a few months, his health has not been the best, and he and his wife, who is also a doctor in this city, decided to take a trip to his home at Anoka to rest a few weeks.

Instead of his health improving he passed away Monday morning in that city. Dr. Ghostly was a good physician and one of our most highly esteemed citizens. He was only 28 years old, when death occurred.

Saloon Fight Aired.

Joseph Rokoski, laborer, had the tables turned on him yesterday in police court after he had secured the conviction of Charles Zanazanski, a saloon keeper, who admitted that he had slugged Rokoski with a club in his place of business Tuesday night and paid a fine of $5 and costs. Zanazanski, after paying his fine, immediately swore out a warrant for the arrest of Rokoski on the same charge. In default of $50 bail, he is in jail until his hearing next Wednesday.

Death Stops Journey.

Chris Arneson, 21 years old, of 405 John avenue died of tuberculosis yesterday at St. Mary's hospital just after the immigration authorities in Duluth had completed arrangements for the return of the young man to his home in Norway. He was to have left as soon as he was able to travel. He had been taking treatment at the expense of the county for some time past. Arneson worked at one time for the street railway company. He has no relatives in this country, but friends are making the funeral arrangements.

Stocking Trout Streams.

Sixty thousand trout fry yesterday were placed in the streams along the line of the Eastern Minnesota railway between Dedham and Foboro by members of the Douglas County Fish and Game league. An additional 10,000 fry were divided between streams around Dewey and in the branches of the Amnicon. Besides the fry placed yesterday, there have been over 40,000 other fry put in the streams along the Northern Pacific and Omaha lines in Douglas county.

TELLS OF HEALTH OF COL. SWOPE

Sylvester Spangler Appears as Witness for Defense in Hyde Trial.

Kansas City, Mo., May 5.—Col. Swope was in ill health for months prior to his death. Natural causes might have been responsible for the convulsions of Thomas H. Chrisman and Margaret Swope. These things the defense in the Hyde trial attempted to prove in opening its case today.

Sylvester Spangler, the millionaire's manager, testified that Col. Swope was so enfeebled for a year before he died that he fainted several times. The millionaire, said Mr. Spangler, told him the day before his death he might die at any time.

On cross-examination Dr. F. W. Froehling admitted the attacks experienced by the Swopes when they had convulsions also resembled cases of strychnine poisoning. The witness was in the hands of the state when adjournment was taken at noon.

TOO HOT FOR CRAWFORD.

Colored Man Who Drew His Steel Had to Leave Town.

Flaxton, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—After drawing a razor on a local young man with whom he had quarrelled, John Crawford, colored, found local sentiment so strong that he made a quick get away, even forgetting to lock up the place of business that he had been conducting. Crawford threatened dire harm to the young man but found that the crowd was against him so quickly made a rush for safety. He remained under cover until darkness gave him an opportunity to leave the town, he making his escape across the Canadian line.

TO PREVENT FOREST FIRES.

Railroads Will Co-operate With the Forest Service.

Washington, May 5.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has signed an agreement with the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railway companies which provides for co-operation of the forest service and railroads to prevent damage to national forests from fires along all lines operated by these railroads.

The companies agree to clear and keep clear of inflammable material a strip of varying width, as conditions may demand, up to 200 feet beyond the right-of-way and to provide all locomotives which do not burn oil with suitable equipment to prevent the dropping of fire.

In fighting fires railroads and the forest service will co-operate closely. Prompt notification to forest officers of all fires discovered by employes of the railroads is provided for. The agreement provides that the forest service will regularly patrol the rights-of-way during a fire season.

ILL FORTUNE FOLLOWS ALL DOGS OWNED BY HOTEL MAN

E. O. Perry, proprietor of the Spalding hotel, yesterday lost the thirteenth dog he has owned since he became old enough to become the proud possessor of a canine.

The dog was a Boston bull and has suddenly disappeared from the precincts of the Spalding. The hoodoo is consistent and the owner of the hotel was not in the least surprised when his pet was reported missing.

Misfortune has followed the Perry dogs. Mr. Perry stated today that a fire engine ran over one in Springfield, Ohio, while a traveling man put some kind of acid on another of his pets and caused the dog to leap wildly from an upper story of an Oklahoma hotel. Another dog poisoned and still another one lost its young life by becoming infatuated with some fly paper that had stick and sweet poison on it.

Others have been lost or have strayed or been stolen. One of the Perry pets leaped through a coil of rope some painters had left hanging from the rafter of one of the hotels owned in the past by the hotel man, and hanged itself.

Whether the latest dog owned by the hotel man has merely strayed away or whether some untimely fate has overtaken it, Mr. Perry is unable to say. He merely says he was never able to keep a dog and the thirteenth one to disappear will probably be the the last he will attempt to keep.

Street Car Crashes Into It---Occupants Have Miraculous Escape.

Chauffeur Evidently Forgot About Car Coming Behind Him.

R. B. Knox of 1314 East Superior street, prominent real estate and insurance man, and his chauffeur, fortunately escaped without a scratch when Mr. Knox's automobile was smashed by a street car at Ninth avenue east and Superior street about 8:30 o'clock this morning.

The machine and the street car were both going in the same direction at fairly high rates of speed. Mr. Knox had been running ahead of the street car on his way to the office. Seeing some friends on the corner he waved to them, evidently inviting them to take a ride down town with him.

The chauffeur interpreted the signal that way and immediately began to slow down the machine, at the same ttime starting towards the curb on the upper side, where the men were walking. The driver evidently forgot about the street car, and the motorman apparently had no time to slow down. The car banged into the rear of the automobile, almost completely demolishing the body.

That no one was injured appears to be miraculous. Both Mr. Knox and the man at the wheel were uninjured when they came to a stop. The car sustained all the damage. It is stated that the cost of the repairs will be heavy. Those near the scene of the accident stated that the street car was going at a very high speed and that the automobile was keeping ahead of it. Mr. Knox walked the remainder of the distance to his office and the chauffeur took the machine to the garage.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by all druggists.

SALE IS A GREAT SUCCESS

The wonderful success that is attending the Removal Sale of the Korby Piano Company at 201 East Superior street, may be attributed largely to the confidence of the plibic, in a house that has always stood for money-saving opportunities for piano buyers. The Korby Piano Company is the factory distributing store for the Kimball piano—a piano that is built thoroughly in every part. In olden days the piano business was a small issue. A comparison of the piano manufactories and machinery of early days with those of today is much as the handsaw to the modern equipped sawmill.

The capacity of the W. W. Kimball company factory is more than double that of any other simillar institution in the world. It is equipped with the very latest improvements and, as the company has practically unlimited capital, it stands to reason that the Kimball piano must be the best in every particular, or the output of the factory would decrease instead of increase from year to year.

The other retail dealers sometimes knock the Kimball piano, because they know that they have no instrument in stock as good, in fact, they carry a cheaper grade piano for which they ask more money than we sell a standard Kimball piano for.

There are more musical artists using the Kimball piano today than of any other make, because it meets their requirements better.

It adds 100 per cent to the appearance of your home to have a Kimball Piano stand in the room.

The purchase of a Kimball piano is a splendid investment, and is proof that the buyer has used good judgment.

Remember that the removal sale lasts only a few days, while our new store is being made ready for us. Store open evenings during the sale.

MAYOR FINED FOR SPITTING ON FLOOR

Memphis Executive Is Arrested in Crusade He Himself Started.

Memphis, Tenn., May 5.—Mayor Edward H. Crump was arrested today charged with expectorating on the tiled floor of the new $2,000,000 courthouse.

Mayor Crump, who was inaugurated in January, recently started an anti-spitting crusade and ordered police officers to arrest anyone expectorating on the streets and on the floors of street cars and public buildings.

The mayor was fined $5, which he paid promptly.

SAFE BLOWERS ARE CHASED WITH DOGS.

Newell, W. Va., May 5.—Safe blowers who early this morning blew open a large safe in the offices of the North American Manufacturing company, secured only $200 in cash, but succeeded getting away with valuable negotiable papers and mortgages.

Bloodhounds set upon the trail of the robbers have followed the scent to the Pennsylvania station in East Liverpool, Ohio, where it is believed the safe blowers boarded a train.

BIG MEETING IN PROSPECT

About 1,000 Delegates Will Attend Development Convention at Crookston.

Special Train May Be Run for Northeastern Minnesota Delegation.

Crookston will know that it is on the map the first week in June and so will the rest of the state, if there ever had been any doubt of it before.

About 1,000 delegates to the convention of the Northern Minnesota Development association will be in session there June 1, 2 and 3. St. Louis county will be represented by about 100 delegates and there are twenty-nine counties in the northern part of the state which will send representatives to the meeting.

It is possible that a special train carrying delegates from St. Louis, Cook and Lake counties will be run to Crookston. In any event there will be several special Pullman sleepers and private cars occupied by the St. Louis county contingent and the delegates from two or three counties nearby.

The Crookston meeting will be the biggest conservation and development convention ever held in Northern Minnesota. It will rival the recent meeting in St. Paul. Well known speakers from this and other states will speak upon topics suitable for such a meeting. All aspects of the agricultural and commercial development of the northern portion of the state will be discussed.

The meeting will be a crystallization of the sentiment which has been fast growing in Northern Minnesota that the thousands of unoccupied acres in this region must be placed under the plow or transformed into pasturage for the dairy cow. The Duluth Commercial club has been doing efficient work in advertising the agricultural possibilities of Northeastern Minnesota and in educating the farmer how to produce the best results from the cultivation of his land. It will join hands with the commercial bodies in the northern part of the state to do for that region what it has been accomplishing for this region.

Colonization Plans.

An organized effort will be made to induce settlers to colonize the fertile soil in the northern part of the state. An attempt will be made to halt a part of the tide of immigration to Canada and detect it to the productive lands of the northern half of Minnesota. Working in harmony, the cities and towns in the thirty counties associated in the movement will endeavor to draw the overworked and underpaid man from the city to the land to become his own master, to lay a foundation for financial independence and bodily health. Literature will be prepared for the distribution and when the organization is finally completed it will be possible to send prospective settlers information concerning each of the thirty counties, details of the soil, the climate, transportation, freight rates and the availability of markets.

The speakers at the Crookston meeting will be W. M. Hayes of Washington, assistant secretary of agriculture; George Welsh, commissioner of immigration for Minnesota; Leroy Boughner of the editorial staff of the Minneapolis Tribune; George W. Cooley, state engineer, who has superintended the construction of many drainage ditches and other state improvements in the northern part of the state; William J. Brown, attorney for Marshall county; A. M. Dunton, superintendent of the agricultural school at McIntosh; C. P. Craig of Duluth, of the Minnesota state fair board; P. E. Dowling, editor of the Eveleth Star; A. B. Dosetter, superintendent of the agricultural department of the Duluth Commercial club; A. J. McGuire, superintendent of the state's experimental farm at Grand Rapids; Dean Woods of the state agricultural school at St. Paul; A. E. Chamberlain, superintendent of the farmers' institutes of North Dakota; P. J. Russell, member of the Minnesota forestry board; R. C. Dunn, editor of the Princeton Union, and possibly the Rt. Rev. James McGolrick, Catholic bishop of Duluth, who has been instrumental in bringing a large number of immigrants to Northern Minnesota.

QUESTION MAY BE SETTLED

Oneota School Matter to Come Before Board of Education Again.

The proposed improvement of the Oneota school, which has occupied the attention of the board of education for months, will have another fling at the regular meeting tomorrow night and the matter may be finally settled.

At a special meeting of the board about two weeks ago, L. A. Barnes put the matter squarely up to the board. "What are you going to do about it?" he asked and probably his query will be answered tomorrow night.

The Oneota school is the oldest school building in the city. It has not been condemned for all practical purposes, but it has been declared by some of the members of the board to be unfit for improvement and they object to spending very much money on it. They say that the erection of the proposed school on the hillside in the Oneota district will relieve the old school so much that the addition will not be necessary.

On the other hand residents in the district claim that on the whole the school is in fairly good condition, that the district is growing and that the addition is absolutely necessary and should be built. A solution of the problem is offered in an architect's sketch, which provides for the erection of an addition distinct from the old school and so arranged that the old building may be torn down at some later date and a new building erected with the addition as a wing.

During the interval between the last meeting of the board and the meeting tomorrow night, all members were supposed to look over the old building personally, so that they may have a better understanding of the situation when the matter comes to a vote. The vote will probably be taken tomorrow night.

As far as the members of the board are able to forecast, only routine business, with the exception of the Oneota school matter, will come before the meeting tomorrow night.

LAST DAY OF THE CENSUS

Few Stragglers Being Gathered in By Special Agents of Government.

District Supervisor Hollister Well Pleased With Results in Duluth.

The final roundup is being made today in taking the census of Duluth. Tonight at midnight the books of the census will close, and the officials will take advantage of every minute given them. A night crew will be out tonight to make a final tour of the hotels and lodging houses. Today houses which were reported vacant by the enumerators are being visited. Special agents are making great efforts for even a single name, and any one who is missed will have only himself to blame. The officials have done all they can to secure a complete census.

There may be some schedules out yet, and District Supervisor Hollister is anxious that the people holding them send them in immediately. Tomorrow the names secured during the last few days will be posted in the district books; and Mr. Hollister hopes to send the books to Washington tomorrow night.

"There has been a falling off in our mail and telephone communications during the last few days, and, instead of coming in hundreds, the names are now coming singly," said Mr. Hollister this morning. "I believe that when the figures of Duluth's population are given out at Washington, Duluth people will say that we have done our work well. The number of people missed will not be as great as we feared would be the case when we started the work.

"The outside assistance we received has gone far toward securing an accurate and complete census. The press has treated us exceptionally well. We received hundreds of coupons from The Herald, and, while the list of questions was being published during the time the enumerators were at work, many people studied the questions and had their answers all ready for the enumerator when he called, thereby greatly expediting the work.

"The Commercial Club of Duluth, the West Duluth Commercial club, the Real Estate exchange, the public schools, the pastors of the various churches, the letter carriers, the officials of county and city have rendered invaluable assistance. The task has been a hard one for us, but it would have been much harder if public spirited citizens had not turned in and given us their assistance.

"On the part of the hotel keepers, lodginghouse-keepers and the general public, we found a disposition to help the enumerators secure an accurate count. Public assistance is absolutely necessary to a good census and we would have missed thousands in the regular course of the work if we had been compelled to rely solely on our own resources. Duluth people have shown a commendable public spirit and they will not regret their efforts when the results are made public."

The enumerators were surprised by the small extent to which they were required to use interpreters. The schools had done their work well in instructing the children of foreign parents in the purposes of the census and much of the suspicion with which the census is usually viewed by foreigners was dispelled on that account. The pastors of churches attended by foreigners also helped materially in the work.

It is not expected that the results of the census will be published for some months. The census bureau will compile the figures as rapidly as possible, but the compilation of figures from all the cities in the United States is no small task and people will be held in suspense for some time. It is probable that the population of the entire United States will not be known until some time next fall.

All of the enumerators and special agents working on the census in Duluth will finish tonight and Mr. Hollister and City Supervisor J. W. Allen will work tomorrow getting the books ready for shipment. After he finishes the work here, Mr. Hollister will go out through the remainder of the district to check up the work.

"I am certainly well pleased with the working force I had in Duluth," remarked Mr. Hollister this morning. "The enumerators were all hard-working, conscientious people, and in many cases their remuneration is small for great efforts expended.

"In Mr. Allen, Duluth had a city supervisor of whom it may be proud. He worked night and day to secure a complete census. He has been courteous, affable and conscientious and has dealt with the problems which confronted him with good judgment. His regular work was interrupted that he might take up the census work, but he has not tried to make a vacation of the period. I believe he has worked harder than he ever did before. He has shown the true 'Do it for Duluth' spirit, and his wide acquaintance and knowledge of local conditions have accomplished much that I could not have done had I been in sole charge of the work."

TO HELP HANDLE PENSION FUND

Local Commissioner Has No Details of Steel Company's Plans.

F. D. Adams, attorney for the Oliver Mining company, who has been named as one of the commission that will handle the United States Steel corporation's $12,000,000 pension fund, has not received definite information about the plan on which the fund will be administered.

The fund includes the $4,000,000 set aside by Andrew Carnegie to pension employes in the companies he founded, and $8,000,000 recently appropriated for a like purpose by the Steel corporation.

Some of the members of the commission which will handle the pension money are named by Mr. Carnegie and the others by the corporation. Mr. Adams is of the latter group.

HE VOTED ILLEGALLY.

Redwood Falls Boy Admits Guilt and Gets Jail Sentence.

Redwood Falls, Minn., May 5.—The district court wound up its criminal business in short order. The case against Clarence H. Ackmann, who, although a minor, voted at the last city election, attracted the most interest. He entered a plea of guilty, and the court sentenced him to six months in jail.

Charles Dietz, charged with stealing oats from a Lamberton warehouse, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to ninety days in the county jail. Herman Hardt of Sanborn paid a fine of $100 for selling intoxicating liquor on Sunday. Peter Feller, Charles Dietz, Otto Brasket and Herman Feuerstein of Sanborn pleaded guilty to the charge of gambling and paid fines of $20 each. It is understood their arrest followed the grand jury's investigation into the death of Lewis Miller, whose body was found in the railroad yards at Sanborn several weeks ago. They were members of the card party at which Miller was last seen alive.

DRAGGED UNDER CAR.

Quinnesec, Mich., Youth Has Narrow Escape From Death.

Quinnesec, Mich., May 5.—Glenn Malone, 10-year-old son of James Malone of this place had a narrow escape from being crushed to death the other day. He attempted to crawl under a car on his way to school, just as the switch engine started to pull the train away. One of the car wheels struck him and shoved him along the rail for some distance before he was noticed. When the train was stopped, he was taken out of his perilous position and was found to have escaped with only a few bruises.

JUDGE QUASHES MANY OF THE INDICTMENTS.

Marinette, Wis., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Hastings has quashed nearly all of the indictments returned by the recent grand jury. There remains of these indictments only two counts against Thomas Brown, formerly sheriff. The indictments quashed were three against Thomas Brown, one against Fred M. Price and one against E. E. Noyes.

The following were sentenced: Nick Kockleschneider, one year for abandonment; Martin Jernck, three years at Green Bay reformatory for larceny; Joseph Kluzinskl, larceny, four months in the county jail.

PIN FAITH ON MARSHALL.

Upper Peninsula Theatrical Men Look to Duluthian.

Marquette, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most important meetings ever held by the theater managers of the Northwestern association has been called for the Plankinton house, Milwaukee, next Wednesday, and will be attended by A. F. Koepeke of the Marquette opera house, and the men directing other upper peninsula theaters. It is likely that important changes in the booking arrangements for the theaters of the Northwestern circuit will be authorized.

Manager Koepeke is in communication with managers of a number of the upper peninsula theaters. None of them yet have definite information as to the lay of the ground, and all are looking forward to the Milwaukee meeting with much interest and some concern, for the decision to be reached there may possibly have an important bearing on the future of their houses. What Manager Marshall of Duluth has to present to them will have a big influence in determining the decision that is reached. They all have confidence in his judgment and his desire to protect the interests of the upper peninsula houses.

Ambrose Burdash and Louis Pearson, who wrestle at the lodge affairs given by the Catholic Order of Foresters, St. Louis court, No. 117, have extended a challenge for a wrestling match with any lodge members who is not in the professional class. Burdash weighs close to 200 and wrestles in the heavyweight class. Pearson is new at the job and tips the scales at 150 pounds.

Will Let Contract.

The contract for the foundation work of the new $35,000 St. Clement's Catholic church will be let tomorrow and work will be begun as soon after as possible. The excavation work has been finished and bids have been received by the church building committee.

West End Shortrails.

Mrs. H. Iverson of 2319 West Third street entertained the Tabitha Society of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church at her home last evening.

Choir rehearsal will be held tomorrow evening at the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street. Rev. J. A. Anderson of Marinette, Wis., district superintendent, will conduct services this evening at the church.

The Adams Athletic association will entertain at the second of a series of weekly dancing parties this evening at Lincoln park pavilion. Flags of all nations will comprise the decorations.

Miss Alice Anderson of Twenty-sixth avenue west, left yesterday for Spokane, Wash., where she will visit friends and relatives for a few weeks.

The Busy Bee Society of the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will meet Saturday afternoon at the church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street. Mrs. Henry Johnson will be the hostess.

William Spicer of Winona, Minn., a former resident of the West end, was here on a visit yesterday.

A two weeks' series of revival meetings began last evening at the First Norwegian Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street. Rev. Edward Erickson, pastor of the congregation, occupied the pulpit.

The Swedish Christian Sick Benefit society will hold its annual meeting tomorrow evening at Sloan's hall.

The spring festival held last evening at the First Swedish Baptist church under the auspices of the ladies' aid society was a decided success. Rev. Swaney Nelson, pastor of the congregation was the speaker of the evening and a musical program was rendered.

COAL TAR DYE FOUND IN CANDIES SOLD IN THE STATE IN APRIL

benzoate, and were, therefore, condemned.

Two packages of corn meal were both discovered to be short weight.

Coal Tar in Candy.

Of sixty-five candy samples examined, twenty-nine were found to contain coal tar dye, and one of these twenty-nine contained silver-coated pellets. All twenty-nine were condemned.

Two gelatine preparations were pronounced all right.

Eight vanilla extracts were examined. Three were incorrectly labeled, and one was below the legal standard. Of six lemon extracts, two were incorrectly labeled, and four were below the legal standard, containing less than 5 per cent of lemon oil. Out of five other flavoring extracts, two were found to be improperly made.

Five lard samples were found all right. Of eleven linseed oil samples, five contained some mineral oil and were, therefore, condemned.

Of twenty-two samples of milk, six were condemned because they contained less than the required percentage of butter fat. Of fifteen samples of cream, four were condemned for the same reason. On the same ground one of the two samples of ice cream was condemned; also a sample of evaporated milk.

A blackberry phosphate was condemned because it contained coal tar dye.

Cottonseed Olive Oil.

Five olive oils were examined and one of them was discovered to consist chiefly of cottonseed oil.

Three samples of pickles and relishes were pronounced all right.

Out of ten packages of spices, two were condemned because they were not labeled according to their net weight.

Of forty-four sugars examined, thirty-four were found to have been incorrectly labeled as to their relative amounts of maple and cane sugar, and five more, that purported to be pure maple sugar, were found to be largely adulterated with cane sugar. Five maple syrups were examined and found all right.

A so-called cider vinegar was found to be an imitation and a sugar vinegar was discovered to be below the legal standard.

SENT BACK TO STATES

ada. For this purpose he went to International Falls with the girls.

Crossed the Border.

Reaching there, he came across to Fort Frances on Monday morning of last week, but hearing he would have to pass the immigration officer, he decided it was best to go back to International Falls. Realizing the police were on his trail, it is alleged, he sold the girls for $300 to one of the keepers of the red light district, and going to Ranier, walked across the railway bridge in order to elude the immigration inspector and took the morning train for Fort Arthur.

By this time, acting under instructions from Appleton, Wis., Sheriff Forrier of Koochiching county, Minn., had a warrant ready for his arrest, and called on the Fort Frances police to assist him to find his man. Crown Attorney A. D. George also got busy, with the result that Vincent was apprehended at Port Arthur. Immigration Inspector Osborne was then called in and the matter turned over to him, when he at once laid information under the immigration law and had a warrant issued to arrest Vincent on a charge of procuring and abducting for immoral purposes and violating the immigration laws. He then instructed Provincial Constable Campbell to go to Port Arthur and bring Vincent back, which was done, the latter reaching here by last night's train. Vincent came up for a hearing today before Magistrate Hollands, and was ordered deported. He was handed over at once to the police at International Falls.

Girl Tells Her Story.

Miss Neuman says that she occupied a prominent position in the Presbyterian church of her native town, being a valued member of the choir and one of the energetic members of the young ladies' clubs of the church. She says that her parents are very strict church people, and would never allow her to go to any dances or places of amusement frequented by other girls, but kept her in rather close supervision. This became irksome to her, and being naturally of a romantic and cheerful disposition, the temptation offered her by a woman flashily dressed whereby she could have a good time and plenty of clothes naturally appealed to her, and it was not until she had got in the clutches and in that of the man Vincent that she realized the position she was placed in. Having once taken the step, she was afraid to get away and go back home, for fear she would be sent to a reformatory, and therefore remained a passive victim. She is exceedingly sorry for what has occurred, and says that she will go back home and forget it all and be a good girl.

Miss Graham is also anxious to go to her home which is in Ohio, and reform. The girls' relatives have wired them to come home and all will be forgiven. This they will do.

Traffic Gone on for Years.

There is no doubt but the white slave traffic has been going on for years in Northern Minnesota and that Vincent is the head of the gang operating across the border. Owing to the vigilance of the police and immigration officers this part of Canada offers no attraction for such offenders as these, would not be allowed in the country, but would be deported immediately they were located. Immigration Inspector Osborne says that he will make it interesting for any undesirables of what he calls the prohibited class, who enters the country. In this he is fully assisted by the crown attorney and provincial police, so that as far as they are concerned no tolerance of such nefarious traffic as that permitted across the line at International Falls will be tolerated.

For several years houses of ill fame have been wide open at International Falls and it was to one of these houses that Vincent took the two girls, when they were found two days afterwards one was in a tent hidden in the woods and the other was in another place. The girls said that when Vincent left them he said he was going across to Canada and on to Fort William and Port Arthur to see if he could get them in a safe place, when he would write for them to come and thus be out of reach, as he thought, of the American authorities.

gress would adjourn without a single item of the Taft program accomplished.

The entire tone of this conference was belligerent towards the insurgents. This was the dominant note:

"Let us get together and stand as a unit against every insurgent proposition. If the insurgents propose anything good, we'll take it over bodily and put it through as our own; but if they propose anything bad, we'll stamp it out."

It was stated without reservation that President Taft had been kept fully advised of the situation and was entirely in sympathy with the plan and virtually pledged to it. It was said in behalf of the conferees that while the measures which would be resorted to were heroic, they were necessary in defense of the administration and the integrity of the Republican party.

Aldrich Chosen Leader.

To Senator Aldrich was given the leadership of the new movement. He left later for Rhode Island and will not return before Tuesday. The plan is meanwhile to "mark time" and endeavor to "hold the fort," while there will be many conferences, at the White House and elsewhere, and the details of the militant plan will be perfected.

The intention is to avoid test votes on any subject of importance until next week. Every hour brings additional evidence of the widening breach between the regulars and the insurgents in both houses. Conservative Republican leaders, with hardly an exception, confess that in neither is there present a coherent majority.

Even those unfamiliar as yet with the plans of the new senate organization seem to be awaiting the return of President Taft to Washington to see what, if anything, he can and will do to induce or to compel action sufficiently harmonious to get at least some remnants of his program through congress. As matters stand, the prospect, from the Republican point of view, is anything but alluring.

True Growth of Breach.

The situation has developed almost without halt from the beginning of the last session, when the warfare began in the house ovtr the speakership and the adoption of the rules. Some locate the beginning of the split as far back as the Fifty-ninth congress and trace it down to the suddenly widening break of last year's tariff session, since when there has been little semblance of harmony on the majority side, especially of the house.

The direct and immediate cause of the danger to the legislative program is that the two factions in the Republican party have been unable to get together upon details of the proposed legislation. Both sides agree that this is the case, but each side blames the other. The insurgents say the fault lies in the arrogance of the regular leaders toward the progressive policies represented by most of the Republicans of the Middle West. The regulars charge with resentment that the insurgents are simply trying to destroy the Republican party by attempting to discredit its time-honored leadership and principles and ride over the ruins to coveted places of power.

"Go-It-Husband-Go-It-Bear."

Meanwhile the Democrats in both houses are looking on with a "go-it-husband-go-it-bear" expression. They say that "whichever loses, we win," or, as Senator Bailey put it the other day on the floor, "the only policy we have in this affair is to keep both of you fellows irritated."

Members of the senate, and especially the regulars, are reticent on the whole subject, so far as talking for publication is concerned. Members of the house are less close-mouthed. The testimony in both is the same.

Majority Leader Sereno E. Payne of New York sounded the only optimistic note that could be heard in a canvass of the house.

"I haven't seen or heard anytaing on the house side which indicates a great split in the party," said Mr. Payne.

"Have you?" he inquired with a broad smile. "I think those fellows in the senate are unduly alarmed."

Not "Becoming" Serious.

On the other hand, Representative Vreeland of New York, one of the ultra-conservatives, said:

"This insurgency is not 'becoming' serious, it is already serious. If a division like this in the party continues, and it was best to go back to International Falls. Realizing the police it is bound to become irreparable. If it existed only in congress, it might be patched together, but when it is in every state and every district, no amity can come of it."

Representative Needham, a conservative from California, said that "insurgency in its national aspect is rapidly becoming anti-Taft and anti-protection. When this fact becomes generally known, there will be a change in the sentiment of the country regarding it."

Practically all of the insurgents in the house were disposed to attribute the split in the party to the alleged intolerance of such leaders as Speaker Cannon and Senator Aldrich. Poindexter of Washington and Hayes of California, both of whom are identified with the insurgent wing, in almost identical words declared their belief that the party could get together if Cannon and Aldrich were eliminated.

"Not With Either Party."

Victor Murdock of Kansas put it in different wise. He said:

"I think that Aldrich and Cannon are not in line with either the party or the people; but we are going to work out these great legislative problems within the party."

Speaker Cannon talked of the situation with characteristic vigor. He reiterated his statement that there was no longer a "working Republican majority" in either house. "It would soon get tiresome," he said, "if I kept repeating my opinions about insurgency."

The disgust with which he pronounced this word is indescribable)

"And I can only refer you to what I have said on that subject in my recent speeches, unless everybody knows where I stand on that proposition."

Some details of the agreement by which the Cummins amendment to the traffic agreement section was kept out of the railroad bill in the senate have been given out by the Democrats in view of the report that the minority party had agreed to vote against the Cummins provision.

Explains Democrats' Action.

Speaking for the Democrats of the senate, Mr. Bacon emphatically denied the report. He said that Republican organization leaders tried to get the Democrats to agree to vote against the Cummins amendment to provide that railroads must get the approval of the interstate commerce commission in making changes or rates, but that they had refused. They were willing, however, to pledge themselves to vote to "table" all amendments to section 7 in return for an advance pledge that the section thereafter would be stricken out.

Mr. Bacon said that the Democrats object to the report that they would have voted against an amendment to require railroads to submit changes of rates to the interstate commerce commission to obtain the approval of that body in advance of their taking effect.

thing when it served merely as a mask for cowardice and sloth, or as an instrument to further the ends of despotism or anarchy.

"No man is worth calling a man," said the speaker, "who will not fight rather than submit to infamy or see those that are dear to him suffer wrong."

This principle Mr. Roosevelt applied to nations.

As he proceeded, Mr. Roosevelt's voice plainly showed the effect of the strain to which it has been subjected by the daily speech-making since March 1. Today it failed him several times, and toward the close of his address, which was delivered with unusual emphasis, he had difficulty in making himself heard. This morning he consulted a throat specialist, who suggested a rest from speaking as the best remedy. Nevertheless, the former president continued his set speech to its end today.

Told How to Get Peace.

Having admitted the limitations to the work for international peace, Mr. Roosevelt set forth how, in his judgment, the cause could be advanced. In the first place, there should be effective arbitration treaties between civilized communities. Then there should be a development of The Hague tribunal, of the work of the conferences and courts at The Hague. In the third place, a way should be found to check the growth of armaments, and finally, it would be a master stroke for the powers sincerely desiring peace to establish a league of peace with international police power competent and willing to prevent violence as between nations.

The address was received with expressions of appreciation, and, at its conclusion, John Lund, vice president of the Nobel prize committee, paid a tribute to Mr. Roosevelt and to the nation of which he was formerly the chief executive. After referring to Norway's interest in America and American affairs, Mr. Lund said:

"It is not Norway alone, but the entire civilized world, which has reason to be grateful to the United States. Millions upon millions from Europe, poor and often down-trodden, but capable, have found in the new world that happiness and prosperity which the old world was unable to afford them.

Has Reached the Goal.

"In many ways the United States has reached the goal for which Europe is still sighing. There all peoples, all races and all religions can unite peacefully in mutual industry, under a common flag. Many ideals for which Europe has striven for more than a thousand years have been grasped by the youngest continent in the course of two or three hundred years."

Mr. Lund praised many features of American life, citing its industry, agricultural development and school system, and dwelt upon the position of the American woman and the popular respect for the working. Addressing Mr. Roosevelt he said:

"Your journey through the Old World, Mr. Roosevelt, has been a triumphal procession. Everywhere fathers have taken pleasure and pride in bidding welcome so worthy a representative of their sons yonder in the West."

"Long Live Roosevelt."

The speaker reviewed Mr. Roosevelt's activities in behalf of peace, referring especially to his share in the conclusion of peace between Russia and Japan, and added:

"I have no doubt that the future will still afford you opportunity for adding to your splendid achievements. Long live Theodore Roosevelt!"

The Roosevelts spent a quiet morning indoors, as a cold rain fell during the forenoon. They had lunch with American Minister Peirce and Mrs. Peirce at the legation, later driving to the theater, where the exercises began at 2 o'clock.

Col. Roosevelt's Speech.

Col. Roosevelt's speech was as follows:

"It is with peculiar pleasure that I stand here today to express the deep appreciation I feel of the high honor conferred upon me by the presentation of the Nobel peace prize. The gold medal which formed part of the prize I shall always keep, and I shall hand it on to my children as a precious heirloom.

"The sum of money provided as part of the prize by the wise generosity of the illustrious founder of this world-famous prize system, I did not, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, feel at liberty to keep. I think it eminently just and proper that in most cases the recipient of the prize should keep for his own use the prize in its entirety. But in this case, while I did not act officially as president of the United States, it was nevertheless only because I was president that I was enabled to act at all; and I felt that the money must be considered as having been given me in trust for the United States.

"I therefore used it as a nucleus for a foundation to forward the cause of industrial peace, as being well within the general purpose of your committee; for in our complex industrial civilization of today the peace of righteousness and justice, the only kind of peace worth having, is at least as necessary in the industrial world as it is among nations. There is at least as much need to curb the cruel greed and arrogance of part of the world of capital, to curb the cruel and violence of part of the world of labor, as to check a cruel and unhealthy militarism in international relationships.

Justice the Great Subject.

"We must ever bear in mind that the great end in view is righteousness, justice as between man and man, nation and nation, the chance to lead our lives on a somewhat higher level, with a broader spirit of brotherly good will one for another. Peace is generally good in itself, but it is never the highest unless it comes as the handmaid of righteousness; and it becomes a very evil thing if it serves merely as a mask for cowardice and sloth, or as an instrument to further the ends of despotism or anarchy. We despise and abhor the bully, the brawler, the oppressor, whether in private or public life; but we despise no less the coward and the voluptuary.

"No man is worth calling a man who will not fight rather than submit to infamy or see those that are dear to him suffer wrong. No nation deserves to exist if it permits itself to lose the stern and virile virtues; and this without regard to whether the loss is due to the growth of a heartless and all-absorbing commercialism, to prolonged indulgence in luxury and soft effortless ease, or to the deification of a warped and twisted sentimentality.

"Moreover, and above all, let us remember that words count only when they give expression to deeds or are to be translated into them. The leaders of the Red Terror prated of peace while they steeped their hands in the blood of the innocent; and many a tyrant has called it peace when he has scourged honest protest into silence. Our words must be judged by our deeds; and if striving for a lofty ideal we must use practical methods; and if we cannot attain all at one leap, we must advance toward it step by step, reasonably content so long as we do actually make some progress in the right direction.

To Advance Cause of Peace.

"Now, having freely admitted the limitations to our work, and the qualifications to be born in mind, I feel that I have the right to have my words taken seriously when I point out where, in my judgment, great advance can be made in the cause of international peace. I speak as a practical man, and whatever I now advocate I actually tried to do when I was for the time being the head of a great nation, and keenly zealous of its honor and unbidding welcome so worthy a representative of their sons yonder in the West.

"Secondly, there is the further development of the Hague tribunal, of the work of the conferences and courts at The Hague. It has been well said that the first Hague conference framed a Magna Charta for the nations; it set before us an ideal which has already to some extent been realized, and toward the full realization of which we can all steadily strive. The second conference made further progress; the third should do yet more.

"Meanwhile the American government has more than once tentatively suggested methods for completing the court of arbital justice, constituted at the second Hague conference and for rendering it effective. It is earnestly to be hoped that the various governments of Europe, working with those of America and of Asia, shall set themselves seriously to the task of devising some method which shall accomplish this result. If I may venture the suggestion, it would be well for the statesmen of the world, in planning for the erection of this world court, to study what has been done in the United States by the supreme court.

Model in the United States.

"I cannot help thinking that the Constitution of the United States, notably in the establishment of the supreme court and in the methods adopted for securing peace and good relations among and between the different states, offers certain valuable analogies to what should be striven for in order to secure, through the Hague courts and conferences, a species of world federation for international peace and justice. There are, of course, fundamental differences between what the United States Constitution does and what we should even attempt at this time to secure at The Hague; but the methods adopted in the American Constitution to prevent hostilities between the states, and to secure the supremacy of the federal court in certain classes of cases, are well worth the study of those who seek at The Hague to obtain the same results on a world scale.

"In the third place, something should be done as soon as possible to check the growth of armaments, especially naval armaments, by international agreement. No one power could or should act by itself; for it is eminently undesirable, from the standpoint of the peace of righteousness, that a power which really does believe in peace should place itself at the mercy of some rival which may at bottom have no such belief and no intention of acting on it.

Navies and League of Peace.

"But, granted sincerity of purpose, the great powers of the world should find no insurmountable difficulty in reaching an agreement which would put an end to the present costly and growing extravagance of expenditure on naval armaments. An agreement merely to limit the size of ships would have been very useful a few years ago, and would still be of use; but the agreement should go much further.

"Finally, it would be a master stroke if those great powers honestly bent on peace would form a League of Peace, not only to keep the peace among themselves, but to prevent, by force if necessary, its being broken by others. The supreme difficulty in connection with developing the peace work of The Hague arises from the lack of any executive power, of any police power to enforce the decrees of the court.

"In any community of any size the authority of the courts rests upon actual or potential force; on the existence of a police, or on the knowledge that the able-bodied men of the country are both ready and willing to use their arms when summoned to see that the decrees of judicial and legislative bodies are put into effect. In wild and wild communities where there is violence, an honest man must protect himself; and until other means of securing his safety are devised, it is both foolish and wicked to persuade him to surrender his arms while the men who are dangerous to the community retain theirs. He should not renounce the right to protect himself by his own efforts until the community is so organized that it can effectively relieve the individual of the duty of putting down violence.

World Police Power Needed.

"So it is with nations. Each nation must keep well prepared to defend itself until the establishment of some form of international police power, competent and willing to prevent violence as between nations. As things are now, such power to command peace throughout the world could best be assured by some combination between those great nations which sincerely desire peace and have no thought themselves of committing aggressions. The combination might at first be only to secure peace within certain definite limits and certain definite conditions; but the ruler or statesman who should bring about such a combination would have earned his place in history for all time and his title to the gratitude of all mankind.

secrets of the traffic and of names upon which the prosecuting officials may work to round up additional traffickers in women for immoral purposes.

Levenson, who has pleaded guilty to one charge, was arrested with Belle Moore, a mulatto woman, and Alexander Anderson, charged with being dealers in young white girls. The arraignment of the Moore woman and Anderson was set for today and it was expected that, through counsel, they would make every effort to obtain the names of those who testified against them before the grand jury. These names, Mr. Whitman has indicated, he does not propose to reveal at this time.

College Women as Sleuths.

His investigators include two college-bred women, who were active in getting evidence against the slavers and who arranged for the purchases which the Whitman agents have testified to having made. They are ready, it is said, to testify at the trial, and the officials meanwhile are shielding them from the notoriety from which they shrink.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Walter J. Smith and Some Others.

There are indications that candidates for Republican state nominations are taking deep interest in the candidacy of Walter J. Smith for state treasurer. According to the current story, Smith is accused by some of framing up a deal with S. G. Iverson whereby they will go into the convention as allies, bent on seeing each other nominated. While this story may have no particular fabric of truth, and it is strenuously denied by Mr. Smith's friends, it at least indicates that things are warming up in the campaign for state offices.

It also is reported that I. A. Caswell of Anoka, who wants to be nominated for clerk of the supreme court, and has George Dix of St. Paul, backed by the Ramsey organization, as his opponent, looks askance at the candidacy of Mr. Smith. The convention will nominate a candidate for treasurer before the clerkship is considered, and both Mr. Caswell and Mr. Smith live in the Eighth congressional district.

If Dr. Cole is nominated for lieutenant governor, Mr. Smith's chances will be improved, because the selection of a Ninth district man for another office would tend to eliminate Al Kaiser of Bemidji as a candidate for the treasurership. Or if Bob Wells of Breckenridge is named for auditor, the result would be the same.

George E. Hanscom of Foley, who is president of four state banks and wants to take on the treasurership as a side line, is beginning to make an aggressive fight for the nomination, and he probably will be as strong a contender as Mr. Smith will find pitted against him when the convention date comes around. With A. H. Turrittin of Sauk Rapids as guide, counsellor and friend, the Foley candidate is setting out on a tour of the Sixth district, with hope high and determination strong. It is said that much of the support that has been promised him is dependent upon his making a strong showing in the Sixth district.

This unkindness is perpetrated by the Roseau Region:

If the pardoned poet, Carter, doesn't take the hint and get busy to sing, in appropriate verse, fulsome praises of Governor Eberhart, he should forthwith be returned to Stillwater to serve out his time.

Central Committee In Session.

The meeting at St. Paul today of the executive committee of the Democratic state central committee is of very particular interest and importance. Questions that will have a potent bearing on the approaching legislative and state contests are being considered, carefully and in detail, by some of the ablest men in the Democracy of Minnesota. These gentlemen are the members of the committee: Frank A. Day, Fairmont; Judge Alfred Jaques, Duluth; Richard Tattersfield, Minneapolis; Otto Bremer, St. Paul; S. J. Mealey, Montlcello. Of course, it is hardly probable that the details of strategy which may be outlined at this gathering will be published to the world, including the Republicans, but the make-up of the committee is assurance that the interests of the party in this state will be conserved in a workman-like manner.

Among other things, the committee will agree on the date of the convention, the place of meeting and the apportionment of delegates.

The Albert Lea Tribune thinks it has discovered the why of the high cost of living. Says the Tribune: "The meat trust will have its foot on our necks until we persuade Uncle Reuben to quit talking politics and fill his barn with fuicy calves and lambs."

Tawney Not the Whole Show?

The Cannon Falls Beacon very much doubts that harmony will be conspicuously in evidence in the Republican state convention. The Beacon goes at the subject without any false moves, and hands out this line of talk:

"It is the individual if not the organized purpose of those self-appointed leaders of the party in the state, who under the direction of those who make it worth while for them to deal in politics have been dominating our Republican conventions, to force upon the convention a platform that will not be offensive to the Cannon-Aldrich crowd, and if possible, to give the tariff law a Taft indorsement. It will be urged by Ed. Smith and Dar Reese, backed by Mr. Tawney, Mr. Dunn and Julius Schmahl, that the adoption of the commission plan wipes clean the tariff slate and gives the standpatters of the Tawney stripe a certificate of character; but the people who do the voting are awake this year as never before, and cannot be deceived by any such subterfuge; witness the elections in the East and the Indiana platform. Promises of revision in any form by those who stood for the Cannon-Aldrich production, no longer pass current with the rank and file; they want this measure, the framing of which was dictated by those who profit by it, denounced as it deserves to be denounced, and they will resent at the polls any attempt at a betrayal of their wishes. When the commission plan has proven something for itself, it will be time enough to accept it; but any plan having the indorsement of J. A. Tawney is entitled to a term of probation of sufficient length to prove that it is not a counterfeit. In fact, if Mr. Tawney were less conspicuous in the matter the people would be less suspicious of it. The party in the state has no strength that it can afford to trifle away in the construction of an unpopular platform, made for the purpose of saving the political life of one member of congress, and of avoiding offense to a blundering national administration."

Moyle Edwards, editor of the Wilkin County Gazette, is a candidate for the house seat vacated by Bob Wells when he announced his desire to become state auditor.

Hammond as the Nominee.

The Minneapolis Tribune prints this comment on the gubernatorial situation as it affects the Democrats: Congressman W. S. Hammond will certainly be the nominee of the Democratic party for governor, unless John Lind is named. Democrats during the past few days have held conferences in St. Paul relative to the gubernatorial situation, and the stock of Mr. Hammon has gone up. Mr. Lind can undoubtedly have the place if he wants it, and he probably would like it, if he listened to the senatorial lure held out by some of the Democratic leaders. But Mr. Lind has not made his position clear. The leaders are beginning to think he will not see things their way, and are looking the situation over again. There are some among them who believe that Congressman Hammond would make an even stronger candidate than John Lind. They believe the big issue in the campaign will not be county option, tonnage tax, reapportionment or any other local issue, but the larger national one of the tariff. In such an event, they believe Congressman Hammond would be the ideal candidate. Mr. Lind will probably soon be asked to definitely state his position."

St. Paul Taxes Not State Issue.

With Dan Gunn of Grand Rapids, Albert Berg of Spooner, Andy Stephens of Crookston and Ben Sundberg of Kennedy in the state senate, Northern Minnesota would have a representation of strong and able men, says the Roseau Times.

A dispatch from Washington quotes one member of the Minnesota delegation as saying: "St. Paul is the head center of Minnesota Democracy and its overthrow is a big thing for the Republicans. I doubt very much now if John Lind will run for governor, even if an attempt is made to force him into it. With the city organization at the Capitol City demoralized as a result of yesterday's election, it is on the whole, a pretty good omen for us."

While it is the habit of partisans in politics to grab hunks of encouragement whenever and wherever they may be found, it is difficult for one to see in the St. Paul municipal election results any bearing on the state campaign. St. Paul's political controversy this year has been purely a local one. Not a single issue was involved that was of interest outside the city limits, except as the people of the state are interested in the general welfare of the Capitol City.

Still, if the Republicans want to consider the vote on St. Paul's tax issue as indicative of how the people of the state will vote on the tariff and state issues, it can do no harm to the Democrats to let them do so. That system of logic will be tested in November.

FLICKERTAIL POLITICS

North Dakotans are much interested in a controversy as to whether there shall be two senatorial columns on the primary ballots, and the courts have been asked to settle the dispute. The Bismarck Tribune states the situation in these words:

"There has been a difference of opinion as to the matter. Some of the newspapers and candidates in the state have argued that there were, in effect, two positions to be filled—a long term and a short term senatorship.

"The primary law apparently makes no provision for the filling of vacancies in the senatorship, such as was created by the death of Senator Johnson. It merely provides that there shall be a primary vote on the United States senatorship in the year prior to the election of a senator by the legislature. By inference or implication, of course, the primary ballot, if it applies to a United States senator for the regular term would apply to the candidate to be chosen to fill a vacancy, such as now exists in the office through the death of Senator Johnson. Otherwise, the intent of the law would be nullified, as the intent of the law seems plainly to be that all senators shall be chosen by a directory ballot at the primaries.

"But, admitting that the primary law applies in this vacancy, should candidates for the senate be separated into two places, or bunched in one column? That is the question that will be brought to the supreme court. Should a candidate declare in his petition that he is a candidate for the full term—the one that is to be filled by the re-election of Senator McCumber or some one in his stead—or for the short term—the place that is to be filled because of the death of Senator Johnson? There are arguments that are apparently logical advanced on both sides of the question."

The petitions of Marshall and Gronna to have their names placed on the primary election ballots as candidates for the nomination as senator on the Republican ticket have been presented at Bismarck. The petition of Thomas F. Marshall stated that he was a candidate for the long term, or from March 4, 1911, to March 3, 1917; and the petition of Edward Engerud simply mentioned the senatorship, without any mention as to the length of the term. It had been generally understood that Secretary of State Blaisdell would file the petition of Mr. Engerud and refuse to file that of Mr. Marshall, and then mandamus proceedings would be brought in the supreme court to force the name of Marshall onto the ticket, and in this way a test case would be made. But at the last moment it was learned that Mr. Blaisdell, who was out of the city, had left instructions for his deputy to file all petitions received. This changed the program, and when the petitions were presented and accepted Judge Corliss, attorney for Marshall, gave notice that he would ask the supreme court for an injunction to prevent the name of Engerud going on the ballot without a designation as to the term he was to run for, the long or the short.

Fargo township is in a queer plight. It has no officers. There was a lively fight at the last election for the town offices, and, of course, some one won them. But it happens that the west half of the township was the place of residence of all of the victors, and recently that part of the political division incorporated and left the east side as the whole of the township, but without officers. No law seems to fit the case, and what will be done about it is in doubt. It has been suggested that the retiring officers call a special election and then resign.

The insurgent Republican slate for state offices has been completed by the acceptance by Usher L. Burdick, the speaker of the last legislature, of the tendered nomination for lieutenant governor. Burdick wanted to run for congress but was "eliminated" by the leaders and in the heat of the moment he announced that he would not be a candidate for any office, but the pressure brought to bear by friends in all parts of the state resulted in his agreeing to run for lieutenant governor, the place for which he was originally slated. Mr. Burdick is one of the newer generation in Pickertail politics and is declared by many acquaintances to be one of the big possibilities in the state. He was elected speaker of the house as a result of compromises by the two dominant factions and made decidedly good as a presiding officer.

John Bruegger of Williston, who is being backed by the party leaders for the nomination for lieutenant governor, has been in the limelight of the state press of late as a fit man for the United States senate. Mr. Bruegger is a Democrat of high standing and strong loyalty, who has fought consistently and continually for the advancement of the state's interests along Democratic lines. He is mayor of Williston and of him the Williston Herald, politically his opponent, says, "The Democrats could name no better man" for the senate. It follows that a man fitted to become United States senator would make an admirable lieutenant governor.

Forest Fires Near Soo.

Saulte Ste. Marie, Mich., May 5.—Forest fires are raging in this section. Near Garden River, Ont., the flames are spreading rapidly and brush fires are also rampant on Sugar Island. No damage has resulted to the buildings.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The Duluth organization of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be represented by two members at the international meeting to be held in Scotland in June. They will be Mrs. Ida Merritt and Miss Jessie Mauck of the West Duluth branch.

Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, president of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union of the United States, will preside at the evening meeting of the world's W. C. T. U. congress in St. Andrew's hall, June 7, at which time representatives from the United States, Canada, Australia, India, New Zealand and South Africa will speak. The convention proper will open the afternoon of June 7, and will be presided over by the international president, Countess of Carlisle, when fraternal delegates will be received from fifty national temperance and philanthropic societies. The opening of the congress will be preceded by an all-day devotional meeting Monday and a reception that evening by the Lord Provost.

A children's demonstration will be held in the city hall on the afternoon of June 8. Numerous public functions have been arranged with excursions to Rouken Glen, Gourock, Quarriers' Home, Bridge of Weir and other places.

On the evening of June 9, eighty one-minute responses will be made at the meeting in St. Andrew's hall.

The congress will close on June 11, and will be followed by excursions running into Scotland extending over June 16.

STATE GIRLS' SCHOOL

Secures Experienced Superintendent in Mrs. Morse.

Duluth women who have been interested for several years in the establishment of a separate industrial school for girls will be interested in the comings of the superintendent, Mrs. Fannie French Moorse, who met this week with the board of control to discuss plans for the work.

Mrs. Lillian Albee comes with the superintendent as assistant. Mrs. Morse has established what is known as the "Massachusetts idea" for the care of girls, which is principally the care and training of girls in cottages under the direction and care of a house mother. Twenty-five girls are housed in one cottage. All the branches of domestic science and housekeeping are taught, and housework is made an art and not drudgery.

To carry out the idea of home life at the new school, there will be sixteen cottages, making a horseshoe formation, separated from each other with shrubbery and gardens. There will be playgrounds, a chapel, bathing pavilions, administration hall and assembly room, power house, stables and barns and gardens.

Mrs. Morse was born and reared in Maine. She was for fifteen years on a farm. For six years she was busy with educational matters at seminary and college and at 21 was graduated with honors.

After being assistant in the state industrial school for girls at Lancaster, Mass., for a year and six months, she was married to Walter Morse, instructor in classics in a preparatory school in Massachusetts. Three and a half years later Mrs. Morse was left a widow with an infant son.

At the death of her husband she returned to a college town where she continued her studies. Four years later she was elected superintendent of the industrial school for girls at Lancaster, Mass., and for eight and a half years did a marvelous work for the girls in the school. Fully 2,000 girls were sent from this school into private life and a majority of them are now good mothers and housekeepers. Some have risen to prominent positions in the state. Very few were failures after leaving the home.

The Boston Herald and Journal consider her work phenomenal and speak with deep regret of her departure for Minneapolis.

MAY WED POPULAR BACHELOR OF NEW YORK'S FOUR HUNDRED

GERTRUDE SHELDON.

Miss Gertrude Sheldon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Sheldon, is one of the most noted of the blonde beauties in New York. It is reported that she will marry Moncure Robinson, one of the most popular bachelors in the 400. Her father is treasurer of the Republican committee. It is also reported that Miss Sheldon's sister, Mrs. Mary S. Fuller has taken a house at Reno for the purpose of securing a divorce from her husband, William Fuller, a well known club man and lawyer of New York.

ILL IN NEW YORK.

Mrs. G. C. Howe Stricken on South American Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Howe, well known in Duluth, where they lived for many years, left Minneapolis a few months ago for a South American trip. DEMONSTRATION OF CHI-NAMEL

Now going on in our west display window. See it. It is interesting as well as instructive.

Stains and varnishes in one operation. Hides scratches and mars in old furniture.

Makes new wood waterproof. Makes hardwood floors absolutely hammer-proof, heel-proof and scratch-proof. Can be washed with HOT water and won't turn white.

Specially prepared Chinese oil gives Chi-Namel a free-flowing self-leveling quality which makes it impossible for the amateur to coat large surfaces like floors and doors without showing brush marks, patches or laps. In fact, it levels itself—very little brushing being necessary.

The Chi-Namel Graining, Staining and varnishing process in the hands of the amateur makes very old, black, rough dirt-stained wood as good as new—gives any color—reproduces any grain and supplies a permanent, durable finish. Gloss for floors; gloss or Mission for doors, castings, furniture, etc.

Don't let the "second-hand man" get your furniture unless it is actualy broken. Chi-Namel can mend any defect in furniture except a broken joint.

A 20c can of Chi-Namel will make any three old chairs fit for the parlor. All Chi-Namel products at our store.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF YOURSELF?

By MRS. GEORGE BRANDT WINTHROP.

The answer you give to this question will determine your position in society and all your relationships in life.

Some men think too meanly of themselves. They have made one, two, three or four attempts to do this thing, that thing or the other thing, and have failed. Consequently they have lost their courage, and regard themselves as a failure. They think, like Richard III, they have come into the world "half made up." Because they have not found the real thing in life to which they are adapted, they have ceased seeking their true place, and are mere flotsam and jetsam on the ocean of life.

To these there must come a strong realization of the truth. He who thinks meanly of himself, will treat himself meanly, and be treated meanly by others.

No man is mean, low or ignoble only as he believes himself to be such. When a man reaches the conclusion after definite and deliberate thought relative to the matter that he is a failure, he is sure to be a failure.

Some men think too highly of themselves.

They are conceited pupples who believe that the world does not appreciate their full worth. When a man overestimates himself, has that "vaulting ambition that overleaps itself and falls by on the other side," he is apt to lay the blame for his failure, not in himself, where it belongs, but on people of the world, who have discovered that he is unable to make good his pretensions.

These are the people who constantly cry about lack of recognition, their inability to have a pull, and talk about others who are succeeding in being the petted favorites of powerful men who are able to boost their parasites.

Some men misunderstand themselves. They think they live in the midst of ideal conditions. The real, when it does impinge upon them, irritates them. Consequently they are sour, morose, misanthropic and look at the world through crossed eyes, and at life through blue glasses. Never having recognized that there is a real world, that the people they met have red blood in their veins, that the motto of the world is: "Every man for himself, the devil take the hindmost," they live "between the devil and the deep blue sea," in constant trouble of heart, trial of life and tribulation of mind.

Some men measure thmselves by the side of other men with whom they come in contact. They are like the frog of which Aesop tells in his remarkable fable. These men need to recognize that every man has the right and privilege of making his own measurements. That he has his own powers, capacities and his own work to do. That no man can do this work for him. That to himself, and to himself alone, he stands or falls.

Some men think of themselves as normal men. They know that every man has his own limitations. That they were set for him before he had existence visible to the world. He knows that his strengths are the strengths of normal men. That his weaknesses are the weaknesses of normal men. He rules himself, therefore, according to his limitations, and does not seek to be more than nature intended him to be.

These are the men who are always right shipped. They never get into the wrong house on the right street. They are never called pegs in round holes. Knowing themselves, they do their work to the best of their ability, and are content with the rewards that life gives to honest, faithful workers everywhere. Developing themselves along every line to the full limit of their measurements, they go through life, wanted by employers and everyday people everywhere.

Learn to think rightly of yourself, knowing that as a man thinketh in his heart so is he, that as he thinks so will his life be.

MOTHERS ARE GOD'S ELECT

By CARA REESE.

Do not take everything to heart that you hear or you will be venerable before your time.

It was probably intended merely as a joke from the platform that the mothers of the land are responsible for deers of the land are responsible for degenerate conditions in the world at large. Some jokes need to be labeled, and this one was a joke of that kind. A certain magazine editor spells the word "goak," and the pill is sugar-coated, as it were, and takes better, usually with a grin. So, that is how it was—merely a "goak" on the part of the speaker.

Anyhow, before you grow thin and wrinkled you might accept the statement as such and have a brief period of smiling enjoyment. There are jokes and jokes and "goaks" and "goaks," but when it comes to placing the whole responsibility of jail-filling on the shoulders of the already over-burdened mothers the joke or "goak" is carried a trifle too far. The mothers get the blame for everything else as it is, whether the washer on the hydrant wears thin, or the lawn mower creaks, or an electric fuse burns out with a noize. They are blamed for dull razors, for lost shirt studs, for mislaid night keys. They are blamed for the gas bills when away on vacation and blamed for the store bills when laid up in the hospital. They are blamed for the fall in stocks, for the change in weather conditions, for the downfall of church and state. They are blamed for the racket when a masculine boot kicks the dog out of doors or upsets the cradle.

They are blamed for almost everything from the low standing financially of their lords and protectors down to the low-water marks on the necks or in the school reports of the children. It was thought until the other day that the category of responsibilities was complete. But now the jail-filling is laid at their feet. Keep it at the feet, underfoot snug and hard, and stand straight in your might. Surely everybody knows the universal whine of the condemned or the convict, "If I had only obeyed my mother I would not be in this plight." To the last gasp the culprit exonerates his mother and there are no untruths told in certain frames of mind. The mother's teaching has been all right, but the perverseness of the individual coupled sometimes with inherited tendencies from the dark ages, has proved the mightier.

It is true the mothers are not perfect by any manner of means. They sometimes box ears for the fault of not looking out better for the main chance when "near" eggs are lugged home or the offspring appears with the runtiest of apples. And they sometimes wink an eye when their own has made a choice grab or has pushed comrades aside for a better viewpoint. And they do not say very much to dim the luster of "winners," especially if they themselves are not averse to taking a chance or a hand in interesting games. And they sometimes, perhaps unwittingly, instill lessons of greed, and the child who returns with more than his share is likely to be praised rather than blamed. Thus there are a few blemishes on the fair record of mothers.

But to blame the mothers for all the woes and evils is manifestly unfair. And what is more, nobody believes the accusation for a minute. If as an individual you have a itby lesson to learn from what has been publicly stated it might be well to learn the lesson and say no more about it. But, anyhow, take nothing to heart. What is many a hurt which might be avoided by simply dodging the thrust. Keep on doing your best. The mothers are God's elect.

THE EVENING STORY

WHEN GREEK MEETS GREEK

By Bertram Faber.

The city editor called me to his desk. "I've got an idea for a series of articles on matrimonial agencies," he said. "They ought to catch on, and you are the man to get the material."

The assignment wasn't one that I would have sought, but the compliment reconciled me. Although the slyest man on the staff, I braced myself for a game of matrimonial bluff. Within an hour I was in the presence of a woman whose business card read:

Madame Geraldine Schatchken
Matrimonial Bureau
No. 199 West ——— St.,
New York City
All business strictly confidential.

"Is it advice or introductions you require?" she demanded in a business-like way, as I stood tongue-tied.

"Introductions," I replied, taking my courage in both hands.

She deliberately selected a key from her chatelaine and proceeded to unlock a gigantic volume, leather-bound and brass-clasped, that lay at her side.

"Name, address, and requirements, please!" she demanded briskly.

Partially prepared, I reeled off the pseudonym I had resolved upon—"Silas Smith"—along with my address at Flatbush.

"What sort of wife are you in want of? Tall or short?"

"Medium," I returned. (Being a short man, I object to being made to feel still shorter by a woman.)

"Domestic or athletic?" she queried next, making jottings of my replies.

"Now, as regards yourself?" she continued briskly, and jevelled her pincenez at me anew. "An outline, if you please."

I took the plunge.

"My age is thirty-seven," I began. "My work is—secretarial. I earn an income upon which two persons might be moderately comfortable—without margin for luxuries."

"Semi-detached villa in the suburbs sort of thing?" she threw out at me interrogatively.

"That's about it," I assented.

The gigantic volume was shut to with a bang, and a companion one unlocked and consulted. An atmosphere of solemnity pervaded the proceedings calculated to overwhelm a timid man.

"I believe," she announced at length, "I can suit you with Miss Myra Bisset. She is not bad-looking—handsome, perhaps, rather than pretty. Then her demands are not excessive—chiefly, in short, that the man should be 'brainy' and enlightened."

She was evidently quoting from the book. I gasped. The requisite qualifications sounded formidable enough.

By appointment I met Miss Bisset the next day at the "Bureau," where we were introduced to each other and ushered into a private room for our conferences.

To my relief, she took the iniative.

"I wonder whether we shall suit each other?" she speculated, eyeing me with interest. I murmured that that remained to be seen.

"Madame tells me that your profession—your work—is—secretarial," she observed next.

I bowed.

"Then I presume you have brains?" she went on. "Madame has already tried to palm off on me two men whom I should describe as 'deficient.'"

"I don't know that I can exactly lay claim to brains," I warned her.

"You would not find me desperately exciting," she rejoined, in a more lenient tone. "What has forced me to adopt the notion of matrimony," she proceeded, confidentially, "is really the desire to further 'the cause.'"

And then it came out that Miss Bisset was a suffragette seeking a "side partner" to join man's voice to that of woman in public pleas for the right to vote. Much to my relief, Miss Bisset came to the conclusion that I was not "sufficiently enlightened."

Subsequently, because of my lack of wealth I escaped Miss Edna Mayfield, who wanted a rich young suitor to offset the aged millionaire whom her parents wanted her to marry. That same lack of wealth saved me from Miss Iris Jenkins, whose aim in the matrimonial line was to "better" herself, but I couldn't begin to pay for the finery she wore.

Madame Ahnee was very patient with me and seemed determined to have me suited.

"I have found the exact person to suit you!" she announced, triumphantly. "A new client!"

I was before the hour this time, but the young lady did not keep me waiting. The others had seemed to consider it a point of honor to be late. How shall I describe her? Pretty? Yes. But was she pretty? When I came to think of it later, I was positively incapable to decide. There was something about her that struck me like a new idea—wrapped me round like a delicious warmth—in the first few minutes. She was of medium height, slim, red-haired, grey-eyed, her face a delicate oval, her skin of an almost startling pallor. But of what use to catalog "points" when the whole literally baffles description.

She avoided the easy chairs, and took a straight-backed one, her face provokingly in shadow, and waited for me to speak. (What in the name of creation could have induced a girl with her face and bearing to apply to a matrimonial bureau?)

"I hit on this plan in order to get an introduction," I stammered at last. "My daily round does not lie among ladies."

My companion made a gesture of assent. I could see the elusive color flit and fluctuate in her rounded cheek. Then she spoke with effort.

"I am not 'up' in this sort of thing. Tell me—how should we begin?

"By enumerating our respective qualifications and requirements," I responded. "If you will start the category—"

"I think you had better," she replied nervously.

"I—I want a companion," I returned, "for preference, some one with similar tastes, and perhaps a diverse temper."

She glanced at me, and there was a gleam in her grey eyes. Then she hastily lowered them.

"Money no object!" I added from a sudden afterthought.

She spoke, after a pause, slowly and consideringly. "I am afraid I have not a specially good temper,' she said.

"Who has, if it happens to be roused?" I encouraged her.

"I am afraid, too, I am nothing in particular," she continued to protest; "not musical—not artistic."

"Neither am I!" I hastened to reassure her.

I could see she grew more and more embarrassed, while I, on my side, became proportionately cool. Suddenly she looked up at me and burst out with a little breathless cry, her face suffused the while with hot blushes.

"I am so ashamed! I feel so horrid! You can't think! I am a fraud—an out-and-out hypocrite! I hate to confess it, but—I am here for—'copy!'"

It was speechless for a full minute. It was a case of when Greek meets Greek. But we are both working on the same paper now and the boys are waiting for invitations to a wedding.

FASHION FADS

Lingerie garments are narrower than formerly. Every possible gather or plait is omitted and the lines closely follow those of the outer dress.

• • •

The colored lace veils, which have been worn to some extent the past winter, will continue in favor through the spring. The white lace ones, however, have had their day.

• • •

Some charming effects are obtained by shirring the material on cords to draw the fullness to a certain place on bodice or skirt. Piping in self or contrasting colors is also much used on spring frocks.

• • •

One of the newest rosettes for millinery use is made of tiny flowers, which are first sewn into a chain and then wound round and round like a wheel. Sometimes the chain turns out a buckle or a wreath. Satin-made flowers are used a good deal for such purposes.

• • •

Jet continues to be popular, and the effectiveness with which it was worn with white gowns, as well as black, during the winter, assure its use with the light gowns of summer. Coronals, long jet chains and a series of slides, through which may be threaded black tulle for the throat, are among the favored forms in demand.

• • •

Where buttons are used on a gown or suit there are buttonholes to correspond, the latter often serving only as a decorative feature. They are usually actual buttonholes, self-bound or bound in a contrasting fabric and color. In the coats, while the buttonholes are actually made in the outer material, they are covered on the inside by lining. In many instances the coat lining matches the binding of the buttonholes in color.

TRY THIS DINNER

French Soup.

Required—half a pound of calf's liver, three pints of goods stock, two eggs, one onion, pepper, salt and nutmeg.

First wipe the liver quite dry, then cut into thin slices and fry till brown in a little butter with a sliced onion. Next pound the meat till perfectly smooth, seasoning it with pepper, salt and a little nutmeg. Pour the stock, which must have been cleared of all fat, over the liver, add several slices of French roll, and simmer all for a quarter of an hour. Strain through a sieve and make very hot; beat the eggs and place in the tureen, pour the soup slowly over them and serve. Have a cut lemon and cayenne pepper handed with this soup.

Fillet of Haddock.

Remove all the bones from a fresh haddock, weighing two or two and one-half pounds. Cut in four pieces, season with salt and pepper, and squeeze over the juice of one lemon and slice an onion. Cover the fish and let stand for an hour. Wipe dry and dust with flour, dip each piece separately in beaten egg, cover with rolled cracker crumbs and fry a light brown.

Entree—Creamed Sweetbreads With French Peas.

Soak a large plump pair of sweetbreads over night in salt water. Drain the salt water off, pour boiling water over them and cook half an hour; then put them in cold water, remove the skin and gristle and break them up into oven pieces not too fine. Melt two tablespoons of butter in an earthenware bowl, stir into it a generous tablespoon of flour, add a cup of cream, a pinch of salt and a dash of pepper. Put the sweetbreads in the dressing, and cook together a few minutes. Heat two cans of Fernch peas, drain them and dress with melted butter. Arrange them in a mold in the center of a chop plate, then form a ring of the creamed sweetbreads around the peas, and make a dainty wreath of sprigs of parsley around the sweetbreads. This makes a very pretty green and white dish for a luncheon.

Dessert—Apple Charlotte.

Butter a pudding dish. Put alternate layers of sliced apples and bread crumbs in the dish, sprinkling apples with sugar and a little of cinnamon. Layer of crumbs on the top. Beat an egg, and salt, one cupful of milk and vanlla and turn mixture over bread and apples. Place tablespoonful of butter in bits on top. Bake in moderate oven. Eat with hard sauce or plain cream.

NURSERY IDEAS

Dealing With the Ugly Tricks.

Most of the "ugly tricks" that children become addicted to are the result of nerves and cannot be cured by nagging, scolding or whipping. Among these ugly tricks are biting of the nails, frowning, twitching of the eyes or body and moving about in a slouchy way. Any parent is competent to explain to a child how any of these habits will impair its appearance and bearing when it grows older. Children are much more amenable to appeals to their vanity than people sometimes think, and many a child has been soon cured of the habit of nail biting, for instance, merely by the painting of a lurid word picture of the future appearance of its fingers. This method of dealing with such habits, if it is followed up closely, will seldom fail, if ever.

If Baby Fears the Bath.

Some babies are terrified at the sight of the water when it is time for the bath. It is a matter of nerves and in a case of this kind it is an excellent plan to try a little diplomacy. See that the water is just the right temperature, then cover the top of the bath with a sheet, and gently lower the little one into the water, sheet and all. As he cannot see the bath, he cannot quite realize what is happening and as he is let down by degrees into the pleasantly warm water he will probably rather enjoy it than otherwise. In a very short time baby will become so used to his tub that you will be able to dispense with the sheet, and he will take his bath readily and enjoy splashing about in it.

Play With the Children.

Just as "a little nonsense, now and then, is relished by the wisest men," an occasional romp with the children is almost as good for the grown-up person as for the children. Children at play treat every one as an equal, and if you enter thoroughly into their games they may even condescend to look upon you as a sensible child, and not as a "grown-up" with ideas of your own—a great advantage if you want to really get on with them.

Make the Children's Room Bright.

If you have a nursery or a roof especially devoted to the use of your children when they must remain in the house it should be as light and bright as possible. Have no more furniture in it than is absolutely necessaary, so that when the children meet with accidents, as they are bound to at some time or another, they may do as little harm to themselves as possible. The floor should be stained or varnished, or if preferred covered with linoleum. Thick rugs only harbor dirt and dust, and are quite unsuitable in the nursery. If you have the walls adorned with pictures, let them be reproductions of good ones, if possible. The nursery should be to the children the happiest place in the whole house, where they can romp and play to their hearts' content.

ALLEGES DAMAGES FROM RIVER DAM

One of Eight Suits Against St. Louis River Log & Dam Company on Trial.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The case of Andrew Thompson against the St. Louis River Dam & Improvement company is on trial in the district court. This action is brought to recover damages in the amount of $200 alleged to have been suffered by the plaintiff by reason of the company damming the St. Louis river, causing the water to flood his land, injuring his crops and buildings thereon.

There are eight more cases of a similar nature pending against the company. The following comprise the jury in this case: A. W. Hubbard, Mathew Ettinger, John Prinozich, Gust Johnson, C. W. Olson, William W. Kespohl, C. A. B. Gatzki, Daniel Perry, Timothy Shea, C. S. Stevens, J. D. Moore and John Warren.

The land of the plaintiff is located on section 12-57-15, nine miles south of Aurora. The jurors not serving on this case were excused until Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

GRAND RAPIDS HAS EIGHTEEN SALOONS

One Has Been Closed as Result of Recent Business Changes There.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The construction of the new McAlpine building is necessitating quite a number of changes. The I. X. L. restaurant closed its doors the first of the week, and will not open, being unable to get quarters, until its quarters in the new McAlpine building is ready for occupancy.

The office occupied by J. S. Gole, which had to be moved on account of the erection of the new building has been rolled over from its former location to the lot on Fourth street formerly occupied by the Ed Huson building.

The Lieberman store building — or the front two-thirds of it will be moved onto the Lieberman lot between the First National bank and the site of the proposed new McAlpine block, and the Lieberman store will occupy it until the McAlpine building is ready for occupancy, when the Liebermans will move into the west forty-five feet of the ground floor of the new building.

Old Firm Is Dissolved.

A business change of interest is the dissolution of the firm of Arsenault & Cashen, Jerry Cashen, recently of Douglas, Alaska, a brother of D. P. Cashen, who has been a member of the firm, has purchased Mr. Arsenault's interest, and will conduct the business under the firm name of Cashen Bros.

Mr. Arsenault has leased the A. M. Johnson building on Second street, formerly occupied by Mr. Johnson as a clothing store, and will open a confectionery and ice cream parlor.

Herman Bolin has turned the Svea hotel, which he has been conducting for the past two years, over to the landlord, E. S. Stevens. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens have not yet secured a tenant for the hotel, but they state that the place will not be closed.

The liquor license of Thomas Trainor has run out, and he failed to renew it, so his bar was closed. Mr. Trainor is still conducting his restaurant and hotel. Mr. Trainor's release of his license is the first to be dropped since the passing of the 'one-saloon-to-every-500-people' law, and the number of saloons in Grand Rapids is thereby reduced to eighteen.

On May 1, Matt Metzger closed up the Grand Rapids Meat and Provision market for the summer. The business will be reopened about Oct 1.

COST OF LIVING IS GIVEN BOOST

Virginia Hotels and Boarding Houses Catch Prevailing Habit.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the high cost of edibles of all kinds, the local hotels have increased their rates. The $2 per day hostelries have raised to $2.50 and $3; the $1.50 houses to $2 and the $1 places to $1.50. It is said that many of the boarding houses have increased their rates and the restaurants are contemplating doing likewise.

All the mines and manufacturing plants of this city have increased the pay of their employes account of the cost of living. Following the action of the city in increasing the pay of common laborers from $2 to $2.25 per day the park board will advance the pay of its employes to conform with the wages paid by the city. Many of the clerks have also been benefited by this prevailing spirit and it is anticipated that it will not be long before the increase of wages will become general. The scarcity of dwelling and rooms has had a tendency to boost the rents sky high, and the population of the city is increasing faster than the building of places in which to house the people.

Many Buildings Going Up.

Many houses are being erected, which when completed will be for rent, but for every dwelling there are at least a dozen applicants. Hundreds of men are employed here who have families living in other places and cannot bring them here for the reason that they can get a place to house them. Many traveling men are obliged to hustle through their business here to catch a train to some other point in order to get a place to sleep at night, and as the other towns of the range are practically in the same fix, these men are sometimes obliged to go to Duluth for night accommodations.

JUDGE STANTON MAY SPEAK

At the Grand Rapids Memorial Day Exercises.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)Preparations are under way for observing Memorial day. B. F. Huson post, G. A. R., has started the movement, and a committee of citizens will assist the post in looking after the details.

Memorial Sunday, May 29 will be observed by the members of the post by attending services at the M. E. church in a body. All old soldiers, and all veterans of all wars are invited to participate.

On Memorial day, the usual services at the burying grounds in which old soldiers are interred will be participated in by the old soldiers, school children, citizens, etc. The band has been engaged for the occasion. It is likely that Judge Stanton will be the speaker of the day. A complete program will be announced next week.

Y. M. C. A. HEAD ARRIVES.

H. J. Hamaker From Pennsylvania Takes Two Harbors Job.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. J. Hamaker, arrived yesterday afternoon to take charge of the local Y. M. C. A. He is a former resident of Narbert, Pa., and intends to bring his family from there in the near future. He has had considerable experience in Y. M. C. A. work, having been physical director, boys' secretary, and general secretary in several of the large cities.

The schedule of Y. M. C. A. City baseball league is completed and the first game will be played on May 27 between the Tigers and Cubs. The Y. M. C. A. is trying to promote clean sport. The diamond has been improved by removing the bank, located on the eastern side, and covering the diamond with sand.

WOMAN CAMP COOK KILLED BY A FALL

Mrs. George Ryan Is Found Dead in Cook Shanty Near Orr.

Virginia, Minn., Ma. 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. George Ryan, employed as a cook in the logging camps of Charles Oakman, seven miles north of Orr, was found dead at the foot of the stairs in the cook shanty at about 5 o'clock Tuesday night, having evidently fallen down the stairway from the second floor.

The deceased was 56 years of age and leaves a husband and three daughters, one living at Eveleth, one at Hibbing and one in North Dakota. The remains were brought here last night and are being held at the Mesbery morgue.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

POWER GOES TO TEXAS.

Leaves to Testify in His Suit With Casey.

Hibbing, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. J. Power left Wednesday for El Paso, Tex., where he will be a witness in the case of C. B. Bell of Douglas, Ariz., against J. B. Casey of El Paso, Tex., for dissolution of partnership of the company to float the Carman mine, which has been pending for about two years, and which has been postponed several times by Casey.

The suit has nothing to do with the control of the Carman Consolidated Copper company, as Casey has had nothing to do with the management of the company for a long time.

ASCENSION DAY SERVICES

Are Being Held in the Churches of Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is Ascension day, and special services will be held at the Episcopal church at 10:30 a. m., and will be held at 4 in the afternoon. Mass was held at 5 o'clock in the morning at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament. In the afternoon flower services will be held in the different churches, when children are asked to bring flowers and distribute them among the sick after the services.

VIRGINIA'S DEBT

Was Only $32,368 at Beginning of the Month.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the city officials are holding down the expenses of the city, notwithstanding the large amount of improvements being done, is shown by the report of City Clerk Bickford, in which the actual indebtedness of the city on May 1 was only $32,368.86

TWO HARBORS NOTES.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Epworth League of the First M. E. church held their annual business meeting, Monday evening. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Lorne Fowler, president; Florence Oadams, first vice president; Maybelle Owens, second vice president; Hazel Oadams, third vice president; Mrs. A. Spargo, fourth vice president; William Fortman, secretary; Leroy Pegelow, treasurer.

There has been an increase in ore business during the past week, and all trains are now carrying full tonnage. A large number of boats are in the harbor for ore.

The First Presbyterian church and the boys' Y. M. C. A. have also decided to observe Mother's day, Sunday. Special programs have been prepared at both places.

FOR BEATNG BOARD BILL

Two Hibbing Men Given Ninety Days in County Jail.

Hibbing, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nick Medich and George Bodich, who were arrested in Duluth April 30, charged with defrauding a boarding house at the French location, which was run by Mrs. Ubitcha Medich, had their hearing Wednesday in the municipal court before Judge Thomas F. Brady and were fined each $123.90 and costs, or ninety days in the county jail at Duluth. The men were taken to Duluth this morning, being unable to pay the fines.

ACCUSED ALDERMAN RELEASED ON BAIL.

Ely, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alderman F. B. James, who was indicted by the grand jury at Virginia for killing Andred Pelto at Long Lake, has been released on ball. The killing resulted from James shooting at Pelto while acting in the capacity of game warden. He claimed the deceased was engaged in seining fish, or at least he thought he was, and called on him from the shore, Pelto and another being in a boat, to come ashore. They ignored him and started rowing away when the game warden says he fired a shot above their heads to frighten them off. Instead, the shot went wild and, striking Pelto, inflicted an injury from which he subsequently died. Mr. James was elected alderman about the time of the tragedy. He was indicted at Virginia for manslaughter in the second degree.

RETURN TO EVELTH.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. Friedlander, who was one of the first barbers here, returned Tuesday evening, after a years' absence, following his disposal of all his local property. Mr. Friedlander and wife wintered in Washington, D. C., and spent the past summer visiting in Syracuse, N. Y.; Charleston, W. Va., and other large Eastern points. It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Friedlander have decided to reside here permanently.

Patrick Kealey, who for many years conducted a grocery business here until last year, and who was in active charge of the business, but who removed to Superior, has been visiting here the past week.

James Shea of Duluth, a well known mining man of this vicinity, has been looking over local business opportunities the past week.

MR. HEARDING TO SPEAK

At the Eveleth High School Class day Exercises.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senior class boys in the high school, composing the cast of the one-act playlet, "The Plot of Potzenhausand," to be given class day, commenced rehearsing last evening, under the direction of Miss Rita Kendall. Those rehearsing are Elmer Hill, Old Grindstone, the miller; Harry Anderson, "Sacks," Grindstone's servant; George Peterson, Bernard; William Saarl, Fritz; Henry Rabinowitz, Max, corporal; Dale Cerveny, Louis, Fritz's friend; Victor Mulligan, officer; Walter Corbin, Sheveler, major.

John H. Hearding of Duluth, former member of the local school board, and form any years superintendent of the Adams mine, will deliver the principal address.

Esther Ferris, the senior valectadorian, and Harry Anderson, the salutatorian, will also deliver interesting assays, while Anna Sholund of the junior class will accept the fine Parthenon frieze memorial to be presented to the school by the graduating senior class.

The junior class will give their annual ball Friday night in the Elks' hall. The entire junior class will act as a reception committee. A banquet will follow the ball.

OLD RESIDENT OF TOWER IS CALLED

Tower, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Tell, an old and respected citizen of Tower, died at 5 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Tell has been suffering for the past year with cancer of the stomach, and her death was not unexpected. She leaves one child to mourn, Mrs. Jalmer Pearson.

Mrs. Tell has resided here for the past twenty years and had a great number of friends. She was a very prominent worker in the Swedish Lutheran society.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Swedish Lutheran church, after which the remains will be interred in Lakeview cemetery.

Operated on for Appendicitis.

Miss Olga Bodine, 13 years old, was operated on at the Soudan hospital Wednesday for appendicitis. Although it was a bad case, Dr. Burns, her physician, says she is doing as well as can be expected.

CHISHOLM MINES ACTIVE.

Large Amount of Ore Is Being Shipped to the Docks.

Chisholm, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The amount of ore being shipped from this district is gradually being increased. At present about twenty trains are leaving daily from the Wilpin and the Mitchell mines, but in a couple of weeks it is expected about fifty ore trains will leave daily from these points.

The Leonard pit began to ship Monday sending down seventy cars a day. The Shenango Furnace company is shipping 120 cars per day from the shaft and stockpile of the Shenango mine. The Myers and the Glen are both shipping from shaft and stockpile. At the Monroe-Tenner, the Clark and the Chisholm mines shovels are in readiness to work from the stockpiles and ore will go forward from these underground properties some time this week.

Shipping will not begin at the Hartley pit until about the middle of the month, but will begin just as soon as the tracks are in readiness. It is expected that the Hartley will ship 1,500,000 tons this season.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern is extending its main line from the Shenango on to the Hartley in preparation for the taking out of the Hartley ore this year.

Modern Brotherhood Gathering.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—North Star lodge No. 609, Modern Brotherhood of America, held a big gathering recently, at which time a very large class of candidates was initiated, State District Deputy H. J. Dykeman of Brainerd and District Organizer J. A. Prince of Virginia assisting in the work.

PREPARING FOR PAVING.

First of Important Street Work Started in Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The H. L. Bartlett company has begun putting in the curb and gutter on Maple street, preparatory to paving the street. Five blocks will be covered, from Virginia avenue to Railroad avenue.

The Virginia Electric Power & Water company has pipling on the grounds preparatory to extending its water mains to the north side. That portion of the city will be supplied fith twelve hydrants for fire protection.

The Larch street crossing over the tracks of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern has been completed, and travelers to and from Gilbert will now experience no difficulty in driving across the tracks at that point.

Dennis Madden, formerly chief of police of Chisholm, has been sworn in as deputy sheriff and will have charge of the Oliver Mining company's police force in this district, serving under Chief D. F. Foley. Mr. Madden will remove his family to this city in the near future.

Judge J. B. Middlecoff held a session of probate court here yesterday.

Ole Olson Woods of this city and Miss Mary Larson of Gheen were married here today. The groom is an employe of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg Railroad company. They will make their home in this city.

CANNOT LOCATE WIFE OF THE DECEASED IN DULUTH.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Samuel Lefour, who died at a local hospital is being held at the Gillespie morgue, awaiting word from relatives. Previous to his death Lefour was employed at Camp No. 6 of the Virginia & Rainy Lake company, and was about 44 years of age.

He was married and his wife formerly resided at 118½ Minnesota avenue in Duluth, but information has been received that she moved from there to another part of the city, but thus far the authorities here have been unable to locate her.

VIRGINIA COMMERCIAL CLUB MEETS FRIDAY.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The regular monthly meeting of the Commercial club will be held at the city hall tomorrow night. Among the important matters to be considered will be the discussion of civic improvements, the postoffice site and building, a public market, and new hotels. It is expected that the park board will present a communication to the club in regard to the white way for Chestnut street and other improvements contemplated by the board to present something good in regard to the postoffice site controversy at this meeting.

Lived Together Less Than Year.

Virginia, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Divorce proceedings have been instituted by Antonio Angossi against Maria Angossi in the district court here, on the grounds of desertion. The couple were married at Eveleth on Oct. 7, 1908, and it is alleged Mrs. Angossi deserted her husband Jan. 1, 1909. She is 19 and he is 26 years of age. They have no children.

Some Persons

feel bright and ambitious a part of the day; and then listless and dull.

Most of these people are coffee-drinkers. They cannot account for their whimsical moods and don't realize they are doing anything to cause them. But take a look at the case in the light of science as applied to physiology.

Ever study the way coffee acts on the brain and nervous system?

"Caffeine," says a scientist, "is a drug found in coffee and tea and is classed among the habit-forming drugs, like whiskey, morphine, cocaine, etc.

"It acts as a so-called heart stimulant first—but the reaction later shows that it is in reality a paralyzant—weakens the nerves and partially paralyzes them.

"Caffeine causes a short period of excitement of the nervous system—a delusory effect.

"But this is followed by the inevitable depression of spirits, dullness of intellect and sometimes dizziness."

That's what coffee does, in part.

On the other hand, thousands of people have learned to distrust coffee and have found in well-made POSTUM a beverage which tastes similar to coffee but has none of the harmful effects of coffee.

If you would feel clear-headed and well all the time, drop coffee and begin using POSTUM. But—be sure you read directions on pkg. POSTUM must be made right (well boiled) to bring out the real food value. Thousands of people have found it. You can do the same and it is quite a pleasant discovery—that

GIVES LIE TO GARFIELD

Ballinger Denounces Parts of His Letter as "Not Truthful."

Secretary of the Interior Questioned in Land Office Inquiry.

Washington, May 5.—"It was not a fair or truthful statement," exclaimed Secretary Ballinger during the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation today, referring to a sentence in Former Secretary Garfield's letter to the president last November, which read:

"He (Ballinger) directed the reclamation service to prepare lists for restoring the withdrawn lands, but to do so slowly in order not to attract public attention."

Mr. Ballinger said that while he had no desire to reflect on the previous administration, which had withdrawn the lands unlawfully, he believed, he had issued no order, and that all the lands actually had been restored within a period of three weeks.

Another Statement Disputed.

Another statement was disputed by Mr. Ballinger. Near the end of his letter, Mr. Garfield said the plan of the reclamation service for the issuance of co-operation certificates had been approved by the senate committee on irrigation. Mr. Ballinger read an affidavit from the secretary of that committee to the effect that he had failed to find any such approval in the records of the committee for the last seven years.

Had No Authority.

As the reason for his having rewithdrawn power sites he had previously restored, Mr. Ballinger said he feared they might be taken up pending action by congress, giving the president the power to withdraw them. He admitted that he had no more legal authority for his action than Mr. Garfield had had.

For more than an hour the committee questioned Mr. Ballinger about the method pursued in entering upon new reclamations. It was brought out that many of the states had not had their equitable share of the projects. Senator Flint sought to ascertain who was responsible for this condition. The witness admitted that probably Former Secretary Hitchcock, under whose administration most of the existing projects were initiated, was responsible, and not Director Newell of the reclamation service. Mr. Davis was at that time chief engineer of the service.

Brandeis to Lead Quiz.

The inquiry has now reached its most interesting stage—the cross-examination of Mr. Ballinger by the attorneys for the "prosecution." Louis Brandeis, attorney for Glavis, will be the first to take the witness in hand. He will question Mr. Ballinger about his connection with the Cunningham coal claims and his professional and official relations with the claimants. At least three days are expected to be occupied in cross-examination of the secretary, and he may not be excused until Friday or Saturday of next week.

DEMOCRATS PICK MILL CITY

Convention Will Meet There July 28 With Primaries on July 23.

St. Paul, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic state convention will be held in Minneapolis July 28. The primaries will be held July 20, unless otherwise ordered by the respective county committees and the conventions will be held July 23. This was the decision today of the special executive committee recently appointed by the state central committee. The committee consisted of F. A. Day, state chairman; Alfred Jaques of Duluth; Otto Bremer of St. Paul; Richard Tattersfield of Minneapolis and Raul Doty of St. Paul.

There will be 1,017 delegates in the convention, two at large for each county and one for every 200 votes cast for John A. Johnson for governor in 1908.

COPPERS HAVE BETTER TONE

Opening Is Firm and Decline at Noon Is Promptly Checked.

The copper market was erratic today. It opened firm and after a slight advance values declined. The down turn was checked around midday and the market closed strong, the advance causing recoveries in practically all issues that swept values to a parity with or above the opening.

The closing strength was due partly to short covering and partly to a wave of buying enthusiasm that held sway among a few of the professionals. They took on Steel common and Amalgamated and the rest of the list felt the favorable influences that were at work.

Trading was fairly good here. The market was more active than for some. The features were Butte-Ballaklava and the full paid Scott.

Butte Ballaklava sold at $9.56¼ to $9.75. The full paid Butte-Alex Scott sold at $5.50 to $6.37½ and down to $5.93¾. Giroux sold here at $7 and $7.25. Red Warrior at $1.75. Shattuck at $25.12½. Butte & Superior at $2.06¼, $2 and $2.12½. Calumet & Montana at 95c. Calumet & Corbin at 85 and 80 cents. Keating at $1.12½. National at 35c. Rawhide at 2c. North American at $3.06¼ and $3.12½.

Butte Coalition sold at $19 to $19.12½ to $18.75. Greene at $8.12½ to $8.37½ down to $8.12½ North Butte at $31 to $32 and off ¼ point Amalgainated at $66.37½ to $66.50 to $64.37½ and up to $66.87½ at the close. Superior & Pittsburg sold at $11.50 to $12. Steel common at $82, $82.62½, $81.75, $83 and at $82.87½ at the close.

The directors of the Duluth Stock Exchange met late yesterday afternoon and officers were re-elected as follows: J. B. Cotton, president; S. E. Smith, vice president; D. L. Fairchild, treasurer, and H. R. Nelson, secretary.

New by-laws were adopted, which are modern in every particular. The exchange has been conducted under the by-laws of the old iron exchange, which was in existence in 1892. The new by-laws will prevent some practices for which a few members were responsible early this year.

It was reported that in the ten and a half months of the exchange's existence 2,004,310 shares have been traded in, the total value being $4,355,554.77.

M. W. Lee, who has returned from an inspection of the Butte-Alex Scott mine at Butte, believes that it is a bonanza proposition. A large tonnage of rich ore has been blocked out and the mine is being rapidly opened up. The new hoist was installed last Saturday, which will enable the management to increase production. Last month the mine shipped one car daily. This month the average will be about five cars daily. The net returns on the last six cars shipped to the smelter last month were $9,896. The net earnings last month were $45,000.

"The shaft is down 1,525 feet," said Mr. Lee, "and by June 1 it will have reached a depth of 1,600 feet. Most of the developments are in the upper levels. Developments are just beginning in the lower levels. The recent strike on the 800-foot level was one of the biggest strikes made in the Butte camp in several years. An upraise has been driven from the fifth level to the surface and another from the tenth to seventh, opening up an immense body of ore, which has been averaging 9½ per cent and thirteen ounces in silver. The returns from the silver are sufficient to pay all smelter charges and expenses.

"On the 1,400-foot level, two veins south of the shaft have been cut. In drifting a distance of between 225 and 250 feet. After being opened up for a distance of twenty to twenty-five feet the first vein widened out from fifteen to twenty feet and is entirely merchantable ore. A raise from the 1,400-foot level has been driven a distance of 126 feet on the ore body. The Scott has the stuff all the way down and the returns are so rich that the Scott will be able to work at a profit when other producers might be deterred from operating on account of the low price of the metal. The cost of operating will be low and I see no reason why the Scott will not be a big proposition even with cheap metal. Any approach to the metal prices which prevailed two years ago would enable the Scott to pay extraordinary dividends on its small capitalization."

P. H. Nelson, president and general manager of the Butte Ballaklava returned last night from Butte, where he has been superintending the developments at the property. He said that the property is showing up a large tonnage of ore. The new hoist is the second largest electric second motion hoist in the world.

BRIBER FREED ON $50,000 BONDS

Pittsburger Pleads Illness in the Court---Moran Jury Is Still Out.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 5.—Pleading illness, Bank President Emil Winters, who recently pleaded no defense to a charge of giving a former city councilman $20,000 to be used in influencing councilmen, was today excused from appearing May 14 for sentence, and permitted to leave the jurisdiction of the court until September and go abroad for treatment. He furnished $50,000 bail.

After being locked up since noon yesterday, the jury that heard the bribery charge against Common Councilman T. J. Moran today asked to be discharged. The court refused to countenance the request.

TELL WAYMAN ABOUT BRIBERY IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, May 5.—Summoned to appear before the grand jury which is investigating a charge that Senator Lorimer was elected by means of bribes, Representatives H. J. C. Beckmeyer and Henry A. Shephard called at State's Attorney Wayman's office today. Henry Ackerman, a merchant of Centralia, Ill., also appeared. In addition to those named, the state's attorney declared the Democratic Representatives Michael S. Link and Joseph S. Clark would be witnesses. Perfect secrecy as to the testimony of the witnesses is being maintained.

CAVALIER FIELD MEET.

Pupils From Pembina County Schools to Have Sport Friday.

Cavalier, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pembina county schools will hold a field meet in this city tomorrow. Entries have been received from eight schools, Bathgate, Cavalier, Crystal, Drayton, Glasston, Pembina, St. Thomas and Walhalla.

The schools will also hold a declamation contest, the same cities being represented.

Cotton Steamer Floated.

Norfolk, Va., May 5.—The North German Lloyd steamer Roland, from Galveston to Bremen with a cargo of cotton, which stranded Sunday night on Currituck beach, N. C., fifty miles south of Cape Henry, was floated early today. She proceeded under her own steam for Newport News, where she will be docked for examination.

MISSOURIAN LOSES HIS PLEA IN LONDON COURT.

London, May 5.—An application on behalf of Frank Mathusic alias Bates, who escaped from custody while under sentence for forgery in Missouri, for a writ of habeas corpus, was refused today by the King's bench, which confirmed the lower court's order of extradition.

Keep After Jury.

Holton, Kan., May 5.—The attempt to secure a jury to try F. H. Tillotson, the Kansas City detective charged with complicity with Mrs. Stella Barclay of Buffalo, N. Y., and three others in the kidnaping of Marion Bleakley, the 'incubator baby,' was resumed here today.

BACKS INTO BOILING WATER, LOSING LIFE.

Marquette, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Cetaci went from Iron Mountain to the James mine at Iron River, looking for employment. He was talking with some of the men when he backed into a barrel of boiling water. He was badly scalded, and, after lingering in pain for days, death relieved him of his sufferings. He was 22 years old and single.

Arrested for Box Car Thefts.

Mandan, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charged with the theft of freight consignments from Northern Pacific cars in this city, Archie Choyler and W. H. White, claiming Minneapolis as their homes, are under arrest here. Evidence of the alleged thefts was secured from local citizens, who claim to have purchased various articles from the two men under arrest.

Cure Yourself at Home With Our Natural Home Treatment.

Costs You Nothing for Our Free Cure Book. Tell You How. Send for It Today.

We tell you how to treat yourself right in your own home with our Natural Method Treatment, without undergoing an operation, seeing a doctor, or leaving the house. There's no pain, no trouble, no danger, no knife; just the simplest and most natural method possible.

No matter how serious your eye trouble is, or how long you have had it, or who has treated you before, or whether you have cataract, failing eyesight, optic nerve disease, scums, sore or watery eyes, or ulcers, or any other eye trouble, we will advise you free of charge.

We have cured hundreds of cases like that of Rex Haughey of Snyder, Okla., who says: "My sister had cataract and was almost blind. They entirely cured her in three months."

M. C. Aldrich, Alva, Okla., says: "My doctor wanted me to go to Chicago. I was almost blind, could not see to read or sew or write. I could not go to Chicago because I was too poor. I saw the ads and they quickly cured me with their simple, painless method."

Let us tell you how you can treat yourself, and be sure of results.

We do not treat people who were born blind or who are so blind from any cause that they have no perception of light. Where there is light, however, there is hope.

If you are interested and want our book, write a description of your case the best way you can and we will tell you how you can treat yourself at home and be sure of results, telling you things your doctor never told you and that you ought to know.

RAIN

That chill touch is still in the air, although the bright spring weather continues. The weatherman comes across today with a rain prediction, but it is tempered by the cheerful information that the temperature will be higher. A warm rain, such as one might expect in April, would assist materially in encouraging the vegetation that has been handicapped by the continued frosty weather.

Delightful weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:45 and it will set at 7:23, giving fourteen hours and thirty-eight minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The Utah storm has begun to move eastward, its center now being over Wyoming. During the past twenty-four hours it caused rain in Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Western South Dakota, Montana Oregon, Nevada and Northern Utah, and higher temperature throughout the Northwest. The barometer continues high over the lake region, attended by freezing temperature last night in Northern Michigan, Northern Wisconsin and Northwestern Iowa. A sharp rise in pressure over the Far West has caused freezing weather in Southern Utah. Snow is falling in the Yellowstone park region."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes—Moderate east to southeast winds. Fair tonight and Friday. Slightly warmer.

Chicago, May 5.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Friday:

Upper Michigan—Fair tonight with frost; slightly warmer in west portion; Friday fair and slightly warmer.

Wisconsin—Fair tonight with probably frost; Friday increasing cloudiness with showers in west portion.

Minnesota — Increasing cloudiness with probable rain Friday and in west portion tonight; warmer tonight.

Iowa — Increasing cloudiness with showers Firday and in west portion tonight; warmer tonight and in east portion Friday.

North and South Dakota—Rain tonight and Friday; warmer in east portion tonight; colder in west portion Friday.

Montana—Rain tonight or Friday; colder tonight.

ANNUAL OUTING OF EDITORS

Trip This Year Will Be to Georgian Bay Points.

The Minnesota Editorial association's annual outing this summer will take the form of a voyage from Duluth to Georgian bay and return.

The trip will begin June 25 and end July 2. The fine new steamer Hamonic has been chartered. The Hamonic is the largest of lake passenger steamers being 365 feet in length. Only editors, publishers and their families will be on the boat.

Arriving at Port Arthur at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, June 26, the party will have two hours to see that place. Early next day the Hamonic will reach the Soo, where the editors will have four hours in which to inspect the locks, and will then be transferred to the chartered steamer Majestic, for the trip through Georgian bay and its thousands of islands.

Collingwood will be headquarters for the party next day. During the afternoon a run will be made to Midland, and in the evening there will be a dance at Collingwood. Wednesday the return trip will be begun, the Majestic retracing her course. Arrived again at the Soo, the party will reoccupy quarters on the Hamonic and Port Arthur and Fort William will be given a large share of the travelers' attention on Friday. Kakabeka Falls, one of Canada's scenic wonders, will be visited.

Saturday evening the Hamonic is scheduled to steam into the Duluth harbor and the editors will go to their homes to "write it up."

A Large Sunfish.

There was recently caught at Catalina island, a sunfish, which is probably the largest fish of the kind ever brought to land. Its weight was computed, by weighing in pieces, at 1,600 lbs., or nearly a ton. It is interesting to learn that as a table beverage for home use Golden Grain Belt beer is unexcelled, owing to its purity and wholesome food values. "Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company."

AMUSEMENTS

"The Round Up."

Klaw & Erlanger's production of Edmund Day's Western spectacle, "The Round Up," with Maclyn Arbuckle, will be given with cavalrymen, cowboys, Mexican vaqueros, Indians and cowponies at the Lyceum theater for one week beginning next Monday evening. The locale is Southwestern Arizona during the period when Gen. Crook was chasing Cochise and his braves into the reservation of Fort Grant. One of the scenes will be a pitched battle with the Indians. A love story runs through the play. The cast includes: Maclyn Arbuckle, Albert Phillips, Joseph M. Lothian, Sidney Cushing, Elmer Grandin, William Conklin, S. L. Richardson, James Asburn, Jaques Martin, Ogden Crane, Fred R. Stanton, "Texas" Cooper, Grace Benham, Marie Taylor and Pauls Gloy. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

Large Crowds at Bijou.

The Bijou is attracting much larger crowds than usual this week, as the bill, which opened Monday, is generally conceded to be one of the best ever presented at the popular vaudeville theater.

FRATERNITY MEN WANT AN ALUMNI CHAPTER.

A petition for an alumni charter has been asked by eleven members of the Sigma Nu college fraternity who live in Duluth and on the Mesaba range. A collegiate chapter is at the state university and Minneapolis has an alumni chapter.

The charter members of the Duluth association are:

Judge D. H. Lawrence, Two Harbors, Ann Arbor Law school; Marcus S. Norton, Virginia, University of Colorado; F. H. Casa, Virginia, Rose Polytechnic Institute; A. R. Folsom, Hibbing, University of Minnesota; A. L. Kreitter, Duluth, University of Minnesota; Dr. L. A. Barney, Duluth, University of Minnesota; Dr. G. A. Kaufhold, Duluth, University of Minnesota; Oscar Wagner, Duluth, University of Ohio; E. G. Hilliard, Duluth, University of Minnesota; D. A. Ryan, Duluth, University of Minnesota; C. K. Michener, Duluth, University of Minnesota.

TELLS OF GIRLS KEPT TO SUPPLY RESORTS.

New York, May 5.—Harry Levenson, who is under indictment for selling young girls into lives of shame, has told the district attorney that there are at least three "stockades" in New York, in each of which from five to ten young girls are kept ready night and day for instant delivery, wherever they may be wanted. His counsel was with him during the interview, and confirmed it.

Little effort, said Levenson, is made to recruit women of the streets. The stockades are filled from the host of young girls who are unhappy at home, or who live narrow lives on their own earnings and long for leisure, good clothes, gaiety and freedom from restraint. Well-dressed women make it a business to frequent cheap restaurants, moving picture theaters, sentimental matinees and the bargain counters to single out such cases, first winning attention with an invitation to dinner, then describing the ease and pleasure of the alternative they propose.

BOND ISSUE PLACED

By Lumber Company of Which Col. A. D. Davidson Is President.

The Canadian Western Lumber company, of which Col. A. D. Davidson of Duluth is president and in which a number of capitalists connected with the Mackenzie-Mann interests are stockholders, has just placed in London an issue of $7,500,000 5 per cent first mortgage debenture stock at 88. This debenture stock will be repayable at par on April 6, 1945, by means of a cumulative sinking fund, based on a payment by the company to the trustees at the rate of $1.50 for every 1,000 feet (board measurement) of timber sold, with a minimum of $625,000 in each period of three completed years. This sinking fund will be applied in the purchase of debenture stock at or below 99, or in the redemption of the stock at par by drawings. The company reserves the right to redeem the whole or any part of this stock at par at any time after April, 1915, on six months' notice. The company has secured 75,000 acres of freehold land in British Columbia, bearing an immensely valuable body of timber, and also timber leases and licenses extending over about 60,460 acres, and has acquired large sawmills at the Fraser river at New Westminster.

NORTH DAKOTA CHILD IS FATALLY SCALDED.

Napoleon, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of a scalding received while he was playing about the kitchen, Hunter Egleston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Egelston, is dead. The little fellow was scalded almost from head to foot but lived three days in intense pain before death came. The Egleston family resides on a farm near the city.

ORDER A CASE TODAY

DOCTORS HEAR MANY ADDRESSES

Effect of Tobacco on the Heart Furnishes Theme for Long Debate.

Washington, May 5.—The third day's session of the Association of American Physicians was opened today with an address by Dr. Beverley Robinson of New York, who addressed the conference on physical exploration and treatment of heart disease. In the various sections of the congress addresses were made by Drs. Charles P. Chetwood of New York, A. Jacobi of New York, A. S. Churchill of Chicago and others.

In the medical-psychological section, Dr. Albert M. Barrett of Ann Arbor, Mich., gave an address on "Degeneration." He was followed by Dr. Austin Flint of New York, who spoke on the "Criminal Insane," and a discussion supplemented the address, conducted by Doctors George H. Kirby of Ward's Island, New York, and Harry W. Miller of Washington.

As smoke wreaths from cigars chased one another through the room, heart specialists from throughout the country, who were attending the congress, gathered to discuss whether the prolonged and excessive use of tobacco meant "sudden death." At the close of a lengthy debate they were far from reaching an agreement as to what was the real effect of the use of tobacco on the heart.

FALLS INTO POST HOLE.

North Dakota Girl Is Victim of Peculiar Accident.

Cando, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—While playing about the yard of their home in this city, Jessie Atkins, daughter of Mayor C. Atkins, fell into a posthole where she became solidly wedged and was held a prisoner. Her predicament was not discovered for some little time and when she finally was found, it was necessary to enlarge the hole to release her.

NUGENT TRANSFERRED.

First North Dakotan at West Point Gets a Promotion.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has just been received of the promotion of Capt. George A. Nugent, the first North Dakota young man to be appointed to West Point. He has just been transferred from Fort Monroe, Va., to the army war college at Washington, D. C., the order being in the nature of a mark of appreciation of his work.

Capt. Nugent graduated from West Point in 1898. He spent four years in the Philippines and was quartermaster at San Francisco during the earthquake. When appointed, he was a resident of Grand Forks, but his parents now reside in Seattle.

CHILD LIVES; MOTHER DIES

Peculiar Outcome of Disease in North Dakota Family.

Reynolds, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Mat Lebacken of this city died under peculiar circumstances here Tuesday from diphtheria. A week ago her little child was ill with the disease but recovered, and since that time the mother had not been feeling well. Tuesday afternoon about 3 o'clock she went to her room to sleep, and at 6 o'clock, when other members of the family went to call her, she was dead, having passed away while sleeping. Mrs. Lebacken was a Christian Scientist and had not received any medical attention during her illness. A swab of the throat was taken yesterday, and it was shown to be a case of diphtheria of a very pecullar nature.

Calumet Minister Called.

Calumet, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. N. J. Forsberg, pastor of the Calumet Swedish-Lutheran church, has accepted a call to take charge of a church being organized at Rock Island, Ill. He has been in Calumet seven years.

Major Purdon Near Death.

Wahpeton, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Major Purdon of the National guard, who has been ill for a number of months with pneumonia and complications, is sinking rapidly. The officers of the guardsmen have been notified to be prepared for orders that will bring the companies of the First battalion to this city to take part in the last rites.

STRUCK BY ORE TRAIN.

James Shiber Rendered Unconscious at Cloquet Wednesday.

Cloquet, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—While attempting to evade an eastbound freight train last evening about 9 o'clock, James Shiber was struck by a Great Northern ore train coming from the other direction, and was thrown a distance of about thirty feet.

He received a blow on the head which rendered him unconscious for several hours, but his injuries were not of a serious nature.

DRAGGED TO DEATH.

La Moure, N. D., May 5.—As William Mitchell, a young man, and a companion were driving from here to Berlin their team became unmanageable. Both jumped, but Mitchell became entangled in the reins and was dragged to his death.

TAFT AND THE PEOPLE.

There is consuming interest in the report that if the insurgents and Democrats interfere too much in the shaping of his railroad bill, the president threatens to veto it and put the blame for its destruction upon the allies.

Very evidently the president intends that there shall be no doubt whatever about his stand. If the bill reaches him in a form that gives less liberty to the railroads than he proposed they should have, or that makes the interstate commerce commission less of a nonetity than he proposed it should be, then the measure will not be satisfactory to him, and he will veto it.

Meantime, comes news of an organization formed in the senate to hold the fort of "conservatism," over which fly the banners of laissez faire and reaction, against the attacks of the allies who seek to do things for the people. Reaction, or rule of the many by the few and for the few, is taking its last stand, in a hollow square with the president bulking large in its center: for President Taft, it is announced, is in thorough sympathy with this move to crush radicalism and to block progress.

If there was any remaining doubt about whether President Taft has chosen the side of the people or the side of Special Privilege, his present activities have removed it. The president most emphatically is not facing forward. His aim is directed back toward the "good old days" of McKinley and Hanna, and if he has his way "high finance" will get an inning such as it hasn't had since Theodore Roosevelt appeared upon the scene of national affairs.

THE CHURCH AND TUBERCULOSIS.

There is work for everybody in the fight against tuberculosis, and it is highly gratifying to note that the churches apparently are bent on doing their share of it. It was announced in The Herald last evening that Archbishop Ireland has instructed all pastors in his archdiocese to read to their congregations next Sunday an article on consumption that is to be published in the Cathedral Bulletin. Bishop McGolrick of this city, who has taken keen interest in this and other movements for the good of humanity, already has spoken effectively to his congregations on several occasions, giving them advice and instruction in the nature of tuberculosis and of the fight against it that will bear good fruit.

When Tuberculosis Sunday was reached recently it found the Protestant churches of Duluth busy with the laymen's missionary movement, and most of the churches postponed their observances of the day. This winning fight against consumption is quite as important as foreign missions, and it is to be hoped that no Duluth church will neglect giving one of its services to this good purpose.

THE "SYSTEM'S" BY-PRODUCT.

One of the by-products of the "system" that controls congress and gives Aldrich and Cannon their dangerous power is a more or less petty species of treasury-plundering through appropriation bills.

The cement which holds the system together is composed of patronage and pelf—of the privilege of filling offices and the privilege of sharing in the appropriation bills. This system of distribution not only involves scandalous extravagance, but perpetuates a system of government that works against the people instead of for the people.

A case in point is the appropriation of $30,000 in the pending river and harbor bill for the "further improvement of Great Salt pond, Block Island." This item was put in the bill by the senators and representatives from Rhode Island, headed by Aldrich. That is their share, or part of their share, of the spoils. If the "further improvement" of Great Salt pond is needful and beneficial to the people, that settles it; it ought to be provided for. If it is not needed, and will no do good, then this appropriation of $30,000 is a deliberate steal out of the treasury, and is not only wrong in itself, but twice wrong because it takes money needed by useful projects.

The Providence Journal, one of the leading newspapers of Rhode Island, says that the Great Salt pond project is neither needed nor useful. Says the Journal: "The people of Rhode Island are supposed to be rejoicing because an appropriation for Great Salt pond has been pitchforked into the bill. We are supposed to be acclaiming our representatives in congress for their alertness in obtaining a fraction of the $52,000,000 for Block Island. We are pictured as grateful for their exertions in inducing congress to ignore certain circumstances which put their appropriation in jeopardy.

"These circumstances are, briefly, that the report of every qualified authority condemns the Great Salt pond project as useless: that the Federal and state governments have already wasted too much money on it; and that the whole procedure has been a political job from the beginning. Here in Rhode Island, of course, nobody will be fooled by the Great Salt pond item in the grab."

This is merely another instance of the log-rolling, pork-barrel method of spending the people's money. All that congress dares to take for rivers and harbors is put into one pork barrel; all that congress dares take for public buildings is put into another pork barrel. The distribution of these funds is not based upon the merits of the projects asking for help; it is based upon the political deserts of the senators and congressmen applying in behalf of these projects.

And judgment of political deserts, bear in mind, is based not even on party service, but on subserviency to the "system" that rules congress, and that therefore rules the people. By its control of the pork barrels the "system" controls the "statesmen" who seek appropriations for their districts.

It is a more refined form of bribery and corruption than the distribution of fat envelopes containing bills of large denomination; but it is bribery and corruption, nevertheless. And, as usual, the people pay all the bills.

THE PRICE OF BEEFSTEAK.

Will C. Barnes, inspector of grazing in the United States forest service, contributes to the Saturday Evening Post a discussion of meat prices and the prospect for cheaper meat.

He doesn't provide a very encouraging outlook. While the meat-eating population grows steadily, the number of cattle stands still or decreases. Plainly, this is a case where the law of supply and demand has a chance to operate. The demand cannot increase and the supply decrease without affecting prices; and when, in addition, there is a meat trust to help it along, the result inevitably is higher prices.

In 1880 there were about 50,000,000 people in this country, and an equal number of cattle. This year Mr. Barnes figures that there are about 90,000,000 and only 69,000,000 cattle.

"When the meat production of the country catches up with the demands of the meat-eaters," says Mr. Barnes, "the price will naturally fall. A decade from now, when all this new land that is being placed under cultivation is doing its share to meet the matter, the natural rise in numbers of livestock may cause a surplus. But it is a debatable question whether the gap in the race between consumption and supply is going to be narrowed very materially for a good many years."

Little encouragement here, truly. Yet if natural economic laws are to govern, one would expect the high prices of meat to stimulate cattle raising. On the other hand, most assuredly the high prices of meat are discouraging meat consumption, and that, too, should have its effect. Mr. Barnes overlooks both these points.

But there is another point which Mr. Barnes also overlooked, and that is one which seems so obviously pertinent that it is hard to understand how he came to ignore it.

To make a case for the law of supply and demand, it is necessary to show that the nation's production of meat supplies is not enough to meet the domestic supply. If that were the case the cause of high prices would be made plain, and the meat trust and other artificial aids to high prices could be cleared of all suspicion. Mr. Barnes, evidently, seeks to prove that such is the case.

Yet before the theory of supply and demand is accepted as the sole reason for high prices, somebody should explain why it is that this country exports meat supplies to the value of about $800,000,000 a year, and successfully competes in the free trade market of England with untaxed meat from all over the world.

If there isn't enough to go around at home, exportations of meat to be sold at the low prices that prevail in Europe is nothing short of a crime. If these exportations are made to keep the supply at home close enough to the margin of shortage to permit the maintenance of high prices, that is a crime even more serious.

There is a very important factor here which, so far as we know, nobody has explained. Surely it should be explained before the theory of supply and demand is blamed for existing conditions.

THE CENSUS IN DULUTH.

While possibly it would be better to await the announcement of the score before saying so, on the whole there seems every reason to believe that the work of taking the census in Duluth has been adequately done, or will be by the time the count closes this evening. The census officials have done valiant work, and they have had good support from the community. It is particularly gratifying that so many who were overlooked by the enumerators took the trouble to fill out the blanks printed in The Herald and send them in. This showed an appreciation of the public duty involved in this act that argues well for the public spirit that now prevails in Duluth

While the cities probably will be counted first, it may be a couple of months before the result in Duluth is given out in Washington. The local officials are not permitted to divulge anything; in fact they are not even supposed to count the returns. The counting is done in Washington.

However, everybody is entitled to guess, and while guesses now are not based on any more solid foundation than were guesses made before the count began, they will be in order until the official announcement sets all doubt at rest.

If the total should fall below 75,000, it would be a surprise and a disappointment. If it should run well over 80,000, it would be no surprise, but it would be a surprise if it ran as high as 90,000, the figure some guessers have put on it.

THE PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX FARCE.

Looking up from his task of directing the annual farce of making personal property assessments, City Assessor Rakowsky remarked to The Herald in an interview published last night that the absurd personal property tax should be abolished altogether and an income tax substituted for it. "Our books show," he said, "that the small fellow pays by far the greater part of the taxes."

The personal property tax is a joke, a grim, bitter joke when viewed in the light of its harshness toward the small fellow and its leniency with the big fellow. Beyond any question it should be abolished, and replaced by an income tax, under which each man would pay according to his ability to pay. Probably at least eight out of ten persons will agree with that idea. Yet the personal property tax lags on, seizing with unfailing regularity the poor man's cook stove and working tools and stock of goods, and missing with equal certainty the rich man's fat store of stocks and bonds: while law-making bodies juggle with income tax proposals, seeking by every possible means to serve their masters by smothering every project looking toward justice in taxation. And justice in taxation only can be secured by lifting the burden from the poor man, who has borne it too long, and putting it upon the strong shoulders of the rich.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

PROHIBITION AND THE YOUTH OF THE SOUTH.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Just at this time when certain statements regarding prohibition by Rabbi M. Lefkovits of your city have aroused more or less comment, I think that a letter from Rev. Dr. Leonard W. Snyder, known as "The Boys' Minister," written to the Minneapolis Tribune, would be of interest to you. I enclose some clippings from it, which I wish you would publish:

"As a worker throughout the country among the boys, I have been often approached upon the question—'What influence has prohibition upon the boys of the United States?' While I have been unable to answer that question accurately and explicitly before my investigation of so-called prohibition states in the South, I am now able to say that prohibition has not saved the boys, but has demoralized a great many. I have seen many boys between the ages of 14 and 20 under the influence of intoxicating liquors during my recent investigation of Southern prohibition states. These things are unheard of in state and communities where liquor is sold under restriction and supervision of the law.

"One prominent citizen in Tennessee told me about the Devil's Hole in Cleveland, Tenn., how he witnessed a party of men and boys, who had come there to drink a supply of whisky which was ordered outside of the state. The gentleman, looking at a 15-year-old boy was waiting to be served, said: 'Don't give the boy anything.'

"But one of the men replied, 'What have you got to do with it; he put up his money?'

"And so on the lad was under the influence of drink. Those are the baneful results of prohibition.

"Whatsoever I have stated in my article of April 14 are facts, absolutely facts, and the sooner we open our eyes to these facts, the better it is for the country.

"County option, which is nothing more than a stepping stone to prohibition, can only end in undesirable results and complications. The solution of the liquor traffic is the exercise of true temperance and can never find its goal in establishing prohibition.

"Since I have investigated prohibition in the South, I am able to state truthfully that in the name of temperance I could not submit to an intemperate measure, which causes more evils than it pretends to cure. In the name of morality, I would not sanction a law that fosters hypocrisy and invites evasion and deceit in the people. And I do not approve a legislative guardianship which makes weaklings of her men, instead of having them unhampered and unfettered by onerous and sumptuary laws interfering with their personal rights and privileges.

"For the youth who will bear our burdens when we are gone, whose bodies, minds and souls shall be robust with the hardy virtues of the race from which they sprung, I could not believe in a law which would teach and set before them daily lessons of duplicity and evasion.

"Let us flood the world with intellectual light and intellectual liberty, and let us be guided by the divine law of self-control and self-respect, to use all things in moderation, and in so doing exercise God's peculiar and precious gift to each person, 'individuality.'"

Life and a Garden.

No, it ain't much of a garden,
Hardly worth while t' hoe
An' it's mostly clay, I reckon,
An' there's not much that will grow,
But I'm going to dig an' rake it,
An' I'll fix it spick and span;
Though it ain't much of a garden
I will do the best I can.

I can plant some morning glories,
An' some asters an' some peas,
Though it ain't much of a garden,
I'm not going to take my ease,
Coz I reckon, if one blossom
Only nods there in the sun
When the summer days are smiling
I shall count my duty done.

It don't seem much use t' dig it,
I'll admit, it is so small,
But the morning glories orter
Climb along that garden wall;
Though I'd like to have a bigger
And a better yard t' hoe,
I shall do my best with this one
To make something pretty grow.

A life's much like a garden,
And the humblest of all,
Has a duty worth the doing
Though it seems so very small;
And though big tasks you are craving,
If a little one's your share,
Make the best of what is given,
And a rose will blossom there.

For a Safe and Sane Fourth.

Life: How many children, since the custom of firing off cannons and crackers on the Fourth of July was first inaugurated, have been sacrificed to this senseless amusement? Verily the number would make an army as large as the one to whom Cornwallis surrendered.

Let us turn over a new leaf this year and do away with the barbarous practice.

Parents, provide for the children all the picnics you want, and all the other fun you can think of, but cut out the firearms and noise.

Heresy-Hunting a la Taft.

From the Review of Reviews: Who would have dreamed that this compositie Taft administration—made up of one Northern Democrat, one Southern Democrat, the able leader of the insurgent faction of Missouri Republicans, a statesman from Pennsylvania famous for demanding and allowing the right of independent judgment, and a brilliant lawyer from New York supposed at heart to be a mugwump, if not a free-trader,—could have ventured forth on a heresy-hunting crusade to punish any man whose Republican orthodoxy might fail to respond to the Payne-Aldrich test! In political associations, as in religious bodies, the upholders of orthodoxy have usually assailed the very men who were the saving salt of the organization because they were honest and did their own thinking. And who would ever have supposed that a man of Mr. Taft's religious affiliations would have become in politics an almost fanatical heresy-hunter? To read Senator Beveridge out of the Republican party in Indiana would be something like trying to read Mr. Roosevelt out of the Republican port of the state of New York. And as for the Republicanism of Dolliver and Cummins, it is at least a good deal more substantially supported at home in Iowa by those who vote the Republican ticket than can be said just now—when one considers the troubled aspects of Ohio politics,— for that of any Republican leader, however orthodox, who votes in the Buckeye state.

Woman's Suffrage.

Artemus Ward: "My female friends," sed I, "Be4 you leeve, I've a few remarks to remark; wa them well. "The female womain is one of the greatest institooshuns of which this land can boste. It's impossible to get along without her. Had there been no female wimin' in the world, I should scarcely be here with my unparaleld show on this very occasium. She is good in sickness—good in wellness—good all the time. O woman, woman!" I cried, my feelin's worled up to a high poetick pitch, "yoh air an angle when you behave yourself; but when you take off your proper appairel & (mettyforically speaken) — get into pantyloons — when you desert your firesides, & with your heds full of wimmin's rites nosiums go round like roarin' lions, seekin' whom you may devour somebody—in short, when you undertake to play the man, you play the deveil and air an emfatic noonance. My female friends," I continnered, as they were indignantly departin', "wa well what A. Ward has sed!"

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Taft and the Postage Rates.

Warroad Commonwealth: The Duluth Herald wonders if the administration would "harp so much on the press postage rate" if every newspaper and magazine in the country were to indorse the Taft-Aldrich-Cannon policies. Of course The Herald and every one else knows very well that such action by the newspapers and magazines would still the harping on press postage rates; but it would be a great mistake of the papers, also. It would be inviting greater arrogance in the administration, and would place the press more in its power. On the other hand, if every newspaper and magazine in the country were to come out boldly and say in plain words what the purpose of the administration is in urging an increase in press postage rate, it would end the postage question quite as effectually, and more lastingly.

A Never-Ceasing Booster.

Princeton Union: The Duluth Herald was twenty-seven years old last Saturday and improves as time goes on apace. The Herald is in every respect a first-class newspaper. It is a never-ceasing booster for Northern Minnesota. May The Herald live to celebrate the centenary of its birth.

Ranks at the Top.

Swanville News: The Duluth Evening Herald has been enjoying a shower of bouquets from the brethren of the press upon the arrival of its twenty-eighth anniversary. The bouquets bestowed are well deserved by The Herald for that newspaper now ranks among the top-notch dailies in the state—and a Northern Minnesota booster.

From Speaker Rockne's Newspaper.

Zumbrota News: Duluth Democrats are looking for a candidate to run against Clarence Miller for congressman of that district. They will need a strong one.

Duluth Does Its Share.

Crookston Rural and Urban Progress: We would desire to call especial attention to the boosting that the big papers of Duluth are doing for the Crookston convention. On the front page of this issue appears the reproduction of a cartoon which recently appeared in The Duluth Herald. No better publicity could be given the convention and Duluth citizens and Duluth interests are placing all of Northern Minnesota under obligations which no county in the section can afford to forget.

Auto Fatalities.

Hibbing Tribune: Some one writing to The Duluth Herald puts the blame for the death of the aged lady who was run down by an auto in Duluth last week and almost instantly killed—puts the blame, not on the chauffeur who drove the machine, but upon the police of the city.

And that is exactly where it belongs.

Duluth has an ordinance forbidding speeding. The ordinance is violated in the sight of every policeman in the city scores of times every day. The police do not enforce the law. The law was made to prevent accidents, and when those whose business it is to enforce the law do not do it, the responsibility for any injury that occurs rests directly upon them.

This is a truth of general application and it is just as true of Hibbing as it is of Duluth.

"When Kelley Felled a Tree."

The days at Lower Landing Camp
Were quietlike and dull;
The sounds from Stoney's shallow stream
Served, scarce to break the lull.
So Kelley took his double bit
"To pass the time," said he,
"The cook will soon be needing wood,
I'll go and fell a tree."

His practised eye saw tracks of moose,
He saw the signs of bear;
The woodchuck scurried from his path
And sought its humble lair.
"A rifle, not an ax, I think,
Would be the thing for me;
But I'll get the wood I started for—
And first, I'll fell a tree."

The drowsy clerk was listening
To the ticking of the clock,
When half-bewildered up he jumped,
As from a sudden shock.
"The swish of wire in the air!
There's h—l to pay," said he;
And things took on a bit more life
When Kelley felled the tree.

Then in dashed Kelley, out of breath,
And said in trembling tones:
"I didn't see the bloody wire,
I've busted all the 'phones."
Then Feeney summoned Anderson
To grab his kit and flee;
Said Kelley, "Not a word, me boy,
Of how I felled a tree."

When Anderson arrived he swore
The crisis would be met.
"I've handled trouble, not a few,
And none have balked me yet,
Ah, ha! A tree across the line—
No wind—'tis strange to me."
But no one knows, until this hour,
That Kelley felled the tree.

Though Kelley keeps the cook in wood
He's careful to retire
From where the 'phone line winds along,
Away from, even—hay wire.
But when the days begin to drag,
Perhaps ('tween you and me)
To add a little spice to life,
He'll fell another tree.

—J. H. Feeney.

"Larry Ho," Apostle of Cheer.

Henry Edward Warner, who has been writing "pomes and things" for the St Paul Dispatch, has severed his connection with that paper, and the corner of the "back page" where he set forth his cheering wares has been occupied by "Larry Ho," otherwise Hodgson, well known throughout the Northwest as a baseball writer. "Larry Ho" knows a lot about baseball, but he knows even more about being cheerful. The style of his optimism may be learned from the following:

"Some hungering fellow may never know
That the world is a jolly old place
Unless he can read it in glories that glow
With the rapture of joy on your face."

Ballade of Troubled Times.

My neighbor's cat stays out of sight
Beneath my neighbor's house all day.
My chickens squawk from morn till night,
My petted spaniel ran away;
My horse is nervous, mouths his hay—
I do not dare go near my cow;
My troubles stand in long array—
Our Willie has an air-gun now!

In all the house no window light
Unbroken surface can display,
My wife is sick in bed from fright.
The cook has said she will not stay;
Some fourteen men called in to say
Their eyes were sore and raised a row
And talked with tongues that did not pray—
Our Willie has an air-gun now!

I feel my face go pinched and white
Whene'er I see the doctor's shay,
My heart pounds on, my throat grows tight,
I view his passing in dismay;
For, be his visage grave or gay,
Who knows where Death may strike or how!
We have no hold on living—nay!
Our Willie has an air-gun now!

L'ENVOI.

Friend, I am growing old and gray,
The mark of care is on my brow;
There is the very deuce to pay—
Our Willie has an air-gun now!

—Charles C. Jones in Puck.

Woman's Wiles.

Oh, woman, in your hours of E's
Why do you spend so many V's?
Poor man must mind his P's and Q's;
To earn the X's that you U's;
While he is working like the B's
The dough he needs you're prone to C's;
Yet, with such tact you put him Y's,
You seem an angel to his I's!

—Puck.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

J. Hennes, a Duluthian of the vintage of 1870, was at the St. Louis yesterday. He lives in Houghton.

Many Duluth citizens will be saddened by the news of the death of Capt. P. Kitwood, for forty years before the mast as sailor and officer, and recently the chaplain of the St. Louis Bethel. His death, which occurred at Chicago on April 30, was, so writes his co-laborer, Rev. B. Frankland, "a release from six months' untold suffering." His interest in Duluth never flagged. The Bethel will always be a reminder of the yearly visits in which he met the local board and kept before them the magnitude of the work to be done.

The contract has been let for the Woodbridge building, 106 and 108 West Superior street, to D. H. Hayes. It is guaranteed to be ready for occupancy on Oct. 1, and will cost about $50,000.

Articles of incorporation of the firm of T. B. Hawkes & Co. have been filed. The capital stock is $100,000, and the business is warehousing, storage and forwarding and general dealing in produce. The incorporators are James Hill, Roberts, Wis.; George E. Putney, Royalton, Minn.; Thomas B. Hawkes and J. E. Howard, Duluth.

Another pioneer of Duluth has passed away. This time "Dexter," the spaniel who for fourteen years has been the almost constant companion of George Sherwood, has passed to the beyond. Dexter was once a handsome canine, but ravages of old age have been telling upon him for some time, and during his latter days he seemed to be suffering from paralysis so that he was almost unable to drag his body around.

Frank White has opened a barber shop in the Palladio building.

Gus Beaulieu is in the city on his way to the White Earth reservation, where he will try to secure a band of Indians to take part in the canoe races at the Duluth-Superior regatta.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Sydney Bulletin: "Hard-workin' wife you've got, Bill."

"Yes, I wish I'd a couple more like her."

Life: "Your honor, I don't see how I can pay as much alimony as that."

Judge—Why in the world didn't you think of that before you got married?

Chicago Journal: "The South Sea Islanders often exchange wives."

"Shocking."

"Not at all. They go through a regular form of divorce."

Chicago Tribune: Little Fido—Uncle Towser, what's the reason we don't get any more meat to eat?

Big Towser—Youngster, there's a beef boycott on, and we're the innocent bystanders.

Detroit Free Press: "Why don't you brace up and step lively? Don't walk through the streets as though you were going to a funeral."

"I know it's well enough for you to talk, but I guess your feet would drag, too, if you were on your way to the dentist's."

Chicago News: "Mamma," said little Ostend, as he ran through the kitchen, "when you make my doughnut will you make the hole just twice as wide as usual?"

"Why, Ostend?" asked his mother, in surprise.

"Well, you see, I've promised little brother the biggest part of it."

Judge: Tad—I suppose that millionaire's money made him famous.

Gad— No. His name wasn't in everybody's mouth until a popular cigar was named after him.

Detroit Free Press: "Jones made an awful big hit at the banquet the other night."

"Is that so?"

"Yes; he was called on for a speech and refused."

Life: "He seems to be an up-to-date politician."

"I should say so. Before proposing to Miss Specie he got up a petition with 2,000 signatures urging her to accept him."

The Sketch: Timpkins—Empty-headed sort of chap, that man Brown.

Jones—Yes, and a very plain-looking bounder.

Timpkins (after a pause)—Did she chuck you, too?

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: A man who tells you that he is wise is otherwise.

It's easier to become hero than it is to hold the job.

Most people think ghosts are white, but they are all shades.

Trouble is about the only thing you can find without looking for it.

A woman who has a good figure isn't necessarily good at figures.

A man isn't inevitably crooked because he can't keep his face straight.

A man is always finding fault with the weather or his wife's actions.

Candor is one of the principal ingredients in the trouble-maker's composition.

Instead of looking for a man under the bed a spinster should look for one under an auto.

Most women would order corned beef and cabbage in a restaurant if it had a high-sounding name.

Don't worry about your own funeral. You will be present, of course, but the proceedings will not interest you at all.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Back of the desire of a man to argue is his passion to hear his own voice.

There's nothing so easy as to get a contempt for a thing you try to gain, but it's beyond your reach.

A girl is very farsighted to make a man so attentive while she can, which is before she marries him.

Nothing makes a man more indignant than for his wife not to appreciate how sick he is when he isn't.

The funny thing about people with red hair is how mad they can get trying to prove it doesn't give them a bad temper.

Prayer for All Working Women.

Walter Rauschenbusch in American Magazine: "O God, we pray Thee for our sisters who are leaving the ancient shelter of the home to earn their wage in the store and shop amid the press of modern life. Grant them strength of body to bear the strain of unremitting toil, and may no present pressure unfit them for the holy duties of home and motherhood which the future may lay upon them. Give them grace to cherish under the new surroundings the old sweetness and gentleness of womanhood, and in the rough mingling of life to keep the purity of their hearts and lives unfinished. Save them from the terrors of utter want. Teach them to stand by their sisters loyally, that by united action they may better their common lot. And to us all do Thou grant wisdom and firm determination that we may not suffer the women of our nation to be drained of strength and hope for the enrichment of a few, lest our homes grow poor in the wifely sweetness and motherly love which have been the saving strength and glory of our country. If it must be so that our women toil like men, help us still to reverence in them the mothers of the future. If they yearn for love and the sovereign freedom of their own home, give them in due time the fulfillment of their sweet desires. By Mary, the beloved, who bore the world's redemption in her bosom; by the memory of our own dear mothers who kissed our souls awake; by the little daughters who must soon go out into that world which we are now fashioning for others, we beseech Thee that we may deal aright by all women."

Party Men Out of Fashion.

Puck: When Teddy comes marching home again, hurrah, hurrah, etc., we wonder whether he will talk in public like the ex-president of the United States or the expresident of the Republican party? His successor, William H. Taft, has been criticised freely for his worship of "party solidarity," but unless we are away off in memory Col. Roosevelt himself, though of a very different temperament from Mr. Taft, was a good deal of a party man upon numerous occasions. There were times when he took what he could get via a straight party line-up rather than insist upon all he wanted with the assurance of getting it through a union of Republicans and Democrats. On his return Col. Roosevelt will have a much more enthusiastic audience if he talks like the ex-president of the United States rather than the ex-president of the Republican party.

Liberty.

What man is there so bold that he should say,
"Thus, and thus only, would I have the sea."
For whether lying calm and beautiful,
Clasping the earth in love, and throwing back
The smile of heaven from waves of amethyst;
Or whether, freshened by the busy winds,
It bears the trade and navies of the world
To ends of use of stern activity;
Or whether, lashed by tempests, it gives way
To elemental fury, howls and roars
At all its rocky barriers, in wild lust
Of ruin drinks the blood of living things,
And strews its wrecks o'er leagues of desolate shore—
Always it is the sea, and men bow down
Before its vast and varied majesty.

So all in vain will timorous ones essay
To set the metes and bounds of liberty,
For freedom is its own eternal law;
It makes its own conditions, and in storm
Or calm alike fulfills the unerring will.
Let us not then despite it when it lies
Still as a sleeping lion, while a swarm
Of knatlike evils hover round its head;
Nor doubt it when in mad, dispointed times, it shakes the torch of terror, and its cry
Shrills o'er the quaking earth, and in the flame
Of riot and war we see its awful form
Rise by the scaffold, where the crimson ax
Rings down its grooves the kneel of shuddering kings.
Forever in thine eyes, O Liberty,
Shines that high light whereby the world is saved,
And though thou slay us, we will trust in thee.

—John Hay.

"Only $34,000,000."

New York World: "Only $34,000,000," it now appears, is the value of the estate left by H. H. Rogers. Even those who are disappointed in the smallness of his savings and regard the Standard Oil man's life as misspent must admit that it was a tidy sum. He ought to have done better, he ought to have piled up more money, $100,000,000 or so, but at least he escaped poverty. There was enough of his fortune to create thirty-four genuine millionaires, to say nothing of the kind of people who pass for them on the strength of the appearances they strive to maintain.

Still, Mr. Rogers was fairly thrifty. In Michigan last year there were 767 savings bank depositors, and all together their savings amounted to only $31,292,353—$3,000,000 less than Mr. Rogers' estate. In Virginia and West Virginia, states in which he was heavily interested, there were 75,538 savings bank depositors, and all together their savings amounted to only $17,778,960—about half what Mr. Rogers had accumulated. The only states in the Union whose bonded debts he could not have paid off and have had $25,000,000 or more left over were New York and Virginia.

A millionaire who can do that may not come up to all the expectations formed of him and still not desire to be too severely reproached for his shortcomings.

If is the opportunities he had and the business associates with whom he was joined that make Mr. Rogers' savings appear so trifling that they are spoken of as "only $34,000,000."

The Mark-Down Sale.

She started out to buy a ball
Of yarn for darning socks,
A paper or two of safety-pins,
And a ribbon for baby frocks.

And as for buying more than this
She never had a thought;
But the "marked down" tickets caught her eye,
And this is what she bought:

An opera cape,
Twelve yards of crepe
(You can't tell when you'll need some),
Six pairs of gloves,
(Such perfect loves!)
And books—one has to read some;
Some furs, real sable,
A small work-table,
A set of Haviland china,
A turquoise ring
(The sweetest thing!)
A novel by Olive Schreiner,
A waist or two
As good as new
(And worth at least ten dollars),
An evening gown
Marked 'way, 'way down,
Some real lace baby collars;
A music rack,
A dressing sacque,
A pair of pillow shams,
A portiere,
Some new back hair,
More essays—this time Lamb's;
An oak bookcase,
A Tiffany vase,
A lovely brass lamp shade;
Some lingerie,
A rubber tree—
I really am afraid

To tell you all the things she bought
As she wandered on from block to block
In quest of a paper of safety pins
And a ribbon for baby's frock.

No Extravagance For Him.

Philadelphia Times: A funny yarn is related by Michael Wollock, a traveling salesman for a Philadelphia hosiery firm.

It was during the early hours of a Sunday morning when a farmer boarded the train at Pottsville. It must have been his first train ride, for he was decidedly nervous. He made a bold front, however, and determined not to show his ignorance of traveling.

He walked through the cars until he reached the Pullman car, where he braced himself against the side of one of the plush chairs.

"Won't you take a seat?" asked the porter, who happened to hold a shaving mug in his hand.

"Nope," the farmer answered. "My wife cuts my hair and I shave myself."

Instant Relief for Sore Feet

Sore Feet, Tender Feet and Swollen Feet Cured Every Time—TIZ Makes Sore Feet Well No Matter What Ails Them.

Policemen all over the world use TIZ. Policemen stand on their feet all day and know what sore, tender, sweaty, swollen feet really mean. They use TIZ because TIZ cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. Read what this policeman has to say: "I was surprised and delighted with TIZ for tender feet. I hardly know how to thank you enough for it. It's superior to powders or plasters. I can keep my feet in perfect condition. Believe in my earnest gratitude for TIZ. I am a policeman and keep on my feet all day."—Emzy Harrell, Austin, Texas.

You never tried anything like TIZ before for your feet. It is different from anything ever before sold.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists at 25c per box, or it will be sent you direct if you wish from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Dept. 490, Dodge Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

This Week's Sunday School Lesson

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD BY REV. J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: MAY 8. Proverbs xxiii, 29-35: Temperance Lesson.

FOREWORD.

For our temperance lesson we go back to that great storehouse of practical wisdom, the Proverbs of Solomon. No one was more capable of telling the exact truth in a more fascinating way. Divine wisdom has preserved those teachings for our benefit.

THE LESSON.

I.

The Woes of the Drunkard, 29-30.

"Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow?
Who hath contentions?
Who hath complaining? Who hath wounds without cause?
Who hath redness of the eyes?
They that tarry long at the wine;
They that go to seek out mixed wine."

Any lack of self-control is intemperance. But there is one form of self-indulgence so disastrous in its effects on one's inner self and outer relations that, by comparison, it seems almost the only form of intemperance, and we give it the title without reserve.

1. OUTCRIES—Its woes work themselves out into expression through words, but that is not all. The word "woe" here means "oh," and "sorrow" means "alas." It is the picture of a man going about bewailing the sad plight into which he has gotten, by the exclamations that he makes. "Oh, me," he says, "alas, I am so miserable." That is always the case, even when he has plenty of money left on which to live. For he has the drunkard's cravings, thirsts and tortures. He has the drunkard's loss of self-respect, the drunkard's loss of the finer distinctions between truth and falsehood, right and wrong, loss of the respect and confidence of his family and friends, loss of nervous poise and peace and power. At times he knows of his own plight and bewails it. A true man pursuing worthy ends may suffer many losses, but it is without whinings and wailings.

2. QUARRELS—Most men are contentious while intoxicated, and acquire a quarrelsome habit. A large part of contentions come in that way. The impulses are inflamed, and restraints removed from conscience and judgment and will. Foolish talking leads to contentions.

3. INJURIES.—He gets wounds in quarrels and fights and in accidents due to his stupor. His eyes grow dim and blurred and feeble and red from the effects of drink. There is no worthy cause for these ills only drink and its consequences. They say that 80 per cent of the inmates of the penitentiaries are there because of strong drink, either directly or indirectly. The wanton destruction of material wealth is another distinct injury to men, especially to workingmen. The latter have had millions of increase in wages and instead of being deposited in banks and built into homes and organized into business, a tragically large part of it has gone over the counter of the barroom. Improvidence, loss of will power and skill and management always result from the liquor habit. Putting money into liquor is the destruction rather than the utilization of values. At least $4,000,000,000 a year is wasted in our own country.

4. HABITS.—The one who drinks it goes a faster pace, usually. He loses mastery over himself. At first it is a little; then much wine. At first he takes it as it comes; then he "seeks" it. At first it is simple wine; then the taste requires something more exciting; mixed wines; blended and spiced and seasoned up to the ever more degraded taste.

II.

The Temptations of the Drunkard. 31-32.

"Look not thou upon the wine when it is red,
When it sparkleth in the cup,
When it goeth down smoothly:
At the last it biteth like a serpent,
And stingeth like an adder."

1. SPARKLE.—It is like a blushing sorceress, attracting the young man to his ruin; like a saucy imp winking and ogling in the cup; speaking with its merry and wicked eyes to the fascinated fool who holds the cup in his unstable hand. The blush and the bead upon the wine's surface have their worlds of alluring suggestion to their victim.

2. TASTE.—Whether the after effect of exhilaration or forgetfulness of troubles is much desired or not, its taste, as it "goeth down smoothly," is sought. It is an imperious taste, never to be extirpated except at the severest cost.

3. SERPENT.—The serpent's bite and sting is in its blushing and beaded fascination. It is a serpent in general to which it is likened, for the bite is the fatal gift of every kind of serpent. It is the adder in particular, it is most like, for its sting is most deadly. The warning is complete. No one will drink, who has good judgment, a moral perception and power of right decision. If he does drink, he will not retain those virtues very long.

III.

The Delusions of the Drunkard, 33-35.

"Thine eyes shall behold strange things,
And thy heart shall utter perverse things.
Yea, thou shalt be as he that lieth down in the midst of the sea,
Or as he that lieth upon the top of a mast.
They have stricken me, shalt thou say, and I was not hurt;
They have beaten me, and I felt it not:
When shall I awake? I will seek it yet again."

1. VISUAL.—Visual delusions are rare. The nerves are often so perverted as to lose the power of properly focalizing objects. They see two and often more. In the stages of delirium, tremens, he sees a great many things that have no existence at all, except in his disordered brain. But Solomon has in mind all forms of perverted men, resulting from drinking, whether mental or moral. It usually perverts his judgment on the liquor question. When the law steps in and says it will not sell to any man for money the right to pervert men into drunkards, he usually asserts that it is interfering with his personal liberty. His mind is in a state of license instead of liberty, anarchy instead of order.

2. PERIL.—He is as insensible of danger as if he should lie down on a wave of the sea and call it a bed or try to go to sleep on the top of a mast. He lies down on the railroad track, or in the gutter where the water washes over lines or on the cold ground, where he is in danger of freezing to death—so insensible is he to peril.

3. SELF-DECEPTION.—Two things he is apt to do. Almost always he will blame some one else for his habits—led into it by companions, forced to drink in order to be on good terms with them. "They" have stricken and beaten him. To be sure, "they" try to do that, but "they" will not succeed with the right sort of man. Also he is apt to minimize the results of his drinking. "I was not hurt," "I felt it not." "There is nothing the matter with me! I am as good a man in body and mind, as I ever was; I'm all right." Thus insensible to his disgrace and degeneration he struts to his own destruction.

4. OBSTINACY.—His friends stand around and advise him, while his family plead with him, but such is the combined power of a long, indulged appetite, a dominating habit and some darling delusions, that he will not stop he cannot stop, and he says, "I will seek it yet again."

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

In America we spend about $1,200,000,000 a year in drink. Would it not be worth while for the workingmen in America to take from that drink bill, say $250,000,000 a year and put it in an industrial fund for the development of industrial enterprises, owned by workingmen, managed by workingmen, and the profits of which shall be received by workingmen?—S. G. Smith.

Having for some time back noticed that our accidents were increasing, upon investigating the cause I satisfied myself that the standard of our men who did not use liquor or tobacco (the latter in the form of cigarettes), was much above that of those who used either. I therefore deemed it my duty to abate the evil as far as lay in my power to do so, and tried to uproot and cast it out through discipline but found this method inadequate and ineffectual. I then went further and concluded the desired end could be attained only by removing from the service or refraining from employing all men addicted to the objectionable habits alluded to. It is my aim and intention to pursue this policy without abatement since I have by it proved beyond all doubt, that it has raised the standard of our men.—John Murphy, general superintendent, Pittsburg Railway company.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. How does the liquor business destroy rather than utilize the value of grain?
2. Why has the government no right to authorize a wrong thing?
3. What would become of the wages now spent for drink, if there were not drinking places?
4. What would become of drinkers if the drinking places were closed up?
5. How would young men learn to become drunkards, if the temptation and incentives were removed?
6. How long will it take us to learn the true way of dealing with the liquor business?

Cure for Eczema Discovered

Dr. E. J. Currier Tells How Patients Can Use It Themselves.

(From Chicago Examiner.)

"Eczema, tetter, ringworm and other skin diseases are spreading," says Dr. J. E. Currier in the Doctors' Guide. "I apply plain pure citrox, dissolved in hot water, twice a day. You who know how stubborn tetter, ringworm and eczema can be, will be amazed to see how soon this stops the itching, dries up the eruption and causes a growth of new healthy skin. I now tell my patients to get a package of pure citrox at the drug store and dissolve it themselves.

"I am having better success than ever before. A case of tetter on the hand that had run six months, citrox cured in a week; and a young woman whose back was a mass of pustules was cured in two weeks. I could cite many others. Be careful to get the pure drug put up in small, sealed packages."

MARY HARRIMAN TO WED SCULPTOR

Designer of Memorial to Railroad King to Be Husband of His Daughter.

New York, May 5.—Mrs. Mary Harriman, widow of the late E. H. Harriman, declined last night to discuss the report that her daughter, Mary, will marry Charles Cary Rumsey of Buffalo. When Mrs. Harriman was informed that news of such an engagement was current, she sent back word:

"I will neither deny nor confirm the report."

She would add nothing to this laconic statement.

Miss Mary Harriman was said to be her father's favorite daughter. She shared his love of horses and cattle, his plain-spoken ways and capacity for affairs. During his life he took great pride in her executive ability, and at his death she succeeded him as manager of Arden farms, with their 46,000 acres and hundreds of head of cattle.

Rumsey is a horseman and polo player, as well as a sculptor. It was his model that was accepted by a committee chosen to build a memorial to Harriman at Goshen, the county seat of Orange county, in which Arden farms are situated, in recognition of Harriman's services as a breeder of blooded horses and a builder of good roads.

Mrs. Harriman and her daughter spent the winter at their town house, in Fifth avenue. Mr. Rumsey also was in New York much of the time this winter. He is a son of Laurence D Rumsey.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 5.—The engagement of Charles Cary Rumsey of Buffalo to Miss Harriman is confirmed by his family here. Rumsey is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1902, and studied art in Paris. He is said to be a sculptor of promise and has a studio in New York. He is quite a horseman, hunting with the Genesee valley hunt. His father, Laurence Rumsey, is a wealthy landholder of this city.

Whooping Cough.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKelg of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when 9 months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists.

DATE OF SALE HAS BEEN CHANGED

The State Auditor Will Sell School Lands on May 23.

The sale of state school lands in St. Louis county will take place on May 23 instead of May 9, as was previously announced.

On May 9 occurs the delinquent tax sale. When it was found that the dates of the two sales conflicted, County Auditor Halden requested State Auditor Iverson to change the date on which the sale of school lands was to have been held.

On May 23 there will be put on sale at the courthouse some 18,000 acres of school lands. The lands are most fertile and the terms are very easy. Only 15 per cent of the purchase price of the lands need be paid down at the time of the purchase. The balance may run forty years with interest at 4 per cent.

NO OFFICIAL STATEMENT ON CENSUS FOR MONTHS.

Washington, May 5.—In a denial of a number of published stories, giving what purported to be estimates of the populations of some of the cities of the United States as shown by the new census, C. Dana Durand, director of the census, declared emphatically that "no official announcement of the population of any city or state in the United States, or of the United States as a whole, would be made for some time to come, and further that the returns from the enumerators have not yet been received emphasizes the impossibility of any official statement, or even estimate, being given at this time.

SHOWS ALASKAN DEALS.

Suit in Seattle Explains System of Getting Coal Lands.

Seattle, Wash., May 5.—Light was thrown upon the methods by which it is said Eastern capitalists, accrued coal lands in Alaska by a suit filed in the superior court yesterday in which C. C. Christopher seeks to obtain from Theodore Cogswell $2,000 alleged to be due him for labor.

Christopher procured thirty-five powers of attorney to locate coal lands in Alaska between Jan. 1, 1905, and Jan. 1, 1906, the complaint alleges, for which Christopher says he was paid $65 each. Christopher says he has reason to believe that on May 20, 1906, the defendant located thirty-five coal claims by virtue of the papers plaintiff had furnished.

These claims, Christopher alleges, were located for the benefit of Theodore Barnsdale of Pittsburg and other Eastern capitalists. Cogswell then entered into another agreement with Christopher to get a relinquishment of the property located on ten of the powers of attorney for which Christopher was to receive $2,000. Christopher procured the necessary deeds of transfer, but says Cogswell failed to remunerate him according to the contract.

Cogswell is a brother-in-law of Herbert P. Keller, mayor-elect of St. Paul.

The Opulento.

IN THE DAY'S WORK AT WASHINGTON

Freedman's Bank Bill.

Washington, May 5.—The bill to pay the depositors of the Freedmans' bank, carrying an appropriation of $1,291,000, was favorably reported out of the committee on banking and currency in the house yesterday. Three Democratic members of the committee, Representatives Gillespie of Texas, James of Kentucky and Pujo of Louisiana voted against the bill.

The Freedmans' bank was organized in 1865 by prominent Republicans and Abolitionists as a philanthropic institution. A charter was granted where many millions in deposits were received from former slaves in all parts of the United States. The funds were invested in suburban property in the city of Washington and the panic of 1873 drove the institution to the wall. But 62 per cent of the deposits were paid and bills have been pending for years to reimburse the depositors who did not receive their money. It was reported favorably from committee in the Sixtieth congress, but failed to pass.

Senate Passes Postal Bills.

The senate passed two bills which the authors gave assurance would save the government $600,000 annually if they became law. One of them would modify the postal laws so as to require return receipts for registered letters only when requested by the sender, and the other annuls the requirement that issuing postmasters should notify the office on which money orders were drawn. The bills were introduced by Mr. Penrose at the instance of the post-office department.

Annuity for Fire Victim.

As a reward for his services in acting as a subject for yellow fever tests, the senate has passed a bill granting an annuity of $1,500 to John R. Kissinger of Indiana. He is one of the soldiers used to demonstrate the theory that mosquitoes transmit fever. Senator Shiveley said that Kissinger had become a hopeless paralytic.

Fish Attacks Rules.

Another proposition to amend the house rules is made in a measure introduced by Representative Hamilton Fish of New York, who objects to the blocking of legislation in committee. Mr. Fish proposes that on petition of fifty members of the house, the rules committee shall take action to discharge any measure from consideration by any committee in which it is pending.

THIRTY-TWO DECLARED CARNEGIE HEROES.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 5.—Thirty-two awards of medals for acts of heroism were made by the Carnegie hero fund commission at its spring meeting. Seven silver and twenty-five bronze medals were ordered struck off for the fortunate ones, while monthly pensions aggregating $196, death benefits of $4,880 and special awards totalling $13, $14,880 and special awards totalling $13,100 were made. The cash awards were to liquidate mortgages and other indebtedness and for educational purposes. In thirteen instances the heroes met death, either in the act or as a result of injuries received.

SUIT IS STARTED OVER THAT $48,000 PAYMENT.

New York, May 5.—A taxpayer's suit has been brought in the name of Julia Smith against Mayor Gaynor, Chamberlain Hyde and D. F. Cohalan for the recovery of $48,000 paid to Cohalan for legal services to the city during the late administration of Mayor McClellan.

This is the $48,000 for the payment of which Mayor Gaynor denies all responsibility, saying that it was authorized during the previous administration, although paid after Gaynor took office. The matter first drew forth a news item in the American, a Hearst newspaper; later, at the Associated Press dinner, a bitter reply from the mayor; then a counter reply from Hearst, and finally a series of statements from various city employes.

LEAVES PATHETIC NOTE WRITTEN IN FINNISH.

Chicago, May 5.—The Evanston, Ill., police believe they have uncovered an international murder mystery as a result of the suicide in that suburb of Richard Gorky, 28 years old.

Gorky, who was in straightened circumstances was forced to accept work as a porter in an Evanston hotel, was found hanging from a steampipe in his room. He left the following note, written in Finnish:

"The world is all against me because of the death of the young woman in Holland. I crave, but cannot get the sympathy of my two brothers now in California. They had as much to do with her death as I did."

He had been in Evanston for a month. Nothing more is known about him there.

SOAP AND GLYCERINE FACTORY IS DESTROYED.

Kansas City, Mo., May 5.—The plant of the Pet Brothers' Manufacturing company, one of the largest soap and glycerine factories in the Southwest, was destroyed by fire last night, entailing a loss estimated at $1,500,000.

TWO-YEAR-OLD BOY BURNS BABY SISTER TO DEATH.

Waterloo, Iowa, May 5.—While playing with matches during the absence of his mother, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Wilson set fire to the baby cab, where the little 5-month-old sister was sleeping, and by the time the mother returned, the baby's body was burned to a crisp. Arnold, aged 4, made an effort to save his little sister, and called his mother to the scene.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

HE SOUGHT WRONG WRIT

County Attorney of Beltrami Will Have to Start Another Proceeding.

Peremptory Mandamus Instituted Against Clearwater County Dismissed.

Bemidji, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Stanton has denied the application for a peremptory writ of mandamus on the part of Beltrami county to compel Clearwater county to pay Beltrami about $23,000, claimed to be Clearwater's just share of the debt existing at the time the last named county was organized from Beltrami county territory.

Judge Stanton explained that the issues between the two counties should be heard by the court, which was impossible under the writ asked for, and declared that an alternative writ on which the hearing could have been had should have been asked for by County Attorney McKusick. He quashed the order to show cause why the writ should not be issued, thus ending for the time being the contest between the two counties.

May Follow Court's Suggestion.

The hearing was attended by ex-Judge Spooner of this city, representing Clearwater county, assisted by O. M. Stinvik, county attorney of Clearwater county, and Chester McKusick of Bemidji represented Beltrami county, the order to show cause being why a peremptory writ should not be issued compelling the board of county commissioners of Clearwater county to levy a tax to pay its share of the old debt under controversy. The judge's suggestion that an alternative writ be asked for probably will be followed, and it is expected that County Attorney McKusick will commence proceedings along that line in the near future.

The debt of Beltrami county in 1902 was about $170,000, including the county buildings, and Clearwater county is asked to assume about $23,000 of this debt, which existed before the division of Beltrami county and the organization of Clearwater county.

MUCH STATE LAND WILL BE OFFERED

State of Wisconsin to Sell 400,000 Acres in Northern Portion.

Madison, Wis., May 5.—Wisconsin in July will offer at public sale 111,000 acres of timber, grazing and agricultural land in fourteen counties in the northern part of the state which is expected to bring bout its appraised value of $400,000.

Some of this land is considered excellent for grazing and tilling purposes, and most of it, being virgin soil, is expected to produce large crops of grasses and grains. This land is appraised at from $1 to $25 an acre, but will average bout $4 an acre. Inquiries have come from the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, and other purely agricultural states.

The largest acreage of these lands lies in Price county, 21,000 acres, Burnett county, 20,000, and Sawyer county, 14,000. Large tracts lie in other counties near these three.

State Treasurer A. H. Dahl, one of the state land commissioners, will start the sales at Grantsburg, Burnett county, on July 5, and continue them in the several counties as rapidly as possible. He expects that the work will take all of July.

None of the land will be sold below its appraised value which in most cases is considered exceedingly reasonable. The lands that remain unsold will be added to the state land reserves. It is expected that these sales will practically clean up all unsettled lands which the state desires to dispose of.

HANCOCK APPOINTMENTS.

City Positions Filled By Mayor James Are Promptly Confirmed.

Hancock, Mich., May 5.—The annual appointments of Mayor W. Frank Jones were presented to the city council at its regular session Monday evening and all were approved without objection. Five changes were made. The council commitees for the year were also approved. The appointments to the various offices are as follows: Chief of police, John B. Tibor; city attorney, Frank C. Condon; health officer, Dr. Karl V. Arminen; street commissioner, James T. Hosking; member board of public works, five years, August Mette; superintendent of hydrants, Alex Seegal; nightwatchmen, John Wright, Arvis Naska, Peter Fink, Eugene Monroe and Edward Lee; chief of teamsters, Joseph McGrath; chief engineer waterworks, William J. Rentenbach; chief fire department, J. N. Mitchell; city engineer, C. B. M. Craig; city electrician, Edward D. Cuff; fire warden, J. N. Mitchell; special assessors M. R. Goldsworthy and Abe Ojala; poundmaster, Isaac Rols and Oli Hurala.

SPORT FOR DRUMMERS.

Stillwater Is Planning Parade for United Commercial Travelers.

Stillwater, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The parade committee of the local council of United Commercial Travelers has decided to have an industrial and comic parade during the convention of the grand council of the order in this city early in June.

Merchants are invited to have industrial floats but the committee will not solicit them to do so, but will leave it to their discretion and choice of the merchants and factories and will in time assign places in the parade to such participants.

The committee has decided to offer $50 in several prizes for comic features in the parade. They will specify the various offers to be made in the near future. The committee is made up of G. H. Grant, H. J. K. Searle, J. W. Harrison, H. A. Glashan, L. J. Deragisch and Albert Secker.

NEW MAIL SYSTEM

To Be Adopted in the Mille Lacs District.

Wahkon, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Plans are being formulated for a complete reorganization of the mail service in the entire Mille Lacs district. The idea is to arrange for the delivery of mail to the numerous postoffices on or near the big lake by a combination of water and land routes during the navigation season, and by a stage system during the closed period. As soon as the plans are completed they will be submitted to the department at Washington. Wahkon will be the head of the proposed mail system. The promoters of the scheme are confident that they will be enabled to give a much better service than now furnished by the numerous star routes in operation throughout the territory in question.

HIS BAIL IS REDUCED

Alleged Ashland Murderer Can Get Freedom on $3,500.

Ashland, Wis., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Falenski, charged with murder, applied for bail in circuit court. District Attorney Pierrelee objected to a less amount than $5,000, but Judge Parish eventually fixed the amount at $3,500. Falenski was bound over to trial by Judge Garvin in municipal court, on the charge of murder without bail. Falenski shot and killed a man who had ordered drinks, during a quarrel over the payment of the same.

CRUSHED BY LUMBER.

Young Cass Lake Workman Perhaps Is Fatally Injured.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Herbert Dryer, employed in the Niels lumber company's yards, perhaps was fatally injured while at work yesterday. Dryer was helping move a heavy load of lumber when one of the planks in the walk broke through upsetting the lumber on him. His arms and legs were badly mangled and it is feared that he was injured internally. He was hurried to the hospital where he has regained consciousness and is resting easily. His condition, however, is serious and it cannot be ascertained as yet whether or not he will survive the injuries.

Dryer is only 23 years old and a very popular young man in the village.

SQUABBLE OVER OFFICE

Results in Two Bismarck Federal Officeholders Holding Jobs.

Bismarck, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The appointment of a register and a receiver of the Bismarck land office to succeed the present incumbents is a problem presenting more than the usual number of complications. Although their terms of appointment have long since expired, Register R. H. Jewell and Receiver John Satterlund still hold their place.

The most active candidates for appointment are R. M. Stevens, who would have the position now held by Mr. Jewell, and W. G. Gilbreath, commissioner of agriculture and labor, who would occupy Mr. Satterlund's place.

FOR WIFE DESERTION.

Ironwood. Mich., Man Facing Term in Penitentiary.

Ironwood, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief of Police Frank has returned from Muskegon with Anton Yafolla, who was arrested on a farm nine miles from that city. Yafolla is charged with deserting his family, the complainant being his better half. Wife desertion is a penitentiary offense in Michigan. Just what will be done with Yafolla is a problem, however. The case is peculiar. The man says that he was afraid of being killed if he worked in the mines, and that his wife refused to accompany him to Muskegon to live on a farm. He denies the charge of desertion.

Indicted Woman Crazy.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 5.—Her mind becoming affected after she was indicted for using cancelled postage stamps, Emma Peloquin, aged 29, yesterday was committed to the asylum.

Detained at Ellis Island.

Calumet, Mich., May 5.—Word has reached here to the effect that Joseph Delliosse, a Calumet business man who was returning from Italy with his family, was detained at Ellis Island by the Federal immigration authorities, and not until Tuesday afternoon were they released and allowed to proceed on their journey to the Copper county. The reason for this action is not known locally, though it was not illness which prevented a continuation of their journey.

ELLENDALE BUSINESS MEN TO COMPLETE SCHOOL.

Ellendale, N. D., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Finding that the board of education was short of funds to the extent of about $20,000 when it began considering the erection of a new school building here, local business men went into their own pockets and make up the difference. A subscription list circulated about the city for a few days resulted in the money being secured and it was turned over to the board of education as a gift.

GOOD FORM IN OPENER

Darby and Crew Have No Trouble Winning From Amateurs.

Show Speed and Hitting Ability in Spite of the Cold.

Darby and his crew showed up well in the opening home game of the season yesterday afternoon, winning from the strong Kelley Hardware team by the score of 13 to 4. Considering the bad condition of the grounds and the cold weather, both teams made a very good early season showing.

Big Kenney was on the hill for the Sox, going the route under wraps and showing nice benders and good speed. Cullen for the youngsters pitched a nice game, as did Murphy, the small mound artist who succeeded Cullen.

Some hard hitting was done by the Sox yesterday, Anderson, Taylor, Buzinsky and Sweeney wielding the willow with generous hand. There were no special fielding features, though, with the exception of Dagget's two bloomers, the Sox inner defense showed up strong. An early season hit by Don Antionio Marion was one of the features of the initiation.

The Kelleys got away from the barrier fast. After Olson and Foster had been retired on infield hits, Brown was hit by a maverick shoot and came all the way home on Cullen's safe clout and Buzinsky's erratic heave to catch him at third. Wegman whiffed, leaving Cullen a base line cadaver.

Anderson opened for the Sox by hitting where three were not. Smiling Pete Neelon drew transportation and went to third when Indian Couture erred on Taylor's outfield offering. "Buzz" forced Taylor at second and Neelon scored a moment later on a balk. O'Brien hit cleanly, scoring "Buzz." The patriot was caught trying to pilfer, Wegman to Foster.

The Kelleys did nothing in the second, McCully drawing a base and the next three hitters being retired in order.

Sweeney hit safely in the Sox's half, stealing second and going to third when Olson wobbled on Marion's infield offering. Dagget had been retired by Ziegler to McCully, Fenton and Cullen and Kenney flew to McCully. Anderson and Neelon hit safely, Marion and Sweeney crossing the platter on Anderson's effort. Anderson stole second and scored on Neelon's clout. Pete was caught trying to steal third.

The Kelleys shoved one over the counter in the third, Olson getting a life on Dagget's error. Foster whiffed and Olson stole second, scoring on Brown's hit. Cullen flew to Neelon and Wegman offered a small one for Dagget's delectation.

The Sox went scoreless in their half, Taylor flying to right, Buzz going out from Brown to McCully, Sweeney striking out after the Irish leader had drawn four bum balls and pilfered his way half around the diamond.

No scoring in the fourth for "Ike" Ziegler's braves, McCully, Fenton and O'Connor going out in order. Dagget, Marion and Kenney died in the Sox's turn at bat.

Again in the fifth the Kelley's failed to dent the rubber, Bailey, Olson and Foster going out in order. The Sox copped three for the last half of the inning.

Anderson got his second hit Neelon hit to Foster, the second baseman tagging Anderson in his mad dash for the bag and throwing Pete out at first. Buzz hit for three, scoring Thomas Zachery Taylor, who drew four wide ones. O'Brien drew a base and Sweeney hit for two, sending the two basemen home. Dagget went out at first, leaving Sweeney on the paths.

No runs in the sixth for the hardware dealers, Cullen stopped the spheroid with his ribs, but was left on the paths. The Sox swelled the score by three.

Marion struck at atmosphere and Kenney drew four queer ones. Anderson obligingly hit the leather over the liquor sign, scoring Kenney ahead of him. Neelon drew a base and Taylor was retired at first, advancing the runner. Buzz hit to right, Neelon coming home on slow handling of the ball. O'Brien flew to right.

Two were gathered in the lucky seventh by the Kelley men. Murphy hit safely after Fenton had been retired on an infield hit. Bailey drew four untrue ones and Olsen hitting safe, Murphy across. Olson was forced by Foster, but Bailey came over when Dagget passed up Brown's infield ground hit. Cullen went out at first.

One was gathered by the Sox, Sweeney missed three, Dagget drew four wide ones and Marion flew to right. Dagget scored on Kenney's clout, after going to second on a bum heave from Wegman. Anderson ended the inning by striking out.

In the eighth Wegman flew to Sweeney, McCully hit for one, going to third on Fenton's two-base hit down the left foul line. Murphy and Bailey struck out. The Sox gathered one in their half, after Neelon had flied to the outfield. Tom Taylor hit for three bases, sending the ball to deep center. He scored on Buzz's fielder's choice. O'Brien flew to Foster.

The Kelleys ended the game by going out in order in the first of the ninth, after Olson had hit for two bases, Foster, Brown and Cullen being unable to do anything with Kenney's curves.

You will find the details of the coming out party below:

KOZIER IS NOT SERIOUSLY HURT.

Big Kozier was injured before the game of yesterday by being accidentally hit with a bat. Tom Taylor threw the bat, which struck Kozier on the shin bone. A nasty wound was made, and the player will be kept out of the game for several days.

It was stated today that Kozier was not seriously injured. His leg was dressed by a physician, and aside from lameness and his inability to get into the game for a few days, there will be no serious results.

PRESS BOX COMMENT

In the second Sweeney ran over to the third base fence and clawed one off the netting. The Harp was in the game at all times yesterday and his debut was most auspicious.

* * *

Mr. Buzinsky, or plain Buzz, was off in his heaving yesterday. His throws were away to the bad and lacked steam. It is early yet.

* * *

Don Antionio Marion played the bag like Handsome Hal Chase. He dug one out of the sand, which was so unexpected that the crowd sat in silent awe.

Darby the poet had two stolen bases to his credit. This almost equals his record of 1909. He is faster than ever the present season.

* * *

Thomas Zachary Taylor looked faster and stronger than last year. His arm is also in better condition. The southern lover of romance gave an example of his hitting by clouting one for three bases.

* * *

Daggett is awfully fast and his work yesterday, in the rock-strewn short field is hardly a criterion of what may be expected from the little fellow. Sweeney and Daggett should take good care of the left side of the diamond.

Neelon took nice care of his two chances yesterday. There was no fielder in the Mlnny list season who was a better judge of a hit ball than Neelon. His work yesterday was gilt edged.

SUPERBAS FALL DOWN IN EXCITING FINISH.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 5.—New York defeated Brooklyn yesterday, 2 to 1, in an exciting finish. With the score 2 to 0 in New York's favor in the ninth, Wheat reached second on Devlin's error. Hummel was out on a line catch by Devlin and Daubert hit directly to Fletcher who threw to third. The decision of safe by Emslie was close, and McGraw argued the matter for two minutes appealing to Chief Umpire Rigler, who refused to alter the ruling. Rigler finally pulled his watch and McGraw went to the club house. A scratch hit by Smith filled the bases and when Doyle muffed Fletcher's throw on McElveen's grounder, Brooklyn had a chance to tie the score. Wheat tallied all right but Daubert was caught at the plate through poor base running. Erwin ended the game with a grounder to Merkle. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Brooklyn	0	0	1

Batteries—Ames and Scalei; Bell, Wilhelm and Erwin. Umpires—Rigler and Emslie.

PRESIDENT SEES PART OF WEIRD EXHIBITION.

St. Louis, Mo., May 5.—President Taft witnessed the first two innings of one of the weirdest games yet seen on a local diamond yesterday afternoon in which St. Louis defeated Cincinnati 12 to 3. The visitors used three pitchers, who issued sixteen bases on balls. Eight bases on balls were given by Slagle and Covaleskie in the third inning, which combined with a hit batsman and a single, netted St. Louis seven runs. The president lost interest after the first inning, after five runs had come in and his party departed in the second inning for the American league park. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	12	7	2
Cincinnati	3	6	3

Batteries—Harmon, Bachman and Phelps; Beebe, Slagle, Covaleskie and Clark. Umpires—Klem and Kane.

NEW PIRATE PITCHER TOO STRONG FOR CUBS.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 5.—Kirb White, whom the Pirates got from Boston last week, pitched his first game for the champions yesterday. The locals won, 8 to 3, taking advantage of two of Steinfeldt's errors, two free passes by Brown and three hits in the eighth when six runs were made. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Pittsburg	8	8	2
Chicago	3	6	2

Batteries—White, Phillippe and Gibson; Brown and Needham. Umpires—O'Day and Brennan.

HOMER WINS FOR LOUISVILLE AT MILWAUKEE.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 5.—Woodruff's homer over the fence in the seventh drove in the run needed to win a 4 to 3 game from the tail-enders. Cutting pitched a good game, but slow fielding helped the visitors to a couple of runs. Higinbotham was wild and was yanked out of the box in the seventh. Fisher, who took his place, was wobbly but he pulled through a winner. Barrett's all-around playing featured. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Milwaukee	4	6	2
Louisville	3	9	4

Batteries — Cutting, Schardt and Marshall; Higginbotham, Fisher and Hughes. Umpires—Owens and Cusack.

SAINTS WIN WITH ONLY ONE SINGLE.

St. Paul, Minn., May 5.—If Murray's easy grounder to O'Rourke in the sixth inning had not taken a bad bound, Goodwin would have had a no-hit game. But the Columbus pitcher was wild in the first inning, giving three bases on balls, which with a grounder to short gave St. Paul two runs, one of them being forced in. Gehring, for St. Paul, was effective with men on bases. Carlsch of Columbus, split his finger in the first inning and had to retire from the game. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
St. Paul	2	3	0
Columbus	1	5	4

Batteries — Gehring and Spencer; Goodwin and Carlsch and Arbogast. Umpires—Bierhalter and Ferguson.

RHOADES IS PUZZLE TO INDIAN BATTERS.

Kansas City, Mo., May 5.—Kansas City found Indianapolis pitchers easy yesterday while the visitors were unable to do anything with Rhoades. Rhoades was responsible for two of the locals' scores when he knocked a home run with one man on base in the second inning. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Kansas City	10	10	3
Indianapolis	0	6	2

Batteries—Rhoades and Sullivan; Graham, Lindaman and Higgins. Umpires—Guthrie and Chill.

MILLERS WIN HARD GAME FROM MUD HENS.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 5.—The first game of the Toledo series yesterday went to Minneapolis, 4 to 3, after a hard struggle. Both teams fielded brilliantly. Williams and Hinchman starring for their respective clubs. The winning run was scored in the eighth on Ferris' second two-base hit and Gill's single. Freeman started the ninth with a double, but the next three men went out in order. Elbert fanning for the last out. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Minneapolis	4	9	1
Toledo	3	9	0

Batteries—Hughes and Owens; West and Land. Umpires—Hayes and Van Zyckle.

LEAGUERS WIN FIRST HOME GAME

Superior Team Cleans Up the Turnbull-Cameron-Degler Aggregation.

By a score of 4 to 1, the Superior team of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league defeated the Turnbull-Cameron-Degler aggregation in the first home game of the year.

"Heine" Hendrickson was on the mound for the furniture men. He struck out six of the leaguers, passed seven men and allowed eight hits. Jensen pitched for the league team until the sixth frame, when he was relieved by Baertschi.

Both teams played good fielding games, but the leaguers were able to bunch hits when hits meant runs.

The lineup:

(BY BRUCE.)

Looking Them Over.

Those fans who were present at the game of yesterday and witnessed the walloping of the Kelleys, left the park with the idea that O'Brien has picked up another fast team. The playing of the leaguers was more than could be expected of a team that has been practically without serious practice for the past three weeks.

An unfortunate accident before the start of the game robbed the team of one of its strongest hitters, Kozier being hurt by the swing of a bat.

Of the new men perhaps Sweeney made one of the best impressions with the fans. This lad handles himself like a ball player. He has all the ear marks of a player and what little he had to do yesterday, he did with refined baseball manners.

If this man Anderson's work yesterday was any criterion of what may be expected of him throughout the season, Kuehnow has secured a find. His royal stubbiness registered for three hits yesterday out of five time up, putting the ball over the right field fence on his fourth trip to the platter.

The little fellow had a bubble in the pasture, letting a ground outfield hit get away from him. However, errors made at Athletic park when the grounds are in the shape they are at the present time, are more or less excusable. Until the in and outfields have been thoroughly raked over and become hardened, errors that are in reality no fault of the fielders are extremely liable to occur.

Big Kenney showed class yesterday. He did not let himself out once during the party. He has an easy swing to his delivery and has all kinds of that smoke on the ball. It was too cold yesterday for a hurler to tempt fate and sore arms, and therefore the big boy worked under wraps.

Eight hits were garnered off his delivery. Kenney has nice breakers, his curves breaking suddenly and sharply. Judgments so early in the season are more or less reserved—yet from the standpoint of the world yesterday, Kenney looks like a pitcher with ability.

O'Brien accepted five chances without a skip and the old boy looks to be in much better condition than last year. Buzz's throwing was indifferent, but until warmer weather tickles the muscles of a man's arm it is hardly fair to judge of a catcher's peg.

Daggett had two bubbles, but from the stand it looked as if the rough ground in the shortfield position had much to do with his juggling of two hit balls. Neelon had two putouts in center, he being the only outfielder to get a hit in the P. O. column.

O'Brien has a fast and willing bunch, and how much they will develop between now and the opening of the season, probably depends somewhat upon the disposition of the weather man.

Murder Will Out.

Yesterday the sporting world of the United States was made to sit up and take wide-eyed notice of a press dispatch that bore a San Francisco heading. The telegram had to do with the joke of the Jeffries' camp.

When San Francisco won't stand for what Berger and Jeffries were pulling off, you may be sure that there is something radically wrong. Those native sons are closer than a tight wad and his coin.

Until there is a decided change in the camp where James J. Jeffries is training, or supposed to be training, for the Johnson meeting, no one can take the preparation of the boiler maker at all seriously.

This column has asked for over a month past a question that other followers of athletics are just beginning to ask—"Why doesn't Jim Jeffries get at least one live sparring partner?"

This same question has at last aroused the fight fans of California. They are saying that any dub heavyweight on the coast could lick the whole bunch of antediluvian sparring partners that are engaged in the retired champion's quarters.

Why hasn't Billy Delaney been engaged to train Jeff? He knows more about Jeffries and how to get the big fellow into condition, than all of the rest of the trainers in the world. Farmer Burns has never been known as a trainer of fighters. It is doubtful if he can help Jeffries.

The San Francisco dispatch says there is no discipline in the camp and that Berger is making a bloomer out of the whole thing.

In his greed after the American dollar Berger has made the training quarters of Jeffries look like the side show of a state fair. His methods are throwing discredit on the game and lending color to the belief, that realising Jeffries will be beaten, he is attempting to get all the money possible before the fourth of July.

A tip has gone out telling the wise boys not to put their money on Jeffries. It is hinted that the Jeffries camp is a joke. The grain of suspicion has been shown and the golden crop of optimism is exceedingly liable to run to mustard.

Armstrong, Choynski and Berger! It is to laugh. Not one of these men could give Jack Johnson an appetite for dinner. We read reports of the dazing Berger and chasing Armstrong over the ring. To anyone who has followed sports closely, these press agent reports are huge and weird examples of humor.

Until Jeffries gets a man who is boss of the camp, a competent trainer and some live sparring partners and shows he is really training like men have trained in the past, the fight fans cannot be expected to take the period of preparations with any degree of seriousness.

It is a well known fact that Jeffries has been suffering for some time with a serious infection of the blood. Outbreakings of this disease caused a postponement of the Monroe fight. The same old trouble has again made its appearance. Many are questioning the fact as to whether Jim Jeffries can even hope to get into condition.

Here is simply given the opinion that at last has gone abroad throughout the country. Sam Berger, with airy flippancy, has apparently attempted to deceive the public, or has misjudged the intelligence of the fight fans. He should at least play the game cleverly.

At the present writing the whole affair looks bad, and some sporting editors over the country are not hesitating to tell their readers so. If you will remember the New York papers picked Bill Squires as a coming champion. Herr Plackie was put down as a wonderful fighter, also. The fulsome boosting of Jeffries has been out of all proportion to the real truth in the case.

The truth is becoming too unpleasant and Showman Berger will probably be moved to some change in the joke handling of the California fight camp.

"Jack" Jeffries Training.

The Superior Telegram states that "Jack Jeffries is training hard for his fight with Johnson. Wonder what has become of Jim.

Series Opens Today.

Duluth and Superior will open the Head of the Lakes spring championship series this afternoon at Superior. Tomorrow the two teams will clash at Athletic park. The series is an important one to both O'Brien and Duke O'Dea, as both managers will undoubtedly get a line on their teams. The fans, too, will be given an opportunity to size up the players.

Mr. Kuehnow stated that Howard, the big southpaw, will be the nomination for mound work this afternoon. The game will be called at 3:30 at Minny league park, Superior.

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

After the victories over the colored Gophers of St. Paul, the Eau Claire fans are more than confident that their team will be in the hunt for the rag from the lifting of the barrier. The infield is good enough to keep midget Kirk in the outfield. Moore, the new third baseman, has so far shown that he is one of the best players ever secured by a Northwestern team.

The Superior misanthrope states that Duluth would have had a worse team than Superior last season, had not Kuehnow opened the barrel. That is quite true, but credit must be given to the Duluth magnate for going out and spending money for players. They didn't in some other places.

* * *

Superior fans are complimenting themselves upon their team. The first real test of the season will come May 11. The team looks 50 per cent stronger than the bunch of bad actors of last season.

Corrigan, according to Rochester report has all but signed an outfielder who played in the Ohio and Pennsylvania league last season. The player in question has a batting average of .285. If Happy Jack lands the player his outfield will be materially bolstered.

Blaine High	0	1	.000
Superior Normal	0	1	.000

Nelson Dewey won from the Blaine team by a score of 5 to 3, and the Central high school of Duluth defeated the Normal team of Superior by a score of 8 to 1 in the baseball games played at Superior yesterday.

Nelson Dewey and Duluth head the league standing with perfect scores. Blaine and the Normal team are at the bottom.

The victory of the Duluth team was due largely to the fine work of Pitcher Boylle, who was on the mound for the Centrals. The Superior men were unable to connect and the Central players rapped, Underhill, the Superior pitcher, almost at will.

BASEBALL IS CLEAN GAME SAYS TAFT.

St. Louis, Mo., May 5.—President Taft yesterday paid a tribute to baseball.

"The game of baseball," he said, "is a clean, straight game and it summons to its presence everybody who enjoys a clean straight athletics. It furnishes amusement to thousands and thousands. I like to go for two reasons: first, because I enjoy it myself, and second, because if by the presence of the temporary chief magistrate such a healthy amusement can be encouraged, I want to encourage it."

KLING SIGNS UP FOR THREE YEARS.

Chicago, May 5.—John Kling signed a three-year contract with the Chicago Nationals in President C. W. Murphy's office here yesterday, "subject to the terms of the national commission's ruling," Mr. Murphy said. This means that Kling will get a salary of $4,500 for the season. In addition Kling was given a check for his share of the $10,000 prize money that President Murphy presented his players at the close of the 1908 season.

This is the final move in the famous baseball case, and all that remains is for Kling to get out and play ball.

ZBYSZKO THROWS FRENCH CHAMPION AT DETROIT.

Detroit, Mich., May 5.—In a wrestling match here last night Zbyszko threw Raoul de Rouen, the French champion, with the scissors hold, in 20 minutes and with the crotch and half-Nelson hold in 9½ minutes. This was Zbyszko's last match before he meets Gotch.

BOAT CLUB WILL HOLD MEETING MAY 10.

A call has been sent out for the annual meeting of the Duluth Boat club. The meeting of the members of the club will be held on the evening of May 10, at the main clubhouse. The regular reports of the officers will be heard and the election of officers for the ensuing year will follow. A smoker and informal entertainment will follow the regular business of the evening.

The announcement has been made that the cafes at the main house and at Oatka will be open May 30. The first of the regular club dances will be held June 4.

JEFF RETURNS TO TRAINING CAMP

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 5.—Jim Jeffries hurried back to his training camp here at noon yesterday, bringing with him Mrs. Jeffries, who is recovering from an operation. Jeffries did not visit San Francisco during his late holiday, preferring to let Berger squabble over the referee question with Jack Johnson and the promoters.

Farmer Burns, with an armful of flowers, went to the station to greet Jeffries and his wife. Mrs. Jeffries walked to the camp between the big men, looking very pale and weak from her illness and presenting a strong contrast to the two big athletes. She received an enthusiastic greeting at the camp.

Jeffries appeared as happy as a boy to have his wife with him again. As soon as he saw she was situated comfortably, he took the train for Santa Cruz, determined to make the most of his holiday by taking a bath in the ocean. Farmer Burns accompanied him. They returned in time for dinner.

The work at the training camp will be taken up vigorously today.

Jeffries was pleased to hear that Frank Gotch, the champion heavyweight wrestler, will join the camp in a week.

"With all his strength and skill, he will be a great help to me in training," said the big fighter.

With Jack Jeffries coming shortly, the staff of trainers will be almost completed before the middle of the month. Jim Corbett will be the last man to join Jeffries. He is expected about June 1. As far as actual boxing goes, however, it does not look as though Corbett would have a chance to be of much assistance. Jeffries plans to do little boxing during the last three weeks of the training.

REFEREE MAY BE EASTERN MAN

San Francisco, Cal., May 5.—After a half hour's wrangling at Jack Johnson's training quarters on the ocean beach yesterday, promoters and principals of the Jeffries-Johnson fight came to a deadlock over the choice of a referee. It was finally decided to postpone the selection of that official until May 16.

After the elimination of a few "undesirables," the controversy narrowed down to Eddie Graney and Jack Welch of San Francisco and Eddie Smith of Oakland, Johnson insisting on one of the two former, with Sam Berger holding out for Smith.

Johnson's objection to Smith was that Smith gave him the wrong end of a decision in a fight with Hank Griffin in Oakland a few years ago. The negro refused to consider Charlie Eyton of Los Angeles, as he is a fellow-citizen of Jeffries.

While Charlie White of New York, who at one time figured prominently as a possibility, was not even mentioned, the outcome of the controversy is thought to have left the possibilities in favor of the choice of an Eastern man. Johnson is firm in his objection to Smith, and Berger is equally firm in opposing Welch and Graney.

Johnson announced yesterday he would begin training a week from Sunday.

BILL MAY KILL NEW YORK RACING

Albany, N. Y., May 5.—The senate yesterday passed by a vote of 36 to 8 the Agnew-Perkins bill repealing that section of the Percy-Gray law which exempts from liability for punishment for permitting gambling at race tracks, directors who have posted notices declaring that gambling is prohibited and employed accounts to enforce the law.

New York, May 5.—Sporting men said last night that racing will continue in the Metropolitan district for the remainder of the season, and probably in future years, despite the passage yesterday of the anti-oral book making bill, with all indications that it will become a law.

In racing circles little importance is attached to the legislative act, for, unless the measure is changed to provide that it shall become effective immediately, it will not be operative until Sept. 1. By that time, men interested in the sport expect to have the groundwork prepared for test suits while will at least delay the measure's enforcement.

Estimates of the investments in race tracks in this vicinity range as high as $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. Their value would be seriously affected if racing should be abandoned.

WANT SPECIAL SESSION TO PREVENT FIGHT.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 5.—Resolutions calling upon Governor Gillett to call a special session of the legislature to pass a law prohibiting prize fighting in this state, were passed yesterday at the Southern California Congregational convention.

SECOND CHOICE WINS PIMLICO NURSERY.

Pimlico, May 5.—The Pimlico nursery, worth $1,000, went to Stinger, a well played second choice at 3 to 1. Master John, the favorite for the race, had a bad fall while at the barrier and was injured so severely that he will have to be killed. The Chesapeake steeplechase went to Xebec in a pretty race.

DULUTHIANS AT "PENNSY"

Reginald Graham Wins Wrestling Championship at Conference Meet.

Robert D. Smith, Another Duluth Boy, Honored By Senior Class.

Philadelphia, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Reginald Graham, captain of the varsity wrestling team, on Saturday last won the amateur heavyweight championship at the conference meet held at Scranton, Pa. This was welcome news to his many friends, in view of his misfortune in the intercollegiates. At that time he entered the preliminary bout with a broken breast bone, and by dexterous work floored his Columbia opponent in less than a minute. In the finals he rushed his adversary from Princeton off his feet and flopped him heavily upon the floor. Here fortune deserted the Duluth boy and the Princeton man managed to get such a hold upon him as to force his broken bones into the flesh. Despite the pain, however, Graham struggled on, but was quickly pinned to the mat. "Reg" is the champion handicap man, last year having entered the major wrestling meet from the sick bed. During the fall he was practically sure of a place on the football team, when the classroom interfered.

Saturday was the occasion of the annual relay races, which have become as prominent a feature at Pennsylvania as the intercollegiate. Franklin field was the scene of the event. Nearly 1,800 athletes, representing the pick of at least 100,000 school boys and college men, competed before a crowd of some 20,000. In all 222 institutions were represented. Among the larger colleges were Michigan, Yale, Chicago, Cornell, Princeton, Kansas, Missouri, Dartmouth, Columbia, Virginia, Illinois, Syracuse, Lafayette, Carlisle and Amherst.

Pennsylvania won the three relays in which she entered teams, namely, the mile, two-mile and four-mile events. This last event was most hotly contested, but the last red and blue runner, with a burst of speed, crossed the tape over 200 yards ahead of the Michigander and a half lap in advance of the fatigued Dartmouth man.

In the special events the varsity did well enough to warrant strong anticipations for winning the intercollegiates to be held at Franklin field on May 27 and 28.

Robert D. Smith, a son of Chan Smith of Duluth, has recently been made a member of the Wharton school executive committee, as one of the representatives of the senior class. This committee is of especial importance, in that it is the governing body of the Wharton School association, the undergraduate organization. Its membership comprises only students of the greatest influence among the undergraduates. This year half of the committee are members of either the Sphinx or Friars senior societies. The president and president-elect of the association, the president of the senior class and several varsity football, track and crew men are members.

The May day sports were fittingly celebrated in accordance with a time-honored custom. This celebration, peculiar to Pennsylvania, was preceded by a nightshirt parade of undressmen bearing torches of red fire and various noise-producers, and a brass band. After having sufficiently excited staid old Philadelphia, the students collected upon Franklin field, where, under glaring lights, the May king presided over the festivities, which included three well-fought boxing bouts between representatives of the underclassmen, as well as wrestling matches and a tug-of-war. Mike Murphy was on hand to revive the injured. The evening was finally drawn to a close by the trial and burning of certain unpopular professors considered good fuel for the flames

CASS LAKE OPENING.

Senator Clapp Urges the Land Office to Get Busy.

Washington, May 5.—Senator Clapp called at the general land office yesterday to stir up the commissioner about the opening of the cutover lands in the Cass Lake district. The delay is caused by some attorney for the Indians who claims that the swamp land within the area to be opened is not properly classified and that some of it is good timber. Ancthet point that has been raised is that the lands which are to be withdrawn for Indian allottees who had lands on the tract to be opened, are already occupied by homesteaders. Notwithstanding these obstacles the opening at Cass Lake will take place probably the first week in June.

TEN ARE GIVEN FREEDOM FROM MARRIAGE BONDS

Eleven Cases in All Heard on Divorce Day in District Court.

Wife of Oliver Gerow Given Divorce on Ground of Desertion.

It was divorce day in district court.

Out of eleven applications but one was refused by Judge Dibell, who is this term trying to correct the mistakes of the little blind god.

Mary Eastman, who sought a separation from her husband, Edward Eastman, got sadly mixed on the stand, and her application was denied. Eastman did not put in an appearance.

Most of the complaints alleged cruel and inhuman treatment, non-support, infidelity and desertion.

Edith L. McAuley, 35 years old, was granted a divorce from her husband, Angus McAuley, on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. She alleged that he called her vile and indecent names, and that she suffered other forms of abuse. They were married in 1896.

Mary Lucy Lehaie, 40 years old, was granted a decree from her husband, Joseph Lahaie, 53 years old. They were married in Ottawa, Ontario county, Can., in 1888. In May, 1908, she alleges that he deserted her.

James Bolles, 47 years old, was granted a separation from his wife, Louisa Bolles, 45 years old. They were married in Buffalo in 1885. He alleged that she deserted him during the month of September, 1900.

Mrs. Anna Duffy, 46 years old, was granted a divorce from Edward Christopher Duffy, 55 years old. They were married at Norway, Mich. She alleged that her husband had been in a habitual state of drunkenness for more than a year.

Sigidur Bergson, 45 years old, was given a separation from her husband, Paul Bergson. They were married at Radarford, Iceland, in 1885. She claimed desertion and was given the custody of the minor children.

Hilda Zech, 24 years of age, was granted a decree from Albert Zech, 29 years old. They were married in Duluth in 1906 and in November of 1907, she claims, he deserted her.

Maud Monroe, 24, was granted a separation from Floyd Monroe, 32. Desertion was the grounds of the action.

Elizabeth E. Cram, 34, on a charge of desertion was granted a divorce from Charles Duncan Cram, 39.

Mary Gerow, 18 years old, was granted a divorce from Oliver Joseph Gerow, 20. Desertion was the ground. Young Gerow was at the last term of court convicted of deserting a child of tender years, and he was at that time sentenced to one year at Stillwater. Gerow is also said to have another wife at Saginaw, Mich.

Mrs. Anna Kemp claimed desertion and was granted a decree from Walter Kemp, her husband. She is but 19 years old and he is 23.

MARINE NEWS

THREE GRAIN CARGOES TAKEN

General Situation Unchanged and Eastern Demand Is Light.

There is an increase in the grain chartering today, the Admiral, C. W. Kotcher and A. M. Marshall leaving this port with grain for Erie. However, the departure of three vessels today does not mean, according to Duluth grain men and the vessel agents here, that there is going to be an immediate heavy movement of grain from the Head of the Lakes.

The Eastern situation has changed but little from that of two weeks ago, according to grain men here. There is practically no wheat being exported at the present time and little demand for wheat in the East.

There is no better outlook in the flour market. Agents for package freight boats expect little business in flour for some time to come. Eventually, a heavy business is predicted both in wheat and flour; for the present, the Eastern market is overcrowded.

Railroad men this morning held out the hope that there would be an increased movement of package freight from the Head of the Lakes via the lake and rail route, beginning next week. They say there is an increased demand in the East for merchandise and package freight in general.

NEW RECORD FOR QUICK LOADING

Kotcher Takes 227,000 Bushels of Wheat in Two Hours.

When 227,000 bushels of wheat were loaded into the steamer Charles W. Kotcher at Great Northern elevator "S" in two hours 1 st evening all records were broken, as far as quick loading is concerned. The capacity of the boat is 240,000 bushels. The loading was finished in a half hour this morning.

Last fall storage tanks were added to elevator "S" and today it is the most modern of any of the elevators at the Head of the Lakes. Under ordinary circumstances it would require a half day to load this boat at the other elevators. Had the elevator not shut down at 6 o'clock last evening the loading could have been finished in fifteen minutes, it is said.

The Charles W. Kotcher has a cargo of No. 1 durum wheat. The grain is consigned to Tiffin, Ohio, for export trade.

BIGGEST NEW BOATS ON LAKE

Ninety-Two Vessels Added to the Merchant Marine in April.

Washington, May 5.—Ninety-two sail and steam vessels were added to the merchant marine of the United States during April, according to the department of commerce and labor.

Nine of these vessels were built of steel and their total tonnage aggregates 29,125 tons. The other eighty-three ships, mostly tugs and other small vessels, were of wooden construction and aggregated 3,972 tons instead of 3,080.

The largest vessels were built on the Great Lakes and were the steamer Charles L. Hutchinson, of 6,377 tons, constructed at Lorain, Ohio, and the Harry Yates, of 6,777 tons, made at St. Clair, Mich.

RUMORS OF NEW VESSEL LINE

Canadian Northern Boats May Run to the Head of the Lakes.

It is reported here today that the Canadian Northern Railway company will place in commission some time the present summer a handsome freight and passenger boat that will visit the Head of the Lakes.

Like its great Canadian rival, the Canadian Pacific Railway company, the Canadian Northern has gone into the steamship business. The story that is given credence here is that the Canadian Northern has ordered several large boats for the Great Lakes trade.

These boats, it is said, will carry freight between Montreal points and points on the Great Lakes.

Railroad and vesselmen who have followed the policy of the Canadian Northern and who are aware of the interests of that road at this point, profess not to be in the least surprised at the reported move of the railroad.

In connection with its rail connections here, the establishment of the boat service would be a distinct advantage to the Canadian Northern.

MILLION TONS OF ORE MOVED DURING APRIL.

Reports received at Cleveland of the ore receipts of the various docks of the Great Lakes, state that about 1,000,000 tons of ore were carried down the lakes during the month of April Of this amount the Steel company carried over half.

The independent companies are shipping steadily. From Cleveland also comes the statement that there will be a very heavy freight movement the present month, if the Soo blockade is cleared.

LUMBER SHIPMENTS WILL BE HEAVY.

The Virginia & Rainy Lake Lumber company has completed arrangements for the shipment of about 1,000,000 feet of lumber. This lumber will be shipped to Eastern markets by the lake route, and it is expected to make some activity in lumber chartering.

The Virginia & Rainy Lake company has cut an immense amount of lumber the past winter at Virginia and West Duluth and it is now ready for delivery. Much of this lumber will be shipped in the boats owned by the company.

NEW BOAT WILL GO INTO COMMISSION.

The Octorara of the Western Navigation company is scheduled to be placed in regular service next Saturday. This boat is a sister ship of the Tionesta and Juniata and will make regular trips to this port.

Port of Duluth.

Arrivals: J. L. Weeks, Constitution, James Dunham, McKinney, coal; Muncy, Delaware, Gratwick, merchandise; Bunsen, Jenny, Mataafa, Rochester, light for ore.

Departures: Maruba, Edenborn, Curry, Carrington, L. C. Hanna, W. S. Mack, Mariska, ore; Admiral, C. W. Kotcher, A. M. Marshall, grain; Prentice, light; Hamonic, merchandise.

PIG IRON PLANTS AND MINES SOLD

English Syndicate Buys Lake Superior Iron and Chemical Company.

Ashland, Wis., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arrangements have been nearly completed for the sale of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical company to an English syndicate. The present company has a capitalization of $8,000,000 and includes pig iron plants at Ashland, Bay City, Elk Rapids, Manistique, Newberry and Chocolay, Michigan.

The Ashland plant includes a large wood alcohol and chemical plant, and the deal also covers the Yale mine of Bessemer and the Tyler's Forks mine of Plummer.

Experts have been examining the mines and the six plants comprising the present syndicate for a month. It is understood that the purchasers are not connected with the United States Steel corporation, but are mainly composed of British capitalists. The central office of the old company is in Detroit.

MASSACHUSETTS IS AGAINST INCOME TAX.

Boston, Mass., May 5.—The income tax resolution was killed in the lower branch of the legislature yesterday by 102 to 126 on the question of substituting it for an adverse report of a committee.

Passes "Uniform Divorce" Bill.

Albany, N. Y., May 5.—The assembly yesterday passed without dissent the "uniform divorce" bill. It provides for a broader recognition of divorces granted by other states and for substitute service in divorce actions.

UNFINISHED BUSINES.

To the Common Council:

Your committee on Streets, Alleys and Sidewalks, to which was referred award of contracts, having considered the same, recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

W. S. MOORE,
JNO. HOGAN,
J. A. MacDONELL,
Committee.

Resolved, That contracts awarded by the Board of Public Works are hereby approved as follows:

To W. H. Kilton, for cement walks west of One Hundred Nineteenth avenue west, and between the east line of Twelfth avenue west and One Hundred Nineteenth avenue west.

To D. H. Clough, for cement walks east of the east line of Twelfth avenue west.

To Thomson & Stewart, for cement walks on Park Point.

To W. H. Kilton for the construction of plank walks.

Alderman MacDonell moved the adoption of the resolution, and it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

Passed May 2, 1910.
Approved May 4, 1910.

The ordinance submitted by Alderman Shartel entitled "An ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance to regulate the construction, alteration, repair, removal and inspection of buildings within the corporate limits of the city of Duluth, the protection of the lives of persons therein, and the protection of property against fire,' passed Jan. 3, 1906, as amended," was read.

Alderman Shartel moved the adoption of the ordinance and it was declared adopted by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

The report submitted by the committee on Streets, Alleys and Sidewalks declaring the necessity and directing the condemnation of an easement for slopes and retaining walls for cuts and fills from Raleigh street to Main street on lots abutting on Forty-sixth and Fifty-eighth avenue west, was read.

Alderman Moore moved the adoption of the resolution. An opportunity was offered for anyone to be heard relative to the taking of the easement in question, and no one appeared in opposition thereto.

On motion of Alderman Getchell action on the resolution was postponed for one week by a unanimous yea vote of all present, on roll call.

By Alderman Shartel:

Whereas, by resolution adopted by this council Oct. 4, 1909, the sum of $2,000 was provided for the fire department fund to allow of one day off in each seven days for the firemen, after July 1, 1910, and

Whereas, by resolution of this council adopted Dec. 27, 1909, the city treasurer was directed to transfer the full amount provided for the fire department fund to be transferred from the general fund, to be so transferred when there was sufficient money in the general fund to accomplish such transfer, together with the other transfers to be made from such fund; and

Whereas, it now appears questionable whether the board of fire commissioners will use said fund for the purposes for which it was provided; and

Whereas, said amount has not yet been transferred by the city treasurer, therefore,

Resolved, that the city treasurer is hereby directed to not make such transfer of $2,000, being part of the $17,000 ordered transferred by resolution of Dec. 27, 1909, until he receives further orders from this council so to do.

Alderman Shartel moved the adoption of the resolution.

Alderman Moore moved that action on the resolution be postponed for one week and that the committee of the council on fire department be directed to confer with the board of fire commissioners relative to the question of granting firemen one day off in seven, and that said committee is hereby instructed to secure, if possible, from the board of fire commissioners the granting of one day off in seven for all firemen. The motion was declared adopted upon the following vote:

Duluth Board of Trade, May 5.—In a light trading market May wheat advanced ⅝c, July, ⅝c and September wheat, ¼c today. There was practically no pressure to the market and values responded to the slightest buying. Offerings were light. May wheat opened at $1.10½, and sold up to $1.11, $1.10⅞ and closed $1.10⅞ bid. July opened at $1.09⅜ bid, sold at $1.10, $1.10⅝, $1.10⅝-½, $1.10⅝ and closed $1.10⅝ bid. The September option was $1.02 bid without trading. July was the more active of the two leading months.

Flax was dull and listless. May was $2.38¼ bid, sold at $2.40 and then at $2.38, closing at $2.38. July sold at $2.33 and $2.33¼, closing with offers at $2.33. July was $1.76 bid and sold at $1.76½, offers being made at this price at the close. September sold at $1.67⅛ and closed with bids at $1.67½.

Cash wheat equalled May: durum was ½c up; and barley and rye closed unchanged. Oats closed ⅝c up.

Trading was light and interest dull. There was little news of importance that had not already appeared and traders were disposed to hold aloof. The undertone was strong although around mid-day an element of weakness developed, not of sufficient importance, however, to be significant. The market appeared to be a trading affair and probably will continue in that aspect until the government's report on the acreage and conditions of wheat May 1, is issued Monday.

The cash situation was dull, chiefly because there was no cash wheat in the market. Several buyers were prepared to offer good premiums, but there was no stuff available. Owing to fairly light stocks the cash situation would be exceedingly strong on the development of any important inquiry.

Although cables were lower, there was very little stuff offered at the opening. Wheat was difficult to obtain and values firmed on the slightest buying. On the upturn there was some short covering and a few longs bought back at a small profit the stuff they sold yesterday. The activity of the market was featureless and there was no defined character to the trading.

The Ohio crop report was regarded with favor by the bulls although some had expected it to be more drastic. It indicated the condition of wheat in that state at 85 per cent May 1, compared with 88 per cent last month. The report induced scattered buying.

Reports of crop damage came in as usual in large numbers. Although there is a disposition on the part of traders to discount the claims, yet the messages are so insistent that their general tenor cannot be regarded lightly. Several towns in North and South Dakota wired that rain is needed; one report claimed that the wheat has been killed and will be resown. The last message was not credited as the trade generally believes that practically no damage has been done to the North western plant.

The bulls got no encouragement from abroad, although they commented on the fact that Russian and Argentine shipments are small and that the outlook this week is for a decrease in shipments from the South American republic. The foreign markets, however, could not stand up under the weakness yesterday in America and in Winnipeg. Crop conditions abroad are excellent.

The oats market has followed the trend of the wheat market generally, except on the extreme bulges. Many traders believe it to be oversold and in a condition for a rally if wheat retains its strength. The Eastern demand continues moderately active. Receipts have been fair but lighter arrivals are expected.

MARKET GOSSIP

Price Current said: "Variable climatic conditions past week. Winter wheat retarded in progress. Some damage reports from Illinois and Indiana. More rain needed. Delays in corn planting being overcome. Oats doing well. General situation not greatly changed."

C. A. King, Toledo, wired: "Ohio May wheat condition, 85 per cent; April, 83 per cent; last May, 66 per cent; July, 77 per cent. Crop last year 20,000,000 bu. Damage by insects, 2 per cent. Oats acreage 98 per cent, compared with last year when crop was 52,000,000 bu."

* * *

Clearances: Wheat, 190,000 bu; flour, 13,000 bls; corn, 12,000 bu; oats, none; wheat and flour, 250,000 bu.

The Burlington's crop report made conditions of Nebraska crop 57 and says wheat is in a serious condition.

* * *

Minneapolis wired—"Millers are paying 3½c over for choice wheat. Not much on market. Demand for other grades good."

* * *

Cash wheat at St. Louis was 1½ to2c higher.

Primaries: Wheat receipts — 223,000 bu; last year, 233,000 bu; shipments, 116,000 bu; last year, 637,000 bu. Corn receipts—255,000 bu; last year, 285,000; shipments, 876,000 bu; last year, 441,000 bu.

"Reports indicate that the hot dry winds and general droughty conditions, following so closely after the severe freezing weather are affecting the grass and small grain crops," said the weekly Iowa weather and crop report. "This applies to the Western districts where the drouth has been the most severe. But for the state at large, those crops are in good condition generally. Rain is, however, needed in all districts to soften the surface soil and to start the growth of the plants, the late varieties of fruit seem to have escaped serious damage from the recent freezing temperature, and garden truck is recovering under the effect of warm weather. Practically all of the corn ground is ready for the planter, and planting will become general during the coming week. The season is still far in advance of the average and the general crop outlook is very promising."

A amusing series of transactions with a farmers' elevator company and more than a dozen firms on the board has come to light. The elevator company sold about 150,000 bu of durum for cash to arrive, instead of trading wheat to arrive, for September or in the distant option. Consequently the elevator had no margins to put up. The sales were distributed among the various firms who, of course, are about fifteen firms who, of course, are about fifteen firms who, of course, are about fifteen

GRAVE FEAR IS FELT OVER CONDITION OF EDWARD OF ENGLAND

Bronchial Trouble Is Made More Serious By His Weak Heart.

London Practically at a Standstill in Shock of the News.

Visitors to Buckingham Palace Report King's Condition Serious.

London, May 6.—A bulletin issued this afternoon by the king's physicians says, that his majesty's symptoms became worse during the day, and that the king's condition is now critical.

London, May 6.—"Well, it is all over, but I think I have done my duty." These words fell from the lips of King Edward VII in a waking interval late this afternoon.

London, May 6.—An atmosphere of great depression surrounds Buckingham palace today. A bulletin describing the king's condition, and which five eminent physicians now in attendance issued shortly before noon, while vague in terms, inspired profound gloom throughout the city. It was generally construed to mean that the outlook is not at all favorable.

The suddenness of the transition from yesterday morning, when the king was receiving politicians, to the present, when it is believed he is critically ill has shocked the country. For the moment business and politics are at a standstill.

The prince of Wales arrived at the palace at 10 o'clock this morning and entered almost unobserved.

In addition to the three physicians who were in attendance throughout the night and are now spending the day at the palace, Sir Francis Laking, Sir James Reid and Sir Richard Douglas Powell, the specialist, there were summoned this morning Dr. Bertrand Dawson and Dr. St. Clair Thomson. All of the medical party remained within call of the sick chamber.

Bronchial Tubes Affected.

TOM L. JOHNSON HITS CAMERA MAN

Ex-Mayor of Cleveland Has Tussle With Photographer in New York.

New York, May 6.—Tom L. Johnson, ex-mayor of Cleveland, is resting here today after his return last night from Europe on the Mauretania. Mr. Johnson had a brief but exciting tussle with a newspaper photographer at the pier. The photographer tried to take a photograph of the former mayor and the flashlight exploded almost in Mr. Johnson's ear. Angered, he smashed the photographer's hat over his head and dashed his camera from his hands.

"I shall stay in New York a few days, and then go on to Cleveland," said Mr. Johnson. "I went away a sick man. I am a good deal better than I was, although I have not recovered entirely."

"Are you out of politics?" he was asked.

"I am in politics until I die," was the answer.

INSURGENTS WILL FIGHT

Refuse to Be Influenced By Taft's Support of Senate Regulars.

Railroad Bill Questions Are Far From Settled in That House.

Washington, May 6.—President Taft today cancelled his engagement to go to Brooklyn, N. Y., May 12, to attend the launching of the battleship Florida and a banquet at night by the employes of the Brooklyn navy yard.

This action was taken that the president may be in Washington next week during the final vote in the senate on the railroad bill. He was advised that he ought not to be away from the capitol at such a critical time.

Insurgents Will Fight.

Washington, May 6.—Insurgent senators say they do not intend to be swerved from their course on the railroad bill, no matter what tactics are pursued by the conservative Republicans. Announcement of this unyielding stand was made by Senator Cummins of Iowa. It was uttered in the presence of several of his progressive associates.

For three days the insurgents have

EIGHT DEAD ARE REMOVED

One Hundred and Forty More Are Thought to Be in Alabama Mine.

Greater Number of the Victims of Disaster Are Negroes.

Palos, Ala., May 6.—Eight bodies were removed shortly after daylight today from the ill-fated mine No. 3 of the Palos Coal & Coke company, where between 100 and 150 miners were entrapped by an explosion yesterday afternoon. The condition of the bodies indicated that death was instantaneous and the opinion was expressed that no others would be found alive.

After the removal of the eight bodies, it was found necessary to send a force of miners into the workings to strengthen the brattice and to prevent cave-ins, which were frequent during the night. This, and the presence of after-damp, delayed the work of rescue for several hours.

In the meantime the dead had been removed to a temporary morge near the workings, and were slowly identified. Several of the bodies were badly lacerated, and all were burned about the head and upper part of the body.

Assistant Foreman Killed.

Among those identified was C. H. Stansberry, assistant mine foreman.

Among the dead in the mine is said

MORE BUILDING DONE IN APRIL

Eight Per Cent Increase Over That for Same Month Last Year.

Chicago, May 6.—Building operations throughout the United States during April show an increase of 8 per cent over the corresponding month a year ago. According to official reports from forty-seven cities to the Construction News, permits were taken out for 19,311 buildings to cost $69,301,489, against 18,338 buildings aggregating $64,345,553 a year ago.

The figures give evidence of a decided revival in the South, notably San Antonio, with an increase of 168 per cent, Richmond 548, New Orleans, 28, Birmingham 34, Dallas 28, Memphis 12, and Louisville 8 per cent.

ARMED MEN HUNT INDIAN OUTLAW

Think Slayer of Sheriff Has Other Red Men About Him.

Lakeport, Cal. May 5.—Posses armed with shotguns and using dogs to trail their quarry have surrounded Scotts valley, where an unidentified Indian, who yesterday shot and killed Sheriff George Kemp of Lake county, is believed to be hiding. The fugitive is thought to have a number of companions with him, and as all are reported armed, a pitched battle is anticipated when the hunters close in on them.

The killing of the sheriff occurred in the valley eight miles from this place. Kemp was trying to arrest the Indian, who was charged with the theft of a saddle.

DANGER OF STRIKE OVER

Fear of Labor Trouble in Michigan Copper Country Is Ended.

American and Cornish Miners Hold Aloof From Western Federation.

Houghton, Mich., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—All danger of the strike of the mine workers that has been feared in the Michigan Copper country has passed, it now seems, as the miners realize that they have no real grievance against the mining companies, and that this is an inopportune time to walk out. There are nearly 18,000 mine workers in this district, although the rumored strike probably would not have affected more than 5,000. Western Federation of Miners' organizers have been working in this territory for some time in an effort to organize the men, but so far have been able to enlist the sympathies of only the aliens, principally Finnish and Austrian. The American and Cornish miners generally are not in favor of organizing and affiliating with the federation, and it is unlikely that the organization of locals here by the federation would cause a rupture among the miners themselves. The American and Cornish miners, who number practically

FEAR VIOLENCE IN MINE TOWNS

Two Companies of Militia Are Called Out in Illinois.

Danville, Ill., May 6.—Two companies of state militia and a number of deputies under Sheriff Helmick on the scene have not dispelled the fears as to the outcome of the day in Westville, five miles from here, where several hundred foreign miners have been troublesome for the last three days. The saloons in Westville, which have been closed for two years, reopen today. Westville went "wet" at the last election, and this is the date set for the resumption of the sale of liquor. What the miners will attempt should they get to drinking is causing the sheriff to worry.

Trouble in Indiana.

The miners have declared that some time during the day they would march in a body to Catlin, about five miles from Westville. Should this demonstration be peaceable no attempt will be made to interfere with them, but riotousness will be checked.

Information of trouble in Indiana came by telephone this morning from Clinton, Ind., where 200 miners marched on the Crown Hill and Buckeye mines and threatened forty pump and repair men. Assistance was asked of the chief of police of Clinton, who sent men to the mines.

NOTED NAVAL HERO IS DEAD

Rear Admiral McCalla's Death Reported From Santa Barbara.

Had Won Honors in Civil and Spanish Wars and Chinese Troubles.

Washington, May 6.—High naval officers in Washington, many of them close friends, were shocked today when they learned of the sudden death of Rear Admiral Bowman Hendry McCalla at Santa Barbara, Cal., and were unanimous in their expressions of sorrow and praise of the dead officer.

Rear Admiral McCalla was born at Camden, N. J., in 1844, entering the navy in 1861. His services during almost thirty-nine years of active duty in all parts of the world were marked by conspicuous acts. The most brilliant achievements of the dead officer were in connection with the war with Spain and the Pekin relief column, for which he received signal recognition in the shape of a congressional medal for distinguished service in battle and also international acknowledgment of his labor through the bestowal upon him of the Order of the Red Eagle by the German emperor and the Chinese war medal by the king of England. All of this was on the top of the excellent record in the Civil war. Admiral McCalla was made a member of the Loyal Legion and decorated in other respects and advanced in rank in the navy.

His last active service in the navy was as commandant of the naval training station at Mare Island, Cal., and of the navy yard there, and he retired June 19, 1906. For some time he had been living quietly in Southern California with his family.

TWO YOUNG LIVES ARE SACRIFICED

Child Playing With Matches in Upper Peninsula Causes Fatal Fire.

Marquette, Mich., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire caused by an older child playing with matches resulted in the loss of two lives at Deimling, east of here, yesterday.

The home of Matt Servis was destroyed, and a 3-year-old girl and an infant were burned to death. The parents were absent.

BIG BRUSH FIRES ARE RAGING IN THE KOOTENAY.

Winnipeg, Man., May 6.—Tremendous bush fires are raging in the Kootenay district of British Columbia. The Kootenay Saingle company telegraphed to the government agent to send 200 men to fight the flames and a rescue party left by special train last night. Many lives are in danger.

Glavis' Attorney Rouses the Secretary's Anger By His Questions.

Letter From Taft Referring to Pinchot Is Read at Hearing.

Washington, May 6.—Secretary Ballinger and Attorney Brandeis resumed their duel of wits at the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation today. Their first encounter yesterday afternoon was so brief in duration as scarcely to afford a test of strength.

Mr. Brandeis has already succeeded in rousing the anger of his antagonist, and some lively passages between them when they get into the thick of the fray are anticipated.

Secretary Ballinger concluded his direct testimony yesterday afternoon with the statement that his every official act had been with the sole idea of fulfilling his trust.

"I defy anyone to put his finger on anything that I have done while in the public service which was not in line with my duty and in accordance with my trust," he said.

Started Right Off.

As though in acceptance of the challenge, Attorney Brandeis, counsel for L. R. Glavis, one of Ballinger's chief

WAYMAN SAYS SOLON CONFESSED

Declares White Is Not the Only One Who Admits Taking Bribe.

Chicago, May 6.—That a Democratic legislator other than Charles A. White has confessed to the acceptance of a bribe was confirmed by States Attorney Wayman today. According to Mr. Wayman, the new confession corroborates White on the following points:

First, that each received $1,000 for one act.

Second, that each received $900 at another time.

Third, that each was called to the Southern Hotel, St. Louis, where an alleged "jackpot" was distributed.

The states' attorney said that one indictment against a Democratic representative will be voted and probably be returned before Judge Kersten today.

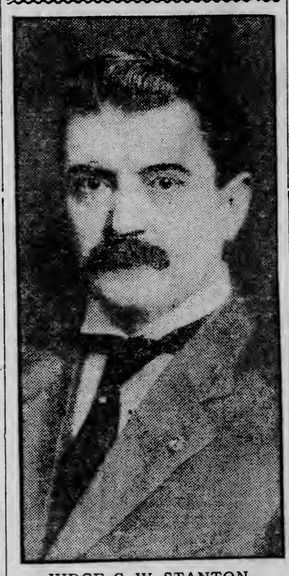
Hope to Stir Consciences.

The publicity of the second confession was determined upon by members of the grand jury, who are said to believe that the news might move legislators to unburden their consciences.

It is said that the grand jury has considered indictments for perjury in certain cases, and word came forth in a veiled but apparently authoritative manner that should any witnesses who have been before the jury wish to change their testimony they need not fear the perjury charge.

STATE'S LAND POLICY IS FORCING SETTLERS TO QUIT HOMESTEADS

DENOUNCES THE LAND POLICY OF THE STATE



JUDGE C. W. STANTON.

Why the Population of Koochiching County Is Steadily Decreasing.

Due to State Refusing to Share Burdens of Pioneers.

Judge Stanton Urges People of Northern Minnesota to Agitate Change.

Big Falls, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fact that the population of Koochiching county is steadily decreasing and the homesteaders are leaving this part of the country was made the subject of one of the strongest denunciations ever uttered against Minnesota's state land policy, by C. W. Stanton of Bemidji, judge of the Fifteenth district, this afternoon before a meeting of the Koochiching County Development association at Big Falls. A movement was started by the judge's speech which, it was predicted by members of the Northern Minnesota Development association, will materially affect the resolutions to be adopted by the development congress at Crookston, June 1, 2 and 3, and the legislation to be enacted by the state lawmakers next winter.

Judge Stanton did not mince matters in openly speaking of the declining population of this county, declaring that he believed it better to face the issue than to indulge in flattering remarks. The judge laid the lack of roads, schools, churches and society to

COSTA RICAN TOWN RAZED

Earthquakes Destroy Cartago and Hundreds Are Reported Dead.

Other Cities Also Suffer From Shocks---Bodies of 400 Persons Are Found.

San Juan del Sur, Nicaragua, May 6.—Refugees arriving at San Jose bring further news of the devastation wrought by the series of earth shocks in the province of Cartago, Costa Rica, during Wednesday night. Cartago is said to have been practically destroyed, but the estimates of the dead and injured are conflicting. It is agreed that the first report of 500 fatalities was conservative.

The finest structures of the town are in ruins. Among them was the Palace of Justice, erected by Andrew Carnegie's gift of $100,000. It is believed that Dr. Bocanegra, the Guatemalan magistrate to the Central American arbitration court, was killed, and his wife and child are also said to have perished.

According to reports received here from San Jose, the refugees say that communication between Cartago with outside points has been interrupted and much damage has been done along the railway line leading to Port Limon. The shocks threw the inhabitants into a panic. The authorities, however, kept their heads, and, martial law being declared, promptly began the work of rescue. Some 400 bodies have been taken from the ruins, and the injured will add several hundred to the total casualties. The injured are being brought to Costa Rica.

Other Towns Suffer.

Panama, May 6.—Advices received here from the province of Cartago, in Costa Rica, state that the earthquake

ANCHOR DROWNS SUPERIOR MAN

Falls Into Boat and Carries Joseph Leiby to Death in Lake.

Grand Marais, Minn., May 6. — (By United Wireless to The Herald.)—An anchor fell from the barge Limited at 10 o'clock this morning and crashed through a row boat carrying with it Joseph Leiby, who was untangling lines which had become fouled. Leiby and the anchor went to the bottom of the lake and when he was untangled from the lines a few minutes later life was extinct. The body will be sent to Leiby's former home, Superior.

The boat belongs to Whitney Bros. of Superior. It was loading supplies at Red Cliff and the anchor became dislodged from the stern of the boat. It fell into the row boat, where Leiby, a deck hand, was at work. He had been advised to keep from under the anchor, but it is said that he disregarded the warning. The anchor struck the small craft and tore a hole in its bottom, practically demolishing it. Leiby, the anchor and the lines which Leiby was untangling went down together.

Boats were put of from the barge and Leiby's body was quickly brought to the surface with grappling hooks. Efforts to resuscitate him were unavailing.

KILLS HERSELF IN MAN'S ROOM

Former Houghton Woman Swallows Acid While in House in Butte.

Butte, Mont., May 6.—Mrs. Minnie Williams, aged 19, married, last night committed suicide by swallowing acid in the room of a strange man. A note was found reading:

"Good bye, love. I love you and baby; sealed with kisses."

The man is now being sought by the police.

Her husband, Anthony Williams, stoutly maintains that his wife was murdered by acid being forced down her throat. The couple came here recently from Houghton, Mich.

BIG CUT IN ESTIMATES

Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill Is Introduced in the House.

River and Harbor Work Is Given $8,051,000 for the Next Year.

Washington, May 6.—The sundry civil appropriation, the second largest of all the appropriation bills and carrying a total of $111,849,211, was reported to the house today by Representative Tawney of Minnesota, chairman of the committee on appropriations. The total represents a cut of $16,650,000 from the estimates submitted to the committee, and is more than $20,000,000 less than the sundry civil bill carried for the current fiscal year.

Of the grand total, the largest single item is $37,859,890 for the continuation of the construction of the Panama canal. This sum is reimburseable to the treasury from the sale of bonds.

The bill carries appropriations for practically all branches of the government service, including large estimates for the District of Columbia.

Largest of the Items.

Some of the larger items are as follows:

For public buildings, $6,145,000.

Life saving service, $2,362,000.

Current expenses of the revenue cutter service, $2,288,000.

Engraving and printing, $3,118,000.

Pay of janitors of public buildings, $2,400,000.

Fuel, lights and water for public buildings, $1,550,000.

Public health and marine hospitals service, $1,604,000.

Interstate commerce commission, $1,360,000.

Armories and arsenals, $501,000.

Barracks and quarters, including sea coast artillery, $400,000.

Sea coast artillery in the Philippines and Hawaii, $375,000.

Expenses of White House, $78,000.

For Rivers and Harbors.

Rivers and harbors improvements under contract $8,051,000.

For protecting the harbor of New York from injurious deposits, $100,000.

Artificial limbs, $105,000.

Public lands, $1,141,000; surveying

LARGE MORTGAGE FILED.

Iron Company Will Retire Bonds and Improve Property.

There was filed with the register of deeds yesterday a first and refunding mortgage of $8,000,000 running from the Rogers-Brown Iron company to the Bankers' Trust company of New York as trustee.

The money received will be used to retire several million dollars worth of bonds which were originally issued by companies now united with the Buffalo and Susquehanna Iron company, and to develop the mining properties which are located but a short distance from Hibbing.

The mortgage is one of the largest ever filed in the local office.

THREE NEW DEPOTS WILL BE CONSTRUCTED.

Lidgerwood, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern railroad will spend about $50,000 in Richland county this year for new depots. Wahpeton, Lidgerwod and Hankinson being the cities selected in which improvements are to be made. The depot at Wahpeton will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000, while those in Hankinson and Lidgerwood will each cost about $5,000.

CENSUS HAS BEEN TAKEN

Books Are Being Prepared for Shipment to Bureau at Washington.

District Supervisor Satisfied With Results of Work in Duluth.

The books of the census of Duluth will be sent to Washington tomorrow and it is expected the results will be given out in about a month. In the meantime, Duluthians will sit anxiously by and guess. The local officials are giving out no information and guess at the figures is all anybody can do.

Today District Supervisor Hollister and City Supervisor Allen are checking over the accounts and making out the enumerators' vouchers. A force of clerks is at work entering in the portfolios the names of those who have sent the information on themselves and their families in by mail during the past few days. It is expected the work will be completed tonight and the books will be packed and shipped tomorrow.

District Supervisor Hollister will leave tonight for Aitkin and he will direct the completion of the work in the outside districts from there. During the time the census was being taken in Duluth he received reports on the outside districts here and he says the work is going along well. Duluth being the only city in the district in which the government regulations required the completion of the work in two weeks, Mr. Hollister felt that his presence was required here to assist the city supervisor in directing the work and he changed his headquarters for the time.

In the other parts of the district, the enumerators have until May 15 to complete their work. Some of the districts have already been completed, but in others the enumerators will need all of the time given them by the rules of the census.

Although he can give out no figures to show the basis of his opinion, Mr. Hollister is well pleased with the results of the census.

"I believe we have missed very few people in Duluth," he said this morning. "We have tried to cover the city thoroughly, have been aided greatly by the public and by the various agencies that have been interested in the work and I am sure that when the results are published, people will be satisfied that we have done our work well."

FARMERS MAY UNITE ORDERS

Big Consolidatian of Organizations Is Planned at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., May 6. — Executive sessions of the different farmers' organizations which have been held here each day this week are expected to end in the consolidation of all orders. Officers of the American Society of Equity and the Farmers' Educational & Co-operative union admitted today they are trying to have one general organization.

The Opulento.

MONTRAILL DEMOCRATS PLAN AN ORGANIZATION.

Stanley, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of the Democrats of Mountraill county here tomorrow, the organization of a county central committee will be effected. The Republicans recently organized here and the Democrats propose to follow suit. Mountraill is one of the newly created counties in North Dakota, and the county committee that is to be organized will be made up of precinct committeemen who were formerly members of the Ward county central committee.

Lisbon, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Progressive Republicans, taking no chances on meeting defeat in this county, have organized a local committee. In addition to working for the election of the state ticket, the local committee also has launched a county ticket made up of Progressive Republicans.

Deerwood Council Licenses Saloons.

Deerwood, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council Tuesday passed an ordinance licensing malt shops at $500 per year. The council also purchased a 32-inch fire bell.

A petition is being circulated asking Mr. and Mrs. Cuyler Adams to donate the land immediately north of Harry Patterson's place to the village for park purposes and to be named Adams park.

TRAINMEN FAVORED BY THE ARBITRATORS.

New York, May 6.—Approximately 6,000 trainmen and conductors employed on the lines of the New York Central railroad east of Buffalo will receive substantial wage increases by a decision rendered by E. E. Clarke, and R. H. Morrissey, arbitrators in the controversy between the railroads and its employes. The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and its employes, and the Delaware & Hudson and its employes are likewise bound by the ruling which, broadly speaking, takes the recent Baltimore & Ohio settlement as a basis. It takes effect as from April 1.

IS DENIED A DIVORCE

Judge Refuses to Sever Marriage Bonds for Michael Lutz.

Wife Claims That Her Husband Taught Her to Drink.

Michael Lutz was this afternoon denied a divorce from his wife, Elsie Lutz, by Judge Dibell of the district court.

The case has been on since yesterday. Mrs. Lutz denied the charges of habitual drunkenness and as a counter charge, accused her husband of cruel and inhuman treatment.

In his complaint, Lutz claimed that for some years his wife has been in the habit of drinking to excess. He claimed that many nights when he came home he found his wife in a state of intoxication. The complaint also states that Mrs. Lutz called him vile and indecent names and that she on numerous occasions struck him.

Mrs. Lutz fought the case. She denied that she drank more than was good for her. She said that her husband got her into the habit of drinking by having beer sent to the house by the keg. She said that there was always beer in the house. She claimed on the stand that she did her own work, always had the meals on time, mended his clothes and kept the house generally in good order. She said further that he had told her he was "tired of her homely mug" and that he would tear loose some time and cut her heart out." She denied that she frequented saloons for the purpose of getting beer.

Miss Freda Brown, who boarded at the Lutz home, said that she had many times seen Mrs. Lutz drunk.

Judge Dibell in refusing the decree stated that the conditions were unfortunate but for the present, at least, the principals to the action should work out their own troubles.

Dora Asher was granted a decree from her husband, Dell Asher, on the grounds of desertion. Rebecca Freeborn alleged desertion of her husband, James Freeborn, and she too was granted a divorce by the court.

Grand Forks Couple To Wed.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is announced that W G. Smith and Mrs. Josephine Anderson, pioneer residents, will wed. Mrs. Anderson is the widow of one of Grand Forks' early residents, W J Anderson, who, at the time of his death, was an auditor in the postoffice department at Washington. The wedding takes place in Portland, Ore.

shocks of Wednesday night caused much suffering not only in Cartago but in the towns along the railroad line from Cartago to Port Limon. San Jose, so far as known here, did not suffer greatly.

The reports agree that many persons were killed or injured at Cartago and a portion of the place wiped out.

Are Many Victims.

New York, May 6.—Dr. Juan Ulloa, consul general of Costa Rica to the United States, received today the following cablegram from the minister of foreign affairs, Senor Ricardo Fernandez, at San Jose:

"Earthquake last night destroyed Cartago. There are many victims. Other nearby cities have escaped without loss of life."

Has 10,000 Population.

Cartago, capital of Cartago province, lies at the foot of Irazu volcano, about fourteen miles from San Jose. It has an estimated population of 10,000 and is the seat of the Central American peace congress, for which Andrew Carnegie donated a large sum.

Cartago was the capital of the country until 1823. It has suffered frequently from earthquakes, and was partly destroyed in 1732, 1803, 1825, 1841, 1851 and 1854. On April 13 last, a series of earthquakes, varying in intensity, swept over Costa Rica, doing considerable damage, but practically without loss of life. San Jose suffered most severely, while both Cartago and Port Limon felt the force of the disturbances.

CONFESSES TO MURDER

Albert D. Balzerak Admits Killing Woodsmen at Rhinelander, Wis.

Recognized and Arrested While Serving Free Lunch in Saloon.

Unnerved by the banging of the iron door behind him and the sight of steel bars on four sides of him, Albert D. Balzerak broke down in police headquarters last night and confessed the murder of John Reilly, a woodsman, on a homestead near Rhinelander, Wis., about last Christmas.

Balzerak shot Reilly through the heart with a shotgun following a quarrel during the celebration of the birth of a child to Mrs. Balzerak. Escaping to the woods he was a fugitive until 6 o'clock last evening, when he was arrested by Patrolmen McDermott and Wanvick in the saloon at 419 West

ALBERT D. BALZERAK.

Michigan street, where he was serving the "free lunch." His identity was disclosed by the police by Charles Hanson, a resident of Rhinelander, who recognized him during the day.

Balzerak stoutly denied under the closest questioning that he was the man wanted. He swore that the officers had the wrong man, that he knew nothing of the murder on the homestead, and that he was in a different section of the country at the time Reilly was shot.

Not until he had been led to the cell room did he break down. As soon as he was locked up beyond hope of escape did he change. The steel cage stole his nerve and he called the officers back. "You've got me now and I might as well tell the truth," he told the jailers.

Leading him back to the detectives' room the policemen listened to his story, asking a question now and then to make clearer some of the details. Once started, Balzerak told all from start to finish.

Murder Follows Christening.

Explaining that it is a Polish custom to have a grand christening when a babe is born, he described the scene at the home of his father-in-law, where he was employed the first part of last winter. The affair took place about a week after the baby's birth, on a Sunday.

The house was filled with guests from the nearby homesteads and beer flowed freely. Balzerak stated that his father-in-law, somewhat under the influence of liquor, approached him with the statement that he wouldn't get any of his farm, as he was going to leave it all to his little grandson, whose birth they were celebrating. He claimed that when he asked the old man to be quiet and tried to induce him to take a seat, Reilly interfered, pushing him to one side and shoving the young mother against the hot stove.

Balzerak said that he remonstrated with Reilly, saying that he didn't want to have trouble with him as he was too big. Whereupon he asserted that Reilly threw him out of the house.

Fired Through Window.

Angered beyond control, his brain heated by the beer he had drunk, he sought the shotgun kept in the shed to kill rabbits, he continued. Crawling up to the window of the big room in which the party was making merry, he waited until Reilly came into plain view. Taking careful aim through the window pane, he pulled the trigger, riddling Reilly's chest with buckshot and penetrating the heart, killing him instantly.

Balzerak stated that he ran into the woods, where he hid for two days and slept in the snow without food or shelter. Becoming desperate, he went into Rhinelander, where he secured a meal and got work without being recognized. He claims that he labored in the woods near Red Lake two months, after which he went to the range, where he stayed until about a month ago, when he came to Duluth, getting work in the saloon where he was working when he was arrested.

The police notified Sheriff Jilson of Oneida county, where the murder was committed, of Balzerak's arrest and confession. The sheriff replied that he will come for the prisoner at once.

BALLINGER IS ON GRILL

accusers, then took up the cross-examination of the witness and within five minutes the expected clash between them had taken place. On his very first question, Mr. Brandeis had to appeal to the committee to "request" Mr. Ballinger to answer it.

The question involved Postmaster General Hitchcock as the "official pie distributer" of the administration. A wrangle between Mr. Brandeis and members of the committee ensued and the result was a record vote by which the committee, by a vote of 6 to 5, decided that Mr. Ballinger need not answer more fully.

Mr. Ballinger admitted the now famous Associated Press interview in which he declared, after his return to Washington, subsequent to publication of the Glavis charges, "that he proposed to kill some snakes."

Was After Glavis.

He also admitted he had reference to Glavis, who, he had made up his mind, "ought to be killed as a snake." He said Glavis had "loafed on the job" in conducting the Alaskan cases, and that he never had thought as much of Glavis' ability as did some others in his department.

A hitherto unpublished letter of the president to Mr. Ballinger, under date of Sept. 13, 1909, was read. In it the president expressed a desire to retain Pinchot, but said his weakness lay in "his inability to credit high and honorable motives to those who differ with him as to his method of doing things." The president in the letter requested Mr. Ballinger to remain silent under criticism, and the secretary said this was the reason he had not followed his natural impulse to answer the charges against him.

all married men, are satisfied with conditions as they exist, while hundreds of the disaffected of the aliens have been laid off by the mining companies and have sought new fields. The rumors of a probable strike were very persistent up till the first of May, although the officials of the mining companies themselves did not look for trouble.

Companies Willing to Close.

The mining companies in this district, with the copper market at its present condition, would be willing, is believed, to cease operations, practically, in case of a strike. The shutting down of the mines of Lake Superior, which turn out 800,000,000 pounds of copper yearly, for a few months would help greatly to cut down the surplus of copper metal on the market and would tend to increase the market price. This would mean better earnings, in the end, than as if the companies should keep on producing as at present. The deduction is, therefore, that the mining companies are operating now for the purpose of supplying the labor of the district with something to do. The production of copper during April was normal here. Lake Superior mines in general are making a fair profit, despite the low price of the metal, and lower costs for producing are constantly being shown.

public lands, $566,000.

The limit of cost of the New York postoffice is increased to $4,500,000, and $250,000 is appropriated for continuing the work; for the modernization of the sub-treasury building in New York $170,000; for lighting the capitol grounds and buildings in Washington $100,000. A provision also is included for $250,000 to enable the president to assist the officers of the government in administration of custom laws.

For Arbitration Work.

Under the department of state, appropriations of $100,000 are made to meet the expenses of representatives of the United States in the arbitration before The Hague tribunal under agreement of January, 1909, for the submission of questions relating to fisheries on the North Atlantic coast under the general arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain.

Overcome Moving Safe.

McVille, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald)—For two hours P. T Mark laid on the floor of his office in this city unconscious, being discovered then in time to secure medical assistance. He had been attempting to move a large safe, using a crow bar, and in some manner slipped, receiving a very severe blow in the abdomen.

NOTE CAREFULLY, Garment Sale Prices: and Compare

IT PAYS TO KEEP WATCH on the garment floor these days. Suits, Dresses, Coats, Skirts and Waists are scurrying out as fast as they can go. Nothing not in full sizes or the least musst will stay here long if we can help it. The dynamo of special price is applied to them and out they go! We are glad to be rid of 'em and Duluth women are more than pleased to get hold of 'em. Something doing up there tomorrow!

There is a big premium on early shopping.

TOP COATS OF BEAUTY

For every woman's need. Given the desire for a long coat (would you want to be without one now-a-days) and the foregone conclusion that you will come to this exclusive up-to-date Coat Store for it—there remains just its choice from this abundant stock of the latest models.

What are your particular needs, what color, in what material and what price do you want to pay?

We are at your service, ready to meet your every demand, in a fashionable and beautiful coat.

Evening Capes, in all the lovely, shimmering satins or silky broadcloths.

Come and see, and try on some of the new ones just in.

In short in these and in many other kinds of wrap in every wanted color and style, you will find us BEST READY TO PLEASE YOU—$15.00 to $75.00 and up.

Twenty Tailored Suits for Girls, $9.50

Every girl who visits the store tomorrow should see these suits. In the first place their regular prices were up to $21.50. The finishing, the tailoring and the fashion touches are all distinctly youthful. All wool, of course, with pleated skirts. Some plain, others fancy with velvet and bengaline collars. For girls 12 to 18 years—for quick riddance, at $9.50 Saturday.

Girls' Wear That Girls Like

It is a good indication for Miss Duluth to know good clothes from mediocre sorts—shows she has been accustomed to being well drest. Girls who habitually wear S. & B. Co. garments, are apt to be hard to please elsewhere.

And the reason isn't difficult to guess.

The host of cute dresses call for special mention.

Cute Chambray Dresses for as little as $1.00, with lots of style to 'em, too!

White Dresses for graduating girls and other girls as well—Princess effects, with embroidered flounce and sashes of all-over embroidery—of extra fine Dotted Swiss, $4.50 to $16.50.

Middy U. S. N. Dresses—In blue chambray, at $3.50.

Good Looking Percale Dresses, at $2.50.

White Middy Dresses—With blue kilted skirt, collar, cuffs and ties, at $3.75.

Such an assortment of pleasing styles in Junior Coats as we show, won't be found elsewhere.

The style kinks, bright brass buttons and hard wearing materials, from 2 to 18 years, are unrivalled.

See the red, navy, Paris blue, white serge and black and white checkt coats, from $2.75 to $24.50.

How little men and women love these gay tailored things!

Tailored Cloth Dresses, Ordered Out

Won't this lot of $45.00 Tailored Cloth Dresses create a furore tomorrow at $15.00.

Materials are of handsome Imported Diagonals, Prunella Cloths, Tricot, Jersey, Moire and Taffeta. Colors are black, blue, helio and other new shades.

Getting one of these Stylish Dresses at $15.00, is like finding from $15.00 to $30.00 in the pocket—the price of one of these $35.00 Suits at $25.00!

That's What They All Say

Women of keen judgment in store affairs are unanimous in their endorsement of the S. & B. Co. Sale of Fine Linens.

It is so big and helpful—Everything around a Linen department has one or several notches taken from its every-day price for the nonce.

Table Linens, Bed Spreads and White Dress Stuffs of all kinds at "present quotations" will show up to the light of publicity, the proven fact that S. & B. Co. Linens are in a class by themselves. They have been growing better in quality for 39 years. Why wouldn't they?

SALE CONTINUES TOMORROW—Have you replenisht your linen chest at the S. & B. Co. Linen Sale?

New Paris Ideas in Millinery

No other store has changed its aspect so thoroly since Easter as this. New Paris ideas dominate. Some new imported models showing the master spirits of Paris. Fashions give the S. & B. Co. Millinery just the right "cachet."

Come and look over our Dress Hats. Note their original prices. Note the added touch of smartness—refined to just the right degree of style and materials—the quality you rarely find elsewhere at any price.

As to Handwork and Weight—We are so often complimented upon these features—women seem to find some Hats so heavy and "head-achy," that perhaps more women will be glad to know that at Silberstein's

Hats must be well made—carefully and thoroly finisht, yet as light as possible.

In these respects we seem to be in a class by ourselves.

Exceptional Sale of S. & B. Co. Suits

A fitting climax to the "up set" of regular prices earlier in the week. The Garment Head "was at it" yesterday afternoon—culling odd numbers thruout the stocks, preparing to give Duluth women—SUCH SURPRISING SUIT VALUES as they have rarely seen.

One lot of Tailored Suits with price tags that read up to $45.00, go on sale at $35.00.

Several different styles are included and every woman from 16, 18, 36 to 44 bust measure can be fitted. Coats are semi-fitting with flap pockets and handsome messaline linings. Skirts in pleats—some show the Russian blouse effect. Popular black and white checks, navy, greens, French blue, tans, grays and black.

Another lot of Tailored Suits with former prices showing up to $35.00, go on sale at $25.00. Sizes from 36 to 44.

Materials are unusually good and styles the latest—typical of the garment quality of this store.

Here are surely "rich finds" for women who appreciate high-class tailoring; best materials and linings, and new, exclusive and high-grade styles.

Come early tomorrow, as the most desirable are apt to go as quickly as—your first trip in an automobile.

27 ANNIVERSARY

STILL GROWING

The Crowning Sale of Our Career

The store is 27 years old this week. 27 years ago in May, 1883, a small unpretentious store, with one floor, 50x80 feet, opened its doors to the public of Duluth. From this small beginning, it has grown, inch by inch, creating the necessary capital, improving conditions, gaining the confidence and good will of the people. And today facing Superior street, with boundaries touching Lake avenue and Michigan street, stands the greatest retail establishment at the Head of the Great Lakes; only made possible through your support. You who have shown so much good-will to us, may rest assured it shall be our earnest effort to more and more deserve your confidence. And in celebration of this, our 27th Anniversary of successful retailing

ART PANELS UNDER BAN

Undraped Figures at University of California Cannot Remain.

Many Complaints to the Authorities Lead to Their Exile.

San Francisco, Cal., May 6.—The eight art panels on the $40,000 Sather gate at the Telegraph avenue entrance to the University of California must go. The four figures of men and the four figures of women, all in bas relief and unclothed, which the sculptor, Earl Cummings, had placed on the pillars to illustrate the beautiful in human form, will no longer be permitted to offend the fastidious eyes of those who think that art should be well tailored when exposed to public view.

Apollo must wear trousers.

Mercury, being always in training for the field day events, may wear a track suit, but hereafter he will have to wear something more than the helmet on his head and the wings on his feet.

Old Atlas may continue his strenuous job of carrying the world on his shoulders, but he will have to wear overalls and jumper while at work about the university campus.

Venus need not hide her beauty under the modern hat, but she will have to observe fashion in a considerably greater degree than Sculptor Cummings had planned for her at the Sather gate of the University of California. She will be compelled to wear some clothing more expensive than her native-born radiance.

Diana and Hebe and all the rest of them, when they pose at the university gate on Telegraph avenue, must put on their skirts. They'll have to wear skirts or bloomers or something of that sort, for in their old accustomed attire they are no longer to be tolerated in Berkeley.

Tabooed by Regents.

The regents of the University of California have so ordered. At a recent meeting a vote was taken and nude form of art was tabooed.

The action was taken upon the hearing of the final report of the buildings and grounds committee, this committee being composed of John A. Britton, R. J. Taussig and F. W. Dohrmann. It was decided, after various complaints had been made about the nudity of the figures, that the statuary was not in keeping with the general architectural scheme of the gate, and that, therefore, it must be removed.

Old Ajax might have defied the lightning, but it is of no use for him to defy the regents of the university, and so he cannot stay. Venus de Milo might spread forth her arms in vain appeal, if she had any arms, and all the charms of the lady of Medici would be wasted in an attempt to alter the stern academic judgment of the men who make the university laws.

The artists may rave and complain that this is a reflection upon their time-honored calling, but if they depended for existence on the acceptance of these statutes at the gateway it would be just as well for them to quit and go into the clothing business.

Some months ago the nude figures on the Sather gate were the cause of objections, and it became a habit of the college women to avoid the Telegraph avenue entrance on that account. A band of late-returning freshmen undertook to remedy the difficulty of supplying the eight statute with raiment.

Fig Leaves Lacking.

There were no fig leaves growing on the campus of the university, but this did not deter them from their purpose, for they secured quantities of oak leaves with which they draped the figures. The incident was called to the attention of the university authorities at the time and attaches undid the work of the students.

President Wheeler's recent return from Berlin is significantly connected with the order issued yesterday, and there are some who are of the opinion that his artistic temperament underwent a transition while he was in the European capital.

At any rate, the figures will be displaced, "because they are not in conformity with the artistic purpose of the structure." The massive bronze work for the gate will be completed within a few days and it is expected that the gate will be entirely finished within the next few weeks. The panels of art which will be removed will be retained by the university and may be employed in decorating some building of less public character.

The eight statutes will be replaced by plain blocks of granite.

the policy of the state in holding its lands, half of the county being state land, until the settlers make their improvements; thus refusing to share the burden of the pioneers while later reaping the benefit of an increased land value. The method, time, and price demanded in selling state lands were strongly condemned by the speaker as being against sound business and moral policies.

Introducing his speech with a statement that the Koochiching County Development association has exceptional conditions to meet and that an honest effort to better conditions will be aided by the southern part of the state, the judge said:

Population Decreasing.

"Koochiching county is an empire in area; it is blessed with a soil that is surprisingly fertile; its climatic conditions are exceptionally healthful; its natural wealth of timber is enormous; the beauty of its scenery is unsurpassed; it possesses the greatest water powers in the Northwest; it is fortunate in its industrious and enterprising citizenship. And yet it is a stubborn fact that its population, except in the villages, is constantly decreasing. Despite the fact that it contains approximately 1,500,000 acres of unoccupied lands, nearly every acre of which is highly productive, and notwithstanding the inviting natural conditions which I have enumerated, the tide of immigration constantly passes by and the homeseeker finds a domicile in far less attractive localities. Even the homesteaders of the county, many of them, who braved the perils and hardships of the forest before the advent of railroads, have in recent months, after securing their government title, abandoned their homestead tracts and sought homes elsewhere. This state of affairs, though deplorable, is true; and at a gathering of this kind it seems to me that it is better to consider and discuss the hard facts—to confront ourselves with the situation as it really exists—rather than to endeavor to smooth things over by indulging in pleasing flattery or exaggerated statements of the boom variety.

"The pertinent question, then, is: Why are the hardy, courageous settlers who came here five years and more ago for the express purpose of acquiring homes, and who have since experienced the hardships of pioneers—why, now, just after becoming the owners of these homes and just following the building of railroads and the establishment of great industries in the country—why, I ask, are they now, one by one, locking their cabin doors and going with their families to seek livelihood elsewhere? There must be some good reason for such surprising action. Where is the fault? It is not in the soil, nor in the climate, nor in the citizenship, nor in the failure on the part of the people of the county to in every respect do and perform everything within their power to bring prosperity and contentment to the entire population.

State's Policy Responsible.

"The answer is plain to one at all familiar with the real situation. No roads, no schools, no churches, no society. Here lies the fault. Deprived of these essential adjuncts of development because so much of the land surrounding that occupied by settlers is owned by the state, and the state refuses to join with the settlers in sharing the burdens of frontier development. In other words, because the state has adopted the policy of holding its lands until the settlers shall construct the roads, drain the wet lands, provide the needs of civilization, and thus make the lands valuable and salable, without cost or effort on the part of the state. The theory of the state seems to be to hold on to all it has and to part with nothing, in the hope and expectation that after a few generations this course will prove the most profitable.

"As to the manner of disposition of the school lands—about 186,000 acres in this county—the state is restricted. These lands were granted to the state in trust, for the explicit purpose of being applied to the use of the schools of the state, and by its Constitution the state solemnly covenanted with the United States to so apply them, and prohibited their sale except at public sale. The state was not required, though, to make these lands undesirable and unsought by settlers by enacting that before being offered for sale they shall be stripped of all timber. You know the law now provides that "Where land valuable for agricultural purposes contains only small quantities of pine, tamarack or other timber, the land commissioner may in his discretion, either sell the timber separately, or he may sell the land as agricultural land and require the purchaser to pay down as first cash payment the value of the timber, in addition to the 15 per cent on the land." Neither was it required to reserve all mineral rights, which it has done.

The Swamp Lands.

"But as to swamp lands—of which Koochiching county contains about 700,000 acres—the conditions of the grant to the state are altogether different. The purpose of this grant to the state by the United States, as expressed on the face of the act, was to enable the state to construct the necessary levees and drains to reclaim them. The language of the grant is "that the proceeds of said lands, whether from sale or direct appropriation in kind, shall be applied, exclusively, as far as necessary, to the purpose of reclaiming said lands by means of the levees and drains aforesaid." So it became and is the moral duty of the state to use these lands for the purpose for which the United States gave them. But the United States supreme court has held that it is not the legal duty of the state to fulfill this moral obligation. That court said, in an opinion written by Justice Bradley in 1882:

"'Upon further consideration of the whole subject, we are convinced that the application of the proceeds of these lands to the purposes of the grant rests upon the good faith of the state, and that the state may exercise its discretion as to the disposal of them. It is a matter between two sovereign powers; and one which private parties cannot bring into discussion. Swamp and overflowed lands are of little value to the government of the United States, whose principal interest in them is to dispose of them for purposes of revenue; whereas, the state governments, being concerned in their settlement and improvement; in the opening up of roads and other public works through them; in the promotion of the public health by systems of drainage and embankment, are far more deeply interested in having the disposal and management of them. For these reasons, it was a wise measure on the part of congress to cede these lands to the states in which they lay, subject to the disposal of their respective legislatures; and although it is specially provided, that the proceeds of such lands shall be applied, "'as far as necessary,'" to their reclamation by means of levees and drains, this is a duty which was imposed upon and assumed by the states alone, when they accepted the grant; and whether faithfully performed or not, is a question between the United States and the states; and is neither a trust following the lands, nor a duty which private parties can enforce as against the state.'

"The state of Minnesota has therefore taken advantage of this construction of the grant, and instead of devoting these swamp lands,—700,000 acres in Koochiching county alone,—to the 'opening up of roads and other public works through them,' has provided by constitutional amendment adopted in 1881 that they shall be appraised and sold in the same manner as school lands; and, by legislative enactment, it is provided that the same requirements as to the sale of timber and reservation of mineral rights shall apply as in the case of school lands.

Policy Is Wrong.

"True, the state has adopted a system of state drainage and is expending some money in constructing ditches, but this is only a loan, a method of investment, and the amount expended, with interest, is added to the purchase price of the land benefited, both school and swamp.

"The assertion that this policy on the part of the state is wrong seems too self-evident to admit of argument. It is unjust to the present settlers who are striving against such odds, unjust to the thousands of homeseekers who under more liberal conditions would occupy these lands, unjust to the state itself by restricting its development, and especially unjust to the five northeastern counties of the state where more than four-fifths of this land lays.

"If this vast acreage was owned by an individual or a corporation it is certain that the owner would appropriate a part of the property to the construction of roads and drainage of the wet lands so as to create a market for the remainder. This would be only the natural course suggested by ordinary business sagacity. But the state has far greater reason than the private owner to adopt such a plan; for, aside from the purely business incentive, it has a moral duty to perform and is eminently concerned in increasing its population and adding to the public wealth.

"It should devolve upon the state to at all times make reasonable and consistent effort to attract settlers and to provide them with the opportunity to maintain and enjoy decent roads, good schools, religious societies, township organizations and the many things incident to a comfortable and happy rural existence. And so I contend that the primary object of the state in dealing with its lands in Northern Minnesota should be to attract settlers, and that every provision should be enacted with that purpose in view. The value of the land itself is insignificant in comparison with the value of the benefits to the state, and particularly to the community in which the land is situated, of having it occupied and improved by a bonafide settler. The taxes on the property thus directly and indirectly added to the valuation of the state would soon exceed the value of the land, to say nothing of the manifold beneficial results of thus populating sparsely settled communities. The policy of the state should be founded upon the principle that every tract of land in the state should be some citizen's home and the nearer it comes to the accomplishment of that purpose the nearer perfect it will be.

More Liberal Policy Needed.

"The state must be induced to adopt a more liberal policy in the disposition of its lands—a policy that will attract settlers and help to transform the wilderness into farms and homes. One suggestion that is not without merit is to place large quantities of this land upon the market at frequent intervals, to be sold to actual, bonafide settlers only, and to be so generous with the timber as to amount to an inducement for its purchase and settlement. This plan could be adopted as to both school and swamp lands without the necessity of a constitutional amendment. Another suggestion is to carry out the spirit and purpose of the swamp land grant in good faith by taking away the minimum price restriction and sell a large quantity of these lands at frequent intervals, at public sale, to the highest bidder, who will be required to become an actual settler. To so dispose of this land for less than $3.67 an acre might require a constitutional amendment, but probably enough of it could be sold to accomplish the result desired at this price and more, thus leaving the matter to legislative enactment. Some method, at least approximating these suggestions can be devised and enacted into law, which will bring settlers into this section in sufficient numbers, so that, with a liberal state policy to aid in the construction of roads, the now unoccupied, untaxed state lands will be the homes of thrifty settlers, the state will add many thousands of families to its population and the public wealth will be enormously enhanced.

"Agitation is what is needed. There is work for this and similar organizations in Northern Minnesota to do. The people of Minnesota are not acquainted with the facts. You must see that they are informed. That is all that is needed. The people are fair and want the right thing to be done always. But, like our neighbors in Missouri, they will insist upon being shown, and it is your duty to show them. Begin and continue an earnest, enthusiastic campaign and your efforts will not be unrewarded."

How to Prevent Grey Hair.

When gray hairs first begin to appear, prompt action should be taken to nourish the scalp and prevent their further spread. Regular brushing, massage of the scalp and occasional shampooing help to prolong the vitality of the hair and preserve its natural color. But it is absolutely essential that these methods be assisted with some form of vital nourishment which the decaying roots of the hair can absorb. Numerous preparations for this purpose have appeared on the market during the past twenty years, but many of them have proved more harmful than otherwise. It is now agreed by competent authorities and those who have put it to the severest test that HAY'S HAIR HEALTH is the safest and mose effective preparation for restoring prematurely gray hair, and furnishing the right food to the scalp. Its constantly increasing sale and the fact that it has held its great popularity for nearly a quarter of a century is proof that this elentific preparation does the work to the entire satisfaction of users. All reliable druggists recommend it and sell it in 50-cent and dollar bottles, or it can be purchased from the manufacturer, Philo Hay Specialties Co., Newark, N. J., U. S. A. At A. W. THE TORCH PUT TO AN ORCHARD

Planted Twenty Years Ago, the Trees Failed to Produce.

Topeka, Kan., May 6.—The Wellhouse apple orchard on the main line of the Santa Fe, in Osage county, near Wakarusa, the second largest orchard in the state, has been destroyed. The act was with premeditation and malice aforethought. The guilty parties were the owners.

Twenty years ago, Fred Wellhouse, the apple king of Kansas set out the orchard. It contained 800 acres. Nearly 65,000 trees were required. The trees grew fairly well for the first few years, but when it came time for them to bear they bucked. An investigation developed the fact that the soil was not adapted to apple growing. For fifteen years Mr. Wellhouse and his son held on to the orchard in the hope that the elements might produce a change. Occasionally the orchard would yield a light crop. One year it did manage to turn out $5,000 worth of fruit. But on the whole the orchard was a failure.

Last year, Mr. Wellhouse sold the orchard. It was divided up among two or three purchasers. The new owners decided not to fool with the orchard any longer. So one day recently, when the wind was strong and vegetation all dry they set fire to the orchard and burned it up. It is estimated that more than 45,000 live apple trees were burned. Thousands of trees were burned up entirely. Others were burned off at the trunks. The owners will now clear up the ground and put it into grass, corn and other crops.

"It made me feel badly to see that orchard destroyed," said Secretary Wellhouse of the State Horticultural society. "I helped set it out, and I had great hopes of large returns on my money when the trees were planted. But, as everybody knows, the orchard was a failure, we didn't examine the subsoil close enough when we selected that land for apple growing. When we found that we had made a mistake we held on, hoping that something would happen to make the orchard a good producer. But we hoped it vain. The new owners will make more money off the land in one season with farm corps than we made during the twenty years the orchard was out."

EXECUTIONER POISONED.

Strychnine Poured in Glass at Ex-Convict's Anniversary Feast.

St. Petersburg, May 6.—Several ex-convicts at Riga arranged a feast commemorating the tenth anniversary of the appointment of the executioner, Klepoff, who had hanged at least sixty people. The executioner was very flattered and accepted the invitation.

The ex-convicts poured strychnine in his glass, and while they were "drinking his health" the hangman fell dead from the effects of the poison.

The Opulento.

CAFE USED FOR WORSHIP.

Place Is Transformed Into Dance Hall Following Services.

Geneva, May 6.—In the village of Oftringen, in the canton of Argovie, where the population is 3,350 persons, of whom the majority are Catholics, there is a little church where all the worshippers cannot be accommodated; therefore the cure has made arrangements with the local "publican," who has a large hall in his cafe, to hold divine service there.

The buffet, draped for the occasion every Sunday, is used as the altar, and as soon as the service is ended the floor is cleared of the chairs and dancing commences, the orchestra arriving in the cafe at the end of the religious services. After the service and the weekly Sunday ball, the establishment is again transformed into a cafe until the following Sunday.

IMMENSELY PROFITABLE

Returns for 1909 Show Railroads Had Best Year in History.

Sales and Profits of This Year Promise to Be Greater.

New York, May 6.—The great record of 1909 for business profits becomes more apparent with every report of the large corporations of the country.

The railway profits have been made public through the reports of the various companies and they surpassed in nearly every instance those of prior years and in the aggregate exhibited profits far above expectations of the most sanguine.

The Steel corporation, the New England cotton and woolen corporations and mill companies, all had a most gratifying year of business profit, while firms and individuals throughout the United States, in the majority of cases, were well satisfied with the results of operations of 1909.

The International Harvester company report for that year was published last week and certainly those interested in that enterprise have no grounds for complaint as to profits.

Compared with the year 1908 the report shows as follows:

	1909.	Increase over 1908.
Sales, etc	$86,614,550	$14,072,778
Cost of manufacturing and distribution	67,669,234	8,054,012
Net earnings	19,225,330	6,294,952

A net profit of nearly 28 per cent upon cost of production was certainly an extraordinary percentage of profit upon articles so necessary to successful agriculture, and indicates a remarkable business management, with a growing demand for the articles manufactured.

Profits Going Higher.

If no widespread disaster occurs to the crops during 1910 it is almost certain that the sales and the profits for the present year will go far above even those of the record year 1909.

The farmers of the world were never before in such financial condition to pay for machinery as they are at the present time, and they never had such brilliant prospects for great demand and good prices for their products as they have now, and these two conditions combined have caused a very great increase in acreage under cultivation.

With normal yields per acre the harvests on account of this increased acreage should show a tremendous increase in the aggregate returns and thus add to the already great absorbing power of the agricultural districts for the various manufactured articles required on the farms and plantations.

Edwin Hawley, one of the most active business men of the country, confirms the reports may last week by the officers of the Southern Pacific railroad as to the bright business prospects of the country.

Mr. Hawley's Forecast.

Mr. Hawley is quoted as follows:

"I have just traveled through 6,000 miles of prosperous country, finding business good everywhere and the prospects for business still better. There is nothing in the situation to worry about."

It is said in financial circles that large sums of money are going West and South for mortgages on lands in these sections.

Investors and capitalists throughout the United States certainly cannot fail to have faith and confidence in the security offered by farming lands under the present conditions of great prices for farm products, greater demand for lands from those who would engage in the lucrative business of cultivation and a constantly increasing number of consumers of foodstuffs and fibers in every city and manufacturing district of the world.

That immense sums of money have gone into fruit lands in the West and the South is well known to the people of the United States, and interviews with the fruit and vegetable growers of Florida, Georgia, the Carolinas, Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, Texas and Arkansas all bring reports of profitable business last year and very great encouragement for the future.

Pacific Coast Fruits.

The reputation of the fruits of Washington, Oregon and California has extended all over the world, and orchards in those states are producing very fine returns and are in great demand at high prices.

As a sample of the prices in Southern California, a forty-acre tract of fruit land in the Sweetwater valley was sold recently for $18,000, or $450 per acre.

In the gulf coast lands of Texas sales at $100 to $250 per acre for vegetable lands are of frequent occurrence, and while lands in the portion of the United States lying east of the Mississippi are bringing advanced prices, there is every prospect of them continuing to advance, owing to the large prices the Far Western lands are now bringing.

The Pacific coast halted the ever-moving westward line of population which for nearly three centuries had been pushing forward from the Atlantic seaboard.

For ten years past there has been a reflex movement of settlers, a filling up of the country between the two coasts, a settling upon the remaining vacant lands open for settlement, and the purchasing of lands already under title.

Western Lands Filling Up.

Washington, Oregon and California have added largely to their population in the eastern and central portions of each of the three states.

Colorado, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, Montana, Idaho, Oklahoma, Wyoming, Kansas and Nebraska have received greater additions to their populations during the last ten years than in any decade in their history. This is the case also with every one of the states that lie east of the Nebraska and Kansas lines.

The tide that from 1860 to 1900 flowed steadily Westward from the states east of the Mississippi to those on the west has almost ceased to run.

The older states are holding the natural increase of their population now and receiving a much larger share of the immigrants than at any time during the past half century.

This filling up of the older states with young and fresh blood is having great effect upon the business activities of those states as well as upon the prices of agricultural land. These conditions will continue for many years to come.

The older states will never again be depleted by the emigration to the Far Western states of the young, vigorous generations of their people. The advantages of the West have largely gone with the lessening acreage of government land and the lifting of the values of the other lands in these states to very high levels.

The young men of these older states will remain at home and endeavor to secure their homesteads in their own immediate neighborhoods.

For two weeks past there has been a hesitation and slackness in the iron business, and some persons have done their very best to produce a depressing effect upon the values of securities by predicting an era of lessening business.

There may ensue for the next three months an easing up of demand and a lessening of production; there may be a shading off of prices of pig iron until the crops are assured and various adjustments of salaries and wages throughout the country are completed, but once that even normal harvests are made certain, the rush of business will be greater and if possible more widespread and general than ever before.

GOTHAM JUDGE KNEW THE LINGO

Jargon of Pickpockets Used By a New York Magistrate.

New York, May 6.—Magistrate O'Connor of the Jefferson Market court qualified as an expert in the art of "dipping," or picking pockets, and carried on a conversation with a self-confessed pickpocket in the jargon of the underworld.

This happened when George Greenfield, who recently completed a four and a half years' sentence in prison for grand larceny, was arraigned before him, charged with jostling pedestrians at Central Park.

Greenfield, when arraigned, displayed a pair of hands as big as a boilermaker's and observed to the court:

"I couldn't pick a pocket, your honor. I can't put my hand in a man's pocket. I can hardly put them in my own pockets."

"Don't try to kid me," replied the court sharply. "You know a good dip doesn't work with his hand. He works with two fingers. You know what 'bringing the hanger' means, don't you, Greenfield?"

Greenfield nodded.

"I suppose you were framing a 'sucker' to get away with a 'whole front,' or at least you expected to 'snag a poke' or a 'souper' and instead you got 'dropped by a flatty' and were 'canned for a sleep,' eh?"

Greenfield looked startled and Magistrate O'Connor demanded sharply:

"You know what I mean, don't you?"

"Sure," replied Greenfield.

"Five dollars fine," said the magistrate.

Later Magistroate O'Connor explained to the bewildered newspaper men who had yet to get their knowledge of the slang of the pickpockets that "bringing the hanger" means opening a woman's handbag, "getting a whole front" is to take everything the victim has, "a poke" is a pocketbook and a "souper" is a watch, to be "dropped by a "flatty" is to be arrested by a detective and to be "canned for a sleep" is to be locked up over night.

HELD COTTON FOR 38 YEARS

Georgia Farmer Gets 16 Cents a Pound After a Long Wait.

Jackson, Ga., May 6.—"I will get 16 cents a pound for this bale of cotton or I will never sell it," was the declaration made by T. H. Greer, thirty-eight years ago. He kept his promise and got his price, but it took him thirty-eight years to do it.

Back in 1872—Dec. 19, to be exact—T. H. Greer, a prosperous farmer of Butts county, ginned a bale of cotton by water power, and the old hand lever press was used.

The market was 16 cents at that season, but as this bale was late in being turned out from the press the market had slumped, and after loading the bale on his wagon Mr. Greer took it to Griffin, only to be refused 16 cents. Whereupon he would not sell for less than that figure. Accordingly he carried the bale of cotton back home.

Recently Mr. Greer drove to town and an offer of 16 cents a pound was made to him and he accepted it. The cotton was bought by Etheridge, Smith & Co., well known local buyers. They have placed the cotton in the front of their store, and it is being viewed by hundreds of persons.

When first ginned the bale weighed 505 pounds. Only one time since it was first packed has it been repacked, and that was in 1905, when it was found to be perfectly sound. So far as known, this is the oldest bale of cotton on record.

Stillwater, Minn., May 5.—The city council has called a special election for May 31, when the proposal to issue bonds in the sum of $145,000 with which to purchase the waterworks will be voted upon.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. SADIE MULLEN, 2728 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

SPRING SIGNS ON THE SKIN

Pimples, Itching Spots, Eruptions, Blotches, Fever Blisters.

The little blotches, itching spots, discolorations, pimples, fever blisters, etc., which appear on the skin at this time of the year, indicate that the pores are overtaxed in their work of helping to renovate the system. A little poslam applied as soon as these troubles show will cause them to quickly disappear, leaving the skin in perfect condition to perform its duties.

In skin troubles of every form, affecting both infants and adults, poslam produces beneficial results from first application, stopping all itching at once. Eczema, acne, herpes, tetter and similar diseases yield to it readily. Poslam is non-greasy, flesh-colored and cannot be detected in the daytime. When used for scaly scalp, dandruff, boils, sores, chafing, hives, etc., it drives away soreness and cures rapidly.

Poslam is on sale for 50 cents at the Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett's in Duluth and the A. E. Holmberg Drug Co., in Superior, as well as all drug stores. But a supply sufficient for most minor troubles, to clear the complexion overnight and rid the face of pimples, will be sent free of charge to any one who will write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

GREAT DAY FOR POLES

Monuments to Kosciuszko and Pulaski to Be Unveiled May 11.

First Polish National Congress to Be Held at Washington.

Washington, May 6.—May 11th will be a great day in Poland's history although the affair which will make it remarkable will not take place on Polish soil but in this country the adopted land of over 3,000,000 of Poland's sons and daughters. On May 11th two monuments will be unveiled in Washington, D. C., to the memory of two Polish heroes who fought under Washington for the freedom and independence of the United States—Generals Thaddeus Kosciuszko and Casimir Pulaski.

The Pulaski statue has been voted and erected by the government of the United States. The Kosciuszko statue is a gift of the people to the United States from the Polish National Alliance of the United States of North America, the greatest Polish organization in the world. The unveiling of the two monuments will be accompanied by elaborate ceremonies on May 11th at 2:30 p. m. A benediction will be said at the Pulaski monument by the Rignt Reverend Bishop Paul Rhode from Chicago. The speeches will be made by the secretary of war, the president and J. Smulski of Chicago. The Marine band will play the national anthem and the artillery will fire a salute. After that the guests will proceed to Lafayette square, to the Kosciuszko monument. The Polish Singers' Alliance will begin the ceremonies with a cantata; the president of the Polish National Alliance M. B. Steczynski, will deliver a speech in Polish; the censor of the Polish National Alliance A. Schreiber will present the monument to the government; the president or the secretary of war will deliver an address, and the benediction by a clergyman will follow.

The government mailed invitations to a great number of distinguished Poles in Europe and America and the influx of Poland's sons and daughters in Washington will be enormous. In the military parade numerous Polish societies will march; from many cities special trains will take to the capital thousands of Poles. The day will be closed by a banquet in the Hotel Raleigh to which the Polish National Alliance has invited many prominent men. President Taft has accepted the invitation and promised to be the guest of the Polish National Alliance.

In 1903 congress appropriated $50,000 for a monument for Gen. Pulaski, and the work was entrusted to a Polish sculptor, Casimir Chodzinski, who completed it to the satisfaction of the government. It was then that the Polish National Alliance conceived the idea of presenting to the government of the United States a monument of Gen. Kosciuszko, to be erected at Washington in Lafayette Square. The offer of this gift having been accepted by congress and the president, the fund was started by means of special assessment from every member of the alliance. The sum of $60,000 was raised, and as a result of competition the model of Prof. Antoni Popiel from Lwow, Poland, was chosen. The Polish National Alliance presented to the United States the monument of "the best and greatest son of Poland," who was an ardent admirer of the great American commonwealth, with the explicit purpose of showing that the Polish-Americans appreciate highly the liberty and all the opportunities which they enjoy in this country, while at the same time they cherish the memory and the traditions of Poland.

In order to emphasize their loyalty to this country of their adoption and to familiarize their brethren in Europe with American ideas, the Polish-Americans organized under the banner of the Polish National Alliance, called the first Polish national congress to Washington, for May 12 to 16, following the unveiling of both monuments. The object of this congress is to deliberate on the present situation—political, cultural, educational and economic—of the Poles, both in Poland and in America; to acquaint themselves with the course in which the Polish political thought is proceeding and developing; to ascertain the principal deficiencies and needs of the Polish national life; to find means of satisfying those needs, and in general to elaborate a directive that could obtain the recognition of the Polish community. The first day of the congress, May 12, will be dedicated to the numerous American guests who have been invited and promised their attendance. To that purpose three papers will be read in English about the past, present and future of Poland by prominent Polish-Americans, members of the alliance—Dr. H. Kalusowski from Washington, Dr. K. Zurawski and T. Helinski, both from Chicago. Mr. Helinski was formerly postmaster at Duluth.

On the second day the separate sections of the convention—political, economic, educational, the section an science and art and that of emigration—will work out their problems and their resolutions. On the fourth and last day the members in a plenary session will discuss the results of the work of the sections and pass upon them. An excursion to Mount Vernon is planned and homage will be paid to the memory of the Father of His Country.

The Polish national congress will be attended by many prominent Poles from Europe and by a large number of representative Polish-Americans. The old capital of Poland, Cracow is sending one representative; the city of Lwow will be represented by three members of the council. From many other Polish cities prominent men are coming. Many papers to be read in the sections were contributed by many famous men in all paths of public life who were prevented from coming to Washington.

BANDS PLAYED WHILE EVICTION WAS MADE.

Dublin, May 6.—Some lively scenes were witnessed at an eviction which was carried out in Mill street, Ennis, last week. The evicted tenant was a young man named Robert Stack, who carried on business as a tailor, and who acquired a house which formerly had been in the occupation of an uncle, who died a couple of years ago. It came into the possession of the present landlord recently, and he took ejectment proceedings against Stack. When Mr. Martin, acting sheriff, arrived with his bailiffs he found the door fastened, and an entrance had to be forced with crowbars. The effects were then removed by the bailiffs.

While this was being done the Ennis Fife and Drum band turned out, and some time after the Clare Castle Land & Labor association band arrived. While the bands were playing before the house the police interfered to move them on, but the crowd rushed them, and a procession was formed, in the center of which was a carter's dray laden with furniture, on which sat the evicted tenant, his wife and child. The bands, at the head of which were borne banners, marched through the town to a place in Chapel lane, which had been secured by Mr. Stack. There was much cheering, but no attempt at disturbance.

DOG'S BARK LIKE VOICE OF MASTER

Domestic Animal Learns to Imitate Owner, Says Professor.

Paris, May 6.—According to Prof. Lepinay, man is not the only "rational animal" in the philosophical sense. His long researches into the habits of domestic animals have convinced him that they have a certain amount of reasoning power, that they often act upon reflex notions, and can associate ideas from which they draw inferences. He developed this theory in a lecture which he delivered at the new Dogs and Cats' home near Ruell, where several hundred animals, pets abandoned or lost by their owners during the inundation, are sheltered.

Dogs, and still more so cats, he says, learn to imitate the voice and movements of their masters or mistress. He has noticed old watch dogs who, when they barked, had a peculiar intonation, which resembled the voice of the master. Cats, he asserts, try by the way in which they cry to make their mistresses understand exactly what they want. This seems almost to be an effort to raise themselves to the level of human beings.

It is well known that dogs, cats and birds, when they have become familiar friends, understand the meaning of certain words perfectly, and obey a command or intimation without its being accompanied by any gesture. The intelligence of a bird may well be compared to that of a little child. If a strange canary is put into a cage full of others they at once cease chirping or singing, and look at the newcomer. This is a clear display of intelligent curiosity. After a while they get around the intruder, and it is not rare to see one of the birds silly pick a feather out of it and bound away. This is just to tease it, as boys in the playground of a school would do to a newcomer.

The professor does not believe that the so-called learned animals of circuses may be taken as good examples of intelligence. With them it is more a matter of habit, whereas with a cat or a dog using a peculiar cry for having a door opened or getting food is, according to him, a more clearly defined case of an intelligent effort to attain an end. His conclusion, at any rate, is that the power of a certain simple kind of reasoning and reflex thought must be admitted to exist among animals.

EXPERIMENT A SUCCESS

Medical Inspection of School Children Is Proving Its Worth.

Duluth Children Are Average Children With Average Diseases.

Inspector Tells the Net Results Achieved to Present Time.

Members of the school board and of the medical profession and other citizens interested in the work are watching the results of the experiment in medical inspection of school children which was begun in Duluth during the past winter. Hardly enough has been done yet on which to base an estimate, but those who will express an opinion are convinced that medical inspection of school children has come to stay in this city.

The experiment now being conducted applies to but five schools, the Franklin, Jefferson, Emerson, Adams and Irving. It is expected that the school board will take steps before the beginning of the next school year to extend the inspection to the other schools of the city.

"The ultimate results of the experiment and the course to be followed in the future are for the board of education to determine, but for myself I am satisfied that we are getting satisfactory returns for the effort put forth thus far," said Dr. C. H. Schroder, the medical inspector, in discussing the work he is doing.

"Take any body of children of any age and in any condition and certain defects will be discovered among them," continued Dr. Schroder. "There are some diseases and some defects which parents do not notice or, noticing, will not give attention. True, they are minor defects in the incipient stages, but allowed to run along without attention they are likely to grow more serious and menace the ultimate health and happiness of the child.

"To those defects we have paid special attention in our work. We have singled out the children and have informed the parents of their condition. Where it is possible, with the time and facilities given us, we have given them attention, but that is possible in a comparatively few cases. In the other cases we have advised the parents to carry the treatment farther.

Advice Not Always Taken.

"Our advice is not always followed. If we had a dispensary in connection with the schools so that people not in god circumstances could secure medicines at a minimum cost, we would be greatly aided in the work. People are slow to go to expense for the treatment of what they regard as minor ailments, especially when going to such expense works a hardship on them.

"If the medical inspection should be extended to all the schools, I would recommend such a dispensary, as well as adequate inspection and treatment quarters, be provided in each of the schools. We have been handicapped somewhat by lack of quarters in the different schools, but that can also be remedied in time. We are only conducting an experiment and when the system is thoroughly established, made.

"I would say the children in Duluth are average children, with average diseases and average defects. We must expect outbreaks of scarlet fever and other contagious diseases at times. Medical inspection cannot prevent them, but it can and will detect them before they have spread very far and will check their progress by isolation and fumigation, and vaccination in the case of smallpox.

"Miss Beattie, the visiting nurse, and myself have received courteous treatment from parents in almost all cases. Our suggestions have been received without antagonism as a rule, although they are not always followed out.

The Net Results.

"I should say the net results of our efforts thus far are the checking of minor diseases, the correction of some minor defects, the beginning of treatment on more serious defects and the teaching of cleanliness to some who have not held cleanliness in such a high light as they should."

Dr. Schroeder and Miss Theresa Beattie were engaged by the school board in February to conduct the experimental examinations and treatment for the remainder of the school year. Working in the five schools, they have kept in close touch with the children and have followed up discoveries of diseases and defects with treatment or advice to the parents.

They have now systematized the work so that it is running along smoothly. Some attention has been given other schools in emergency cases but most of the efforts have been directed to securing a condition in the five schools that will prove the worth of the system.

A system of records has been devised by Dr Schroder and the committee on schools of the board of education that is unlike anything used in any other city. Beginning with the first year of the child in school, the card is arranged so that a record of the child's physical condition may be entered on it. Space is provided for entering all diseases which may afflict the child during his or her school life and by its use an accurate record may be kept in concise form of the child's physical condition during those years.

The board of education will probably take no action on the extension of the system until the close of the current school year when the experiment is completed. Those who have followed the results thus far obtained say that the work is no longer in the experimental stage—that it has proved its worth.

The extension of the system to all of the schools would necessitate the employment of several physicians to give almost all of their time to the work. Dr. Schroder gives three hours a day to the work of inspection and Miss Beattie gives all of her time to the work of examining and treating the children. They say that the five schools give them about all they can do in that time, so that a considerable force would be needed to carry on the work all over the city.

LARGEST BUTTERFLY FARM IN THE WORLD.

London, May 6.—L. W. Newman, late wholesale tobacconist in the city, is now the owner of the largest butterfly farm in the world, containing a nursery of 100,000 caterpillars. The farm is at Bexley, and the retired tobacconist lives with his wife on the farm surrounded by cages of untamed insects in countless numbers.

There are 10,000 of one brand, so to speak, of caterpillar. The brand is known to naturalists as the "silver washed," and lives on violets. Hence the fact that Newman grows nearly as many violets as he does caterpillars. The history of Mr. Newman's venture is that as a child he loved butterflies, and was an expert at stalking them with a net. Then he went into the tobacco business, and eight years ago founded his butterfly farm at Bexley.

Today it is the most remarkable farm in the world, employing Mr. Newman, his wife, brother-in-law, an assistant, and a carpenter. He owns two houses, a large back garden, an allotment plot, and half an acre of Bexley woods, where his insects feed. The butterflies are sold at high prices.

PERSUADED TO RETURN HOME

Runaway Boy at First Refuses to Recognize His Father.

Claude Masten, a 14-year-old boy of Tenstrike, Minn., who had run away from his home and was caught in Duluth, yesterday refused to recognize his father when presented to him in Probation Officer Resche's office. The boy held out for some time, and until he was told that it was either a case of go home with the parent or go to the training school, he maintained his attitude.

A week ago young Masten was picked up at the Union depot by a deaconess. At that time he haid that his name was John Richardson, and that he had come to Duluth on the advice of the man for whom he formerly worked.

He was turned over to the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. for care until his parents could be found. An investigation was instituted by Col. Resche, who found that the boy's home was in Tenstrike and that the father's name was John Masten. The father was asked to come to this city, which he did.

Yesterday he was in the probation office. The boy was sent in to him, and, although he started when he first saw his father, he said that the man was not his parent, but a man named Masten whom he knew slightly. Young Masten was told that he could either recognize his father and go home with him, or go to the training school. Claude chose to go home.

This was the third time he has run away. On this last trip he went to Funkley, where a kind-hearted woman took pity on him and furnished him with food and clothing. He later got a job with a farmer and earned enough money to make the trip to Duluth.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Colds, Croup, and Whooping Cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovvery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of Croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. Its a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for Cougas, Colds, La Grippe, Asthma, Hemorrhages, Weak Lungs. 50c. $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

WILL PUT CITY PEOPLE ON FARMS

Association Is Formed at St. Louis to Carry Out the Scheme.

St. Louis, Mo., May 6.—The National Farm House association, having for its purpose the colonization of city dwellers on model farms, was formally organized here yesterday.

Officers and directors were chosen at a meeting attended by more than 150 men and women from cities throughout the country who are interested in the movement. The officers elected are:

President Governor H. S. Hadley, Missouri; first vice president, Gifford Pinchot, Washington; second vice president, Frederick D. Tucker, St. Louis; secretary, State Immigration Commissioner J. H. Curren; treasurer, Walker Hill, St. Louis.

The directors are Archbishop J. J. Glennon, St. Louis; Rabbi Leon Harrison, St. Louis; Walter S. Dickey, Kansas City; John Graham Brooks, New York; Irving Craighead, Mobile, Ala.; W. K. Bixby, St. Louis; Adolphus Busch, St. Louis; Governor Charles S. Deneen, of Illinois; Henry Wallace, Des Moines; W. H. Johnson, Springfield, Mo.; Dr. W. J. Stillman, Washington; Governor Hughes, New York. The directorate will be increased later.

The association proposes to capitalize for $1,000,000 and to provide 640 model farms for worthy applicants, the farms to be conducted under the supervision of skilled agriculturists.

CUTICURA CURED TWO BROTHERS

One had Face Covered with Itching Eruption—Eyesight was Affected—Raw, Itching Humor Spread Over the Other from Head to Feet in a Single Day—Dreadful

SKIN-TORTURES YIELD TO EASY TREATMENT

"In 1907 my face broke out in a mass of itching sores which finally affected my eyesight. I tried several highly recommended salves that cost one dollar an ounce, but to no avail. A friend of mine urged me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment as he was sure of good results from his own experience. I used the Cuticura Ointment for about six weeks, after washing thoroughly with the Cuticura Soap. My face is in perfect health now which I owe to the Cuticura Remedies. I shall always stand by them as one of the greatest blessings to the suffering thousands. Arthur D. Gridley, 532 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Apr. 9, 1909."

"In the middle of the night of March 30th I woke up with a burning itch in my two hands and I felt as if I could pull them apart. In the morning the itching had got to my chest and during that day it spread all over my body. I was red and raw from the top of my head to the soles of my feet and I was in continual agony from the itching. I could neither lie down nor sit up. I happened to see about Cuticura Remedies and I thought I would give them a trial. I took a good bath with the Cuticura Soap and used the Cuticura Ointment. I put it on from my head down to my feet and then went to bed. On the first of April I felt like a new man. The itching was almost gone. I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and during that day the itching completely left me. Frank Gridley, 325 E. 43rd St., New York City, Apr. 27, '09."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

GORDON HATS

MARGARET HORTON POTTER IS DECLARED INSANE.

Chicago, May 6. — Mrs. Margaret Potter Black, better known as an authoress under her maiden name, Margaret Horton Potter, was declared insane at a secret sitting of the county court here yesterday and ordered committed to a sanitarium.

Mrs. Black is a daughter of the late steel manufacturer, Orrin Potter, and is the author of half a dozen well-known novels. When scarcely more than a school girl she wrote a novel which is said to have so thinly veiled the identity of its characters in real life that the entire edition was bought up and suppressed.

Miss Potter was born in 1881 and in in 1902 married John Donald Black, a son of Gen. John C. Black, president of the United States civil service commission and past commander of the Grand Army of the Republic.

NO MARKET FOR BONDS

Water and Light Department Unable to Make Needed Improvements.

Reservoir for Middle System Regarded as Immediate Necessity.

A reservoir for the middle system is looked upon by members of the board of water and light commissioners and other city officials as an absolute and immediate necessity and, although authorized at the last city election to issue $200,000 worth of 4 per cent bonds, the board is unable on account of lack of funds to supply it.

The bond market is not in condition to take an issue of 4 per cent bonds, except at a discount that will mean their equalization to 4½ per cent. The board cannot very well jeopardize the credit of the city by paying a big bonus to some company to take the bonds, so that unless there is a radical change in the condition of the bond market, the bonds will not be sold.

In the meantime, should a big fire break out the middle system would be severely taxed. Should anything happen to the pumps at the station at Fifteenth avenue east or should a main break, the system would be entirely without water for fire protection or private use.

About two years ago, the water and light board purchased a site for a reservoir at Thirteenth street and Second avenue east. When the middle system was installed, the money was not available for the construction of the reservoir and three storage tanks, each holding 250,000 gallons, were installed on the site of the proposed reservoir to serve temporarily for the distribution of water through the system. The tanks, the combined capacity of which does not amount to over a half day's supply for the system, are still there. The pumps are run from twelve to fourteen hours a day to supply the system and they managed to pump enough water into the tanks to supply the needs for the remaining hours.

With such a small amount of water on hand, the possibilities of a breakdown at the pumping station or a break in the main from the pumping station to the tanks are not hard to discern.

Reservoir Is Needed.

Under the circumstances, the board members feel that a big reservoir is needed so that in case of any mishap an adequate supply of water would be on hand for the middle system until repairs could be made. When the bond issue was planned the principal improvement it was designed to finance was a reservoir with a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons for the middle system.

In planning the bond issue and the submission of the question to the people the board failed to forecast the true condition of the bond market at the time the bonds were ready for sale. They were authorized to issue 4 per cent bonds, but when they were prepared to sell them they found that the market was not in a state to receive 4 per cent bonds, except on almost prohibitive terms.

Nothing can be done now and the board can only hope for a pronounced change in the tone of the bond market, for the interest on the bonds cannot be increased over the authorization. It is too late to call a special election for authorization of an issue of 4½ per cent bonds, for the issue could not be floated in time to permit the letting of the contract, the securing of material and the completion of the reservoir before cold weather next fall. Profiting by the experience gained with the West Duluth reservoir, which had to be extensively repaired on account of being damaged by frost before its completion, the board will build no more reservoirs in the late fall.

Judging by present prospects, the middle system will be forced to worry along for an additional year without an adequate reservoir. If the board fails to float the 4 per cent bonds before the first of next year, steps will probably be taken to submit at the next city election the question of issuing 4½ per cent bonds.

Ordinary Extensions to Be Made.

The board has money enough out of its earnings to take care of all ordinary extensions this year, but a number of important extraordinary extensions will have to go over for a year on account of the failure to float the bond issue. Had the money been available, a large main would have been extended through the city to give a more adequate supply to the West end and West Duluth, and another extension would have been made from Sixth street south on Twenty-sixth avenue east to take in a number of dead ends and improve the water supply in the East end.

Although the larger extensions will go over, the board will make a number of ordinary extensions. Forty have already been ordered and petitions for forty-five more have been filed with the board. The surplus earnings of the department will just about take care of all of them.

SUPERIOR

SOO ASKS FOR PERMIT.

Formal Application for Ore Dock Line Made to Railroad Commission.

According to advices received from Madison, the Soo line yesterday filed with the state railroad commission an application for a certificate of convenience and necessity for the construction of a new branch of its road from a point on the main line near the Great Northern crossing through the Ninth ward to the St. Louis bay front where the company ore docks are to be located.

The cost of the work, including grading, trestle work and construction material is placed at $780,000. The line is slightly over six miles in length. The proposed route has met with considerable opposition on the part of Mayor Crumpton, some of the city officials and residents of Billings Park, which will be split in half by the railroad.

The rate commission will hold a hearing before the application is granted.

BOARD HAS BUSY DAY.

Contracts Let for Several Miles of Cement Walks at South End.

The contracts for several miles of cement walks at South Superior were yesterday let to the firm of Berg & Runston by the board of public works. The walks are all to be five feet in width and will cost 77 cents a running foot. The work will be begun at once.

The plat of Johnson's subdivision of diagram lot 178, presented and executed by E. L. Johnson, met the board's approval and will be recorded with the register of deeds. The plat is in the normal school district.

The assessments were approved on two sewers at the East end after a hearing had been held at which there were no objections made on the part of property owners. No complaints were made as to the assessment for the paving of Hughitt avenue.

SALOON KEEPER ARRESTED ON "BLIND PIG" CHARGE.

Because Valentine Maniak, a West Fifth street saloon keeper, is alleged to have sold liquor from his place of residence to her husband, Mrs. Stance Snyder caused his arrest yesterday on a charge of selling liquor without a license. In police court he furnished $100 bail to appear in court on May 13. Mrs. Snyder claims that on Sunday last her husband and other men purchased liquor from Maniak.

Club Leases Cottage.

The Happy Home club has leased the Finch Bros.' log cottage on Minnesota Point for six months beginning May 1. They will furnish their new quarters this week. Last summer the club purchased the Lewis cottage, but it was destroyed by a fire a few weeks ago. It is expected that the club will build next year.

Pioneer Tailor Dies.

Otto Westlund, one of the pioneer tailors at the Head of the Lakes, died this morning at his home in Superior. He was 54 years old and is survived by a wife, two sons and two daughters. He has been in poor health for the past year. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

NUT BEARING TREES.

Many Species of the Hickory—Pecan of the South.

Among our nut bearing trees the hickories are perhaps the best known says the Indiana Farmer. They are strictly North American trees; none now grow in any other part of the world. There are fourteen known species: one Mexican, while the other fourteen grow east of the Rocky mountains. Our own state boasts of six species, of which the shagbark or shellbark is most noted because of its nuts and its peculiar bark.

The wood of most species is tough, strong and flexible—especially valuable for farm implements, tool handles, etc. There is no other kind of fuel that excels dry hickory for heat and brilliancy of flame. No other of our trees bear such valuable nuts. No finer shade trees are to be found. But because of the value of the wood for implements and fuel the finest trees of the forest have been sacrificed and as a consequence the crop of wild nuts is decreasing while the demand is increasing. Nurserymen are now experimenting to find the best method of propagating the trees and improving the varieties.

The Creek and Algonquin tribes of Indians made a drink from the pounded nuts, shells and all, and called it "powcohickora." Recent botanists have adopted the latter part of the Indian name, with a slight change (hickria) as the name of the genus, which seems very fitting.

We scarcely think of the pecan as a hickory, yet it is the largest of our hickories. It is a native of the southern and southwestern counties of the state and grows to perfection in the rich, moist soils of river bottoms. The wood of the pecan is hard, brittle, of a light reddish brown and is the least valuable of all the hickories, except for fuel, and for its nuts which, are collected and sold in all the markets of the North. What the pecan is to the river valley people the shellbark, shagbark and mockernut hickories might, with a little forethought and care, become to the people living on the uplands further north.

The black walnut is a grand tree growing in river bottoms and on hillsides west from Western Massachusetts to Minnesota and southward to Georgia, Florida, Mississippi and Texas. The trunk is tall and straight. The branches are stout and spreading, forming a round topped tree when grown in the open.

The flowers of the walnut are much like those of the hickory except that the pistillate flowers, instead of being yellowish green are of rich red. The pistils as in the case of the hickory divide into two plumy heads.

The nutriment which nature provides for baby walnuts and hickories is stored in the seed leaves. While the pollen is flying from the boughs the forming nut has four communicating chambers in which one embryo plant lives all alone. As the seed leaves are packed with oils and starches for the sustenance of the young tree they swell and stretch and soon occupy the entire four roomed apartment. When they have attained their growth they are lobed and folded so as to fill every cranny of the nutshell in which they lie. This is the reason that the kernels show such irregular surfaces when taken from the shells.

The family's botanic name, Juglans, is derived from Jovis glans—Jove's nut. Roman writers applied this name to the European walnut on account of the excellence of its nuts. Jove's acorn was the walnut of commerce, for curiously enough it was this nut, not the fruit of the oak, which the Romans called an acorn.

HORNS AND TAIL.

Chicago Daily News: Natives of Southern Arabia believe that Christians wear hats only to hide their horns. Formerly the continent of Europe clung to the conviction that the Englishman's nether garments concealed a tail. So late as the reign of Edward VI., according to Bale, "an Englyshman cannot travayle in another land by way of marchandyse or any other honest occupyinge, but it is most contumeliously thrown into his tethe that all Englyshmen have tails." The belief probably arose from the legend of the "Kentish Longtails."

The people of either Canterbury or Strood (for the legend varies) mocked at Becket as he rode by on an ass and cut off the ass's tail. Wherefore they and their descendants were cursed with tails thenceforth. At least so said jesters of other countries, and the slander eventually reacted upon England in general. Another version substitutes St. Augustine and Dorsetshire.

Zenith Council, No. 40, U. C. T. Tickets $1.00.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's council was held this morning at the clubroom of the library. The members desire the summer schools in domestic science and manual training to be continued this year, and the school board will be requested this evening to take up the work in as many schools as possible during the coming months. The board will undoubtedly undertake the work, as it voted to do so last summer, and an appropriation was made, but the vacation schools were not held at the request of the health commissioner, owing to the prevalence of scarlet fever last year. The council hopes that several schools in various parts of the city will be opened for boys and girls during the summer in these two branches.

Mrs. M. R. Balwin, a member of the council and an assistant health commissioner distributed among the council members printed postal cards, which may be sent out at the discretion of the council members to people to call attention to the necessity of cleaning their premises. The card, which has been prepared at the health office, is as follows:

"You desire, no doubt! And we are anxious to make this The City Beautiful. We notice you have an accumulation of ——— on your premises, which is unsightly and likely to become a menace to the public health. You are requested to remove the same as soon as possible. We trust you will co-operate with us voluntarily in this matter, and that it will not be necessary to enforce the ordinance governing those things.

H. E. WEBSTER, M. D.,
Health Commissioner."

The cards will tend to increase the effiency of the health department force by as many as have cards to send out when need arises.

The smoke nuisance in Duluth was spoken of and many protests were uttered against many of the establishments of the city that are offending. The laundries of the city were especially mentioned and the council decided to send a communication to the city council inquiring if the smoke ordinance that was before it at one time had been passed; if it has, why it is not enforced; and if not passed, why not. The members of the Women's council are very anxious that an effective smoke ordinance be rigidly enforced.

The council decided to bring Carrie Bartlett Crane to Duluth for a series of lectures in the autumn on civic improvement and that it will stand sponsor for the series in money not to exceed $150. The Commercial club will probably work with the Women's council in this effort. The lectures will be in October.

A request was received asking the council's support in securing a friendly visitor for Duluth. A committee was appointed to keep in touch with this work and to report to the council the needs in that line.

The Linnaea club asked the help of the council in urging the poor commissioners to make some arrangement at the poor farm for caring of women patients suffering from tuberculosis. The pavilion that was recently erected for the purpose is only arranged so that men patient scan be cared for. The members of the Linnaea club, which has been active in support of the work feel that there is urgent need of further arrangements for women suffering from tuberculosis. The acting president of the council, Mrs. R. N. Marble, was named a committe of one to investigate the conditions and to communicate with the poor commissioners as a representative of the Women's council if the need was evident.

"CHANTECLER" IS A FABLE POEM, SAYS MONSIEUR PAPOT

"Chantecler is going to grow, to become one of the big epic poems of the world" was the emphatic declaration of M. Benedict Papot who is to lecture on Rostand's latest literary effort tonight at 8 o'clock in the assembly room of the Duluth high school. "But do not mistake; it is not really a play—it is a fable poem set on the stage."

Talking informally and with the most apparent enthusiasm for his subject, the French scholar gave a rapid, vivid word outline of the sensational Rostand production.

He said that to appreciate "Chantecler" one must first see it, not from a seat near the stage, but from a distance, so that the proper perspective may be obtained. The stage properties are all in proportion to the size of an ordinary hen, so that a wooden shoe in the foreground is seen to be several feet in height. Because of this fact, some persons who have seen "Chantecler" have gone from the theater scornful of the "absurdity" of the thing, the startling stage settings having prevented them from giving appreciative attention to the lines.

Having seen the fable picture from the rear of the theater, said M. Papot, one should hear the poem from the advantage point of a seat near the stage. Accustomed to the unusual appearance of the stage, he can concentrate his attention on the real "Chantecler."

And even then the playgoer has only begun to appreciate Rostand's latest product. It must be read, not once but many times, before its full force and poetic charm can be appreciated.

"Rostand is the foremost French poet of today," said M. Papot, "but he has been handicapped. The people don't care for poetry in these days. They don't want to read it. So Rostand has gone into the animal realm for his characters, simply to interest the people.

"'Chantecler' is certain to be misunderstood by a large number of people in this country. It cannot be interpreted. It is bound to lose much in translation, and it will not strike a responsive chord here as it has in France.

Chantecler is the national emblem of France. France has the fleur de lise and in Napoleon's day it had the emblem of the bee. But the rooster was the emblem borne on the banners of the army of '93 and has always represented France to the masses of the people. It represents the majority, and in that majority there is a curious mixture. There is the sinew of the nation, its faith in the future, its love for truth, love of poetry, its imagination, with an alloy of materialism.

"The beauty of this Rostand master effort is found in the fact that he ascends to the loftiest realms of poetry, but still keeps a foot on the ground. The familiar domestic animals represented in the cast attract the attention and the poetry tells its message.

"For instance, the blackbird is the Frenchman who delights to pose as a cynic, who is a typical sharp man of the times. He is sardonic and sees only the material side of things. This idea is brought out in a tremendous way by Rostand."

M. Papot quoted Rostand's description of Chantecler:

"Chantecler is a man confident in his work and refusing to let anything prevent him from accomplishing it. He meets the hen pheasant, which typifies the modern woman, emancipated and independent, domineering and jealous of man's work."

He told of the characters in the play and pointed out how they illuminated the fable poem.

"Chantecler is not a play," he said. "You cannot go and see it and get its meaning. I believe it will fail as a play. Those who would appreciate Chantecler must read it, and read it again.

"It has been so widely advertised that tremendous expectations were aroused, and although disappointment has been the result in some quarters, it is Rostand's biggest work."

M. Papot's lecture tonight is under the management of the university extension center and will be introductory to the course on French civilization which is to follow.

Tonight's lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon views.

SONG IS GOOD.

John Forsell Hardly Believes Woman Wrote It.

John Forsell of the Metropolitan Opera company stars will sing at the Lyceum Sunday afternoon. Mr. Forsell has had an unusually successful operatic career, his histrionic ability combining with his well trained voice to make him a figure of prominence even in the company of stars that the Metropolitan gathers. He was asked in an interview at St. Paul recently where he sang in concert after the opera season if he did not find the role of "Tonio" in which he has had great success of much satisfaction.

"Yes, of course, it is," assented Mr. Forsell, "but it is only one of many that I care for. 'Don Giovanni' is the role I have sung most often. Another one that affords great scope for histrionic ability is 'Iago' in 'Othello,' and in Europe I have become closely identified with the name part of Tschaikowsky's great opera, 'Eugen Onegin.' My success in that I attribute chiefly to the feminine public; you know it is the women who determine the popularity of a singer and of his various roles."

Apparently, however, in spite of this declaration, Mr. Forsell is sufficiently imbued with Old World traditions to feel that there is still an inferior sex, for in referring to one of the songs to appear on his program, he said: "It is so good, so good that—pardon me, one can scarcely believe it was composed by a woman."

Entertain for Guest.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. McKindley were hosts at four tables of bridge last evening in compliment to their guest, Mrs. Heber Passmore, of Minneapolis. Mrs. Clinton Markell entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of Mrs. Passmore.

Devotional Service.

The speaker at the Sunday afternoon devotional meeting at the Young Men's Christian association will be the Rev. Alexander Milne of Pilgrim Congregational church. The soloist for the afternoon will be Miss Florence Hyland.

French Classes.

The first meeting of the class in French to be addressed by M. Benedict Papot will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 at the library. M. Papot has lectured on the beauty of the French language to classes all over the country and has received indorsements from chatauquas and individuals who have heard him. The classes at the library are made up largely of people who have studied French in the traditional way and they are impressed with the beauty and charm of the manner in which M. Papot presents his subject.

MOTHERS' DAY

Will Be Observed in Duluth Sunday.

Mother's day will be observed in Duluth Sunday and the florists are laying in a large supply of white carnations for this movement is very wide reaching in its appeal. It is divided by no class of distinctions, desired or undesired, by beliefs or nationalities, race feeling or training. In the very nature of things everybody has had a mother and by that right everybody is eligible to do some little thing Sunday to show that they are pleased that it is so.

The outward badge of your observance will be the wearing of a white carnation, but that is merely to show that you have done some especially nice thing for your mother that day or if by chance she is not still in the land of the living that you have exerted yourself to some other special act of kindness in her memory by sending flowers to the sick at the hospital or a particular treat to the children at the orphans' home or to the unfortunates at the poor farm.

Verses called "The White Carnation" have attracted much attention throughout America where Mothers' day will be observed next Sunday. They follow:

The White Carnation.

"Arms that held us close when our child hearts bled with grief;
Lips that kised the brine-drops from our grimy, childish cheeks;
Eyes that watched our footsteps with a fondness past belief,
This the moving message that the White Carnation speaks:
Fragra,,t is the memory rising at the thought of you;
White as driven snowflakes in the love your love inspires;
Heeded now the lessons that in childhood we were taught of you;
Breathe the incense rising from our praise-fanned altar fires."

Ears that heard our wailing when all others slumbered soundly;
Hands that toiled unendingly and feet that never tired;
Heart that will be loyal though the whole world hate us roundly;
Souls that gave, though in return so little you required,
This one paltry payment on the boundless debt we owe you—
Mother, look across the years and see our simple token!
In its snowy fragrance read that, tard-
ily, we know you;
Take from it the message that long since we should have spoken,
—Book of the Royal Blue.

THE EVENING STORY

THE DAIRYMAID'S STRATEGY

(By Evan Walsh.)

It was one of those days in harvest time when the English farmer improves every hour, and Lizzie Strong, housekeeper and dairymaid for Farmer Hodges, was alone in the farmhouse when an inspector of police and two constables drove up in their trap.

"Where's the farmer?" the inspector asked.

"Over there in the corn with his men," said the maid, pointing to a field of wheat.

"You haven't seen any strangers—suspicious characters—about, I suppose?"

She shook her head.

"Oh, well, I'll just run across and have a talk with the farmer," said the inspector. "Meanwhile, you fellows may as well have a look around the outbuildings."

Lizzie was not so nearly frightened of two constables as she was of one inspector. With a curiosity that was strangely mingled with a feeling of apprehension, she followed them around while she carried out a systematic search of the barns.

"What be you looking for?" she ventured at last to inquire.

"A convict who escaped from the prison yonder," the younger of the constables replied.

"He slipped away in the mist this morning," put in the other policeman. "The sentries fired, but missed, and he got clear off. He's a native of these parts, so we hurried over to warn you all to be on the lookout for him, in case he should come this way."

"Tisn't likely he will, though," said the younger man, consolingly. "He's almost certain to be off towards the railway; so you needn't be afeard to go to bed tonight, my girl."

Lizzie heard him without understanding, however. She had turned pale, and her heart was thumping heavily against her side.

"What is his name?" she asked faintly.

The constable looked at her keenly. "You're frightened!" exclaimed one. "But I assure you you needn't be."

"What do you want to know his name for?" inquired the other.

"Only 'cos you said he was a native of these parts."

The answer satisfied him.

"I see," he murmured. "Dan Gardner—that's his name. Young chap, doing three years for shooting at a keeper during a poaching affray. Did you know him?"

Lizzie shook her head, and further conversation was prevented by the return of the inspector.

"Up you get, lads!" he exclaimed. "He hasn't arrived yet, and if he does, the farmer will detain him and wire for us. But it's a million to one he'll try to get to London."

Away they drove, and Lizzie, with a sinking heart, went slowly indoors.

She and Dan Gardner had not exactly been sweethearts, but he had just begun to "walk out with her" when his arrest, a little more than a year ago, had put a stop to his courtship.

"If he was to come here, I'd hide him, law or no law!" she muttered determinedly.

Slowly she went to her attic, which commanded a full view of the wheat field, and for a moment or two she watched the machines cutting the tall golden corn, tying it up with a string into sheaves and casting them on the ground, whence they were picked up and set on end by two laborers.

The marvel of it fascinated her, often though she had seen it, and she stood there watching, neglecting her work, till—till she became conscious of something in black in the middle of the field—the figure of a man crouching.

She was a quick-witted girl, and at once she guessed who it was—Dan Gardner, the escaped convict!

The situation became clear to her in a flash. Afraid to lie down under a hedge or in a barn, or in any place likely to be searched by his pursuers, he had sought a short rest in the safest hiding place he could think of—a field of tall, ripe wheat. And then, while he slept, the farmer and his men appeared upon the scene, and he was trapped.

Ruthlessly, the machines had started upon their work, and, afraid to show himself for fear of being given up to the police, he had retreated further and further into the heart of the field as more and more of the corn was cut down, postponing as long as possible his inevitable discovery.

"Poor Dan!" thought Lizzie, as she stood there, peering out of the attic window, from which the whole drama, hidden from the men at work in the field on the same level, was painfully visible. "He is bound to be caught in the end and there is nothing I can do to help him."

Then she remembered that at 11 o'clock she was to carry a jug of beer out to the farmer and his men. It was that hour then. She went on her errand, planning all the way how she could get the men away from the field for at least an hour. But she started upon her return with no sort of a plan in her mind.

Suddenly she stood still. Under the hedge was a drum of oil, some machine tools and half a dozen large balls of string. Those wonderful machines that tied and cut up the corn couldn't work without this string any more than a sewing machine can work without cotton.

Furtively she looked around, making sure that there was nobody to see her, then she stopped and gathered the huge balls into her apron and fled back to the house, where she burnt them one by one in the kitchen range.

Ten minutes passed and then, as her anxious ears rejoiced to note, the noise of the cutting ceased. The machines wanted more string.

Five more minutes passed, and then the farmer himself came rushing into the house, red with irritation and haste, followed shortly by his men.

"Put the horses in the stable," he said, angrily. "They might as well rest. And you, Jack, harness up the gig as quickly as you can! I'll drive into town and get some more string. While I'm gone you'd all better put in a spell of hoeing them young turnips."

Storming angrily the farmer drove off, much to Lizzie's secret joy, for the market town was four miles away, and the field of young turnips was at the other end of the farm.

As soon as it was safe she slipped out, and, plunging into the corn that was still standing, called softly:

"Dan—Dan! It's all safe! Come out!"

Very suspiciously and cautiously he came toward her, but when he saw who it was, suspicion and caution were both thrown to the winds.

"Quick!" she said, eagerly. "Go down into the woods and change! See, I have brought you an old suit of clothes that the farmer will never miss! Soon as you're ready, whistle, and I'll come to you with some food, and take your—your clothes away and burn them!"

"What's this?" inquired Dan, when they met again later, pulling a piece of crackling paper out of the pocket of his new coat.

Lizzie blushed.

"Is it yours or the farmer's?" he asked.

"It's—mine," she faltered.

"I can't take it, lass."

"Yes, you can, Dan!" she said, eagerly. "It's half my savings. And, and it will just take you out to Canada and start you afresh."

For quite a time he looked at her thoughtfully, rubbing the back of his close-cut head.

"I'll take it, Lizzie," he said at last. "And heaven bless you for standing by me! I was a young fool; but I have learned my lesson lass. And there will be you to help me to keep straight, won't there, if I get safely away? You're coming out to marry me, aren't you, Lizzie?"

"Yes, Dan, I am!" she whispered, softly.

INTRODUCTIONS AND SOCIAL FORMS

By MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

No question is more frequently asked than this: "How shall I introduce people to one another?"

The matter is perfectly simple. Only a few precautions may be indicated. Note that one introduces a younger lady to an older one, not the reverse, and presents a gentleman to a lady, not a lady to a gentleman.

Thus, introducing a college classmate to one's mother or aunt, one would say, "Mother, this is Myra Betts; Myra, my mother, Mrs. Allen"; or, "Aunt Mary, may I present Miss Chase? Miss Chase, Mrs. Munson." A little ceremony is better than too great informality.

One may say, "Mrs. Brown, may I present Mr. Jones?" Always speak the names very distinctly when introducing people to one another. Never mumble them under your breath. Utter them plainly.

There are ceremonious introductions and unceremonious introductions, premeditated introductions and unpremeditated introductions; but, in all cases, introductions should never be indiscriminately made—that is to say, without a previous knowledge on the part of those making introductions as to whether the persons thus introduced will be likely to appreciate one another, or the reverse, or unless they had expressed a desire to become acquainted; as, for instance, a lady would not introduce two of her acquaintances residing in the same town, although moving in different circles, to each other unless they had expressed such a desire; as an undesired introduction, if made, would oblige the one person, to whom the introduction was the more unwelcome, to treat the other with rude disregard or to continue an acquaintance that was distasteful.

Therefore, should the slightest doubt exist as to how an introduction would be received—whether the meditated introduction was a spontaneous desire on the part of a lady or gentleman that two of his or her friends should become known to each other, or whether one person has expressed a wish to make the acquaintance of another person, and has expressed that wish to a mutual friend—the received rule is to consult the wishes of both persons on the subject before making an introduction. But when a difference of station or age exists between the two persons, it is sufficient to ascertain the wishes of the person of the greater dignity.

The person about to make the introduction should say to Mrs. A—but not in the hearing of Mrs. B.—"May I introduce Mrs. B. to you?" or use some such formula, according to the degree of intimacy existing between herself and Mrs. A.

With regard to his own sex, a gentleman, on the contrary, is generally as exclusive as to the acquaintanceships which he forms as is a lady with regard to the acquaintanceships which she forms. "Reasonocity of taste" is the basis on which acquaintanceships between men are established, subject, in a certain measure, to social position; though this rule is itself subject to wide exceptions.

It is etiquette for a gentleman to ask a mutual friend, or an acquaintance, for an introduction to a lady, and it is the accented rule to do so when a gentleman desires to be introduced to a particular lady; but gentlemen do not ask to be introduced to each other, unless some special reason exists for so doing—some reason that would commend itself to the person whose acquaintance was desired, as well as to the person making the introduction; otherwise, such a wish would appear to be either puerile or sycophantic. Thus the request might meet with a refusal, and the proffered acquaintanceship be declined.

When a lady meets a man whom she knows, it is her privilege to take the initiative and bow first. She should be sure she does know him, and to be sure to catch his eye. Passing or repassing in the street or promenade, a single bow answers every requirement. You need not bow like a Chinese mandarin every time you meet your friend.

Many people are a little in doubt as to introductions out-of-doors, and they are rather a matter of inclination than of strict etiquette. If a young lady were walking out with a lady to whom she was on a visit she would introduce every friend whom she happened to meet, and her hostess would do the same.

In walking it is corect always to keep to the right side of the path. All collisions are avoided by this method.

When two people are walking together the young lady walks on the inner side, as she is supposed to need protection. A gentleman on walking with her must always walk outside, however often he has to change over during the couse of the walk, and a married lady would also take care to place the unmarried girl inside.

A gentleman always allows a lady to take precedence except when the contrary is necessary for her protection; for instance, he would go first to clear a way for her in a crowd or leaving a building that is crowded. In entering a hotel dining room she goes first.

A lady usually takes precedence, yet it is sometimes difficult for a girl newly out of the school room to remember that times are altered for her and she is now to be waited upon like a queen.

A young lady and, for that matter, an older one, should know how to accept attentions with grace and ease. It is proper that doors should be opened for her and she should pass through them first, that her parcels should be carried and that her errands up and down the house should be undertaken cheerfully by her brothers, cousins and kinsmen—never, however, by her father or any elderly masculine relative.

TRY THIS DINNER

Black Bean Soup.

Soak one quart of black beans twelve hours. Boil them in three pints of water for two and a half hours, or until they are tender; then strain them through a fine wire sieve. Replace on the stove and boil for ten minutes more, adding salt and pepper to the taste. Now pour into a warm tureen and add two hard-boiled eggs cut into dice and one lemon thinly sliced. Serve at once.

Ment—Creole Chicken Gumbo.

On small chicken, one-half pound ham, one quart fresh okra, three large tomatoes, two onions, one small red pepper, two tablespoonsful flour, three quarts of boiling water, one bay leaf and salt.

In Louisiana especially chicken gumbo is a much-prized dish. When making it remember that the ham should be rather fat. The okra should be sliced thin, and if you have none that is fresh use a can. If you have no fresh tomatoes use a small can; every seed must be removed from the red pepper; the salt will be a matter of taste, although you will require about three teaspoonsful.

After frying the ham take it out and brown the chicken slightly in the fat. When this has been done take the chicken up and into the fat remaining in the pan put the onions, minced, the okra and flour. Cook for about twenty-five minutes, stirring frequently, taking care that the mixture in the soup pot; then rinse the frying pan with a little water and pour the water on the vegetables. Cut the pepper into small pieces and wash well in order to make sure that no seeds are left. Now add the ham, chicken, tomatoes, water, bay leaf and salt. Boil up once, then set back where the dish will simmer slowly for two hours, stir every little while to prevent burning. Serve with plain boiled rice.

Vegetables—Stuffed Tomatoes.

Select firm, smooth tomatoes. Cut a slice from the stem nds, and with a spoon dig out the insides, leaving just enough of the tomato in the skins to make them keep their shape firmly. Place the tomato pulp in a sieve, press out most of the juice, then turn into a mixing bowl; to it add one cupful of well-toasted bread crumbs, one-half cupful of ground nut meats, a little finely chopped parsley, sage or thyme and a little salt. One teaspoonful of chopped onion may be added if desired. Fill the tomatoes with this mixture, heaping it above the opening, and bake slowly. Serve plain or with a cream of brown sauce.

Dessert—Grape Fruit Sherbet.

Scoop the pulp carefully from the fruit and separate it into small pieces; boil two cupfuls of sugar with one of water, to it add two teaspoonsful of dissolved gelatin and two pints of water and lastly two dozen chopped candied cherries; when cold mix in one pint of fruit with juice; freeze and serve in glasses decorated with whole cherries.

HINTS FOR BOUDOIR

By MILDRED WYCKOFF.

Gardening as a Cosmetic.

If there is opportunity about the home to do gardening it will be found very helpful in preserving health and looks. The physical benefit derived depends largely on the muscular effort which is made. The bending of the body, the exercise of arms in digging and weeding are better than any physical culture exercises in existence.

The girl who rolls the lawn, who pulls the lawn mower up and down for fifteen minutes daily, is developing her chest and arms and lungs at the same time. But the great thing is not to overdo it. Garden till you are pleasantly tired, but not till you are exhausted, if you want it to do you real good.

Troubled by a Double Chin.

"I am very troubled," writes Elsie V., "because my chin is becoming so fat; in fact, it is almost a double chin. Can you help me?"

I think you will find an improvement in your chin if you persevere with the following treatment: After bathing the chin in warm water place a little good face cream in the palms of your hands and firmly massage the superfluous flesh in an upward direction. Do this regularly every night and you will find a good result.

For a Thin Neck.

Stand erect, with the feet together, place the hands with the tips of the fingers rather far back on the shoulders, raise the arms far back on the shoulders, raise the arms until the elbows are level with the shoulders, count one. Bring the elbows sharply to the side, count two; fling out the arms with the hands extended, count three; drop the arms to the sides, count four.

USES FOR COTTON SEED.

Baltimore American: "There isn't one man in 10,000 who has the remotest idea of the vast number of uses to which the once despised cotton seed is now being put," said Capt. B. J. Holmes of New Orleans.

"From the clean seed are obtained linters and meats and hulls, the hulls making the best and most fattening feed for cattle that has yet been found. From the linters are gathered material for mattresses, felt, wads, paper, rope and a grade of underwear and likewise cellulose, out of which gun cotton is made. The meats furnish oil and meal, the oil after refining being now in almost universal use in the kitchens of this and other countries. Before refinement to the edible stage the oil is known under many names, such as salad oil, sterine, winter oil and white oil, oleomargarine being the product of sterine. The white oil is the chief ingredient in compound lards. The original oil, also known as soap stock, has fatty acids used in the manufacture of soaps, roofing tar, paints and glycerine, and from this comes the explosive nitro-glycerine. I might also add that the meal, aside from its use as cattle provender, is transformed into bread, cake, crackers and even candy. Last of all come the doctors, who are saying that this wonderful seed is a boon to the sick, since from its oils an emulsion is prepared that has been known to be of value in tuberculosis and other ailments.

BUTTER HAS A DECLINE

Increased Supplies of Dairy Grades Send Creamery Prices Off.

Eggs Unchanged---Potatoes Are Still Cheapest Staple on Market.

Butter prices eased off this week, creamery declining from 31c to 30@30½c. Other varieties held firm, dairy selling at 24c and packing at 21½c. The market is in a healthy condition and the demand is good. The decline in prices for higher grades is due to the increased supply of dairy products which is common at this season of the year. Milk and cream values usually decline about May 1 and with the reduction in prices of cream the values of butter also take a downward trend. Poor grades held firm, but the supplies of high class creamery were so large that dealers made slight concessions to stimulate the consumptive demand. The fight between the Chicago members of the Elgin butter board and the Elgin members was expected to bring about a break in values, but the members apparently are patching up their differences and the public will not hear the inside of the dispute unless Uncle Sam or the state of Illinois makes an investigation.

Dairy butter has met with a ready sale and values have held firm. This class of butter has been meeting with considerable favor and the consumptive demand is good. With the slight concession in prices for creamery there was no pronounced increase in the demand for this description. Retailers have a habit of neglecting to give the consumer the benefit of reduction by wholesalers and frequently a reduction of values by the receiver does not produce a lowering of prices by the retailers.

The cheese market was erratic. The demand for the fancy American makes was excellent and values firm. Full cream advanced from 16c to 16½c. For some time the foreign makes have been in favor with the public, but the popular taste seems to have turned toward American descriptions. Most Swiss makes lost ground, block Swiss declining from 22c to 21c. Primost lost 1c from 9c and wheel Swiss advanced ½c to 22½c. Limburger declined from 18c to 17c, concessions being made to stimulate a waning demand.

The egg market is unchanged from a week ago, values holding firm at 21 cents. Earlier in the week values were somewhat erratic, but toward the close prices became steady, and today eggs sold at the same prices that prevailed a week ago. Eggs continue to arrive in generous quantities, but the demand is good and there is no necessity to depress values to move supplies. The speculative aspect of the market is not disturbing. The load has proved heavy for the speculative element, and their activity has been less insistent than formerly.

The potato market is still weak and depressed. Receivers are paying from 14 to 20 cents and are selling at from 27 to 28 cents. Supplies are pressing on the market and are sufficient to make a heavy surplus when the new yield is ready for market. Only the better descriptions are being handled and the nubbins and poorer varieties are being fed by farmers to stock. The starch mills can buy high-class potatoes cheaper than they usually obtain culls. Under these circumstances there is no possibility of an immediate improvement in the market. From the standpoint of the public the market is in an excellent shape, as the potato is the cheapest food, comparatively, among the so-called staples.

Beef and mutton are unchanged at 8½@11½ cents and 15½ cents respectively. Veal is slightly firmer, selling at 10½ to 11½ cents. Lamb is unchanged at 17 cents and lard is slightly higher at 14¾ cents. Dressed poultry and live hens are unchanged. Receipts are sufficient to meet the fair demand.

* * *

The trade in green goods and fruit has been helped by the warmer weather. Receivers can display their goods without fear of damage from cold, and this has helped to stimulate sales. Prices have held firm, as the demand for all classes of green stuff has been excellent and supplies have moved readily.

How to Stop Drinking.

It was formerly customary for the habitual drinker to take the pledge regularly, sometimes once a year, and sometimes in every fit of remorse that followed his debauches, and then —Break it.

But now it is gradually dawning on the world that pledges do not stop drunkenness. The nervous system of the habitual drinker is diseased and he must have treatment that will cure this condition. Orrine is sold under a positive guarantee to cure the drink habit or the money will be refunded. Can be given secretly.

Write for free booklet on the Cure of Alcoholism to the Orrine Co., 457 Orrine Building, Washington, D. C. Mailed sealed. Orrine costs but $1 per box. Sold in this city by W. A. Abbett, 129 West Superior street, 930 East Second street and 101 West Fourth street.

SIGHT OF KIN SAVES MEXICAN

Three Generations Rush to Bedside of Rich Evariso Madero.

Galveston Tex., May 6.—When Senor Evariso Madero, one of the wealthiest men of Mexico and for years governor of Coahuila, who has been sojourning in San Antonio for several weeks for his health, believed he was near death, he notified his son and physicians that he wanted to see his children and their children and their children's children.

A message was dispatched to Monterey, Mex., and immediately the family was gathered from far and near. The members numbered 105, including several sons and several daughters, fifty-two grandchildren and thirty-nine great grand children. A special train brought them to the border and from there they traveled in two special sleepers to the City of the Alamo, where a small hotel was leased for them.

Senor Medero is 74 years old, and he declared when all the members of the family were gathered that he never had seen so good a sight before. It is worth a $1,000,000, he added. His physicians say Madero has improved wonderfully since his guests' arrival, and, while not out of danger from the pneumonia which has tareatened him, shows signs of recovery.

Only ten of the children had ever crossed the border of Mexico before. They were given every comfort on their journey and in and around San Antonio.

Senor Madero has been for many years engaged in the cattle business and is one of the largest land owners in Mexico. He is said to be worth $30,000,000 and was once prominent in political circles, being a close friend of President Diaz and having served as governor of Coahuila for twenty years.

The sick man declares he will now recover and says that if his physicians will permit it he will take at least fifty of his children and grandchildren on a trip through the United States as a token of his appreciation of their prompt response to his request to come to him.

THEO. G. FRERKER, Secretary.

R. C. DUNN TO SPEAK.

At the Approaching Memorial Day Exercises in Brainerd.

Brainerd, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the last meeting of the Commercial club steps were taken to insure the success of the observance of Memorial day.

Judge Fleming announced that he had engaged the services of R. C. Dunn of the Princeton Union to deliver the principal address, and had secured the opera house for the speaking and exercises.

Short addresses will be made by local men, Prof. Cobb having been selected for one, and the others will be announced later. The school children will take part in the program, and a representative of the Sons of Veterans was on hand at the meeting to offer the services of the firing squad for the forenoon exercises. The completion of the program was left to Col. Halsted and Comrade Congdon, and as soon as it is completed it will be announced.

THREE HOLD-UP MEN DRAW LIFE TERMS.

Chicago, May 6.—Convicted of holding up and robbing William Misner, a merchant, of $55 and a watch, Michael McKevitt, Fred Vogt and Joseph Glunski, were sentenced to life terms in the Joliet penitentiary here by a jury in Judge Barnes' court.

SUMMER LOGGING ON LARGE SCALE

St. Louis River Logging Company Pushing Work on Fond du Lac Reserve.

Brookston, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Summer logging operations are about to begin on the Fond du Lac reservation, and on a large scale. The St. Louis River Logging company, which is operating a camp three miles southwest of this village, has begun the work of building a camp in the southeastern part of the reservation. The location of a spur track has been decided upon, and a crew is now cutting out the right-of-way. The track runs out from Pine Grove on the Northern Pacific railway.

When the new camp is ready for a full crew there will be about 150 men employed. The company has but one year under its contract with the government to finish its operations on the reservation, an it will be necessary to do a great amount of logging this summer and next winter in order to clean up the work by July 1 of next year.

DECLINES TO PAY FINE.

So Wealthy Stevens Point Man Is Working Out Penalty.

Stevens Point, Wis., May 6.—Joseph Ritchie, a retired farmer and capitalist, probably the wealthiest citizen of the Sixth ward, has been doing time at hard labor on the street unloading and piling bridge planks to be used in replanking the city bridge.

His present predicament grew out of an altercation which took place in Forest cemetery with Walter Kline. Mr. Ritchie was endeavoring to hire a man to work for him, when, it is alleged, Mr. Kline cut in with a few remarks which Mr. Ritchie hotly resented, and Mr. Kline had him arrested on a charge of using language tending to provoke a breach of the peace and also for assault.

Mr. Ritchie pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, $8.65 in all, with the alternative of twenty days in jail. Mr. Ritchie declined to pay the fine.

OLEO FRAUDS ARE ON INCREASE, SAYS CABELL.

Washington, May 6.—"Selling oleomargarine for butter no longer is an offense according to the courts," declared Commissioner of Internal Revenue Cabell before the appropriations committee of the house, referring to the effect of recent decisions.

Commissioner Cabell told the committee that there has been a steady increase in oleomargarine frauds and that the decisions of the courts, particularly in New Jersey, Kentucky, Missouri and Colorado, have deprived the government of the right to assess penalties and to enter and search premises without warrafnts.

Much Timber Hung Up.

International Falls, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Millions of feet of logs and pulpwood are hung up in the streams tributary to Rainy river. The boom and sorting works of the International Lumber company at Loman are ready for business, and in consequence our milling interests are looking forward anxiously for showers which will swell the streams and bring out the timber.

THE HILLSIDE STREET RAILWAY EXTENSION.

The proposed extension of the street railway lines above Fourth street in the East end seems a wise and progressive move.

If Duluth is to have more workers—and beyond any question Duluth is going to have more workers—there must be places for them to live. The proposed extension will make available a wide stretch of city property that is but sparsely settled now because it is a little out of reach. Many workers have bought home sites in that section, and many have built homes. Beyond question many more would build homes there if the street cars went up the hill as proposed. Recent developments on the hillside in the East end between Fourth street and the boulevard have been greater than many imagine whose walks do not lead them in that direction. If there are not enough patrons there now to make the extension pay, there would be very shortly.

From the city's viewpoint, the extension would open up a great many sites for cheap homes for workingmen. From the street railway company's viewpoint, there is at least a possibility of enough present traffic to make the extension pay, and a certainty that before very long the proposed extension will become one of its most remunerative lines.

Street railways cannot always wait for traffic to lead the way. Often they must lead where there is a certainty that traffic will follow immediately. There are enough residents now in the section affected to provide a possibility of profit, and by making available for occupancy so much new territory that is greatly needed for workingmen's homes the company can do the city a service and at the same time insure itself a profitable business in the very near future.

THE TUBERCULOSIS FUND.

While the response to the appeal for funds to continue the fight against tuberculosis in Duluth has been prompt and gratifying, it is still far short of what is needed.

To continue the work another year, including the services of the visiting nurse who has done such amazingly good work in the past year, $3,000 is needed.

Up to last night the contributions were considerably short of $1,000.

This is a splendid work, and it deserves every dollar that can be put into it. The results from it so far are incalculable. The visiting nurse, Mrs. Florence Lee, is a capable, energetic and effective worker, and already she has done a world of good. She has ministered to the sick, taught the well how to care for themselves, and made herself a center of education and active work that has counted enormously.

Such work must not be permitted to fail for lack of public interest.

PRUDISHNESS AND PRURIENCE.

In a Long Island community not long ago the Carnegie library lacked mural adornment. One of the trustees conceived the idea of framing photographs of many masterpieces of classic statuary and hanging them on the walls.

A pretty scheme, one would think; and a plan likely to serve the purpose admirably until the community was able to afford proper decorations. You would think that it would have been accepted with satisfaction by the public. There is such a charming relationship between beautiful statuary and good books that the trustee's scheme of decoration should have struck everybody as peculiarly fitting. The city couldn't buy the original statuary but it could buy good photographs, so that seemed the next best thing.

But the women of that community began to hold mass meetings, attended and supported by some bipeds who called themselves men, and at these meetings the classic works of art pictured in the photographs were condemned as improper and wicked, shocking to the minds of the mature and tending to corrupt the young. You would have thought, wouldn't you, that the only effect to these meetings would have been to bestir the risibilities of the community into a raucous laughter? Not so; the public sentiment of that community was reflected by them to such a degree that the condemned photographs were precipitously removed, and they no longer give offense to that saintly village.

This isn't the first instance of a sort of sanctimonious pruriency that is altogether too common in this country, and that is a far greater evil in itself than any really obscene picture. What can be the condition of a mind which sees offense in the undraped figure of a goddess, carved in enduring marble? Never was the kinship between prudishness and pruriency more conclusively proved than by such cases as this.

If we had the patience to follow the history of that community, we shouldn't be at all surprised to find that the sewing circles are busily engaged in making trousers for the chickens, robes for the horses and dresses for the cows. A community that would be affronted by photographs of the world's greatest statuary, simply because the sculptors were not making fashion plates and had no mind to waste their genius in carving gowns and draperies to conceal the beautiful lines of the human figure, must have a state of morals that is depressingly low.

The offense lies not in the statues nor in the photographs, but in the nasty minds of those who affect to find them improper. That sort of morality, the sort which would buy Mother Hubbard gowns for the Venus of Milo, is one of the most unpleasant varieties of immorality that humanity presents.

CARNEGIE ON POST MORTEM WEALTH.

There is an interesting difference in the views of Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Rockefeller, who are the two men in this country likely to leave the hugest piles of dollars behind them when they die.

Both, apparently, have reconciled themselves to the unpleasant knowledge that they can't lug a penny of their fortunes off with them when they die.

But while Mr. Rockefeller is trying to work out a scheme to leave his fortune in a block to remain undisturbed indefinitely, only the interest to be used for the benefit of helpful projects, Mr. Carnegie thinks that no man has a right to tie up a tremendous fortune after he dies, and he believes that the government ought to take at least half of it through an inheritance tax.

One newspaper, commenting on Mr. Carnegie's recent repetition of his theory about post mortem wealth, inquires: "Can it be that the iron master is quietly 'knocking' the oil king's remarkable project?" That isn't quite fair to Mr. Carnegie, of course, because he gave publicity to his ideas long before the world knew of Mr. Rockefeller's plans, and probably before Mr. Rockefeller thought of them.

There is little doubt which plan is better. There is no doubt whatever which plan is wiser and more logical. In both cases, the people made the fortunes. In both cases, the people ultimately should get the benefit of them. But either is better than the commoner plan of leaving a fortune to ruin a family and to make its members utterly useless to society.

Nevertheless, Mr. Carnegie's idea is better than Mr. Rockefeller's. The people were not consulted in the making of these fortunes. It is only fair that they should be consulted as to their disposal. Mr. Rockefeller wants to dictate the methods of disposing of his fortune, through an indefinite number of generations; Mr. Carnegie is quite willing to let the people take half his fortune as an inheritance tax, and do with it as they please.

Mr. Carnegie certainly should be taken at his word, and, as equality should be the object of a democracy, all others similarly situated should be treated similarly, including Mr. Rockefeller.

No man has an inherent right to bequeath anything. Such rights are conferred only by law, which comes, theoretically, from the people. If that right can be conferred by law, it can be restricted by law; and restriction would be a good thing for society, for the people, and even for the prospective heirs who might be deprived of part of their inheritance by a radical inheritance tax law.

Cases where the inheritance of vast fortune is beneficial to the inheritors are very rare. Cases where such inheritance is equivalent to the legacy of a curse are very common. Man can achieve his inherent potentialities only by effort; and the inheritance of fortunes that eliminate the need of effort therefore is evil.

Whatever may be said for the right of a man to hold through his life time that which he gathers by his own efforts, there is little to be said for the right of those who did not earn that fortune to inherit it. Some time, maybe, government will limit the amount any person can inherit, and will make the limit small enough to insure the inheritor against both deprivation and corrupting ease.

THE OPEN THEATER.

Congratulations to Charles A. Marshall, owner of the Lyceum theater, and to the theater-going public of Duluth, on the highly interesting and important news that the Lyceum theater hereafter will be an "open house," and that its bookings will no longer be limited to those made by a single concern. In other words, hereafter Duluth will get the pick of the going stage productions, instead of being restricted to those which Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger choose to send to Duluth. The many excellent productions booked by that house will continue to come, but in addition Duluth will receive those booked by the Shuberts, whose bookings include many first-class attractions which Duluth hasn't been able to see in the past because of the closed theater policy which is now quite generally breaking down.

The same benefits will flow, by this new arrangement, to the immense territory covered by the Marshall, Walker and Cort circuits, which extend from the Soo to the Pacific coast, and north to Winnipeg as well as south to Salt Lake city.

Among the "stars" booked by the Shuberts, none of whom could have come to Duluth had it not been for the inauguration of this new and enlightened policy, are E. H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, Maxine Elliott, Forbes-Robertson, Grace George, William Faversham, Marie Dressler, Bertha Kalich, Nazimova, Mary Mannering and Wilton Lackaye.

The public of Duluth desires the best attractions, and it is entitled to them. While doubtless the old arrangement was the best available at that time, the new one is infinitely better, and Manager Marshall is to be commended for making it.

FOOD FRAUDS.

That eternal vigilance is the price of pure food and drink was made clear once more by the report in The Herald last evening of the result of examining 244 samples in Minnesota during last month. Almost half were found to be unlawful; 121, to be exact. These samples were collected from dealers all over the state.

Among four samples of wine, two were imitation. Baking powder cans were found untruthfully labelled, catsup had too much benzoate of soda, packages of corn meal didn't contain as much as they purported to contain, many samples of candy contained dangerous coal tar dyes, some extracts were incorrectly labelled and several were below standard, a number of linseed oil samples were condemned, milk samples were found to be too thin, olive oil was found to be composed largely of cottonseed oil, packages of spice were found that were not up to weight, and sugars and vinegars were discovered to be adulterated and mislabelled.

On the other hand, a great many samples examined proved to be sound and wholesome, with labels that told the truth. On the whole, the showing is vastly better than would have been possible before the pure food laws were passed. No pure food law will protect the public unless it is enforced, and the dwindling proportion of dishonest food products shows that enforcement is fairly vigorous. Minnesota, in all probability, is doing about as well as any of the states in this respect.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

ANOTHER REPLY TO RABBI LEFKOVITS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I read with some astonishment the expression of Mr. Lefkovits about prohibition as published in the last Saturday Herald. His utterance is a fair example of the blunders and mistakes "Pulpiters" make when they attempt to testify of things they know nothing about. Prohibition is not religion nor a religious creed nor absolutism, but a moral political movement, uplifting and cleansing our present Christian civilization from the evils and abuses that arise from out of the manufacture and use of intoxicating drinks. I freely admit that if all persons were temperate in their use there would be no warranty for prohibition either in Judaism or christianity, but as their use has been abused under both, prohibition becomes both a moral and a political necessity. Under the Mosaic institution Isaiah said, "Woe unto them that are strong drinkers,—Woe unto them that mix strong drinks," and Paul proclaimed "No drunkard should inherit the Kingdom of God."

If prohibition is contrary to justice, to inalienable rights of life, then prohibition of poison, of burglary, murder and all other crimes is likewise.

If prohibition is unreligious, then drunkards and debauchers must be considered saints according to the Rabbi's thinking.

I claim that while all our churches make one sober man, the liquor traffic makes five or more drunkards.

But charity covers many mistakes. I will not blame the Rabbi for his view. He probably judges prohibition by the rampant acts of absolutists such as Carry Nation with her ax, and police chiefs arresting peaceable men in their own houses without semblance of cause, complaint, or warrant, magistrates with more wind than wisdom, justifying unwarranted imprisonment with many other things of like nature.

He may also have taken notice that many of our ministers call every man a drunkard who enters a saloon and takes a glass of beer, and at once pass him off to the hot place, although they, themself, vote for and with the whisky parties.

A friend of mine said he had offered prominent men in several denominations to talk on prohibition, but no one had yet called on him, hence Mr. Lefkovits must, to a great extent, be excused for his utterance, respectfully. G. H

Duluth, May 5.

One of Those Days.

Waverly, Iowa, Democrat: The busy month of April, amidst sunshine and foliage, has become celebrated as the month in which the ardent lover, having wooed and won his lady love, leads her to the altar. It is fitting and proper that it should be so for then if ever come perfect days which are so in harmony with their youth and gay spirits. Last Thursday, April 14, was one of those days, though a little cloudy, and amidst the beauties of foliage and the various flowers which seldom make their appearance so early in the springtime Mr. Louis Heine and Miss Millie Hay, with the Rev. Herbst officiating, were united in holy wedlock. Decorations and vehicles were most elaborate in white ribbons and yellow and white daisies, and were very popular in appearance. The bride wore a beautiful cream bengaline silk dress trimmed with pearl garniture, silver cloth, and silk over lace. She wore a wax wreath with a silk veil, which made her very popular in appearance. The groom was attired in a suit of black serge. The bride's gown was purchased at the James Black dry goods store of Waterloo, and the groom's suit was made by the Glasgow tailors, also of Waterloo.

"All Roads That Lead to God Are Good."

All roads that lead to God are good.
What matters it, your faith, or mine?
Both center at the goal divine
Of love's eternal brotherhood.

The kindly life in house or street,
The life of prayer, and mystic rite,
The student's search for truth and light,
These paths at one great junction meet.

Before the oldest book was writ,
Full many a prehistoric soul
Arrived at this unchanging goal,
Through changeless love that led to it.

What matters that one found his Christ
In rising sun or burning fire,
If faith within him did not tire,
His longing for the truth sufficed.

Before our modern hell was brought
To edify a modern world,
Full many a hate-filled soul was hurled,
In lakes of fire by its own thought.

A thousand creeds have come and gone,
But what is that to you and me?
Creeds are but branches of a tree,
The root of love lives on and on.

Though branch by branch proves withered wood,
The root is warm with precious wine;
Then keep your faith and leave me mine;
All roads that lead to God are good.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Upholding a Boss' Dignity.

Lippincott's: "The 'boss' who disdains to accept an occasional hint from a subordinate is bound some time to have his egotism come a cropper," remarked Walt McDougall, the "dean of American cartoonists." "I once had a controlling interest," he went on, "in an up-state amusement park. The venture wasn't panning out well financially, so I resolved upon a strict examination into the methods of the manager.

"Bright and early one morning I arrived at the park, where I found several workmen engaged in the construction of a new 'feature.' Near by sat a man, idly watching. Ah, this was indeed suggestive of lax system!

"'Come with me sir!' said I sternly to the workman.

"He followed without a word.

"'Mr. Jones, pay this man off,' I abruptly ordered the manager, when we arrived at the local office.

"'But, Mr. McDougall—'' began that official.

"'That will do,' I replied with increasing indignation. 'Give him a day's wages at once!'

"When the fellow was paid and had vanished with amazing celerity, I demanded:

"'Now, sir, perhaps you can give me some reason for hiring such worthless vagabonds.'

"'Why, Mr. McDougall,' he was finally able to explain, 'that fellow was never in our employ; he was merely a spectator!'"

The End of a Poor Joke.

Boston Traveler: The Lodge inquiry into the cost of living has been given up because congress will not appropriate $65,000 more for expenses. Thus the people will save $65,000, which will help some, and a national joke comes to an end.

Verbum "Sap."

Through the earth one longing speeds,
Buds are sprouting, green the meads,
Songs of bird pervade the breeze;
The Sap is rising in the trees!

Men and women feel this hour,
Strive to break the finite's power,
Long to conquer! Ride the seas!
The Sap is rising in the trees!

Out, his soul, the man would sing;
(Restless, great, imprisoned thing),
'Scaping grasp, a Vision flees!
The Sap is rising in the trees!

Then he knows that he is one,
Withn he earth, and sky, and sun;
All are striving Life to seize,
The Sap is rising in the trees!
—Pall Mall Gazette.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Aldrich Is But An Instrument.

Warroad Commonwealth: Senator Aldrich has announced that he will retire from the United States senate when his present term expires, next March. But that does not mean that we are to have an end of Aldrichism. Senator Aldrich is but an instrument of the system, and so long as the people tolerate the system and support the men, it puts up for public office, so long will the system find Aldriches to do its bidding in cabinet and congress.

The Strenuous Life.

Cannon Falls Beacon: What with Cannon mounted on their backs, congressional districts going Democratic, the Indiana platform and the din made by the impending Roosevelt, the gang in control of congress is fast coming to agree with "Fra Elberta's," definition of life. "Life," says Hubbard, 'is just one damn thing after another."

The "System" Must Go.

Little Falls Herald: Aldrich, Hale and Cannon may go, but so long as the "system" is powerful, they will be replaced by others as subservient, if not as able.

A Rich Country.

Warren Sheaf: Iron ore has been found within the city limits of Bemidji. Hard telling what riches may be found under these Northern Minnesota towns.

Sour Grapes.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: From a general size-up of the situation we infer that the Republicans don't want the durned old house of representatives anyway.

That's Probably True.

Red Wing Republican: The Canadian minister of agriculture makes the prediction that by 1950 the United States will have a population numbering 200,000,000, and that they will be quite largely dependent upon Canada for wheat, since the wheat yield is not increasing in America in ratio with the population.

The Editor's Trials.

Walker Pilot: These are certainly strenuous days for the newspaper man. With contributions from the spring poet on one hand, and free advertising from politicians on the other, the average editor feels like grabbing his mail and jumping into the waste basket with it, and staying there till a change of season brings about a change in conditions, both political and poetical.

A Stiff Jolt for Jadam.

Eveleth News: J. Adam Bede declares President Taft has done more for the country in the first year of his administration than did President Roosevelt during his first entire term. J. Adam has gained what fame is his as a joker, but we believe it is as the champion lickspittle that he has earned distinction. At one time funny, since becoming a down-and-outer, he is nauseating.

"There Are None So Blind," Etc.

Warroad Plaindealer: Aldrich and Cannon are both going to retire from congress. Both of them were among the high tariff disciples of McKinley, who brought about the protective tariff that has built up the manufacturing interests of this country from almost nothing to the largest of any in the world, and both of them failed to recognize that after the industries were built up they did not need so much protection—in fact, that some of them have gotten so strong that the people of the country need to be protected against them.

When Mother's Away.

When mother's away from the children and me,
Nefarious schemes we contrive for our fun;
The Oldest, the Youngest, and Quarter-Past-Three
Let riot obtain as we seldom have done;
We ride a cock horse way to Banbury Cross—
The furniture meets irreparable loss.
And everything's scattered awry and a-toss,
Our house is the noisiest under the sun
When mother's away!

When mother's away and our tea time is nigh
We gather at table in solemn estate,
The wee little, three little children and I,
And never were diners more prim and sedate!
But one little girlie shuns crumpets and tea,
And one little girlie "ain't hungry, 'oo see,"
And, oddly enough, it is true of all three;
And even, I, I am willing to say,
Just wearily drum on the rim of my plate
When mother's away.

When mother's away and their bed hour chimes,
They gather around and they ask me for all
The fables and stories and nursery rhymes
That fondest of fathers could ever recall!
The one of the prince and his wonderful snail—
The sailor who rode on the back of a whale—
With only one ear on the trend of the tale,
The other ear open and listening that they
Can hear her dear step on the stair in the hall,
When mother's away!
—John D. Wells in the Buffalo News.

Republics.

Ellis O. Jones in Life: A republic is an agreement among a body of people that on and after a certain date nothing shall be done differently. This agreement is solemnly made, put into writing and is called a constitution for convenience.

A republic is usually a very good thing at the time it is formed, and the only point on which men differ is as to just how long a self-respecting republic should last. It stands to reason, of course, that if republics come tripping upon the heels of one another in too frequent succession all the waking hours of the people would be uselessly taken up with mere disagreements of agreements.

On the other hand, history seems to show that the best kind of republic is a new republic.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

St. Paul's church was well filled this afternoon, the occasion being the funeral of Dr. S. S. Walbank. Rev. W. M. Barker conducted the Episcopal ceremony. About twenty-five members of the St. Louis County Medical society attended the funeral in a body. The pallbearers were Messrs. Bywater, E. E. Collins, Peyton, Luther Mendenhall, Munger and A. M. Miller. The medical society has adopted memorial resolutions, prepared by a committee composed of C. A. Stewart, William Alden and F. O. Sherwin. Resolutions have also been adopted by the chamber of commerce tendering sympathy to the bereaved family.

A letter addressed to the "President of Duluth, America," was received at the mayor's office this morning. It was written by Mrs. Sarah Elsey of Grimes Hope, Sheffield, Eng., who asked for information concerning her husband, who left home four years ago and has not been heard from for two years. He was then in Duluth, laid up with rheumatism.

Capt. Twichell, Clark Crawford and Stewart Wickham of the passenger steamer City of Traverse, which left port today for Chicago, held an impromptu levee this morning, at which a number of invited friends were gathered. The boat has a number of excursion parties booked from Chicago to Duluth during this season.

The Duluth public library board last evening decided to offer the position of librarian to Olin S. Davis, now in charge of the public library at Topeka, Kan., where he has been for three years. He spent a long time in Columbia college library school and library, and was under Dr. Poole in the Chicago public library. He is 26 years of age.

Fargo men who arrived in Duluth today brought the sad news that M. W. Green, the well-known Fargo lawyer, was dead.

Tariffs and Cost of Living.

J. Laurence Laughlin in Scribner's Magazine: Another cause of the higher cost of living—one which is especially operative in the United States and the continental countries of Europe—is the increasing rates of customs of tariffs and of taxation due to militarism. It is impossible to attribute the generally higher prices due to the heavy load of taxation laid upon the consumer to a general cause like the cheapening of gold. In the United States the enormous sums spent by our national government on harbors and rivers, on pensions, on the army, and especially on the new navy, must be paid for by somebody; and that somebody is the consumer of the taxed goods. On an average imported dutiable goods are increased in price to the American consumer by over 40 per cent. But, to the extent that importations are impended, not all of this tax of over 40 per cent goes to the government, but much of it goes to the protected interests. The duties are so high as not to be revenue duties, and our treasury gets only about $300,000,000 of this tax, or less than half of its annual expenditure. The truth is just coming home to the mass of people that our extremely high protective duties have raised the expenses of producing many goods, raised prices, and raised the cost of living to every family throughout the length and breadth of the land. This is one reason why industrial activity today spells "hard times" for the unorganized consumer.

Some of our public men are not dealing fairly with the people, when they direct attention solely to the Panyne-Aldrich act of 1909 and assert that it has in sime respects lowered duties. Suppose that it had done so, as compared with the Dingley act of 1897. Then, that only transfers the cause of offending to the Dingley act, which were, on the whole, the high-est in our list of high tariff enactments. It is no comfort to a drowning man in forty feet of water to be told that just back of him the water was forty-one feet deep. It is no comfort to the consumer submerged by import duties of 40, or 100, or several hundred per cent, to be told that a microscope will discover a fractional change of a per cent here and there—when in fact hosiery, gloves and clothing bear increased duties.

The Day's Work.

THE SLAVE.

With weary brain and aching heart
He greets another day;
He sadly stumbles forth to start
Upon his weary way;
The sun may shine above his head and scented breezes blow,
But what mean fair, blue skies to him that need compels to go
To labor where no sunshine falls,
Shut in by cheerless, dingy walls,
Estranged from all but woe?

"The day is done," he sadly sighs;
"What has it brought to me?
The sunset's glow is on the skies—
Why should I turn to see?
I am condemned to live and toil the heavy hours away:
Tomorrow I shall still be where I started yesterday;
By circumstance to service bound,
I must pursue a cheerless round,
And hurry to obey."

THE LOVER.

The sunbeams play across his way,
And blossoms that are sweet
Come drifting from the trees to stray
About his eager feet;
He hurries onward hopefully where duties claim his care,
And claims the pleasures that arise from faithful service there—
And in his heart he bears along
A little of the West Wind's song,
And all his world is fair.
"How fair the day has been" he cries,
When evening's shadows spread;
"How rich a glow is in the skies,
How fair the way ahead!
Sweet songs have sweetly haunted me through all the splendid day,
And Hope is calling bravely while I hurry on my way
To smiling lips and loving arms—
My path is through a land of charms
Where friendly fairies play."

Above the Game of Politics.

New York World: One reason for Governor Hughes' great success as an executive applies to Mayor Gaynor as well. Neither man cares a rap for the old "game" of politics, wherein men maneuver six months to decide whether Jake or Jack shall have a second deputy somethingship for which neither is fit. Both the governor and the mayor do care for great public issues.

Prediction Came True.

Wichita Eagle: When Senator La Follette violated the senate rule making a speech soon after he took his seat, Senators Long, Fulton, Depew, Ankey, Spooner, Aldrich, Hale, and Hopkins rebuked him by leaving their seats and walking to the cloak room. Senator La Follette said he was speaking on the railroad bill; that unless the important question was settled right some of the seats temporarily vacant might be permanently vacated. And he spoke the truth. Look over the list.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Chicago Post: Mother—Come, William, quick. Minna has tried to kill herself by inhaling gas!

Father—Good heavens! Think what the gas bill will be this month!

Life: Bill—Jake said he was going to break up the suffragette meeting the other night. Were his plans carried out?

Dill—No, Jake was.

New York Sun: Knicker—Now we have children taught how to play.

Becker—Fine! Next we shall have animal training to show lambs how to gambol.

Lippincott's: Hubby—What! You paid $50 for that imported hat? It's monstrous—it's a sin!

Wife (sweetly)—No matter; the sin will be on my head!

Illustrated Bits: 'Arry—Wot's yer 'urry, Bill?

Bill—I've got to go to work.

'Arry—Work? Why, wot's the matter with the missis? Ain't she well?

Chicago Tribune: Stranger—What do you do with the vast swarms of immigrants that land on your shores every year

Prominent Gothamite—We don't have any trouble, sor, in assimplatin' thim.

Washington Star: "How did that story that George Washington couldn't tell a lie get started?" asked the inquisitive youth.

"I don't know," replied the irreverent person; "unless he had a press agent that could."

New York Sun: The old woman who lived in a shoe explained. "I thought I could kick to the janitor easier," she said. Considering the size of her family it was plain that help was needed.

Chicago News: "Yes," said Col. Oldbeau, "I feel like fighting every time I see two good-looking women kiss each other."

"Why, colonel," queried Mrs. Peachly, "what makes you feel that way?"

"Oh, it's the result of my military education, I suppose," answered the colonel. "I never like to see good ammunition wasted."

New York Weekly: Modern Girl—Father, I long to be independent—to rely upon my own exertions for support. What trade or profession would you recommend?

Wise Father—First-class cooks make $5,000 a year.

Modern Girl—I don't like cooking. It's too feminine!

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: We forget past misery so we can get it again.

The way to keep your friends is to let them use you.

Women cork up secrets so tight that the bottle always bursts.

The chief trouble about getting married is all the money you will think you would have had if you hadn't done it.

ANTI-PROHIBITION MAN EXPELLED FROM CHURCH.

Joplin, Mo., May 6.—Because he purchased an assortment of liquors in Pittsburg, Ka., one Sunday last December, exhibited the collection as an object lesson on the non-efficacy of the prohibition law during the local option campaign in January and quoted from the Bible in an anti-prohibition speech, Former Lieutenant Governor Stephen S. Claycomb was last night expelled from the First Baptist church.

Grain Man Sentenced.

St. Louis, May 6.—Frank J. Minor, a wealthy trader, has been sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary after being convicted of conducting a bucket shop. He will appeal. Minor is the head of a grain company. Testimony at the trial showed that the incorporators of the company were elevator boys, who received 50 cents for signing the papers.

Ashes Thrown to the Wind.

Forsyth, Mont., May 6.—In compliance with the dying wish of Wallace Carpenter, a wealthy stockman of Chicago and owner of the famous "Diamond" ranch in Rosebud valley, his ashes yesterday were scattered to the winds in the Forsyth cemetery. It was here Mr. Carpenter made his fortune. Carpenter died recently in Chicago and his remains were cremated there.

WHEN ROOSEVELT WAS IN THE FRENCH CAPITAL

PARISIANS WAITING OUTSIDE THE AMERICAN EMBASSY.

THE BATTERY OF LENSES AT THE EMBASSY GATES.

(Special correspondence of The Duluth Herald. By George Grantham Bain.)

Paris, April 22.—The French people like to be amused. Some years ago Ranavalo, the ex-queen of Madagascar, who is now a prisoner of the French government in a villa at Algiers, wanted to visit Paris. Her grievance was not that she desired to be restored to power, but that she wanted some new clothing. So the French minister of colonies brought her to Paris, lodged her at a fine hotel and gave her carte blanche at the dressmaker's. She stayed here for several weeks—a very decent looking negress of dark hue, togged out in the very latest Paris clothing. She became for the time the amusement of tout Paris. Wherever she went she was acclaimed, "Vive le Reine" the crowds would shout; and "Ranavalo! Ranavalo!"

Today Theodore Roosevelt centers the attraction of Paris in a measure. It takes him, of course, more seriously, though it is not likely the average Paris citizen knows very much about him beyond the fact that he is an ex-president. To a large proportion of the French population there is not much distinction of country or race beyond the borders of France. Our consular agent at Toulon told me recently that to most of the people of Toulon "America" meant Brazil.

Sell Roosevelt Postcards.

As one sits in front of the cafe watching the students and the cigar-stump gatherers go by and the painted ladies tripping along with several inches of neat silk stocking exposed below a trim skirt, the post card seller displays his wares and cries them in a sing-song tone. And in direct competition with the "Chantecler" cards and the "Dictionary of Argot" and the "Plan of Paris," he offers the "photo de President Roosevelt en carte postale." It is the familiar card with Roosevelt's face in an oval and the American flag in colors twined about it. The booksellers have got out their volumes of "Roosevelt Intime" and given them a prominent place in their windows. The newspapers make Roosevelt's movements the conspicuous feature of the day.

The ex-president arrived yesterday morning, coming by Orient express from Budapest. He was welcomed at the station by Robert Bacon and taken immediately to the embassy in the Rue Francois Premier. The Paris papers, by the way insist on spelling Mr. Bacon's name "Beacon" because phonetically that is what it should be, according to their rules.

At The Embassy.

The embassy, where Mr. Roosevelt and his wife are the guests of the ambassador, is a fine mansion with an outer court, situated on the Rue Francois Premier just beyond the Grand Palais des Beaux Arts, where the annual salon is now being held. One enters the court through an iron grate kept by a concierge six feet tall dressed in livery of blue and yellow. Directly at the left is the lodge of the concierge, and beyond is the entrance to the mansion.

In a short flight of stone steps is a platform of stone protected by a glass dome, and opening on this is Mr. Bacon's front door, guarded by three footmen in livery. These footmen wear swallow-tailed coats of blue with elaborate yellow trimmings and knee breeches of black above stockings of black with yellow clocks and patent leather slippers.

They are rather startling to the eyes of a plain American citizen who calls on Mr. Bacon. I can imagine the feelings of a Western congressman on seeing them. However, the number of American citizens calling on Mr. Bacon is not large. This mansion is the embassy, but only for residence purposes. Mr. Bacon's official headquarters are in the Rue Kleber, where he may be found from 10:30 to 12:30 if a traveling American is looking for the representative of his country. The other twenty-two hours of the day Mr. Bacon spends at his home or in official social duties. An ambassador is more a social than a political factor nowadays.

Some Old Friends.

Mr. Jusserand, the ambassador of France at Washington, has been for many years one of Mr. Roosevelt's intimate friends. In fact he was an honorary member of the famous "tennis cabinet." For the purpose of assisting in Mr. Roosevelt's entertainment, he came to Paris from Washington a month ago. He was among those who met Mr. Roosevelt at the station on his arrival yesterday. Another old friend to greet him was Baron Takahira, who was formerly ambassador of Japan at Washington.

The reception at the station was like that given to King Edward when he visited Paris. A company of Cuirassiers was drawn up near the station entrance and a large force of police kept back the very small crowd which had gathered—chiefly people who had been attracted by the presence of the Cuirassiers. For whatever you may read about the great crowds greeting Mr. Roosevelt in Paris, take it with a big grain of salt. The people of Paris are going about their affairs without regard to Mr. Roosevelt's presence here. If they see a group of newspaper photographers in front of the ambassador's residence, a few idlers gather. There were perhaps 100 persons opposite the entrance to the Elysee palace when Mr. Roosevelt called on President Falliores yesterday afternoon. But most of them gathered around a nucleus of some twenty, who had heard of the official visit. It is no more difficult to gather a crowd in Paris than in Cleveland or Cincinnati.

Abandoned Formal Garb.

The visit to Mr. Falliores was made in closed automobiles. Mr. Roosevelt wore a frock coat and silk hat, which, by the way, is not the formal garb of the French in the daytime. For any official function occurring even at midday everyone here wears what we call evening dress." They wear it even for afternoon weddings.

With Mr. Roosevelt were his wife, Mr. Bacon and Mr. Jusserand. After the call on President Falliers, the ex-president and his wife called on Mme. Falliers. Mr. Roosevelt also called on the minister of foreign affairs and ex-President Loubet. All of these returned his call in the afternoon.

Today Mr. Roosevelt visited the Hotel des Invalides; this afternoon he received the members of the American club and the American Chamber of Commerce, and this evening he is the guest of President Falliers at a dinner and reception, to which many invitations have been issued.

An interesting feature of Mr. Roosevelt's visit is the decoration of the business center of the city.

"Ablaze With Flags."

There are always a good many American flags on view in front of Paris shops, but today the Rue de la Paix is ablaze with the American colors. All the shopkeepers who live by American trade have become very enthusiastic over Mr. Roosevelt's visit. The restaurants which are supported largely by American dollars have hung out the Stars and Stripes in profusion. The American insurance companies display American flags on their buildings. But the demonstration has a distinctly commercial quality.

This has not been a very good season in Paris. American visitors as yet have been fewer than usual, and the appetite of the French shopkeeper is keen. Our countrymen support in large measure the jewelers and tapestry makers and art dealers and many of the biggest restaurants in Paris. Several years of poor business following the panic in our country have made the shopkeepers of Paris doubly appreciative of us, and they have chosen the visit of Mr. Roosevelt as the occasion for demonstrating their appreciation.

(This is the fourth of a series of illustrated letters Mr. Bain is writing for The Herald. The next will be published at an early date.)

RECRUITS RIDE ROCKING HORSES

Great Britain Uses Device to Give Horsemen "the Motion."

London, May 6.—An army service wagon entirely occupied by a wooden rocking horse of life size was the surprising object being driven down Whitehall toward Westminster the other day. Civilians who saw it first rubbed their eyes and wondered if they could have seen aright. But a second glance convinced them.

It was a great, shiny brown horse, wooden, expressionless, lethargic. Its tail was turned toward the driver. Its head stuck out over the tailboard of the wagon; its neck craned forward as if it were peering toward the war office down Whitehall, more in sorrow than in anger at its ludicrous position.

The soldier driver paid no attention to the looks of surprise—or the smiles. He knew he was on war office service, and that the rocking horse was one of the new type introduced into cavalry regiments to ride. Think of it, a rocking horse for recruits!

The first rocking horse for the army is stationed in the riding school of the Royal Horse artillery at Woolwich, and others have been made for the use of the Sixteenth lancers and any cavalry regiments at home or abroad which may need them. The military authorities, although proud of their rocking horse, do not apparently desire undue publicity at present.

Gives Rocking Motion.

A representative who went down to Woolwich barracks received unofficially a description of the rocking horse from one who has had the privilege of riding on it with other puzzled recruits. The mechanical steed is a wooden horse with an astonishing tail. It is painted brown and mounted on swinging rails, which give a gentle rocking motion with perfect safety.

Not the least remarkable feature of the horse is the neck, which is artfully jointed and held by India rubber in a warlike attitude. The recruit leaps into the saddle and pulls at the reins, while the riding instructor rocks the animals to and fro with his foot. The novice drags at the reins, stretches the India rubber neck ligaments, and the rocking horse lets down his head in a fashion which surprises the young recruit, and causes him to cling to the saddle instinctively.

This is the simple contrivance of which Napoleon never thought, on which the "death or glory" boys of the future are to be trained. The rocking horses are being made at Woolwich by an ingenious non-commissioned officer. They are quite cheap.

Its Various Merits.

The merits claimed for the rocking horses are:

They teach the recruit the elements of riding without frightening him.

He learns to keep a good seat.

He swings backward and forward and enjoys useful equestrian exercise without any risk.

Inquiries have come from India and Burmah, as well as from nearer home, for further details of this novel British army device. There are a few captious critics, however. One military observer, after watching a raw recruit's evolutions, remarked, sadly: "It is magnificent, but it is not horse riding."

The fact is, the army is so short of horses that the army council has been driven to this mechanical expedient. If horses were never restive or vicious, if they were all tame and moved alike, there might be something in this latest triumph of war office ingenuity.

Imagine a charge of the Light Brigade by troopers trained on the modern hobby horse, or the charge of such horsemen against the German infantry.

South Dakota Teachers Elect.

Mitchell, S. D., May 6.—The following officers were elected by the Southern South Dakota Teachers, association for the ensuing year: President, P. F. Nolan of Plankinton; vice president, Katheryn M. French of Elk Point; secretary-treasurer, T. A. Harmon, Yankton; executive committee, O. E. Browne, Mitchell; F. L. Cummings, Elk Point; G. E. Mullen, Tyndall. Yankton was selected as the place for holding the convention of 1911.

S.S.S. A BOTANICAL BLOOD REMEDY

Nature in her wisdom and beneficence has provided, in her great vegetable kingdom, a cure for most of the ills and ailments of humanity. Work and study have perfected the compounding of these botanical medicines and placed them at our disposal. We rely on them first because of their ability in curing disease, and next because we can use them with the confidence that such remedies do not injure the system as do the strong mineral concoctions. Among the very best of these botanical preparations is S. S. S., a medicine made entirely of roots, herbs and barks in such combination as to make it the greatest of all blood purifiers and safest of all tonics. It does not contain the least particle of harmful mineral to injuriously affect any of the delicate parts of the system. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Malaria, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, or any blood affection or disease even reaching down and cleansing the circulation of all inherited blood troubles. As a tonic S. S. S. is unequaled. It builds up the system in the proper way, by purifying the blood and supplying a sufficient amount of vigor and nourishment to the body. If you are suffering with any blood trouble, or are in any way run-down in health, you could not do better than take S. S. S. a purely botanical blood remedy. It cures without ever leaving any unpleasant or injurious effects. It is perfectly safe for young or old. Book on the blood free to all who write.

SENATORS RAISE $1,050 FOR WOMAN

Southern Friend of Union Soldiers Is in Want in Kentucky.

Washington, May 6.—Her Uncle Sam will not reimburse Eliza Hoskins-Farris, the "Angel of the Hospital," for self-sacrificing devotion to the Union cause, even though at 84, she is in want. Nevertheless, Senator Bradley, her life-long friend, has now in hand $1,050 which he will send her immediately.

It is a pretty human interest story, dramatized amid the grind of senate machinery. Senator Bradley had a bill to appropriate $1,000 for her. It went to the committee on claims, from which few bills return. He then told that committee this story:

"Miss Eliza, as she was then, was the daughter of a Kentucky slaveholder, who was willing to sacrifice his property rather than have the Union disrupted. Camp Dick Robinson, a Union recruiting camp, was located near his place. His son became a colonel in the Northern army, and his daughter was permitted to turn their home into a hospital for Union soldiers.

"In addition to furnishing supplies to the hospital, Miss Eliza was in constant attendance upon the wounded. She became known as the 'Angel of the Hospital.'

Is Alone and Ill.

"Miss Eliza married. Her husband died, and through fire and other catastrophes her entire estate was dissipated. As Mrs. Eliza Hoskins-Farris she now lives at Lancaster, Ky., alone and failing rapidly."

Mr. Bradley told the story eloquently, but the committee would not favor the bill. It would set a bad precedent.

Senator Smoot is a member of the committee. He did not vote for the bill, but after the meeting he thought a lot about the poor old woman. Finally he went to Bradley and said:

"Why can't we go into our jeans for that $1,000? I'll give $100."

On the back of an envelope Mr. Bradley put down "Smoot, $100." Then he wrote his own name and the same figures. It was only a few minutes before other senators who had been thinking came around, and pretty soon the envelope bore also $100 subscriptions from Guggenheim, Elkins, Bourne, Du Pont, Depew, Smith of Michigan and Oliver and $50 subscriptions from Carter, Bulkely and Briggs.

The "Angel" will get the deserved relief and no bad precedent will be established to haunt the senate.

FOR STEALING LUMP OF COAL.

British Lad Lashed and Imprisoned, But Government Interferes.

London, May 6.—The punishment of Charles Bulbeck for stealing a 10-cent lump of coal has come to an end. The 12-year-old first offender, who was sentenced by the Hayward's Heath magistrates to six strokes with a birch rod and seven years' detention in a reformatory, has been paroled from Portslade industrial school by order of the home secretary. He returned home immediately and there was a happy family reunion. It was the boy's thirteenth birthday.

He made a statement with regard to the effect of the birching. He said that it made blood run down his legs. His mother states that the welts still can be seen.

AUTOISTS TROUBLED.

Hotel Men Protest Against Taxing Foreign Motor Cars.

Paris, May 6.—There has been some anxiety in automobile circles at the proposed clause in this year's budget now being voted by the senate to impose a tax on all foreign automobiles entering France, even only in passing. Several members of parliament have echoed the grievances of automobilists and also of hotel proprietors, who are afraid that it may keep many wealthy foreigners from touring in France, and the proposed clause was at first amended so as to tax cars only which remain for a period of three months in France. This proviso now has been further extended by making it applicable only to foreign automobiles remaining four months in the country.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Jaques Is Not Talking.

Judge Alfred Jaques, who attended the meeting yesterday at St. Paul of the special committee of the Democratic state central committee, returned to Duluth last night. Today he refused to add anything to what he has already said concerning the plan to make him the Democratic candidate for congress in the Eighth district. The Minneapolis Journal quotes the judge as having said: "Some of the boys up there are trying to get me into trouble, but I don't know yet what I will do. We will not hurry in deciding the matter, as that is not necessary." Mr. Jaques said this morning that he didn't care to add anything to this statement.

As to the committee meeting he said that all of those present were exceedingly optimistic. Chairman Day feels confident that success will reward the efforts of the Minnesota Democracy this year as never before. National Committeeman F. B. Lynch hasn't the slightest doubt that the next congress will be Democratic. In short, every prospect pleases.

As told in the dispatch from St. Paul yesterday, the state convention will be held in Minneapolis July 28 with 1,047 delegates, all but 999 of them—or 48—from St. Louis county. The convention date was set fully a month earlier than usual to give the candidates opportunity to get acquainted with the people throughout the state.

Each county will have two delegates-at-large, instead of three as in the past, except that St. Louis, Ramsey and Hennepin counties each has five delegates-at-large. The apportionment of delegates is based on the vote for John A. Johnson two years ago, a delegate being credited for each 200 votes. This will give the counties representation as follows:

Aitkin	6	Martin	11
Anoka	8	Meeker	11
Becker	10	Mille Lacs	6
Beltrami	9	Morrison	13
Benton	7	Mower	11
Big Stone	7	Murray	7

When the question of selecting the convention city was being discussed, Judge Jaques took a hand and ended the controversy in a few words.

"I have no prejudices in favor of either town," he said, "but there are two arguments in favor of Minneapolis. One is that we held our convention there last time and won a victory which gives the Minneapolis location a prestige. Then it may be that when the convention meets we will be strenuous in our desire to have a Minneapolis man chosen to head our ticket."

John Lind and the Rank and File.

The Minneapolis Journal says that within a few days after John Lind returns from Oregon, where he is engaged in a trial, it will be known whether he will permit the Democratic leaders to make him their candidato for governor. Whether the rank and file of the party will permit him to have the deciding voice is, however, another question. It is not impossible that the convention stampede of two years ago will be repeated. The Journal quotes "one of the old 'kitchen cabinet'":

"Nobody can stop this John Lind business. I have talked with Democrats from many counties in the state, and they all bring the same report. The workers have made up their mind that it is to be John Lind, and they will not listen to anything else. They say, 'what is the use for us to give up a sure thing and go into a fight with the odds against us?' We know Lind can win, and we are pretty sure no one else can, so we are going to nominate Lind, and he has got to run, whether he wants to or not.' That is the talk they give us from everywhere, and I don't know what is going to come out of it. I know this, that if a few of us urge the proposition to Mr. Lind, and he forces us to yield and take his refusal, it will not settle the governorship. The delegates will come in and nominate Lind in spite of us, according to the way they are talking."

Another Boost for Walter J. Smith.

Frank M. Eddy, former congressman, and always a close observer of Minnesota politics, expects to see Walter J. Smith of Eveleth finish strong in the race for the Republican nomination for state treasurer. Mr. Eddy confesses that he can't foretell whom Eberhart will have to fight in the election, and he says the lieutenant governorship nomination on the Republican side is up in the air, but he seems to be pretty well convinced that Mr. Smith has the call on the treasurership. He is quoted as saying:

WALTER J. SMITH.

"Keep your eye on this man Walter J. Smith from Eveleth. I tell you he's going to cut some figure. I don't say he'll win, but he'll make 'em go for it. As far as I can see, the fight is really between him and A. Kaiser of Bagley. Kaiser's nationality is in his favor, as it has generally been agreed that this office should go to a German."

It seems to be generally agreed that I. A. Caswell has the advantage in the fight for the supreme court clerkship, and as Caswell and Smith live in the same congressional district, there has been some speculation as to whether this fact will militate against the Eveleth man's chances. In the opinion of Mr. Eddy, the two candidacies will not clash, St. Louis and Anoka counties being at extreme ends of the Eighth district.

Mr. Smith is in Duluth today. He has recently made a trip through the First, Second and Third congressional districts and everywhere he met with the most cordial reception and friendliest encouragement. He is mightily pleased with the prospects. Mr. Smith will soon make another sally into the far southern counties and, basing his expectations on recent experience, is confident that he will materially strengthen his cause.

Candidates for Legislature.

The statement in these columns Wednesday that E. G. Rogers, who was one of the Republicans elected to the assembly in St. Paul, formerly served as clerk of the supreme court, was an error. Mr. Rogers was clerk of court for Ramsey county and has never held the office of clerk of the supreme court.

Legislative candidacies throughout the state continue to receive much attention in the press. In the Fifty-second district, Charles W. La Du of Pine River is making an active and apparently effective canvass for the seat formerly occupied by P. H. McGarry, who wants to succeed Congressman Lindbergh. Mr. La Du was a candidate for the nomination two years ago. He is a lawyer and business man and is strongly committed to the advocacy of those measures which are essential to the progress and prosperity of Northern Minnesota.

With "Boost for Berg" as its slogan, the Rainy River Region says of the former secretary of state, who is a candidate for the senate: "His election would be for the common good of all Northern Minnesota."

With A. L. Hanson in the field for re-election, the fight in the Sixty-first district for the Republican senatorial nomination will be a three-cornered affair. Al Jester of Bagley and Albert Berg of Spooner are making strenuous efforts to land the prize and it would not be surprising if either of them should defeat Hanson decisively. The Ada man is receiving support from influential sources, but the quality of the support is not all that might be asked by a candidate. The Thief River Falls News, for instance, after paying tribute to Senator Hanson's personal high character, says:

"Mr. Hanson is thoroughly honest and at all times supported legislation that was for the best interests of the people as a whole. The only criticism that has been made of his legislative career is that he could not accomplish as much for his district as he might have."

In the Forty-fifth district the Democrats are much in evidence. A full legislative ticket will be put in the field by them, with Theodore Blanchette of Anoka county, N. D. Brown of Sherburne and Guy Eaton of Mille Lacs as the candidates for the house. Isanti county will supply the Democratic candidate for the senate. Charles J. Swanson of Fridley, a Republican, now represents the district. He has a good legislative record and will be a hard man to beat, but the Democrats are hopeful and will put up a game fight if the right man is found to go against Swanson.

Hugh Halbert of St. Paul is inclined to believe that a Democrat will be sent to congress from the Fourth district this year. That would seem to indicate Mr. Halbert has decided not to contest Fred C. Stevens' bid for renomination, and also that Mr. Halbert has a healthy appreciation of Tom Kane's vote-getting power.

HE DIDN'T KNOW THE OLD TOWN

Former Duluthian Is Greatly Surprised at Difference Thirty Years Have Made.

L. C. Cusson of Butte, Mont., a former Duluthian, is in the city today visiting with his friend, Alexander Hamilton, deputy clerk of the district court.

More than thirty years ago, Mr. Cusson and Mr. Hamilton were in partnership in this city. They had a painting establishment. Together they built the first store building on West Superior street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues west. They had to cut down the trees in order to erect the building.

About thirty years ago, Mr. Cusson left Duluth and of late years he has made his home in Butte, although for a number of years he roamed over the entire West.

Mr. Cusson says tht he is more than surprised at the growth of the Zenith City. He says that on coming out of the union depot he tried to find Superior street. He thinks they must have moved it. He could hardly believe that Duluth was the same place, so great has been the improvement during recent years.

Mr. Cusson is well known in the city and this morning he spent in renewing old friendships.

FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL REFORM

Move By the Society of Printers of Boston.

New York Sun: The Society of Printers, which has its headquarters in Boston, has appointed a committee to enlist the services of some university laboratory in scientifically presenting the case for reform among small letters and capitals. It is declared that as at present constituted the alphabetical characters retard rather than facilitate the reading of the printed page, injure rather than protect the eyes of a nation of readers.

Spelling reform, say those who are enthusiastic for alphabet reform, is all very well, and there is undoubtedly some hardship to children and foreigners in being obliged to master the eccentricities of an illogically spelled language, but the place where improvement is most needed is in the shapes of the letters themselves.

The nervous strain of rapid reading could be greatly diminished by more scientific cutting of type faces, it is argued. A dozen or so alterations, some of them very slight modifications, in the forms of the letters might make it possible for the average man to read with far less visual effort and with easier grasp of the sense. The newspaper which is now only half read between One Hundred Forty-fifth street and Rector street would, if printed in the reformed typography, be entirely perused, advertisements and all. Novels which now require four hours for reading would be tossed aside in half the time with consequent gain to sleep, temper and general health. The reading pace of a continent would be accelerated by changes that would increase the legibility of average words.

It is easy enough of course to realize what an unhygienic, unscientific assortment of characters has been brought together in the ordinary type font. They were neither psychologists nor trained medical men, those men of the dark and middle ages who developed into the characteristic Gothic forms the received from the Romans. Scientific men who have experimented with suggested improvements of the modern descendant of the Gothic, the German letter, in many instances given the effort up as hopeless.

Even the great humanists of the Renaissance, creators of book pages whose colors and proportions are the delight of modern printers, had only their artistic instinct as guide in the development of their light clear type faces. The great Geoffroy Tory, royal printer to rinels I., and father of the French language, conducted curious investigations into the shapes of letters and discovered among them many quaint analogies to the human body; but neither Tory nor his followers ever thought of making tests for legibility and speed.

Down to this day, whereas several modern languages have reformed their spelling, none has commissioned the scientists to ameliorate typography. Yet according to experts of the Society of Printers, the waste of time in civilized countries due to characters which are not readily recognized or which are easily mistaken for other letters must amount to billions of hours annually. If time is money the greatest of all modern extravagancies is the alphabet.

Logically if any letters must be less legible than others these should be the letters that occur least frequently. Yet it is a curious fact that the seven small letters which are most largely represented in a full font of type, E, T, A, I, N, O, S, are among those that have repeatedly come off worst in tests both for legibility and liability to confusion with other letters.

The little "e" is of course the most commonly used of all the characters of the alphabet. It is also the most illegible and is surpassed only by s, z and c in liability to be confused with some other letter. Of the bad influence it exerts among its fellows Dr. Cattell of Columbia university, who has made a series of studies of brain and eye inertia, wrote some time ago:

"If I should give the probable time wasted each day on a single letter, as "e," being needlessly illegible, it would seem almost incredible, and if we could calculate the unnecessary strain put upon eye and brain it would be still more appalling."

It is well understood among the scientists that "e" belongs in the same class as the typhoid fly, the undesirable laziness germ or any other nuisance which should be exterminated. Several other letters are nearly as bad.

The desirability of reform, as brought out in a recent paper by Prof. Harry Lyman Koopman, librarian of Brown university, Providence, has prompted the Society of Printers to urge that some institution whose recommendations would carry weight should conduct a series of detailed investigations and after these should report upon changes which might be made for the purpose of making ordinary print more readable.

Such study would start with the advantage that a great deal of investigating has already been done in this field. The general process of reading are now well understood. Since the old days of learning to read letter by letter psychologists have discovered pretty accurately just what happens as the eye travels from word to word, from line to line.

By means of light ivorp cups fastened to the eye ball and attached to a recording instrument the little pauses by which the eey rests at intervals on different portions of the line have been indicated bw recurring dots on curved or straight lines. The speed of reading has been studied at various places.

At the University of Wisconsin, for example, Dr. J. O. Quantz, some time ago experimented on fifty students to determine their normal and maximum rates of reading. He found that the rate of silent reading varied from 3½ words a second for the slowest up to 12.2 for the fastest, as against a range of 2.6 to 3.9 a second for reading aloud. Again Dr. Edmund B. Huey, professor of psychology and education in the Western University of Pennsylvania and author of a well known book on the psychology and pedagogy of reading, has carried on somewhat similar tests among his students, finding a range for silent reading from 3.5 to 13.5 a second and in reading aloud from 2.2 to 6.4 words a second.

Many other tests have been made in psychological laboratories. Portions of words have been scratched out and groups of students let loose upon the remnants with a view of discovering how many of these will be recognized and how quickly. The effect upon legibility and speed of the "inner speech" which accompanies the reading just as it accompanies the thinking of most people has been reduced to figures. The pedagogical side of reading is part of the education of students in the normal school.

Suggestions of desirable typographical reforms have been made now and then. They are said to have been begun about thirty years ago when M. Javal a Parisian oculist, starting out with the thesis that there has been a marked increase of near-sightedness in modern times, undertook to show that much of it was due to bad topography.

Whatever the value of the general conclusions Javal drew up a number of interesting recommendations as a result of his studies. He argued against the use of white paper, urging instead a buff tint on which he would print with an ink tinged with blue. The use of leading contrary to the general impression he found to be of little or no advantage in promoting legibility.

The results which printers sometimes attempt to secure through introduction of leads he believed to be much better obtained through more careful spacing between words. Most of his conclusions regarding the letters themselves were based on his discovery, which other investigators have confirmed, that the eye of the readers follows a horizontal line, cutting the words just below the tops of the short letters. It is that fact which makes words containing letters with prolongations above the line of vision more distinctly characterized on the page and therefore more readily recognized in all tests than words composed entirely of short letters. Because there has been a gradual rounding and flattening of the small letters Javal pleaded for appendages which would give more of the letters something distinctive above the line.

Somewhat later E. C. Sanford, now professor of psychology at Clark university, Worcester, after making a study of the conditions of reading, brought forward some proposals for reformation of some of the characters. He maintained that enlargement of size and increase of differences are a first aid to clearness Concentration of peculiarity upon one feature is an important element. So is simplicity of outline.

Disoovering, as others have done, that the letter "s" is bad in the tests either because it is not recognized at all or because it is confused with some other letter, Dr. Sanford recalled Benjamin Franklin's arguments against giving up the old-fashioned long "s" and urged a return to this form. Most people nowadays in reading books of the eighteenth century confuse this "s" with "f," but the Clark university investigator asserted that the two could be differentiated by carrying the "s" below the line.

The dot over the "i," against which so many reformers have inveighed, Dr. Sanford seemed to find of some value in a word like "mine." It would be much more useful if, as Dr. Javal once urged, it could be placed on a level with the top of the "l" rather than with the top of the "t."

Many other recommendations have been made with a view to modifying the type faces used in printing school books, government publications and other works of an educational character. Some of the reforms urged by Dr. Javal have been adopted by an American type founding company for some of its recent fonts.

Questions of the size of type are raised frequently. Experiments performed by Frantz and Griffing have proved definitely that fatigue increases with the diminution of the size of the type. These investigators hold out for a height in educational works of 1.5 millimeters for the short letters. This means a ten-point type.

The ideal thickness of the vertical strokes of the letters has been determined to be 25 millimeters. The length of line which is easiest to read is placed at 60 millimeters, the width of the ordinary newspaper column. The newspapers with their narrower columns have more closely approximated the requirements of their readers than the makers of books, who persistently print too wide columns for comfortable reading. In the printing of large book pages when there is a question of two narrow columns as against one column, the former arrangement should be preferred.

ALL SUNSETS ARE NOT ALIKE.

Success Magazine: Mr. and Mrs. Peterby were sitting on their piazza. It was late afternoon and the sun was making his final preparation to gild the Western heavens. Peterby sat in hute admiration.

"Did you ever see such a superb sunset?" he exclaimed, rapturously. "It is simply wonderful! Amazing!"

Mrs. Peterby did not join in his enthusiasm. She shifted uneasily in her chair.

"You would think anything was good," she replied. "You've just had a good dinner. But it's just an ordinary sunset, nothing more."

"Where are you going?" asked Peterby. "Why can't you sit still? Just like a woman. No artistic appreciation."

"I'll be back presently," replied Mrs. Peterby.

Four or five minutes passed. She came back and sat down. There was a silence.

"It is beautiful," whispered Mrs. Peterby. "Don't think I ever saw a finer sunset. See that exquisite coloring off there—and those feather effects. Perfectly lovely!"

Peterby turned his face slowly and gazed at her.

"What did you do in the house just now?" he asked.

Mrs. Peterby's face beamed.

"Why," she replied, "the cook was going to leave, but she told me she would stay another month."

TREATY IS UNDER FIRE

Attorney for Men Arrested in Indian Country Claims Treaty Is Obsolete.

Fight in Courts to Nullify Action of Special Agent W. E. Johnson.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 6.—The liquor men have decided to make an effort to have the treaty under which Special Government Agent William E. Johnson has closed up several hundred saloons in the Indian country in this part of the state, declared void by the courts.

Five saloon men have been under indictment for introducing liquor at Mahnomen, the indictments having been returned at the last term of court. Three of these, John Miller, J. H. Quinlan and Nick Kessler, entered pleas of guilty in the United States court here yesterday, and Judge Morris imposed sentences of sixty days in jail and a fine of $100 in each case.

Fred Glass entered a plea of not guilty, and George B. Edgerton, a St. Paul attorney, appeared for him. The government introduced its evidence, but the defendant, instead of claiming that he was not guilty, made no effort to counteract the testimony of the government's witnesses. Instead, his attorney came forward and argued a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal on the ground that the treaty under which the government was closing the saloons and indicting the liquor men was no longer valid.

Claim Treaty is Void.

He contended that it was unreasonable to hold that the treaty was to remain in effect forever, and that the changes that had come about in the sixty or seventy years that had elapsed since it was made, had nullified it to such an extent that it should now be declared invalid. The country had been settled by white people, towns and villages had sprung up, state and local governments had been organized, railways had been built, and the country was no longer "Indian country," in any sense of the word. The treaty provides that it may be terminated by act of congress, and he argued that congress had in effect terminated it when it made the Indians citizens and granted them land allotments in severalty, the majority of them having now obtained such allotments.

Court Overrules Motion.

Assistant District Attorney Oakley, in reply cited supreme court decisions holding that such changes did not abrogate treaties. Judge Morris overruled the motion for a directed verdict and allowed the case to go to the jury. A verdict of guilty was promptly returned, but it is probable that the case will be carried to the highest courts.

A similar case against M. Bolieu also went to trial, but it was defended on different grounds, the claim being made that Bolieu's bartender had ordered and sold the liquor and that the proprietor could not be held criminally responsible.

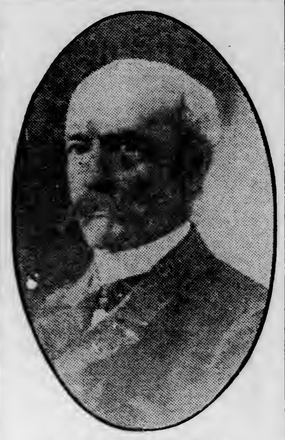
STATE SENATOR HAS BEEN CLOSE TO DEATH



HARLAN PAGE BIRD.

Wausaukee, Wis., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Relatives and friends of State Senator Harlan Page Bird, who has been very near to death at his home here for some time, are taking hope and feel there is a chance for his recovery. If he regains his health he will retire from business and politics. Senator Bird is 67, a native of Pennsylvania, a veteran of the Civil war and for many years has been engaged in the lumber, mercantile and banking business in this section.

FOREST FIRES NEAR KLONDYKE

Sparks From Passing Locomotives Supposed to Have Started Blaze.

Brainerd, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Passengers on Wednesday's trains on the Northern Pacific railway noticed the forest fires at Klondyke and at points near Brainerd.

On Tuesday the fire crept along and burned through section 12-46-29 and consumed a house belonging, it is said, to Miss Amy Howe of Deerwood. The land lies close to the Northern Pacific railway tracks, and it is claimed sparks from passing engines set fire to the grass and communicated the fire to the surrounding country. The house was a two-story, five-room, frame structure and was a total loss.

WILL MEET NEXT WEEK IN BISMARCK

Annual Gathering of Sunday School Association of North Dakota.

Bismarck, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota Sunday school association will meet here Tuesday afternoon, May 10, and adjourn Thursday evening. Delegates from every county in the state will attend.

In addition to accommodations afforded at the local hotels, every home in the city will be thrown open to visitors, who will be entertained on the Harvard plan.

One of the interesting features of the convention this year will be the retirement of Rev. John Orchard as field secretary of the association. He has held that position for a great many years, but he recently resigned to enter into the business world. He will be succeeded by Rev. Mr. Snow, who is at present getting acquainted with the work that devolves upon the incumbent of the position.

Wednesday morning will be given over to sectional conferences. The elementary department conference will be presided over by Miss E. L. Buckland; that of the home department by Rev. C. A. Mack; adult department by Thomas Porte; temperance department by J. W. Whiddenfield; missionary department by Mrs. E. J. Babcock, and the teachers' training department by Prof. Wallace N. Stearns. In the afternoon and evening there will be general association sessions.

On the closing day general sessions only will be held. The officers will be elected at the morning session, while there will be periods given over to the business of the organization, both in the forenoon and afternoon.

INSTALL NEW MINISTER.

Duluth Pastor Figures in a North Branch Event.

North Branch, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. C. W. Andeer, the new pastor of the Lutheran church of North Branch, was installed at a service held yesterday, "Ascension Day," at 3 o'clock. The president of the Minnesota conference, Dr. Krantz of Duluth, installed Rev. Andeer as pastor of the church. Besides Dr. Krantz the majority of the pastors of the St. Croix Valley district of the Minnesota conference were present and assisted in the services. A short service in Swedish and in English was held last evening.

SAW THE COMET BEFORE.

Anoka Woman Claims to Have Seen It on Last Trip.

Anoka, Minn., May 6.—Mrs. Eliza McGaffey, aged 95 years, a resident of Anoka, says she saw Halley's comet when it was visible seventy-five years ago. She remembers the advent of the comet very distinctly, as the people were badly frightened. There was snow on the ground and the light from the comet made the snow blood red. People fancied the world was coming to an end. Mrs. McGaffey was living in Maine at the time. She looks forward to seeing it again this month.

SOCIALIST ELECTION CHEAP.

It Cost Mayor Siedel Only $25.50 to Be Elected.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 6.—It cost Mayor Emil Seidel but $25.50 to be elected, according to his statement of personal campaign expenses filed with City Clerk Carl D. Thompson.

Mayor Seidel spent $5.50 for car fares, while $20 was given as a contribution to the campaign fund.

This is the lowest amount expended by any mayor of Milwaukee ever elected.

PUMPING PLANT CRIPPLED.

Injury to Machinery at Brookston Hampers Train Service.

Brookston, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 25-horse power gasoline engine at the local coal chute was put out of commission early Wednesday morning. A bolt on the piston rod worked loose while the engine was running, and in some manner the cylinder was badly smashed.

It will take a week or ten days before repairs can be made. Train service was badly crippled for a couple of days, as all trains stop here for water and coal, and with the engine out of order it was impossible to get either after the water tank and coal shed were emptied. This is the most serious accident that has happened to the local pumping station since the engine room and coal shed were destroyed by fire six years ago. A steam engine has been connected with the pump and a temporary supply of water will be had until the gasoline engine is repaired.

GOING TO BE CHAUFFEUR.

Former Brookston Homesteader Taking Course in Running Autos.

Brookston, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. B. Thiry, who formerly lived on a homestead claim five miles south of the village, is now located in St. Paul, where he is attending a school conducted by the Western Transportation company. The company gives instructions in handling automobiles, and Mr. Thiry is taking a chauffeur's course.

MAY SURVIVE INJURY.

North Dakota Youth Shot Through Body May Live.

Petersburg, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A bullet which entered the breast of Peter Hildre, aged 12 years did not stop going until it found a lodging place just back of the ear, where it was located and extracted. The young fellow was playing with a .22 calibre rifle at the time the bullet was accidentally discharged. If complications do not set in, he will recover.

EXPECTS HOT TIME.

North Dakota Religious Maniac Not Looking for Silken Robes.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Michael Kzaley, the Walsh county man who will be arraigned on an information of insanity in this city, has a mortal fear of death. He also has an idea that there will be no wings or silken robes, but rather a hot reception at the hands of imps. It is said that worry over religious matters has brought on the trouble.

ECCENTRIC MAN'S WILL.

Minneapolis Recluse Leaves Several Millions to His Relatives.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 6.—The will of Eli M. Stewart, an eccentric bachelor millionaire who died this week, bequeaths $50,000 for the Home for Aged Women of Minneapolis, a similar amount to the Home of the Little Sisters of the Poor of Minneapolis and $50,000 for a memorial library at Corinna, Me.

The balance of the estate, which is estimated at $6,000,000, is divided among relatives and friends living in Maine, Massachusetts and San Francisco, Cal.

DEMANDS VINDICATION.

Accused of Robbery, But Not Prosecuted, Man Demands Trial.

La Crosse, Wis., May 6.—John E. Turnbull, member of the county board and well-to-do retired merchant, has requested the district attorney that he, Turnbull, be arrested and prosecuted on a charge of burglary.

On April 27 the store of John Pletz was entered, and Pletz, who purchased the store from Turnbull, charged Turnbull with intent to rob. After an investigation, during which Turnbull was detained in jail, the charges were proved insufficient and he was released.

Following gossip that he had bought officers to win his release, Turnbull now demands a trial to establish his innocence.

MINERAL RANGE EMPLOYE HORRIBLY MANGLED.

Houghton, Mich., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Caught between the tender of the engine and the coal dock, William Anderson, brakeman on the Mineral Range railroad, was horribly mangled yesterday and it is feared he cannot survive.

ITEMS FROM CROSBY.

Current Notes Gleaned in Cuyuna Range Town.

Crosby, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. Crosby has about eight teams grading the streets. They are making great headway, as Main street is nearly finished. The streets will be welcome to the people of the surrounding country. There is great activity here now, as there are many buildings going up.

E. Lovedahl of Park Rapids is putting up a building for a drug store, which his son, A. E. Lovedahl of Minneapolis, will take charge of.

Charles Johnson of International Falls is here looking over his property, and is going to start up a baker shop.

The ferryboat Crosby is making regular trips, and Capt. Vail is bringing many visitors to Crosby.

Charged With Conspiracy.

Fargo, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Hardt, register of deeds in Logan county; Galez Jahnke and Christian Baltizer, also of Logan county, have been arraigned before Judge Amidon accused of conspiracy to defraud in naturalization papers and released on bail.

Yeoman Picnic at Gladstone.

Menominee, Mich., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the annual meeting of the upper peninsula Yeoman picnic association it was decided to hold the demonstration under the auspices of the order at Gladstone this year, on the Fourth of July.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Stillwater—Joseph M. Oldham has qualified as county surveyor to succeed Lewis W. Clark. The county board has appropriated $300 for the improvement of highways in and about Stillwater.

North Branch—Miss Jennie Swanson, of Duluth, came here Monday to spend a few days, with her friend Miss Marie Waterman at the August Anderson home.

Cambridge—The price of Burbank potatoes has been 15 cents a bushel on the local market this week. As that is a little better than starch factory prices the farmers have been hauling their surplus stock to the market this week.

Winona—William Lepinski, for the past nine months superintendent of the Winona Gas company, has resigned to accept a like position with the Elkhart Gas company of Elkhart, Ind. Roy Miller of Pepin, Wis., a graduate of the University of Wisconsin in mechanical engineering, has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

Isanti—Miss Edith Schwanke, who was the first primary teacher in the school here, and has been teaching at Hayfield during the past three years, will go to New Ulm next fall as principal of the Washington school in that city.

Crookston—The Crookston State bank stockholders held their annual meeting this week and the same officers were re-elected as have served for the past year with the exception of the election of L. Sargent as a director instead of L. E. Jones, who does not reside in the city.

Stephen—A. J. Lovestrom and George Seifert have completed arrangements for starting a new weekly paper here which will be known as The Stephen Messenger, the first issue of which will appear in the near future.

Perham—Farmers in this vicinity are elated over the recent cold wave, as prior to the frost there were millions of grasshoppers just getting interested in life and promised a complete destruction of the crops. The recent cold wave has killed the hoppers and the crops have thus been saved from whatever injury might have been caused there by the hoppers.

Moorhead—The petition of a number of property owners of Dilworth for the incorporation of that place as a village, was presented to the county board on Tuesday. The board received the petition and ordered an election for the purpose of voting on the question of incorporation. The election will be held on Saturday, May 28, at the directors' room of the Dilworth State bank.

Winona—Captain William McCraney has brought the steamer Purchase to Winona from Fountain City where she has been tied up during the past winter in the bay. The Purchase will be run in the excursion business out of St. Paul this season the same as usual, with the barge Twin Cities.

International Falls—The furniture for the courthouse has arrived and is being placed. The decorators are finishing their work, so it is expected that the handsome $75,000 county building will be occupied by the various officers inside of the next ten days.

Little Falls—George Powers has just completed a deal whereby the Windsor hotel building on Bay street is to change owners. Mr. Powers has disposed of the hotel to Robert Muske of this city, the consideration being $1,800.

Brainerd—The retail clerks' union met Monday evening and elected William J. Lyonais delegate to the state federation of labor convention to be held at Fargo, June 20, 21 and 22.

Fergus Falls—At a meeting of the board of education Monday night, Miss Anna Wilson, who is completing her work at the state normal school in this city, was elected to teach in the grades during the next school year. Miss Grace Dickinson of Minneapolis and Miss Lucy Church of Beloit, Wis., were elected to positions in the high school.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—Mrs. Lena E. Cowen, aged 43 years, wife of R. M. Cowen, auditor of Griggs county, this state, passed away at one of the local hospitals. The cause of death was a disease of the liver, from which she had been suffering for some time. She is survived by her husband and three children, and was a most estimable woman.

Grand Forks, N. D.—F. C. Bates is able to be around town with the aid of crutches, having been laid up during the past week as a result of an automobile accident near Emerado. He received a sprained wrist, a wrenched shoulder and was otherwise bruised up.

Fargo, N. D.—The bank clearances for Wednesday footed up the large sum of $203,337.96. The clearances for Tuesday amounted to the immense sum of $240,319.82.

Bismarck, N. D.—Joseph Wright, who has been in the employment of the First National bank for several years, will be transferred to Wilton to the McLean County bank, to take the place of G. A. Hubbel, who has resigned as assistant cashier.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Plans have been received by the Grand Forks Builders' & Traders' exchange for the new courthouse that will be erected in Sargent county. The bids are to be received and opened by 10 o'clock May 17.

Devils Lake, N. D.—J. B. Kelly, a well-known traveling man, who has been making this territory for twelve years, was in town Tuesday and announced that this was his last trip over this territory. He has accepted a position with Benz Bros., and will travel from Glendive, Mont., to Seattle, Wash., making his headquarters at Spokane, Wash.

Wahpeton, N. D.—The crops of the county have about recovered from the cold spell of the last several weeks. While wheat that was sowed a month previous to the cold spell will suffer and, in some instances, have to be replanted, the greater part of the crops suffered no setback.

Bordulac, N. D.—H. J. Shaw's general store caught fire Wednesday night from the gas light generator. The flames were blown up the street, and the roofs of two other buildings caught fire, but the flames were put out immediately and the fire was corraled in one place. Over three-fourths of the stock of goods was saved. The loss was probably $10,000, with $5,000 insurance.

Aberdeen, S. D.—In a quarrel over $5, claimed to be due him for wages, a farm hand, known as "Red," shot and fatally wounded Dick Mock, a prominent farmer at Forbes, N. D. The farm hand surrendered to the police.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Plans for placing the question of constructing a new courthouse in this county before the voters this year have been abandoned. Considerable opposition to the proposition developed in the rural districts and it was deemed advisable to lay the matter over a year.

Ambrose, N. D.—The Commercial club has decided to provide for a race track here this season. There are no race courses in the northern part of Williams county at the present time, and by taking action now this city hopes to be made the headquarters for racing in this section.

Bismarck, N. D.—With Judge Page Morris, of Duluth, presiding, United States court will be opened here May 12. It is expected that the session will last about one week.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Arthur S. Dinnie went to Devils Lake Wednesday evening where he will look up the prospects of commencing work on the Ramsey county jail building, the contract for the construction of which was let to Dinnie Bros., last fall, but which was held up by law suits.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland — Howard Welker of this city was seriously injured by falling from a moving freight train near Barnesville, Minn., the latter part of last week. Supt. and Mrs. Welker left for Barnesville, and returned with their son Tuesday night, and he was taken direct to the residence. He received severe wounds on the head and injuries of the back.

Milwaukee — Joseph Schiller, aged 38, a laborer, committed suicide Tuesday night in his boarding house at 124 Muskego avenue by drinking carbolic acid. Little is known of the man except that he came to the boarding house on April 27. From the personal effects it is the opinion of those at the boarding house that he had been working in the Northern woods.

Ashland—Sievert Anderson of Drummon, aged 45, died Wednesday at a local hospital, after a short illness. The deceased was born in Norway and has resided at Drummond, Wis., for the last twenty years. He is survived by his wife and two children, a mother, three sisters and three brothers in Norway, one nephew in Iron River and one cousin, Mrs. Nyberg of Ironwood.

Madison — Except for a few minor changes suggested at Wednesday's meeting of the board of control, the tentative plans of Green Bay architects for the proposed hospital for the criminal insane to be added to the institution at Oshkosh, were accepted. The plans call for a $100,000 building, which it is proposed to complete within two years.

Eau Claire — The trustees of the First Methodist Church society of Eau Claire awarded a contract to the Western Construction company of Chippewa Falls to erect the proposed new church edifice. The structure is to be of stone.

Green Bay—The store of the United Cloak & Suit company was robbed and about $100 in money taken.

Janesville — The carnival of robberies continues. Tuesday night four small business places and offices were entered.

La Crosse — The steamer La Crosse, the only boat plying between La Crosse and Wabasha, and for many years operated by the late Capt. H. C. Wilcox, will be sold at auction.

Platteville — Wisconsin will be represented in the Northern oratorical contest to be held on Friday at Minneapolis by Jesse J. Ruble of Platteville, a graduate of Platteville normal, and a junior in the University of Wisconsin.

Oshkosh — District Attorney McDonald has ordered every dog in Winnebago county muzzled. A mad dog which ran amuck in four townships was killed by Sheriff Bunn, who chased the canine with six deputies. A large number of cows and horses and three persons were bitten by the dog near Neenah.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—A telegram was received by Mrs. Henry Blum to the effect that her brother, Julius Buxbaum, is confined in a hospital in Chicago, where he is receiving treatment for an accident sustained this week.

Hancock—John Lowney, aged 90 years, died Tuesday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Merrick of Water street, ending a residence of forty-two years in the Copper country. He came to Houghton county almost a half century ago from Fall River, Mass., and for many years was a miner in the Copper country workings.

Calumet—Through the liberality of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company, the village of Red Jacket will acquire the ownership of four lots on Sixth street for $7,500. This is the result of an effort on the part of the village officials to purchase the lots on which the theater is situated, one lot adjacent and the lot on which the fire station stands.

Houghton—Andy Nevala, the man who tried to commit suicide Tuesday by jumping into Portage lake near the Peninsula Wholesale grocery's dock, and who was rescued by bystanders, was arrested just after his chilly bath by Marshal Voetsch and placed in the county jail until he could get over a violent case of delirium tremens.

Calumet—Arrangements have been concluded for a volley ball tournament to be held in the Y. M. C. A., a series of games commencing Tuesday next and continuing until May 26 having been arranged. The tournament is for business and professional men and the best two out of three games to count a victory.

Hancock—The certificates filed with the city clerk, showing the number of births and deaths in the city of Hancock during the month of April, shows a total of twenty-sixth births and eight deaths. The number of births reported since Jan. 1 is ninety-eight, compared with ninety-four for the corresponding period in 1909, while the total for April last year was twenty-two.

Laurium—William Bennetts and Charles Hanner were arrested Tuesday by Deputy Game and Fire Warden Glipp, charged with catching brook trout of illegal size. They were brought before Justice Armit and pleaded guilty. They were given a lecture and fined the costs of the case.

Menominee—The Russian-Finns from the vicinity of Daggett were again refused citizenship papers by Judge Flanmonths in which to learn to speak English.

Negaunee—Philip Hogan has sold out his novelty store in the postoffice lobby to John F. Allison, who some months ago retired from the jewelry business. Mr. Allison took possession of the store Wednesday.

Ishpeming—Nels Flodin, who has the contract for the construction of the Lake Superior & Ishpeming Railway company's North Lake branch, has a crew of sixty-five men and several teams working in the vicinity of the St. Lawrence mine.

Marquette — Leon Laporte of West Bluff street, is doubly bereaved. For the second time within less than a month death has entered his home. Mrs. Laporte passed away three weeks ago. Wednesday night at 10 o'clock the 13-month-old son died.

Ishpeming—The Electric Equipment company of this city is just finishing up several wiring contracts at Munising and Grand Island for the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company. Among the buildings wired are the new Gwinn hospital at Munising and the Williams hotel and other buildings on the island. The company also has several contracts on the Swanzey range.

OPENER WON BY DULUTH

Sweeney's Home Run in the Ninth Defeats Superior By 4 to 2 Score.

Both Teams Show Good Form in First Game of Series.

Darby O'Brien's valiant Sox grabbed the first game of the inter-city series yesterday afternon at Superior coming from behind in the ninth with a score 2 to 0 against them, and winning out by the score of 4 to 2.

Yesterday it was a case of "run for Sweeney." Michael Dennis Sweeney came to bat in the nervous ninth with all the fates resting on the conduct of his bat. Michael was equal to the most auspicious occasion, hitting the pellet out of the park and causing sadness and unpleasant words to wifey at the dinner tables of the Superior faithful.

Under the circumstances it was rather an unfeeling thing for Michael to do, viewing the game from the Superior standpoint. Over here, however, we can readily grasp the viewpoint of Sweeney. "He done noble."

Howard and Peterson were the opposing record workers. But three hits were garnered off the sidewheel delivery of Mons. Howard, while twice that number of blows were accumulated from the heaving of Pete Peterson. Howard issued five passes to one by the Superior hill hurler. Peterson caused eleven of the Sox to strike nothing more substantial than murky atmosphere, while five of the hated retired via the air route from inability to gauge the slants of Howard.

All of Superior's runs were registered in the fearful fifth. In no other inning did the Grumblers seriously threaten.

Kourich opened the fifth with a walk and was advanced a base by McCulloch's bunt along the third base line, which Sweeney was unable to field in time to get either runner. A wild pitch by Howard advanced both men, both coming over the pleasure plate on Landry's clean clout. Landry was sacrificed to halfway station, Lizzette drew the second pass of the inning, but Peterson flew to Thomas Zachery Taylor and Bancroft forced Landry at third.

In none of the other innings was there any approach to the danger zone. Both twirlers were going along nicely and the Superior ever hopefuls—for which they deserve much credit—were jubilant in the belief that the game was tucked away.

Then came the rally of the ninth, in which high hopes were crushed like sister's hat in a bargain counter rush.

Buzinsky went in for Anderson in the role of pinch hitter to the royal cause. He singled right merrily to left and went clear around to third, when Neelon hit one to center that got away from Landry, Smiling Pete resting on second when the momentary confusion was over.

Taylor hit a long skier to McGraw, "Buzz" scoring ahead of the throw-in. Kozier was easily retired at first. With two out and a run needed to tie, Darby the Orator strode to the plate, "cliss" out. He stopped a vagrant shoot with his spinal vertebrae, smiling a golden smile of welcome relief from a situation so trying.

It was here that Michael Dennis Sweeney showed the real Duluth spirit. Posing nonchalantly at the plate, Michael caught a fast one on the end of his bludgeon, the ball sailing over the right field wall. Schaefer grounded out, ending the inning.

Superior could do nothing in its half and the game was to the merry. Below you will find some further details on the humiliation of the enemy:

BOSTON WINS CLOSE GAME AT BROOKLYN.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 6.—Although outbatted, Boston took the opening game of the series here yesterday, 1 to 0. Mattern kept his hits scattered and was favored by excellent support at critical periods. A remarkable one-handed catch by Sweeney, which he turned into a double play, saved the game in the sixth. Score: R. H. E.

BOUGHERTY PITCHES BREWERS TO VICTORY.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 6.—Tom Dougherty pitched grand ball yesterday afternoon, the home club winning, 3 to 0. Not a visitor reached second until the ninth when Dunleavy doubled. Weaver was wild and was easy with men on the bases. Sullivan retired in the fifth in Moriarity's favor on account of a bad thumb. Score: R. H. E.

CHECH WINS PITCHERS' BATTLE AT ST. PAUL.

St. Paul, Minn., May 6.—Chech had the better of Liebhardt in a pitchers' battle yesterday afternoon, St. Paul shutting Columbus out in the second game of the series by a score of 4 to 0. Liebhardt was wild in the first and forced in a run. St. Paul bunched their hits with Columbus' errors in the fourth. It was announced yesterday that St. Paul has purchased Pitcher Leroy from the Boston Americans. President Chivington of the Association was at the game. Score: R. H. E.

RIVALS WILL MEET AGAIN

Duluth and Superior Teams Will Clash at Athletic Park.

Duluth and Superior will meet in the second game of the inter-city series this afternon. The game will be played at Athletic park and will begin at 3:30.

It is the intention of O'Brien to send big Reddersdorf on to the mound. The fans here are anxious to get a peep at the six-footer in action, and O'Brien, too, wants to see just what he has, as there was little opportunity during the trip to get a line on the tall boy.

Frank Schaefer may sign with the Duluth crew. In the game with Superior yesterday the Fitwell star got away nicely. O'Dea has been flirting with Schaefer the present season, but if Frank plays profesional baseball the present season, he would rather be with the Sox.

It is probable that the duke will send Dad Irwin, the recruit he picked up in Iowa, to the hill this afternoon. The Irwin party is said to be very classy and comes to Superior with medals of recommendation hung to his person like decorations on a Christmas tree.

A large delegation of rooters will come over from Superior, two special cars having been chartered by the faithful fans from across the bay. Special street car service will be provided before and after the game.

Big Kozier, though still limping, has recovered sufficiently from his injury to get into the game. He will play first this afternoon. Anderson, the short and energetic catcher and outfielder, may be seen behind the bat in the conflict of this afternoon.

FIELD MEET PLANS MADE

The date of the second annual field meet of the grade schools of the city has been set for Saturday, May 21. It is anticipated that entries will be received from every grade school in the city.

The events will be divided into four classes, weight governing the entries. The midget class will include boys scaling from 70 to 90 pounds; the lightweight division, boys scaling from 90 to 105 pounds; the middleweight division, boys ranging from 105 to 120 pounds, while the heavyweight division will include all entrants weighing over 120 pounds.

Entry blanks can be secured at the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. The following list of events has been arranged:

Midget—50-yard dash, potato race, three standing broad jumps, 440-yard relay race.

Lightweight — 75-yard dash, three standing broad jumps, potato race, running high jump, 600-yard relay race.

Middleweight—100-yard dash, tug-of-war for 10-men teams, three standing broad jumps, running high jump, quarter-mile run, 880-yard relay race.

Heavyweight—100-yard dash, running broad jump, running high jump, 12-pound shot put, one-mile relay race.

CENTRAL BASKET BALL PLAYERS RECEIVE SWEATERS

Sweaters were presented to the members of the Central high school basketball team this morning, during the chapel exercises of the high school. The sweaters are handsome ones, with an old English "D," the athletic letter of the school.

Capt. Larry Boyle, Solheim, Waldron, Johnson, Harris and Kelly received the official school sweater.

The Central baseball team will meet Nelson Dewey at Athletic park tomorrow afternoon. Nelson Dewey has defeated Blaine the present season and Central has trimmed the Superior Normal school. Scanlon will mount the rubber for Central.

Bronson Gets Decision.

Anderson, Ind., May 6.—Ray Bronson of Indiannapolis won a decision on points over Mike Memsic of Chicago in an eight-round bout here last night.

READY FOR OPENING DAY

Minny League Towns Have Planned Celebrations for Wednesday.

Winona, La Crosse and Red Wing Will Devote Day to Baseball.

Winona, Minn., May 6.—Unless the hopes of the committee are shattered, Wednesday of next week, the opening day of the baseball season in Winona, will be a gala occasion, celebrated as a general holiday. The manufacturing concerns and business houses will close between the hours of 2 to 5 p. m. and the employes will be given an opportunity to see Killian's team drub Darby O'Brien and his White Stockings.

Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock a meeting of the committee was held at the Arlington club parlors and plans were outlined. The merchants and business men will receive a formal request to comply with the wishes of the committee that the opening day might be made a memorable one in this city.

A parade, in which the officers and members of the Winona Baseball corporation, the members of the team and others in autos will participate. A band will be secured and the procession will come to a halt at the park which should be packed for the initial championship contest in Winona.

Other towns in the league are making plans for the opening day festivities and the stores and business houses will be closed generally throughout the circuit.

Probably some ceremony will take place at the park before the opening of the game.

Red Wing, Minn., May 6.—The opening of the Minny league season in Red Wing on Wednesday, May 11, will be the greatest athletic event ever held here if the plans of the association are carried out and indications are that the public in general will take a hand in the affair to make the opening a grand success.

Petitions are being circulated among the business houses and manufacturing establishments to have a "closed shop" between the hours of 2 p. m. and 5 p. m. on the opening day and the business men are responding nobly to the request. Mayor A. P. Pierce today issued a proclamation asking the business houses to close in order to give their employes a chance to see the game. The plan of closing the stores will be carried out in other league cities and Red Wing will be in line with other metropolitan cities in this respect.

Before the game there will be an automobile parade headed by the Red Wing Military and State Training School bands in which the mayor, members of the city council, citizens and ball players will participate.

Thomas Coonsidine is chairman of the tag day committee of which scores of fans have asked to become members. There are many enthusiasts in Red Wing who have not suscribed for stock in the association but they are willing to push a good thing along and demand that they be held up and tagged for a dollar for the opening game.

La Crosse, Wis., May 6.—Plans for opening day were discussed at a meeting of the directors of the La Crosse Baseball club Tuesday evening, the discussion taking up the greater part of the time of the meeting.

No effort will be made by the directors this year to have the business houses in the city close on opening day, as advance assurances have been given by a large number of the business men that this action will be taken on their own initiative, that all employes may have the opportunity to witness the opening game.

The game will be preceded by a band concert and parade of the downtown streets by the La Crosse and Eau Claire players and a short program of speeches at the park.

Walter Simonton will be the ticket man at the grounds again this year.

For opening day the general admission at the gate will be 25 cents and grandstand seats 25 cents extra. On other days the general admission will be the same, but the grandstand seats will be 15 cents.

The Red Wing team will be known as the "Manufacturers." Red Wing is one of the best little manufacturing cities in the West and the name is very appropriate.

SOCCER GAME WILL BE SEEN HERE.

Tonight at Athletic park soccer football teams representing Duluth and Sandstone will play an exhibition game. There will be no charge for the contest, as it is for the purpose of introducing the game to the attention of football followers. The game has become very popular on the Pacific coast, and lovers of the English game are desirous of introducing it to popular favor in the Northwest.

The teams will line up as follows:

Duluth.	Position.	Sandstone.
T. Cairns	g	Vesti
J. Smith	lb	Peters
Falconer	rb	Martin
Williams	lh	Thomson
Johnson	ch	Dimmock

JACK JOHNSON IS LIVING LIFE OF EASE.

San Francisco, Cal., May 6.—Jack Johnson is training in leisure. Since arriving here he has divided his time between bits of business and pleasure: mostly pleasure. He objects to the mention of any sort of work, and objects to any disturbance of his tranquil existence. His gymnasium is ready for him, but he passes it by without even peeping in, finding more benefit in the sun-flooded, wind-swept beach.

All that he cares for by way of diversion from this simple life is his automobile. When he is not sleeping or walking, he is at the steering-wheel of his touring car.

His big racing car arrived yesterday and sent a thrill through the apprehensive managers of the big fight. Johnson has made all sorts of promises that he will avoid the danger mark, but low, rakish speed machines as part of the training apparatus in a championship heavyweight fighter's camp or the eve of a great ring battle, are not conducive to the peace of mind of promoters.

Manager George Little said yesterday that Monday had been chosen for beginning the conditioning season. Johnson will be put in a routine schedule and from then until the day of the fight, he will be carefully watched and handled by his trainers.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

A Grand Opening.

Preparations are being made for the most auspicious opening ceremonies in the history of baseball in this section of the country, when the 1910 season of the Minnesota-Wisconsin league will be opened in four of the cities of the neat little circuit.

The league will be formally opened next Wednesday afternoon. Next Tuesday the White Sox will leave for Winona with every hope of taking the opening game away from the Killian tribe. The preparations for the game are worthy of a city much larger than the fair little city down the Mississippi.

Brass bands, banners, a parade, the declaring of a half holiday and the general closing of business will mark the opening of the Minny league 1910 season at Winona. The fact that the 1909 pennant winners will be the opponents of Killian's Pirates, adds weight and dignity to the occasion.

A. W. Kuehnow will accompany the boys to Winona. Several of the Duluth U. C. T. who make that territory, have arranged to be in Winona on the opening day, so there will be at least some loyal rooters who will lend encouragement to the White Sox.

Superior will open the season at Red Wing. There is great enthusiasm in the league's new city. Red Wing is a great little manufacturing center. If the present plans are carried into effect, the majority of the factories will be closed on the day the season is opened. The Red Wing people expect a record-breaking crowd next Wednesday afternoon.

Schoonhoven's speed boys will open the season at La Crosse. Around the circuit it is generally believed that Schoone has landed one of the strongest teams in the organization. If "Russ" Bailey were back there would be little doubt of the sterling ability of the team Schoonhooven is grooming for the flag.

What Silent Joe Safford has accomplished at La Crosse, only the first few weeks of the season will disclose. The La Crosse scribes believe he has strengthened his team. The game between Eau Claire and La Crosse has got to the nerves of the bugs, and if report be true, there is more enthusiasm being shown in La Crosse right at the present time than at any period since the old days of the Wisconsin-Illinois league.

Wausau will open the season at Rochester. In the hospital town, where there is generally a large number of visitors, great and growing interest is being shown in the party Happy Jack Corrigan is preparing for Bond and his rejuvenated Lumberjacks.

There is the right and proper kind of enthusiasm. The fans have awakened to the fact that the Minnesota-Wisconsin has taken its place with the fast professional leagues of the Northwest. The receptions planned by the four towns are in keeping with the new dignity of the league.

After playing the three game series with Killian's Pirates, a team primed for the flag, by the way, the Sox will invade the German territory of La Crosse. Three games will be played with Safford's Satellites, the team moving on to Rochester. From Rochester the Sox will go to Red Wing, winding up the invasion with three games at Eau Claire.

The local season will be opened May 26 by Rochester.

Maybe He's Through.

So far the present season, ancient Cy Young hasn't shown anything. They are beginning to wonder if the pitching marvel of the age has at last run his race and is ready to take the chutes. Last year was a rather disastrous one for Cy; the present season promises to be even worse.

In the few games he has worked in the present season the veteran has shown nothing. He has been driven from the box on more than one occasion and seems to lack the speed and curves that once made him the terror of the batsmen of the big leagues.

Isn't it funny that we are continually predicting the end of some great baseball player who has been in the game a number of years, and when the end comes we are all surprised.

Around the cities of the American league there is genuine surprise that old Cy should not go right along pitching the same brand of baseball he has been hurling for the last twenty years. Even the iron men have their end. There was Iron McGinnity—the two-a-day gink; he had his finish, and the fans were excited when told that he was beginning to get kinks in his arm.

There are a lot of people who don't seem to be able to grasp the fact that even the greatest of athletes must have their end. The only surprise about the slowing of Cy is, that he has lasted as long as he has.

St. Paul Strong.

Genial Michael J. Kelly has a lot of friends in this town who are genuinely glad that the Apostles are leading the American association procession. A majority of the local fans are rooting for the Saints to finish out in front.

Through his appearances here in the past with baseball teams and through his trip of inspection here last fall, Mike made many friends. When he was here last September he found his stay entirely too short. He was almost forced to tear himself away, so cordial were the pressing invitations for him to remain in Duluth longer.

Kelly knows ball players and he can get the work from his men. The news that Indian Leroy has been purchased from the Boston Americans will be welcome news to the fans of St. Paul. Last season the Indian was the most consistent pitcher in the American association. His presence will add further strength to the strong team Kelly has assembled.

First Eight Won.

In the morning paper it is stated that the lighter and more inexperienced oarsmen last night defeated the older and heavier men. The statement is wrong. The two crews raced last evening for the distance of about a mile, the first eight pulling in about three lengths ahead of the lighter and more inexperienced men. The latter crew rowed a plucky race but was beaten by the older men.

With the coming of the warmer weather the work has been increased. Hard work and strict attention to the rules of training will be the order of things until the end of the season. It has not been decided just when the events at Kenora will be held. When this is known, the coaches can plan the training of the crew with more definite aim.

The suggestion of the Kenora officials that the regatta be held July 28 and 29 has not been approved by the officials of the Duluth Boat club. They are of the opinion that a date so late in July lengthens the season unduly. If the officials of the Minnesota Boat club take the same opinion of the tentative dates submitted for approval or suggestion, it is very probable that the date of the big Western water event will be set earlier.

Superior Comes Today.

This afternoon at Athletic park Duluth fans will show their loyalty to the team by going out and rooting for another victory over Superior. We want the series with the O'Dea tribe, as we need it in our business.

The game this afternoon will be called at 3:30. Mr. Kuehnow announced yesterday that Reddersdorf would probably start the game for Duluth. O'Dea will send one of his new pitchers into the box. The fans will be given their first opportunity of getting a real line on the players.

STATE EXECUTIVE IS POWERLESS

Governor Gillett Cannot Stop Fight at Emeryville July 4.

Sacramento, Cal., May 6.—In response to scores of letters received at the governor's office since the death of Tommy McCarthy following his fight with Owen Moran in San Francisco last Friday night, urging that Governor Gillett stop the Jeffries-Johnson fight on July 4, E. Forest Mitchell, executive secretary to the governor sent out answers yesterday saying that the governor is powerless to interfere. The statement made by Mitchell, which officially outlines the governor's attitude follows:

"Gentlemen: This office is in receipt of your letter enclosing resolutions by the Ministerial union relative to suppressing the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight on July 4, 1910.

"Governor Gillett is en route to Washington and probably will not return to Sacramento for a month. Lieutenant and Acting Governor Porter will not be in this office for a week or ten days.

"Replying to your letter in their absence, permit me to say that the governor is not in favor of prize fights, that he has never attended one in his life and says he never will. However, under the laws of California I believe he is helpless to prevent or suppress this so-called boxing contest because the law allows such contests, if the necessary permit has been granted by the local authorities. In this instance I understand this permit has been granted.

"I would suggest you file your complaint with the district attorney of Alameda county and if this is a prize fight and not a boxing contest, he has the right to put a stop to it. In all probability, however, the local authorities will be seriously handicapped until such time as the law is amended by the state legislature so that the distinction is clearly known between a prize fight and a so-called boxing contest. "Yours faithfully,

"E. F. MITCHELL,
"Executive Secretary."

THE GLIDDEN PATHFINDER LEAVES FOR OMAHA.

Kansas City, Mo., May 6.—In a heavy rain storm the pathfinder car of the Glidden tour left Kansas City for the North at 9 o'clock this morning. It was planned to make the first stop at St. Joseph.

Driver Lewis said he hoped to reach Omaha by tonight, but because of the hard rains of the last twenty-four hours he doubted if he would be able to make that city before Saturday noon.

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

Joe Killian has completed negotiations for the purchase of Outfielder H. Bovan from the South Bend team. The man Killian has closed for is rated as a fast man in the garden and handy with his bat. Just why South Bend should be willing to part with such a jewel is hard to understand. The new man is expected to arrive in time to take part in some of the games before the league opening.

• • •

In addition to the outfielder Killian has secured, the crab has announced that he has secured a pitcher. Uncle Joe has refused to give out the name of the new hurler, but whispers mysteriously that he is classy. Evidently Killian is not thoroughly satisfied with the showing his men have made in the games played so far. Regina put it all over the Killian Freebooters. What Red Wing did to the Canadian cousins was a shame and pity. Killian is worrying some, yes.

• • •

The Cuban Stars, a team composed entirely of players from the little Republic, will play at Winona today and Wausau Saturday and Sunday. Monday the liberty lovers will hook up with Silent Joe Safford's La Crosse team. Thus will the fans around the circuit be given a sort of preliminary estimate on the strength of the three teams.

• • •

Happy Jack Corrigan has been doing the greater part of the catching for the Bonesetters this spring.

Mique Malloy's impetuosity has cost the directors of the Red Wing club $100—real money, too. This is the amount of the fine stuck on the management for that game with the outlaw Logan Squares of Chicago. Malloy secured the permission of Comiskey to invade the Chicago teritory, but neglected to get the come-on from Chubby Charley Murphy. This little financial fling will perhaps have a quieting effect on the restless spirit of Mique.

• • •

Moore, the man making such a good impression at the third sack for the Eau Claire Angels, has been hitting the ball hard and consistently since joining the squad. In the second game against the smokes of St. Paul, the Kansas City boy got two two-base hits. His fielding, in addition, has been fast and clean.

• • •

Lizzette, the new catcher who worked in the game of yesterday, was with Waterloo for three years. He is not exactly as young as he was some fifteen years ago, but it is claimed he is a heady and fast player.

• • •

O'Dea has secured a player named Maddox, who is being tried for second base. The new child is said to be sweet on the fielding proposition but gun shy when it comes to batting.

Killian has Stark and McCarthy for catchers, which doesn't look as if the crab will do much of the heavy work the present season. Killian is getting to be an old man and needs some sprightly youths to loosen the burden from his ancient shoulders.

• • •

Saturday and Sunday the La Crosse Outcasts will meet the St. Paul Colored Gophers. This team has been beaten by Eau Claire handily, and it will be interesting to observe what Silent Joe and company can do with the colored men.

• • •

Wausau has been showing unexpected strength in the games of late, and the gentle rumor is being whispered in silent places that Carl Bond has collected some live spines. He has been working hard enough.

AITKEN HAS LUCKY STAR

Goes Over an Embankment During Race and Escapes With Few Scratches.

One Track Record Is Broken During Day of Speeding at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., May 6.—John D. Aitken, one of America's fastest stock car drivers, had a miraculous escape from injury on the back stretch of the Atlanta speedway yesterday afternoon, when his National 40, going at seventy miles an hour, dashed into the fence and went down the embankment.

The front of the car was smashed, but Aitken and his assistant, Wilson, escaped with a few scratches.

The accident happened in the forty-ninth mile of the 200-mile race, when Aitken was about two miles in the lead of his nearest competitor.

One Atlanta track record was broken in yesterday's races. Ralph De Palma clipping 30.38 seconds off the 20-mile record for cars of 451-600 cubic inches piston displacement, made by Robertson in a Fiat last year.

The summary of yesterday's races follows:

First race—Twenty miles, stock chassis, 451 to 600 cubic inches piston displacement, won by De Palma, time 15:57:41; Aitken second. De Palma broke the Atlanta track record almost one minute. Only two out of five cars finished.

Second race — Ten miles, stock chassis, 161 to 230 cubic inches piston displacement, won by the Cole, with Endicott driving, time 10:04:89; Buick, second; E. M. F., third.

Third race—Special match race between John A. Rutherford in Fiat 60 and W. J. Stoddard in National 40, ten miles, won by Rutherford, time 8:53:30.

Fourth race—Ten miles free-for-all, won by Harroun in a Marmon Yellow-jacket 40, time 7:43:47; De Palma, Fiat 60, second; Aitken, National 40, third.

The 200-mile race was won by Harroun in a Marmon, time 3 hours 2 minutes 31.25 seconds. Harroun did not stop during the entire distance. Strang was forty miles behind Harroun at the finish of the big race. He received second money.

Sixth event—Ten-mile handicap, special match race, won by Asa G. Candler, Jr., in a Fiat 60 over W. J. Stoddard in a National 40, time 7:55:14.

Two-mile race—Ralph De Palma, Fiat 90, time 1:32:09.

JEFFRIES SHOWS OLD-TIME GINGER

Fighter Boxes With Papke and Choynski and Pleases Trainers.

Ben Lomond, Cal., March 6.—Joe Choynski had his first tryout with Jeffries yesterday and at the close of the three-round bout said that, while he was in excellent shape himself, he was a mere baby in the big man's hands.

Jeffries gave Choynski, who has assumed charge of the boxing end of the training camp, every chance to make a good showing in the opening exercises, but while Joe displayed much of his old-time cleverness, Jeffries was much faster and showed great form.

Only a handful of Jeffries' trainers and four newspaper men witnessed the bout. No visitors were permitted for both Choynski and Papke were to be taken on for the first time and Jeffries has always been averse to the prying eyes of strangers on such occasions. Papke donned the gloves first, Jeffries being as gentle with the middleweight as his natural ruggedness would permit. In the second round he gave Papke a rather stiff right over the eye which severely shook the boy from Kewanee and raised a big lump.

"Better not use that on me again," Papke whispered as they fiddled, and thereafter Jeffries used his left entirely.

"When he leaned his weight on me a couple of times, I thought he was going to break my back," said Papke after the bout.

Then came the set-to with Choynski. The two faced each other for the first time since the twenty-round draw in San Francisco in 1892. Like Papke, Choynski looked like a pigmy alongside the former champion. Choynski evidently is in better shape than any of the other boxers in Jeffries' camp. He displayed much of his old-time agility and prowess and came out of the contest without distress. They went at it with a will, Jeffries favoring Joe all the way, being even more gentle with him than he was with Papke.

Choynski declared that after a few more days of sparring he would show to much better advantage. In his work with Choynski, Jeffries delighted his trainers by displaying a lot of the old-time ginger. He romped around the ring like a boy who loved the game. After boxing he went through a couple of handball games at top speed and indulged in rope-skipping, bag-punching and shadow-boxing.

Papke will leave here for training quarters near San Francisco Sunday. He would have liked to complete his training for Joe Thomas here, but said Promoter Coffroth insisted on his being nearer the scene of the coming bout. Jeffries has taken a great fancy to Papke and greatly regrets his departure.

McCARTHY'S DEATH ACCIDENTAL, SAYS JURY.

San Francisco, Cal., May 6.—Death from accidental causes was the verdict returned yesterday by the coroner's jury in the case of Tommy McCarthy, prize fighter, who was killed last Friday night in a fight with Owen Moran, the English lightweight champion.

MINOT'S AUTOMOBILE SHOW GREAT SUCCESS.

Minot, N. D., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The automobile show which opened here yesterday, is proving very successful. There was a large attendance at the first day, while today another big crowd is on hand. A notable feature of the show is the fact that it has attracted so many out-of-town visitors, indicating that there is a more general interest in automobiles in this section now than ever before. The Minot Commercial club is behind the movement.

KILLED BY STREET CAR

Little Girl Dodges Automobile and Rushes to Her Death.

Julia Sampson Victim of Fatal Accident on Superior Street.

Julia Sampson, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sampson of 119 St. Croix avenue, was almost instantly killed by an eastbound Woodland car at 7 o'clock last evening near the corner of Fifth avenue east and Superior street.

Dodging an automobile, coming from the opposite direction, she ran directly in front of the street car, which she had failed to notice. The fender carried her several feet, but before the car could be brought to a stop she had rolled under the wheels, sustaining a fracture of the skull and other injuries, which caused death within a few minutes.

She had been across the street to spend a penny for candy and was skipping joyfully home when she met with the fatal accident. Her father had promised to take her to see the moving picture show after the evening meal. Her mind full of the anticipated joys, Julia had little thought of the street cars or teams rushing to and fro.

Car Going at Fair Rate.

Witnesses differ as to the speed of the street car, but the best testimony seems to be that it was going at a fair rate. The general testimony is that the car traveled twenty feet after striking the child, although the brakes were set and the power reversed. The motorman is said to have been Oscar Haglund and the conductor, Ole Field.

Those who saw the accident attach small blame to the motorman, stating that it was unavoidable. The tot was on the street but a few seconds before the car struck her, and it appears that the motorman could not have divined her purpose of trying to get to the other walk before he had passed her.

Julia was accompanied by her playmate, Geraldine Wilson, the daughter of Mrs. Hulda Wilson of 115 St. Croix avenue. They went uptown to spend the penny together. While Geraldine played safely in a sand pile on the corner on the lower side of the street, Julia went to the candy store on the other side to make her purchase. It was while coming back to join Geraldine that she was killed.

Many See Accident.

The street was crowded with pedestrians who were on their way home after their day's work. When William McGlone pulled the girl's mangled body from under the wheels a crowd quickly collected. Still breathing, but with life ebbing fast, she was carried into an office nearby. Dr. John Jackola was passing at the time of the tragedy. After a hasty examination he declared that there was not the slightest hope of saving her. He discovered the fractured skull and several bones broken in the chest. It is thought that the first impact knocked her senseless, as she did not scream or cry. She never recovered consciousness.

The parents of the little victim are grief-stricken and inconsolable. Hearing of the accident while he was in a barber shop, the father rushed to the scene, without hat or coat, tears streaming from his eyes. The mother learned of it from a neighbor in a short time, and the home-coming of the husband and father confirmed the sad news.

Julia attended the Webster school, and was in the A Second grade. She was a bright pupil and a favorite with her classmates.

The body was taken to Stewart's undertaking rooms on Third avenue west.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 119 St. Croix avenue, Rev. Mr. Stenberg officiating. Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

been in session for a thorough consideration of the political and legislative situation, the conference continuing through the daylight hours when the senate has not been in meeting.

"What will be the effect upon your organization now that President Taft says he is depending upon the line-up of regular Republicans for the carrying out of his program?" was asked.

Senator Clapp answered:

Clapp Answers Query.

"He says he wants a good railroad bill, doesn't he? Well, that is what we are trying to give him."

Senator Cummins added that the progressives will continue to offer amendments which they think would improve the proposed legislation. He said he was not ready to say whether he would vote ultimately for or against the railroad bill.

"If I think it contains legislation which would be of benefit to shippers and the people generally, I will vote for it, of course, even though it does not carry provisions which I had thought should be carried. If it contains provisions which in my judgment would weaken the regulation of the Federal government as now exercised over railroads, why, then I would vote against it. That is all I can say."

Deny Serious Clashes.

Rumors that there have been serious differences of opinion within the progressive ranks and that the divergent views have crept into the conferences to an extent that there had been some bitterness exhibited, are denied by several of the progressives.

Senator Clapp said such statements were "very unfair." He explained that on the great questions involved in the railroad bill no group of men, nor any two men, could be expected to come together over night.

Several of the insurgent senators said there had been no substantial agreement on the traffic agreement and merger sections of the bill, and they expected these to be before the senate for several days more; that the move of the men in charge of the bill to strike out these sections had taken them by surprise and that they were not ready to take up other sections.

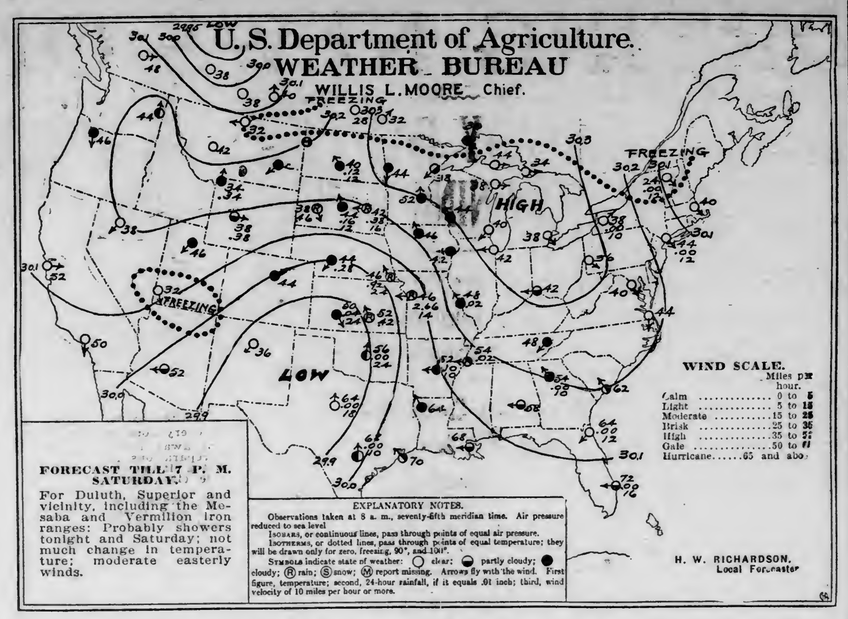
La Follette Wants Valuation.

One of the reports circulated was that Senator La Follette opposed the offering of amendments to strengthen the bill, and that Senators Cummins and Clapp insisted it was their duty, after laying down work of the regulars which they believed to be objectionable, to exert their influence to construct legislation to take place of that stricken out.

It was said Senator La Follette wanted to strike out the capitalization sections and put in their place a provision for a physical valuation and nothing more.

It is understood the insurgents will support the Dixon amendment on the subject of the long and short haul clause and the Cummins substitutes for Sections 13, 14 and 15, relating to federal regulation of the capitalization of railroads.

Senator Cummins left Washington today for Des Moines, where he expects to make a campaign speech. He said with some sarcasm that he though it was a good time to be away, as Senator Aldrich is not in the city. The Iowa senator expects to be away only a few days.



RAIN

Three strikes and out! The weather man will please retire to the bench. He whiffed on that rain prediction. There was nothing doing in the way of gentle patter of the falling drops either last night or today and Duluth is enjoying just about as beautiful spring weather as anybody could wish. So, while he failed in his designs, the weather man is enjoying popularity that must temper the keen edge of the defeat.

Chilly winds were blowing off the lake a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 4:43 and it will set at 7:25, giving fourteen hours and forty-two minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The storm central Thursday morning over Wyoming has apparently divided, forming depressions overlying Texas and Alberta respectively. During the past twenty-four hours light to heavy rains resulted in Southern Illinois, Western Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, Western Iowa, the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas and Wyoming. Temperatures are moderate generally except that freezing weather prevailed last night over the greater portion of Canada. The barometer continues high in the lake region. Light to heavy frosts occurred this morning in the latter district and the upper Ohio valley."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes—Moderate east winds; partly cloudy tonight and Saturday, with showers Saturday over south portions.

Chicago, May 6.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7. p. m. Saturday.

Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday.

Wisconsin—Increasing cloudiness; probable showers in southwest portion tonight and Saturday and in southeast portion Saturday afternoon or night; frost in northeast portion tonight.

Minnesota—Increasing cloudiness, with showers in south portion tonight or Saturday.

Iowa—Rain tonight and Saturday; warmer in east portion tonight.

North Dakota—Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday.

South Dakota—Threatening tonight, with rain in east portion; Saturday partly cloudy.

Montana—Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer in northeast portion tonight.

today indicated an improvement, those with the king having been deceived by the fact that he had rested quietly through the night. The news was received with cheers by an anxious crowd gathered throughout the city. This bulletin stated that his majesty's condition remained much the same. The subsequent examination developed that the patient's bronchial tubes instead of being in better condition were more seriously affected after the night's sleep than they were yesterday.

Thereupon a bulletin was issued saying:

"The king passed a comparatively quiet night, but the symptoms have not improved and his majesty's condition gives rise to grave anxiety."

The doctors announced that the next bulletin would be issued at 6:30 o'clock this evening.

King's Heart Is Weak.

The king's age and corpulence and the well known weakness of the heart, which has caused occasional attacks resembling vertigo during the past two or three years and which were attributed chiefly to the constant smoking of strong cigars, all have served to weaken his power of resistance to disease.

Great Crowd About Palace.

The day was bright and sunny, and before noon a great crowd was loitering in front of the palace, in the vicinity of the new Memorial Victoria building, and many carriages gathered in St. James' park. From early morn, when workmen on the way to the scene of their labors stopped to inquire concerning the king's condition from the police at the palace gates, the throng increased steadily until the police were obliged to take measures to keep the crowds moving. Only officials were admitted to the palace precincts.

So dense was the throng and so absorbed were the people in his majesty's illness that the arrival of the prince of Wales attracted practically no attention.

Early in the afternoon the members of the diplomatic corps called and signed the visitors' book, as did many other prominent personages. All left the palace betraying by their expressions the fears entertained.

"Very bad," said the archbishop of Canterbury, with a solemn shake of his head, as he emerged from the palace gate and was questioned regarding his majesty's condition.

Worst Time in Years.

The prospect of the death or long illness confronts the country at the worst possible time in years.

From a political and other point of view such an outcome would be particularly disastrous. The greatest constitutional crisis in generations hangs over Great Britain. King Edward is familiar with all the features of the situation, which would be particularly trying to his successor, who, upon the threshold of his reign, would be called upon to deal with the question of employing the authority of the crown to curb the powers of the peers.

From a social and business viewpoint the monarch's demise would be equally unfortunate. The social season, when families are flocking from the country to London and the marchants counting upon a big business, is just beginning, and was expected this year to be the most brilliant of many seasons.

Would Affect Roosevelt Visit.

The king's death would throw the court and country into mourning and end the social activities. Incidentally, Mr. Roosevelt's visit, which all England has anticipated as a unique event, might be cancelled or at least made extremely quiet.

Consols, which to a great extent are a barometer of the business feeling, dropped from 81 11-16 when the market closed yesterday to 81 at noon today. Leading financiers when interviewed expressed the opinion that the monarch's illness or death would have only a temporary effect upon securities generally and that the decline already recorded represents the marking down of quotations by brokers in anticipation of the selling which usually follows any startling news.

Stock Market Excited.

The stock exchange was much excited in the early hours by conflicting rumors, one of which had it that the king had died. The market opened weak under offerings, but the general tone soon improved when the sensational report was disproved. Quite a number of buying orders appeared and there was no real pressure to sell. The weakness was considered as purely sentimental. It was expected that Paris houses would send selling orders, as was the case when rumors of the king's illness were current earlier in the year.

Messages are pouring into the palace from all parts of the empire and foreign countries, expressing the hope that better news will be issued soon.

King Edward's first serious attack of bronchial trouble, which was accompanied with symptoms of asthma, was experienced a year ago. Since that time his majesty has suffered several recurrences of the malady, including one during his recent visit at Biarritz. Each attack proved worse than the preceding one and more difficult to conquer. The present illness came suddenly and without warning.

Show Great Alarm.

Callers at the palace today who had expressed the hope that the reports in the morning papers were exaggerated, had their worst fears confirmed by the palace officials.

"I am very sorry to say," said one of the king's close entourage, with a shake of the head, "that the papers have not exaggerated his majesty's condition. It is very grave."

There are unmistakable signs that all the members of the palace entourage are greatly alarmed. One government officer, who, in his official capacity, attended upon the audiences of the king on Wednesday and yesterday, said:

"The king looked very ill Wednesday morning and very much worse on Thursday. The chief outward symptom was extreme hoarseness. He was scarcely able to speak at times, but insisted upon continuing the audiences."

Upon one occasion during the audiences, when the king's condition was the subject of remark, his majesty said:

"This is a return of what I had at Biarritz. I got clear of it then, but caught another cold at the theater. However, I will be all right in a few days."

Reid Tells of Last Visit.

Whitelaw Reid, American ambassador at the court of St. James, who visited the king at Buckingham palace on Wednesday, said today:

"I went to the palace upon the king's request to talk over some future engagements. The king then looked well and was in good spirits. He was, however, coughing a great deal and complained that his cough was distressing and very tiring. However, he talked for fully half an hour. I thought at the time he hardly realized how ill he was."

Even the announcement that no more official bulletins would be issued before evening failed to diminish the number of anxious ones who waited around the palace for further news.

It was learned at 1 o'clock that although some of the attending physicians remained close by, their presence had not been required in the sick chamber for some time previously. This indicated at least that there had been no relapse. What the physicians apparently fear is that they will find some growth on the bronchial tubes, necessitating an operation.

Fear Need of Operation.

It is known also that when the king's throat has been affected previously he was subject to spasmodic contractions of the vocal cords which were rather alarming.

In his majesty's present condition the sudden strain of such spasms put upon the blood vessels would require, likely, instantaneous relief. Hence the constant presence of Dr. Thomson, the throat specialist who was called into the case this morning.

The archbishop of Canterbury telegraphed to all the bishops of England and Wales as follows:

"Prayers by the church and people of England are desired for his majesty, King Edward, in his grave illness."

to be H. A. McArdle, whose brother is president of the Amalgamated Association of Tin & Steel Workers in Pennsylvania. President McArdle is en route for this place.

James Liddell, one of the best known miners in the Birmingham district and a former legislator, was overcome by after-damp while aiding in the work of rescue. His condition was serious for a time, but when he recovered he again tok charge of one of the rescue crews.

Greater excitement prevailed at Palos and in the surrounding country today than yesterday, and every incoming train brought hundreds of relatives and friends of the miners, and curiosity seekers. When the first bodies were brought to the surface women and children fought with the guards about the entrance for a view of the victims, in the hope of finding father or brother. More guards were employed, however, and ropes stretched about the opening to enable the work of rescue to proceed unhindered.

Forty-five white men and scores of negroes were in the mine at the time of a terrific explosion yesterday morning. The flames resulting from the explosion shot into the air from the mouth of the stope for a distance of 200 feet and the shock was felt for miles. Timbers from the stope were hurled several hundred feet from its mouth, and rocks from the roof of the stope caved in and made access to the mouth very difficult.

The disaster, coming so soon after the Mulga explosion in which forty-one men lost their lives, has plunged the mining settlements into great grief. The Red Cross and other relief work for the widows and orphans at Mulga has not yet been completed.

H. A. Drennen, treasurer of the Palos Coal & Coke company, said that the company was fully insured against losses from explosions.

The company was one of the first in this section that employed union miners only.

CITY MUST PAY FOR SIDEWALK INTERSECTIONS.

Under the first amendment to the charter, adopted at the last election, the city attorney has held that the city is liable for the cost of sidewalks on the intersections. During the year this will amount to a tidy sum, probably several thousand dollars, but it is impossible at this time to get any accurate estimate. Heretofore the property owner has paid the expense of the walk between the end of his property line and the curb.

Last Chance to See the Demonstration of this Wonder-Worker in Home Finishing

The transformation that the Chi-Namel Graining Process makes on scarred and battered floors, tables, chairs, weather-stained porch furniture, etc., is little short of marvelous. The simplicity and economy of this new process places within reach of everyone the means for practical improvement in the beauty and tone of all home furnishings and woodwork.

Let us show you, by actual demonstration, the difference between Chi-Namel and other "finishes"—prove its great superiority.

Let us show you how, with the Chi-Namel process, any woman, however inexperienced, can give her floors a natural hardwood surface, can finish furniture, frames, etc., in any of the popular mission or antique tones. In fact, how Chi-Namel brings new floors, new furniture and new woodwork.

No carpenter's bill, no labor expense—just the famous Chi-Namel outfit—and the result will be an elastic, durable finish that will resist heel prints, won't show hard usage, won't whiten or crack.

County Board Has Not Yet Awarded Contract for Virginia Building.

Routine Matters Occupy Commissioners' Attention During Morning Session.

Up to a late hour this afternoon, the county board in session at the courthouse had not awarded the contract for the erection of the new district court building at Virginia. The bids were opened yesterday, the lowest bidder being the Bailey-Marsh company, which offered to erect the building for $58,815. The next lowest bid was that of the Bowe-Burke company, $74,361.

At the meeting of the commissioners this morning A. J. Harker was given the contract to tear down and cart away the old courthouse building at Sixth avenue east and Second street. Mr. Harker's bid was $400. He is given sixty days' time in which to do the work.

• • •

The wages of day laborer were set at $2.25 for ten hours' work. For teams the county will play $5 a day and foremen employed will receive $3 a day

The town of Prairie Lake was divided. The district known as 50-20 will hereafter be known as Fine Lake and 50-21 will be known as Prairie Lake.

Joseph Bristol and John Bolin were awarded a contract for some repair work to be done on the Cloquet road. R. W. Nelson was awarded the work to be done on the Hartley road.

N. A. Murphy on a bid of $800, got the building located on the county site at Virginia.

The southern division of the Canosa road was legalized as was the southern division of the Lakewood road.

Hugh McCoy was granted a renewal of his liquor license at the town of Great Scott.

This afternoon the commissioners are discussing the bids for the erection of the courthouse at Virginia. The contracts will also be let for the work to be done on the Vermilion road. There are many road hearings to be held.

COPPERS WEAK AND UNSETTLED

Rally Follows Opening Depression and Subsequent Decline.

The copper market was nervous and erratic today. Weakness at the opening and the subsequent decline resulted from the depression abroad, due to the illness of the king of England. London sold stocks heavily. Toward the close the market rallied, shorts covering on the upturn. The support was sufficient to cause values to return to opening levels which were slightly lower than the close yesterday. Trading was entirely professional. Some prefessionals expected a bear raid on account of the king's illness, but the drive did not materialize.

Trading on the local exchange was broad but moderate. Butte-Alex Scott, part paid, sold at $3.06¾, Butte Ballakava at $9.75 to $9.50, Copper Queen at 30c, Giroux at $7.25, Red Warrior at $1.68¾ to $1.87¼, Shattuck at $25.62½ to $25.87½, Butte & Superior at $2.12½ to $2.06½, Calumet & Montana at 97 to 99c, Calumet & Corbin at 79 to 80c, Calumet & Sonora at $17.12½, Cliff at $1.50, Keating at $1.18¾, North American at $3.06¼ to $3.12½.

Amalgamated sold at $65.75 to $66.50 to $64.87½ to $65.75. Steel common sold at $81.50 to $82.50 to $80.87½ to $81, Calumet & Arizona at $59.50 to $58, Butte Coalition at $18.75 to $19 to $18.87½, Giroux at $7.12½ to $7.00 to $7.25, Greene at $8.25 to $8.52½ to $8.37½, North Butte at $31 to $21.50 to $30.62½ to $30.87½, Superior & Pittsburg at $11.50 to $11.25.

Interest continues to center in the metal and industrial shares and while copper statistics for April are incomplete, the indications are that deliveries on domestic and foreign accounts have been about 100,000,000 pounds of which about 35,000,000 have been exported. The very heavy imports in March indicate that the output in April exceeded the March production in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 pounds, leading to the belief that the output by refiners in April was close to 125,000,000 pounds. The surplus stocks of producers therefore will have been increased about 25,000,000 pounds last month.

TALK WILL BE CHEAPER

Will Cost Dakotans Less for Short Chat With Duluth.

Zenith City at Last on Equal Footing With Twins.

Duluth has won its fight for just treatment at the hands of the telephone interests.

It has been said many times that talk is cheap, unless you want to talk to Duluth. At points in the Dakotas it has been necessary to pay more for telephone connections with Duluth than it has to get them with Minneapolis, with the result that Duluth suffered commercially to the enrichment of the business houses of the Twin Cities.

Now all this has been changed, and Duluth will enjoy the same rates as do the Twin Cities, or at least they will be on a fair mileage basis.

This arrangement has been announced by the Northwestern Telephone company, as one of the results of the taking over by that company of the old Brainerd line, which was owned by the American Telephone & Telegraph company. The latter concern is the parent corporation of the Bell telephone interests, while the Northwestern company is the subsidiary operating company.

The Brainerd line extends from Duluth across the northern part of the state and out into the rich territory of the Dakotas, where Duluth commercial interests are large and rapidly growing larger. On this line a three-minute rate has been enforced, while from the same points to Minneapolis there was also a one-minute rate. It naturally followed that business was diverted to Minneapolis that should have come to Duluth, as most business calls do not last more than one minute.

Vigorous protests against this discrimination in favor of the Twin Cities were made by Duluth people, but apparently without result. Persistent and agressive work was continued, however, and the company has evidently seen the justice of Duluth's claims.

The Brainerd line is the only means of direct telephone communication between Duluth and the Dakotas and for that reason the Bell people were in a position to ignore the requests of Duluth interests. Having secured all that was contended for, local business houses are therefore extremely well pleased with the situation as it stands, since the new rates went into effect.

BOY 15 YEARS OLD HANGED IN FLORIDA

New England Lad Executed for Brutal Murder of Little Girl.

Deland, Fla., May 6.—Irving Hanchell, the 15-year-old Connecticut boy who was convicted of the brutal murder of Clevie Tedder, a 13-year-old girl, near this place on the evening of Feb. 12 last, was hanged here today.

TELLS OF CYANIDE IN SWOPE BODIES

Dr. Cross Explains Poison's Presence as Due to Chemical Action.

Kansas City, Mo., May 6.—Signs of cyanide in the stomach of Col. Thomas H. Swope might have resulted from the mingling of formaldehyde, injected in embalming fluids, and the natural ammonia in the body, testified Dr. Walter M. Cross in the Hyde trial today. Formaldehyde and ammonia, he said, would form hydrocyanic acid, which is the active poisonous ingredient of cyanide.

Dr. Cross also testified he believed the typhoid epidemic at the Swope house resulted alone from unsanitary conditions. He once examined the property at the request of Mrs. Swope.

The chemist was excused just before court adjourned at noon.

The state attempted to show that hydrocyanic acid would form from the blending mentioned only under high heat pressure. Dr. Cross said such acid would be formed under room temperature as well as higher temperature.

The defense said it would show by charts that the weather was warm during the first month Col. Swope's body lay in the vault.

TIMBERMAN IS BLAST VICTIM

Finlander Still Lives After Rock Crushes Into His Head.

Ironwood, Mich., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A Finn, recently from the Old Country, whose name is not known, was the victim of an unusual accident in the Norrie mine a few days ago. He entered a drift just as a blast went off and was struck in the head and his body lacerated by pieces of flying rock. A piece of the rock the size of a goose egg was extracted from his skull, but he is still alive with little hope of surviving.

The miners claim they closely guarded the drift prior to the blast and are at a loss to explain how the unfortunate man got into the danger zone.

IN STORKVILLE CENTER.

Only Man Who Hired Out as a Scarecrow.

New York Sun: "There appeared one day in Storkville Center, Vt.," said Col. Calliper, telling, as he likes to do, of his early life spent in that favored community, "a tramp who certainly was the raggedest and in appearance generally altogether the most extraordinary specimen that, so far as habiliments went, had ever been seen in that locality.

"He was a little above the average stature and he was a little inclined to politeness, and for clothing he wore garments that were still too big, for him and were past description for their varied shades of fadedness and their jigsaw puzzle variations in rents and tears and on his head a big beaver hat badly battered as to its cylinder and bent as to its brim and with its top cut out three-quarters of the way around, and that top now turned upward like the hent up top of a giant tomato can.

"He was quite the most extraordinary tramp that had ever appeared in Storkville Center or, I doubt not, anywhere else in the whole wide world, and when he walked in at Farmer Gwillbin's gate and around to Farmer Gwillbin's kitchen door the folks there so regarded him; but Mr. Gwillbin saw in him something besides.

"Despite his grotesquely exaggerated tramplike appearance he had not the fully graduated tramp's utter listlessness. He was certainly leisurely in movement, yet his leisurely way had in it something of the nature of deliberation which implies thought, and so indicated in this case the absence of full surrender to idleness. Mr. Gwillbin was a man of discernment.

"It was early summer and the corn was just coming up.

"The crow is a sage bird with many likable qualities, and as might be expected, the Vermont crow has the superior intelligence that marks likewise the human inhabitants of the good old Green mountain state. The Vermont crow is not easily fooled, and it takes something more than an ordinary scarecrow to keep him away from its corn fields.

Farmer Gwillbin had only that morning completed a scarecrow to which he had devoted much thought and labor, but when he saw that tramp loom up at the kitchen door and saw how far beyond anything that he could construct that tramp was as he stood, and when he noted, too, that glint of intelligence in the tramp's eye, why Farmer Gwillbin—quick to see and quick to act—said:

"'Our corn is coming up. If you'll go out and stand in the field a few days we'll give you all you can eat and a good place to sleep.'

"The tramp took him up. This wouldn't be lying by the roadside in the shade, but it would mean plenty to eat, and freedom from dogs, and a place to sleep and—he had that spark in him.

"So they give him food and then Mr. Gwillbin led him to the cornfield and placed him. At noon the tramp came in to dinner and at night to supper, and he slept in the barn, and so he worked for days.

"It was warm standing in the sun, and it was tiresome, but after a few days the tramp found a way of resting himself. He took with him to the field a stake three or four feet long, which he would plant there, then resting the strap that he wore around his waist on the top of it, at the back. This, to be sure, was in the nature of a lapse, but later he more than made up for this by showing some signs of activity.

"When he first took the field the crows kept entirely away from it; they had never seen anything like this; but when they had become a little used to the sight of it they ventured nearer, and then—the spark must have burned a little brighter in him, as it does in all of us when we really have something to do—the tramp raised his arm.

"The crows had seen the empty sleeves of stuffed scarecrows blown about idly in the breezes, but there was something very different in this ponderous and menacing movement, and thereafter, as then, whenever this amazing image but ever so little raised its great arms the crows fled.

"When the corn was well up the great tramp, now not only well fed but with some of the grateful Farmer Gwillbin's money in his pocket—though he had declined a less ragged suit of clothes which Mr. Gwillbin had offered him in addition—made his way Southward toward the Massachusetts state line, and disappeared, but do you know, in the next summer he came again to Storkville Center and to Farmer Gwillbin, and in garb—which would once have seemed impossible—more extraordinarily grotesque than before, and this year Mr. Gwillbin regularly hired him for the growing corn season, paying him a regular wage; not a large sum, but something.

"He came back thus the next season, and the next, making four seasons he was never again seen in Storkville.

"A most extraordinary man, and although I have known men engaged in various strange occupations, he was the only man I ever knew or heard of who hired out as a scarecrow."

LUNCHEON GIVING.

"Luncheons are being given much more frequently now than in other days," says a writer in Vogue. "We are having more holidays perhaps, and on Saturdays town looks forlorn after 1 o'clock. Certainly they are much in favor at Tuxedo, as at all the country places within motoring distance of town.

"At Chevy Chase, near Washington, Sunday is always so gay at this time that tables have to be engaged weeks in advance. Many people in town entertain during the season with Sunday luncheons and in the evening either dine with friends or go to the restaurants. However, women usually stay at home until 6, or at least are visible until that time, for they must have a day on which men can call. Several of the November brides gave large luncheons shortly before their wedding days, inviting the entire bridal party and intimate friends.

"Some old-fashioned hostesses cling to bouillon—perhaps because they have pretty china cups—but otherwise it is quite out of fashion. Three courses are ample for luncheon, which begins with hors d'oeuvres and should include one entree. Then there is a roast or chicken or chops or anything of that kind and a salad and simple dessert. One wine, usually Rhine, or hock or claret, may be served, and a half hour after luncheon, as well as dinner, bottled mineral water (the imported is better form than the domestic), should be brought to the drawing room.

"Once every few seasons there is something really new in the way of things to eat, but I have found that the old-fashioned viands are the best if they are really well cooked. We do not like fussy dishes nowadays, owing perhaps to the many systems for aiding the digestion and keeping thin.

"Some hostesses remain faithful to grape fruit as an introduction to luncheon and others to oysters or clams. But neither the oyster nor the clam cocktail is particularly good form. The hors d'oeuvres is safer, because several may be served in the French manner and every one has a choice, while there are many who fear oysters or clams, claiming that they induce typhoid—something which I do not believe.

"Another gastronomic fad now generally tabooed is the extraordinary salad, and all, except lobster and chicken mayonnaise, have French dressing. A green salad is best, and next to that one of endives. With pimentoes, or green peppers, they make a pretty dish, and the combination is healthful."

IN HOTEL SAFES.

A woman walked up to the counter of a fashionable hotel and asked for a package of valuables which was in the safe, says the New York sun.

"If I had not wanted one particular thing I suppose I should have left the package where it was for another three years," she said to the clerk.

"Yes," said the clerk in answer to a question after the woman left, "that packet had really been in our safe for three years. Why, we have all sorts of valuable papers, jewelry and even money that are entrusted to our keeping for years at a time. People seem to prefer a hotel safe to a safety deposit vault. One reason, perhaps, is that the standard of hotel clerks has improved.

"It is astonishing the amount of jewelry that people keep in hotel safes. Of course the owners have originally stopped in the hotel, but they go away, leaving their valuables, and I have known such persons to be gone as much as two years and never make an inquiry about their property in that time.

"To show you how much confidence people have in hotels and their employees I might mention that the other day a man came in here and put four $1,000 bills in an envelope, wrote his name on the latter and asked me to put it in the safe. Not long ago another man actually did the same thing with seven $10,000 bills."

The clerks of several other hotels talked in a similar strain without any outside suggestion.

"I'll bet I have handled more than a million dollars worth of jewelry today," said one. "Look here," and he opened the safe and piled six or eight big jewelry cases on the counter, but hurriedly put them back. "In one of those I know there is over $200,000 worth and what I showed you was only a few of what the safe contains."

Up at a big hotel near the park the employees are greatly concerned about the freedom with which a wealthy foreign woman who is stopping there displays her jewels. Every evening she wears a rope of pearls that goes once around her neck and then falls to her knees, to which is attached a lorgnette.

Everybody who has seen the jewels has exclaimed at their size and perfect matching, and wealthy patrons of the house who have sold as well as bought jewes say the necklace is worth not a cent less than $200,000. The owner went the other day into one of the big jewelry houses and business was immediately suspended while everybody crowded about to admire the necklace.

HOW I MADE MY HAIR GROW

Woman With Marvelously Beautiful Hair Gives Simple Home Prescription Which She Used With Most Remarkable Results.

I was greatly troubled with dandruff and falling hair. I tried many advertised hair preparations and various prescriptions, but they all signally failed; many of them made my hair greasy, so it was impossible to comb it or do it up properly. I think that many of the things I tried were positively injurious, and from my own experience I cannot too strongly caution you against using preparations containing wood alcohol and other poisonous substances. I believe they injure the roots of the hair. After my long list of failures I finally found a simple prescription, which I used with most remarkable results, and I can unhesitatingly state that it is beyond doubt the most wonderful thing for the hair I have ever seen. Many of my friends have also used it and obtained wonderful effects therefrom. It not only is a powerful stimulant to the growth of the hair, and for restoring gray hair to its natural color, but it is equally good for removing dandruff, giving the hair life and brilliancy, etc., and for the purpose of keeping the scalp in first-class condition; it also makes the hair much easier to comb and arrange in nice form. I have a friend who used it two months, and during that time it not only stopped the falling of his hair and wonderfully increased its growth, but it practically restored all his gray hair to its natural color. You can obtain the ingredients for making this wonderful preparation from almost any druggist. The prescription is as follows:

Bay rum, 6 ozs.; Menthol crystals, one-half drachm; Lavona de Composee, 2 ozs.; To-Kalon perfume, 1 to 2 teaspoonfuls.

Apply night and morning; rub thoroughly into the scalp.

Go to your druggist and ask for an eight-ounce bottle containing six ounces of bay rum; also one-half drachm of Menthol crystals, and for a two-ounce bottle of Lavona de Composee. Mix the ingredients yourself in your own home. Add the Menthol crystals to the bay rum and then pour Lavona de Composee, and add the To-Kalon perfume. Let it stand for one-half hour and it is ready for use.

EXTENSION IS NEEDED

Proposed Hillside Line Would Serve Large Number of People.

Residents Are Hopeful It Will Be Made This Year.

The proposed extension of the street car tracks in the Second ward is meeting with universal approval. Mayor Cullum, City Engineer McGilvray and others who have gone over the route declare that the territory to be served has built up sufficiently to warrant the improvement.

Mayor Cullum states that about one-sixth of the population of the city is above Fourth street. He bases his estimate upon the precincts in that locality. In round figures, the average vote of Duluth is 10,200. The precincts in that neighborhood cast about 1,700 votes, or about one-sixth of the votes cast in the city.

Manager Herbert Warren of the street car company declaros that it has been the policy of the company to build extensions before enough revenue is in actual sight to put the required investment upon a profitable basis. He says they believe in aiding the development of the city, as has been done in the past by building street car extensions. It is an admitted fact that street car extensions do probably more than any other one factor to induce home building.

The proposed extension branches from the East Fourth street line at Fifth avenue east, running up to Fifth street, along Fifth street to Sixth avenue east, up Sixth avenue east to Sixth street, on Sixth street to Seventh avenue east and up Seventh avenue east to Eleventh street. The city engineer reports that the grades are practicable.

The residents are confident that the extension will be made this year. They feel that they are entitled to it and will bring every possible pressure to bear upon the street car company to have the work start at the earliest possible moment.

No section of the city has grown more rapidly than the part above Fourth street, east of Fifth avenue east. The records of the building inspector show that scores of residences and cottages have been erected there the last year. This spring the activity in that vicinity has been particularly pronounced. Should the street car extension become a certainty there is no doubt but that the increase in the number of homes, principally among the working people, would be even more noticeable.

ROOSEVELT GETS ANOTHER DEGREE

Doctor of Philosophy Conferred By Norwegian University on Ex-President.

Christiana, Norway, May 6.—King Frederick's university conferred upon Theodore Roosevelt today the degree of doctor of philosophy. It was the third time in the history of a century of this degree being given a foreigner.

The exercises occurred in the amphitheater of the University. King Haakon entered with Mr. Roosevelt at his right and faced a notable assemblage including the premier and other members of the cabinet, the Nobel prize committee, the diplomatic corps, the faculty of the University and many persons distinguished in civil life.

RECEIVER FOR RISK COMPANY

United States Life Endowment Company Alleged to Be Insolvent.

Chicago, May 6.—On representation that the United States Life Endowment company is totally insolvent, that concern was placed in the hands of the Central Trust Company of Illinois as receiver today.

The receivership was granted on the complaint of Elizabeth Lumley of Watseka, Ill., who recovered a judgment of $569 against the insurance company. She alleges that a return to the court on her judgment showed that the company had no assets on which to levy.

The bill recites that the company has $11,000,000 in outstanding insurance policies. It is further alleged that although the company is required to retain a reserve fund of 25 per cent of all premiums collected, its total assets fall below the reserve requirements.

The bill contains no statement of assets and liabilities, although the latter, it is said, may run close to $500,000 on premiums and collections of assessments. Edwin C. Kingsbury is president of the company.

The Slim Woman Is Winning

The day of the slim woman's triumph has arrived. "The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers.

This would have been sad news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try dieting or exercise. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the styles goes to a druggist and gets a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime and so reduces her superfluous flesh quickly.

These tablets, being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless, and they are, also, the most economical preparation a person can buy, for they cost only 75 cents a large case, one of which is frequently enough to start a person to losing fat at the rate of 12 to 14 ounces a day. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a case by sending to the makers, the Marmola Company, 491 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

POTATOES ARE ROTTING

Farmers Cannot Market Crops for Lack of Two Miles of Road.

John Carlson Complains of Conditions in Vicinity of Payla.

With potatoes rotting in their cellars and hay and other crops from last year on their hands unmarketed for want of about two miles of road over which to haul them, farmers living in the vicinity of Payla, eight miles west of Tower, are not in a very pleasant frame of mind toward the board of county commissioners, which has three times disregarded their petition for the road.

The same farmers, having eighteen children unable to attend school, although they have a schoolhouse, are not convinced that the best efforts are being made to educate the settlers in the northern part of the county.

John Carlson, who has lived on a farm in section 21, 61-16 for the past eleven years, was in Duluth today and he told of the woes of the farmers in the vicinity of Payla. He has 200 bushels of potatoes of his last years crop rotting in his cellar. He has hay in the fields and other products in storage—the fruits of a year's hard labor going to waste for lack of two miles of road.

Ten farmers are in absolute need of the road and thirty in all signed the three petitions, which were presented to the board of county commissioners and disregarded, he said. The farmers have appealed to Commissioner Grant McMahon, Mr. Carlson said, and they have been given no encouragement. Now they are going to take the matter up with the agricultural committee of the Duluth Commercial club in the hope that something can be done to better their condition.

The Vermilion road from section 15, 61-16, north to the Tower and Itasca road is in good condition according to Mr. Carlson, and the Tower and Itasca road is fit for travel from its junction with the Vermilion road to Tower. The farmers want a road constructed from section 15 to section 21, 61-16, a distance of about two miles and if that road is built they will so connect their farms that they will all have an outlet to the market.

"I have eighty acres, fifteen of which are cleared and the soil is as good as will be found anywhere in St. Louis county," said Mr. Carlson. "I have been there eleven years and some of the other farmers have been there longer. They all believe in the resources of their land and if they are given an outlet to the market, they will be able to develop their farms There is no use in raising crops to rot after they are harvested and the agricultural district will never be developed to its full capacity while the settlers are handicapped as we are."

There is one school in session in 61-16, but it is about two miles from Mr. Carlson's farm. There are eighteen children in the settlement too small to attend that school and, Mr. Carlson said, the farmers believe they should have a teacher for the schoolhouse which they have, but which has been closed for over a year. They had regular sessions of school two years ago and for a short period during the winter of 1909. They have had no school at all during the last winter, he said, and the children have had to stay at home. Lack of funds is ascribed as the reason for the failure to employ a teacher for the school, according to Mr. Carlson.

"I have three children who should have gone to school during the past winter, Uno Huttula has four and Matt Lerto has three," Mr. Carlson said. "There are other children in the neighborhood also and I think we ought to have a teacher for our school."

ODD ITEMS OF EXPENSE.

Congress Appropriates Money for Some Curious Purposes.

The United States government pays out annually thousands of dollars for purposes which not one in a thousand citizens knows anything about, says the Los Angeles Times. A close study of the appropriation bills passed every year by congress reveals the fact that this country has an expense account which contains some remarkable items. Appropriations for these have been regularly made for years, and will probably continue to be made for many more to come.

Although slave trading is generally supposed to be a thing of the past the United States does not think so. This is evidenced by the fact that this country contributes annually $100 as its share of the expense of keeping up at Brussels an institution known as the International Bureau for the Repression of the African Slave Trade.

Uncle Sam is deeply interested in ascertaining the size of the earth over which he recently stretched out his mighty hand. With a view of gaining the much-desired information he pays annually, through the American embassy at Berlin, his quota as an adhering member of the International Geodetic Association for the measurement of the earth, $1,500. The records do not show what progress the association is making toward reducing the size of this planet to cold figures, but the $1,500 is paid every year.

In Brussels there is an International bureau for the publication of customs tariffs. It costs money to maintain the bureau, and the United States pays $1,388 annually as its proportionate share of the expense. More expense still is the annual membership fee of the United States in another institution with headquarters in Brussels. Every year $2,270 is paid by this government as a contribution to the maintenance of the international bureau of weights and measures.

It costs the United States no less than $14,100 annually to provide prisons for American convicts in foreign countries. These prisons are under the immediate jurisdiction of the consular officers in various cities in China, Korea, Japan and Turkey. They are seldom used, but they must be maintained, nevertheless. The prisons, with the cost of rent and salary of keepers, are as follows: Bangkok, $1,000; Shanghai, $1,550; Yokohama, $1,550; Turkey, $1,000. For keeping and feeding such prisoners as may from time to time be confined in these prisons $9,000 is set aside every year.

On the cost of Morocco, at Tangier and Cape Spartel, mariners used to experience great difficulty in avoiding disaster on account of the absence of warning night signals on the shore. Lighthouses were sadly needed, and, as the government of Morocco would not provide them, the great powers took the matter in hand in the interest of their shipping interests. Lighthouses were established and the powers are assessd so much annually for their maintenance. The share of the United States in this expense is $325.

It is sometimes necessary for the United States to bring back to this country from abroad persons charged with crime. It is rather expensive work, and for it there is an annual appropriation of $5,000.

This government is ever grateful for any service rendered its citizens in case of marine disasters by those of foreign countries. Such services are usually substantially remembered, and there is a special provision for them. An annual appropriation of $4,500 is made for "expenses incurred in the acknowledgment of the services of masters and crews of foreign vessels in rescuing American seamen and citizens."

The people of Alaska who inhabit the islands of St. Paul and St. George receive special consideration at the hands of the government. Congress authorizes the secretary of the treasury to furnish them with food, fuel and clothing, and for this purpose $19,500 is appropriated. Industrial and school education in Alaska costs the government $30,000 a year.

The Washington monument comes in for a good-sized appropriation every year. In order that it may be kept open to the public and receive the necessary repairs, congress allows the war department an annual appropriation of $11,520. The same department is given $547,275 annually to be expended in providing artificial limbs for soldiers, and an additional sum of $2,000 is appropriated for surgical appliances for the veterans.

The items enumerated are only a few of the long list of unique expenditures made by the government. The state department has a secret fund which is used for diplomatic purposes. The public knows absolutely nothing about this fund, and everything concerning it is surrounded with the greatest air of secrecy. Out of it are paid the bills for entertaining foreign visitors who may be the guests of the government from time to time.

GUARDING KING'S CASTLE.

Precautions for Safety of Sovereign and Royal Visitors.

The presence of King Manuel at Windsor castle has been the cause of considerable quiet onergy at Scotland Yard, and known anarchists have been watched for at the ports, and those whose presence is known in this country have been shadowed. The precautions, however, taken for the safety of King Edward are so nearly perfect that little remains to be done in the actual guardianship of Windsor castle, says the London Daily Mail.

For an unauthorized person to gain an entrance into one of the king's palaces is almost an impossibility. It has been done, but the number of times could be almost counted on the fingers of a hand.

Within the walls of Windsor castle are treasures of priceless value, and even if the court is not in residence no one can enter without his presence being known to the police.

Although the royal residences are so well guarded at all times the guard is strongest when a foreign sovereign pays a state visit to this country. Then almost every other man is a detective within a mile or two of Windsor castle, and no one who is not well known has the slightest chance of getting within easy reach of the royal apartments.

When the king is in residence at Windsor, the guards are doubled. Instead of one man marching up and down with a bayonet fixed between sentry box and sentry box there are two.

Then there are Metropolitan policemen on duty at each gateway, as well as royal gatekeepers in scarlet and gold livery. In addition to that there are plain clothes detectives and night watchmen.

A lunatic seldom gets further than Henry VIII's gateway at Windsor. The little police office is just inside the gate, and here is officially recorded every day anything of note that takes place within the precincts of the castle.

A few yards inside the gateway are also the quarters of the officer who is in command of the castle guard. Telephones are installed all over the castle and the different entrances are connected with the main switchboard near the equerries' entrance.

If a paper knife were taken out of the castle today it would be missed tomorrow. Every treasure and piece of furniture in Windsor castle is entered into huge books and photographs are kept of all the most valuable articles.

The sentries were always provided with ball cartridge until a guardsman fired three bullets into a stone elephant on the east terrace of Windsor castle, which he mistook for a ghost in the mists of the early morning. Now they have to depend on their bayonets.

It is very seldom that thefts take place at royal residences. The police have power to search all bags or parcels being conveyed from the royal palaces. Many years ago a sentry at Windsor castle managed to hook a valuable gold watch and chain from one of the royal apartments with his bayonet on the end of his rifle, but he was quickly found out and punished.

A night watchman goes on duty inside the castle at Windsor every night and comes off in the morning. In case of fire he would at once give the alarm and in a very few minutes the royal firemen and castle guard would be on the spot and all entrances would be closed and guarded. The same system prevails at the chief of the other royal residences.

There used to be sentries at Frogmore in the early part of the last century, but there are none now. Around the Royal Mausoleum at Frogmore, where Queen Victoria's remains repose, the Metropolitan police are on duty all through the twenty-four hours.

The penalty for a soldier falling to perform his duty when on guard outside royal residences is so severe that there are very few cases indeed on record of men having to be taken off their posts.

Two hours on and four hours off duty are the allotted times in the twenty-four hours round, and men are very seldom discovered asleep. When the court is in residence at the chief royal palaces the strain of duty is very severe at times.

The royal household police, of course, take turns at night and day duty, and when important functions are on they have a very busy time.

In addition to the soldiers, police and detectives there are, of course, the royal servants and lodge keepers, who know a stranger at once.

Even if a visitor got through the strong cordon around royal residences he would still have to face the six-foot footmen in scarlet and gold, who sit just inside the chief entrances. Near at their hand is a telephone, and if they have the least suspicion of a visitor the police are acquainted in a trice.

A stranger would have the greatest difficulty, even if he successfully eluded the hall porter, to find his way about Windsor castle and Buckingham palace.

DETECTING CRIMINALS.

Expert Says There Are Few First-Class Professionals.

Sir Robert Anderson, for many years the chief criminal expert in Great Britain and until a few years ago in charge of London's Scotland Yard, declares that when it comes to special feats, such as safe-breaking, then men competent for the task are so few that some police officers could probably write down the names of them all from memory.

'On taking charge of the criminal investigation department in 1887," he writes in the Strand, "I was no novice in matters relating to criminals and crime. Notwithstanding all this, to my surprise I found myself credited with a vast amount of ignorance by one of my principal subordinates.

"When any notable crime occurred and I began to investigate it, a la Sherlock Holmes, he used to listen to me in the way many people listen to sermons in the church, and at the conclusion he would stolidly announce that the crime was the work of So-and-So, naming one of his stock heroes—'Old Carr,' 'Wirth,' 'Sausage,' 'Shrimps' or 'Quiet Joe'—and I soon found that my prosaic subordinate was right. Great crimes are the work of great criminals.

"There is nothing spontaneous and occasional about the crimes of 'professionals.' Take the case of a 'ladder larceny,' for example. While the family is at dinner the house is entered by means o fa ladder placed against a bedroom window, all outer doors and ground floor windows having been fastened from outside by screws or wire or rope. Wires are stretched across the lawn to baffle pursuit in case the thieves are discovered.

"A case of this kind occurred some years ago at a country house in Cheshire. The next day brought the chief constable of the county to Scotland Yard. Such a crime, he said, was beyond the capacity of provincial practitioners, and he expected us to find the culprits among the criminals on our list at Scotland Yard.

"He gave me a vague description of two strangers who had been seen near the house the day before. An hour or two later I handed him three photographs. Two of these were promptly identified as the men who had come under local observation, and arrest and conviction followed. They were well known 'ladder' thieves.

"Once Dr. Max Nordau called upon me. I put his 'type' theory to the test. I took a couple of photographs, and covering all but the face of each told him that one was an eminent public man and the other a notorious criminal. I challenged him to say which was the type, but he evaded the test.

"One was Raymond, alias Wirth—one of the most able criminals of my time; the other was Dr. Temple, Archbishop of Canterbury, and if anything the former's countenance was more replete with strength and benevolence than the latter's. It was Raymond who stole the famous Gainsborough picture, for which Mr. Agnew had recently paid the record price of £10,000."

PUBLIC PORTRAITS.

Scribner's Magazine: It is the custom of banks, hospitals, universities, schools of medicine and public buildings such as city halls, state houses and federal halls to collect portraits of their representative leaders.

Would not these buildings gain in dignity and beauty if the portraits were given a mural setting that contributed to the enrichment of the halls and chambers of the structure?

English country houses, guild halls, college buildings at Oxford and elsewhere, as well as many palaces on the continent, have successively employed this kind of decoration. The country is particularly rich in portraits. These are preserved with much care and become in some cases a feature of decoration in great houses, pointed to with pride.

There are collections of portraits owned by municipal and state buildings in this country which could be readily made available for really handsome decoration by removing the frames, which are often ugly objects in themselves, and with an architectural purpose arranging these pictures as a frieze above a high wainscoting.

An acquaintance who is planning a country house tells me that he is really building his house around the portrait, which he highly prizes, of his father. It is placed, set in, over the dining room fireplace and may be approached through a suite of rooms and seen at a distance of 90 or 100 feet.

VIRGINIA NIGHT SCHOOL A SUCCESS

Annex to School System of City That Has Proved of Great Benefit.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The night school, which was begun last October and has been run five nights per week since, will close with tonight's session. The school has been very successful and has done a vast amount of good. The enrollment for the year reached 363; 220 of whom were men from 18 to 46 years of age. More than 100 of these men have taken out their first naturalization papers, during the school term. Besides this night school for men, a class of boys in manual training has been maintained since the beginning of the fall term in September. Recently a night class in mechanical drawing has been organized for high school boys.

Supt. Lafayette Bliss has had charge of the night schools and has not missed a night all winter. The teachers doing the work were: H. E. Baker, Lorena MacFarlane, Marion O. West, Edna L. Cole, Emil Johnson, Ida C. McShane, Mary F. Johnson, Nellie G. Mahoney, Ida M. Flood, and Mrs. O. B. Wood.

To Teach Agricultural Work.

The school enrollment for the year has passed the 2,100 mark in the day schools. A class of twenty-one will be graduated in June. The high school, while not sporting a brass band, can boast of large, well-prepared classes in solid geometry, higher algebra, physics, chemistry, Virgil, political economy, manual training and domestic science, not to mention the work of the early years in the high school. With the completion of the technical high school building, now well under way, a course in practical agriculture will be offered. The district has forty acres of state land under lease for that purpose, and an effort will be made to clear up a portion of it this summer.

The Virginia school has the honor of holding the cup from the state fair authorities for the best exhibit of solid school work yet made on the state fair grounds, and the school now has on exhibition at the World's fair in Nagoya, Japan, a complete line of work, representative of the schools of the state of Minnesota. The grades specialize in the solid work of the course, namely, in penmanship, spelling, reading and the common branches generally. A system has been worked out in the grades and high school whereby the large number of retarded pupils common to most schools has been reduced to the minimum at Virginia.

COAL DOCK WILL BE MADE LONGER

About 300 Feet to Be Added to Landing Place at Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The second coal boat of the season, the Clarence A. Black, arrived Tuesday and is discharging her cargo of 6,200 tons of coal. The first coal boat was the Saxon with 2,898 tons.

Contractor George Spurbeck began Thursday to extend the coal dock 300 feet giving thirty more pockets for the storage of coal. The work will be rushed and will be completed about June 20. A temporary platform has been built for the cable cars at the east end so as not to interfere with work.

The Seow the limit towed by the tug the Moose left Thursday morning for the Red Cliff landing on the north shore, carrying railroad equipment for the Red Cliff Lumber company, who are logging at that point.

The Wiley M. Egan of the Pittsburg & Erie company is at the pulpwood dock taking on a cargo of pulpwood. Her capacity is about 900 cords. She will clear Friday.

DRIVE INTO SEWER HOLE.

Return From Resort Nearly Fatal for Gay Party.

Nashwauk, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—It required the services of a gang of men with picks and shovels to dig one of Mike Milovich of Keewatin's livery horses out of a sewer trench on First street here one night this week. The animal was driven by a man and two women who were going from a resort near town to Keewatin. All were considerably the worse for drink. When the horse fell into the trench the occupants of the rig were hurled to the ground and one of the women was rendered unconscious.

FRANK ANSLEY'S FARM.

Ex-Mayor of Hibbing Is Going in for Agriculture.

Hibbing, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The farm owned by ex-Mayor Frank Ansley, two miles south of town, will have about sixty acres under cultivation this year, of which five acres will be devoted to garden products. The principal products at the farm this year are: Wheat, oats, barley, peas, potatoes and different vegetables. Mr. Ansley has for several years past given most of his time to farming and will have his farm fairly well stocked this year. The new $2,500 cement slaughtering, rendering and packing plant of Ansley & Messner Brothers is located on this farm.

TROUBLE MAKER IS UNDER ARREST

Virginian Who Made Many Charges, Accused of Giving Bad Checks.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Sullivan, a well known resident of this city, was arrested last night by Chief of Police Ellis Walsh, on a charge of having issued worthless checks on the First National bank. His bonds were fixed at $200, which he was unable to furnish. One check was issued in favor of D. E. Cuppernull for $5 and two of $5 each to Jerelsatti Brothers. The checks were dated and issued by him some two years ago.

Sullivan appeared before the last grand jury with an endeavor to have the city officials indicted on the charge of alleged graft and irregular procedure in building an addition to the city hall building, but the grand jury refused to take any action.

Sullivan failed to get the job of interior decorating and painting of the building, and it is said that this is the reason for his seeking revenge upon the city officials. For years he has borne the reputation of being an agitator and knocker and during this time has made accusations against nearly every public official of grafting, in an official capacity.

MRS. SLATTERY BURIED.

Hibbing Woman Aged 90 and Mother of Eleven Children.

Hibbing, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Slattery, who died at the home of her son, Patrick Slattery, last Friday was held this morning at 9:30 o'clock from the Church of the Blessed Sacrament.

Mrs. Slattery has been a resident of Hibbing about seventeen years, coming here with her son, with whom she has lived. She leaves eleven children, Patrick Slattery, Thomas Slattery, Mrs. Peter McHardy and Mrs. Thomas Steele of Hibbing, Mrs. Dennis Gorman of Ontario, James and Michael Slattery of Buckley, Wash., Mrs. Julia McPhee of West Superior; John and William Slattery of Vancouver, B. C., and Mrs. George McOam of Holquam, Wash. Mrs. Slattery was 90 years old. Interment took place here.

GIVEN FORGED CHECK.

John Henrickson Stings Eveleth Clothier for $15.75.

Eveleth, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police are looking for John Henrickson, a Finn, who is alleged to have passed a forged check on a local clothier after purchasing a few goods, getting most of the amount named in the check in cash. The check purported to be signed by the Carl Hall company of Gilbert, drawn on the Gilbert National bank and calling for $15.75. Hendrickson claimed to be employed by the company, but this is denied. Several other merchants are said to have been victimized in a similar manner of late.

ASSAULT CASE FIRST ONE TO BE CALLED.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first case to be called for trial will be the State vs. John Knuetla and Frank Hill, indicted for assault in the second degree.

Frank Grenlund and Jake Haniala, indicted for assaulting John Hill in Chisholm, having failed to secure bonds, were taken to Duluth today. Isaac Aho, also indicted, furnished bonds several days ago and was released.

JUDGMENT AGAINST VENDOR OF HORSE THAT KICKED.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—A verdict of $175 was rendered in municipal court in favor of Oscar Lundquist, a farmer living near Sparta, against Sorenson Bros., of Eveleth, who traded a "kicking" horse to Lundquist for one of a team of splendid farm horses.

John Johnson and Ed Solo were before Judge Flemming for fighting, Judge Flemming fined Solo $10 and costs and Johnson $5 and costs. Both fines were paid.

URGE SUPPORT OF OWENS' MEASURE

Eveleth Commercial Club Asks Senators and Representative to Aid Bill.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Following a discussion of health matters led by Dr. C. W. More, the Commercial club last night decided to urge Senators Nelson and Clapp and Representative Miller to work for the passage of the Ownes' bill now before congress providing for the establishment of a national board of health. A letter from J. H. Hearding called attention to the Northern Minnesota Development congress to be held in Crookston next month and the suggestion that delegates be named was observed. Walter J. Smith and George Whitman will be delegates with Dr. More and Fred Lister alternates.

The proposed "Great White Way" along Grant avenue was discussed and heartily indorsed.

Alleged Railroad Discrimination.

Complaints are being made that merchants were discriminated against by the railroads in the wrong classification of goods. James Floyd, Frank C. Cervent and Frank Rabinowitz were appointed a committee to thoroughly investigate the charges.

The resignation of George A. Perham as secretary of the club was accepted and Second Vice President Fred W. Lister was unanimously elected as his successor. Postmaster J. C. Polle was also unanimously elected to the vacancy caused by Mr. Lister's promotion. The report of the retiring secretary showed the club to be in a good financial condition.

TO BOND NEW VILLAGE.

Alice, Near Hibbing, Needs Money for Public Improvements.

Hibbing, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—As it will be a year or more before the newly created village of Alice, near here, will realize money from the tax levy, and a larger sum is needed at once for public improvements and the payment of village expenses the council at a meeting held this week has decided to bond the village for $90,000.

Of this amount $75,000 is proposed to be used for permanent improvements, while the balance, $15,000, will constitute a revolving fund for current expenses.

Estimates were received for the installation of a water and power plant. Such a plant, it is thought, can be put in for $6,000. An electric light plant will cost $15,000.

One liquor license was granted, to Mike Ruidel, the amount being set at $750. The council also voted to hold its meeting in the new hall now being erected by Mike Ruidel, and will pay Mr. Ruidel $2 per meeting for its use.

The assessed valuation of the village is said to be in excess of $2,000,000.

TWO HARBORS TENNIS PLAYERS GETTING READY.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Tennis club held a meeting this week to discuss the outlook for this year. It was decided that all officers will remain in their positions as follows: President, R. Tait; vice president, W. Scott; secretary-treasurer, John Woodfill. The tennis grounds will be rolled and fixed for use. New nets, balls and other apparatus have been ordered and all members are an individual committee to solicit members. A small fee is charged to pay for the cars and supplies required to keep the grounds in the best condition. It is probable that outside games will be arranged for and that a tournament will be held during the summer.

TWO HARBORS DRUIDS ELECT OFFICERS THURSDAY.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—At their regular meeting last evening the United Ancient Order of Druids elected the following officers for the next year: Gust Jackson, N. A.; Peter Carlson, recording secretary; Gust Hjelmgren, V. A.; Gust Nelson, financial secretary; August Bergstrom, treasurer; Alfred Clauson, conductor; Charles Anderson, T. G.

New Range Telephone Lines.

Eveleth, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Mesaba Telephone company has commenced work on a line establishing a station at Pineville, to be connected at Biwabik with all the long distance facilities. Work has also commenced on a toll line between Two Harbors and Biwabik and another between Two Harbors and Ely by the same company.

Fumigating Ely School.

Ely, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of scarlet fever among some of the pupils of the Central school, the school board has closed the place, and it is being thoroughly fumigated and cleaned. No epidemic of the disease is expected, as the cases are all well in hand and quarantined.

Flitwells vs. Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Next Sunday the Two Harbors baseball team will play the Flitwells of Duluth at the ball park. There are a number of men that will be given a trial during this game.

Winston-Dear Machine Shops.

Hibbing, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Winston-Dear company is building new machine shops at the Buffalo-Susquehanna location and also a roundhouse for cleaning engines. The machine and blacksmith shops will be 110 by 40 feet and one story high, which is large enough to handle the repair work at the Buffalo-Susquehanna strippings. The high bridge over the Great Northern south of town is completed and the grading of the line is now under way.

NEW YORK SEES THE COMET.

First Good Look at It Is Curtailed By Clouds.

New York, May 6.—A light breeze swept all the curtaining fog and smoke away from above New York city early this morning and Halley's comet, poised in the Eastern sky, was clearly seen for the first time by all who looked. Ferrymen and early morning travelers who have been watching for it for weeks and some of whom think they have descried it before, found it larger than they had expected, but less brilliant.

The tail, sweeping away to the Southeast, could be plainly traced for three or four times the apparent breadth between the horns of the fast waning moon. Clouds veiled the display at 4 o'clock.

SHINGLE SHIPPERS ALLEGE FRAUD

Claim Middle West Men Are "Kiting" Big Orders From the Coast.

Seattle, Wash., May 6.—The belief that a large number of lumber and shingle firms in the Middle West have been "kiting" shingle orders on a large scale has put shippers in the Northwest on their guard, so that now it is only after an investigation that shingles are forwarded at all. Hundreds of cars of shingles that were shipped during April from Washington mills to small unknown retailers in the Middle West, principally to points in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri, are said to have been stopped and bonds furnished the railroads to guarantee freight charges and to indemnify them against damages.

Middle West firms, it is said, have ordered at least $250,000 worth of shingles in the Northwest without advancing money to the shippers, and ordering the shippers to forward the bills of lading so that they might be in a position to divert the cars while in transit.

Shippers here declare they have proof that in several instances firms ordering cars in the Northwest sold the stock for less than they agreed to pay the original shippers.

Those looking into the mysterious propositions of Middle West firms have not as yet learned how many cars were delivered before they could be stopped.

MATCH MAKERS ARE POISONED

Phosphorus Affects Workers in Factories, Says Investigator.

Washington, May 6.—Phosphorus poisoning in its most serious form occurs in this country in match factories, according to a report by the bureau of labor of the department of commerce and labor, the conclusion being based upon a report made by Dr. John B. Andrews, secretary of the American Association for Labor Legislation, of his investigation of the subject.

WILL WIPE OUT "BUCKET SHOPS"

Government Plans to Carry Campaign Throughout the Country.

Washington, May 6.—The complete suppression of the "bucketshop" business throughout the United States is sought by the department of justice. Prosecutions already started are to be continued with unremitting vigilance.

"We have a plan to put all the bucketshops out of business, and that, too, without additional legislation by congress," said an official of the department today.

Just what are the plans of the government to accomplish this end was not stated, but officials declared the statement was not thoughtlessly made.

The cleaning up work in the East already has been systematically begun, and a number of indictments have been returned. More are promised as a result of the investigations by the local grand jury the last few days.

Will Work From Chicago.

After the department is through with the East, operations will begin at Chicago, and working from that center it expects to conduct proceedings in such a manner as to break up any business radiating from that place.

That feature of the traffic which includes the sending out of alluring literature is one which probably will receive the serious attention of the prosecuting officials, in which case the postal laws will be invoked as an instrumentality in its suppression.

BIG BALLOON IS SIGHTED.

Moves Southeasterly Over Connecticut at High Altitude.

Hebron, Conn., May 6.—A large spherical balloon passed over Hebron this morning, moving in a southeasterly direction. As it approached the town it was estimated as being considerably more than 1,000 feet high. While passing over Hebron it began to descend, and when it sailed out of sight in the direction of Colchester it was estimated as being about 1,000 fet up. Only one person could be seen in the basket. At the higher altitude it moved very slowly, but when it descended it entered a swifter current of air and its speed became much greater.

It is thought to have been the balloon which ascended at Pittsfield, Mass., early this morning, carrying Prof. David Todd of Amherst, his wife, and Charles J. Glidden.

Women Want Laymen's Rights.

Asheville, N. C., May 6.—At the opening of the third day of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, here today, twenty petitions from women in Arkansas for laymen's rights were presented.

Moro Pirates Busy.

Manila, May 6.—Moro pirates have attacked a settlement in the Celebes and killed a number of traders and natives. The pirates are now surrounded at Manuk, on the island of Manka. A Dutch cruiser is assisting in the attack upon them.

WHEN YOU BUY CLOTHES this summer, you are, of course, anxious to get those clothes that will serve you best according to the money you put into them.

WE ARE SURE that the clothes we have to offer you are good enough to bear out any statements made by us concerning them. We are confident that any man who will compare our values with those he can get elsewhere, will surely decide on ours.

AND SO WE WANT YOU to call and see what we have to offer you. As you know, we sell only standard makes of merchandise, all of which are unconditionally guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction according to the price, and the makers back us up in that guarantee.

IFF YOU ARE ANXIOUS to make every dollar count, you cannot afford to overlook this store when making your clothes purchases. Put us to the test, we'll "make good."

Saturday is the last day of the Free Sewing Machine Demonstration. It is the last day for you to get a sewing machine delivered to your home for a Dollar. To make it a bigger and better day than any of the others, we will give away to every lady who attends Saturday, a handsome colonial glass vase, just like the cut. These vases are fine, clear, colonial glass—In order to get one you must be here yourself. None will be laid aside or saved.

We Will Deliver This Fine Machine to Your Home for a Dollar.

The best sewing machine in the world, delivered to your home for a dollar. Saturday is the last day of this offer. You may pay the balance on this machine at one dollar a week—if you select it and order it delivered Saturday or later. We will hold it for you if you are not ready to have it sent home Saturday—but select it then—and by paying a dollar we will deliver it as ordered by you.

If you once use a Free machine you will wonder how you could possibly get along with the old style, hard running kind. The Free works easier, sews faster and is insured free of charge. Come in and see it Saturday.

MEDICAL MEN ARE ENDING SESSIONS

Two Branches of National Association Close Their Meetings.

Washington, May 6.—The American Medico-Physological association, a component society of the Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons, closed its conference here today. An interesting paper was read by Dr. Arthur S. Hamilton of Minneapolis on the subject of progressive myasthenia with the pathology of the spinal cord in old age. Dr. Graeme M. Hammond of New York discussed the prognosis in paranoia.

The American Surgical association adjourned yesterday after electing the following officers: President, Dr. Richard H. Harte of Philadelphia; vice president, Dr. G. F. Armstrong of Montreal; secretary, Dr. A. J. Le Conte of Philadelphia; treasurer, Dr. C. A. Powers of Denver, and recorder, Dr. Archibald MacLaren of St. Paul.

MANY EAGER TO AID GRAND JURY

Rockefeller's Appeal Brings Many Replies, But Little Information.

New York, May 6.—In response to the appeal made by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as foreman of the grand jury, for assistance from the public in his investigation of the alleged traffic in women, Assistant District Attorney Reynolds has received hundreds of letters from persons who think they have facts to present. He has also received visits from many persons who did not care to write. It was said this morning, however, that neither letters nor callers had contributed anything of importance to what is already known to the grand jury.

BOATS GOING DOWN LIGHT

Package Freighters Having Trouble Finding East Bound Cargoes.

Plenty of Freight at Lower Lake Ports Waiting Shipment.

Package freight boats are being sent from the port of Duluth to Erie ports light, for the simple reason that there is not enough freight at the Head of the Lakes for the package freight boats arriving here with loads busy, while there is freight at the lower lake ports to come West.

Two of the Anchor line boats will go down the lakes light the present week, as there is no freight here for them to take. At Buffalo and Detroit there is enough package freight on the docks and in the warehouses to load all the package freighters piying between lower and upper lake ports.

This morning several of the local agents received word from Eastern agents, stating that there is a slight increase in the expert business, which will eventually cause an increased activity in the movement of flour from this port.

When business is as dull as it is at the present time, vessel agents look hopefully at any indication that points to increased business.

THREE SAILORS MAKE CHARGES

Claim They Were Assaulted By Captain---Blockade Being Cleared.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three sailors deserted the steamer J. C. Wallace upon her arrival from Duluth this morning and allege brutal treatment from Capt. Gerhardt who they say assaulted them. They were referred by the Canadian police to the United States consul.

The blockade piled up again last night but today rapid gains are being made. At some lockings four boats are being taken. There were about thirty-five below and sixteen above this morning. The official channel at Encampment will be opened tomorrow morning instead of today owing to the delay in placing markers. The Weitzel lock was put in commission this afternoon.

COAL SHIPMENTS FOR MONTH OF APRIL.

The following record of the coal shipped from Buffalo to the various lake ports, shows the immensity of the movement the present spring, which has broken all previous records: During that time 449,279 tons were shipped out:

Shipments were distributed to the various lake ports as follows: To Chicago, 121,283 tons; to Superior, 95,337 tons; to Fort William, 77,190 tons; to Milwaukee, 41,058 tons; to Duluth, 32,397 tons; to Port Arthur, 23,315 tons; to Marquette, 15,750 tons; to Waukegan, 10,600 tons; to Hancock, 7,600 tons; to Racine, 5,800 tons; to Manitowoc, 5,39 tons; to Torch Lake, 3,560 tons; to Portage, 2,900 tons; to Sault Ste. Marie, 2,950 tons; to Kenosha, 1,500 tons; to Lake Linden, 1,000 tons; to Alpena, 600 tons; to Sandwich, 300 tons.

NAUTICAL SCHOOL ENDS ITS SEASON.

Yesterday marked the ending of the nautical school for the present season.

The school has been conducted by Capt. Albert Swenson of the United States hydrographic office, and has been for the instruction of the officers of the naval militia. The papers of the officers who have taken the examination have been forwarded to Washington. According to Capt. Swenson, the officers of the militia passed a very fine examination.

Commander Guy Eaton of the naval militia has stated that the men have received a great deal of good from the lessons. So valuable have the lessons been that it is certain that the course of instruction will be continued next winter.

April Lake Levels.

The United States lake survey reports the stages of the Great Lakes for the month of April, 1910, as follows:

Lakes—	Feet above tide-water, New York.
Superior	601.60
Michigan-Huron	580.27
Erie	572.04
Ontario	245.97

Lake Superior is 0.06 foot higher than last month, 0.21 foot higher than a year ago, 0.39 foot below the average stage of April of the last ten years, 0.65 foot below the high stage of April, 1905, and 0.58 foot above the low stage of April, 1892. It will probably rise 0.3 foot in May.

Lakes Michigan-Huron are 0.27 foot higher than last month, 0.02 foot higher than a year ago, 0.26 foot below the average stage of April of the last ten years, 2.96 feet below the high stage of April, 1886, and 1.95 feet above the low stage of April, 1896. They will probably rise 0.3 foot in May.

Lake Erie is 0.36 foot higher than last month, 0.04 foot lower than a year ago, 0.28 foot below the average stage of April of the last ten years, 1.33 feet below the high stage of April, 1887, and 0.73 foot above the low stage of April, 1895. It will probably rise 0.3 foot in May.

Lake Ontario is 0.22 foot higher than last month, 0.21 foot lower than a year ago, 0.40 foot lower than the average stage of April of the last ten years, 2.46 feet below the high stage of April, 1886, and 1.10 feet above the low stage of April, 1895. It will probably rise 0.3 foot in May.

TROLLEY WIRE BREAKS; PEOPLE WALK TO WORK.

Street car traffic was tied up for over a half hour this morning on the Grand avenue and East Fourth street lines, when a trolley wire broke on West Third street. As soon as the break was reported repair men were sent from the car barn to fix it. The accident occurred at about the time when everyone wanted to get a car to take them to their work. Many people walked.

Scarlet Fever Fatal.

Reginald James Weldon, 7 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Weldon of 220 West Second street, died of scarlet fever this morning at the new city contagious hospital. The funeral was held this afternoon with burial at Forest Hill cemetery.

The father of the boy is a Northern Pacific conductor and was injured in a wreck a few months ago near Staples and for weeks was confined to the Brainerd hospital.

Beatrice Benson Dies.

Beatrice Jeanette, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin B. Benson of 2413 West Fifth street, died yesterday afternoon of pneumonia.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence with interment at Forest Hill cemetery. Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the Grace M. E. church will officiate.

West End Shortrails.

Miss Julia Lowe, who has been in Ashland, Wis., on a visit with friends, has returned to her home on West Third street.

The dance given last evening at Lincoln park pavilion by the Adams Athletic association was well attended, and was a success in every way.

TIME WAS UP.

It Was Quit Coffee or Die.

When a woman is brought to the edge of the grave by poisoning from the drinking of ordinary coffee day by day, and is then made a well woman by leaving it off, her experience is worth something to others that are poisoned in various ways from the same habit.

A New Haven, Conn., woman says: "Four years ago my life hung on a very slender thread with liver, kidney and heart trouble, and a very severe form of rheumatism. I was confined to bed with hands, wrists, feet and ankles so badly swollen that they bore no resemblance to parts of the human body.

"I had frequent sinking spells from heart weakness when I was thought to be dying and sometimes thought to be dead. My doctor, one of the directors of the state hospital, a very successful man in his profession, told me to stop drinking coffee and use Postum, as he said coffee was the primary cause of my trouble.

"I took his advice at once and also discontinued medicines. Slowly the swelling disappeared, and the rheumatism left me; the sinking spells became less frequent, and I got out of bed and around the house. I was completely cured but it required some time.

"For the past three years I have been a perfectly strong, healthy woman, sleep well, with good oppetite, good color, active and energetic.

"It is a great pleasure to testify for Postum which has made me a well woman again. I have many friends here and in other parts of the state who are using Postum regularly, and I know to their very great benefit."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

TELL TAFT HIS BILL WILL PASS

Elkins and Crane Have Early Conference With the President.

Washington, May 6—Senators Elkins and Crane had an early but brief conference with the president this morning as to the railroad bill in the senate, and arranged to call upon him again tomorrow when he will see other Republican leaders of the senate on the same subject.

They told the president with emphasis that the Republican combination, which has been formed in the senate, is sufficiently strong to put through the bill as it is finally acceded to by the president and his advisers. While the senators would not discuss the subject for publication, they were willing to assert that a railroad bill, largely satisfactory in character, would finally pass.

FRESNO IS GIVEN SHARP SHAKING

Earthquake Vibration Lasting More Than One Minute Scares People.

Fresno, Cal., May 6.—A sharp earthquake shock was felt in this city shortly before 9 o'clock today. The vibration lasted for more than a minute, shook windows and caused dishes to rattle. The court house shook so that the employes ran out of their offices.

ENGINE BOILER ON TRAIN BLOWS UP

Engineer Is Killed and Fireman Hurt---Some Passengers Are Injured.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 6.—Engineer J. A. Brown, of Derry, Pa., was killed and Fireman James J. Kimmel of the same place was seriously injured today when the boiler of the engine attached to the local outbound passenger train No. 210, on the Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania railroad, exploded, two miles east of the Union station. The force of the explosion lifted the engine boiler from its trucks and hurled it over an embankment for a distance of forty feet.

Several passengers in the first coach behind the engine were injured by flying glass.

Northwood Market Days.

Northwood, N. D., May 6.—(Special to the Herald.)—Northwood will hold two carnival and market days, June 17 and 18. The plan has been worked out here with a great deal of success in previous years, and it is believed that it can be operated with equal success this season.

ALLEGED FORGER IS ARRESTED IN COLORADO.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 6.—Deputy Sheriff Joseph Eich has gone to Littleton, Col., where Emil Nordloef is held in custody on the charge of forging a note on the First National bank in this city. Nordloef borrowed $50 at the bank and instead of securing his wife's signature, as he promised, it is said he forged her name. A message from the sheriff at Littleton stated that Nordloef admits his guilt.

Consumers! Attention.

A convention will be held at Chicago on May 14th for the purpose of establishing a National Wholesale & Mail Order Department. We expect this movement to take national scope—it all depends upon the willingness and the consciousness of the public to comprehend their powers and possibilities.

Think it over for a moment and ask yourself if it would not pay you better to own the business house that supplies your household requirements than to have persons who are concerned only with the profits they can make out of the goods they sell to you, own that store?

Is it not reasonable to assume that if you were to supply yourself you would be very careful not to doctor your foodstuffs, nor to underweigh your purchases?

$10 invested in our business makes you an equal partner with the rest of us and gives you an equal vote in the management of this business—it will also make you a partner in all of the co-operative enterprises that are being started throughout the nation that are undertaking to federate with us. Why not get in now?

Pearsons Magazine for this month has an article on "High Prices" in which it quotes quite elaborately from an article written by our manager. We wish you would read it.

We wish ALL consumers to bear in mind that our aim is to eliminate every avenue of risk, and for that reason we MUST sell only for CASH.

We aim to keep our expenses down to the safety line and for that reason cannot afford to make deliveries for purchases amounting to less than $5.00.

We wish to be able to sell at the lowest possible price, and for that reason seek to increase our capital to buy more articles at first hand.

Remember that we have against us in solid array the opposition of JOBBERS, commission merchants and retailers, simply because they KNOW what we are after—they would crush us tomorrow if they could. We promise you that they will not get the chance—simply because we know too much. Business is war, and we are in it to the death.

Last week's prices will prevail all of this week—so you can safely leave your order with us and be assured that you will find quality, quantity and prices lower on the average than that of any other store in the city. Ask those who have already tried us what they think of our goods and our prices.

BREAKFAST TRAYS BUSIER.

People Taking the Morning Meal in Their Rooms.

New York Sun: "It's wonderful how the breakfast-in-the-room-habit has spread during the last year," said a trained nurse. "Five years ago I can remember that this was considered a luxurious thing and a breakfast tray was sent only to a guest or to some member of the family who had been out late the night before.

"About two years ago the breakfast tray became a very usual thing to expect and now I find it almost universal in the homes where I go. Breakfast is served downstairs only for the men of the family, every other member, including myself, having a wonderfully equipped little tray sent to her room.

"Some of the breakfast sets are costly in themselves, not to speak of the different pieces of silver that are put on the tray. In one home where I nursed recently two butlers were kept busy from 6:30 in the morning until 10 carrying the various individual trays to the rooms and the cook must have had a nice time of it remembering just which breakfast went on which tray.

"Often each member of the family has her own monogrammed breakfast set and the breakfast that each person likes must go on the special tray bearing the right monogram. Another distinction often made is the color, pink and white china going to the person having a pink room and the breakfast set decorated in blue being taken to the member of the family who has a blue room.

"In another home I remember the things belonging to one member of the family were always marked with a bowknot and another sister chose a butterfly. Their breakfast sets were decorated in this way and the tray cloth and napkins embroidered to correspond.

"In another family where I sometimes go, no two people ever had the same breakfast the same morning. It was a frequent question on meeting for the first time to inquire, "Well, what did they give you this morning?" In that house I was often asked to suggest my favorite breakfast dishes, as it was expected that each person should have just what she wanted on her tray.

"In this family there was always one dish of either eggs, fish or meat on the tray, beside the usual fruit, cereal, hot bread or toast and coffee, but I find that in the homes of many very wealthy people this hearty breakfast dish is omitted and fruit, cereal, rolls and coffee are considered sufficient. Where there are a couple of sisters in the family their two trays are often taken into one room and they sit up in bed and eat their separate breakfasts, at the same time opening their morning mail. It's really a very pretty way of commencing the day.

"Even less luxurious people make use of the breawfast tray as an easy way of serving breakfast to a guest, and I've been in homes where the breakfast set was an inexpensive affair picked up here and there from the open patterns now shown in variety in the big shops. By studying the dishes included in an expensive breakfast tray set and then picking out just what is essential a pretty set may be bought for $3 or $4, though the sets I often see in use must cost anywhere from $30 to $50."

FISH OUT OF WATER.

New York Sun: Mrs. Frank M. Johnson, wife of a Boston surgeon, has devised a method of keeping fish alive without water. Both Mrs. Johnson and her husband are deeply interested in fish culture and have at Springfield, N. H., a private fishery of their own. Mrs. Johnson, who is now staying in New York, gives this account of her device:

"I always was a lover of outdoor life, and after my husband became wrapped up in his fish hatcheries I was soon so enthused by his experiments that I took it up with him.

"After a time we naturally fell to experimenting with all manner of fish life, not only together but in a sort of rivalry. It was in some of these experiments that I perfected my device that enables fish to live without water. I was not at our hatchery at the time I made the discovery, but in my house at Boston, and when I actually proved that my theory was right I stepped to the 'phone and called up my husband at the office and told him of it. 'No?' he replied. 'Yes,' I said. Then he came home to see it.

"I first took a large glass jar, much longer than wide, in the bottom of which I placed a thick pad of dampened felt. Then near the top of the jar I put in an intake tube on one side and an exhaust tube on the other. Midway in the jar I put a little screen shelf on which I laid the fish. After moistening its gills with water I closed the top of the jar and started oxygen to work, simply pumping it in the jar in the ordinary way. I not only kept the first fish alive but experimented on others and they thrived for days and weeks."

"But what keeps the fish from flopping about on the screen in the manner of fish when out of water?"

"Because it is intoxicated. The fish is simply drunk with oxygen and lies there inflating its gills as regularly as when in water.

"You can imagine how valuable this discovery may prove to government hatcheries when you stop to think that in shipping fish across the continent to stock streams and rivers the government uses an especially arranged car for its purposes. This is so built that the water is forced 'round and 'round in the tank in order to supply fresh oxygen, which not only keeps the fish agitated but often results in great loss of life as well."

"Fish are experimented upon, you understand, by governments in order to bring fish life up to its highest standard as a food. The poor of this country and others must have fish as a food, and this is why hundreds of thousands of dollars are expended to breed certain species to a hardihood that will make it possible to live in waters hitherto unknown. Take the Mississippi river, for instance, slow, sluggish water, where all sorts of experimenting has been done in determining what fish will live there. Carp were put there by the government because they will live there because the poor can depend upon them as an edible. Catfish, buffalo fish and other hardy fish were placed there for the same reason by the million.

"At our fishery in New Hampshire, which by the way is named Ko-le-le-mook, an Indian word, meaning good fishing and good hunting, we are back in the hills twenty miles from railroad, and I stay there from the first of March until the streams are frozen over. Our fishery is the only one where artificial feeding is not resorted to. All our fish feed naturally. We have one large lake of thirty acres with a system of several ponds, all connected by dropping the water level of each a little lower than the other.

"The government people have been particularly kind to me, too, and have afforded me many opportunities to experiment in fish life. Whenever they want a painstaking experiment performed they notify me and I am only too eager to take it up. Our life up at Ko-le-le-mook is simply roughing it all summer long. We have a so-called shanty to live in and the hills and ponds to fill our lives. I have been experimenting in fish culture myself over seven years. Fish are attacked with all sorts of diseases, and I set out with success to cure some of them. I also cross fish and breed hybrids and each year I get more interested. We have a superintendent on the farm, and Dr. Johnson spends every minute of time there that he can take away from his practice."

THE PEACH KING.

Down in the state of Georgia they have peach orchards where you can walk a mile in a straight line and not get beyond the end or a row of peach trees.

After the Civil war any one could go through the same country and see nothing but cornfields. Now more peaches are produced in Georgia soil than in any other portion of the United States with the possible exception of California.

This revolution in horticulture, according to the Bookkeeper, was brought about by a Connecticut Yankee. J. H. Hale as a boy began his start in life by carrying fruit and truck in baskets to Hartford, Conn., and selling it from house to house. He finally accumulated enough money to plant a little orchard of his own in the suburbs of Hartford on ground that people said was unfit for any crop.

Hale thought differently, and when his orchard grew from an acre to over 100 acres and his income from the peaches to thousands of dollars a year, they realized that they had been mistaken. One winter Mr. Hale thought he would take a Southern trip, and going through Georgia he noticed the red clay soil.

He made up his mind that here would be a good place to grow peaches, although not a tree was in sight in the locality he visited, nor were there any for fifty miles around. The land was cheap and he bought several hundred acres. Then he took two or three of the men from his New England orchard, put them on the place and planted the trees.

Today he can count 350,000 trees in his Southern orchards, to say nothing of those in Connecticut. Not merely carloads, but trainloads are sent to the Northern market as a day's shipment in the season, while sometimes 300 negro laborers are picking, boxing and loading the fruit.

Peach growers from all over the country followed Mr. Hale to Georgia and other Southern States, and orchards in the vicinity of his can be seen ranging from 100,000 to 200,000 trees, from which the harvest goes not only to the North but across the ocean to Europe.

This is why the Connecticut Yankee is now called the peach king; he owns more trees of this variety than any other American, and has made over $1,000,000 in the last twenty years simply because he knows how to raise the fruit.

WALL GIVEN NEW TRIAL

Supreme Court Reverses Ruling of District Court in Stock Case.

Jury Gave M. M. Gasser Verdict for Entire Amount Asked.

By a decision of the supreme court of Minesota today, an order of the district court of St. Louis county, denying a motion of J. J. Wall for a new trial in the action brought against him by M. M. Gasser, was reversed.

The case was tried in district court here last year. Mr. Gasser claimed that on representations by Mr. Wall, he purchased with Mr. Wall, 10,000 shares of stock in the Consolidated Copper company of Parry Sound, paying Mr. Wall $1,500 as his share in the deal, Mr. Wall being the active party. He alleged that Mr. Wall had made misrepresentations and that the cost of the stock was not as great as Mr. Wall represented. He sued for the recovery of the sum of $1,500.

The jury in district court awarded Mr. Gasser the full amount, and Mr. Wall petitioned for a new trial. His motion was denied and he appealed to the supreme court, the decision being handed down today.

In deciding the case, the supreme court held:

"First—Where in a joint enterprise for the purchase of property the active party overstates the price paid, his associate may recover from him the amount necessary to equalize as between them the cost of the property.

"Second—It is error to admit in evidence a memorandum made by a party without the knowledge of another, and not part of any books of account."

NOTES OF BOYS' DEPARTMENT

The first wrestling meet to be held in the boys' department will be held tomorrow night at 8 p. m. This is to be a new feature and the boys have been training for several months for the event. They will compete according to weight and ten boys are entered. Ardoin is in good trim and will give the others a tight pull to get him down while Solheim is considered strong enough to throw a heavier opponent. A great deal of interest is being taken in this splendid exercise and the boys are enthusiastic over the contests.

• • •

The boys' banquet which was planned for tonight has been postponed until next Friday, May 13. This is the social event of the year. Last year 200 boys sat down to the big dinner which is prepared by the mothers of the boys. A splendid program has been prepared including club swinging by Mr. Wegner of the men's department, recitations, a sketch or two, and the usual number of fine toasts by the boys. The winning team in the recent campaign will be the guests of honor and will sit at a special table.

• • •

Watson S. Moore will act as toastmaster.

• • •

The date for the annual field meet has been changed to May 21, and all entries must be in the hands of the physical director not later than 9 p. m., Wednesday, May 18.

• • •

A meeting of special interest will be held next Sunday, it being a meeting in honor of mother, the boys are requested to wear a carnation as a token of respect.

HIGH FINANCE SYSTEM AIRED

Dividend-Paying Methods Are Told of in Heinze Trial.

New York, May 6.—A tale of high finance, revealing the alleged workings of a merry-go-round system of paying stock dividends while the funds from which the payments were made remained practically intact, was related before Judge Hough in the trial of F. Augustus Heinze, former president of the Mercantile National bank. Heinze is charged with misapplication of the bank's funds and with over-certifying checks of Otto Heinze & Co., his brother's firm.

Not the least interesting statement of the recital was that borrowed money was used in the first place to make the payments. The testimony was brought out through John Fernsler, an expert accountant, and the government put in the record what is considered the strongest evidence yet presented against Heinze.

OBITUARY

Rev. Alexander McLaren, the noted Manchestr preacher, died in Edinburgh, May 5.

Dr. Howard T. Ricketts, professor in the University of Chicago, who was to have become head of the department of pathology in the University of Pennsylvania next September, died in the American hospital in the City of Mexico, a martyr to science. While in Mexico studying the Rocky mountain or "spotted" fever, the germ of which he had traced and for which he was seeking a remedy, he fell a victim of the disease, which brought on spinal meningitis. Dr. Ricketts had been ill for more than two weeks. Mrs. Ricketts alone survives him. The body will be taken to Chicago for burial. Dr. Rickett was 33 years old.

IS GIVEN A SECOND CHANCE BY THE COURT.

Charles Gilborg was brought into police court this morning for contempt of court. He was arrested several weks ago for refusing to send his son to school. He admitted the allegation, but upon his promise to send the boy back his case was continued two weeks. The boy went two weeks, but when that time was up he took him out again. He renewed his promise this morning and was given another chance, after the court had read him a lecture.

SUCCESSFUL SPAWN CATCH.

Many Wall-Eyed Pike Secured at Long Sault Rapids.

Spooner, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. Eben W. Cobb of the state fishery department and Mr. Jackson of Duluth have completed their catch of fish spawn of the wall-eyed pike at the long Sault Rapids, near Birchdale. The catch was reported very successful, as it surpassed any during the last three years. A number of men were employed to complete the work.

It was first tried to catch the spawn at Curry's fisheries at the mouth of the Rainy river, which proved unsuccessful.

SUICIDE OF RATTLESNAKES.

Cosmos: The venoms of serpents, fishes, scorpions, centipedes, spiders, etc., as well as the blood of the eel, owe their virulence to the presence of toxins similar to those which are secreted by bacteria. In both cases the toxins are specific products of the activity of living cells. They are very poisonous, non-crystallizable colloids, of unknown chemical constitution. The venom toxins are very sensitive to the action of heat and light, are easily destroyed by digestive ferments and consequently are innocuous when swallowed. There is a great variety of these toxins. Snake poison alone contains half a dozen distinct toxins, each of which exerts a specific action on the nervous system, the red or the white blood corpuscles, etc.

It is possible to produce in any animal an artificial condition of immunity to the effects of any kind of animal venom. This is accomplished by the repeated injection of the venom in doses, each of which is too small to cause death. After a larger or smaller number of injections the animal acquires the power to resist the action of many times the quantity of venom that would suffice to cause death if it were injected into the veins of a non-immunized animal. The blood of the immunized animal now contains a new substance, an antitoxin which has the property of neutralizing the toxin of the venom, and this blood (or rather its watery part, or serum) may be employed to combat the toxic action of the venom in a non-immunized animal.

The ichneumon, the hedgehog and some other animals which devour venomous serpents exhibit an extraordinary resistance to the effects of their bites. This natural immunity is explained by the presence of antitoxins in the blood of these animals. Serpents are also little affected by their own venom. In general it is almost impossible to kill a venomous animal by inoculating it with the venom of its own species, of which it can support very large doses with impuity.

These facts demonstrate the absurdity of the stories of rattlesnakes and scorpions committing suicide by means of their own venom. It is asserted that a scorpion or a rattlesnake imprisoned in a circle of red-hot coals will sting itself to death. This is a physiological impossibility.

CAT CENSUS IN YOKOHAMA.

New York Sun: Yokohama, which prides itself upon being the most flourishing port in Japan, received a shock last year. It believed that its cat population was decreasing alarmingly.

With the painstaking care that characterizes Japanese officialdom the officers of the kencho, or city hall, set their agents to taking a census of the cats of Yokohama. There were but 7,000 able-bodied adult cats in all the confines of the city, these enumerators discovered; they even established the fact that less than one-third of the cat population were males.

Somthing must be done at once to encourage the growth of the feline members of Yokohama society, the kencho officers decided. They were quite sure by observation of the family habits of certain cats selected from the proletariat that race suicide was not a factor in this decrease of population. On the contrary they found it to be a fact that in too many instances human intervention during the infancy of the cats brought about the lessening of the population by violence.

In all Japanese cities bubonic plague is an ever present menace. There have been times when the plague has swept through whole districts and only by the most rigorous efforts of the sanitary officials could it be stamped out. Rats are the chief disseminators of the plague. On occasions such vigorous campaigns have been waged against the rats that the governments of various cities have offered a quarter of a cent bounty for every rat carcass. Men went into the trade of rat catching with handsome profits in sight.

But Yokohama decided that the most potent means of rat extermination lay in the city's cats. Hence the alarm felt at the discovery of the decrease in the number of natural rat catchers. So after the completion of the cat census a year ago the kencho officials decided to offer a bonus of 50 sen (25 cents) for every kitten raised to maturity.

Complications followed fast in the path of this spur to cat culture. Citizens flocked to the kencho with cats not their own and cat chasing became one of the most serious pursuits of the street boys. The kencho officials finally had to rule that a preliminary claim for the 50 sen reward must be made at the nearest police station upon the birth of every kitten and that the bonus would not be paid until such time as it could be shown that the same kitten had advanced to sufficient maturity to be considered a rat catcher. Consequently for a year past one of the chief duties of policemen has been the inspection and registration of the adolescence of cats.

Yokohama is breathing easier now. The last cat census showed that there were in round numbers 13,000 cats in the city. Yen 1975 ($987.50) has been paid out in bounties.

ITALIAN CLIFF VINEYARDS.

American Wine Press: The steepest vineyards in all Europe if not in all the world are situated on the northwest coast of Italy. I have seen grapevines growing in many countries and in many queer places, but nowhere have I ever seen vineyards located like those on the seacoast between Levanto and Spezzia.

The vines in some places along the Rhine grow on very steep hillsides, but nothing to compare with those growing on the lofty Italian cliffs. You can now and then get a good glimpse of these vineyards while riding in the train from Genoa to Pisa, which follows the coast almost all the way. The trouble is that tunnels succeed each other in rapid succession, thus continually breaking off the view of the sea and of the rocky coast.

After leaving Levanto, a small town situated on a semicircular bay, and going through a long tunnel, you soon come to what are called the villages of the Cinque Terre. Each village is separated from the other by lofty cliffs. The vines cover the face of these bold cliffs, which are almost perpendicular. As such places can be reached only by ladders or ropes the difficulty of working the vinyard and of gathering the crop of grapes can easily be imagined.

Almost as striking are those places where the vines are trained upon wire across gorges made by the streams which cut the rocky coast. This whole region is probably unique in its viticulture. Only men like the Italian peasant farmers, who love the vine and its luscious fruit, would go to so much labor and trouble as to plant vineyards on the face of sheer cliffs.

LOUISIANA FISHERMEN.

Washington Herald: There are all kinds of fishing along Mississippi sound from Bay St. Louis to Biloxi, according to H. C. Ryall of New Orleans.

"The mullet, a small but very palatable fish, is the common diet of the people all along the coast, and is familiarly known as 'Biloxi bacon.' The mullet is caught with a little cast net familiarly known as the 'Biloxi life preserver,' because anybody can go out in a boat at any time and catch fish enough for a meal in a few minutes.

"The Louisiana fishermen are called 'cajans,' the diminutive of Acadians, and they are the same people whose pathetic story is described in Longfellow's 'Evangeline.' They are scattered all along the coast and make their homes chiefly on the banks of the bayous and inlets, but I have not yet seen anyone resembling either Evangeline or Gabriel. They are not a poetic looking class of people, and they live the most unpoetic lives, satisfied with very little."

WILD BEASTS IN CITY PARK.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: Park guards were surprised yesterday to learn of the presence of mink and marten in all the glory of their rich winter fur ambling among the squirrels, rabbits and chipmunks. The latter animals abound along the creek and throughout the woods generally more plentifully than in a number of years. They are quite as wild as their brothers in the deep forest, except that they are accustomed to the noises of carriages and other vehicles that pass along the drive.

Rabbits are also enjoying security from the gunner in the protected park and may frequently be seen, sleek and fat, springing among the bushes and undergrowth of the upper Wissahickon. The chipmunk, with his brown and gold and red striped back and cunning eyes, is there in as large numbers as the rabbit and seems more indifferent to danger. Between the new Walnut lane bridge and the first wooden bridge above it crossing the creek the noise of the squirrels gnawing, with a tick, tick, tick, on a nutshell or their frequent calls of alarm to each other rings out through the woods, and the location of the animals can be traced by the noise they make.

Attention was attracted yesterday by a particularly loud crackling on the snow and dried leaves and two men stood in cover expecting to see a rabbit out foraging. To their surprise, however, a large purple head was thrust out of the undergrowth, then followed sinuously a long body of the richest brown which could hardly be distinguished from the purple, while a tail of beautiful black shiny fur completed the body of a full grown mink. He was fat and well fed and his coat looked as if it had been groomed by an expert barber. His seal-like head and small eyes gave the appearance of gross ignorance, but a motion toward him soon showed he was quite an intelligent creature. He dived quickly among the rocks after being in view at a distance of twenty feet for about a minute. The body of a small red squirrel was found not far from the place, and it is supposed that he was a martyr to the hunger of the mink.

Further on toward the bridge over Walnut lane another animal was seen, larger than the mink and of a lighter brown color. He was in too great a hurry to allow prolonged inspection and he disappeared among the rocks. An artist who saw the animal said it was a marten.

Both these residents along the banks of the creek are strangers to the park guards who are familiar with squirrels, rabbits and chipmunks. They say that if the animals are not the work of a nature faker they mark a return of species indigenous to the historic creek, who were thought to have been exterminated long ago, when trappers ranged the stream in search of pelts.

THE MAN OF MODERATE MEANS.

New York Sun: "All things," said the man of moderate means, "impress us by comparison. If a man had lived all his life in a palace it would have to be a very grand sort of a place, indeed, that would seem anything particularly fine to him, whereas, if he had lived always in a shack, a very modest house would seem to him luxurious.

"If since they first came in we had been driving steadily a $10,000 automobile, then obviously it would take quite considerable of a kerosene cart to give us any added joy in that line, while if we had been accustomed constantly to ride in the subway, even the simplest of gasoline rigs might give us great glee. All things go by comparison.

"Take, for instance, smoking. My regular smoke is a stogie that costs $1.45 a hundred, but I buy also for special occasions a special brand of cigars for which I pay $2 a hundred; I buy a fifty box at a time for $1. Commonly I smoke the stogies and I think they're pretty good, at a little less than 1½ cents a smoke, but if I happen to strike a little streak of luck I blow myself to a couple of those choice smokes out of the other box, in which really I find great pleasure.

"It's all by comparison. Some men would have to pay $10 for a cigar to get any fun out of it. I can get a lot of fun out of a 2-center.

"And speaking of great pleasure I'm glad I have not exhausted all my great pleasures; I've still got them all, or mostly all, to enjoy. My capacity for novelty and enjoyment has never been much taxed; it is still practically boundless. I have got life ahead of me, not behind, and when I do get money, as I certainly hope to do some day, everything will be new and charming to me and I shall enjoy everything immensely.

"I've got something to look forward to anyway, and I think there's something in that."

HE WHO LOVES AND RIDES AWAY

By AMANDA MOORE.

Not a few forlorn maidens utter a plaint from time to time concerning the man who loves and rides away.

That there are faithless lovers, and even heartless lovers, is undoubtedly true, and that men were deceivers ever has been granted from time immemorial; but, on the other hand, there are a great many girls who, through ignorance of the ways of the world, or through vanity, deceive themselves. They very often imagine themselves wooed by one who, in reality, has no more thought of wooing them than of winning them.

A few compliments, a slight pressure of the hand, an admiring look in some man's eyes and straightway these sentimental damsels regard themselves as loved and wanted, when, in reality, their own good sense should tell them the gentleman in question is a flirt. Or, if their judgment does not necessarily write him down a flirt, if in their inmost heart they believe him earnest and sincere, is it not frequently because they wish to believe so?

Let them in such case give him time to prove his sincerity and worth. Let them not too rashly give their own heart and hopes into his keeping. Let him, indeed, woo before he may hope to win.

There are men who have honestly no intention of flirting, and yet to whom it is as natural as the air they breathe to utter compliments, put a tender inflection in the voice, and let their eyes say unutterable things when speaking to a pretty woman. They think that women like this kind of thing, and undoubtedly it does please many of them.

But a woman of the world estimates this impressive manner at its right value, and is seldom taken in by it. She knows it is not reserved for her especial benefit, but is the lot of every attractive woman such a man may meet, and signifies less than nothing. Men themselves would often be shocked and surprised if they could guess how certain unsophisticated damsels fondly imagine the honeyed compliments and tender tones are reserved for them alone.

Possibly one reason why many inexperienced girls are deceived into thinking themselves beloved when they are not is that nowadays there are so many women who are content to play at love merely. A man himself is often puzzled to know whether the girl who so gaily accepts attentions on all sides would ever give serious consideration to the subject of matrimony. Platonic friendships are so much encouraged by the present independence of women that by degrees many men insensibly come to the belief that every woman they meet has no more at stake in the matter than they have themselves.

But the exceptions have to be reckoned with all the same, and if a man, actuated as he may be only by a feeling of chivalry and friendliness, takes notice of a forlorn little maiden, small wonder if she spies in him the Prince Charming who, in spite of the sad disillusions she sees around her, she fondly imagines has come to lead her into the enchanted kingdom.

Straightway, in blind, unquestioning trust, she gives her heart into his keeping, undesired though it may be.

If there is a careful mother or friend at hand to utter a warning note, much pain may be spared; but sometimes it happens that they, the mother and friends, in their anxiety to promote a match, construe a man's meaningless attentions into a desire to woo and marry.

A girl's instinct should warn her to distinguish between those attentions, which are the outcome of natural gallantry, and the very different kind of homage, which is proffered when a man's affections are engaged, and a real impression has been made on his heart.

WAYS OF BERLIN WOMEN.

"I believe that the typical German hausfrau is a myth," said a New York woman who returned the other day from a year's residence in Germany. "I don't see how the average German woman finds any time to be a hausfrau. I sometimes wondered when the German woman found time to do anything at home.

"I spent eight months in Berlin with my daughter, who was studying music. From 11 to 12 in the morning the cafes were packed with German women, who go out to take their second breakfast in the public restaurants, a thing unknown in America.

"They take along their sewing or embroidery and sit an hour or two over their cup of coffee or glass of beer. At the concerts, too, they take their work and spend hours day after day listening to the music. You can spend an afternoon listening to beautiful music, a magnificent orchestra with fine vocal artists for 16 cents. That is an illustration of the things that help to exile Americans.

"At 3 in the afternoon again you will see the cafes crowded with German women taking their afternoon tea. I think American women are more domestic than German, because I never heard of American women who left their homes in the evening to pass the time at the club. A German friend took me one evening to the German women's club. The club has a magnificent suite of apartments, including auditorium, reading room, parlor, cafe and smoking room.

"When she took me into the last apartment it almost fazed me for a minute. It was blue with smoke. I had never before seen a room filled with elegantly gowned cultivated women all smoking. These were the wealthy society women of Berlin, titled some of them.

"They were cosmopolitan in their dress and manners and did not present any striking points of difference from the American woman except in the smoking. It made the occurrence of last summer, when our Immigration officials detained a second-class passenger, a woman art dealer, for inquiry into her sanity because she smoked cigarettes, appear very funny in retrospect.

"The German women's clubs, like those of the Englishwomen, are based on the same principle as men's clubs, these are places for social enjoyment and for the convenience of members in taking meals, entertaining friends and so on, like the women's clubs in America.

"But along some lines the German women have done more than the American. There is a working girls' club in Berlin with 13,000 members. Its object is to maintain sick benefits and an employment bureau to secure better pay and shorter hours and otherwise to better the conditions of the members. It is in fact nothing but a labor union but it was organized and befriended by women of the highest social standing, some of them women of the nobility."

DECLINE IN LACE MAKING.

Town and Country: The caprices of fashion have told their tale on the lace industry at Calais. There is a serious falling off in the trade. Many lace workers are idle, and there is a fear that those who are in work will have to suffer a reduction in wages. And all because during the present year it has pleased fashionable women to dress like umbrellas. That is to say, they have abandoned those garments which required lace as a fitting adornment. At any rate this is the reason given at Calais for the wretched condition of the lace trade. Unfortunately for the lace makers the outlook for the future is far from bright.

Fashion is plotting against the Directoire mode and in favor of Louis XVI paniers. In order to stand up against this new fashion the lace manufacturers talk of turning their attention to the making of silk tulle. But they will first of all have to make their peace with the rival town of Caudry, in the Nord, where cheap tulle is being turned out. Apart from the freaks of fashion America is blamed for the present distress among the lace workers. Formerly America went to Calais for lace, but now Uncle Sam decks his womenkind with lace of his own making.

TARIFF FUND IS $250,000

Commission Is Provided for in Sundry Civil Bill as Reported.

Amount Is Based on Estimate Sanctioned By the President.

Washington, May 6.—Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the work of a tariff commission is provided by a section of the sundry civil appropriation bill prepared by Representative Tawney and presented in congress today. The appropriation is based upon the estimate practically made by President Taft himself.

The provision as prepared by Mr. Tawney gives wide opportunity for the president to exercise his own discretion in the work of the tariff board, and does not limit the number of persons who may be appointed. The president is authorized to appoint experts to obtain accurate information at home and abroad on the cost of production.

The board and all of its employes will be subject to the order of the president, and the information obtained can be used in recommending to congress any changes necessary in the tariff rates to prevent undue discrimination in favor of, or against, any American product.

Explains Payne Bill Methods.

In preparing the Payne tariff bill, Mr. Tawney said, the methods used were those which had been followed in the preparation of all tariff bills because none other was available.

"For this reason," added Mr. Tawney, "the rates of duty in some cases may not correctly represent the declared principle of Republican protection; that is, they may be more and they may be less than the difference in the cost of production. To this fact more than any other may be attributed practically all of the dissatisfaction with the Payne law."

WEIGHT OF THE BRAIN.

London Globe: Prof. Frederick W. Mott, lecturing before the Royal Institution of Great Britain on "The Brain," said that although in 88 per cent of the cases in which the brains of great men had been weighed the weight was above the average, brain weight itself did not always mean brain quality.

When there was lack of the functionating tissue, the lecturer explained, the structural material might receive more than its normal share of nourishment and the extra weight be due to overgrowth of "brain scaffolding." This accounted for the very large and heavy brains sometimes found in congenital idiots. Pointing out that the brain weight of a race long civilized surpassed that of aborigines, the lecturer stated that whereas the ordinary European hospital patient had a heavier brain than a savage, the Chinese coolie laborer's brain, developed by centuries of use, weighed 1½ ounces more than that of the European hospital patient.

Referring to the relative brain weights of Caucasian men and women, Prof. Mott said that the female brain had a good start, weighing nearly 1½ ounces more than the male brain at birth. In adult life, however, the average man's brain weighed about 5½ ounces more than the woman's.

The average weight of the European male brain was 2 pounds 15 ounces 9 drams to 2 pounds 16 ounces 9 drams and of the female brain 2 pounds 10 ounces 11 drams to 2 pounds 10 ounces 14 drams. Among savages there was not this difference since in the struggle for existence the female had to apply her brain as fully as the male, hence it has developed at practically the same rate.

CURIOUS EPITAPHS.

Westminster Gazette: Among the 1,300 epitaphs collected by Ernest R. Suffling in "Epitaphia" are many quaint and curious specimens. Grimaldi off the sage was said to be a usufferer from melancholia. It will be remembered that going to a physician on one occasion he described his case whose the worthy doctor briskly told him to "shake off the feeling. Go and see Grimaldi, and if he does not cure you your case is indeed hopeless." "Alas," said the poor sufferer, "I am Grimaldi." His epitaph reads "Here Am I."

A prize of $500 is said to have been offered by one Thorpe, who was desirous of being perpetuated but briefly on his tombstone. One competitor sent in "Here Lies Thorpe's Corpse." This was certainly brief enough, but finally it was cut to "Thorpe's Corpse."

Many of our readers know the Douglas Jerrold and Charles Knight story. They were dining together on one occasion when the conversation turned upon epitaphs. Knight half in jest suggested that Jerrold should write his (Knight's) epitaph. The subject dropped at the time, but walking home together in the evening they came to a spot where each had to take a separate road. Jerrold, extending his hand to his friend, remarked: "I've thought of a capital epitaph for you." "What is it?" said his friend much interested. "Oh, very brief and very simple, 'Good Night.'"

There are many curious epitaphs on wives. Here's one from Ulverston, Lancashire:

Here lies my wife,
Here lies she,
Hallelujah!
Hallelujee!

An inscription placed over the grave of a missionary who was accidentally shot in India read thus:

Here lies the Rev. A—— B——,
For many years missionary in B——district,
He was accidentally shot by his native servant.
"Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

At Chelmsford, Essex, on a stone to the memory of "Mary Blewitt of the Swan" it is stated that she "was the wife of nine husbands successively, but the ninth outlived her." It is added, "The Text to Her Funeral Sermon was: 'Last of All, the Woman Died Also.'"

WESTERNERS IN THE WAR.

All the flags save one captured from the enemy in the Wilderness were taken by Western regiments. The Twenty-fourth Michigan captured the colors of the Forty-Eighth Virginia, the Fifth Wisconsin those of the Twenty-fifth, the Twentieth Indiana those of the Fifty-fifth, the Fifth Michigan those of the Thirteenth North Carolina, the Seventh Indiana those of the Fiftieth Virginia and the Eighth Ohio and Fourteenth Indiana retook Rickett's guns.

"The men from the West were probably no braver man for man than those of the East," says a writer in the Atlantic Monthly, "but I think their success was wholly because so many of the men were woods wise. From their youth up, both by day and night, they had roamed through woods under all sorts of sky and in all sorts of weather, and so their depths had no terror for them. Like their enemies, they were at home in the timber and could make their way through it almost as well by night as by day.

"I have often thought that perhaps it was this common knowledge of the woods that gave our Western armies so many victories. A Confederate line coming on rising up suddenly and breaking into their sharp, fierce yells did not greatly surprise or set them quaking. And yet although all my boyhood was passed in the grandly deep, primeval forests of Ohio I am free to own that I never heard that rebel yell in the woods of Virginia that its old fields behind us did not seem at once to become mightily attractive."

YOUNG AMERICA.

Delineator: A little city boy on his first visit to a farm saw the farmer's wife plucking a chicken, and asked: "Do you take off their clothes every night?"

Carrie, aged 4, and Jimmie, a year older, were making mud pies: "Me am going to have cherry pie," remarked Jimmie. "Me am!" scorned Carrie; "that's a funny way to say 'I are!'"

Little Egbert one day observed his mother making tea. "What kind of tea is that, mamma?" he asked. "Why, I don't recall the name. Why do you ask?" I was just wondering whether it was the Libby tea we sing about at school."

Little Lina had recently taken up elementary physiology, and was being questioned at the dinner table by her mother as to what she had benefited. "Sister, how many teeth have you?" The response came quickly: "I'll have thirty-two when I get my purgatory teeth."

Little Ted, 7 years old, was sent to the bathroom for a 'good scrub' before dinner, but in that the quickly that his mother declared he couldn't possibly have washed himself. He replied: "Truly, I did, mother, and if you don't believe it, you can just go to the bathroom and look at the towel."

Berk, aged 4, insisted on running off to play with a little girl his age. His mother told him that a dog might bite him if he didn't stay at home. He answered that he would nit the dog with his stick. "Yes," said his mother, "but you had no stick." Berk replied: "And there wasn't any dog, either."

The pretty young teacher was struggling to impart spelling book lore to a small Italian boy. "Chief" was the word under consideration. "C-h-e-f," spelled Tony laboriously. "Oh, no, Tony," she said, "you've left out one letter. Can't you think what it is?" Tony shook his shiny black head. "It's name is just the same as something you have," he went on, looking straight into his eyes. "I can see them looking at me this minute, right out of your head—two, big brown ones." "Bugs!" shouted Tony triumphantly.

One day, small Mary, who was making her first visit to the country, went with her grandmother to hunt eggs. "Look in the nest, dear," said her grandmother, "and see how many eggs are there." "One egg," reported Mary. "Are you sure there are no more? Look again." Mary knelt down on the straw and peered carefully into the nest. "Yes, grandma, that's all," she said, "it's just as one as it can be." Then, as the hen gave a loud cackle, she added: "The egg's mamma says that she hasn't any more."

CHANGE IN ENGLISH SOCIETY.

New York Sun: Lady St. Heller, who has just published her reminiscenses, say of a life of a young lady in the '60s: "Nothing could exceed the simplicity and economy practiced by the young ladies of our time. Our allowances was very limited; £100 a year was considered princely, especially when it was augmented by our parents providing our court dresses.

"The real cause of the lesser cost of our toilettes lay in the fact that amusements were fewer and were generally confined to an occasional afternoon party and a ball, so that only two changes of dress were necessary, even among those who went out a great deal.

"A certain number of people rode in Rotten Row in the morning, but there were no luncheon parties and no evening parties; Hurlingham and Ranelagh were unknown, and girls were hardly ever asked out to dinner.

"Evening receptions were rare, and they were generally only attended by older people, girls being usually put to bed at 8 o'clock to sleep until 9:30, when, refreshed and beautified by their rest, they dressed for their ball.

"As a rule there was only one ball each night, and, though there were exceptions, but few people went to two, so that the evening ended not later than 1:30; and if on rare occasions the invariable rule was broken, the event found no favor in the maternal eye.

"It is very difficult after the lapse of so many years to compare the physique and beauty of English men and women then with those of today. If I were critical I should say that women nowadays are prettier than their grandmothers—stronger, better developed, better set up and certainly more independent and more self-reliant than they were forty years ago; but I do not think that the men are as handsome or physically strong and as finely developed as their grandfathers."

THE MINIATURE BULLDOG.

Under the designation of miniature bulldog many non-doggy people may fail to recognize their old friend the toy bulldog, says the English Gentlewoman; but he it is, going strong under the name that Providence and the Kennel club have recently presented him with.

Their decision was brought about by the raising of his weight from twenty pounds to the more massive limit of twenty-two pounds, which, though it enabled many a poor candidate for show honors in toy bulldogdom to give much painful and enforced abstinence and fasting, also clearly rendered the prefix "toy" somewhat farcial. Few even of the Amazons of the present athletic day would care to walk a mile carrying a twenty-two pound toy.

The Toy, or as it is now styled the Miniature Bulldog club, was founded ten years ago by a small band of enthusiasts. The duchess of Sutherland has been president of the club ever since it was organized. It was no more than a revival of the breed, toy bulldogs having been common in England sixty years ago, particularly among the lace workers in Nottingham.

But they fell into disrepute and were exported chiefly to France, ceasing practically to exist on this side of the Channel. While in the land of Gaul they cannot be said to have improved, and they returned to England in 1898 with, it may be, perfect manners, but also with monstrous hat ears and a want of under jaw, distressing even in this generation of chinless young men.

In consequence they were far from welcomed by the sturdy supporters of the burly beefsteak eating British bulldog, and many unkind things were written and said of them. But the Toy Bulldog club worked hard and successfully; but ears are almost a thing of the past, good classes and championships are given for them at all the leading shows, and a really interesting replica of the bulldog in miniature is being rapidly established.

In fact, from an exhibition point of view, few breeds are more interesting at this juncture; indeed, there is but little doubt that the miniature bulldog is becoming every year more and more generally understood. Good specimens command big prices, and less good ones always have a ready sale as pets—and more charming and attractive pets it would be hard to find.

Good tempered, affectionate as a rule, madly devoted to one person and one person only, yet ready to be condescendingly civil to every one, not sufficiently sporting to really hunt, though by no means despising a brief spin after a bunny at times, not requiring much exercise and hardly ever "bursting into barkter," what more can the searcher after canine perfection expect to find?

DOG WATCHED BY DEAD MASTER.

Petit Parisien: When the police found a man dead on a bench in the rue Michel-Ange yesterday morning a little white dog, which was sitting by the dead man's side, turned an appealing look towardthe policemen as though to invite them to follow it.

They did so and the dog led them into a house in the boulevard Exelmans where it was quickly learned that the dead man was a M. Victor James, a blacksmith. His death appears to be due to natural causes.

WILL CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

St. Stephen's Church Will Observe Its Twentieth Birthway.

Plans are being made by the congregation of the St. Stephen's German-English Lutheran church, Sixty-seventh avenue west and Raleigh street, for the celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the church. The date has been set for Sunday, May 15. Some of the former pastors will take part in the affair.

Rev. A. C. Bode of Browntown, Minn., a former pastor of the congregation, will deliver the anniversary sermon in German in the morning. He was pastor of the church for four years, leaving six years ago. Rev. J. E. R. Schmidt of Galwa, Iowa, will also take an active part in affair. He will also speak in English Sunday evening.

On the Wednesday following, a concert will conclude the anniversary observation. The entertainment is being arranged by the young people's society. Among the soloists who will take part are: Miss Alice Sjoselius of this city; Rev. W. Sievers, pastor of the church, violinist; Rev. J. E. R. Schmidt, baritone, and Rev. O. Hattstaedt of Wrenshall, Minn., pianist.

REV. WALTER SIEVERS.

The present church building was erected twenty years ago, when the congregation was organized by Rev. C. Steffens, who conducted mission work in Northern Minnesota at that time. Upon his departure, Rev. F. Randt, now located at Mankato, Minn., took charge of the field. His successor was Rev. Mr. Bode, who will speak at the celebration. Since his departure there have been two other pastors, Rev. C. Hilz, now of Crookston, Minn., and the present Rev. Walther Sievers, who recently declined a call to one of the large churches at Columbus, Ohio.

The congregation had intended to erect a new edifice at a new location this summer, but plans have been postponed, owing to the fact that West Duluth will probably undergo extensive changes in the near future in the way of factories, railroads, etc. The congregation, consequently, has not decided upon what would be the best location, and no property has been purchased.

Repairs costing several hundred dollars are being made on the old structure. The officers of the congregation are: President and treasurer, C. F. W. Korth; trustees, R. Klug, C. Mehling and A. Mehling.

FIREMEN CALLED TO CATCH THIEF

Mistake Gives West Duluth Company an Early Morning Run.

Through a misunderstanding on the part of a neighbor, who telephoned to the police to send the fire department, the West Duluth firemen were given a needless run early this morning to 6314 Wadena street, where the family of Alex Bralesky claimed that they had been awakened shortly after midnight by burglars.

According to the story told later to the police, an unknown thief entered a window at the rear of the house and stole $1.50 from a pocketbook which was lying on the table. Members of the family were awakened by a noise, and when they investigated they found some one had been in the house.

Mrs. Bralesky, who was very much excited over the affair, awoke the nearest neighbors and asked them to telephone for an officer. Her neighbor misunderstood her and thought that she wanted the fire department, and an alarm was sent in.

The firemen responded, and on reaching the scene learned of the mistake. Returning, the firemen notified Sergeant Bradley, and he and Officer Stahl went to the house.

The police did not succeed in finding any one around the neighborhood, and as considerable time had elapsed after the burglary had been discovered, the police had nothing on which to work.

UNCONSCIOUS FROM KICK OF A HORSE.

Phillip Lange, who resides at Forty-fifth avenue west and Fourth street was knocked unconscious by a kick from a horse last evening. No bones were broken and the man will recover. He is 65 years old. Booker, at whose home the man boards, was recently acquitted of the charge of murdering Charles Clarke.

WILL FORM A TENNIS CLUB

A tennis club will be organized at West Duluth this summer.

Four years ago, there was a splendid organization of tennis players, but since then interest in the sport has seemed to decline at West Duluth.

Harry W. Lanners, attorney at the Woodward block, is behind the movement to revive the game. Those interested in the formation of the new club may send him their names.

It is planned to limit the membership to twenty. The court will be centrally located at West Duluth.

Sigrud Olson, 40 years old, was released from the county jail this morning after serving ninety days for non-support. His family resides on Elinor street, between Sixty-fourth and Sixty-fifth avenues.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church, Fifty-sixth avenue west and Elinor street, will hold its annual spring festival this evening and tomorrow night at the church parlors. A program will be given and refreshments served each evening.

Hurst Watch repairing, W. Duluth.

The West Duluth police are keeping a sharp lookout for clothes line thieves, who are getting active at West Duluth. Complaints have been coming in to the police from people who claim that they have had their reels or lines stripped of wearing apparel.

The West Duluth Commercial club will met this evening at the Commercial club rooms. Several important matters are scheduled to come up for discussion and a large attendance is expected.

West Duluth may have a team in the Twin Ports baseball league, if the efforts of some of the fans in the western part of the city materialize. There is much good material west of the ore docks and all that seems to be lacking is a good leader.

THE BALANCING OF LIVES.

New York Evening Sun: The rich man looked over the bill of fare and these were the first few items that met his gaze:

Clam Cocktail.
Mock Turtle Soup, Green Turtle Soup, Soupe Tomatoe Lamb Broth, Mulligatawney, Oxtail.
—Fish—
Trout, Sea Bass, Mackerel.
Salmon (fresh).
—Game—
Canvas Back Duck, Guinea Fowl, Snipe, Quail on Toast, Sparrow Potpie, Wild Turkey.
—Viandes—
Leg of Lamb. Breast of Veal.
Roast Beef au us.
Saddle of Mutton (with mushrooms), Etc. Etc. Etc.

"Hang it all," said the rich man, peevishly, "it's always the same old thing!"

But the poor man ate a plate of hash and polished it off with a mealy potato.

"My!" said he, "my, but that's good!"

Now, who was the happier of the two; the rich man or the poor man?

Let us look a little farther into things.

The rich woman was putting her jewels away, and on her dressing table she had laid:

One diamond ring (soltaire).
One diamond and emerald ring.
One emerald ring (single stone).
One emerald ring (two stones).
One marquise ring containing thirty-six small diamonds and one larger ditto.
One pearl necklace, nine strands, dog collar, with pendant of eighteen pear-shaped pearls.
One diamond necklace with sunburst clasp.
One emerald medallion.
One diamond and emerald tiara.
Six jeweled hairpins.
One girdle, and
No wedding ring.

On the chair behind her was a frock of silk; her velvet shoes lay on the floor; her agonized eyes were turned toward the door.

"Did I hear a step?" she thought. "I forgot to cover the keyhole! Suppose somebody broke in and!"—

Meanwhile the poor woman was putting her children to bed, and as she washed the baby she took stock of the following possessions:

Six diamond eyes.
Three ivory foreheads.
Ninety (approximate) small pearls, with six larger pearls carved like little ears.
Three rubies in the shape of lips.
Three golden nuggets (heart shaped).
Six velvet cheeks, and
Three satin bodies.

A step sounded outside.

"Is it you, Jimmy?" laughed the poor woman. "Come on in and watch me put the children to bed."

"Sure," said Jimmy. "You're nothing but a kid yourself."

Now which was the happier of the two; the rich woman or the poor woman?

Let us look even further yet.

The rich little boy looked around at his toys and these are the things he saw:

One automobile.
One land-going yacht.
One railway system complete.
Two humpty-dumpty circuses.
One Noah's ark (the size of a Saratoga trunk).
One set of building blocks (1,200 pieces).
One Indian costume.
One policeman's, ditto.
One cowboy's, ditto.
One soldier's, ditto.
One fire engine house with apparatus complete.
Three sets tenpins and
One hundred and twenty-six assorted mechanical toys.

The rich little boy looked around at his toys and his lips began to tremble.

"I want"—he cried—"I want—I want!"—

But the poor little boy playing with two other poor little boys in the street outside, filled his mouth with water at the fountain and made highly important but vastly unintelligible remarks to his confreres, whose mouths were likewise filled with water and who talked a similar language to his own. And the wetter the poor little boy became the more merrily he ran back to the fountain to refill his mouth with water, and it seemed to be plainly apparent that as long as there was water in this fountain the lawgivers at Washington could talk about the tariff bill till their tongues lolled out. The poor little boy wouldn't care a rap.

Now, which was the happier of the two: the rich little boy or the poor little boy?

Again:

The learned young man looked over the books of his library and especially did his eyes dwell upon the following contributions to literature:

The Origin of Speecies.
The Encyclopaedia.
Latin Grammar.
Greek ditto.
German ditto.
Spanish ditto.
French ditto.
Geometry.
Trigonometry.
The French Revolution.
Mythology.
Advanced Botany.
Chemistry.
Political Economy.

And yet," he muttered, throwing a geological specimen at the chart of English kings, "what good is it going to do me a hundred years from now?"

He looked out of his window. In the park opposite an unlearned young man was kissing a fair young lady.

"Only fifty, remember!" said she.

"Are we anywhere near the fifty yet?" he asked.

"I've lost count," she giggled.

"Well, then," said he, "we'll have to begin all over again."

They did.

Now which was the happier of the two, the learned young man or the other?

And yet—and yet—

"Bring me now," said the rich man, "a pint of the usual and a Rey del Mundo perfecto."

"Ah, my beautiful, beautiful pearls!" exclaimed the rich woman.

"I will walk past them and I will draw my fire engine after me," said the rich little boy.

"Hic, haee, hoc," said the learned young man. "L'homme, qu'a-t-il? Oh—let us be joyful! Things equal to the same thing are equal to each other. Ach, du schone schnitzelbank and the square of a plus b equals a2 plus 2ab plus b2.

"It's all right as long as I don't lose my job," mourned the poor man.

"You little brat!" shouted the poor woman. "If you don't be quiet I'll come over there and give you something to shout for!"

"Gee!" sighed the poor little boy. "Look at the fire engine he is pulling."

And—

I wonder," muttered the unlearned young man in the depths of his soul. "I wonder if she kisses anyone else like this. She seems to know how, all right!"

Monkey as Author's Pet.

London Globe: A Paris contemporary dealing with the love of great men for animals gives an amusing account of Chateaubriand and his monkey. When he was engaged in preparing Fontanes' works for the press, on returning one day he was met by his monkey.

"Ah, you rogue," said Chateaubriand, "your shamefaced look tells of mischief." The monkey was chained up, but as things did not appear much disturbed, Chateaubriand thought no more of the matter until it was time to resume work. Fontanes' manuscripts were not to be found.

At last Chateaubriand looked into the waste paper basket, and there were the manuscripts. The monkey had watched his master, and as he had seen him fold a sheet of paper and tear it into four, so he had dealt with Fontanes' writings. With much labor they were pieced together and afterward published.

Chateaubriand thought it advisable to see what else the monkey had done. His orders had disappeared from a drawer which was always kept closed. The servants searched everywhere for them, but they were not to be found. Nearly a week elapsed before they were traced, and then a domestic noticed that the monkey had suspended them to the cornice in a quasi symmetrical way.

The monkey was given his conge and Chateaubriand replaced him by a cat, which was allowed a place on his master's writing table, and great was the pleasure which he derived in playing with puss.

REDIED BY ORDER.

Tit-Bits After the battle of Custozza, a soldier supposed to have been killed was entered on the books of his company:

"Died on the 24th, June, 1866," etc.

A few days afterward it turned out that he was still alive and the honest sergeant made the following entry:

"Died by mistake."

At length there came a letter from the ministry of war announcing the death of the man at the hospital, when our sergeant recorded the fact as follows:

"Redied by order of the ministry."

THE MOTIVE.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe is no friend to the new suffragette slogan, "No vote, no husband." She says the plan is old—she says it was tried unsuccessfully in the days of Aristophanes.

"My suffragette friends have disappointed me," the famous poet declared in a recent interview. "I expected their slogan to be some new, startling thing; and lo! it is old, old and familiar.

"They remind me, my suffragette friends, of a witness at a Boston inquest.

"'Witness,' said the coroner, 'do you know what motive the deceased had in committing suicide?'

"'Yes, judge, your honor,' said the witness, pompously. 'Deceased told me his motive, sir.'

"The coroner, the court officers, everybody, looked interested.

"'What was, then, deceased's motive, witness?' said the coroner.

"'Why, your honor, he said he wanted to kill himself,' was the reply."

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION —OF— NORTHEASTERN MINING COMPANY.

The undersigned subscribe and acknowledge this certificate for the purpose of forming a corporation under the laws of the State of Minnesota, specifying:

Article I. The name of the corporation shall be Northeastern Mining Company; the principal place of transacting its business shall be Duluth, Minnesota; the period of its duration shall be thirty (30) years from the 28th day of April, 1910.

Article II. The general nature of the business of the corporation shall be the mining, smelting, reducing, refining and working or ores and minerals; working coal mines and stone quarries, and working mineral lands.

Article III. The names, addresses and places of residence of the incorporators are John P. Peterson, Duluth, Minn.; W. H. Bonnell, Hawthorne, Wis., and Delfils Gauthier, Duluth, Minn.; and the management of the corporation shall be vested in the board of directors; said incorporators shall compose the board until the first election; until successors are elected, said W. H. Bonnell shall be president; said John P. Peterson, secretary and treasurer; said Delfils Gauthier, vice president.

Article IV. The date of the first annual meeting at which the board shall be elected is the fourth Monday in May, 1910; the date of each annual meeting at which the board shall be elected after the said first meeting is the second Monday in January in each year.

Article V. The amount of the capital stock is Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00), and is to be paid in in money, or in property at a valuation fixed by the board of directors as and when subscribed. The amount of each subscription shall be payable on call of the board of directors, except as otherwise specified in the subscription or voted by the board. The number of shares into which the stock is to be divided is fifty thousand (50,000). The par value of each share is One Dollar ($1.00). The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which the corporation shall at any time be subject is Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000.00).

Article VI. The board of directors shall consist of three (3) persons. No person other than a bona fide stockholder of record on the books of the company shall be eligible to the office of treasurer. Whenever the person elected to the office of treasurer ceases to be a stockholder of record, the office shall be deemed vacant and shall thereupon be filled by vote of the board of directors, the same as if such vacancy had occurred by the death or resignation of the treasurer. No certificate representing any of the capital stock of the company shall be issued until the full par value of the stock represented by such certificate shall be paid to the company. It shall not be necessary to publish any notice of any annual or special meeting of the corporation. The first meeting may be called upon a notice of not less than three (3) days, signed by one of the incorporators, to the others, or without notice by consent of a majority of the incorporators.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, We have hereunto set our hands and seals this 28th day of April, A. D. 1910.

WHEAT FIRM AT THE CLOSE

Prices Advance Sharply During Last Half Hour of Trading.

Little Trading in Flax---Prices Show Slight Change.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 6.—Short covering toward the close today caused a sudden firming in wheat values. Prices opened strong, declined and remained quiet at a stationary level until the activity of shorts sent values up in the last half hour.

May wheat opened at $1.11⅜a and sold at $1.11 to $1.12¼, the close. July wheat opened $1.10½b, sold at $1.10, $1.10⅜, $1.10½, $1.10⅝, $1.10¾-⅞ and closed $1.11⅜b. September was late in opening and was $1.02b and sold at $1.02½ and closed $1.02½b.

Flax was dull. The short interest in the current month appears to be about all covered. May opened at $2.38 and sold off to $2.36¾, $2.36, $2.37 and closed with bids at $2.37. The July option sold at $2.32½ and $2.33 and closed with bids at $2.33. The September option opened at $1.76½ and sold at $1.76¼ to $1.76, with closing bids at that figure. The October option opened at $1.67¼ and closed $1.67 bid.

Durum was slck and closed on a parity with yesterday. Cash equalled May. Oats closed ⅛c up and barley and rye were unchanged from yesterday.

The market opened strong on higher cables from Liverpool, but soon declined on reports of heavy rains in the Southwest. The downturn did not carry values below yesterday's close, however. Prices remained inactive until toward noon when a slight upturn occurred. There was no significance to the trading which was extremely light. The professional element is bearishly inclined, but is proceeding with caution. The trade would like to sell the market, but it hesitates to do so.

Values seemed to heavy around noon, but there was very little stuff for sale. Neither side cared to make a demonstration. The hesitancy of the bears to enter the market gave it a firm appearance and appeared stubborn. The bears maintained that values were artificial and some thought the market was due for a break. They hesitated to commit themselves, however.

Rains fell in the Southwest and in South Dakota. The Herald received a dozen messages from Hatton, Rugby Mohall and Granville in North Dakota, saying that wheat is entirely sown and that a good deal of it is above ground. It is in an excellent condition and none of it will need reseeding. Reports of the Hessian fly in Indiana were overcome by the messages from Kansas and Nebraska which said that the rain had helped wheat greatly and that an improvement had been noticed. The country failed to back up the pessimistic reports with buying orders and the trade looked kindly upon the optimistic messages, but hesitated to express their sentiments in the market until the messages became more definite in character and the long side became less confident.

There was a renewal of the attempt to damage the Texas crop which will be harvested in about three weeks. Dry weather and the Hessian fly were the alleged instruments of destruction. Rain is not needed in the Northwest for three weeks, said a report which added that rain fell copiously in many parts of South Dakota last night. The bears seemed to think that the crop situation looked brighter and that it was crystallizing into a factor that would break down the only argument of the bulls.

With Northwestern markets 14 to 16 cents above an export basis there is no hope for any export business. The bears say that a return to an export basis is inevitable, that prices must adjust themselves. The foreigner is confronted with plenty of wheat and is not worrying about supplies. His values need no adjustment, consequently the prices quoted by the seller who is out of line must sustain a severe decline, the bears argue. As soon as the crop situation ceases to be a troublesome factor the bears think the market will speedily fall. The condition of the winter wheat crop is about the sole argument of the bulls, and they cling tenaciously to their belief that the crop factor will not lose its potency in the market. The Modern Miller's report was bullish. It was written before the rains of yesterday and last night, however, and some allowance must be made for the latest weather conditions in considering it.

Cables were mixed. The continent did not share the optimism of Liverpool and continental markets closed lower. Liverpool sustained a slight advance. The low quality of Argentine cargoes and decreasing Russian shipments caused a firmer tone in the market.

Trading in all deliveries was light. There was little doing in May and the trading in July was only slightly better. There is very little pressure to the May option as traders are wary about selling. The chief demand comes from a few scattered shorts. On the bear spots appear a fair stream of offerings in the deferred months, but not in such an insistent measure as to depress those options unduly.

The cash demand was light but active on account of the small receipts. The mills bid lc over the May option while the elevators maintained cash prices on a parity with the current month. The Southwest reported a slow demand, and the cash position at Chicago was said to be dead. Flour buyers evidently are loaded up and the crop damage reports have not stimulated inquiries.

India harvest reports continue mostly favorable, but indications show that the yield will not be heavy. The exportable surplus is estimated at between 36,000,000 bu and 44,000,000 bu. This is against 38,400,000 exported last year.

Poehler's Minneapolis house wired: "There is no cause for any alarm over crop conditions in South Dakota, North Dakota or Minnesota. You will hear some local complaints, a few fields not looking just right immediately feeds the imagination, especially if one is interested in being a bull and keeping the ball rolling. J. D. O'Brien of Winnipeg wired Finley Barrell, Chicago, and C. H. Thornton, Duluth, as follows: Unless the United States is going to use all of its wheat crop, there will have to be a very decided readjustment of prices some day. Our May and cash wheat is more than 13 cents under yours and still foreign bids are two cents under cash price here. The export demand for wheat and flour is very poor and has been very slow for the past two or three months. With your market so terribly out of line with the legitimate value of our choice wheat it is impossible to induce trading from here on the buying side while, on the other hand, anybody who sells gets "stung." What is the answer?"

Barrell answered: "I agree with you that there has got to be a readjustment of wheat prices all over the world and American prices will be the ones that will suffer."

Thornton replied: "The United States will not use all of its wheat. I figure that surplus on July 1, in all positions, will be thirty-five to forty millions larger than last July, but when you consider the almost utter exhaustion of supplies last year, the difference in price this year and the carrying ability of speculators and farmers at this price one can imagine a condition in which

Winnipeg wired: "The weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific Railway company is of a very satisfactory character. Wheat seeding is practically completed."

Nebraska reported good rains all over the state, at some points more than two inches fell.

Unsettled weather with possible showers is the government's prediction for Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, North and South Dakota, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The report published in this department recently that Duluth might send wheat to Chicago seems to be confirmed it is unofficially reported that Armour has obtained two cargoes for shipment to Chicago.

Minneapolis puts, $1.09¼; calls, $1.11⅛.

Omaha wired that prospects for wheat crop are excellent in the big wheat belt of the state but poor in eastern part, which is the big corn belt.

Wheat stores here decreased 679,000 bu in five days to 5,575,000 bu. Flax decreased 39,000 bu, to 130,000 bu.

Duluth car inspection: Wheat, No. 1 hard, 1; No. 1 northern, 2; No. 2 northern, 1. Durum, No. 1, 7; No. 2, 14; total durum, 21; total wheat, 25, last year 11; flax, 3, last year 5; oats, 14; rye, 1; barley, 8, last year 4. Total cars, 51; on track, 36.

The Inter-Ocean of Chicago said: "Gossip among the wheat traders last night favored the bull side, but the most enthusiastic bulls say they did not look for a runaway market until after the government report comes out at noon next Monday. They said that they expected prices to work higher and some expressed the belief that there is to be an irregular bull market for the next thirty days. All will depend upon the weather and the crop reports. Patten was on the board part of the day, talking bullish, and said that the claims of damage were being confirmed. Those who canvassed the trade said that the shorts had covered and those who were short Wednesday were long last night. The bull leaders told friends to keep on September. Corn traders who have been on the bull side said they expected nothing but a scalping market for the immediate future."

Modern Miller said: "Reports from millers in all winter wheat states shows crop in practically all of these states deterlorated during April. Drouth, with high winds in Kansas and Nebraska, and ravages of Hessian fly and chinch bugs, were the damaging causes. Condition May 1: Michigan, 86 per cent; Ohio, 84; Indiana, 82; Illinois, 78; Missouri, 66; Nebraska, 64; Kansas, 65; Oklahoma, 85; Texas, 88; Kentucky, 80; Tennessee, 85. Since May 1, further deterioration is reported. The abandoned area in these states is 3,866,000 acres. Largest losses in Kansas, 2,168,000 acres; Nebraska, 755,000; Missouri, 341,000; Illinois, 184,000 and Indiana, 165,000.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Traders Turn Attention Mainly to Quick Scalping.

Chicago, May 6.—Fear that the government report on acreage next Monday might prove very bullish seemed to increase among wheat traders today. The uncertainty became acute enough to offset materially the effect of rains in the Northwest, West and Southwest. Operations accordingly consisted largely of trade intended to effect a quick scalp. The opening was rather tame and ⅛@⅜c lower to ⅛@½c higher, the latter in May. September started ⅛@¼ to ⅛@⅜c off at $1.02⅛@1.02¾ and rallied to $1.03⅜.

Sellers turned buyers late on millers' reports showing deterioration of winter wheat in eleven states during April and because of further havoc alleged this month. Shorts stampeded upon finding that the market was bare of offerings. September advanced to $1.03 and closed firm at $1.02⅝, a net gain of ¼@⅜c.

On a little concentrated buying corn was relatively firmer than wheat. Selling was scattered. The market opened ⅛c lower to a shade higher. September started at 65⅞@65⅜@⅝c and advanced to 63⅞@64c.

The late strength in wheat caused covering by shorts in corn. The close was firm with September at 63⅞@64c, a gain of ⅛@⅜c.

There was an active market in oats with general commission house buying, while offerings were light. September opened 1c lower at 38⅝@38¾c and rose to 39¼c.

Provisions were down because of considerable selling pressure by scattered longs. The opening was 5 to 10c off. September declined over 12c, while over $22.52½@22.55 for pork, $12.57½ for lard and $12.40 for ribs.

Cotton Market.

New York, May 6.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 1@6 points, generally 4@6 points lower under scattered liquidation due to disappointing cables, uneasiness resulting from the renewed threat of government interference growing out of the action against an alleged bull pool, and a feeling that the illness of King Edward might have an unsettling effect on English trade. Leading bulls gave May and July support at the decline, but there appeared to be little general demand.

Futures closed firm. Closing bids: May, 14.92; June, 14.86; July, 14.76; August, 14.20; September, 13.23; October, 12.72; November, 12.68; December, 12.55; January, 12.62. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 15.25; middling gulf, 15.50. Sales, 10,800 bales.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Break in Prices Caused By King of England's Illness.

Alarm in the London Market Has Depressing Effect Here.

New York, May 6.—The alarm in the London stock market today over the condition of the king of England was reflected in wide declines in the opening prices here. Losses reached as much as a point in practically all of the international issues. Sales of 6,500 shares of United states Steel were made at $1½ and 82⅛, compared with yesterday's closing price of 82⅞; and 4,000 shares of Union Pacific at 180½ and 180, compared with 181⅜ last night. Rock Island lost 1⅜, Reading and Canadian Pacific 1½ and St. Paul 1⅜. Measures of support made themselves felt promptly and caused fractional rallies after the opening.

The rally brought the list close to yesterday's finals, at which the selling was resumed; but the market did not yield materially and rallied again. Missouri Pacific, Pittsburg, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis and Kansas City Southern preferred gained 1.

Buying which checked the break in prices, caused by the king of England's illness, was not pursued. News was awaited to hear the outcome. Selling of coppers caused prices to droop. Amalgamated Copper lost 1⅝ and Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, St. Paul and Reading yielded to the opening prices to a shade below. At noon the tone was steady and dealings very light. Bonds were irregular.

The market closed steady and quiet. The decline carried Northern Pacific, Northwestern, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, American Smelting and Consolidated Gas about 2 below yesterday. A subsequent covering movement by shorts rallied prices a point or more for some of the most active stocks. International Pump rose 2.

New York Money.

New York, May 6.—Close: Prime mercantile paper, 4¾@5½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.83.20@4.84.05 for 60-day bills and at $4.86.30 for demand. Commercial bills, $4.83⅝@4.83¾; bar silver, 53¾c; Mexican dollars, 44c; government bonds steady; railroad bonds irregular. Money on call closed easy at 3½@4 per cent; ruling rate, 3¾ per cent; close, 3½ per cent; offered at 3¾ per cent. Time loans, 60 and 90 days, 4 per cent; six months, 4@4¼ per cent.

PLANS FOR DULUTH'S MAMMOTH NEW STEEL PLANT FILED WITH THE CITY BUILDING INSPECTOR

Are Product of Fully Two Years of Incessant Labor.

Give Some Idea of Immensity of the New Industry.

Call for Forty-Eight Distinct Buildings on New Duluth Site.

The plans for the $10,000,000 steel plant at Spirit Lake were made public for the first time today, when they were filed at the office of Building Inspector S. M. Kielley in the city hall.

The immensity of the institution now under course of construction becomes apparent upon an examination of the big blue print with its network of lines, dots and dimensions, each significant. They are the product of two years of incessant labor, and give the people the first real idea of what the steel plant will be when the vast enterprise which is to make Duluth the "Pittsburg of the West" is finally completed.

The plans call for forty-eight distinct buildings, each of which is definitely located and each of which plays an important part in the finished products which are to be turned out. They include a rail mill, finishing mills, blast furnaces, ore bins, coke ovens, gas producers, a blooming mill, a merchant mill, open hearth furnaces, a forge and plate shop, a splicer bar and tin plate finishing department, a machine shop, an engine house, a hot metal mixer, a concrete plant and numerous other units necessary to the operation of a great steel plant.

The cost of the buildings is not given yet, as no application has been made for permits for them. The plans are only submitted for the inspection and approval of the building inspector, as required by law.

Application was made for permits for three temporary buildings this morning and one permanent structure, the power house. They will be used for the preliminary work which is now under way. The power plant will be permanent and will cost $9,500. It will be located near the shore of Spirit lake.

The temporary buildings are a store house and office to cost $9,000; a concrete mixing plant and gravel screen, to cost $7,500, and a factory to cost $4,500.

RAIN KEEPS THE STRIKERS QUIET

Illinois Miners Are Told By Their Chief to Maintain Order.

Danville, Ill., May 7.—A heavy rain which set in at daybreak tended to curb any turbulence among the Westville miners and the morning was quiet, the only event being the speech of President Walker of the Illinois Federation of Liners to the men.

In this speech the leader counselled peace and patience until the result of the conference between the union officials and operators could become known. The troops remain on guard at No. 2 shaft and there is no indication as to how long they will stay.

DETECTIVE KILLED IN STRIKE RIOT

Two Hundred Shots Are Exchanged in Fight at Steubenville, Ohio.

Steubenville, Ohio, May 7.—A pitched battle at 1 o'clock this morning between fifty men, alleged to be strikers formerly employed at the La Belle Iron works, this city, and two private detectives in the employ of the iron concern, resulted in the death of one of the detectives, John Reardon, of Pittsburg. He was killed by a volley of shots from the revolvers of the alleged strikers and sympathizers.

In the street battle over 200 shots were exchanged. As far as is known none of the strikers were injured. Three boxes which served as breastworks for the two private detectives were literally riddled by bullets.

Today's disorder is reported to have been caused by strike sympathizers who followed and cornered the detectives near the edge of the town.

BANKER ATTACKS EDITOR.

Williston, N. D., Financier Tackles the Wrong Individual.

Williston, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cashier W. S. Davidson of the Citizens National bank of this city made a serious mistake when he attempted to thrash Col. Benjamin G. Whitehead, editor of the Williston State.

The editor had written an article in which reference was made to Davidson's connection some years ago with a bank that failed in Minnesota and the banker endeavored to administer corporal punishment but was unsuccessful. The altercation created a sensation here.

ARMOUR SAFE FROM ARREST

Governor Fort of New Jersey Refuses to Requisition Packer.

Indicted Beef Trust Officials Not to Be Taken East.

Trenton, N. J., May 7.—Governor J. Franklin Fort today refused the request of Prosecutor Garven of Hudson county for a requisition upon the governor of Illinois for the extradition of J. Ogden Armour, a director of the National Packing company, who is under indictment in Hudson county with other officers and directors of packing companies on a charge of conspiracy to unlawfully enhance the cost of meat through the creation of an artificial scarcity of the same.

Governor Fort, in refusing to grant the requisition, gave out a lengthy opinion in which he says that when extradition papers are asked for it is necessary that the person whose extradition was desired be a fugitive from justice and further that it is essential that the accused person was in fact in the state of New Jersey at the time of the commission of the alleged offense.

Was in Hoboken.

The governor says the only evidence before him of the presence in New Jersey of Mr. Armour at or about the time of the commission of the alleged offense was his presence in Hoboken in March, 1908, to take passage from that city to Europe, and again in June, 1909, upon his return from Europe.

The governor goes on to say that the proof before him is barren of any facts warranting an inference that Mr. Armour was in Hoboken for any other

BANK PRESIDENT IS A PERJURER

U. G. Walker Is Found Guilty By Jury at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 7.—U. G. Walker, president of the defunct South Cleveland Banking company, which failed a few months ago for more than $1,000,000, was found guilty in common pleas court today on the charge of perjury growing out of the alleged false statements regarding the bank's financial condition to the state bank examiner.

Indicted Illinois Legislator Admits Perjury in Lorimer Affair.

Two Other Representatives Also Included in the Indictments.

Chicago, May 7.—Democratic Representative Michael Link, indicted on a charge of perjury yesterday in connection with Lorimer bribery charges, confessed to the grand jury today.

This announcement was made in court today by State's Attorney Wayman in requesting that the indictment against Link be quashed.

Three Democratic state representatives were indicted yesterday in connection with charges that $1,000 each was paid for votes to secure the election of William Lorimer, and that a "jackpot," consisting of the profits of odd jobs of legislation was "split up"

HOAL IS SENT TO PRISON FOR LIFE

Boy Murderer Is Convicted and Sentenced for Killing Cashier.

Corydon, Ind., May 7.—Thomas Jefferson Hoal, the Louisville boy bandit, was found guilty of murder here today and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Hoal, who is 17 years old, last November made a daring, single-handed attack on the Merchants National bank bank of New Albany, Ind. He compelled a negro chauffeur to drive him to the bank at noon through the crowded streets of Louisville and New Albany. In the bank he became excited, shot and killed Cashier J. H. Fawcett, wounded President J. K. Woodward and also the negro chauffeur.

Without securing any money, he dashed from the bank and attempted to cross the Ohio river to Louisville in a skiff, being captured in midstream by the police. His remarkable nerve greatly helped the police in saving him from threatened lynching.

Mental defectiveness was his defense.

GEORGE V IS PROCLAIMED THE KING OF ENGLAND AS SUCCESSOR TO EDWARD VII

THE DEAD KING AND HIS SUCCESSORS

GEORGE V, The New King. EDWARD VII, Born 1841, Died 1910. EDWARD ALBERT, Oldest Son of the New King.

Formal Ceremony in London Follows Death of Victoria's Son.

New "Defender of the Faith and Emperor of India" Begins Reign.

Many Messages of Condolence Sent to Dowager Queen Alexandra.

London, May 7.—King George, the fifth of that name to rule England, today ascended the throne as the successor to his father, King Edward VII. The ascension was formally proclaimed this afternoon, though under the English law the prince of Wales became ruler in fact immediately upon the death of his father.

In the course of succession the new king's oldest son, Edward Albert, now becomes the heir apparent to the throne. The new crown prince is 16 years old.

The proclamation of King George V was approved by the privy council at 4 o'clock.

The council met in the throne room at St. Jaines' palace under the presidency of the Earl of Crewe, who officiated in the absence of Viscount Wolverhampton, the lord president of the council. The new monarch was given the title of King George V.

The king, who had driven over from Marlborough house, waited in a room adjoining the council chamber during the lengthy formalities leading up to the actual proclamation.

With today's ceremony and in his forty-fifth year, the second son born to King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra becomes the "ruler of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions be-

SENDS MESSAGE TO THE NEW KING

President Taft Expresses Good Wishes for Prosperous Reign.

Washington, May 7.—President Taft has sent the following message to George V, the new king of Great Britain:

"The White House, May 7, 1910—His Majesty, King George V, London: In renewing to your majesty the condolences of the American government and people upon the death of his late majesty, I convey to you the heartiest good wishes for the prosperity of your reign. WILLIAM H. TAFT."

The secretary of state has sent the following message:

"The Rt. Hon. Sir Edward Gray, Bart.—Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, London: I offer to your excellency the expression of my personal sympathy and sorrow in the great loss which has been sustained by the government of Great Britain in the death of his majesty, King Edward.

"P. C. KNOX."

TOKIO JOINS IN MOURNING

England's Ally Shows Sorrow at Death of King Edward.

Public Functions Are Suspended and Newspapers Print Eulogies.

Tokio, May 7.—Japan, as Great Britain's ally, has received the news of King Edward's death with profound sorrow. The ball of Prince Asaka, planned for this evening, has been postponed and all public functions have been suspended. It is confidently believed that the demise of the British monarch will not affect the alliance of the two countries.

The press is unanimous in its expressions of grief and in declaring that the death of King Edward is a severe loss not only to Great Britain, but to the cause of peace and humanity throughout the world. Tomorrow's papers will be black-bordered and will devote columns to eulogizing King Edward and his success in advancing the cause of international peace.

"Personification of Peace."

The Kokumin, generally used as a government organ, designates the late king as the personification of peace.

The Asashi is at a loss to know how the world will recover that of which it has been deprived by Edward's death.

The Hochi, in a special edition containing a column printed in English, expressed the hope that the spirit of peace encouraged by the late monarch may long remain the guide for international policies.

The Jiji calls Edward the great benefactor of peace and humanity, and other papers make similar comments.

It is stated that the emperor and empress are deeply grieved.

DR. HYDE TO BE WITNESS

Will Take Stand in His Own Defense in Murder Trial.

Presentation of Evidence May Be Finished Before Monday.

Kansas City, Mo., May 7.—Dr. B. C. Hyde, accused of murdering Col. Thomas H. Swope, may take the witness stand in his own defense late this afternoon. His testimony will be followed by that of his wife, who occupies the trying position of defending her husband on the charge of murdering her own father. Her adherence to belief in Dr. Hyde's innocence has estranged her from all the other members of her family.

Attorney Frank P. Walsh of the defense today announced the Hydes would be his last witnesses, and by adjournment time tonight it is believed the defense will have completed its presentation of direct testimony.

"I expect to rest my side of the case this evening," said Attorney Walsh today. "If I should not be able to do that, I certainly shall have finished by Monday noon."

The opening of court was delayed several hours this morning by the taking of a deposition in the case from Mrs. John M. Cleary. She is ill and unable to attend the trial.

HYDE CASE DELAYS TRIAL IN NEW YORK.

New York, May 7.—Dr. Edward E. Smith, the toxicologist, was unable to reach here from Kansas City, where he is a witness in the Swope poisoning case, and the trial of Maurice M. Lustig, a former private detective charged with wife poisoning, was adjourned today until next week. Dr. Smith is to be the principal witness for the prosecution in the Lustig case.

GRIEF FELT IN FRANCE

Press Regards Death of King Edward as Blow to Peace Cause.

Feeling of Anxiety Is Apparent as to European Affairs.

Paris, May 7.—Nowhere in Europe has the passing of King Edward created deeper emotion than in France, where he was gratefully acknowledged as the principal artisan in the present diplomatic combinations for the preservation of the peace of Europe.

Premier Briand and others of the cabinet personally called upon British Ambassador Bertie early today to express their condolences, and as soon as Foreign Minister Pichon, who is absent from the city, reaches Paris, an extraordinary mission will be appointed to attend the funeral. Former President Loubet, whose exchange of visits with King Edward in 1903 resulted in the Anglo-French entente, probably will head the mission.

Loss to The World.

Most of the French papers appear with black borders today, and their editorials sound a common note of grief, which may be summed up in the words of the Matin, which says:

"England has lost a great king, the world a great figure and France a great friend."

The diplomatic consequences of a change of rulers are not dwelt upon prominently, but there is no doubt that there is a popular feeling of anxiety. While the present basis of peace is regarded as solid, it is realized that Edward's personal influence so powerfully exercised in all the recent crisis in the cause of peace will hardly be transmitted to his successor, and the disappearance of the monarch is likely, therefore, to singularly modify the position of Great Britain on the European chessboard.

ITALIAN DEPUTIES ADJOURN FOR KING

Pope Sends Message of Condolence on Hearing of Edward's Death.

Rome, May 7.—The morning papers spread the news of King Edward's death, causing a deep impression throughout the kingdom. The pope has telegraphed his condolences, as have the premier and the foreign minister.

The chamber of deputies adjourned today as a sign of mourning for King Edward. Before adjourning tributes were paid to the late monarch by Premier Tuzzatti, Foreign Minister San Giuliano and the president of the chamber.

LATE KING IN CHARACTERISTIC POSE

KING EDWARD VII OF ENGLAND.
(From a Recent Photograph.)
Born 1841. Acceded 1901. Died 1910.

When Edward VII breathed his last there came to a close the life of a unique personality. He was loved almost universally, first of all as a man whose natural attributes made him near to the hearts of his subjects, and next as a monarch, whose ability to fulfill the role which he was called to assume was demonstrated conspicuously.

"Edward VII, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas, king, defender of the faith, emperor of India," was his title.

Subject to fierce criticism in his youth because of his manner of life, he lived down a rather unenviable reputation through long years of more careful conduct, and succeeded in winning the confidence of all the people as almost no other sovereign of Great Britain, except his mother, Queen Victoria, had done.

Idol of the People.

As a statesman, he was active and successful, particularly in the field of foreign affairs. The fact that he was the idol of the people made him a useful instrument of the ministry, and enabled him at the same time to wield more influence than had been conceded to the throne in the past. He was an able diplomat, and in all the more important questions of foreign policy which came up during his short reign, he made himself felt.

In domestic politics he was less active, but he succeeded in strengthening the position of the monarchy with the masses, effectually killing whatever anti-royalist sentiment, existed at the time of his accession. His influence with his ministers in an advisory capacity was much more pronounced than was that of Queen Victoria, although his attitude on the political questions of the day was not defined.

Edward VII assumed the throne on the death of Queen Victoria on Jan. 22, 1901, so that he was king less than ten years.

Was a Sportsman.

It was as a sportsman that the British people loved most to think of him. He was an enthusiastic patron of horse racing and was fond of yacht racing, cricket, athletics and shooting. His love of cards was almost a passion in his earlier days, and his gambling for high stakes got him in trouble several times. When, in 1909, his horse Minoru won the Derby at Epsom, there was a scene of enthusiasm at the track which was unparalleled. Twice before he became king he won the derby, with Persimmon in 1896 and with Diamond Jubilee in 1900.

In personal appearance the king was the typical Englishman. He was rather below the average stature, of strong and heavy build. His ruddy face betokened good health and good spirits up to a short time ago. He wore his gray beard trimmed to a sharp point. His thin circle of gray hair diminished until he was quite bald. Even in his latter days he continued to be one of the best dressed men in Europe, and was regarded as a model for quiet refinement of dress and bearing.

Revived Mediaeval Pomp.

At the state functions in which he participated, King Edward revived all the pomp and ceremony of mediaeval days. He drove to Westminster on the opening of parliament in one of the sumptuous royal coaches, attended by heralds, equerries and outriders, and a vast retinue, forming a pageant of royal splendor. On these occasions, the king wore the full robes of majesty.

Tactfulness, which he possessed to a marked degree, was a conspicuous characteristic of the late king, although he was frank, loyal and warmhearted always. Those who associated with him have said that he was emphatically the "good fellow," simple and courteous, but a stickler for the deference which his rank demanded.

He was born at Buckingham palace on Nov. 9, 1841, the son of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. Educated by private tutors on a plan outlined by his father, he later studied at Edinburgh, Oxford and Cambidge. A long period of travel followed, during which he went over Europe an the East. In 1860 he made a triumphant tour through the United States and Canada.

Married in 1863.

The prince was married on March 10, 1863, to Princess Alexandra, oldest daughter of the Danish prince, who became some months later King Christian IX. Six children were born, two of whom, the Duke of Clarence and Prince Alexander, died. The surviving children are George, Frederick, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall and York, who now becomes king; Princess Louise, who was married to the Duke of Fife; Princess Victoria-Alexandra and Princess Maud-Charlotte, who was married to Prince Karl of Denmark, now King Haakon VII of Norway. The king was of the house of Hanover, which dates from the accession to the throne of King George I, in 1714.

Three before ascending the throne Edward's life was despaired of. In 1871 he was so seriously ill with typhoid fever that for weeks his death was expected. In 1896 he fell on the stairs during a visit to Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild at Waddesdon manor and fractured a knee cap. Complications ensued and for a time his condition was dangerous.

Acceded During Boer War.

His coronation, originally set for June 26, 1902, and postponed until Aug. 9 on account of illness, was a pageant of almost unparalleled splendor and the occasion of a celebration throughout the world. His short reign was a peaceful one, after the conclusion of the Boer war, which was in progress when he became king.

Several times the king's life has been in danger from anarchists or cranks. On April 4, 1900, when as a prince he was in Brussels, Jean Sipido, a boy of 15 years, fired at him as he was seated in a railway coach. The shot did no harm. The boy was held to be mentally irresponsible.

A plot to assassinate him and King Carlos of Portugal while he was in Lisbon in 1903 was discovered and frustrated.

The king was always a great traveler and was nearly as well known on the boulevards of Paris and in the casinos of Biarritz and Hamburg as he was along Piccadilly. He always exhibited a marked preference for the society of Americans.

GEORGE V PROCLAIMED THE KING OF ENGLAND

yond the seas, king, defender of the faith and emperor of India."

King Edward VII of England breathed his last at 11:45 last night after an illness so brief that his death came with startling suddenness to the English nation. His oldest son, George Frederick, the Prince of Wales, now is king in fact and his succession with the title of George V will be proclaimed today.

King Edward returned from the continent ten days ago in apparently excellent health. He took up his state affairs as usual, and was deeply interested in the preparations being made for the entertainment in London of Ex-President Roosevelt, who is soon to be a visitor in England.

The first intimation that the public had that their ruler was not continuing in good health came day before yesterday, when the king failed to go to the station to meet Queen Alexandra, who was returning from the continent. Inquiry developed the fact that his majesty had not left his room for two days and following this developments for the worse came rapidly. A night of sleep brought no improvement in the monarch's condition and yesterday, though oxygen was administered, it failed to bring back strength to the failing king.

Retained His Consciousness.

According to unofficial reports, which cannot be confirmed, the king remained sitting in a chair throughout the day. He suffered from frequent and violent attacks of coughing. During his quiet intervals, however, he was fully conscious and made inquiries about state engagements and even asked about the success of his horse at the Kempton races.

As the evening advanced he experienced difficulty in breathing, which greatly affected the heart, the left ventricle failing to act, while the oxygen no longer afforded the relief it had previously given. His majesty soon sank into a comatose condition, from which practically he never rallied.

Death was due to pneumonia, followed by bronchitis.

The official bulletin announcing the king's death read as follows:

"May 6, 11:50 p. m. His majesty, the king breathed his last at 11:45 tonight, in the presence of her majesty, Queen Alexandra, the prince and princess of Wales, the princess royal, the duchess of Fife, Princess Victoria and Princess Louise, the duchess of Argyll.

"LAKING,
"REID,
"POWELL,
"DAWSON."

Tolling Bell Told News.

The tolling of the great bell in St. Paul's cathedral at minute intervals between 5 and 6 o'clock this morning, an office performed only for the sovereign and the archbishops of Canterbury and York, conveyed to countless thousands of Londoners and suburbanites the first intimation of the death of King Edward VII.

Great crowds coming into the city on early trains proceeded toward Buckingham palace, and by 9 o'clock an immense stream of people was slowly filing past the front of the building with its drawn blinds, around to the west end of the palace to gaze upon the windows of the chamber where the body of the dead king was lying.

Stop to Read Bulletin.

On the bulletin board was still pinned the sheet of foolscap with its tidings of the momentous event scrawled hurriedly in a dozen words, and this was another center of interest for the throng, most of whom seemed determined to read with their own eyes the official announcement.

Over the palace the Royal standard was half-masted, but except for this and the frequent coming and going of officials and attendants at the palace there was little outward evidence of the passing of the great king.

Queen Alexandra is bearing up bravely. She ate breakfast as usual in her own apartments today.

Members of the royal household attended a special service in the private chapel of the palace at an early hour.

Business Is Suspended.

The death of his majesty has caused a general suspension of business and the abandonment of all race meetings and other sports, public galties and private entertainments. The theaters have been closed. The stock exchange and other markets were closed today and the law courts took a recess as a token of respect. Everywhere throughout the country flags were placed half-mast upon public buildings, warships and other shipping, while church bells sounded the doleful news.

Early today it was announced that George V would be proclaimed king from the steps of the royal exchange at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Subsequently it was found impossible to get the privy councillors together so early and so the meeting with the new king in the throne room of St. James' Palace was postponed until 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Summonses have been sent to all the councillors, but it is probable that only a small proportion of them are near enough to the city to attend the ceremony of hearing the king's oath and declaring their allegiance to the new monarch.

Will Proclaim New King.

Following the meeting of the privy councillors with the king, the proclamation of the accession of King George V will be publicly made by heralds and their pursuivants to the accompaniment of a fanfare of trumpets in the quadrangle of the palace, and repeated in Charing Cross, the Royal Echange, Temple Bar and Cheapside.

The American feeling regarding the death of King Edward was, in accordance with cabled instructions from Secretary Knox, expressed this morning to Sir Edward Grey, secretary of state for foreign affairs, by American Ambassador Reid, in the following letter:

"Sir: My government instructs me to express to you and through you to the British government and people, the sincere and profound sympathy of the president, the government and the people of the United States in the loss by their British kinsmen of a ruler so beloved and so justly distinguished among all the nations of the earth for his wisdom and kindliness and for the influence of those high qualities in behalf of all that is best.

"I have the honor to be, with high consideration, sir, your most obedient and humble servant.

"WHITELAW REID."

The morning services at the churches were more largely attended than usual today. All of the congregations were in deep mourning. A notable change in the service was the substitution of the words "the queen the queen dowager and all the royal family" for the familiar phrase "the queen, the prince and princess of Wales and all the royal family."

Country in Mourning.

The bulk of the population of the country have donned mourning garb in some form. Men who are not wholly clothed in black are wearing black neck scarfs or black bands about their coat sleeves. The women seen are almost without exception dressed in black. Streamers of crepe hang from the whips in the hands of the cabmen. The shop fronts bear mourning shutters.

Since earliest morning a flood of messages has been pouring into the palace from the chiefs of foreign lands. One of the first received by the queen dowager was a sympathetic telegram from Emperor William. Ambassador Reid and Secretary Philipps of the American legation were early callers at Buckingham palace and Marlborough house, where, in the visitors' book, they inscribed their names and those of their wives. Later members of the diplomatic corps called. Mr. Reid also left cards for Sir Edward Grey, while attaches of the embassy paid a similar duty at the war office and at the admiralty. The flags at Dorchester house and the American embassy are at half mast.

Rush of Work for King.

King George V found himself so occupied with a rush of state affairs requiring immediate attention in consequence of the new accession that he was unable to leave Marlborough house this forenoon even to go to see his mother and sister. The officials responsible for the state functions marking the accession of the new king and the funeral arrangements for the dead monarch came and went from Marlborough house at brief intervals throughout the morning.

GEORGE FREDERICK, NEW BRITISH RULER

George, Prince of Wales, and successor to the late king, is the second son of King Edward VII. He succeeded to the title of Duke of York upon the death of his elder brother, Albert Victor, an event which, in 1892, plunged England into profound grief. Prince Albert Victor was on the eve of his wedding to Victoria Mary, daughter of the Duke of Teck, when he was stricken with a fatal malady. The younger brother married his fiancee after a suitable period had elapsed. The Princess of Wales is a great favorite in England, partly on her own account and partly on account of her mother, the broad-spirited and noble Duchess of Teck.

The Prince of Wales is 45 years old. His training has been altogether naval. In 1883 he became a midshipman on board the Canada, with the North American squadron. In 1885, after passing the examinations with great credit he was promoted to the lieutenancy. His first command was that of the gunboat Thrush on the West Indian station, and while occupying that position he opened the Jamaica industrial exposition in 1890. A year later he was raised to the rank of commander, but the death of his elder brother brought to an end his services on the sea.

Made Trip Around the World.

When King Edward ascended the throne the young prince succeeded his majesty in the title of Duke of Cornwall, and he was created Prince of Wales by his father. Soon thereafter he made his memorable trip to Australia in company with Princess of Wales and on the return passed through Canada, completing a trip around the world.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have six children. The eldest prince, heir to the throne of England, was born June 23, 1894.

The Prince and Princess of Wales are said to be the most democratic of all the members of the royal house of England and accordingly are great favorites with the English people. The prince's wedding to Princess May of Teck was at the command of his grandmother, Queen Victoria, and it took place only after a vigorous protest on the part of the young prince. There was good reason for this protest, for the prince already was married.

Was Secretly Married.

In 1891 he secretly married the niece of Vice Admiral Tyron of the British navy. The wedding took place in the English church at Malta. The couple lived together openly at Malta and they had two children. This marriage, of course, was contrary to all customs, for there is a law forbidding the marriage of members of royal family with commoners. It is said that when Admiral Tryon discovered the shame that had attached to his name following this marriage, he went half mad. He lost his life in the Victoria-Camperdown collision in the Mediterranean in 1893.

Before he wedded the Princess of Teck the prince was officially divorced from the commoner by the archbishop of Canterbury and Lord Coleridge, the chief justice. The young woman was provided with an ample fortune. It is said she has since married an officer of the British army on the retired list and that she is now living with him in Canada.

WHERE EDWARD VII WAS BORN AND DIED

BUCKINGHAM PALACE—LONDON.

BECOMES DOWAGER QUEEN OF ENGLAND

ALEXANDRA OF ENGLAND AND HER GRANDSON, PRINCE OLAV OF NORWAY.

With the accession to the British throne of prince and princess of Wales, Queen Alexandra becomes the dowager queen, the first the empire has had since the death, in 1837, of William IV, who was survived by Queen Adelaide, a princess of Saxe-Coburg-Meiningen.

Alexandra is a princess of Denmark—the eldest daughter of the late King Christian IX. She was born Dec. 1, 1844. As dowager queen, she will receive an annuity of $350,000 for her maintenance.

The new queen is Victoria, only daughter of the late Francis, duke of Teck. She was born May 26, 1867, and married Prince George, duke of York, July 6, 1893.

GOES TO WASHINGTON TO GIVE TESTIMONY.

Fargo, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The federal probers into the cost of high living have sent for Dean J. H. Shepperd of the North Dakota Agricultural college. The chief information they seek is some figures on whether farming methods in North Dakota and the Northwest generally have improved any in the last ten or fifteen years. Mr. Shepperd left for Washington to submit the facts he had.

The United States senate committee that is investigating the high cost of living has summoned Col. J. B. Power of the Ellendale stock farm to Washington to testify.

The colonel is an authority on live-stock matters, especially with reference to beef cattle. His figures show there are in the United States today 187 pounds per capita.

The consumption is 182½ pounds and export, 12½ pounds per capital, making the demand 7½ pounds over the supply that must be drawn from cold storage or from some other country unless exports are stopped.

Grafton Man Acting Queerly.

Grafton, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The officials of this city are watching the case of Moses Kraley, a resident of the western part of this county, where his mother owns a farm. He was taken into custody in Grand Forks where he had been acting in a peculiar manner. It is supposed that it will be necessary to send him to the state hospital for treatment.

CHILDREN OF NEW KING AND QUEEN

NEW HEIR TO ENGLAND'S THRONE AND HIS BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

Six children—five sons and one daughter—bless the household of the new monarchs.

The oldest, Prince Edward Albert, now the heir apparent to the throne, is a manly lad, who will be 16 years old the coming June. At present he is serving as a naval cadet.

Prince Albert Frederick, the second son and heir presumptive, also is a naval cadet. He is 15 years old. The other boys are: Prince Henry William, Prince George Edward and Prince John Charles. The daughter is Princess Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary. She was born in 1897.

ROOSEVELT IS GRIEVED

Ex-President Gives Out Statement Regarding Death of King.

Sends Message of Sympathy to Dowager Queen From Stockholm.

Stockholm, May 7.—Former President Roosevelt gave out the following today:

"I am deeply grieved and know that all Americans will be deeply grieved at the death of his majesty, King Edward VII.

"We feel most profound sympathy for the British people in their loss. We in America keenly appreciated King Edward's personal good will toward us, which he so frequently and so markedly showed, and we are well aware of the devotion felt for him by his subjects throughout the British empire, while foreign nations have learned to see in the king a ruler whose great abilities, and especially his tact, his judgment and his unfailing kindliness of nature, rendered him peculiarly fit to work for the international peace and justice.

"Let me repeat that I am sure all American people feel at this time the deepest and most sincere sympathy for his family and his nation."

Sent Telegram to Dowager.

Mr. Roosevelt also sent a personal telegram to the dowager queen.

The Roosevelts arrived here today and were received at the railway station by Prince Wilhelm, who drove with them to the palace, where they became the guests of the prince and princess in the absence of King Gustave V, who is in the South of France. United States Minister Graves, the staff of the American legation, the premier and other members of the Swedish cabinet were also at the station to receive the American guests. An immense crowd surrounded the receiving party and cheered as the train drew in. A choir stationed on the platform sang "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and the Swedish national anthem.

Commander Julius A. Pratt Post No. 143 Dept. Ill., G. A. R.

Mr. Isaac Cook, Commander of above Post, Kewanee, Ill., writes: "For a long time I was bothered with backache and pains acress my kidneys. About two months ago I started taking Foley Kidney Pills and soon saw they were doing just as claimed. I kept on taking them and now I am free from backache and the painful bladder misery is all gone. I like Foley Kidney Pills so well that I have told many of my friends and comrades about them and shall recommend them at every opportunity." Sold by all druggists.

TAFT CABLES CONDOLENCES

Secretary of State Knox Also Sends Message to the Queen.

Washington, May 7.—President Taft, upon learning of the death of King Edward, wrote the following message of condolence to Her Majesty, Queen Alexandria, which was cabled to Buckingham palace last night:

"On the sad occasion of the death of King Edward, I offer to your majesty and to your son, his illustrious successor, the most profound sympathy of the people and of the government of the United States, whose hearts go out to their British kinsmen in this, their national bereavement. To this, I add the expression to your majesty and to the new king of my own personal sympathy and of my appreciation of those high qualities which made the life of the late king so potent an influence for peace and justice among nations."

The president also sent his military aide, Capt. Archibald Butt, to the British embassy to express his condolences on the death of the king to Ambassador Bryce.

Official Notice Received.

Ambassador Bryce received an official announcement of the death of the king from the foreign office, the cable following a series of messages during the day advising him of his majesty's grave condition. The ambassador appeared deeply affected. Messages were received at the embassy from members of the cabinet and diplomatic corps.

Secretary of State Knox addressed the following cablegram to the American embassy in London:

"Apart from the message which the president has sent to Queen Alexandria, you will make to the British government appropriate expression of the sympathy of the president, government and people of the United States on the loss of their British kinsmen of a ruler so beloved and distinguished among the nations for the influence of his kindliness and wisdom toward all that is best."

Members of the cabinet called at the embassy and left cards.

Chicago Stock Exchange Closed.

Chicago, May 7.—The Chicago stock exchange was in session today just long enough to vote an adjournment out of respect to the late king of England. The board of trade was in session, but will close at noon on the day of the funeral.

Wiring in the Central High School Reported as Defective.

WHAT THE SCHOOL BOARD DID.

Received communication from City Electrician F. E. Hough pointing out defects in the wiring of the Central high school and recommending a rewiring of the building.

Concurred in recommendation of the committee on maintenance of buildings and grounds that no addition be built to the Oneota school.

Referred petition asking that dancing be abolished in the public schools to special committee.

Received draft of proposed new course of study for Central high school.

Held up recommendation of committee on schools and teachers that assistant superintendent be engaged.

Elected janitors and engineers for coming year and increased salaries.

Received report of medical inspector.

Authorized issuing of diplomas to 684 eighth and ninth grade graduates, 135 Central high school graduates and fourteen Industrial high school graduates, or such number as should be certified by the principals as entitled to receive diplomas.

Fixed minimum salary of principals of grade schools at $800 and maximum at $1,500 a year.

Decided to abandon Colbyville and Rndisson schools and provide transportation for the children to other schools, if arrangements can be made.

Authorized committee on schools and teachers to make expenditures for vacation schools up to $300.

If the board of education is to retain the insurance on the Central high school and to remedy an ever-menacing condition of affairs, the building must be entirely rewired, according to a communication received by the board at its meeting last evening from City Electrician F. E. Hough and statements made to the board by Chairman W. E. Magner.

An examination of the school was made a few days ago by the city electrician, Mr. Magner, Chief Engineer Larsen and J. B. McLaren, the insurance inspector, and Mr. Magner told the board he was genuinely alarmed by the conditions they found. Mr. Hough's report confirmed Mr. Magner's statement. He itemized the defects found and the list caused Director Brewer to ask, "was anything right?"

No action was taken last night, but the board decided to discuss the matter informally and the building will undoubtedly be rewired. The rewiring of the building, the removal of the chemical laboratory to a room over the boiler room and the removal of the manual training department to the new manual training school, will result in a reduction of the insurance rates on the Central high school to less than half of the present rate, whereas if the building is not rewired, all insurance may be withdrawn.

"A school is just as good as its teachers," said Supt. R. E. Denfeld in explaining the request of the committee on schools and teachers that C. A. Young of Wells, Minn., be engaged as assistant superintendent of the Duluth schools "Teachers ought to be assisted and supervised," he continued. "It is a physical impossibility for one man to travel from Fond du Lac to Lester Park, visit every school once a month and spend five minutes with each teacher, besides attending to the clerical work of the office and the general supervision. It is merely a question of how much supervision you want."

The election of teachers was discussed at some length, the members of the committee on schools and teachers urging the advisability of engaging teachers by personal observation. The members of the committee said that much better results could be obtained by having some man with good judgment visit the different Normal schools in the vicinity often during the year and choose young teachers for the Duluth schools. Some of the members of the board were not ready to vote on the question and it was laid over until later.

Mr. Young was formerly superintendent of schools at Hibbing and is highly recommended to the board for the position of assistant superintendent.

Dr. C. H. Schroeder, medical inspector, reported last night, the principal matter to report being the smallpox scare in the Franklin school, where a teacher and eight pupils had the disease. Dr. Schroeder reported that 550 children were vaccinated. Some were kept home by their parents to avoid vaccination.

Of 568 children in other schols, only eighty-five had ever been vaccinated, Dr. Schroeder reported. He recommended that the vaccination requirement be more rigidly enforced.

Of 688 children examined, Dr. Schroeder reported that 421 had defective teeth, eighty-eight defective vision and eight defective hearing. Other minor defects were discovered in some of the children and were reported to the parents. Miss Theresa Beattie, the visiting nurse, made 176 visits during the time for which the report was submitted.

The committee on schools and teachers reported that, although maximum and mimimum salaries had been fixed for grade teachers, no such action had been taken in the case of principals. The committee recommended that the minimum salary for principals be fixed at $800, and the maximum at $1,500, and the board concurred in the recommendation.

A request of A. H. Brocklehurst for a lease on the Washington school for use as a business college and private school was turned down. Members of the board expressed the opinion that the building should be sold or used by the board as a night school.

CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

I. Freimuth's Big Department Store Passes 27th Birthday.

American flags, hundreds of them, gaily floating from the windows of I. Freimuth's store today, marked the twenty-seventh anniversary of the big Daylight Stores at the corner of Lake avenue and Superior street. The event was celebrated most appropriately by Mr. Freimuth in an anniversary sale and all day the big department store was thronged with people eager to take advantage of splendid buying opportunities offered in every department of the establishment.

The big sale will be continued all next week and the enthusiasm that attended the opening day bids fair to make it a memorable event to the people of Duluth and vicinity. Twenty-seven years ago this month I. Freimuth began business in a small unpretentious storeroom 50 by 80 feet. Succeeding years, witnessed a steady and substantial growth of business, based on careful merchandising and fair dealing methods that attracted and held the confidence of the people. Today a splendid retail establishment faces Superior street with its boundaries touching Lake avenue and Michigan street, an institution that is still growing.

STOOD IN WATER TO NECKS WHILE FIRE SWEPT BY

Two Duluthians Have Narrow Escape on the Cloquet River.

Surrounded By Forest Fire While Examining Land Near Burnett.

JOHN G. ROSS.

THOMAS F. McGILVRAY.

City Engineer Thomas F. McGilvray and John G. Ross, clerk of the municipal court, had to race for their lives when caught in a forest fire near Burnett, Thursday.

Only the proximity of the Cloquet river saved them. They waded into it up to their necks and submerged except their noses, they waited until the flames had swept by. They reached the city yesterday, none the worse for their hazardous experience and were back at work in the afternoon.

Mr. McGilvray and Mr. Ross had gone about a mile and a half out of Burnett to look over some land, which they had purchased in the vicinity. They spent the night in a tent, not knowing of the fire which was gradually surrounding them. Part of the morning they fished as they examined their purchase. Towards noon they became aware of the fire, but thought little of it.

As they were eating their lunch the breeze blew ashes and cinders into their camp. They began to take notice. Glancing about them they saw fire on all sides, shooting skywards. The woods were dry as tinder, furnishing excellent fuel for the fire demon. Hastily packing their belongings they made haste to get out. Knowing the location of the river, some distance away, they headed for it at top speed. The trail was fairly wide, but several times they were cut off by the fire, which had leaped across their path. They soaked their mackinaws in the little stream which fed into the river and putting them over their heads plunged through the flames.

Fortunately the roadway was open to them most of the way. The places where the fire had crossed the road proved to be comparatively short and they suffered nothing worse than badly scorched clothing. But when they got to the river the fire was almost at their heels. They had made their escape in the nick of time. Had they waited many minutes longer their avenue of refuge to the river would have been cut off. They stood in the river several hours. When the worst of the fire was over they made their way to Burnett, where they got dry clothing and laid over for the morning train back to the city.

They didn't dare to leave the river, however. They either kept close to the shore or waded in the water the remainder of the distnce. They suffered considerably from the smoke, and said that the heat was the worst they ever experienced. They told several friends of their hazardous trip, but when asked to tell their stories for publication they refused to loosen up. They didn't deny that they had had a close shave. Mr. McGilvray told of one small incident. He said that he had some butter in a pail, which he carried in his pack sack, and that when he unpacked it he found that it had melted and run over the contents of the sack.

CHANGES IN HIGH SCHOOL COURSE ARE OUTLINED

Provide More Elective Subjects and Two-Year Commercial Course.

An increase in the number of elective subjects, a commercial course that may be substantially completed in two years, and that does not require the study of algebra, and changes in the requirements for the study of scientific subjects in the different courses are the most radical departures included in the proposed new course of study for the Central high school, which was presented to the members of the school board last night by Supt. Denfeld.

The members of the board received copies of the proposed new course of study, and they will study over it for some time. At the end of about two weeks a special meeting of the board will be held at which views will be presented, both by members of the board and others interested.

The draft of the revised course of study was prepared by Supt. Denfeld and Principal Buck of the high school and contains some radical changes from the present course of study, especially in the English, manual training and commercial courses. The new course provides for more elective, although retaining as requirements those subjects, which in the opinion of Supt. Denfeld and Mr. Buck should be studied by every student.

The most notable provision is the rearrangement of the commercial course so that any student after completing two years may be certified as having completed the regular commercial course and in the remaining two years advanced commercial study and general subjects are provided. There is no requirement of algebra in the commercial course, which is another notable departure.

The Question of History.

The question of the system to be followed in teaching history will probably be a vexatious one, as it has caused considerable discussion all over the country, and there are widely divergent opinions held on the subject by eminent educators.

"It would look as though teaching history in chronological order would seem like the logical order, but there are other considerations," said W. G. Crosby last night. "The pupil who has dragged through ancient history in the first year, mediaeval and modern history in the second year, and English history in the third year is tired of history and will not study the history of the United States and of more recent events with such vim as he would in the beginning. Certainly, English history should be connected with the study of English. There is no question but that children leaving the high school after the second year should have some knowledge of English history. English history is so connected with our laws, customs and practices of the present day that everybody should have some knowledge of it."

The board did not go into the question last night, but will leave it for a later discussion.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

At a meeting last evening of all the committees having in charge the arrangements for the banquet to be given in the St. Louis hotel next Friday evening by the Svea Republican club, it was found that practically all of the 300 tickets had been disposed of by the club members. There will be a meeting of the club Tuesday evening, when the finishing touches will be given the program.

Orators to Be Given a Good Time

Charles E. Elmquist has been added to the list of speakers previously announced. The invitation intended for the railroad and warehouse commissioner had gone astray, and he was without notice that his presence was desired by the club. When he was in the city several days ago, committee members spent the day trying to locate him, but he was busily engaged in department business and didn't stay in one place long enough for the invitation to reach him. The long-distance telephone caught him today at Lindstrom, and he readily agreed to come and speak.

Dr. J. J. Eklund, who will be toastmaster and chairman of the entertainment committee, has planned to give the out-of-town speakers an enjoyable time while they are in the city. One feature of this part of the program will be a sightseeing trip about town in autos.

The West Duluth Republican club will meet this evening to make a slate of delegates to the county convention at Hibbing June 17. The Hibbing convention will select forty-eight delegates to represent St. Louis county in the Republican state convention at St. Paul.

About the G. O. P. Convention.

The Republican press of the state is discussing the approaching Republican state convention from many and varied points of view, and an undertone of pessimism is detected in many of the comments on men and measures. So far as the head of the ticket is concerned, it seems to be agreed by every one but Bob Dunn and Alvah Eastman that Governor Eberhart will be nominated. These two editors cling tenaciously to the hope that something may turn up to put the Mankato man out of the running.

Dunn's Princeton Union has this to say about the convention:

"Time was when the delegates to a Republican state convention had a voice in selecting the man who should preside over their deliberations. Under the new dispensation the 'bosses' will save the delegates the trouble of choosing a presiding officer at the June love feast. The platform will be carefully prepared in advance, and, of course, it is necessary to have a chairman who will appoint the right kind of a committee on resolutions. The candidates for office have all been agreed upon months ago. The delegates will be graciously permitted to listen to one of Frank Stacy's speeches, delivered by proxy, and will be expected to vigorously applaud at proper intervals—the claquers can be depended upon to start the applause. But 'tis the unexpected that happens, and after all there may 'be something doing' in the ratification meeting billed at the St. Paul Auditorium on June 21."

Bob Dunn says it is to be regretted that the newspapers, in devoting valuable space to the doings of Jeffries and Johnson, are forced occasionally to omit "news of greater importance to the general public—the daily movements of that distinguished personage, Governor Eberhart."

• • •

Republican Party Is Located.

The Royalton Banner has discovered the Republican party of Minnesota, and "it" is decidedly insurgent. "The Journal Press of St. Cloud would like to see Frank B. Kellogg named as the Republican nominee for governor," says the Banner, adding: "It is hardly probable that he will recognize the call from the Minnesota G. O. P." Haven't noticed any seconds to Editor Eastman's "call," so he must be the "G. O. P."

The Banner refuses to pay attention exclusively to the selection of a man to head the ticket; indeed, it intimates that it doesn't make a great deal of difference who may be chosen for the place, asking: "Why is it that so many good party men split on the candidate for governor, and go to sleep at the switch when the real offices that dominate our law-making bodies are being filled? To be sure, the chief executive is asked to attend the pink teas and hand out various appointments, but how about the lieutenant governor, the man who names the powerful committees who practically frame the laws of the state, and the senators and representatives who vote them into effect? These are offices that need real men back of them with a desire to do something for their state that will benefit humanity."

Being of an inquiring turn of mind, the Foley Independent asks: "How comes it that the Republican party of this state is dominated by the city fellows while Democracy is content to be led about by Frank A. Day, Harvey Grimmer and other unsophisticated ruralites?"

In Fillmore County.

Samuel G. Iverson has recently been in Fillmore county. The Wykoff Messenger-Enterprise, chronicling the fact that the state auditor was in town, says that he was "some twenty years ago a resident of this county." The Wykoff paper adds that "the gingerly feit of the local political pulse and finding the temperatures of the 'patients' running high with the Thompson fever, awaited patiently the coming of the east-bound train. Fillmore county will be represented at the state convention by a solid Thompson delegation."

Mr. Iverson's movements about the state have been noted with interest by the country press and wherever he has gone he has spoken confidently of his expectation that he will be renominated. Even without the support of Fillmore county, he expects to carry off the nomination, it is said.

Boosting for A. B. Cole for the lieutenant governorship, the Fergus Falls Journal tips it off to Bob Wells that he may be in the way, saying: "Wilkin county might just as well retire its candidate for auditor and get in line. The Ninth district doesn't want to be put in the Ramsey county class and therefore does not want more than two places on the ticket. Kaiser for treasurer and Cole for lieutenant governor will be the two."

Smith Must Fight Hard to Win.

For some reason, J. Adam Bede seems to have got on the nerves of the state press and he is being liberally and cruelly jabbed. The Warroad Commonwealth contributes this: "J. Adam Bede is the only man in all the Northwest who knows anything at all. The rest are just plain fools."

Wherever Walter J. Smith of Eveleth has gone in quest of support for his candidacy for state treasurer, a crop of kind words has sprung up and the harvest will be reaped June 21 at St. Paul, if Mr. Smith's friends have any merit as prophets. Papers published in the towns visited by the Eveleth mayor are unanimous invoting him a comer and a visitor who has made a good impression. With the race an open, free-for-all affair as it is, Mr. Smith's chances of success seem to grow stronger day by day. He is working energetically to advance his candidacy and his friends are overlooking no opportunity to boost. After a brief period of attention to business at Eveleth, Mr. Smith will take to the warpath again and gather up some more trophies of victory in the political battlefield.

While Mr. Smith has made truly remarkable progress, in view of the fact that he is new to the state political arena, it must not be thought that either Hanscom or Kaiser are asleep at the switch. They are working hard to land the nomination and it will be only by strenuous and continuous effort that the Eveleth man will succeed in giving Northeastern Minnesota the representation it deserves on the Republican state ticket.

• • •

Capt. John R. Randall, who lives in the Fiftieth district and has been a resident of Duluth for twenty-three years, may become a candidate for the legislature. He has not decided whether he will run for the house or the senate. Capt. Randall was a member of the house in the legislature of 1903.

COMMISSIONERS FILE FOR RENOMINATION.

Chairman Neil McInnis of the county board filed yesterday afternoon for the Republican nomination for commissioner from the Sixth district.

Mr. McInnis has represented the Sixth district for some years and he has made many strong friends by reason of his earnest work for everything that was of benefit to the county.

Commissioner McMahon, who has represented the Fourth district for some years has also filed for the Republican nomination to succeed himself as representative from that district.

NO INTEREST IN FAMILY

Confessed Murderer Shows Little Concern When Told of Baby's Death.

"Oh God," was all that Albert Balzerak said when told last night by Sheriff N. T. Baldwin of Oneida county, Wis., that the baby, whose birth they were celebrating at the time he murdered John Reilly, was dead.

Balzerak confessed to the police that he shot Reilly through the window of a homestead near Rhinelander, Wis., following an altercation at a merrymaking in honor of the christening of his new-born babe.

Spoken in a careless tone the above expression was his only comment. He didn't show the slightest desire to hear any more about the babe, whose arrival was fraught with such dire consequences to himself. He didn't ask when it died, what caused its death, or how long it had lived after he sought shelter in the woods after riddling Reilly's chest with buckshot. Nor did he evince any interest as to his family or relatives. The visiting sheriff told him that they were still on the homestead, but he only shook his head.

The baby died about two weeks after he murdered Reilly. It was never well, and lingered only a short time after the tragedy. The shooting took place the night of Dec. 19. Two days later, when driven from the woods by hunger and cold, Balzerak passed Sheriff Baldwin on the road. He spoke to him, passing the time of day, and made his way into Rhinelander, where he secured work. Sheriff Baldwin had never seen him before, and supposing that he was coraled in the woods never thought for a moment that he was conversing with the man he was seeking.

Balzerak has been a model prisoner since his arrest. He has not given the authorities the slightest trouble. He was photographed and measured yesterday by Eugene F. Rothie, Bertillion expert at police headquarters, and submitted without a murmur.

Sheriff Baldwin said that he expected to leave with Balzerak for Rhinelander over the Northern Pacific at 4 o'clock this afternoon, making connections at Ashland. He doesn't think that Balzerak will make any attempt to escape. The prisoner does not seem to realize the enormity of the crime with which he is charged.

Bill to Pay for Indians' Funerals.

Washington, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Miller called up to secure passage today of a bill appropriating $300 to pay the funeral expenses of the two Bois Fort Indian chieftains, who were suffocated through carelessness in blowing out the gas in their room at a hotel here some weeks ago.

OBITUARY

John Gund, founder of one of the largest breweries west of Milwaukee, died at La Crosse, Wis., May 7, aged 80 years.

Rev. Joseph Goiffon, one of the best known and most picturesque figures in the Catholic priesthood in Minnesota, is dead at the home of his nephew near Hugo.

Father Goiffon was 86 years old. He was born in 1824, in the Department of Ain, France. In 1827 he enrolled as a priest in the diocese of St. Paul. For three years he was pastor of Pembina and St. Joseph in the extreme northern part of what is now North Dakota. In those days travel between St. Paul and Pembina was a serious matter. Six weeks were required to make the journey and great were the difficulties attending it, especially if it took place during the winter.

In 1861 Father Goiffon returned to St. Paul, where he was made parish priest at Little Canada and Centerville. Only a few years ago he retired from the ministry, living since in Mendota and Hugo.

Father Goiffon was the living monument of early Catholicism in Minnesota. The remains of Father Goiffon will be taken to St. Paul Monday morning and the funeral will take place from the cathedral at 10 o'clock with burial in Calvary cemetery.

John Murphy, aged 85, for forty years engaged in the lumber business at Menominee, Mich, died at his home there Saturday after a lingering illness.

THOUSANDS OF VIGOROUS, HEALTHY MEN

Who came to the Progressive Medical Association—many of them as physical wrecks—are loud in their praises of the successful work of those specialists.

If you are sick, no matter what your ailment, whether contracted of inherited—no matter whether or not other physicians have tried and failed—even if you have begun to give up hope yourself—there is health for you. Right here in Duluth.

The Progressive Medical Association makes this statement—and will back it up with a Legal Guarantee to Cure every accepted case.

Their 25 years of constant, successful practice in curing the ailments and diseases common to man, thirty years or more of constant study along the same lines, has given them an enviable position amongst the leading scientists, both in this country and abroad.

Health is within the grasp of all—no longer is it necessary for men to despair because of the impossibility of their being brought back to health at home—nor because of the inconvenience and expense of making long journeys to Eastern specialists or health resorts.

PEOPLE ARE BUYING PIANOS

The success that has marked this, the first week of the Korby Piano Company Removal Sale, has been most gratifying in its results. The sale is to continue while the company's new store is being prepared. The bargains offered in high-grade pianos are the greatest that any other local piano house has ever offered. We know we can save you money, and you will be convinced if you will visit the store and investigate our offer.

Every dollar saved is your gain, and this is an opportunity that you cannot afford to let pass if you have any intention at all of buying a piano. The satisfaction of buying a good piano is desirable. But, that satisfaction cannot be complete unless you purchase it at the lowest price it can be bought. We stand squarely on our record for selling for factory prices. When you buy a piano here you are assured that the piano is the best of its class, and that the price you paid is the lowest.

We have taken a number of pianos in exchange during this sale and, if you want a second-hand instrument we can sell you a good one for $75 up and on terms to suit your convenience.

The store will be open evenings during this sale.

ON THE IRON RANGES

HAUNTED BY CRIME; FINN LOSES HEAD

Terrorizes Citizens of Bangor Location and Is Locked Up.

Aurora, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A man named Allison, who has been terrorizing women and children at Pineville and the Bangor location, was arrested and brought before Judge Tillmans Thursday for trial. He was given twenty days in the county jail.

The county authorities will be asked to examine Allison as to his sanity. He has been acting queerly for some time. He is a Finlander and it is claimed by his fellow countrymen that he is suffering from insanity, caused by brooding over a serious crime committed before coming to this country.

Allison has been entering houses and taking other liberties which made him feared by the women and a nuisance to the community. He has been arrested on different occasions at Duluth and at range towns for disorderly conduct. It is thought his case will be called to the attention of the immigration authorities.

MUCH INTEREST IN STATE LAND SALE

Offering of 30,000 Acres in Itasca County May 14 Attracts Attention.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Much interest is manifested in the sale of state lands which will be held here by the state auditor on May 14. About 30,000 acres of the finest land will be offered for sale. Inquiries are being received daily by local land concerns regarding the lands, and quite a number of prospective buyers have gone into the woods and looked over the pieces which they propose to bid in.

The lands have all been gone over by state appraisers, and a valuation set upon them, so that when the auditor offers the respective pieces for sale, he will know practically how much the land is worth. The law provides that the lands be offered at auction, and no bid can be received for less than $5 per acre. No person can buy more than 320 acres, and certain specified improvements must be within a specified time. The terms of the sale are very easy. Only 15 per cent of the purchase price need be paid down, and the balance may run forty years at 4 per cent interest.

Much of this land is so called swamp land—much of it is really swampy, but all lays higher than some other part of the surrounding territory, so that drainage is usually very easy, many instances not requiring more than a short ditch to drain a large area. The great amount of drainage work which is being done, and the character of the soil in the swamps when it is drained makes it exceedingly desirable as prospective farming land.

GRAND RAPIDS YOUTH ACCIDENTLY SHOOTS SELF.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald)—Joseph McKabige, the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McKabige, shot himself in the fleshy part of the leg Friday of last week with a 22-caliber rifle. He and another boy had found some shells, and they got the rifle and were shooting with it when the gun accidentally went off, the ball entering just below the knee and coming out just above the ankle.

GILBERT ENJOYED THE ART EXHIBIT

Display of Works and Entertainment Largely Attended Affair.

Gilbert, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The art exhibition and reception at the high school this week was a brilliant success in every way. Harrington Beard had charge of the works of art, which were the finest ever seen in this section. Mr. Beard comes from the Beard art galleries, is an authority on art and has been a student of art for twenty years, having visited almost all of the famous art galleries of the world. The students of the cooking classes served frozen delicacies, punch and candies. The proceeds amount to about $75. The lecture of Mr. Beard was a masterful effort and was highly appreciated by the audience. The following program was given: Music, high school band; drill, intermediate grade girls, directed by Eugenie Kellogg; illustrated lecture, Harrington Beard; violin solo, Prof. H. F. McConnell; male quartette, Bowman, Newton, Newberry, McConnell; vocal solo, Elizabeth Lively; May pole drill and dance, primary girls, directed by Misses Goodhue and Flahavan.

IS GETTING READY FOR THE WOODMEN

Chisholm Preparing to Greet Members of Order Next Monday.

Chisholm, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Next Monday will be a gala day here, the occasion being the big Modern Woodmen of America celebration, which promises to prove to be a notable event.

A. L. Bergeron has a crew of men at work building gigantic arches at different points along Lake street and the whole village is breaking out in fine Woodmen decorations. All the stores will be closed Monday, which will be a regular holiday.

At a meeting of the local lodge Thursday night, at which final preparations for the big celebration were made, a class of twenty-eight new members was initiated. The standing of the different lodges of the state for the past three months of the year in relation to new members gained is: St. Paul, seventy; Chisholm, forty-six; Duluth, forty-one. Since that time, Chisholm lodge has added eighty-six new members, making, for the four months, a total of 152.

VIRGINIA WORKING FOR NEW HOSTELRY

Commercial Club Is Raising Funds to Put Undertaking Through.

Virginia, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ed Elholm, a farmer living in the Mud lake district and representing about sixteen other tillers of the soil in that vicinity, was present at the Commercial club meeting last night and entered a vigorous protest against the contemplated change in the road leading to this city.

The farmers of that section are delivering in the city about 100 gallons of milk per day, and last year raised in the neighborhood of 2,000 bushels of potatoes, all of which were marketed here, besides numerous other farm products ,and they are of the opinion that they are entitled to some consideration at the hands of the people of Virginia.

A committee of three was appointed to confer with the city council in regard to the matter before any change in the road is made. This committee is composed of William Rooney, R. C. Pickering and Ed. Edholm.

A communication from the park board, asking for the sense of the club in regard to the establishment of a "white way" on Chestnut street, resulted in the club recommending that it be installed as son as possible..

The need of a large and modern hotel was discussed. President N. B. Arnold stated that in order to carry out the project it would probably be necessary to form a stock company and raise about $150,000 to build and furnish a hotel such as is needed in Virginia. He said that he had assurances of subscriptions amounting to about $150,000, and also that a reliable and experienced hotel man had offered to put in $30,000 toward furnishing and equipping the building. Mr. Arnold suggested that the members get busy and find some means to secure the balance of the capital needed.

A committee, composed of A. E. Bickford, J. A. Kennedy, J. R. Krugdahl, J. W. Deering and H. S. Gillespie, was appointed to devise some means for the establishment of a band.

SULLIVAN GIVES BAIL; OTHER VIRGINIA NOTES.

Virginia, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Sullivan, arrested on a charge of issuing worthless checks, was liberated yesterday afternoon, his bond of $200 being signed by William Fitzgerald and Erick Ostlund. His hearing has been set for May 13.

Samuel Slade, formerly manager of the Mesaba meat market ,has purchased the interest of Ole Larson in the Palace market.

W. J. Archer of Minneapolis has been a guest of R. C. Pickering for several days.

Over 100 dog licenses have been issued by City Clerk Bickford during the past week.

At the annual meeting of the public library board the following officers were elected: President, M. E. Fanning; vice president, C. C. Butler; secretary, R. C. Pickering.

The ladies of St. Paul's guild gave a farewell party at the home of Mrs. F. W. Terrill in honor of Mrs. J. L. Owens and Mrs. T. Huartson, who are soon to leave the city, the former to Duluth and the latter to Winnipeg. The guests of honor were presented with a gift.

The Study club has elected the following officers: President, Mrs. J. D. Lamont; vice president, Mrs. Thomas Gill; secretary, Mrs. C. M. Dorway; treasurer, Mrs. H. S. King.

The Cook Stock company will occupy the boards at the Fay opera house all of next week.

DAMAGE SUITS SETTLED.

Two Actions Disposed of in Virginia District Court.

Virginia, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—District court adjourned last night with the case of Andrew Thompson against the St. Louis River Dam & Improvement company still on trial. It is expected that the case will go to the jury Monday forenoon. At the completion of this case the court will take up the criminal calendar.

Thomas S. Morrison of this city has sued his wife, Minnie Morrison, for divorce on the grounds of desertion. They were married at Odanah, Wis., April 24, 1899, and Morrison alleges his wife deserted him Aug. 18, 1903 They have no children.

By agreement of both parties the action brought by Joseph Mantel, administrator of the estate of Drago Sendic against the Croxton Mining company, has been settled, the plaintiff to receive the sum of $750. The personal injury suit of Nick Drosson against the Great Northern Railway company has also been settled, the plaintiff agreeing to accept $625 as compensation in full settlement. Arnold & Pickering of this city are attorneys for Drosson.

CHISHOLM NOTES.

Current Happenings in the Growing Mesaba Range Village.

Chisholm, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The water, light, power and building commission has completed plans for the overhauling of the village water system at a cost of from $12,000 to $15,000.

Herman Johnson was arrested upon a charge of wife desertion after his return to Chisholm from Seattle and other Western points. After a trial before Judge Freeman he was released on a suspended sentence.

The building of cement sidewalks on Lake street, Chisholm's principal business street, began Thursday. The street and avenues leading to and from the Missabe depot will be completely laid with cement at a cost of $17,000.

E. S. Casey, Phil Ploof and Lee Rell returned yesterday from Goodland lake with a catch of 150 pounds of fine pike.

The Epworth league met Friday at the home of Mrs. Truan. The Misses Govett entertained. Arthur Mitchell and Alger Syme were chosen delegates to atten dthe annual Duluth district convention at Aitkin June 16, 17 and 18. Misses Agnes A. Olson and Edith Govett were chosen alternates. Four new members were added to the rapidly growing league.

The ladies of the Catholic church church met Thursday with Mrs. Laird. There was a large attendance. Lunch was served and a neat sum realized, which will be devoted to the church.

Arrangements are being made by D. C. Hackett, manager of the Chisholm baseball team, to play Eveleth. There will be two games played—one on Sunday and one on Monday. The local team is practicing every evening in anticipation of a struggle with the visiting team. A return match will be played this afternoon between the Chisholm high school and Buhl high school at the baseball park. The last game played at Buhl was won by the Chisholm boys with a score of 15 to 8.

Gus Anderson has commenced the building of a number of residences. Houses are scarce in the village, notwithstanding over 100 residences are being constructed or have been lately finished.

The committee appointed to raise a fund for the baseball club succeeded in securing $350 in two hours.

Members of the Eagles have arranged for a big time May 11. Ten new candidates will be initiated. A banquet will be held following initiation and routine business, after which an athletic entertainment, the like of which has never been seen in Chisholm will follow.

Charles Zgonee was refused a saloon license by the village council, the reason being a breach of the liquor ordinance. Zgonee was convicted on a charge of allowing women to frequent his saloon.

ART WORKS DISPLAYED.

Mr. Beard's Collection Shown at Hibbing School Friday Night.

Hibbing, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harrington Beard of Minneapolis arrived here Friday with a collection of several hundred art pictures which were exhibited at the Washington school building in the evening and today. These pictures are very interesting, some represents several different periods and schools which are being exahibited here as follows: classics: Sistine Madonna, Raphael, St. Barbara, Palma Vecchio, The Boy St. John, Andria Dell Sorto, The Last Supper, Raphael, The Aurora, Guido Reni. Mr. Beard also exhibited some interesting pictures for children such as "I Hear a Voice," "Two Families," "Hiawatha," "Brittany" sheep and other pictures. A short musical program was rendered while the exhibit was going on by Miss Nassai and Prof. Rogers. This exhibit drew out a large crowd as the Washington building is a new building and had never been visited by a great majority of Hibbing people.

The Mesaba Telephone company is installing three new circuit lines between Hibbing and Chisholm, which will improve the service between these two towns. A private exchange is also being installed for the Oliver Iron Mining company in its new offices on First avenue south which will be completed this week.

At the meeting of the Knights of Pythias Wednesday evening, A. W. Randall anad U. H. Day were appointed to act as representatives to the grand lodge meeting which will be held in Minneapolis on May 10 and 11.

Mrs. R. W. Hitchcock and children left Friday evening for Maple Lake, Minn., where they will visit for several months. Mr. Hitchcock accompanied them and will return in a few days.

Mrs. Charles McIlhargey left Friday noon for a short visit with friends in Duluth.

The Best Home Medicine

This Simple Old Country Home Remedy Cleans Up the System as Clean as a Whistle and Fills the Arteries With Rich Red Blood.

There have been hundreds of "spring medicines," "blood purifiers," "vitalizers," "nerve compounds," etc., etc., etc., offered the public within the last few years. Many of these preparations have not been without some merit, perhaps, but there is after all, only one real, home spring remedy that can be depended upon as sure as the sun, every time. We have in mind the old Swedish remedy, Salubrin, which has now found its way to this country.

Salubrin is entirely unlike any other spring medicine you ever heard of. There is no mystery about it or its action. No guess work about what it does. Spring fever, that tired, lazy feeling, lack of ambition, "low" nerve force, etc., for which a spring medicine is taken, are all just the result of the accumulation of germs and toxins in the system during the cold, sluggish winter months. Salubrin is a germ killer, an anti-toxic, which is sure death to all germs, but unlike other germ destroyers it does not injure the system, being a neutral compound as far as human tissue is concerned, and a real bone and muscle builder. It drives germ out of the blood, out of the vital organs, out of every nook and corner of your whole system and makes you feel strong and good all over, because it helps nature to do her duty. Salubrin is sold by all druggists, price 50 cents per bottle. It's fine for coughs and colds and catarrh as well, because it kills the germs. If you can't find Salubrin, write us and we will tell you where to get it. Salubrin Laboratory, Dept. 26, Grand Crossing, Chicago, Ill.

SEVERAL BALL GAMES.

The Eveleth Nines Are Planning on Much Sport.

Eveleth, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—This afternoon, in the Biwabik grounds, the local high school baseball team is playing the Biwabik high school nine. At McKinley tomorrow, the Eveleth All-Stars will play their second game of the season with McKinley. At Elba, the Elba nine will play the Aurora nine. At Chisholm, the Eveleth Independents will play Chisholm city team, and the two teams will also meet on Monday, the occasion being the big Modern Woodmen gathering at Chisholm. The recently organized Fayal team, which was to have played its first game of the season this afternoon, was unable to do so, but next Saturday will witness the nilne team's initial efforts in the national pastime.

AROUSES ART INTEREST.

Eveleth School to Benefit By Recent Beard Exhibit.

Eveleth, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Much interest in the works of art has been aroused here since the Beard exhibit, and many of the school rooms will be handsomely fitted up with beautiful paintings, the teachers having purchased many good works. At present but very few pictures adorn the local school rooms, but the need for the paintings has been realized since the recent art purchases.

GRAND RAPIDS BRIEFS.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. C. C. Carpenter received news Thursday of the death of his mother and, with Mrs. Carpenter, he left Friday morning for Anoka to attend the funeral.

A neighborhood social was given at the La Prairie school house Saturday evening last. The pupils of the school participated in an interesting program which Miss Anna Reusswig, teacher, had prepared, and ice cream and cake were served. A very pleasant time is reported.

Clarence Tompkins and William Kimball of Minot, and Emil Bunker of Two Harbors, who had been visiting Freeman Hane and family, returned to their homes Tuesday.

L. Courtemanche, the contractor, spent a couple of days in Duluth on business the last of last week.

F. W. Fulton made a business trip to Duluth the first of the week.

W. J. Sandretzkey and Frank Olin have sold their merry-go-round to John and Fred Clauslus, of Harper, Wis.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Erick Reinholm of Blackberry, died last Friday from the effects of sickness caused by teething. The funeral was held at Blackberry Saturday.

Eveleth Junior Ball Success.

Eveleth, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ball given in Elks' hall last evening by the junior class, in honor of the seniors, proved a most successful affair. Following the ball, a luncheon was served. Among out-of-town people present were: C. J. Thomas, Duluth; Maud Williams, Chisholm; C. J. Brusso, McKinley; George Martinson, Gilbert; J. C. Sheehy, Earl Ellsworth, J. Bellow and W. F. Fleming, Hibbing.

CHISHOLM CHILD LUCKY.

Has Fall of Twenty-Two Feet and Is Unhurt.

Chisholm, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 2-year-old daughter of Edward Drumar fell a distance of twenty-two feet from the top of a balcony to the ground below, yesterday, escaping with a severe shaking. Fortunately a number of cases that had been used for packing crockery by N. Karlinsky, had been removed from the spot where the child landed and a deposit of fine cut straw, about three inches deep, which had fallen from the cases, lay on the ground. This to a small extent, served to break the child's fall. A peculiar coincidence is that the child fell from the exact spot six weeks ago and then, as in this instance, was practically unhurt.

ERECTING BUILDINGS.

Winston-Dear Company Planning for Its Big Stripping.

Hibbing, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Winston-Dear Company of Minneapolis, which has the contract for removing 7,000,000 yards of over burden from the Susquehanna mine of the Rogets Brown Iron company here, which will require several years' work to complete, has begun the construction of additional buildings at the works. New machine shops will be put up just east of the company's camps. The machine shops and blacksmith shop will be 40 by 110. A roundhouse shop will be 40 by 110. A roundhouse is also being built to be 30 by 30 feet, and a supply warehouse, 20 by 50 feet will be put up at once. The company now has ten or twelve buildings completed, consisting of offices, dining and sleeping camps and other necessary buildings.

CASE AGAINST PHELPS THROWN OUT OF COURT.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the state had completed its case against Phelps, father and son, of Cass Lake, on a charge of arson, it being contended they had set fire to a building at Winnibighoshish lake last year, when living there, causing the death of a man named Vegge, Judge Wright granted motion of the attorneys for the defense for a dismissal and the case was dropped. The court granted the motion because of the circumstantial nature of the evidence, the state having failed to connect the accused with the crime. The case was a long one and cost this county about $2,000. Mr. Phelps is a Cass Lake business man and formerly lived in Duluth and Eau Claire. County Attorney Price announced there will be no more criminal cases tried at this term.

TWO HARBORS ORE RECEIPTS HEAVY

So Far This Year Way in Excess of Last Year's Record.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ore business continues to increase, the receipts Friday being 583,643 tons. The receipts to the same date in 1909 were 158,757, showing an increase of 424,886 tons over this time last year.

In May, 1909, at this time, the receipts for the month were 90,306 tons, compared with 189,715 tons for the same period this year. This is an increase of 99,409 tons. The average per day at this time in May, 1909, was 18,061 tons and 37,943 tons this year.

FLOODWOOD SCHOOL EVENT.

Eighth Grade Class Members Are Given Their Diplomas.

Floodwood, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The eighth grade commencement exercises held this week were well attended. County Superintendent Gilpin addressing the graduates gave them some good advice and encouragement. The exercises were held under the auspices of Principal Seeley.

Those who received diplomas were Birdie Alvina Stageberg, Edna B. New, Lillian Helen Berg, Nora E. Wilder, M. Agnes Carlin, Mynie M. Crist, Charles Paul and John E. Pelto.

SURPRISE FOR MINISTER.

Ladies of Two Harbors Church Give Pleasant Event.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last evening the members of the Ladies' Aid of the First M. E. church gave a pleasant surprise to Rev. T. S. Oadams, by coming in a body to his residence. A great deal of amusement was furnished by the small tin articles that each one presented as a birthday gift. Games, music and other social features, with refreshments, constituted the evening's program. Before departing, G. S. Raper, with a few well-chosen words, presented Mr. Oadams with a fine gold signet ring. Rev. Mr. Oadams responded in his usual style, heartily thanking them for their kind remembrances.

TWO HARBORS SCHOOLS PLANNING FINE EXHIBIT.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The exhibition of the manual training department of the city schools will be held the last days of May and the first of June. The exhibition this year will far outdo that of last year both in workmanship and number of pieces. This year there will be mechanical drawing, furniture, cardboard cutting, and lathe work. The work is so graded that pupils do not pass unless they are very proficient in the work. The senior class will have mechanical drawing and lathe work to exhibit. The junior, sophomore and freshmen classes will have furniture, some of the pieces being desks, two library tables, taborets, book and mgazine racks, music cabinets and a number of other pieces. The grades have towel racks, hammer handles, kites, and the lower grades cardboard work.

FORMER 'PHONE MANAGER IS ALLEGED EMBEZZLER.

Marquette, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charged with embezzling funds of the Marquette County Telephone company, of which he formerly was manager here, James Cummins is confined in the county jail, pending his hearing in justice court. He was arrested by Sheriff Lehman at Sparta, Mich. The defendant is a former St. Ignace man. The amount he is accused of taking is $256.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say good-bye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend one, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 94 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

TRIBUTE TO MOTHER LOVE

"It Is the Sweetest Gift of Heaven," Says Rabbi Lefkovitz.

"God Could Not Be Everywhere, So He Created Mothers.

Rabbi Lefkovitz spoke in the Temple Emanuel last night on "Mother Day." Many clergymen will speak on the same topic in their sermons tomorrow.

Mr. Lefkovitz said in part: "Holy, holy, thrice holy is a mother's love; the whole earth is full of its glory. No other love can be likened to a mother's love. No earthly treasure can be compared with its priceless boon. It is the purest, truest, sweetest gift with which heaven has blessed our earth. Without it the world would be dark and dreary; man's habitations cold and cruel; and life a drifting barge with none to guide it.

"Mother's love is the most constant sentinel at the cradle, the tenderest nurse at the bedside, the most faithful guardian at the grave. In life's fierce combat mother's love is our bravest champion, in defeat our strongest comforter, in our quest our staunchest applauder, and in our fame it is the most exultant publisher.

"If heaven ever wrote a letter to the earth, it was inscribed in a mother's heart. 'God could not be everywhere,' said a rabbi of old, 'therefore He created mother's love.' God wanted to be acknowledged in every human abode. So he placed love, as part of Himself, within every mother's heart. Where mother is esteemed, God is praised; where she is honored, God is exalted.

"If paradise was ever lost, it was regained when—Eve the wife became Eve the mother. It flourishes today, in all its pristine purity and sweetness, in every mother's heart.

"Yet, for reasons that pass finite understanding, the curse pronounced upon her in paradise, still croucheth at her bedside; she must face death that life may be upon the earth.

"The blessing of motherhood is dearly purchased and dearly maintained. To be a mother is to be a martyr. For the privilege of pressing a babe to her bosom, and calling it flesh of her flesh and life of her life, she pays with the most excruciating torture, that human being can endure, and through she continues paying for it all her life in the coin of suffering, yet remains the debtor until bedded to rest in the lap of Mother Earth.

"When her children are in want or in danger, she counts her own life for naught. She will fight where men fall back aghast; she will triumph where armies fled in dismay. The more a man's strength covers, the more mother's courage towers.

"There are other and greater saints than religious saints. If it is glorious to surrender one's life for principle's sake, it is divine to sacrifice one's life for a child's sake. If a Joan of Arc is sainted for taking life, surely a saintship might be given to every mother that lay down her own life that another life might sprout and blossom. And not only can a mother die for her child; she can bury it—and yet live and live a living martyrdom, live to see her heart transformed into a shrine wherein is sacredly cherished, all through her life, the child of her pains, the child of her life.

"And a mother's greatest glory is that she can do all this—suffer and toil and labor for her children, stint and sacrifice for them, live for them, die for them, even survive them, without gaining anything from it for herself. Her love is all unselfishness. If but her child is happy, she craves for no other reward. If but her child is honored, she craves for no other glory.

"Pity the child that knows not the word 'mother,' sweetest word that human lips can utter, that must be reared without a mother's love—without a mother's care. Let your tears fall upon the mound of her who was snatched from the babe that confidingly nestled at her bosom. But breathe a prayer of blessing upon every cradle and nursery. There a mother's love softens and guides, quickens and protects. Breathe a prayer of thanksgiving for every mother who has a child to love and to bless, and for every child who is privileged to be loved and blessed by a mother's love—the most precious boon on earth."

Olive Pulp for Fuel.

If experiments now being carried out prove as promising as is expected, the olive oil plants of the Pacific coast will find the pulp left after the oil has been extracted an asset instead of a waste. The tests show that the pulp, when fully dried, burns as freely as hardwood. There is a reason why you should drink Golden Grain Belt beer. It is brewed from the best of nature's products in the most scientific way, and brings health, strength and happiness to the daily user. QUEER CLAIM FOR DAMAGES

Settler Wants County to Settle for Filling in His Swamp.

The board of commissoners of St. Louis county has before it one of the most entertaining claims for damages that it has been the pleasure of the members to consider.

It seems that in Commissioner Al Overton's district, the Fifth, there is a piece of road known as the McCumber road. McCumber is the name of the man who has built the road. While at work on the highway McCumber encountered a hill that would give the road a decided grade, so he made a cut through the top of it and brought the roadbed down to a more desirable level. The gravel taken from the hill was dumped into a piece of swamp land adjoining the hill, where it would do the most good.

The owner of the swamp land apparently didn't agree with the road builder that swamp land could be improved in that way, for he complained to the county board against Commissioner Overton and the man who, under his direction, had done the work.

With the object of learning just what all the trouble was about the commissioners yesterday evening got into an automobile and made a quick trip to the scene of operation, about fifteen miles north of Duluth. They found the situation to be as set forth.

Chairman Neil McInnis of the board said that in his experience the board has been called upon to consider some queer claims against the county, but this one was the most remarkable.

GRAFT PROBE EXPENSIVE.

Marinette County, Wis., Gets Litle for Financial Return.

Marinette, Wis., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The graft investigation in Marinette cost the county $14,000. Nineteen indictments were returned and three convictions secured. The state of Wisconsin received $601.77 in fines. Out of this Marinette can only hope to get about 14 cents. The convictions were: Fred Pierce, on one count, fined $400; Andrew Johnson, on one count, fined $200, and A. P. Youkton, who turned state's evidence against Pierce.

NO TRUE BILL IS RETURNED

Grand Jury Fails to Indict Herbert Helmer, Chauffeur.

But Six Indictments Returned, Three of Which Are Secret.

Herbert Helmer, driver of the car which ran down and killed Mrs. Hannah Monroe, about two weeks ago, at the corner of Lake avenue and First street, will not have to stand trial in district court on a charge of manslaughter in the second degree. The May grand jury, which has been in session for several days and which yesterday reported to Judge Dibell, failed to indict the young man.

The May grand jury in a special report advised the police to be very active in the matter of automobile speeding, and recommended that straight jail sentences be imposed upon those found guilty of disregarding this ordinance.

Congratulate Police.

The jury then congratulated the police on their efforts up to the present time in bringing those into court who insisted on speeding.

Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Greene, who presented the evidence to the grand jury, was not pleased when no true bill was returned. County Attorney John H. Norton refused to discuss the matter.

The police rather chafed under the advice handed out, after the jurors had refused to return an indictment against young Helmer. Their sentiments were expressed by Capt. Tony Fiskett, who said:

"I don't believe I ever before heard of such an inconsistent thing. The idea of the grand jury failing to indict a man who had killed an old lady by his speeding, and then turning around and handing out a lunch of advice to the police department is rather ludicrous. However, the accident has materially lessened auto speeding in the city."

Only Six Indictments.

But six indictments were returned by the grand jury. This is the smallest number of indictments returned by a grand jury in some years.

Peter Larson is charged with adultery. Louis Paulson is charged with having stolen $80 from W. E. Murphy. Thomas Chapik is charged with having carnal knowledge of Helen Maleski, a 15-year-old girl. The other three indictments are not made public, owing to the fact that the defendants are not in custody.

The grand jury visited the poor farm and the county jail before they reported to the court. They praised the order of things at the farm, and had a good word for the way things were being run at the county jail, under Sheriff William J. Bates.

LINK AS CONFESSED

at St. Louis, the verage sum accruing to those participating being about $900.

Three Are Indicted.

The men indicted were:

Representative Lee O'Neil Browne, Ottawa, Ill., minority leader, charged with distributing the bribes in behalf of the Lorimer forces.

Representative Robert E. Wilson, Chicago, charged with perjury in denying that he paid $900 each to Representatives Charles A. White and J. H. C. Beckemeyer.

Representative Michael S. Link of Mitchell, Ill., charged with perjury in testifying that he was not at the Southern hotel in St. Louis when the "jackpot" was distributed.

Following his indictment Link remained behind locked doors with the state's attorney last night for two hours. At the conclusion of the conference he was sent to jail, although a capias had been served, but was allowed to spend the night at a downtown hotel in custody of a detective.

Immunity Is Asked.

When the jury resumed its sitting today every effort was made, but unsuccessfully, to conceal Link's presence in the jury room.

Shortly afterward Mr. Wayman entered court and moved that the perjury indictment against the representative be quashed on the ground that Link had made a complete confession. The state's attorney did not at that time go into details of the confession.

Indictment in Railroad Case.

Another indictment, not bearing upon the Lorimer investigation but in connection with another case of alleged bribery, was returned by the jury against William J. Henley, former president of the Chicago & Western Indiana railroad. This indictment charges Henley with embezzlement of the railroad's funds. It is an outcome of charges made by John C. Fetzer, who alleged that a "slush fund" of $312,000 had been used in the legislature to secure railroad legislation. The specific bill was house bill 777, validating $50,000,000 bond issue made by the Chicago & Western Indiana railroad.

These indictments do not complete the grand jury's work. The state's attorney has announced that there is another week's work ahead of the inquisitors. Many other witnesses, nearly all of them state representatives, will be given an opportunity to tell what they know about bribery. The names of prospective witnesses were not made public.

PLANS FOR DULUTH'S MAMMOTH STEEL PLANT

of the materials needed on the ground. They will make their own concrete blocks, turn out concrete for their foundations, and supply all the necessary power. Temporary boarding houses have been put up, and the plans filed today show a permanent boarding house to be built on the property of the Minnesota Steel company.

The plans show an immense amount of detail. The most inexperienced citizen can learn what each line stands for by referring to the guides. Each building is neatly numbered and at the top of the plans an explanation is given of each number. The description of the land is also given. It is divided into thirty-three tracts, of different sections. The railroads are shown, including part of the belt line being built by the company, the terminal rails, and the Northern Pacific. The elevations are marked and the dimensions of the more important buildings are shown on the plans.

The whole is complex, yet simple, each piece fitting with the others to form the biggest plant this side of Chicago. The mills are so located that one process of the ore follows naturally into the next. Use will be made of all the by-products as far as possible. It is expected that in a few years not a by-product will be lost.

The complete list of buildings, as shown consecutively on the plans is as follows:

1. General office.
2. Check house No. 1.
3. Skull cracker.
4. Pumping station.
5. Coke ovens.
6. Crusher house.
7. Condenser house.
8. Coal hopper.
9. Pig casting.
10. Ladle repair house.
11. Blast furnaces.
12. Ore bins.
13. Primary gas washer.
14. Hot stoves.
15. Blowing engine house.
16. Secondary gas washer.
17. Gas holder.
18. Thawing house.
19. Electric power house.
20. Boiler house.
21. Open hearth furnaces.
22. Hot metal mixer.
23. Gas producers.
24. Stock house.
25. Strippers.
26. Pit furnaces.
27. Gas producers.
28. Blooming mill.
29. Engine house.
30. Continuous furnaces.
31. Motor house.
32. Rail mill.
33. Merchant mill, 104 by 112 feet.
34. Rail finishing department, 450 by 126 feet.
35. Splice bar and tie plate finishing department, 100 by 140 feet.
36. Hot beds, 100 by 240 feet.
37. Structure storage, 140 by 100 feet.
38. Structural finishing department, 380 by 120 feet.
39. Store house, 80 by 240 feet.
40. Forge and plat shop, 110 by 200 feet.
41. Machine shop, 280 by 140 feet.
42. Foundry, 206 by 110 feet.
43. Check house No. 2.
44. Power house.
45. Concrete plant.
46. Concrete block plant.
47. Boarding house.
48. Tool house.

Work on the interstate bridge over the St. Louis river at New Duluth is progressing rapidly, the draw span having been swung into place yesterday. The manner in which the big bridge is being built is unusual, in that it was necessary to swing the draw span onto the piers after it was practically completed. This method of construction was followed because of the requirement of the war department that navigation must not be obstructed.

This morning the draw was swung and it was found that it worked perfectly. The American Bridge company's men will now devote their energies to a speedy completion of the remainder of the structure, the draw span remaining open until the whole bridge is built.

Supt. Webster said today that the work will be finished probably on July 5.

With the bridge ready for use, work on the steel plant will proceed much more rapidly than it has been possible to push it up to this time, as the steel corporation will be able to get material to the site quickly and without interruption over its own rails.

The span that is now in place is 300 feet long and weighs 1,000 tons. On the upper level of the span there will be double tracks for railroad traffic, and below will be the street car tracks and wagon way.

A Dainty Toilet Article.

Every lady who desires to keep up her attractive appearance, while at the theater, attending receptions, when shopping, while traveling and on all occasions should carry in her purse a booklet of Gouraud's Oriental Beauty leaves. This is a dainty little booklet of exquisitely perfumed powdered leaves which are easily removed and applied to the skin. It is invaluable when the face becomes moist and flushed and is far superior to a powder puff as it does not spill and soil the clothes.

It removes dirt, soot and grease from the face, imparting a cool delicate bloom to the complexion. Sent anywhere on receipt of Five Cents in stamps or coin. F. T. Hopkins, 37 Great Jones street, New York.

purpose than the taking of passage to Europe and returning therefrom.

Governor Fort also says that the proof offered as to the presence of Mr. Armour in New Jersey does not coincide with the days set out in the indictment as the time of the commission of the alleged conspiracy.

Was Test Case.

There are other applications pending before Governor Fort for the extradition of others connected with the meat packing companies in the West, but when the hearing was sought by counsel for the packers the Armour case was selected as a test one, and a hearing was given upon that alone. Whether applications for extradition will now be pressed in the cases of the other packers will depend upon Prosecutor Garven.

Unless some new point can be raised by the prosecutor, the applications, it is said, will result in a refusal by the governor to grant requisitions upon the governor of Illinois.

WEST END

"MOTHER'S DAY" WILL BE OBSERVED.

In observance of "Mothers' day," Rev. W. E. Harmann will preach a special sermon for the benefit of the mothers and children of his parish tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the St. Luke's Episcopal church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street.

Under the auspices of the ladies of St. Peter's Swedish Episcopal church, who are raising money for the church fund, a bazar will be held Thursday and Friday evenings, May 19 and 20, in the basement of St. Luke's church. A good program will be given, followed by refreshments.

FORMER PASTOR WILL SPEAK HERE.

Rev. Albert Johanson, former pastor of the Swedish Mission church, now located at Moline, Ill., will arrive in the West end on Tuesday next to be the guest of Rev. John J. Daniels, the present pastor of the congregation. On the Sunday following it has been arranged that he shall speak to his former congregation.

French Club Meets.

Fifteen new members were admitted to membership in the French Naturalization club last evening at its meeting held at the St. Jean Baptiste hall on West Third street, near Twenty-fifth avenue.

A good program, which included two wrestling matches was given. Ambrose Burdash and Officer Broulette wrestled to a draw after twenty minutes. Hans Peterson agreed to throw Ben Harper inside of fifteen minutes but failed. Harper was awarded the match.

West End Shortrails.

Rev. Thomas J. MacMurray of Mitchell, S. D., who may accept a call to the Second Presbyterian church as its pastor, will preach to the congregation tomorrow at both services.

Mrs. J. W. Ekblad of 2120 West Second street will leave Sunday for a short visit with friends and relatives at Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. R. G. Gillon of 2629 West Third street will entertain the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Second Presbyterian church at her home Wednesday afternoon.

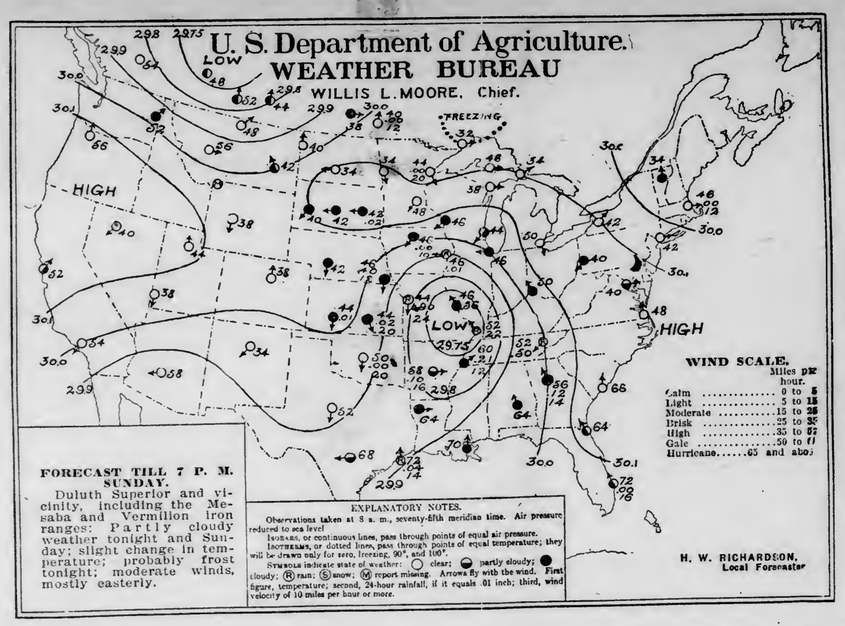
Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the Grace M. E. church, returned this morning from Chicago, where he attended the Laymens Missionary meetings.

The regular monthly meeting of the Swedish Christian Sick Benefit society was held last evening at Sloan's hall. Routine business was transacted.

Mrs. M. J. Holstein, a Salvation Army worker of Chicago, will give an address at the Scandinavian Salvation Army hall, Seventeenth avenue west and Superior street, this evening. She will also hold three meetings tomorrow.

A daughter was born this morning to Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Harmann of 113 North Twenty-fifth avenue west. Rev. Mr. Harmann is the rector of the two Episcopal churches at the West end.

Rev. J. A. Anderson of Marinette, Wis., presiding elder of the Lake Superior district of Swedish M. E. churches, and former pastor of the local church, will preach both services tomorrow at the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street.



CLOUDY

Foiled once more! The weather man missed on that shower prediction again, and those who have no interest in agriculture, horticulture, floriculture in the growing of weeds rejoice in his chagrin. The best he could do was to awaken people from sound slumbers by sending a howling wind along early this morning. The highest temperature yesterday was 56 deg., and 44 deg. was the lowest last night. Frost is promised for tonight.

A year ago today was fair and balmy.

The sun rose this morning at 4:42, and it will set at 7:26, giving 14 hours and 42 minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The southwestern disturbance has moved its center to Missouri. It is attended by light to heavy rains throughout the Lower Missouri and Middle Mississippi valleys and Southeastern states. The Alberta depression remained about stationary, but increased somewhat in intensity. Temperatures are moderate generally. The barometer is highest over the Middle Atlantic and Pacific states. The outlook for rain at the Head of the Lakes during either tonight or Sunday is not very encouraging, unless it develops in connection with the easterly movement of the Alberta low pressure."

General Forecasts.

Upper Lakes: Brisk northeast to north winds, with rain on Huron and Michigan; moderate and variable on Superior, with partly cloudy weather tonight and Sunday.

Chicago, May 7.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Sunday:

Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday.

Wisconsin—Partly cloudy with showers in southeast portion tonight or Sunday; colder tonight with frost in west and north portions.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Sunday; frost tonight.

Iowa—Threatening and colder tonight with probably light frost; Sunday fair and warmer.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Sunday; warmer tonight.

South Dakota—Fair tonight and Sunday; warmer Sunday and in west portion tonight.

Montana—Fair tonight and Sunday; cooler Sunday and in north and west portions tonight.

Bemidji Elk Lodge Growing.

Bemidji, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Bemidji lodge of Elks is adding members at a rate that bids fair to make it one of the largest lodges, considering the size of its home town, in the state.

With Thursday night's initiations, the membership of the lodge is close to 200, and it is expected that that figure will be reached before another month rolls around.

GRAND CONCERT

The famous barytone, John Forsell of the Metropolitan Opera company, New York, and Royal Opera, Stockholm, will appear in a recital concert at the Lyceum theater, Sunday afternoon, May 8, 3 p. m., under the auspices of the Svea Glee club, who will also render several numbers on the program assisted by the Orpheus Singing society, under the direction of Mr. Charles Helmer.

Personal Injury Case Fails.

Menominee, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury disagreed in the case of the estate of the late Henry Beaulier vs. the Crawford Lumber company. This was a case in which the heirs of the deceased, who is alleged to have been killed by logs falling and crushing him from a sleigh owned by the defendants, sued to recover damages.

FUND PASSES $1,000 MARK

The $1,000 mark has been passed in the campaign of the anti-tuberculosis committee for the collection of funds with which to carry on its work. Another $2,000 is needed and there will be no let-up in the effort to reach the goal originally fixed upon.

Subscriptions not previously acknowledged follow:

$25—A. Fitger.

$10—Duluth Aerie 79, Order of Eagles, Duluth Evening Herald.

$1—Gust Cormier, James W. Walker, B. Kerner, J. Altman, G. W. C. Ross, L. M. Hanson.

Next week the committee will enter with renewed vigor into the campaign for funds and it is expected that those who intend to contribute to the cause will co-operate heartily with it for quick results.

OLD TRUCK MAN DEAD.

Patrick McHale One of Northwestern's Oldest Employes Called.

Ishpeming, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Death this week claimed Patrick McHale, aged 70, one of the oldest employes of the Chicago & Northwestern road in this section and for thirty-eight years a resident of Ishpeming. He entered the employ of the Chicago & Northwestern company thirty-eight years ago this month, and he worked continuously for the company, with the exception of three months in 1876, until he retired. Having reached the age of 70 years, also having been in the service the required number of years to entitle him to a pension, he received his first allowance last month.

During the greater part of the time Mr. McHale was in the employ of the Northwestern company he served as section foreman. He was one of the best track men in its service, and was also regarded as one of the company's most trusted employes.

JOSEPH POPKIN, Prop. 2012 W. Superior St.

HIGBEE IRON CO.

PRESIDENT'S OFFICE AT ST. PAUL, MINN.

MINES ON THE FAMOUS MESABA IRON RANGE IN MINNESOTA.

R. Bacon Higbee, President, Business Builder and Counselor, St. Paul; George Salzer, Vice President, President Salzer Lumber Company, Minneapolis.

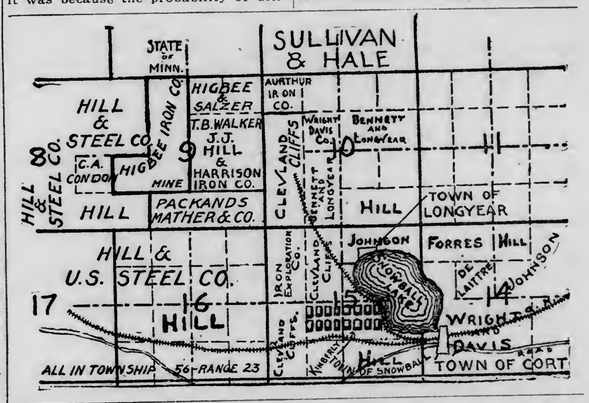
TALK NO. 2.

For several weeks I have been talking to you about the Higbee Iron company and just at this time I want to call your attention to a number of facts which are worthy of repetition and special consideration. First, you must admit that our capitalization of only $100,000 is exceedingly low. Now, Mr. Salzer, who is the principal backer of this enterprise, insisted when the company was organized, the 14th day of September, 1909, that it be done on a conservative business basis, hewing strictly to such lines as had brought his other enterprises to success. You know, Mr. Salzer is a hard-headed German business man, who made his money in the lumber business. He is now president of one of the largest retail lumber companies in Minneapolis—the Salzer Lumber company—a director in the German American Bank of Minneapolis and interested with his brothers, John and Henry, in the "Great" Salzer Seed company of La Crosse, Wis.

He is not the kind of a man who would loan his influence or his prestige or his money to any ordinary proposition, and when he became connected with the Higbee Iron company it was because the probability of ultimately making a fortune from the mine was apparent. Now, if you will look at the map, you will see how the James J. Hill and T. B. Walker, the U. S. Steel corporation and many other famous iron company's lands embrace us, and when you realize that our development work to date consists of at least ten drill holes—every one in ore—from end to end of our southeast forty acres, you will admit that we have a large body of ore and as sure as fate it runs clear through the west forty acres also and will surely double the amount of ore already found, and, then, everybody knows that lots more ore is sure to be found at depth. No hole so far drilled is over 100 feet deep. I believe, also, that ore will be found well to the north of our property. In fact, the possibilities seem unlimited.

A contract has been made with Geary & Power of Hibbing, large independent iron operators, looking to the leasing of the property on a basis of 10 cents a ton net on every ton of ore mined. The first minimum payment of $3,000 is to be made the 5th of July next, and $6,000 is to be paid every year thereafter until mining starts and when mining starts we ought to get $25,000 a year and perhaps $50,000 or even $100,000, if my judgment as to the amount of ore in the mine is anywhere near correct. I almost forgot to tell you of another feature of our deal with Geary & Power which is likely to make it possible to pay an extra dividend of about 6 per cent almost any time, and that is this: If they in turn lease this property to other people we are to receive an extra $6,000 in cash at that time. As several parties are right now investigating the property it may be that they will want it bad enough to make it worth while for Geary & Power to buy the privilege of releasing it.

Now, the other day, when I was in Hibbing, a head man of the Oliver Iron Mining company, the mining department of the Steel corporation, had me take him to Geary & Power's assay office in Hibbing, where we got Mr. Geary to show him the samples of ore from our property. This gentleman looked over the samples and expressed surprise and pleasure at their merit. In the conversation, I asked Mr. Geary why we had not received a report from the last drill hole, and he said: "I thought we had sent you one, but if none has been sent it must have been because the drill man must have probably thought the sample too poor to assay." At that the Steel trust man asked to see that particular sample, and, upon examination, he said he thought it good enough to assay, and I gave him some of it, and after assaying some of it he sent me the report, a copy of which is here shown. You see it ran (45) forty-five per cent in iron and low in phosphorus and with just enough manganese to make it right. Now, if this is a sample of poor ore, what ought our good ore to run—be that as it may, the Steel trust man secured my promise to give them the first chance to purchase or lease our property if Geary & Power ever defaulted in their contract. All of which ought to be good evidence of the intrinsic worth of our stock, and show the investor that aside from a good dividend payer our stock has a speculative chance of making a fortune for the lucky holder, depending somewhat, of course, upon the size of the holding. And I'll wager a new hat to any one that it will be the safest and biggest paying investment offered the public by anyone this summer.



The stock is being advertised and offered very broadly throughout the country, so the market will be a large and general one, assuring investors of an opportunity to trade in the stock, and I believe the demand that is being created for it will soon be so great that the price will have to be advanced to two hundred and, perhaps, three hundred dollars a share; however, I shall continue to offer stock for sale only long enough to obtain the co-operation of some more good representative business men. You see, I have other properties that I want to finance later, and I believe that when the investor in this company finds out what a really good thing he has he will go the limit with me on my next company, and thus may the ball of success be kept rolling, and if you, reader, are endowed with a love for real enterprise, I invite you to come in with me now.

I don't see how you can ever regret it. You can see that we have the utmost confidence in our proposition, for aside from Mr. Salzer's being prominently connected with it, I have christened it with my own name and am endeavoring to broaden my reputation for being a winner in this field of enterprise. Payments can probably be arranged to suit your convenience—send as much at once as you can spare and state when you can pay the balance, and, if your proposition is at all fair, I will try to meet you more than half way. Shares are a hundred dollars each. Only intelligent business-brained people are expected to be attracted to this proposition, and to such I will be glad to furnish additional information, if it is desired.

For a few days I will make the price ($99) ninety-nine dollars a share, where full payment is sent with order. Sincerely,

R. B. HIGBEE, President.
St. Paul, Minn.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

BRAVES ARE EVENING UP

Piqued at Government Ignoring Requests, They Turn Down Enumerator.

Ex-Football Player Balked in Effort to Count Leech Lake Chippewas.

Walker, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Leech Lake Chippewa Indians have defied the government enumerator. They refuse to give their names or to discuss their family trees to Ed Rogers, the census enumerator appointed by Ezra McCrea, census supervisor for the Sixth district, and up-to-date the census book intended to be filled with the names of Leech Lake braves, contains nothng but blank pages.

The Indians intend their action to be construed as a direct slap at the government. Several days ago when it was learned that a government man would soon be among them to secure their names, they called a council at Bear island and unanimously decided to appear both deaf and dumb when the party arrived.

Census Enumerator Is Balked.

Mr. Rogers landed at Bear island Monday and soon learned of conditions. He saw the chief of the island who consented to call the Indians together again and as a result a second council was held Thursday at Sugar Point, when Mr. Rogers talked to them, stating his position and the nature of his work. They still refused to have anything to do with the enumerator and Rogers, who a few years previous had bucked the line so successfully as the University of Minnesota football captain, found himself up against a stone wall, third down, and not a yard gained. He returned to Walker with his census book full of blank pages.

The Indians have signed innumerable petitions during the past two years to the Great White Father at Washington asking for aid of various kinds but these petitions have been generally ignored. They have held councils and elected lawyers to represent them at Washington, but failed to get their appointments confirmed. They have complained of the money from the sale of timber which has been withheld from them, and they have petitioned to be allowed to sell their allotments. In no instance have they received any satisfaction from the government so they claim, and the fact that their requests have been ignored has led them to make the move they have. They will sign nothing which bears the earmarks of a government document until their previous appeals have been taken up, and they refuse to stand up and have any one claiming to be a government official.

It begins to look as though the 1910 census report would lack the Leech Lake Chippewa Indian population.

MAN FROM TEXAS USED HIS WEAPON

Fires Two Bullets Into North Dakotan Because of Money Difference.

Ellendale, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Telling his story without sign of emotion that he did the shotting and expressing no regret for his action, Robert A. Beatner is being held in the Dickey county jail in this city to await the effect of his shots upon Richard A. Meck, who is now in a Minneapols hospital. Beatner apparently makes no bones of the fact that he shot Mack, and he seemingly has little interest in the outcome.

The shooting took place at Forbes, Dickey county, on Tuesday. For some time the two men had differences because Beatner contended he had $5 coming from Meck on wages. Tuesday morning, Beatner asked Meck for the money, and on being refused is said to have pulled a revolver and fired. The shooting took place on the main street of the little town. Two bullets entered Mecks' body. Three shots were fired, the first failing to take effect. There was a moment's struggle for the possession of the revolver, then two more shots. Meck fell to the ground, one bullet entering the body on the right side and going clear through to the left side, while the other went in at the left shoulder and passed through the body.

Gazing at his victim for a few moments, Beatner quietly walked down the street to the residence of A. C. Berry, to whom he gave his revolver, and then waited for the arrival of the officials, who came shortly.

Beatner is a Texan, who admits having been in a shooting affair in the South before, having shot a young Mexican boy following a quarrel over a dog, which he claimed the lad had killed He has a wife and family residing in Arkansas.

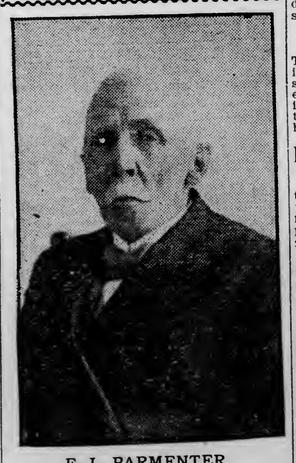
CRIES OF BABY SAVE FAMILY

Aroused When Nearly Overcome By Coal Gas Escaping From the Stove.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The crying of a baby early yesterday morning probably saved three lives here yesterday. 2 a. m. yesterday, Mrs. E. L. Woods was awakened by the crying of the baby and upon awakening found that she was very ill. She called her daughter, Mrs. E. W. Bennington and told her to hurry for the doctor as she was awful sick. Mrs. Bennington started to arise, but fell back so weak that she could hardly tell her mother that she was unable to go. Mrs. Woods next called her 10-year-old son and told him to hurry for the doctor. The lad jumped out of bed, but no sooner had he done so when he fell unconscious to the floor. Mrs. Woods then believed that they had been poisoned. She in some manner staggered and crawled until she reached the doctors' office across the street and when she awakened the doctor, she was taken in and in a feeble manner she explained, as well as she was able, how the entire family was taken so suddenly ill. The doctor gave the woman medicine and hurriedly went to the rescue of the rest of the family. After several hours of hard work the four were pronounced out of danger.

After investigation, it was found that the cover of the coal stove was left slightly open, while the rest of the stove was completed closed. The gas consequently escaped through the cover and caused the asphyxiation.

AGED ENUMERATOR HAS FINISHED JOB



E. L. PARMENTER.

Menominee, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—To Menominee belongs the distinction of having the oldest census enumerator in the United States. Edward L. Parmenter, in his 88th year, has just completed his fifth United States census and his record is unique in the history of the country. He was not an applicant for the post for the census of 1910, being beyond the age fixed as a limit for this service, but his qualifications were so well known that he was requested by Supervisor of the Twelfth Disctrict James Bennett, to take up the work. He rounded up his district, the Third ward of Menominee, on time, and his records in point of neatness will compare favorably with any submitted to the census department in Washington. Mr. Parmenter is one of the oldest citizens in Menominee.

BIG APPORTIONMENT.

Largest Amount in History of North Dakota Soon Available.

Bismarck, N. D., May 7.—The May apportionments from the school funds has been figured out and there is a total of $611,533.98 to be divided among the school districts of the state, being the largest single apportionment that has ever been made in the history of the state. The figures as given out by Superintendent of Public Instruction Walter L. Stockwell show that with a school population in the state of 148,739 there will be a per capita apportionment of $4.11, $4.06 of that coming from the interest and income fund and the other nickel from the fines and forfeitures. The May apportionment for 1910 exceeds the entire annual apportionment of 1908 and will bring the apportionment for the school year, July 1, 1909 to June 30, 1910 up to a grand total of $1,199,148.23, or a little over the $8 per capita. The apportionment will be made the third Monday in May and should be available for use about the first of June.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Menominee — The feature of the annual meeting of the Menominee Woman's club was a decision to make an active campaign for medical inspection of the public schools.

Negaunee — John Curtz, an old and well known resident of Negaunee, contemplates visiting his former home in Germany. He came to this country thirty-five years ago and he has lived over twenty-five years of that time in Negaunee. He has never revisited his native place.

Houghton — The members of the Elks societies of the upper peninsula, who will attend the annual convention and reunion in Detroit in July, will be accompanied by the Calumet & Hecla band.

Ishpeming — Steve Toman, a ball player, and Miss Agnes Rose of Ishpeming, were married Wednesday evening at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage, Rev. C. L. Adams performing the ceremony. The couple left Thursday for Gladstone. Mr. Toman will pitch ball for the Gladstone baseball team this summer.

Marquette — Miss Reta Smith died Thursday at the home of her mother, 131 Arch street. Typhoid fever was the cause of her demise. She contracted this disease last September. She was on the road to recovery when she suffered a relapse early in January. Miss Smith was 17 years of age and is survived by a brother, besides her mother.

Houghton—The criminal calendar for the May term of the Houghton county circuit court, which will open within a few days, will be the heaviest in several years. There will be more than fifty cases on the criminal docket. There are no murder cases. Several attempted murder cases will be tried.

Hancock—Bat Shea died at the St. Joseph's hospital Thursday morning, following an operation performed two weeks ago for a malignant growth. He was 55 years of age, and had resided in Hancock and vicinity for twenty-seven years.

Calumet—Mrs. Oliver Hould, aged 67, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louis King, at Osceola Thursday. The deceased is survived by several sons and daughters in addition to Mrs. King, residing in several sections of the country. Funeral services will be held at Ste. Anne's church at 9:30 Saturday morning and interment will be made at Lakeview.

Houghton—Floyd C. Benjamin, a student at the Michigan College of Mines, and Miss Mollie Higgins, daughter of Mrs. B. Higgins of this village, were married by Rev. A. J. Rezek at St. Ignatius rectory.

Calumet—The Calumet lodge of Elks is planning on a joint celebration of Flag day June 14 with the Hancock lodge in this city. It is expected that a large delegation of the antlered herd from Portage Lake will be present on that occasion.

Hancock—R. J. Ward, aged 62 years, one time night watchman for the Worcester Lumber company at Chassell, died Thursday at his home in that village, ending an illness of a year's duration. A wife, two sons and a daughter survive.

Calumet—Previous to leaving for a visit to his old home in Cornwall, Eng., James Thomas of the Ahmeek Location reported the loss of a roll of bills amounting to $150 and two meerschaum pipes, which he was taking to friends in England. Mr. Thomas said that someone relieved him of the money and pipes, and his friends are investigating the matter.

Hancock—Ray Kerredge, manager of the Kerredge theater, will leave next Monday or Tuesday for Milwaukee, where he will attend an important meeting of the Northwestern Theatrical Managers' association, called for Wednesday at the Plankinton house.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Royalton — A number of fine horses have changed owners in Royalton during the past week. Mike Riley of Foley secured a handsome team from John La Sota at $500, F. G. Noggle secured one of the finest 3-year-old colts in the county, paying above the $250 mark, and Harris Noggle bought a well bred draft mare from Nick Kinzer.

Brainerd — J. C. Lauterwood and P. B. Thomas of Duluth came down in their Stearns automobile, arriving at 5:30 at the Ransford. They left Duluth at 12:30 Wednesday noon, following the Minneapolis line of the Northern Pacific railway and cut square across the country at Fineyson.

Staples — Supt. John Effinger of the city electric light and power plant, has been considering for some time the advisability of utilizing the exhaust steam at the plant to heat some of the buildings in Staples. Outside of the initial cost, the revenue from this source would be profit.

Middle River — The receipts of cream at the creamery are much heavier now than at this time last year and there is every indication of a largely increased business this year over that of last year.

Brainerd — The private hospital formerly conducted by Mrs. Wilhelmina Bartens has been sold to Dr. W. M. Chonling of Minneapolis, who takes possession this week.

Staples — Engineer and Mrs. N. Beach and children, who had been in Florida and other Southern states a couple of months, arrived here Thursday. Mr. Beach left for Jamestown the same day, where he will take the "tramp run."

St. Cloud — Dentists ought to be retained to look after the teeth of patients in all state institutions, according to Supt. Frank L. Randall of the state reformatory at St. Cloud. He brought the point up at a quarterly meeting of state institution heads this week at the board of control office in the capitol.

Princeton — Rural Route No. 5, running out of Princeton, has by order of the postoffice department been extended so as to afford service to thirteen more families, while none have been cut off by the change, which went into effect May 1. The length of the original route was twenty-three and three-eighths miles and the extension now makes it twenty-five and a half miles.

Stillwater — The state prison ball club has been organized for some time and has been practicing. It will go to Afton Sunday afternoon for their opening game of the season. Either Swamma or Quinecy will pitch and E. A. Holt, clerk in the office of the warden, will be behind the bat.

Crookston — Ray, the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Cochrane, who reside on a farm a few miles east of the city, was the victim of a very painful accident Wednesday, as the result of which he suffered a compound fracture of his leg below the knee.

Pine City — The Pine City Electric Power company began furnishing day power this week, as meters have been installed in the business houses and residences where electricity is used. The continual current will prove of great convenience to patrons all along the line.

Ada — Gus Nachtigall died at his home in Ada this week, after an illness of three weeks from a complication of typhoid fever, pneumonia and heart trouble. Deceased was born in Germany in 1871. He leaves a wife and three children and an aged father and sister, who reside north of Ada.

Fertile — A gun club has been organized here with twenty members. G. W. Johnson is president and field manager, and Carl Bakke, secretary and treasurer. Weekly shooting contests will be held at the Fertile fair grounds.

Little Falls — The Pine Tree sawmill was forced to close down Wednesday afternoon because of a broken shaft. The accident which closed the mill is one of the most serious the mill has ever experienced and will cause a shut down of several days. The shaft broken is the main drive shaft, which is fifteen inches in diameter and sixteen feet in length.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Milwaukee—Henry Niedecken, aged 66 years, president of the H. Niedecken company, wholesale stationery, and active in business life in Milwaukee for half a century, died suddenly Friday morning in his home, 673 Cass street, when stricken by apoplexy.

Grand Rapids—The 3-year-old daughter of Merle Bush was rescued from drowning in the Wisconsin river by her mother. The girl was playing with a neighbor's girl and getting too near the river fell in. The other girl ran back and told the mother, who waded out to a depth of four feet.

ACKNOWLEDGE IT.

Duluth Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Duluth given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this:

Mrs. M. McGillivray, 1228½ Superior St., Duluth, Minn., says: "The statements I have previously given for publication in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills have fully expressed my opinion of this remedy. At this time, I gladly confirm all I have previously said." (Statement given in Nov. 1908.)

On Oct. 20, 1904 Mrs. McGillivray gave the following statement: "Kidney trouble clung to me for a year or more and I suffered from dull, heavy pains through the small of my back. I also had headaches, did not rest well and was annoyed by irregular passages of the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills, helped me from the first and soon freed me from my trouble. I have had no need of a kidney remedy since."

THE DEAD KING.

The Leveller, that great democrat who visits palaces and hovels with equal certainty, yesterday ended the brief reign of Edward, seventh of that name and seventh Hanoverian ruler of Great Britain, and the world pulses with sympathy for England in her sorrow.

The functions of the kingship of Britain, in spite of the regal state that surrounds it, are so purely formal that Albert Edward Wettin never has had much opportunity to show what he could do if he had a chance. Nevertheless, he was a fine, upstanding figure of a man, with a very respectable mental equipment that might have made him equal to great emergencies if the business of being king had provided any. On the few occasions in his life when his person was in peril he showed great composure and courage, and in company with an inevitable regret that his life should have been so nearly wasted in such a position, goes a certainty that if he had been gifted by fortune with a place of real power and real opportunity, he would have measured well up to its requirements.

As it was, King Edward lived abundantly, taking his share of the pleasures of life as they appealed to his taste. He had time to set the fashions in wearing apparel during much of his life. He had time to be a thrifty business man, managing his finances with skill and profit. He had time, too, to win the love of his subjects, quite apart from their curious adoration of the kingship itself which has brought about the anomalous condition under which Great Britain maintains itself on good terms with its king, always provided he does not attempt to mix much in public affairs. Great Britain is governed very well indeed, and in spite of its show of monarchy it is in many respects a truer democracy than the United States. All is done in the name of the king in Great Britain, but the king is permitted to do little. Parliament, holding the purse strings, deals liberally with the king and his family, at the same time requiring them to keep their proper places. The "government" is not the king, but the cabinet, an off-shoot of parliament which is peculiarly subject to the popular will as expressed through parliament, and with which the king himself has little influence. Even the speech from the throne, in which the king makes the nearest approach to dealing with legislation, is largely prepared by a cabinet in the selection of which the king has little voice.

So Albert Edward Wettin, being merely king of Great Britain and Ireland, had no such opportunities for statesmanship and public service as fall to the lot of any cabinet minister. It was not permitted, therefore, that he should do much for progress and humanity; but at least they owe him no reproaches. His whole life was spent in the shadow of the throne, his whole training directed by the knowledge that one day he would be king. Thus most of his life was merely passive, a waiting for the real business to which he was born, and which came to him when he had but a few years left to give to it. On the whole, it is rather pathetic, such a life: it has so much show of power and influence, and there is so little substance to that show. Edward recognized, as much as could be expected from a man of his birth and environment, the growing force of democracy, and that he was best beloved of sovereigns was largely due to the fact that he was one of the most democratic and most human of sovereigns. He had abundant tact, and with it many other graces of character that made him for many years "the first gentleman of Europe."

CIVILIZATION AND HAPPINESS.

Not long ago The Herald had to defend Christianity and civilization from the attacks of a pair of correspondents who wanted to make out that barbarism has more to commend it than civilization.

These correspondents might have made a better case than they did if they had been so minded and if they had not been so blinded by their bigoted opposition to Christianity. They could have drawn a strict line between those factors in civilization which make for greater opportunities for human growth and development, and those factors which tempt to decaying luxuries and ease. Attacking these latter things, they would have been worthily engaged; but when they blindly included all Christianity and all civilization in their attack, they destroyed their own case.

It is very questionable whether, on the whole, the conveniences and luxuries that civilization have brought haven't done more harm than good. In so far as they enable man to perform his mission on earth more speedily and more effectively, they work for good. In so far as they work to tempt man from his mission of service and lead him into ways of selfishness, they work for harm. In so far as they tend to make man confuse the means with the end, the machinery with the objective, the profits with the purposes, they are harmful.

And in no way whatever do they work for real happiness, except as they enable mankind to win the happiness that comes of duty well performed.

Did you ever stop to think that when a person seeks real content and real happiness, he is likely to strip off the luxurious appendages of a complex civilization, and get back to first principles and the simple life?

Can any vintage, no matter how rare and choice, quench a wholesome thirst so deliciously as a draft of pure Lake Superior water? And does that water taste a bit better out of a priceless cup of gold than it does out of a tin cup? Not so well, by far.

Speeding in an automobile is exhilarating sport, but can it be compared with a stroll through the woods for pure pleasure and wholesome recreation? In that stroll you give your muscles play, you expand your lungs, you breathe in new life from the pure air, you send your blood bounding with new vigor through your veins, and your mind expands in the companionship of a thousand miracles of nature, any one of which is far more wonderful than the most complex automobile.

In the great cities there are palaces so rich and splendid that monarchs envy their ownership, and these palaces are hotels where, for a price, you may spend your vacation in luxurious surroundings that no luxury-loving emperor of old ever possessed. But how pale are these delights when compared with those of a primitive camp in the wilderness, alongside a murmuring trout stream!

There is more real and abiding satisfaction in a cup of pure water, a walk in the woods, a habitation in the wilderness and a combat with a brook trout, than there is in all the precious vintages ever pressed out of the grape, in all the automobile speeding imaginable, and in all the palaces ever built out of the sweat and groans and tears of the sons of Martha, who toil that the sons of Mary may have slothful and corrupting ease.

THE SOO AND WEST DULUTH.

When the Soo railroad took over the privileges of the franchise given by the city to the Wisconsin Central railroad, it also assumed the obligations included in that contract. Among these obligations was that of building a freight and passenger depot in West Duluth. The West Duluth Commercial club is anxious to know what the Soo is going to do about this matter, and so is all Duluth. If the Soo can with impunity violate one term of its acquired contract, it can violate all of them and make the bargain wholly one-sided. All Duluth, therefore, is vitally interested in the West Duluth depots of the Soo road.

PARTY TREASON.

The reactionary organization in control of the Republican party is highly indignant with the insurgents in congress because they have made common cause with the Democrats when it has been found possible to serve the people by doing so.

When the insurgents have deserted the Republican majority and voted with the Democrats in favor of progressive legislation, they have been charged with party treason, and rebuked from no less a source than the national administration as party traitors.

Yet now that the administration's railroad measure is in danger, and there is a fear that the railroads will not be successful in delaying and defeating public regulation by the creation of a new court of commerce and by shutting the interstate commerce commission off on a sidetrack of uselessness, it is reported that the reactionary organization is making overtures to the reactionary Democrats in the senate, hoping thus to get votes enough to push the program through and to beat the progressive amendments offered by the insurgents and the majority of the Democratic senators.

If it is treason for the insurgents to vote with the Democrats in behalf of the people, what is it when the Republican reactionaries summon the aid of Democratic reactionaries to help them carry out the administration's promises to the railroads?

In point of fact, this intermingling of party votes is a very encouraging sign. The fictitious divisions of partisanship are nothing, any more, but hindrances to real progress. Privilege has kept its sway and public sentiment has been rendered inoperative by these divisions. Progress is attainable, now, only when the progressives in both parties join together in the common interests of all the people.

If these alliances between progressive Republicans and Democrats on the one hand and of reactionary Democrats and Republicans on the other can be made permanent, then the people will be taught how to get results for themselves. If these congressional alliances spread out through the people and bring about a new alignment of voters, by which those who seek the people's good will array themselves under one banner, whatever the device upon it may be, while those who toady to Special Privilege and would betray the people are ranked beneath another banner, then the nation would go forward instead of standing in its tracks fighting itself under false battle cries and with false and confusing party divisions which do not represent the real division in public sentiment.

There is no party treason when progressives in both parties vote together, but there is patriotism. There is no party treason when the reactionaries in both parties work together, because they are getting where they belong. If the people will, they can take a valuable lesson from these divisions in both parties in congress, which typify very clearly the real divisions in the parties outside of congress.

THE RAINY DAY.

The Emporia Gazette tells how "a fine looking old man blew into Emporia the other day and explained to the newspaper fraternity that he was broke and wanted a little help to reach Kansas City, where he had friends who would help him on east." He had been to Colorado for his health, and the Gazette reports that it was a pleasure to "dig up" for him, he was so "different from the hobo who 'worked under Horace Greeley' and has never since taken a bath."

He had done important work for many newspapers of the large cities, and boasted of the large salaries he had drawn. "Yet," continues the Gazette, "as he told his yarn and pocketed a few bones contributed by the Gazette force, it never seemed to occur to him that his position was rather singular. He never said a word about what he had done with the fat wages he talked of. He had nothing to show for his forty years' work but the clothes he stood in. He spoke with great pride of his connection with important papers, and seemed, in fact, rather swelled up and superior when he talked of his past achievements; but the fact that he was dead broke in his old age was not considered worth a word of explanation."

Apparently nobody on the Gazette had the courage to ask for an explanation on this point, though they clearly were entitled to one, and the gay old man drifted on east with his borrowed dollars in his pocket.

The Gazette uses the incident to moralize on the need of keeping in mind the proverbial rainy day, forgetting that to most of us that rainy day is something that is likely to come to the other fellow, but that hardly can come to us. The Gazette forgets, too, that so long as a man has the thickness of skin and plausibility of tongue needed to drift into a newspaper office and collect enough money to carry him a few days longer, rainy days have no terrors for him.

More to the point is the story of a baseball player who had been a star performer in his day, but who was retired at the age of 48. He was too old and stiff to play league ball, and he was hoping for a chance to catch on with some bush league. Meanwhile, he was looking for a job as street car conductor.

That man had drawn fancy wages as a ball player for many years. After spending his youth in perfecting himself for the single purpose of playing ball, and after spending the wages as they came, as lavishly as though he expected to keep right on playing ball until he died of old age, he found himself on the cold world in what ought to be the prime of his life, his wages all gone, his capacity for earning big wages gone with them, and his only hope a job as nickel-catcher on a street car.

Nobody need look far for examples of this sort. And one can hardly look in any direction without seeing young men who are preparing themselves for similar experiences. What proportion of young men, either married or single, are saving with a view to protection against that rainy day? It is very small. What do they expect is to become of them when they are old or ill or out of a job? Can they, in all fairness, ask those who were wise and saved part of their earnings, to take care of them?

Maybe the rainy day is far ahead; maybe it will never come. We hope so. But nevertheless the young man who has it in mind, and is sticking a dollar or so away now and then to get ready for it, is wise indeed.

THE BUILDERS.

To have made the life of one woman a joy and a comfort, to have raised a family of boys and girls upon whose character he has left the impress of his own integrity and courage and honor and lofty purposes—qualities that die not with the man, but are transmitted through generation after generation—surely this is the apex of all true greatness.—Senator Porter J. McCumber of North Dakota.

Senator McCumber deserves to be remembered for that pregnant sentence. It presents an ambition that any man may make his own and by which he can shape his life—an ambition, indeed, which every true man will make his own and by which he will shape his life.

We can't all be statesmen, any more than all soldiers can be generals. But as every soldier can be a good soldier, and do the duties of his rank as they should be done, thus contributing far more than the pages of written history ever show to the making of progress, so every man can be a true man if he will, and every woman a true woman.

The stalwart figure which Senator McCumber's glowing sentence paints in the mind is one that is typical of thousands of heroes who go to their graves unsung, if not unhonored; yet progress and national fiber and hope for humanity all are made up of just such figures. The good that such a man does may not be written large in the pages of his nation's glory, but be sure that it is written somewhere. It is a part of the very body of progress that is too firmly fixed there and too vital to be forgotten.

Best of all, too, the ambition to achieve the beautiful tribute of that sentence is one that needs not interfere with any other ambition. If a young man has determined to be a great lawyer, and is building his character and equipping his mind to that end, still he can be the husband of a good woman and the father of children who shall become good men and women, and he will be the more competent husband and father for the training and mental furnishing that his profession will give him.

If a young man is determined to be a great doctor, a great preacher or a great writer, his capacity for being husband and father, and of giving to his nation the inspiring example of a happy home and the service of well-trained boys and girls, will be all the greater for his success in his chosen field.

Better still, if he finds that his ambition outleaps his powers, and that instead of being a great lawyer, preacher, doctor or writer he is merely a good bookkeeper, clerk, bricklayer or carpenter, still he can be great as the husband of a woman whose life he has made a joy and a comfort, and as the father of "boys and girls upon whose character he has left the impress of his own integrity and courage and honor and lofty purposes." And great indeed must be the man who shines only as a member of a calling or profession, to do greater service to his God and his country than the man who is great as a husband and father, however humble his walk in life may be.

Not every man can be great, but every man can have integrity and courage and honor and lofty purpose. The humble owner of a small shop, the artisan, the workers who delve and hew and spin—all these may have integrity and courage and honor and lofty purpose, and may make their wives happy and their children noble and useful. If they are not honored for it in this world, there must be some place where the honor that is their due will be given unto them; for of such material is builded the greatness and strength and enduring vitality of a nation.

THE OPEN COURT

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

COMES TO DEFENSE OF EVERGLADES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

It is my firm belief that your intentions in opening your columns for "The Open Court" were to give your readers a medium through which they could exchange views on different current topics in a fair and dignified manner and not for the purpose of misleading the public by ridiculing men and things, as some anonymous persons and other parties lately have done.

It seems that the sale of Florida Everglade lands has stirred up a great deal of jealousy in certain quarters. It is, indeed, strange that some people, who claim to have visited the Everglade section, can be so ignorant of the now well-known fact that the old ideas of the Everglades were entirely wrong.

All leading authorities and experts, both government and state, agree that "the Everglades are not a swamp—not a stagnant pool—but an elevated basin of rich prairie land, partly covered with pure water, clear as crystal, that is always flowing." They also claim that there are no insect pests; seldom are alligators seen, excepting in so-called alligator farms, where they are raised for the value of their hides and also sold to tourists.

As regards the drainage of the Everglades the former chief drainage engineer of the United States, J. O. Wright, who is now in charge of the drainage work of the state of Florida, the state drainage engineers and many other experts, all claim the work of reclamation now going on to be perfectly feasible and easy, the land having a greater fall per mile than the Mississippi river. The lands are overflowed by the surplus water from a large lake, thirty-five by forty miles in extent, which, during the rainy season, flows all over the land. Not far from the coast line is a coral reef, which has an elevation of about three feet, and width of an average of three miles, covered with timber. This rim rock, so-called, has impounded the water to a great extent, but is now being pierced by canals connecting with the lake, and by deepening and widening the creeks and rivers flowing through the same, allows the water to find its way more freely to the ocean.

Many reputable and representative men from our part of the state have, within the past few months, made visits of inspection to the Everglades before they and friends have invested in the lands and found conditions as wonderful as described, claiming one acre being much the same as another.

The would-be friends of the public, who pose as advisers, are trying to discredit the truthfulness of these men before the public and their friends, also casting doubts on the ability and veracity of the greatest authorities of our country, thereby, perhaps, causing many investors to lose the money invested. The position they take is most ridiculous and absurd, and is no doubt intended to further some hidden interest of their own. If these persons had the moral courage to come out in the open, they would soon find their position untenable.

The writer has lately returned from nearly three months' visit of inspection of that country and knows whereof he speaks. Respectfully yours,

GEORGE A. WIELAND,

PASTOR REPLIES TO RABBI LEFKOVITS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In your valuable paper of April 30 there is an article on "Prohibition," by Rabbi Lefkovits. In answer thereto may I ask if he is speaking for the whole of Judaism and voicing its sentiment, or his own, when he says: "The attitude of Judaism toward prohibition is unqualified and absolute negation, and we find no warranty for it in the biblical and rabbinical law." Perhaps there are others of his school who think on a different plane. Let us hope so. If wine was an essential feature of old-time biblical ceremonials and sacrifices, that does not make out the case for Christianity, which is a long advance from that period. When the prophet wished to depict the reign of peace on earth, he may have found the simile appropriate, that every man should sit under his own vine and fig tree, but the prophet does not continue the simile and say with a glass of wine in his hand. In what other writings of that period are so many prohibitions as we find in the laws of Moses? Are not the Ten Commandments all of them prohibition?

True our Lord partook of wine at the Paschal supper, also turned the water into wine. If the people of today only partake of wine at these stated periods they will not receive harm, provided they drink the same in substance, quantity and quality. The fact is people today are using substances which are far more deadly and destroying than the wine of Scripture days. How many saloons would there be if they all sold the wine made after the Scripture recipe and nothing else? I don't think the drink business would then be a paying proposition. There would certainly be less need of a Prohibition party. Anti-Saloon league, and other organizations of like character, so needful today for a sweeter, purer, nation. If prohibition is unreligious, as the rabbi says, it is, very, should there have been restrictive laws in the religion of the Jews? Why did not Moses and their leaders only use persuasion in everything? Was it not because strong methods are necessary in connection with certain grave, moral issues; for is it not the wiser plan to strike at an evil in its cause, rather than to play with its effects?

The rabbi says prohibition being based on fear and using for its weapon the strong arm of the law is a reversion to a lower civilization. Is it really so? Did not the Jews, when they relied upon themselves to make their wills the only guide, despising their laws, fall into decay and lower civilization, and at the restoration periods of their national life, did not the leaders of the people read the law and enjoin obedience thereto? Following this obedience there was prosperity. A coming back to the first principles of their law was not a reversion to a lower civilization, but a long stride into a higher. So nations which are amenable to the heart laws of Christianity are in the van of progress, and going on to the highest civilization by a prohibition on their lower social disorders. It was the voices of the people in this land which called their leaders forth and set them the task at the Revolution and was it not these voices which called forth the laws of the nation and ratified them? Was it not the voices of the people as the sound of many waters in the ear of Abraham Lincoln which finally made it illegal for any man to hold his brother in slavery? Let everyone work for the emancipation of the drunk enslaved, but harder against everything of a causatory nature which maketh his brother to offend, the saloon, the brewery, and distillery. If the people do use the strong arm of the law and it is strong enough to support them, it will be because their own hearts are stronger yet, and their wills set on fire to stay not till they see purpose accomplished.

Whence the Word "Gringo?"

San Angelo, Tex., Standard: The Standard has been asked to define the word "Gringo," a term applied by Mexicans to all Americans, but not, as some contend, to all foreigners.

The word Gringo has no equivalent in English or any other language. Its origin came about in this way: During the invasion of Mexico by the American army under Gen. Scott, the old Scottish song, "Green Grow the Rushes O," was quite popular throughout the United States and also the army, and the air became a favorite with the military band which accompanied the invading forces. Hearing this tune played so often in camp, and more especially during the assaults, charges and fighting around Contreras, La Padierna, Molina del Rey, Churubusco and Chapultepec, the Mexicans became familiar with the air, and from prisoners and other sources learned its name, "Green Grow," etc., which they were unable to pronounce according to the American standard, their nearest approach being "Gringo." "Hay viene los Gringos!" (the Green Grows are coming) became a common expression, while the American troops were advancing and fighting their way into the Mexican capital, and unto this day the man from the United States of the North is known among the Mexicans as a Gringo. The name, however, is not used or applied in polite circles; like the word Gachupin as applied to the Spanish, it is used more in a sense of derision than of respect.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Limits of One's Business.

To what extent should we concern ourselves with what seems to be primarily other folks' business, or with the affairs of the world at large? A pretty delicate question. There is usually a sharp rebuke waiting for the man who apparently interferes with matters that are a little outside the range of his immediate responsibility. I happen to belong to a club which without being wildly Socialistic, does what it can to promise a finer public spirit and a better social order. Because we seek to be somewhat idealistic in our conceptions of life we were referred to recently as a group of "high-browed individuals who meddled with other folks' business." The man who passed this facetious comment was convicted a little later of renting his property for immoral purposes. Perhaps if one has to choose between high brows and unclean hands the average man would prefer the former.

An amusing story is told of the great evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, who had the reputation in his native town of Northfield, Mass., of being tremendously interested in all that went on. He used to drive about and catechise the farmers as to their crops and stock, and was not averse now and then to giving them a suggestion. One of these farmers, who had known him from babyhood and who was an uncommonly shrewd and blunt person and a stutterer besides, met him one morning and after exchanging the time of day proceeded as follows:

"D-Dwight, you are a m-might smart f-fellow and you have traveled all over the world, and you can do a l-lot of things, but there is one thing, D-Dwight, that you can't do, and that is m-mind your own business." Mr. Moody loved a joke so well even when it was on himself that he burst into an almost uncontrollable fit of laughter.

In that incident and the farmer's frank remark to his boyhood friend you have the old New England, highly individualistic, independent, self-centered conception of life. Noble though it is, necessary as a part of the perfect philosophy of life, it is woefully incomplete. Of course, Mr. Moody couldn't mind his own business in the sense that the farmer meant. No one can who has felt the impulses of this great age in which we live.

Take the whole missionary business at home and abroad. What is it but a dipping into other folks' business? "Hands off, says the pure individualist, the man who prefers to sit down in his own cosy chimney corner and let the world progress or go to the devil just as it pleases "hands off." What's the use of disturbing the folks that have other religions or no religion, it's pure "butting in." How would you like to have the Buddhists or the Mohammedans come over here and try and convert us? Such talk as that never has any effect on men who have caught the vision of a redeemed humanity.

Or take the movement for restricting the liquor traffic, a plain invasion of a domain that belongs primarily to other people. And yet town after town, city after city, county after county, state after state, are tying stouter and stouter cords about the venders of intoxicating beverages. An altogether wrong procedure on the supposition that we must attend to our own business and to it alone.

Or note the various checks upon business in general that have been devised in recent years. Measures restricting the hours of labor, the height of buildings, measures, safeguarding freight brakemen and factory workers, measures forbidding except under specified conditions the employment of women and children, have first been agitated by a few then demanded by the many and finally enacted into law If everybody had gone along all these years just minding his own little business, just tending his own little dooryard, just praying, "Bless me and my wife, my son John and his wife, us four and no more," this tremendous advance in public policies would never have been registered.

No, Mr. Strict Constructionist, you are entirely in the wrong and behind the times. Never again try to stab a man who is honestly trying to help the world forward by telling him to go about his business. This was the angry suggestion which a rich man once made to his wife after Father Taylor, the celebrated preacher to sailors, had been interviewing her about her soul. "Husband, she replied, "if you had heard him talk to me you would have thought he was about his business."

Whatever relates to the lifting of human burdens and the suppression of wrong is your business and mine, friend. This altrustic age has settled that point forever.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1890.

•••The output of the Imperial flour mill for the week ended last night was 10,902 barrels, a daily average of 1,832 barrels, by far the largest output yet made and nearly the full capacity of the mill.

•••At the time of John L. Simmons' discharge on his second trial for the murder of Cook at Tower, it was stated that he had invented a compass of peculiar make. Simmons has succeeded in getting this invention patented and will probably sell the right to manufacture to a Troy, N. Y., firm. He has refused an offer of $1,000 cash for a third interest.

•••The Duluth & Winnipeg Railroad company has decided to increase its capital stock to $2,000,000, double the present figure. It will be paid into the treasury during the summer and will be used in construction. Foley Bros. have been awarded the contract for the extension of 150 or 200 miles to the international boundary, and by 1891 trains will be running to Winnipeg.

•••The chamber of commerce has passed a resolution requesting Mayor Davis to appoint Charles E. Shannon as successor to William F. Phelps, resigned, as railroad commissioner of Duluth.

•••From the present outlook, work will begin this year on the Duluth & Northwestern, the new road from Duluth to the iron country and Winnipeg. Capt. W. H. Smallwood has been engaged as right-of-way agent and attorney.

•••J. C. Howard & Co. have made all arrangements for the development of their gold property near Helena, Mont. A. R. McLean of Duluth will superintend the erection of the plant, and leaves for the West today for that purpose.

•••The godfather of the townsite of New Duluth was M. B. Harrison. He started the idea with a purchase of 760 acres about seven months ago, and although he has sold largely of his original holdings to carry out his railway and mining plans, he still has one-fifteenth of the land of the associated owners.

THE RETIREMENT OF ALDRICH

By SAVOYARD.

I do not believe the retirement of Nelson W. Aldrich and Eugene Hale from the United States senate is an unmixed blessing. We have fallen on times when presidents have "policies," and if that idea goes unchallenged and unchecked it is but a few days till congress will degenerate, as did the Roman senate, and convene for no purpose other than to register a master's will. Where is there any authority in the Constitution conferring on the president the prerogative to imagine any policy except an advisory one? Nobody but congress can institute a "policy" under our system, and if congress had not been a craven coward Theodore Roosevelt's bluff would have been called, and the government of this country moved from the White House back to the capitol edifice "at the other end of the avenue," where it belongs.

The fault of our system is that it lodges so much power in the discretion of the president. He has more "patronage" than all the crowned heads of Europe combined, and when we reflect that the average statesman in either house of congress has thoroughly persuaded himself that the greatest calamity that can befall this country is his defeat for re-election, it is no wonder that the president has usurped the powers of congress to make laws and annexed them to his prerogative like the savage that hangs his enemies' scalps to his belt.

Nelson W. Aldrich is the one man who is strong enough to restore to congress its constitutional office of asserting policies, and even he shrinks from the job. He spent the radiant spring and the glorious summer of his career conferring on monopolies the right of unjust and unconstitutional taxation, and now, in the wane of a sumptuous autumn, after making the meanest tariff that ever was made, he abdicates and leaves the field to the insurgents, no one of whom dares to challenge executive usurpation, and all of whom glory in Theodore Roosevelt, who has done more to debauch American politics and make impotent the congressional function than all the rest of our leaders together.

I believe he will be the next president if he wants the job. Then and in that event the empire will supplant the republic, and all America will be ruled from Washington with a rod of iron.

"Aldrich of Rhode Island," was the second name on the roll of the Forty-sixth congress that used to be called by Tom Pettit of Kentucky, and Nell Brown of Tennessee, the reading clerks of that body. Nobody thought anything of Aldrich then, in 1879-1880. People looked at Randall, Carlisle, Garfield, John Randolph Tucker, William R. Morrison, S. S. Cox, Joe Blackburn, Frank Hurd, Proctor Knott, Alexander S. Stephens,. Tom Reed, Fernando Wood, "Pig Iron" Kelley, Roger Q. Mills and others without thought that the quiet, sedate, black-eyed and rather stately man from Rhode Island would develop into the most powerful legislator our country has produced in the 121 years of the republic's existence.

In the early days the debates in congress were acadomic, and that made Clay, Calhoun, Webster, and a hundred others of their caliber. Can you fancy Robert Toombs or William L. Yancey, Stephen A. Douglas or Rufus Choate, wading through an enormous bulk of statistics? Tom Marshall in the field of oratory and speculative statesmanship was immeasurably the superior of Nelson W. Aldrich; but when it came to laying a tax, one of the Rhode Islander was worth a dozen of the Kentuckian. Marshall was the slave of the imagination; Aldrich is the child of experience, and he had the gift to make his own daddy—that same experience—and dress him as he saw fit.

Dolliver and Cummins both are orators. Aldrich talks, and a not very entertaining talker is he at that; and yet he uptipped both of them in the making of a Republican tariff for monopoly only last summer. The greatest speeches the American congress ever heard would not interest Aldrich at all.

Let me tell an anecdote. There lived a fine old fellown down in Barren county, Ky., many years ago. He was a practical man and the wealthiest citizen of the county. Humphrey Marshall came that way, and made one of his powerful stump speeches and the people were talking about what a wonderful man he was. Then it was that old Lause Trigg, who was on the other side, rose up and confounded the crowd with this terrible interrogatory: "If he is such a great man, where the hell is his money?"

That is Aldrich. What "have you got" to show for it? What have you done? He would hold an operative in a Rhode Island cotton mill greater than Daniel Webster if the man had devised a way to produce a bolt of calico 10 cents cheaper than it had been produced before. It is doubtful if he ever heard of "Junius," and it is certain that he never read Junius. He never read Swift's "Tale of a Tub." Perhaps he did read the "Drapier Letters," but if he did, I doubt if he did, it was to convince himself, or rather to fortify himself, in his advocacy of the gold standard. He believes in an oligarchy. So do I; but I would incline to that intelligent, that virtuous, that patriotic oligarchy we had in the "Old South," the very best government mankind has yet invented, or will invent; but it is eradicated and gone forever. But it had for foundation stones justice and honor, economy and honesty.

The oligarchy that Aldrich would have and that he has done so much to create is the boards of directories composed of the captains of industry. He would not give one materialist like Carnegie for a regiment of sentimentalists like Lamar. As for me, I would not give one Lamar for an army of Carnegies reinforced by another army of Rockefellers. One virtuous sentiment, one patriotic impulse, is worth more than the gold of Ophir, added to the jewels of Golconda. Aldrich calls that sort of talk rot.

He went to the senate to succeed an old granny in war and an old incapable in politics, Ambrose E. Burnside, of the famous whiskers. Conkling had just retired in disgust, and Blaine had just left the senate to run the administration of Garfield. Ben Hill, Lamar, Beck, Morgan, Pugh, Garland, Bayard, Vest, Vance, Hamilton and Harris were there from the South, and from the North were Platt of Connecticut, Ben Harrison, Dan Voorhees, Allison, Ingalls, Hoar, Sherman, Edmunds and Morrill.

Nobody supposed that this young senator from Rhode Island would rival, much less eclipse, any one, the least one, of these; but he did, and a time came when he was the chief lawgiver of the United States. He even bullied Theodore Roosevelt into the acceptance of the "Wall Street" amendment, alias the Allison amendment, to the rate bill.

We may be sure that Aldrich was active in the making of the tariff of 1883. It is certain that he had more to do with the enactment of the McKinley tariff than McKinley himself. He dictated the cotton schedule of the Wilson bill, and that is why a Democratic president refused to sign the bill. He made the Dingley bill and he made the Payne bill.

Aldrich is no orator. He is fluent, but not distinct. Like old Holman of Indiana, the "great objector," he has but one gesture, and that of a woman scattering oats to a hen and chickens. He simply talks; but he always knows what he is talking about, and did you know, that is a great thing—in a senator in the United States congress?

John G. Carlisle is a genius. Among his accomplishments is that of lightning calculator. As a mathematician he is among the first of the guild. He needs no slate, but depends upon a mental process. After delivering a powerful speech against the McKinley bill in the house of representatives of the Fifty-first congress, he entered the senate, as the successor of James B. Beck, before the session was over. The cotton schedule came on, and Carlisle debated it. He devoted his argument against the cumulative taxation—specific and ad valorem, and, perhaps, "compensatory." Be that as it may, Aldrich had the temerity to tackle the most exquisite intellect of that generation. It was the clerk turned statesman vs. the statesman turned clerk.

Carlisle never referred to a paper. He had "specific" and "ad valorem" and "compensatory" at fingers' ends. In the twinkling he made the calculation that was absolutely inexorable and conclusive. But the children of Cain swarmed round the corridors, hungry for doubloons. I fear if I were to finish that figure from Edgar Allan Poe, somebody might take it as offense, and if by eating meat I offend my brother, then shall I eat no more forever. Be that as it may be, Carlisle emerged from that conflict the first debater in the United States congress. But only a little while and we had the Kentucky that aped the Rome that refused a statute to Cato. How is it Bolingbroke puts it?

"Cato lost the election of praetor and that of counsel, but is any one blind enough to imagine that these repulses reflected any disgrace on him? The dignity of those two magistracies would have been increased by his wearing them. They suffered, not Cato."

"The bearings of these observations lays in the application on 'em."

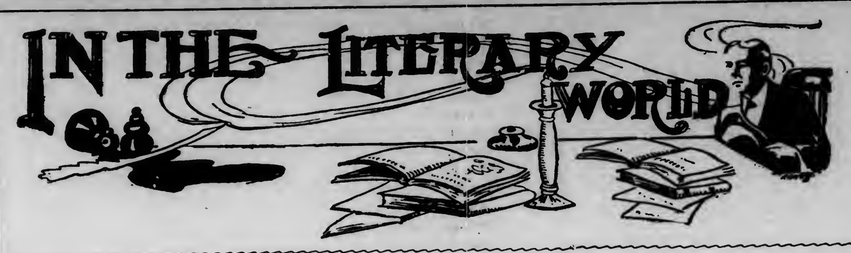
Clay, Benton, Douglas, Fessenden and Conkling were all leaders of the senate successively. Perhaps to the list may be added John Sherman. But none of these ever wielded the power that Nelson W. Aldrich has exercised in that body the past twenty years. Calhoun, Webster, Toombs, McDuffie, Wright, Marcy, Jefferson Davis, John J. Crittenden, James B. Beck, John G. Carlisle, Allen G. Thurman, James G. Blaine, Matt Carpenter, Ben Hill, L. Q. C. Lamar, George G. Vest, Ben Harrison, George F. Hoar, Thomas F. Bayard, and numerous others made the senate illustrious, but no one of them ever grasped the power held by Nelson W. Aldrich, the simple business man from Rhode Island.

For one Democrat, I am sorry he is going to leave, and if Theodore Roosevelt shall succeed Taft in the White House, the absence of Aldrich from the senate will prove a positive calamity.

Next week I shall try to write something about Eugene Hale, the right arm of Mr. Aldrich.



THE GODPARENTS. By Grace Sartwell Mason. Boston: Houghton-Mifflin company. $1.10 net.

Here is a very charming tale of how a godmother and godfather won a 12-year-old boy from bad influences and native wildness, and of how in doing so, they discovered possibilities in life that neither had dreamed of. Jane Merriman, 32 years old, self-sufficient, level-eyed, strong-nerved and a little selfish, was aboard a vessel just about to start for England, where she expected to stay two years. She was just ending her second visit to her native land in ten years, and was realizing that she was in a fair way to become "a woman without a country." She found among her letters one from an old friend of the family, a dying grandmother, asking her to save Billy Gordon. John Durand, like her a godparent of Billy, came aboard and had her off the boat with her luggage before she had finished explaining that she couldn't possibly change her arrangements. He convinced her that London was not worth more to her "than the body and soul of a child," and he carried Angelique, Jane's French implacable maid, off the vessel when she refused to come.

They found that Billy Gordon was hailed by the village in which he lived as the original Bad Boy, and that he was under the control of a determined elderly female who had camped in the Gordon household and intended to remain there for her own good. She told lies about them to Billy, and Billy took to the woods. They had to follow him, and to win him had to camp out and charm his notice by expert fly-casting, expert campfire-making, and other devices. Meanwhile, a development was going on in the personalities of John and Jane, and the story comes to an exciting climax in the teeth of a forest fire.

The story is bright, wholesome, and thoroughly entertaining. It will be found eminently worth reading.

THREE PLAYS: Hamilton's Second Marriage; Thomas and the Princess; and The Modern Way. By Mrs. W. K. Clifford. New York: Mitchell Kennerley. $1.50 net.

The reading of plays, nowadays, seems to vie with the reading of novels in public interest. Most of the successes find their way into book form, either as published plays or as novelized plays; and on the whole the play itself usually is vastly preferable to the novelization.

In this volume three entertaining plays by a British playwright are gathered; the first one dealing with the problem of divorce, the second with the story of a chorus girl who becomes rich in his uncle's aid and successful by his own ability, and returns to England to win the daughter of the family whose boots he used to black, and the third a lively comedy of the fashionable world of London, with a clever mix-up of matrimonial motives as its theme. Only one of the plays, the first, has been produced; yet it is distinctly inferior in interest to the other two.

The playwright has an unpleasant fashion of using commas and dashes for nearly all purposes of punctuation, creating an effect almost like that of illiteracy; but the ability shown in the construction of plots and the writing of clever lines proves that it is not illiteracy, but carelessness.

STUDIES IN WIVES. By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes. New York: Mitchell Kennerley. $1.50.

Here are six piquant stories, all dealing with matrimony and with interesting people whose characters are very firmly outlined. Though in every instance there is a divorce or some form of infidelity involved, the treatment is neither offensive nor gingerly. The style is vigorous and direct, the "studies" are penetrating and original, and the result, in spite of one or two rather ghastly elements, is pleasing and entertaining.

JUST BETWEEN THEMSELVES. By Anne Warner, author of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," the "Susan Clegg Books," etc. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $1.50.

Mrs. Warner knows how to write a lightly entertaining tale, with humor verging closely enough on the farcical to make it thoroughly enjoyable. This is a story of how one uncongenial couple complicated the house party of six, bent on having a good time in the little German town of Dichtenburg, and the trials and tribulations that befell them because they weren't alike in tastes and ways. Flirtatious and vain Mrs. Ellerslie, jealous and flirtatious Mr. Ellerslie and flirtatious and stupid Mr. Dunn kept the innocent other three people in a turmoil, and peace didn't descend upon their camp until the Ellerslies left. It is a prettily vivacious story, entertaining from cover to cover.

Of Books and Writers.

F. Berkeley Smith, whose latest book, "A Village of Vagabonds" Doubleday, Page & Co., are bringing out in May, has a weakness for cheap shows. A friend says that the "legit" has no attractions for Smith, but that he will make gigantic efforts to get intimate with the performers and managers in the country one-ring circus or a dime museum. His experiences with these people have given him anecdotes of the road by the score.

Many instinctively incline to discredit or at any rate to discount much that is written nowadays on political and economic subjects, because they cannot believe the writers impartial or unprejudiced. No such reservation can be made, however, in regard to Judge Ben B. Lindsey's straightforward and powerful account of the genesis and development of the Denver Juvenile court. His stirring story, written in collaboration with Harvey J. O'Higgins, has now run its course in Everybody's Magazine. It has just been brought out in book form by Doubleday, Page & Co., under the title, "The Beast."

If you are a reader of the late F. Marion Crawford, whose last novel, "The Undesirable Governess," has just gone forth to the world, from the Macmillan company, and if you would like to know a little of the man behind the books, the catalogue of his library at St. Agnello di Sorrento Naples, which is about to be sold, will more than interest you. "Your first impression on running it over," writes the London correspondent of the New York Times is that the many presentation copies of books which he must have received from brother writers are not here. There is a numb pathos in seeing such gifts put to the hammer, and only one or two have crept into the Marion Crawford list entered for dispersal at Sotheby's. That, you feel, is as it should be, because the 'presentation copy' of a friend is a thing which should not readily be alienated. On the personal line, indeed the auctioneer has nothing stronger to say than that 'almost every volume contains the pictorial book plate of the late owner.'

"A second thing which you say to yourself as you go over the Marion Crawford catalogue is that here was the library of a working novelist. Historical works are numerous especially those relating to America, England, and Italy. Biography the handmaid of history, is also strong, and the same may be said of travel, poetry, and fiction—In each case works by the great writers, Shakespeare, Byron, Coleridge, Longfellow—you meet them and all their great kith and kin in editions which have a note of distinction, if they are rarely to be actually called 'rare editions.' Clearly Marion Crawford did not run after the really rare edition; he was not a collector in that sense. What he did was to gather into his library proved editions of proved authors with usefulness or interest for a modern novelist. Take his edition of Bulwer Lytton, which is in sixteen half-calf volumes published as long ago as 1851. Or, again, take his edition of Fenimore Cooper, in half-calf gilt, which makes thirty-three volumes and which was published in 1852. Early standard editions of the standard writers; that, perhaps, might be said to be the note of Marion Crawford's library, in so far as it will appear for sale in Sotheby's auction rooms."

Clarence L. Cullen, whose recent novel, "The Eddy," written around "an aftermath of the divorce problem," is attracting wide attention, was for many years one of the "bright young men" of the New York Sun's staff of special writers. His "Tales of the Ex-Tanks," published a decade ago, achieved a notable success in its exposition of the drifting impulses of men engaged in sowing their wild oats. His mastery of a unique "slang style" was exhibited in the exhilirating racing stories which formed a widely-quoted feature of the Sunday edition of the New York Sun for a long period. These racing stories were grouped in a book entitled "Taking Chances," published by Dillingham. Mr. Cullen spent a considerable portion of his young manhood in the South Seas of the Pacific, and his magazine stories depicting the dreamy life among the lotus islands are in odd contrast, as is the deft and flowing style of "The Eddy," to his "Ex-Tanks" method of writing. Mr. Cullen is not yet 40, and lives in Atlantic City.

A certain literary critic has expressed the opinion that the book really worth while is the one written from experience. Here is an experience of Alexander Irvine's, a typical one of many. It may be found on page 173 of "From the Bottom Up," published by Doubleday, Page & Co., which is the unique autobiography of this ditch digger, soldier, miner, socialist, preacher.

"One night after a few days' involuntary fast I found in the hut 2 cents. To the oity I went and bought two bananas—one I ate on the way back and the other I put in my hip pocket. "There were no streets, no lights, no sidewalks in that region. As I came to a railroad arch on the edge of the squatter community I saw a figure emerge from the deep shadows. I knew instantly it was to be held up, but as life was rather cheap down there I was not sure what would accompany the the assault. A second figure emerged and when I came within a few yards of them I whipped the banana from my pocket and pointing it as one would a revolver, I said—Move a muscle, either of you, and I'll blow your brains out!"

The drastic method prover effective.

The New York Sun in an article on the best selling modern fiction, gave the results of an investigation made by the Bookman, the object of which was to ascertain which were the twelve best selling novels for a period of five years. The list as finally drawn up was headed by Owen Wister's The Virginian. Others which are included among the twelve were Charles Major's Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall, Winston Churchill's Coniston and Owen Wister's Lady Baltimore.

A similar investigation of books of a religious flavor placed James Lane Allen's The Choir Invisible and The Reign of Law prominent among the leaders.

Among the Magazines.

Theodore Roosevelt's portrait seasonably appears on the cover of the World's Work for May. It is a new one, taken in Africa, and below it is printed "What Next?" These words also form the subject of the editorial article in this number. There is no one in Iowa, hardly anyone in the Middle West, and few well informed people elsewhere, who do not know Henry Wallace, the apostle of good agriculture and good politics. In the May number he tells clearly just "What the Middle West Wants." How the telephone is superseding the telegraph messenger boy, and how many other advances in telephony are close at hand, is told by Herbert N. Casson, in "The Future of the Telephone." Mr. Casson has already discussed in former numbers the past and the present of the telephone, and this final article is as interesting and instructive as the preceding ones have been. The new condition of the world's finances, which tends to prohibit war, is explained by Norman Angell in an article entitled, "A New Reason for Peace." It is the result of a book by that author, which set all Europe in discussion. "The Conservation of Capital" is the subject of the sixth and final installment of James J. Hill's series, which will shortly appear in book form.

On his return from Panama Editor Joe Chaple of the National Magazine proceeds to prepare an exhaustive and elaborately illustrated account of his pilgrimage to the Isthmus, under the simple, impressive title, "The Panama Canal As It Is." The article is preceded by "An Industrial Epic," a versatile prose poem, contributed by Prof. L. H. Bailey of Cornell university, who was on the isthmus with the editorial party. The readers are furnished with a specially prepared, two-page map in colors, which has been pronounced far superior to anything yet published. The map alone is well worth the entire price of the magazine, because it tells at a glance the course of the canal, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and gives concise outlines of locks and dam. The Gatun locks are shown in red, and the forms of the huge monoliths stand out plainly—in fact, everything is so clearly reproduced that it is the next best thing to a trip to the Isthmus.

The feature of the May number of the Metropolitan Magazine is an article on the late E. H. Harriman called "Had Harriman Lived," by "An Associate." The writer gives some facts about Harriman's financial transactions not hitherto published, which are of much news interest and throw a new light on Harriman's character. Another important and timely article is the acute analysis of the New York police situation by Carl Hovey. This is the concluding article of Mr. Hovey's series on "The Police Question." New York's Latin quarter is located and described by Walter Pritchard Eaton and illustrated with drawings by Walworth Stilson. Bailey Millard in "Out With the Johnnie Raws" follows the fortunes of the recruit from his enlistment through his training at Fort Slocum, New York.

The North American Review for May presents a table of contents of extraordinary interest. It makes a departure and opens with a poem, "Michelangelo," by Rhys Carpenter, a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, England. President Woodrow Wilson contributes a closely analyzed article on "Hide-and-Seek Politics." Following this is a clear statement by Philip Loring Allen on the cumbrous form of the Australian ballot in an article entitled, "The Multifarious Australian Ballot." The eloquent style the readers of Swinburne's prose are accustomed to will be found in an essay of his entitled "The Early Plays of Beaumont and Fletcher." Herbert Croly has a timely article on "Democratic Factions and Insurgent Republicans." Major General W. H. Carter U. S. A., makes a strong plea for proper military equipment in an article on "Military Preparedness." "The Right to Strike; Its Limitations" is a keen presentation of the legal aspect of this important question by Joseph J. Feely.

Some unpublished letters of Edmund Clarence Stedman, written to his family, his friends, and newspapers with which he was connected in 1861-62, and edited by his daughter, Laura Stedman, under the title, "A Poet in War-Time," appear in Harper's Magazine for May. In this same number Robert W. Bruere, General Agent of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, writes of that society as "The Good Samaritan, Incorporated." Mary Heaton Vorse, in the opening article, furnished with Nordfeldt etchings, characterizes Tangier as "The Infidel City," and Olivia Howard Dunbar recalls Jacques Coeur, counsellor and creditor of Charles VII as "A Merchant Prince of the Middle Ages." There is a sympathetic description of the isolated "Aran Islands" by Maude Radford Warren, and a novel account by Pallip Verrill Mighels of "Ancient Crafts in Modern New York."

There is a startling interest in the account given in the opening pages of the Atlantic for May by Charles Terry Delaney of the chances taken by the officers of ocean liners in order to gratify the tourists' demand for quick passage. Lieut. Delaney, who is an officer of long service, turns inside out his professional knowledge, telling how record passages are invariably "faked," how frequently "nuances" are taken in order to land passengers a few hours earlier, and how vessels are often entrusted to men worn by watching beyond the point where they can be of real service. It all makes a most illuminating story. To this May number of the Atlantic John Burroughs contributes a typical paper, "Through the Eyes of the Naturalist," while other contributions of importance are Sydney Brooks' "England and Germany," William Peter Hamilton's "The Case for the Newspapers," "Does It Pay to Serve the United States?" a searching analysis of civil service conditions by an ex-official, "On the Road to Oregon," by Charles M. Harvey, and Walter Prichard Eaton's very just estimate of the value of "A Year at the New Theater."

So keen is the call of the out-of-doors these days that only fiction of the most engaging sort can command attention. It is safe to say, however, that the May Lippincott's will not go unread. The novelette—complete, of course—is "The Glowworm," by Will Levington Comfort, whose new novel, "Routledge Rides Alone," is keeping the booksellers busy supplying the demand for it. "The Glowworm" is also full of adventure and swift action. The heroine is a young newspaper woman, who goes to a small but turbulent island in the Caribbean in pursuit of a man who has been denounced as a defaulter. There is a strong love interest, and the characters are all clearly drawn and very human. "The Glowworm" will enhance its author's growing reputation. "The Red of Justice," by Mary Imlay Taylor, is a short story of unusual charm. "Gran'ma," by Luellen Teters Bussenius, relates a Decoration day incident. "Policeman Flynn and the Tame Bear," by Elliott Flower, is funny.

The special features of the May number of the American Review of Reviews are the article on "The Home-Coming of Roosevelt," written by Walter Wellman, who is a member of the Roosevelt party in Europe, with editorial comment on Col. Roosevelt's return; the story of the decennial census-taking now in progress, by the director of the census, E. Dana Durand; an exposition of "The Burden of Waste in Public Expenditure," by ex-Governor Myron T. Herrick of Ohio; a plea for the replacing of the convention system, in party politics by the direct primary, with special reference to the New York situation, by Robert S. Binkerd; an illustrated survey of "South American Progress and Prospects," apropos of the centennial anniversaries of Latin-American independence, by Albert Hale; an account of the recent International medallic exhibition in New York, by the Hon. A. P. Andrew, director of the mint, with reproductions of many of the medals; and a brief sketch of A. Radclyffe Dugmore, exponent of the new art of nature photography, by H. W. Lanier.

The leading place in the Engineering Magazine for May is given to the fourth installment of H. L. Gantt's series of papers on the task and bonus system of compensation and its effect on efficiency of operation. This article exhibits actual results secured in a variety of cases, under differing conditions, with all the essential detail of each workman's record. A series of striking charts, printed in two colors, show graphically the tendencies and the outcome, both individual and average, of the introduction of the bonus system in fixing habits of industry in workmen.

The death of Mark Twain is made the subject of a biographical appreciation in the issue of Harper's Weekly for April 30th, by Albert Bigelow Paine, who acted as secretary to Mr. Clemens, and whose contribution, therefore, is and whose contribution, therefore, is the most authentic of all accounts of the dead writer's life. In the same issue her royal highness the duchess of Aosta describes her hunting expedition through British Central Africa. Edward Hungerford contributes an article entitled "The Night-Glow of the City."

The current springtime number of the Woman's Home Companion contains an extraordinary variety of spring and summer suggestions. The cover design is unusually attractive. A superb new painting by Jessie Willcox Smith, "Let Dogs Delight to Bark and Bite," is reproduced in full color on a large mat. The fiction is evidently the result of the most careful selection among the popular authors. "The Empty House," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, is concluded with dramatic force. "The House of Healing," by Juliet Wilbor Tompkins' enticing serial, adds another installment to its popularity. Annie Hamilton Donnell draws the simple story of a lonely college girl in "The Family of Terese," and the late Myra Kelly's East side children once more make us smile in "Baby's Babies."

Bigelow; "The Reorganization of American Farming," by Prof. Homer C. Price; "Insects and Entomologists, Their Relation to the Community at Large," by Prof. J. B. Smith; "Ancient Climates of the West Coast," by Prof. James Perrin Smith; "Some Tests of Academic Efficiency," by President Richard C. Maclaurin; "The Prophecy of Francis Bacon," by Prof. Ralph Barton Perry; "John Dalton and His Achievement; A Glimpse across a Century," by Prof. R. M. In the May number of Success Magazine there appears under the title of "Uncle Sam in Blunderland," the first installment of a series of articles by Arthur L. "The Woman's National Game" is an interesting article on the feminine sporting instinct for bargain hunting. "Big Business—Our Master or Our Servant," concludes Charles Edward Russell's series, "The Power Behind the Republic."

A beautiful painting by Wyeth is reproduced on the cover of the May month-end issue of the twice-a-month Popular Magazine. It is a typical country scene, full of charm—a painting that any art collector would be glad to own. E. Phillips Oppenheim begins a new mystery story which promises to be even more popular than "The Malefactors" which, prior to its appearance in book form, was printed serially in this magazine. Oppenheim's new story is called "The Last Ambassador," and tells of the strange adventures of a Brazilian millionaire and his lovely daughter while visiting Europe. The chief of the famous "Apaches" of Paris has an important part to play in the drama.

In Scribner's Magazine for May Theodore Roosevelt's narrative describes a journey to Lake Naivasha with several exciting hippo hunts. when the huge beasts actually swam under the boat in which the sportsmen were and bumped it almost to the point of upsetting. In this hunt Kermit succeeded in photographing a hippo charging, with its mouth open. Prof. Laughlin has a thoughtful, carefully elaborated article on "The Increased Cost of Living," in which he reaches the conclusion that "the rise of prices now most discussed, such as those of the food products, is due to special causes and not to gold." He believes that part of it is due to a reaction from a time of depression and part to the powerful control of prices by business organizations. Other causes are high tariffs, agricultural readjustment, higher wages, and the increased expenditures of the rich. "City Building in Germany," by Frederic C. Howe, who is an authority on civic questions, will be a revelation to most American readers. In it he shows how far ahead of other nations modern Germany is in united effort to beautify and make more comfortable and more industrially convenient its smaller cities as well as the more important ones.

The Strand Magazine for May appears in a changed and more attractive form, having an "all over" cover in three colors of artistic design. The contents, too, are more than ordinarily excellent—the fiction writers including such popular authors as W. W. Jacobs, H. G. Wells, A. E. W. Mason, E. Nesbit and James Barr. The articles are of value and interest, that on "Color Blindness and Its Dangers," by Dr. Ibbridge Green, of the International code of signals committee being a valuable contribution on an increasingly serious subject. Dr. Green declares that the official eye tests used in England are scandalously inefficient and affirms that there are a great many railway servants, sailors, pilots and others who are now carrying on their avocations to the direct danger of themselves and others.

The Wide World for May is full of exciting stories of adventure and queer experiences in out-of-the-way places. Gunner Adams of the U. S. S. Michigan recounts an appalling experience which he had in 1905 while the North Atlantic fleet, under Rear Admiral R. B. Evans, was engaged in mine laying. The two serials "Travel and Adventure on a Canadian Borderlands," and "After Polar Bears in the Arctic," are continued. H. H. Dunn describes his visit to the island of Tiburon, and V. Pitt-Kethley gives a charming account of "The Wooing of Miss Chrysanthemum."

Among the salient features of the May Century unusual importance attaches to the paper on "College Men and the Bible." It sets forth the stimulating facts of a widespread revival of interest among intelligent young men in the text and teachings of the Scriptures. The movement is being guided by an international committee of the Y. M. C. A. from all denominations, and more than 60,000 students are already enrolled. The article is contributed by Clayton Sedgwick Cooper, who is the secretary charged with organizing the work in the colleges, and who has just returned from a special mission to India, China, Corea and Japan, where Bible study is spreading with surprising enthusiasm, as will be recounted by Mr. Cooper in the June and July issues of the magazine. The probable nearness of the world to secure and swift intercourse by aerial transit is set forth with sensational force of fact by an article entitled "Over Sea by Airship." It is the Joint contribution of T. R. Macmechen and Carl Dienstbach, who are special students of aeronautics, and are in close touch with the German experimenters at the head of the world's advance in airship construction.

The leading articles in the May number of The World Today are: "Alaska's Enormous Coal Reserve," by Richard Hamilton Byrd, a revelation of the undeveloped resources of Alaska; "New York's Marvelous Transformation," by John A. Offord, showing the surprising development of the city, and "Breaking Down Ward Lines in American Cities," by Carl Dehoney, an account of the rapid spread of the commission form of city government. Other articles are: "Belshazzar's Feast of Party Politics," an editorial dealing with present political conditions; "Honduras; A Land of the Future," by Nevin O. Winter; "The Japanese Industrial Revolution," by Edwin Maxey; "Alias Jimmy Valentine," condensed, by Lucy France Pierce; "Petty Gambling, the Problem of the Poor," by Elias Tobenkin; "Posing the Rocky Mountain Bear," by Ivah Dunklee.

Can This Man Read Your Life?

The rich, poor, exalted and humble seek his advice on Business, Marriage, Friends, Enemies, Changes, Speculations, Love Affairs, Journeys and all events of Life.

MANY SAY HE REVEALS THEIR LIVES WITH AMAZING ACCURACY.

Free Test Readings Will Be Sent for a Short Time to All Duluth Herald Readers.

Has the veil of mystery that has so long shrouded the ancient sciences been raised at last? Can it be that a system has been perfected that reveals with reasonable accuracy the character and disposition of an individual, and so outlines the life as to assist in avoiding errors and taking advantage of opportunities?

Roxroy, a man who has for twenty years been delving into the mysteries of the occult, making a scientific study of the various methods of reading the lives of people, seems to have reached a higher round in the ladder of fame than his predecessors. Letters are pouring into his office from all parts of the world telling of the benefits derived from his advice. Many of his patrons express a belief in him as a man gifted with some strange, mysterious power, but he modestly asserts that what he accomplishes is due alone to an understanding of natural laws.

He is a man of kindly feeling toward humanity, and his manner and tone immediately impress one with his sincere belief in his work. A huge stack of grateful letters from people who have received readings from him adds to other convincing proofs as to his ability. Even Astrologers and Palmists admit that its system surpasses anything yet introduced.

The Rev. G. C. H. Hasskarl, Ph. D., Pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, in a letter to Prof. Roxroy, says: "You are certainly the greatest specialist and master of your profession. Every one consulting you will marvel at the correctness of your detailed personal readings and advice. The most sceptical will result you again and again after corresponding with you once."

If you wish to take advantage of Roxroy's generous offer and obtain a free reading, send your date, month and year of birth, state whether (Mr., Mrs. or Miss) and also copy the following verse in your own handwriting:

I have heard of your power
To read people's lives,
And would ask what for me
You have to advise?

Be sure to give your correct name, birth date and address and write plainly. Send your letter to ROXROY, Dept. 54c, No. 177a Kensington High Street, London, W., England. If you wish, you may inclose 10 cents (U. S. A. stamps) to pay postage, clerical work, etc. Do not inclose coins or silver in letters.

Note—Under the new Postal regulations you can send a sealed letter to England for only 2 cents postage.

DULUTH ARTIST COMPLETES PORTRAIT OF FORMER MAYOR

PORTRAIT OF HENRY TRUELSEN.

The portrait of Former Mayor Henry Truelsen, which is being shown in Duluth has attracted the attention of many interested Duluthians. The portrait will be hung in the city hall. The picture is the first commission of David Ericson, the Duluth artist, since his return from two years in Paris, and the picture being a gift from the people of the city to Duluth, it is most fitting that an artist, identified closely with Duluth, should have been chosen for the commission.

Visitors are always welcome at all Christian Endeavor meetings.

"Mothers' Day" will be observed by several of the societies. This day is set aside by many people as the one day of the year above all others when tribute should be paid to mothers. Many persons will write letters to their mothers at home and thousands of persons throughout the country will wear the white carnation on Sunday as the emble mof "Mothers' Day."

The idea of setting one Sunday aside each year on which people should honor their mother was conceived by Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, and though this was only three years ago, the practice has become national and the day will be observed Sunday in all parts of the country, both by wearing the white carnation and by special services.

CROOKSTON SPRUCED UP.

Much Tree Planting and Other Work Arbor Day Week.

Crookston, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Never before in the history of Crookston was there such progress made toward the permanent improvement of the general appearance of this city as was accomplished Arbor day week as a result of the organized efforts of the faculty and students of the Crookston schools under the direction of Supt. E. E. McIntire with the hearty co-operation of the school board. As a result the appearance of the school grounds about the Central and Lincoln school buildings, which occupy a solid block and a half in the center of the city, as well as the grounds of the four ward school buildings and in the carman ward of the city, which is a separate school district, are much improved.

Hedges were planted, large plots of rose bushes set out, honey suckles, lilacs, etc., in great number and golden glow and other climbers set out to run up the entrance balustrades, the drain pipes and the great shade trees.

During the summer the school board will have the cluster of residences removed from the block of property just east of the Central and Lincoln schools and this will be put in the hands of a landscape artist and although the additional property will have cost the city over $30,000 for playgrounds and beauty spots, the taxpayers will have received the best value in return that was ever secured for such an expenditure.

GALICIAN SETTLEMENT.

Picturesque People Living Just Across Line From Warroad.

Crookston, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the most interesting and unique settlements in the Northwest is located just across the Canadian boundary on the Canadian Northern line, between Emerson and Warroad, where during the past five years the largest settlement of Galicians in America has located. The settlement starts at Ridgeville, twelve miles west of Emerson, Man., and extends thirty-five miles west to what is known as South Junction. There are a few stops made between the two places by the trains, but there are no villages. In the entire settlement, every house is practically the same, being a small log house, whitewashed, with a hay thatched roof. At every stopping place, the train is always met by a large crowd of the men, who are rough looking, and the picturesquely dressed women, who are always attired in dresses of green, yellow or red, and wear shawls over their heads instead of hats. They have a few head of cows, and use oxen exclusively for the cultivation of their land, where they cultivate any except a garden spot. Many of the men work out during the summer months and the women tend the garden and cows. They are unprogressive and the entire settlement appears to be a section of the Orient, picked up bodily and placed in the new world.

UPPER MICHIGAN ROADS.

So Much Improved That Motors Can Come to Duluth.

Houghton, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—By Aug 1 the system of highways being constructed by several counties in Northern Michigan will permit the driving of automobiles or other vehicles from Iron Mountain to Ishpeming, Negaunee, Marquette and Munising.

From Iron Mountain there are excellent roads to Ironwood and from Ironwood fine roads to Superior and thus to Duluth. Houghton and Ontonagon counties are also working on their county road systems to connect with those of Gogebic, Baraga and Marquette counties and before snow flies trips can be made all through this district by parties from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and other Northwestern points. The Soo will remain the only isolated place of size in the peninsula.

Ramsey County Democrats Meet.

Devils Lake, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ramsey county Democrats will meet in Devils Lake on next Wednesday, the purpose being to launch a county ticket. Plans will also be discussed for the prosecution of the campaign in this county for the election of the state ticket.

Duluth Norwegians are making elaborate preparations for the celebration, locally, for the ninety-sixth anniversary of the freedom of Norway from Danish rule. Although May 17, is the anniversary day, the local celebration will be held on Sunday, May 15 at the Armory. On Tuesday afternoon and evening, there will be dancing at the Lincoln Park pavilion.

The committee in charge has worked hard to make the affair a success this year. Prof. Gisle Bothne of the state university will be the principal speaker on the program, which will be carried out Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Armory, Second avenue east and First street.

Prof. Bothne is one of the most distinguished Scandinavian speakers in the Northwest and it is expected that his appearance here will prove a drawing card to the Norwegians of the city. Mayor M. B. Cullum has been secured to give the address of welcome. He will speak in English and the other talks will all be given in the Norwegian tongue, the usual custom at affairs of this kind.

The local celebration is in charge of a committee selected from the three most prominent Norwegian organizations in the city. Most of the lodges have the largest membership in the West end and at West Duluth. They are the Sons of Norway, the Normanna Singling society and the Varde Club of the West end.

Rev. Carl W. Schevenius, pastor of the Bethany Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Sixty-fifth avenue west and Polk street, is another speaker. He will talk on "Now and Then." Prof. G. Bothne will give an oration on "The Seventeenth of May," telling of the significance of the day and reciting some of the early history of the Norskmen.

The musical program has been carefully arranged. Flaaten's orchestra has been engaged for the program at the Armory and it will render several selections appropriate for the occasion. The music for the dance at Lincoln Park will be furnished by an orchestra conducted by C. R. Stei.

The Normanna Male Chorus will take an active part in furnishing the music for the program Sunday afternoon. One of the songs which will be rendered, was written for the occasion by John Heitman, chairman of the celebration and president of the Sons of Norway order. Other musical numbers will be given by Miss Deodota Rossing, an accomplished vocalist and Oliver Colbentson, a violinist of note and a local man.

It was the original intention of the committee to secure Governor E. S. Vessey of South Dakota and Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota. It was found after some correspondence that neither could attend. The committee also had intended to secure the Lyceum theater for the main celebration, but a previous engagement at the theater prevented this. At Lincoln Park, a picnic will be held on the following Tuesday, but no definite program for this has been laid out.

The members of the committee are John Heitman, chairman; L. A. Simonson, Sons of Norway; E. H. Lovald, Sons of Norway; Ludwig E. Nagel, Normanna Singing society; Ellert Johnson, Normanna Singing society; Joseph Soem, Normanna Singing society; Peter C. Nelson, Varde club; Peter Olson, Varde club; and John Skadberg, Varde club.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Does Tail of Halley's Comet Whip Atmosphere of Earth?

Prizes Offered for Best Studies in Economics in 1911.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Experiments for ascertaining whether the tail of Halley's comet whips the atmosphere of the earth will be made by the members of the physic department of the university. At least, Prof. John Zeleny and his assistants are making arrangements for testing the air for ionizaion about the time when the comet is nearest the globe and when the tail may enfold the world. Ionization is the most delicate test for detecting disturbances in the atmosphere. The apparatus at the university will be in readiness about the time when Halley's protege is nearest the earth.

The United States government inspection of the cadet corps will be held Friday, May 13. Capt. B. F. Simmons of the general staff of the United States army will conduct the inspection. This inspection will about complete the work in the military department for the year. Competitive drills will be held by the companies during the rest of the year. Plans are also on foot to have a joint inspection of the St. Thomas cadets and the farm school battalion at the Agricultural college, by Capt. Simmons.

Last week, President Northrop received instructions from the state board of health to order a general vaccination in the university among both students and faculty. This is made necessary by the fact that one instructor and several students attended classes and other exercises after having smallpox in a sufficiently advanced stage to make it contagious. All students and faculty members were requested to have their certificate of vaccination filed with their respective deans by the end of this week. Failure to comply with this demand will warrant quarantine or exclusion from all university exercises.

Try-outs for the senior class play were made Thursday and Friday of this week and students are waiting with great anticipation the decisions of the judges. Frederick Karr has been selected to coach the play. The parts in the specialties were assigned last week. The specialty songs, written by Frances Lloyd and Frank Bilb, deal with college life in all its phases, particularly college life at Minnesota. They are written in the form of an operetta and are full of catchy phrases and local hits.

A short course in traction engineering has been added to the curriculum of the college of agriculture. Good moral character and ability to read and write are the only requirements for admission. The course will cover a period of four weeks and will be completed both in theory and in practice. Part of the course will consist in visitng the larger manufacturing and power plants of the Twin Cities. The session opens May 24 and closes June 17.

Four prizes are to be offered in 1911 for the best studies in the economics field. There will be two classes of competitors. Class B is open to undergraduates in American colleges. Class A is open to any other Americans without restriction. A first prize of $1,000 and a second prize of $500 are offered to contestants in Class A and two prizes of $300 and $200, are offered to those in Class B. Prof. Gray has a list of topics proposed by the committee in charge of the contest. Contestants are not entirely confined to these topics, but those chosen must be approved by the committee.

At the inter-collegiate debate tryouts, held recently, a squad of twelve men was selected. The inter-collegiate teams will be selected from these men on the basis of their work on the final question. The question has not yet been chosen, so it is not definitely known whether the final tryouts will be held this spring or next fall.

NORMAL NOTES

The annual May party was given to the students by the faculty Friday evening at Harmony hall. The hall was decorated in the colors, pink and green, the color scheme being carried out with pine boughs and pink flowers. A most entertaining program was given. A ballad opera, "Three Old Maids of Lee," was presented by the members of the Glee club under the direction of Miss Stone. The list of characters was as follows:

Fannie ..... Maude Matteson
Kate ..... Hildegarde Snyder
Madge ..... Winifred Warner
Prine ..... Rae Potter
Sailor ..... Winifred Leonard
Harry ..... Isabel Joyce

The chorus consisted of the other members of the Glee club. Between acts all the students took part in the folk games, directed by Miss Craw and Miss Quilliard. The rest of the evening was spent in dancing.

• • •

At the chapel exercises Friday morning the following program was rendered:

Selection .....
Solo .....
Miss Maude Matteson.
Chorus .....
Glee Club.
Accompanist, Mabel Fix.
Oration .....
Mildred Chisholm.
Reading—"A Second Trial" .....
Mary O'Brien.

Miss Carey entertained the members of the third year class at a May breakfast Monday morning at 7:30 in the domestic science dining room. The class colors, brown and gold, were carried out in the decorations of cowslips and brown ribbon. The centerpiece consisted of gladiolas. Those present were: Miss Post, Marie Thomas, Flora Gibson, Lela Stickles, George Stickles, Barbara Singer, Adelia Bradley, Ruby Haigh, Ella Carlson and Landra Mitchell.

• • •

The Greysolon society held a meeting Thursday to make plans for the entertainment which will be given next Friday. It also was arranged that flowers be sent to Freda Hanson, who is a member of the society.

• • •

The senior class held a meeting Wednesday to discuss the class day program.

• • •

The seniors were examined in spelling Wednesday morning. An examination in domestic science was given Thursday afternoon.

• • •

The freshman class met Monday to discuss a class day program.

Some of the students gave a dinner in the church room Tuesday. Those present were: Mildred Chisholm, Marie Thomas, Mabel Fix, Lela Stickles, Mabel Mueller, Alice Burger and Laudra Mitchell.

The play cast is busy practicing Mondays and Thursdays on the play "Pygmalion and Galatea," which will be presented during commencement week. The following members of the senior class are in the play: Florence Ryan, Margaret Raleigh, May Langford, Winifred Leonard, Hildegarde Snyder, Pearl Elevitch, Margaret Grogan, Vera Rockwell and St. Clair Nesbit.

The chorus and Glee club, under direction of Miss Van Stone, have begun to practice the commencement music.

• • •

The manual training class has begun to work in pounding brass the past week.

• • •

A series of kindergarten songs was rendered by the junior kindergarten girls during the chorus period Friday morning. Those taking part were: Maude Matteson, Capitola Cater, Kata Ketcham, Myra Childs, Marion Cunningham, Alice McCarthy, Evonne Robert and Lucile Norris.

• • •

The fifth and sixth grades have been practicing folk dancing and the May pole drill during the week, and on Friday the dances were given by the children dressed in their costumes. Miss Craw, the critic teacher, has been directing the folk dancing.

• • •

Evelyn Storm had as her guest during the week her sister from Brainerd. The members of the fifth grade of the model school, under their training teacher, Alice Burger, are making a feudal village in connection with their reading of the King Arthur stories.

• • •

The sixth grade members are dramatising the story of "Midge, the Miller," taken from the Robin Hood stories. This is carried on in connection with their reading, and will be presented in the ravine near the school next week.

FINANCIAL MARKETS LESS DEPRESSED

New York, May 7.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says:

The unsettled and apprehensive feeling prevailing for some time past in the financial markets, resulting in declining prices, has been allayed to some extent, although there has been a disappointing check to the buoyant movement existing in mercantile lines at the beginning of the year. The causes of the financial recession were partly economical, partly political. It is to be noted, however, that the effect upon the industrial and mercantile situation has been slow and in some parts of the country it was hardly noticeable.

Efforts to remove the obstacle of overproduction from the pig iron situation are proving successful as evidenced by returns covering the output during April, which show the smallest total, with one exception, since September, 1909. Buyers still pursue a waiting attitude and hesitation is also apparent in the markets for finished materials, consumers delaying in the hope of securing price concessions. In some divisions, a large inquiry is noted, especially for structural steel, on which more business is in sight and bids have been opened on 25,000 tons of plate required for the Panama canal locks. In the dry goods circles considerable buying power was disclosed by the auction sales of carpets which attracted buyers from all over the country. A continuation of the slight improvement in the demand for cotton goods by converters printers, and the manufacturing trades was noted, but jobbers are holding back, awaiting the coming of the government cotton report in June, when they hope for a further revision of prices. Fall River has been selling contracts on wide cloths to run through June, July and August on a basis of 26.4 cents per pound for print cloth yarn construction. Yarns rule slow, dress goods are inactive in first hands, and except for an advance of five cents per yard on a single line of woolen men's wearing apparel little change is noted in the quiet trade in that quarter.

Activity in footwear is for the next season run, and the demand is quiet for seasonable lines for immediate delivery. Producers are running their plants on part time as they have not commenced fall cutting as yet. Prices are maintained. Leather rules quiet and the demand for most varieties is less active than previously noted.

Beer and Temperance

Dr. Joseph Zeisler, of the Northwestern University of Chicago, says:—"I fully believe that the moderate use of good beer at mealtime, acts as a tonic and is, therefore, useful to adult persons. The chief point in favor of beer as compared with other alcoholic beverages is in the small percentage of alcohol, and in the fact that it is responsible for few drunkards, if any."

Andrew D. White says in his Autobiography: "The best temperance workers among us that I know are the men who brew our light, pure, American beer." Such a beer conscientiously and scientifically brewed by one of the world's best brewers is

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

FINE SHOWING IN LIVE OAK

Sinking of First Churn Drill Discloses Good Commercial Ore—Development Assures Heavy Production of Copper From the Property.

Globe, Ariz., May 7.—The sinking of the first churn drill hole on the Live Oak property has been attended with very favorable results. The hole was put down to a depth of 380 feet. At a distance of 155 feet from the surface chacocite ore of good commercial grade was encountered and from that point downward for 175 feet, ore averaging 2 5-10 per cent copper was continuous. This hole was put down at the junctions of Drifts Nos. 308 and 311. The next churn drill location will be 400 feet west of this hole, where drilling will be commenced today.

As the churn drill indicated that the thickness of the ore at the first location was 175 feet at a distance of 300 feet west of the shaft, it is evident that the Live Oak ore body is of great extent both vertically and in an easterly and westerly direction. As an extension of the ore is being constantly proven westward from the shaft and the Live Oak mineral land extends for 1,950 feet west of the first churn drill hole location, the great possibilities of the Live Oak as one of the greatest low grade mines of the district can be in some measure surmised.

Other development work under way, which is extending the boundaries of the ore, is the driving of two drifts Nos. 308 and 208, on the third and second levels, respectively. Drift No. 308 is being driven west and has already attained a length of 507 feet.

AT THE SUPERIOR & BOSTON

Regular Shipments of Eighty Tons of 9 Per Cent Ore Being Made Daily—Highly Satisfactory Results From Recent Work.

Globe, Ariz., May 7.—The Superior & Boston Copper company is continuing its shipments, amounting to eighty tons of 9 per cent ore daily. This ore is being sent to the Old Dominion smelter for treatment. All the ore being shipped is stoped at the sixth level of the Great Eastern workings and is hoisted through the McGaw shaft.

The McGaw shaft is being sunk to greater depth steadily. The bottom of the shaft is now ninety-seven feet below the sixth level, so that with eighteen feet more of sinking the seventh level, which is to be about 115 feet below the sixth, can be established. It is not probable, however, that exhaustive work will be done on the seventh level until the shaft is sunk to a greater depth. When the seventh level point is reached, a station will be cut and thereafter the sinking of the shaft will continue to the eighth level and possibly deeper. The Great Eastern winze has been sunk ninety-two feet vertically below the sixth level.

The two new 250-horse power boilers recently added to the 500-horse power boiler plant at the McGaw shaft were put in use last week and the extending of the boiler house to cover them is now under way. The 1,000-gallon Prescott pump installed on the sixth level of the McGaw a short time ago is working under capacity, as the flow of water encountered in sinking the shaft is comparatively small.

The east and west winzes put down from the fourth level of the Gardner workings are forty and forty-five feet deep respectively and have been continuously in ore averaging 8 per cent copper. Sinking into the ore body is still progressing rapidly in both winzes. These two winzes are 125 feet apart. On the 400-foot level over 200 feet of drifting has been done on the vein, so that up to date an ore body of considerable magnitude has been developed in this part of the property. The ore body actually proven so far is large enough to more than defray the expense incurred in sinking the Gardner shaft and extending the level workings therefrom.

Consulting Engineer Frank H. Probert is in Globe. Speaking of the mine, he said:

"The development work at the Superior & Boston is making a better showing than ever before. There is every indication that a large ore body will be developed in the Gardner workings and so far as the management is concerned, it makes no difference in what part of the property the ore is found, as the making of a few more connections will facilitate the extraction of the ore with a minimum of expense."

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Sinking to Be Resumed on Golden Crest Company's Property in Two Bit District---Lucky Strike Company Planning to Resume.

Deadwood, S. D., May 7.—Sinking will be resumed on the property of the Golden Crest Mining company in the Two Bit district some time this month. The Golden Crest is one of the older properties in this part of the Hills that has been worked considerably and has yielded some good ore, the average value being close to $50 in the old days. This was when the property was owned and managed by Fritz Weber, before he sold to the present company, and he was under expense of mining, hauling and shipping, besides treatment at the smelters. No ore running under $20 a ton was shipped, and the peculiarity of the ore was in the fact that it was never found in place. The shaft is well timbered and in good shape for sinking and little preparatory work will have to be done.

Dr. A. T. Roos, the local chemist and assayer, and Guy Bunce, son of the president of the Black Hills Development & Financial corporation, have established a camp in the Carbonate camp near here, the scene of the rich strikes on the old Iron Hill property made in the early days. The dumps of this and adjoining properties contain something between 30,000 and 40,000 tons of ore, which will be run through and sampled extensively, shipments being made from time to time to the smelter at Denver. The total cost of loading, shipping and treatment is $11.50 a ton, and it is expected that a fair profit can be obtained from the ore even at this figure.

Preparations are being made by the Lucky Strike Mining company to resume work on its property on Box Elder creek southeast of here. General Manager Charles Allen has just returned from a trip to Minneapolis, where he was in consultation with the officers of the company on plans for future work.

Attorneys from Chicago representing Otto L. Steiskal and other Chicago interests that recently took over the Safe Investment Mining company's property near Benchmark in the southern part of the county have been putting the affairs of the company in shape to resume work this spring. The company has a large camp near Benchmark, their ground being under patent proceedings, and has been developed to some extent in the blanket formation under the management of I. A. Webb, formerly one of the heaviest owners. Mr. Webb still controls some interest and is a director of the company, but has relinquished the active management of the company. The company has a 120-stamp mill, which was only operated for testing purposes.

ORE POCKETS AT THE MIAMI

Making of Pockets at 420-Foot Station Begun---Rapid Progress on Concentrator---Churn Drill Work Being Systematically Proven.

Globe, Ariz., May 7.—The development of the ore body of the Miami Copper company has reached such a stage that the first extraction level at the depth of 420 feet is practically completed and at the second extraction level, 150 feet below, the active development work, preliminary to ore extraction, will be begun within the next few days.

At the 420-foot level, the principal work remaining to be done before the production of ore will be commenced consists of driving a number of raises to the sub-levels above, extending the various drifts to the most remote extremities of the ore body and installing the electrical haulage system, by means of which the ore is to be conducted from the points where it is broken to the crushers at the concentrator plant. The making of ore pockets at the station of this level was started this week and the capacity will be sufficient for about 2,000 tons of ore. Automatic loaders will be attached to the pockets for loading the ore into two skips working in balance and of a capacity of seven and one-half tons each. At the surface, these will dump automatically into gyratory crushers, after which the rolls will reduce the size of the crushed ore preliminary to its conveyance by means of belt conveyors to the concentrator ore bins.

A third extraction level will be established about 150 feet below the 570-foot level, but not until some future date, after the upper part of the ore body has been mined. As this means the extraction of over 13,000,000 tons of ore, it is not unlikely that the third level will be required for a number of years. The development of that portion of the ore body lying between the first two levels will be conducted from the 570-foot level and this will be well under way by the first of the ensuing year, when the production of ore is scheduled to begin.

At the present stage of the construction work at the concentrator and power plants, it is evident that, barring unforeseen delays, the completed plant will be in operation by Jan. 1911.

Two churn drills are continuing operations at the western part of the Miami property, with flattering results. The drill holes, however, will be followed later by raises to be put from the mine, and the assay values obtained by sampling the holes will be checked by more exact sampling.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Bohemia Company to Install Second Diamond Drill Outfit—Improved Conditions at the Mohawk Continue—LaSalle Will Increase Underground Activity in the Tecumseh Shaft.

Houghton, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The failure of the Bohemia Mining company to secure a showing of commercial copper ground in the diamond drill operations under way on that property is causing no discouragement and is in itself no indication that this property lies outside the mineral belt of the district. The No. 1 drill hole continues sinking in the expectation of cutting one or more of the several so-called Adventure Lake lodes. A second drill outfit has been ordered and will go into commission shortly. With the two outfits in service quicker results may be expected.

Oneco.

Oneco has thus far failed to obtain the good results generally expected at depth in the so-called Oneco lode. Two holes were being driven through this lode which were cut nearer surface yielded a fair showing of copper at several points. Of the two last holes, one has already passed through what is now thought to be the Oneco lode and, though some copper was disclosed, the ground is not of apparent commercial value. This hole has been stopped. A second hole to the westward of the one just abandoned is being sunk to cut this same lode and should attain this object any day. The next step by the company will be an investigation of the new Baltic load, so-called, the underlay of which the Oneco property undoubtedly carries. This lode is one of the discoveries of last year and so far is known from the limited amount of work done upon it will prove to be one of the master lodes of the district, and apparently is by far the most valuable copper bearing bed in the Oneco tract.

Generally improved conditions noted some little time ago at several points in the Mohawk mine continue to hold and are beginning to have a good effect on the mill returns, which are now, and for several weeks past, considerably greater than the annual average for many years back. The general average of the ground opened in shafts 4 and 5 has always been somewhat above that opened in the older shafts to the northward, and a further improvement there is for that reason noteworthy. In the No. 6 shaft next south drifting is in progress at two levels, but not enough ground has been opened there to indicate the possibilities of the lode at this point, though apparently No. 6 will command copper ground the equal of anything yet opened in the Mohawk mine, and ground that will compare favorably with the overage of that opened in the Ahmeek mine, next adjoining.

La Salle.

La Salle is planning to add several more power drills and increase its underground activity in the Tecumseh shaft. The mine continues to make small daily shipments of rock to the Franklin mill, where a thorough test of the Tecumseh ground is being made. No official announcement concerning the average yield of this ground is forthcoming, and an estimate is valueless. Enough has been learned from the test, however, to indicate that the Tecumseh ground can be wrought with a profit, and that this ground, like other copper ground, can be made to yield a higher or lower average recovery, according to whether the ground be closely or liberally selected. The No. 2 Tecumseh shaft and the Caldwell shaft are receiving their share of attention, and, though little or no competition is in evidence in either shaft, the desired showing will very probably be had in the No. 2 Tecumseh with greater depth. The Caldwell shaft has already reached a depth sufficiently great to disclose copper ground, and the failure to find such is not easily explainable, as it was generally well understood that the drill borings in the lode at this point yielded good copper ores.

Michigan.

At the Michigan mine exploratory operations revealed very encouraging ground in the so-called B tract, lying immediately to the eastward of the Michigan's Calico-Branch mine. This tract is being thoroughly prospected by tunnels and drifts, and is yielding some of the finest looking copper ground opened in Ontonagon county in recent years, but of limited extent. The general situation at the B is seemingly improving, and at the moment is very encouraging.

Isle Royale.

Considerable discouragement is felt locally over the failure of the Isle Royale company to secure a showing of commercial copper ground in its shaft A laterals. The Section Twelve Exploration company to the northward and the Superior mine to the southward have both opened excellent commercial ground, the former by diamond drilling and the latter by means of shafts and drifts. The Isle Royale, lying in between, also secured a fair showing of copper in its own diamond drill explorations, but in neither the old section 12 shaft nor the newer A shaft, 800 and 950 feet in depth, respectively, have anything but very small pockets of copper been found. Further shaft sinking has for the time ceased, and all activity of the company is now centered in crosscutting the formation east and west. The results obtained by the Section Twelve Exploration company indicate but do not prove conclusively, that Isle Royale A shaft is sinking considerably too far westward, and this opinion is held by not a few local mine men.

BUTTE MINES APRIL OUTPUT

Total Was 25,087,200 Pounds of Copper, North Butte Producing 2,304,000 Pounds—Report Still Persistent That Merger Will Include Clark Mines—Curtailment of Output Regarded Certain.

Butte, Mont., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Butte mines produced 25,087,200 pounds of copper in April. It is likely that the May production will show that the Butte production is again back to normal, the curtailment agreement apparently being off. The daily output, together with the estimated yield of copper per ton of ore, was as follows:

Companies—	Daily Tons.	Lbs. per Ton.	Daily Lbs.
Boston & Montana	3,500	70	245,000
Anaconda	3,800	61	231,800
Butte & Boston	500	62	31,000
Washoe	350	60	21,000
Parrot	150	60	9,000
Trenton	400	62	24,500
North Butte	1,200	64	76,800
Butte Coalition	1,500	65	97,500
East Butte	283	68	19,040
Original	600	63	37,800
Miscellaneous	500	85	42,500
Totals	12,780		$36,240

The companies were represented in the month's totals as follows:

Companies—	Tons of Ore.	Pounds of Copper.
Boston & Montana	105,000	7,350,000
Anaconda	114,000	6,954,000
Butte & Boston	15,000	930,000
Washoe	10,500	630,000
Parrot	4,500	270,000
Trenton	12,000	744,000
North Butte	36,000	2,304,000
Butte Coalition	45,000	2,925,000
East Butte	8,400	571,200
Original	18,000	1,134,000
Miscellaneous	15,000	1,275,000
Totals	383,400	25,087,200

Clark Mines and Merger.

The report still continues to be very persistent that the Clark mines are to form part of the merger, although nothing can be learned here. It is said that negotiations are proceeding in New York with every prospect of an ultimate agreement between the interested parties. While it is stated that Former United States Senator Clark is willing to accept the terms offered by the Amalgamated Copper company so far as the mines are concerned, he insists that his other properties in this city be included, such as the street railway and Columbia Gardens. The railway company has not been a big money making investment, and the senator is not inclined to dispose of his mines, which have been wealth producers, and maintain the properties which have been non-producing. Among people well informed in such matters it is believed all matters will be satisfactorily adjusted, and as an evidence of this it is pointed out that a working agreement already exists between Clark and the Amalgamated as to the curtailment of the copper output. It will be remembered that no such friendly relations existed at the time of the last big curtailment when the Amalgamated closed its properties, something Clark refused to do. At that time he continued to turn out the copper under normal conditions.

Radersburg District.

The Radersburg Consolidated Mining company, which recently took over the Ohio-Keating gold property, is likely soon to come into possession of two other properties. One is the Dew Drop group of claims adjoining the Ohio on the northeast and the other is a group of three claims lying about 1,000 feet south of the Black Friday property. It is said that the Black Friday has opened up a fine body of ore at a depth of 450 feet, where the vein is said to be widening out and showing improved values. Some of the ore taken out recently averaged about $50 to the ton net. Good progress is being made in installing the electrical equipment at the properties of the Keating Gold Mining company and, provided no delays occur, the surface plant on the Blacker claim, will be in operation early this month.

District Superintendents.

It is currently reported that when the merger goes into effect the various mines of the district will be divided into three sections for the purposes of conducting operations, each with a general superintendent. The veteran Jack O'Neill, who has fought the fire in the Anaconda mine for years and who is considered the best posted man in regard to the mines of the camp in the city, will have charge of the first district, which will include the Anaconda group and one or two others, while William B. Daly, recently named to take charge of the Diamond, Bell, Modoc, Buffalo, Mountain Consolidated and the Gray Rock will have charge of the second. The third superintendent has not yet been named. Daly has been in the employ of the Amalgamated Copper company for several years and is looked upon as one of the coming men of the district.

Curtailment Certain.

The curtailment talk in the East is generally regarded as among the sure things in this district. With the increase in the surplus the opinion prevails here among men who are well posted that a curtailment is not only possible but highly probable in the near future. The mines in this district at the present time are not running within 25 per cent of their possible output, but the supply is increasing to such an extent as to compel the big

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Movement of Ore Not as Brisk as Expected—Less Than 1,500,000 Tons Forwarded in April—Demand From Furnaces Slack —Shipments May Not Increase Over Last Year.

The movement of ore from the Lake Superior iron mines is not as brisk as expected. The shipping season has not started off with the rush so long predicted. Less than 1,500,000 tons were forwarded in April. These small shipments are due in part, of course, to the congestion of the fleet in the St. Mary's river on account of the uncompleted condition of the improvement work at the locks. At the same time there is no denying the fact that the demand for ore from the furnaces is not as vigorous as it might be. This reflects an unsatisfactory condition in the trade.

Stocks of pig iron have not been moving as rapidly as desired and furnace men are curtailing production. This means that less ore will be needed. The mines are ready to send out 50,000,000 tons this season, and even more if required. However, it appears that it will not be necessary to produce at the maximum rate. In fact, the prediction is now being ventured that the shipments this year will show little if any increase over those of last season, when 42,5500,000 tons were forwarded. It had been hoped that the 50,000,000 ton mark would be attained this year, but this record appears now very improbable.

The Davidson Ore Mining company of Iron River, Mich., and Buffalo, N. Y., has filed articles of association with the secretary of state at Lansing. The capitalization is $250,000. The company is organized for the purpose of operating in the Iron River district of the Menominee range. The incorporators are Spencer Kellogg, Seymour Knox, John D. Larkin and L. F. Hilbreth, Buffalo, N. Y.; F. N. Beegle and Lewis R. Davidson, Beaver Falls, Pa.; Fredrickson Davidson, Pittsburg, Pa.; George Davidson, New Brighton, Pa., and M. S. McDonough, Iron River. The concern is a subsidiary of the New York State Steel company, which has been conducting exploratory work in the Iron Lake field for nearly a year with encouraging results. H. F. Kendall of Virginia, Minn. is the superintendent.

Track Extensions to Mines.

A number of contracts for track extensions in the Iron River and Stambaugh districts have been awarded by the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. The largest calls for the construction of a two-mile spur leading to Corrigan, McKinney & Co.'s new Tully property. Shorter stretches of track will be built for the accommodation of the traffic at the James and Baker mines. The oft-repeated rumor that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road is preparing to invade the Iron River-Stambaugh region is heard again. It is known, however, that a representative of the company has been in the district investigating conditions and routes. He is understood to have reported in favor of building a line direct from Crystal Falls via the new Chicagon mine of the Buffalo & Susquehanna company. The Iron River extension has been urged by the division officers repeatedly and strongly for half a dozen years, but the company is still to make a bid for a share of the steadily increasing traffic of the region.

Predictions are made that before the summer is over the bulk of the exploratory work on the Menominee range will be in the district of which Crystal Falls forms the hub. Even now extensive operations of the kind are in progress. To the northwest is a stretch of territory extending to Amasa, along which some good mines have already been opened and where some interesting exploratory work is being done. West of the city a mineral-bearing formation extends from the Bristol and Tobin mines all the way to the Chicagon property, recently proved to hold large ore measures. To the south is the territory between the Tobin and Dunn mines and extending to the old Delphic property. To the east is a very promising area stretching from the Great Western mine to Mansfield and in which formation there has been developed the MacDonald, Armenia, Hollister and other properties. Crystal Falls lies in the center, with these regions radiating out like the spokes of a wheel. Diamond drilling the past several months has had excellent results, of which more will be heard from later.

MacDonald to Be Shipper.

The MacDonald, which is controlled by Ohio furnace interests, represented by Capt. J. H. Bartow of Cleveland, will enter the shipping list this season. The property is still in course of development, but it will send out between 75,000 and 100,000 tons of ore. The same operating interests control the Youngs mine at Iron River and the Groveland at Metropolitan, both of which also have developed into fine properties. The MacDonald adjoins Corrigan, McKinney & Co.'s Armenia mine. This latter property, which recently resumed operations after a two years' idleness, is shipping only its best grade of ore, the lower grade product going to the stockpile. Corrigan, McKinney & Co. also are shipping the small pile of ore that remains at the Lamont mine. This will probably be the last heard from the Lamont for many years. Considerable ore remains in the mine yet, but it is at great depth and the ore measure is small. Modern mining requires a larger volume of ore from each level than the Lamont is able to produce in order to make operations pay.

The Loretto Mining company's Loretto property at the eastern end of the Menominee range is in a very healthy condition. It is looking better than in some years. A force of 220 men is employed and some 165,000 tons of ore will go out this season. East and west crosscuts in the upper levels in that portion of the mine generally supported to be "worked out" have re-

THE GIROUX CONSOLIDATED

Nearly Time to Announce Plans for Reduction and Smelting Plant—Would Take Year for Construction From Time Material Arrived.

Ely, Nev., May 7.—Surface work at the new shaft of the Giroux has been completed, and the top of the big lime mountain cut down to a level with the collar of the shaft. The first motion hoist has gone into commission, the steel for the railroad has all been laid, and the track rapidly ballasted. Coal bunkers are going up at the Alpha hoisting plant. Work at the big pumping station on the 1,200-foot level is being pushed and the three compartments of the big shaft from the same level are being raised to the 1,000-foot level at the rate of two sets of timbers per day, and are permanently timbered as the work progresses.

One churn drill is working on the western extremity of the company's estate near Veteran ground, where many holes have been sunk during the past few weeks. As to the future policy of the company, nothing is known at the mine except as to continued development. However, the time is not now far distant when the company can commence drawing from its high-grade ore reserve of the Alpha, which has been well developed between the 1,000-foot level and 1,200-foot levels. It is probable that this ore will be shipped to Salt Lake smelters, and it is also probable that the company will take up the matter of building of a plant of its own during the next few months.

Giroux will soon be in a position where its income from ore shipments will be sufficient to more than meet all expenses, hence the time must soon come for announcing plans in regard to a reduction and smelting plant. The probabilities are that such a plant as the Giroux would require could not be constructed within a year from the time the material and machinery was laid upon the ground. If this is correct it will still be from eighteen months to two years before Giroux is actually making copper from its own plant. It may be that the plans of the company have been delayed somewhat by the probability of a merger with Nevada Consolidated but it is believed that this will not take place until after the Giroux property has been further developed and the company is in position to demonstrate its ore values either by large shipments or through results of a concentrating plant, or both.

BIG BODY OF ZINC IS FOUND

Iron Mountain Property in Position for Production—Lower Workings Being Extended to Silver Vein —Sinking Resumed at Robert Emmet.

Butte, Mont., May 7.—Robert C. Davis, superintendent of the Iron Mountain Mining company, owned by W. Q. Ranft and associates, has been in Butte for several days and reports the property to be rapidly approaching a condition for production. When Mr. Ranft took the Iron Mountain mine over it was in pretty poor condition from bad management and apparently inexperienced operators. Mr. Davis was placed in charge and the entire plant has been overhauled and the mine workings cleaned out. The mine has been unwatered from the tunnel level down, and a new station has been put in at the 1,600-foot level, the tunnel level, where the hoist has been installed for mining through the shaft from the tunnel. All the water was pumped out in five days after the pumps and tanks were started, but it took six weeks of hard work to get the plant and property in shape for the unwatering. While the mine was being cleaned out several men were put to work straightening the timbers of an old raise from the 1,600-foot level, which is to be connected with the 1,500, and they ran into a fine body of zinc ore. It is an entirely new find, and in the opinion of Mr. Davis there is now enough zinc ore in sight in the mine to pay for operating expenses. On the 1,850-foot level, the lowest working in the mine, the old crosscut is about half way to the silver ledge in the mine, and this is now being extended. About 150 feet more will take it to the vein, which is separate and distinct from the zinc ledge.

Reports of old miners who worked in the Iron Mountain are that the ore on the 1,750, when work was stopped, was as good as any ever taken out of the mine, and Mr. Davis is confident the same ore body will be found on the 1,850, which will give the company a 100-foot back to work on. There is good zinc all through the mine, and former operators paid no attention to the zinc whatever. The find has been in the nature of an agreeable surprise to the present owners of the mine. It is expected mining will begin within two months.

At the Robert Emmet mine, in the Corbin-Wickes district, also owned by Mr. Ranft and associates, shaft sinking has been resumed, and it will be taken to the 500, where another level will be opened. The present lowest level is at the 350, where a drift on the vein has opened some excellent ore. It is the opinion of the management that at the 500 a large body of commercial ore will be found.

The report is also confirmed that Mr. Ranft has acquired the Blue Bird mine in the same district. It is a constant producer and one of the best properties in the Corbin-Wickes district.

DEVELOPMENT AT KEATING

Extensive Plan of Operations Decided Upon—One Hundred Thousand Tons of Ore Blocked Out Above the 600-Foot Level.

Butte, Mont., May 7.—More extensive development of the properties of the Keating Gold Mining company, near Radersburg, was decided upon at a recent meeting of the directors, and following the plans to be adopted the output of the mine will be greatly increased within the next few weeks. C. W. Pritchett, the consulting engineer of the company, has just concluded a thorough examination of the property and he pronounces the mine to have been materially increased in value by the development work of the past few months.

A new electrically driven surface plant is now being installed at the Blacker shaft, which will be the main working shaft, although the original Keating shaft will be used for lifting the ores from the upper levels. The Blacker shaft is now 500 feet deep and some very high grade gold ore has been opened up on that level. The ledge is wide and the ore a sulphide. The work of drifting on this level has already been commenced and the ore is found to be of better grade, especially as to the gold values, than on the upper levels. The shaft is to be sunk to a depth of at least 600 feet during the next few months, and the vein will be developed on that level in order to increase the ore reserves.

It is estimated that drifting will be under way at the 600-foot vein within three months and the mine will then be ready to ship steadily not less than 200 tons of ore daily. In six weeks the shaft will be timbered to the 500-foot vein and 50 tons shipped daily. The financing of these plans is all taken care of.

It is estimated that above the 400-foot level there is 30,000 tons of ore in place, which can be put in shape for economic mining very rapidly. It is now being blocked out for stoping as

WORK AT THE ELK CITY MINES

Main Tunnel to Be Extended and Deeper Workings Advanced---Development to Start on the Harmon Morrow Group at Once.

Spokane, Wash., May 7.—Elk City Mines corporation, which recently acquired the South Fork, formerly the Espey mine, in the Elk City district, Idaho, from the Adams brothers of Atlantic City, N. J., has been incorporated under the laws of Washington, with a stated capitalization of $1,000,000, by W. H. Stowell, Robert A. Koontz, W. D. Greenough and J. T. Omo of Spokane and William Hare of Tekoa, Wash. The chief development, upon which work will be pushed vigorously, is the extension of the main tunnel and the advance of deeper workings. More than $2,000 a month in bullion bars has been received by banks from the South Fork mill, and it is expected that the improved machinery and cyanide tanks to be installed will swell the output. Capt. Koontz says the prospective sources of additional profit are ore on the dump valued at $50,000 and $100,000 worth of tailings in the creek.

Official announcement is made in Spokane that F. W. Bradley of San Francisco, who is heavily interested in the Bunker Hill & Sullivan mines at Wardner and the Buster at Elk City, Idaho, has made a substantial payment on the Harmon Morrow group on Ten Mile, bonded by him for $100,000 a month ago. The property was examined by experts of the Bunker Hill staff. The discovery on the property was the first sensational strike made in the district this year and experienced mining men pronounced it one of the most promising prospects they had ever seen. Advices from Elk City are that N. B. Pettibone of Stites, who represented Mr. Bradley in the negotiations, has been informed that development work will be started at once. The bonding of the property by Mr. Bradley confirms his frequently expressed confidence in the Elk City country.

M. W. Bacon, secretary and general manager of the Stewart Mining company, announces that the Mammoth mill at Wallace, owned by the Federal

THE OLD CITY RESERVOIR WILL BE TURNED INTO A MINIATURE NOAH'S ARK BY ANIMAL DEALER

Raising All Kinds of Birds and Animals on First Floor.

Second Floor May Be Turned Into Roller Skating Rink.

Also Has Living Apartments There With Natural Spring in Kitchen.

When the city of Duluth sold to J. M. Corcoran the structure formerly used as a reservoir for the municipality's water supply, many people wondered to what use he could possibly put the property. Mr. Corcoran didn't pay very much for the place, but it was generally believed by those who spoke to him about the deal that he would have paid too much if he had accepted title to it on condition that the city pay him a bonus. Not a bit deterred by this tone of comment, he has gone ahead with his plans and to date has invested more than $4,000 in improvements and alterations.

The enterprise is one of the most remarkable that has ever been undertaken in Duluth. The former reservoir is carved out of the side of the rocky hill on First street near Eleventh avenue west. Not much more than the gable end of the roof is observable from First street, and from farther up the hill it has the appearance of a wide, low barn.

Mr. Corcoran has had an entrance cut through the First street end, slightly below the level of the main floor. That simple statement means that $500 was spent and that the workmen went through 14 feet 4 inches of solid rock before the job was finished.

The man who is transforming this dark, wet cavern into a light, dry three-story building is a breeder of birds and animals. He has been in that business in Duluth for a year, and previous to buying out a Superior street dealer in the same line of business he was a resident of Hibbing, where he was the proprietor of a similar business.

He is going to use the "first floor" of his odd structure for his own living quarters and as a place in which to house his feathered, furred and "hailed" stock in trade. The dimensions of the floor are 108 by 41 feet, so there is plenty of room for all. Chickens and rabbits are the only occupants of the place now, but Corcoran, when he has the place all shipshape—"shipshape" because it's about as big as Noah's ark, even if it can't float)—will stock it with fancy dogs, with pedigreed cats and with many other things that purr, bark, scratch or bite.

"I'm a dealer in everything that lives," is the way he puts it.

"FORT CORCORAN," WHICH HOUSES THE STRANGEST INDUSTRY DULUTH BOASTS OF.

A Natural Spring.

In one corner of the "ex"-reservoir is a natural spring that has a flow of about eight barrels a day. This will furnish the water supply for a tank five feet wide and twenty-five feet long. The water is there and it might as well be put to some use before it is allowed to get away. Corcoran is a conservationist. A man who has optimism enough to put a lot of money into a hole in the side of a hill for the purpose of raising it to the dignity of a three-story building of exceptional size must be granted first rank as a conservationist.

There is an anteroom off from the main part of the place. This has been dug out of the rock to accommodate a hot water heating plant. The plant is there and has been in operation for months.

Corcoran, with one helper is now putting in stringers for the second floor of his unique house. Part of the floor has been roughly boarded over, and when all the stringers are in place they will be rapidly covered. Hardwood flooring will be laid when the builder gets around to the finishing touches. Corcoran has several tentative plans as to what use he will make of this second floor. He enthusiastically declares that it is the "greatest thing ever," for a roller skating rink. Then, again, it would be entirely feasible to convert it into thirty-two commodious rooms for lodgers.

Put hinges on the roof and omit the flooring that Corcoran is putting in, and one would have a perfect aerodrome.

But the owner isn't bothering with flights of that sort. He is determined to make every square foot of space within those massive walls produce revenue. And if hope, confidence, hard work and sturdy independence can bring that about, he has every reason to look forward to the success of his remarkable scheme.

The third floor will be just above the great beams that stretch across the width of the place from the eaves. Here there will be rooms to let, according to present plans.

While the floor levels are, of necessity, one above the other, each will be at a ground level. The topography of the site makes this inevitable. At one or more points the slope of the hill passes the level of each of the floors. At the north end the ground is on a level with the third floor and at the south end it is just a trifle below that of the first floor.

Mr. Corcoran has built a substantial stairway from First street to the southern entrance to the converted reservoir. The stairway climbs the sheer face of the bluff, a distance of between forty and fifty feet to where "Fort Corcoran" squats in massive, if weather-beaten dignity. Those who have become intimately acquainted with the place since the work of transformation began last fall habitually refer to it as "the fort."

"And it's a good deal like a fort, too," said the owner. "They'd have a hard time getting at me with any kind of guns from down below. The only thing they could do from that direction would be to try to drop shells on the roof, and that wouldn't be easy."

Not that Mr. Corcoran contemplates going into any feudal business; far from it. He's just getting all his business, present and prospective, under one roof.

Many people may laugh at Corcoran and his enterprise. Indeed, it is known that many do. Therefore it is apropos to mention the fact that one solid business man of Duluth, who made no secret of his version of the scheme several months ago has recently offered to buy out Corcoran.

But Fort Corcoran isn't on the market.

WILLIAMS IS IN HIGH GRADE

Third Shift of Men Put to Work on National Mining Exploration—Development Steadily Progressing on the Arizona-Michigan.

Globe, Ariz., May 7.—The developments under way at the 660-foot level of the Williams shaft on the National Mining Exploration property are being watched with great interest locally. The crosscut driven southeast from the shaft in the expectation of striking a copper-bearing lode, after passing through a stringer of high grade carbonate ore assaying as high as 39 per cent copper, has advanced for thirteen feet through faulted ground containing much iron and some copper stain. The total length of the crosscut is now sixty-four feet and at this distance from the shaft shale has again been encountered. This occurrence, in the light of what is known concerning the formation in the Copper Hill district, shows pretty conclusively that the main vein has not been encountered, as, from all indications afforded by developments at other mines in the vicinity, a quartzite foot-wall may be expected. Crosscutting is progressing rapidly, so that the encountering of the change in formation, indicating the proximity of a vein, may be expected at any time.

Supt. H. W. Woodward is supervising all the development work of the National Mining Exploration company and is employing three shifts of men, the third shift just having been added to the working force.

Arizona & Michigan.

At the property of the Arizona-Michigan Mining company, the sinking of the Blackbird shaft has been steadily under way during the past week and has attained a depth of 200 feet. At this distance from the surface, the ground in which the shaft is going down contains much iron and manganese, but no copper worthy of mention, although an occasional copper stain is found. The vein on which the shaft is being sunk has been crosscut for eight feet east and west from the drift driven from the shaft at the 100-foot level. At the present depth of 200 feet a level will be commenced at once to determine the width of the vein and to explore the lode along both walls. At the Blackbird shaft, a blower has just been installed to provide air for the workmen.

The crosscut driven southward from the Telfair shaft on the 500-foot level measures 775 feet and the formation in the face of this crosscut is shale, as has been the case for a number of weeks past. Supt. N. A. Nelson is in charge of all development work.

Superior & Globe.

At the Superior & Globe property the driving of the drifts east and west from the north crosscut at a distance of 245 feet from the shaft has been discontinued after having explored the vein for about 175 feet each way without finding any copper deposits. The driving of the north crosscut has also been discontinued at a distance of about 350 feet from the shaft.

The winze which is being sunk from the west drift on the 650-foot level, where all the lateral work has been done to date, is seventy-five feet deep and is encountering mineralized vein matter containing a high percentage of iron. As the bottom of this winze is 725 feet from the surface, it might reasonably be expected that some trace of copper should be in evidence in case the vein is going to prove productive at the depth to which exploratory work has been done so far.

sulted in proving up several nice bunches of high grade 62 per cent ore from which it is expected to mine not less than 40,000 tons. Heretofore all the mining has been done on the lenses running north and south, the former management considering the east and west territory barren. Supt. Baxter's success in proving to the contrary will now lead to further work along the lines he has advised. The Sturgeon river was diverted into a new channel at the Loretto a few years ago, since which time it has been possible to mine in ground previously inaccessible.

Good Progress at Volunteer.

The Volunteer Ore company, which a few months ago started development work at its property at Palmer lake, in the Cascade district of the Marquette range, is making excellent progress. The shaft is down 200 feet and has passed the point where the first drift will be opened up. Drifting will not be started, however, until the shaft itself is sunk to the ore body. That will be at a depth of 400 feet. It is not desired to take the chance of encountering a heavy run of water until the mine is prepared to handle it, and for that reason the drifting will be delayed. The shaft is three compartments in size and 10 by 14 feet in dimensions. It is being sunk through solid rock, excepting for the fourteen feet of overburden, notwithstanding which it is being timbered all the way down. The ore extends to the surface at one end of the property, and it lies at a depth of 550 feet at the other.

Preparations are now being made to drain the eastern half of Palmer lake, underneath which the deposit extends. The lake is three-quarters of a mile in length by 500 feet wide, and the average depth of the water is between twelve and fifteen feet. There is fully thirty feet of mud below the water. The lake is being dammed through the center, the widest point. Gravel is obtained from a hill nearby, and the fill will be completed within a few weeks. Capt. Thomas Pellow, who has charge of the property, estimates that it will require about 5,000 cubic yards of gravel to complete the dam, the top of which will be some feet above the surface of the water. The mud is so thin that the gravel goes down to bedrock. It will thus be an easy matter to drain the eastern end, after the dam is completed. Outlets will be dug to carry the water to a point some distance beyond the shaft.

The Volunteer company, which is controlled by Thomas F. Cole of Duluth and associates, explored the lands near the new property thoroughly before deciding to develop the deposit, and it is expected that a good-sized mine will be developed. Much of the ore located by the diamond drills is of better quality than the average ore found in the Cascade district. The management expects to have the property ready for mining ore before winter sets in. The company owns the old Volunteer mine, half a mile distant, and it proposes to make use of the machinery and other equipment there. The hoisting will be done from the Volunteer engine house, and the compressed air supply will come from the same source. For the latter purpose an 8-inch pipe line is now being put in.

The erection of two steel shafthouses at the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company's new North Lake mine, Marquette range, has been completed by the Warden-Allen company of Milwaukee. The structures are each 106 feet high and contain 135 tons of steel. A shafthouse of the same size and design is now being erected at the Cleveland Cliffs company's Smith mine in the Swanzey district, and with this one completed similar structures will be built at the some corporation's Negaunee and Barnes properties. The men employed in the construction department of the Warden-Allen company have recently been given an increase in wages. They had been receiving 50 cents an hour, and an advance of six and one-third cents was granted. While working in the cities or at the works, the men work only eight hours a day, but on road jobs, such as those on the Marquette range, they put in nine hours. They receive time and a half for overtime and double time for Sunday. The Warden-Allen company employes several thousand men and it has crews working in all parts of the world. All the men in the construction department are members of the National Iron Workers' association, to all of whom a uniform scale of wages is paid.

Jones Gets Old Kioman Mine.

Thoburn Gibson, a well known mining man of the Menominee range, who a short time ago secured an option on the old Kloman mine at Republic, Marquette range, has turned over the property to the Jones Furnace interests of Iron Mountain. Trenching is now being done in order to get an idea as to the nature of the formation and principally the jasper. "The Jones interests desire properties where there is a heavy jasper mixture," said Mr. Gibson, "and I am satisfied there is a good deal of this grade of material to be found at the Kloman. It is possible the shafts will be unwatered, but for the present the work will be confined to exploring." Mr. Gibson said that the Jones furnace was a complete success, but that at present it is closed down, while some additional improvements are being made. He exhibited a few samples of the material turned out by the plant. They contained about 70 per cent pure iron, the balance being a sort of flux that is easily removed. These samples came from the treatment of a low grade ore now all but worthless.

The steam shovel at the Cambria Steel company's Republic mine has been put in trim for the season's campaign. Numerous repairs have been made. The handling of the specular ore, which constitutes the Republic mine's product wracks a shovel greatly, in comparison with the easily scoop-up hematites produced at many other properties. A striking indication of this is that the shovel is at work loading the big chunks from the Republic's stockpile, it is necessary for a man to go all over the big machine every few hours and tighten every bolt in its mechanism. The newly organized Independent Iron Company of Detroit, which a short time ago secured control of the old Erie property, seven miles west of Republic, is pushing the preparatory work. Thirty-five men are employed erecting buildings and installing machinery. The work of unwatering the shafts will be under way shortly.

producers to make a further curtailment. Just when this order for a reduction in the output will go forth is uncertain at the present time, but the feeling is that it will not be long delayed.

Stewart Mine's Resumption.

The resumption work in the Stewart mine in the Coeur d'Alene district after being idle two years, will be pleasing news to people all over the country. The Stewart is a Heinze property and was closed in consequence of litigation due to a dispute over ground between Heinze and the Coeur d'Alene Development company. The Stewart company has abandoned the ground in dispute and has arranged for a lease of the Mammoth mill in which to treat its ore. The company is now treating 1,500 tons daily. The Stewart is considered a good property.

The Barnes-King.

The books, records, documents of all kinds together with the cash in the treasury amounting to some $259,000 of the Barnes-King Gold Mining company, are now in the hands of W. H. A. Fischer and his associates in New York. Some time ago a demand was made for the records and money from the officers in this city, but the demand was turned down, pending a certified copy of the directors meeting showing that officers had been elected. This was recently received and the order was complied with. Nothing can be ascertained at this end of the line as to what the new board of directors propose to do. Mr. Fischer did express himself while here on his way to the annual meeting as favorable to acquiring the North Moccasin property adjoining the Barnes-King, but since that time not a word has been heard from him so far as can be ascertained.

Progress at the Raven.

Little has been said or written about the Raven Mining company, but for several months development work has been proceeding along quietly. The shaft has been sunk to a depth of 1,500 feet and at the present time a crosscut is being run north to intersect the vein which has been well developed on the levels above. The crosscut has now preceeded for a distance of about 200 feet from the shaft. On the 1,500 level a number of stringers have been cut and some good ore secured. The policy of the company is to mine at depth. Those engaged in the work are satisfied that the vein will be intersected within a short time and it is believed that it will be found wide with good ore values. There is a belief that the lean zone has been passed and that heavy sulphides, the same as in surrounding properties at a similar depth will be found.

Butte & Superior.

Only a limited amount of development work has been done of late in the Butte & Superior property, the reason assigned being that sufficient ore has been blocked out to last several months at the present rate of shipping. The management say that the amount of ore which can be shipped to Basin is limited, and that at any rate the treatment of the ore is not satisfactory and no effort will be made to increase the shipments until the company's new concentrator is ready, which will be at least two months and probably three.

North Butte.

There are a whole lot of people in this city waiting for North Butte to reach somewhere near the level of the value on the stock in the recent report submitted at the annual meeting and prepared by M. Atwater, Jr., but it looks as if they are going to be disappointed. There are persons who are well acquainted with mining conditions in this district who look with an air of suspicion on the report when the subject is brought up for discussion. If the stock is only worth $3.54 a share as stated in the report, why are insiders buying it around $34 and $35 a share and why is it the stock is not allowed to get down somewhere to near its proper level—that is the level placed on it in the report? Charles Pope, for several years foreman of the property and recently appointed manager to succeed Arthur Carson, has positively declined to make any statement regarding the reported rich strike by the diamond drill from the Diamond mine, contenting himself with the assertion that any information will have to come from the headquarters at Duluth. However Mr. Pope says that one of the conclusions reached at the meeting of the directors was that quarterly reports will hereafter be issued, so that in three months time, and not before, may those interested expect any official intimation that the discovery is correct. In the meantime it may be asserted that persons who ought to have some information on the subject, are quite positive that the report is absolutely true. Just why the officials persist in denying the story cannot be understood.

Butte-Ballaklava.

The new electric hoist of the Butte-Ballaklava Copper comany is in operation and working very satisfactorily. The installation and working of this new hoist is being watched with a great deal of interest by mining men as it is the first deep sinking electric hoist to be operated in this section. It is driven by a 300-horse power electric motor and has a capacity for sinking to 3,000 feet. It can lift from 300 to 500 tons of ore a day and in addition carry on development work on a large scale. On some of the levels the property has been opened up for its entire length and sufficient ore blocked out to ensure shipments for several years. During the month just closed the metal output amounted to about 350,000 pounds of blister copper and 35,000 ounces of silver, the latter fully paying the treatment expenses.

Drift No. 208 has been started recently and has advanced eastward for twenty-six feet. Both of these drifts are in ore of average grade. Thus the drifting is checking the results of the churn drill work west of the proven ore body and at the same time is developing a greater tonnage of ore in an easterly direction. Following the present plan for exploration and development, the Live Oak company should rapidly increase its proven tonnage of concentrating ore during the summer months. Operations up to date have developed an ore body of such extent and grade that the future of the property as a heavy producer is positively assured.

Warrior.

At the Warrior mine, the development work on the lower levels is being rapidly prosecuted contemporaneous with the making of ore shipments at the rate of 100 tons daily. In block 40, particularly, which is in the extreme western part of the underground workings, the usual high-grade of ore, averaging about 9½ per cent copper, is constantly being developed. Stoping is in progress to the westward from the old stope on the 300 intermediate level and at this part of the mine the ore is proving to be fully eighteen feet wide.

Work on the third churn drill hole has just been started on the Winnie claim west of the second churn drill location and about 700 feet north of the Scorpion claim, belonging to the Inspiration Copper company. This hole is being sunk within eighty feet of the Winnie shaft, which was put down early in the course of development on the property for exploratory purposes. The survey now being made by the engineering corps of the Arizona & Eastern railroad makes the terminal of the proposed Warrior spur in the vicinity of this shaft.

soon as the main shaft is in condition to handle it.

At the 500-foot level the ore body has been exposed and shows the average width and values, and it is estimated that the 500-foot and 600-foot levels should develop 70,000 tons of ore, if conditions continue unchanged, as there is the fullest warrant to expect. This makes the total estimated ore above the 600-foot level 100,000 tons, which can be extracted in a little less than two years at the rate of 200 tons daily.

In estimating the profit to be derived from this aggregate of 100,000 tons of ore, the total costs are placed at $9 per ton, based upon past experiences. The average values extracted from the ore during the shipments of the past year were $15 per ton, and if the same average is maintained in the 100,000 tons, the net profit would be $6 per ton or an aggregate of $600,000.

All ore estimates are confined to the Keating vein, where development has been confined exclusively, but there are several other strong veins traversing the property which are entirely undeveloped but which give good promise.

WORK AT ELK CITY MINES

Mining & Smelting company has been leased by the Stewart people and will be put to work on the Stewart ores immediately. The Mammoth mill is a 354-ton plant and is in condition to begin the treatment of the Stewart ores. The Stewart has 10,000 tons of ore on the dump and enough more blocked out to insure the steady running of the mill. The Stewart mine is located near Wardner and is considered one of the biggest mines in the district. It was sold to F. Augustus Heinze by H. F. Samuels and associates for $400,000 in 1905. The Mammoth mill is located about fourteen miles up the north fork of the Couer d'Alene river and within a mile of Wallace.

Stockholders of the H. E. M. Mining company, operating between Wardner and Burke, Idaho, report signs of ore in No. 3 tunnel, now in 600 feet piercing two ledges. It is estimated that the face lacks but 100 feet of a point below the ore body of the level above. When this shoot has been opened the tunnel will be continued to another shoot, believed to lie 400 feet ahead in the same ledge. Twenty-eight tons of ore, taken from the second level, gave a return of $807.21 after treatment and transportation expenses were deducted. The narrowness of the shoot, ranging from two to thirty inches, inspired a search for ore in No. 3 tunnel. J. E. Burbank of Cheney, Wash., is manager of the property, the consulting engineer being Fred Merriam.

THE MEN AND WOMEN

Who Enjoy the Choicest Products of the World's Commerce.

Knowledge of What is Best More Important Than Wealth Without It.

It must be apparent to every one that qualities of the highest order are necessary to enable the best of the products of modern commerce to attain to universal acceptance. However loudly heralded, they may not hope for world-wide pre-eminence unless they meet with the general approval, not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting and enjoying the choicest products. Their commendation, consequently, becomes important to others, since to meet the requirements of the well informed of all countries the method of manufacture must be of the most perfect order and the combination the most excellent of its kind. After thirty years of general usage, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is everywhere accepted as the best of family laxatives. Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the laxative and carminative principles of plants known to act most beneficially on the system, but also to the method of manufacture of the California Fig Syrup Co., which ensures that uniformity and purity essential in a remedy intended for family use. It cleanses and sweetens the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects. To get the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, buy the genuine only; the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package. Price, 50 cents per bottle.

REVENGE FOR SUPERIOR

"Duke's Mixtures" Grab the Second Game From "Darby's Delights."

Reddersdorf Is Chased From the Field By O'Dea's Sluggers.

Duke O'Dea's hired men took sweet revenge yesterday for the exciting defeat of Thursday, swiping the second game of the series in our own yard, by the painful score of 5 to 5.

To tall and placid Mr. Redersdorf can be laid the brunt of the blame. He wasn't working right yesterday, and the Grumblers took a fancy to his offering in a manner discourteous, considering that they were the guests of the Duluth management.

So kindly did the visitors take to the curves of Reddersdorf, that Richard Brinsley Sheridan Thorsen was called to the mound in the sixth. Richard showed an assortment of curves and smoke that would drive bees from the clover. If his work yesterday, during the three innings he worked, is a criterion of happy future events, Dick should come back with his escutcheon bright and shiny.

In the very first inning Superior put two on the blackboard. Bancroft drew a base and was hunted along by Caldwell's safeties. McGraw went out, Reddersdorf to Kozier, advancing Caddy a base. Kourick hit through center, scoring Bancroft. Red McCulloch was basterdly the spheriod and Landry hit sharply to right, scoring Kourick. Leighty whiffed, ending the early agony.

The Sox responded nobly to the exigencies of the situation, by scoring two bright and shining tallies. Anderson stopped the precipitous flight of a ball by his short anatomy and Neelon was given a life when James Abbington Leighty became entangled with his ground hit. Taylor sacrificed the two runners along. Kozier got to first on a fielder's choice, the Superior infield trying to hold Anderson at third. Darby O'Brien hit for two, sending Anderson and Neelon home.

Michael Dennis Sweeney flew to young Mister McGraw and Schaefer fouled out to Old Man Lizette.

Superior added one more in the second gay round of glee. Lizette hit to left and was sacrificed down the line by Dad Irwin. Bancroft hit, sending the backstop to third, from where he scored on Caldwell's out at first. McGraw flew to the Irish poet.

Full of pep, not to mention confidence, Duluth went the enemy one better in the final of the round. Daggett hit through the center of the diamond for one and advanced on Reddersdorf's unexpected, but nevertheless welcome, hit. Anderson hit to left, advancing the runners, and Neelon's clout sent them both across the pan, Anderson being thrown out at the plate, McGraw, Irwin and Lizette. Taylor drew a base and Kozier struck out, Tom being previously thrown out at second.

There was nothing stirring in the third, Kourick going out at first, Landry drawing a base on balls but being left on the paths when Leighty was thrown out at Kozier's precinct. Duluth fent out in perfect order, there being no crowding or pushing.

Superior came through with one in the fourth, Lizette going out, pitcher to first, but Curry, who relieved Irwin, hitting safely. Bancroft got on when Curry was forced out at second, Bancroft stole second and scored when Kozier dropped the throw on Caldwell's grounder. McGraw flew to Anderson. Duluth wen tout in order.

Superior continued the scoring in the fifth, McCulloch and Landry hit safely, McCulloch was forced at third, Leighty getting to first on the play. Lizette was hit and Curry drew four wide ones, forcing Landry over. Bancroft flew out to Landry.

Again the Sox went out in order in their half of the inning.

In the sixth, the enemy added one more, Caldwell drawing four erratic ones and advancing on McGraw's out at first. Thorsen was called into the box after Kourick had hit safely, Landry hit to Sweeney, who threw him out at first, Kozier whipping the ball back to the harp in time to get Kourick on his attempt to get around to third.

Duluth could do nothing in the last of the sixth, nor could Superior do anything with Thorsen's curves in the last of the seventh, when it looked as if a rally had been started.

Superior took the sustaining ray of hope from us in the eighth, sending two across. Irwin hit safely, was sent to second on McGraw's clout to left, Caldwell coming home on a bum heave to the plate. Kourick forced McGraw at third and McCullock struck out.

Duluth scored one in the forlornly hopeful ninth, Superior hit safely and Buzinsky, hitting for Daggett, secured a sharp single to left. Dauss, hitting for Reddersdorf, forced Schaefer at third, but Anderson hit, scoring Buzinsky. Neelon went out at first and Taylor flew to Bancroft, ending the game.

GIANTS ARE OUTHIT BUT DEFEAT PHILLIES.

New York, May 7.—Philadelphia got twice as many hits off Mathewson yesterday as New York did off Foxen, but the visitors were beaten nevertheless. Three of the New Yorks' safeties were bunched in the sixth inning, with an error by Titus, New York then scoring all its runs. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia	0	8	1
New York	3	4	2

Batteries—Foxen and Doolin; Mathewson and Myers. Umpires—Rigler and Emslie.

PIRATES WIN FROM CUBS IN WILD GAME.

Chicago, Ill., May 7.—Pittsburg defeated Chicago, 6 to 1, in a wild game yesterday. The winners made only four hits, and the losers did not make a fielding error. The winners bunched three hits and two sacrifice hits with a wild pitch, a hit batters and a base on balls for five runs in the fifth inning. Carson pitched effectively in the closing innings. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Chicago	1	5	0
Pittsburg	6	4	1

Batteries—McIntyre, Pfeffer, Carson and Needham; Leifield and Gibson. Umpires—Klem and Kane.

BOSTON WINS WEIRD GAME FROM SUPERBAS.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 7.—Boston won a poorly-played game, 8 to 5, yesterday due largely to the cold wind that made pitching and fielding difficult. Both sides suffered. Manager Dahlen sent Hi Myers to Rochester to take the place of Anderson, who was injured yesterday. Score:

Boston	8	14	3
Brooklyn	5	6	4

Batteries — Curtiss, Brown and Grham; Wilhelm, Dessau and Erwin. Umpire—Rigler and Moran.

YOUNG PITCHES WELL AND BLANKS TIGERS.

Detroit, Mich., May 7.—Young and Lelivelt each started a game for the first time this season, and the Chicagoan won by pitching a shut-out game, five of Detroit's hits coming after two were out. Lelivelt was supported poorly, Bush's low throw with two out scoring the first two runs, and Delehanty's fumble leading to the other pair. Tannehill's fielding featured the game. Detroit made three double plays. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Chicago	1	6	0
Detroit	0	7	1

Batteries—Young and Block; Lelivelt and Stanage. Umpires—O'Loughlin and Perrine.

NAPS TAKE ANOTHER FROM ST. LOUIS BROWNS.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 7.—Cleveland defeated St. Louis again yesterday, 4 to 3. St. Louis took the lead in the fourth, but Cleveland went to the front in the fifth. With two out, Turner tripled with the bases filled. La Joie followed with a single, four runs being the result. Link's wildness almost enabled St. Louis to tie the score in the ninth. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Cleveland	4	8	2
St. Louis	3	7	2

Batteries—Berger, Link and Bemis; Kinsella, Pelty and Killifer, Stephens. Umpires—Kerin and Sheridan.

BOSTON TEAM SWAMPED BY THE HIGHLANDERS.

Boston, Mass., May 7.—Frill shut out the locals and allowed them but two hits yesterday, while New York took advantage of the Boston team's poor playing and secured eleven runs. Chase made a home run with two men on bases. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
New York	5	10	1
Boston	0	2	5

Batteries—Frill and Mitchell; Karger, Hall, Barberich and Carrigan, Bradley. Umpires—Egan and Evans.

ATHLETICS WIN FROM WASHINGTON IN NINTH.

Philadelphia, May 7.—Philadelphia won yesterday's game from Washington by 4 to 3. After two men were out in the ninth inning, Krause, Strunk and Oldring singled, and the former scored the winning run. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Washington	3	7	2
Philadelphia	4	12	2

Batteries — Johnson and Street; Krause and Thomas. Umpires—Deneen and Conolly.

CRICKET LEAGUE WILL OPEN SEASON.

Hancock, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Copper Country Cricket league of nine teams, the strongest cricket organization in America, will open its season today with eight teams playing. Three of the teams have been strengthened this year by the addition of crack players who have just arrived from Cornwall. The Calumet & Hecla team, which won the championship last year, appears to be the weakest in the league this season.

"BIG SIX" JUST MISSED PITCHING FIRST NO-HIT GAME OF SEASON

"CHRISTY" MATHEWSON, "BIG SIX."

Christy Mathewson, premier pitcher of the world, was deprived Monday of the honor of pitching the first no-hit game in the National league this season. The official scorer instead of giving Devlin an error on a hit by McElveen, which Devlin should have fielded, gave McElveen a hit and thus deprived Matty of the glory of pitching a no-hit game. Without the services of Matty, the Giants would not cut much of a figure in the fight for the pennant. He is conceded to be the best pitcher in the business.

SCHARDT GIVES CHAMPS THREE SCRATCH HITS.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 7.—Barrett's single, Robinson's sacrifice and a hit by McCormick sent in the winning run of a twelve-inning game, which went to the home club, 3 to 2. Though Hagerman was hit hard, he was invincible with men on the bases. He was taken out because of wildness in the tenth. Schardt pitched a magnificent game, every one of the visitors' three hits being of the scratch variety. Score:

KLINGEBEIL WILL REPORT

Pitcher Expected Here Sunday--Jaenicke Will Be Used Against Superior.

A. W. Kuehnow received word this morning that Klingebeil, the pitcher who was used last season by Superior, but who is owned at the present time by the local club, will report tomorrow. The pitcher has been at Elgin, Ill., awaiting word from Darby.

He has informed Mr. Kuehnow and Darby O'Brien that he is in great condition and ready to go into the box as soon as he reports.

Big Pete Jaenicke, the twirler secured from the Rockford team will probably be used in the game this afternoon. He comes here with a good recommendation and will be tried out today. The game with Superior will be called at 330, Baertchi will probably be used by the Duke.

The game tomorrow between Duluth and Superior at Athletic park, will be called at 3 o'clock sharp. Special street car service has been arranged for. Marion will be used in tomorrow's game, if his arm is strong enough for him to mount the mound.

Jeff Takes Vacation.

Ben Lomond, Cal., May 7.—J. J. Jeffries, believing that the wisest training routine calls for an alteration of rest and work, took a vacation yesterday after his boxing session of Thursday. He spent the afternoon lounging around the fish hatchery.

BOTH STRONG AT FINISH

Hugo Kelly and Eddie McGoorty Fight Draw at Milwaukee.

Footwork of Kelly in Late Rounds of Fight Is Marvelous.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 7.—Hugo Kelly of Chicago and Eddie McGoorty, the pride of Oshkosh, went ten rounds to a draw before the Badger Athletic club last night. No decision is allowed under the law, but the general verdict was that the bout was about an even thing. Both men were strong at the finish

Both men started in cautiously feeling each other out. Near the end of the first session Kelly had the better of a hot exchange.

After a clinch in the second the men exchanged several body punches, Kelly cleverly blocking a left swing to the head. Just before the bell Kelly delivered a short right uppercut which jarred McGoorty's head. This was Kelly's round.

In the third round Kelly got in a hard straight left to the face and followed it up with a short arm swing to the head. McGoorty fell short with left and right to head. McGoorty was spitting blood at the end of the round.

McGoorty seemed to have the better of the fourth, landing a straight left to Kelly's eye, following with right to body and left to jaw. In the fifth and sixth rounds the Oshkosh lad also seemed to show a slight advantage.

In the remaining rounds the men fought quite evenly, though Kelly showed his superiority as a ring general, his footwork being marvelous. The last round was perhaps the most spectacular, Kelly shoving his man around the ring to the ropes, and having a slight shade in some hot exchanges.

AS SEEN FROM THE SIDE LINES

(BY BRUCE.)

They Look Good.

Despite the fact that hated Superior took the second game from us yesterday afternoon at Athletic park, the showing of the Sox was all that could be expected at this time of the season. The team showed well in the field, only the pitching of Reddersdorf suffering by comparison with that of Curry.

The big fellow has had but little opportunity to work the present season. It is very early indeed to get the true line upon a twirler or any player, for that matter. The Sox fielded cleanly yesterday, and in every department of the game, with the exception of the willow, showed up in strong shape.

Coupled with the fact that the day before the Duluth team did not have an error charged against it, this would seem to indicate that Darby has gathered a fast fielding team.

Big Kozier has not begun to hit yet. He came to Duluth with the reputation of a hitter, and in the games on the trip was slamming the pill in Ed. Delehanty fashion. He is due to begin hitting before the present series is over. He is as big as a mountain and as strong as the proverbial ox; when he does begin to hit, the fences should need reinforcement.

One or two knockers were heard in the stand yesterday. The dyspeptic creaker, who for several seasons has annoyed by his attempted witticisms, was on hand yesterday. Some one shculd whisper to this piece of sourness, and kindly but firmly inform him that there are some people in Duluth who have some sense of fair play. His insulting remarks to players are emphatically out of place in a grandstand where fair minded citizens come to enjoy a game.

There are a fast lot of players on the Duluth team, and when the season opens it will be found that the team will rank with the fast teams of the Minny.

O'Dea's team looked awfully good from the fielding point of view. His infield works fast, and Leighty yesterday worked in a manner good enough for the guardianship of the second station. Keeping would help, sure enough, but at that James looks quite fast enough for the job.

Caldwell, Bancroft and McCulloch are playing the game of their sweet young lives, if their work of yesterday can be taken as a criterion. McCulloch looks like a different player. He looks heavier than last year, and in addition handles himself like a veteran.

Caldwell at third has a beautiful whip, yesterday fuzzling one and then beating the runner to the bag. Bancroft is covering acres of terra firma, and in his present form will give any of the Minny shortfielders a chase for honors.

The game yesterday was a free hitting one, and for so early in the season, considering the fact that neither of the Head of the Lakes teams has had the advantage of consistent practice, brought out some good baseball.

Attention, J. Pierpont!

That large-nosed financier of Gotham had better keep his films on Frank Augustus Gotch, wrestler and financier. Of the $25,000 purse offered by the Empire Athletic club of Chicago for the match between Gotch and Zbyszko, Gotch is to receive only $23,500.

If that isn't high finance, Tom Lawson, please explain.

Why Zbyszko, or his manager, Jack Herman, should be willing to meet Gotch for the small end of $1,500 is very hard to explain and harder to believe. Zbyszko is a large part of the card, and if it is true that he has consented to meet the world's champion for so ridiculous an amount, it reflects suspicion on the intelligence of Herman.

High finance is the mania of the age. It is causing the money of this country to trickle, or rather rush, into the hands of the few; and in the athletic game it is causing the more unfortunate athlete to offer his services for a comparative beggarly amount, when the size of the inducement to the champion is considered.

Battling Nelson, a shrewd coin Marathoner, was one of the first to introduce high finance into the fighting game. He demanded a bonus for his appearance after he became champion of the world. Then he demanded the larger part of the purse, win, lose or draw.

Thus, when Josephus Gans defeated Nelson at Goldfield, it was Nelson who secured the larger percentage of the fighters' share. This method has been followed by other fighters.

Gotch has revolutionized the wrestling game in more ways than one. He realizes that he is the card, and has insisted that he receive the lion's share of the purse. Gotch received this idea from Hackenschmidt, who insisted upon a large guarantee to meet Gotch in the famous Chicago match.

If the less prominent fellows would refuse to go on for the amounts tossed at them by the dictators, the champions would have to come off the balcony and mingle with the plebian push.

An Earlier Date.

There is a general desire here that the date for the Kenora regatta be set not later than the middle of July. The plan of the Kenora officials, that the regatta be held July 28 and 29, is not viewed here with any sentiment approaching approval.

It is too long, for one thing, to train all summer. Another thing—it is really too taxing on the romantic or sentimental dispositions of the young men who are trying out for the crews. Think, dear, of giving up all engagements from now until the last of July. If Mabel were within earshot, one might be moved to say, "ain't it awful."

Aside from the fact that rowing does take all the time of a crew candidate from 6 p. m. until very late in the evening, there is the other question of training. Training continuously from the middle of April until the last of July, is apt to make a man stale. Especially is this true with the approach of the torrid weather.

There is a strong sentiment here for the holding of the regatta about the middle of July, and it is to be hoped that the officials of the Minnesota Boat club will concur in this view.

Questions Answered.

L. W. D., Stevenson, Minn.—There has been no talk of a Marathon race here, in fact, there are no Marathon runners in this city, or any that have made their presence known. Send a challenge and it will be published.

G. A. W., Duluth—There is not much chance that the Jeffries-Johnson fight would be stopped, should Johnson be getting the better of it. Remember that there will be a lot of money wagered on Johnson, and that the men with money on the smoke would want an even thing.

JACK O'LEARY HEARD FROM

Milwaukee Fighter Wants Duluth Engagement---Parres in Duluth.

Fighting Jack O'Leary of Milwaukee, who fights from 125 to 130, is casting his eyes Duluthward in the hope of getting on here with some man near his weight.

The Milwaukee man is heralded as one of the best at his weight in the Northwest. He has written that he will take on any of the boys here at anywhere near his own weight. He may appear here some time this spring.

Mique Brown is training at the present time for an approaching engagement. Jack Parres is also in our dear city, and is hankering for some man's game.

War Eagle, the patient and placid, has been waiting all winter for a battle with the gloves or a tussle on the mat. Parres has stated that he will meet the human mountain, and will endeavor to get the chief into the arena.

The fight colony is growing and before the leaves have reached their full bloom, there should be something doing in the fight game. Several matches are carded for the near future, and "Mox" O'Malley, the venerable miller from across the bay, will, it is said, invade the territory of some of our prominent artists and seek glory and emolument.

James Ebenezer Potts, that shifty and skillful boxer of Minneapolis, is also casting a longing eye on Duluth, and if the proper inducements are offered may come to the northern part of the state for an argument.

The game is waxing merry.

LYNCH ROASTS BRESNAHAN

Says He Should Not Descend to "Tactics of the Dump."

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 7.—President Herrmann of the Cincinnati club yesterday made public a letter written by President Lynch of the National league to Roger Bresnahan, manager of the St. Louis team concerning the latter's protest of the game here May 2. After stating that Umpire McGinnis had the league's full authority to officiate and that the game must therefore stand, Mr. Lynch said in part:

"I am surprised that you, as representative of the St. Louis club and drawing the salary you do to look after its best interests, would stoop to tactics of the dump to hurt the good name of your league and your club.

"There is only one thing you can do to redeem yourself. Get in the game every day and help put the St. Louis club where it belongs."

President Lynch took upon himself full blame for his failure to assign regular umpires for the game.

PRESS BOX COMMENT

In the fifth Bancroft robbed Tom Taylor of a hit by racing back of second and scooping the outfielder's line grounder out of the sand. He recovered nicely and made a great throw to McCulloch. It was a plain case of larceny.

• • •

In the ninth Irwin hit a long one to deep center. Smiling Pete Neelon galloped back and pulled it down in a very workmanlike manner. There are few in the garden who are better at going back and spearing them than this same Neelon.

• • •

Irwin and Reddersdorf were in the same class yesterday, as far as having curves and smoke. They both had gloves and hope—but, George, it is early yet.

• • •

Lizette, despite the fact that he was born at the time of the outbreak of the Rebellion and is a contemporary of Jake Beckley, is a sweet catcher. He threw nicely yesterday and kept the Sox glued to the bags.

• • •

Patrick Henry O'Brien had a very busy day at second. He accepted ten chances without a skip, the one ball that got away from him hitting a presumptuous pebble and slapping the poet in the jugular.

• • •

Sweeney continued to play the leading part in the infield. The boy looks good, as far as we have gone, and should make a worthy successor of that energetic worker, Sylvester Jefferson Breen.

• • •

Caldwell looks good this season. The youngster has a whip on the order of Breen and throws hard and fast to first. A little hard luck was the only thing that took him away from Eau Claire.

• • •

Superior has a fast fielding infield and if the Grumblers ever start hitting they should count. What O'Dea's pitching staff will do, is a question that even the Duke cannot decide.

• • •

Mack Cook was on the Superior bench yesterday in uniform. He will probably be given a trial with the malcontents in the present series. Cook has all sorts of steam and is a good spitter. There are a lot of people over here who wish the boy all kinds of luck, even though he is with the enemy.

Here's hoping that Dick Thorsen keeps up the sample of pitching he showed yesterday. It is up to Thorsen to make good. He has everything that any pitcher in these parts ever had, speed, curves and a quick break to his delivery. With Thorsen in condition and a happy mood, he will make a valuable addition to the staff.

• • •

Anderson is one of the fastest men on the Duluth team. He gets started fast and can run after he gets under way. The little fellow is also a willing worker.

• • •

If Curry's hitting yesterday is an example of what the pitcher can do every day, it might be a good plan for O'Dea to play him in the outfield.

THE FITWELL TEAM WILL MEET CLOQUET.

FRANK SEARS,
Manager of the Fitwell Team.

The strong Fitwell team of this city will play Cloquet at Cloquet, tomorrow. The Fitwells have a very strong team the present season, and expect to win the game tomorrow, though the Northern Minnesota team is reported to be very strong.

The Fitwells will line up as follows: Wicklund, catcher; Talbot and Johnson, pitchers; Leo Johnson, first base; J. Johnson, second base; Nilson, third base; Young, shortstop; Wickstron, left field; Gunderson, center field; Swanstrom or Wilson, right field.

THE PAPAL COOK.

London Globe: Stefano Inchiostro is the name of the pope's cook. He has been recently relating his experiences in the Veneto, from which it is seen that his post is a veritable sinecure.

For twenty-seven years he was the cook in the seminary of the patriarch of Venice, the dignity held by the pope before his call to the chair of St. Peter, and consequently was well known to his holiness. On June 22, 1903, Stefano received a summons from his old master to repair to the Vatican.

He went, and was conducted to the presence of the pope, and it was only the geniality of the pontiff that placed the cook at his ease, for he was greatly moved.

The cook enables us to have a glimpse of the daily life of his venerable master, who is an example of Horace's "obiter" that change of place does not alter the man. After celebrating mass the pontiff takes a little coffee. Precisely at noon he lunches, in company with Mgr. Pescini and Mgr. Bresson. They are always served by a particular valet de chambre.

The repast is modest in the extreme. Some soup, a little meat from the soup, and rarely is there a roasted joint. At 9 at night the pope takes his supper, more frugal, if possible, than the midday meal. Vegetables and a little meat is the night repast. In winter the pope takes more soup than in summer, made from dried vegetables.

His holiness is very fond of the "polentina" (soupe de mais), made as it was in the days past in Venice, and it is generally accompanied by some fish sent from Civita Vecchia or Venice.

RABBITS IN HIS WHISKERS.

Everybody's: Si Perkins had never been surprised in all his life. When it snowed in the latter part of April, he allowed he'd sorter felt it in the air for some time; when Judge Abbott's barn burned, Si thought it was about time; and when the town hall was struck by lightning, he merely shrugged his shoulders and said he'd told 'em that them lightnin' rods wasn't any account when they were first talkin' of puttin' 'em up. Mrs. Perkins had just about given up all hope of ever exciting her husband's wonder when a friend told her of a marvelous conjurer who was showing at a variety theater in Boston. She took Si.

When the conjurer called for a volunteer from the audience, Mrs. Perkins urged her husband to go up on the stage. He did. She watched expectantly as the "professor" extracted a $5 gold piece from Si's ear, passed a watch through his back, and extracted yards and yards of ticker tape from his shoes. Si looked bored. Finally the conjurer began to pose as Si's bestbeard, to the amazement of the spectators, out hopped three little white rabbits.

"Wal," said Mrs. Perkins triumphantly when Si resumed his seat, "I guess that surprised ye some, didn't it?"

Si seemed almost surprised that she should think so. "Why, no," he finally drawled. "I didn't like to say, nothin' about it, but I've been sorter suspectin' that there rabbits wus thar for some time."

NEW CHAMPION AMATEUR BOXER

WARREN BARBOUR.

Among the latest volunteers for the Young Corbett testimonial to be held at the Fairmont Athletic club Monday, May 2, are Jim Corbett, Thomas Sharkey and Warren Barbour, the millionaire boxer. Jack Cooper has notified the committee that Mr. Barbour would positively appear and will box three rounds with Jim Corbett. Barbour is the new heavyweight champion boxer of the world. He is 21 years old, a society man and a millionaire who prefers fighting to late suppers and cigarettes. He has proven in the past few weeks that he is a great fighter.

ROADS ARE IN GOOD REPAIR

Highways About Duluth Now in Fair Condition for Touring.

Many Trips Being Made Between Zenith City and Minneapolis.

St. Paul road now said to be in fair shape.
Two Harbors road is high, dry, but stony and very rough beyond Sucker river.
Pike Lake drive in very fair condition.
Rice Lake road very good.
Vermilion road in fine order with the exception of a stretch of about six miles beyond Pike Lake.
Road to Cloquet in good condition.

As a result of the dry weather, the roads about Duluth are now all in fair shape and Zenith City automobilists are beginning to take the country drives. Each Sunday Duluth parties can be found on almost any road out of Duluth.

Last Sunday the road to Two Harbors was dotted with Duluth cars and the other roads received their full share of the patronage.

Many people are now taking the drive to the Twin Cities. The road was in very poor condition a few weeks ago and the trip was a hardship. One run was made to Duluth from Minneapolis in something over six hours during last week. All those who have come up during the week have reported the road very fair. There are low places and other spots where the going is not of the best, but the motorists as a whole agree that the trip is now a pleasure. The worst spot is said to be a little beyond Sturgeon lake. An effort has been made to improve this place, however, and it is not half bad as compared with the condition of last year.

The letting of the contract for the repairs to be made to the Vermilion road is good news to those who like to tour up in that direction. The contract was let yesterday by the county commissioners and the work will begin at once.

On all the roads there has been done some work already this spring. The low places are being filled in and the improvement is noticeable. The boulevard drive is not yet in the best of condition, but the repairs will soon be finished and it is expected that it will soon be better than ever.

Many bright new cars are seen on the streets these days. There are several new makes noticed. Chief among the runabouts are the Brush and the Metz cars. Both these cars are very small but they seem to hold up well.

A to-pedo body Speedwell, the first torpedo body to be seen in Duluth, was exhibited here during the week. The torpedo body has not become the rage as yet, either in the East or the West, but automobile men, some of them, at least, claim that it is the coming shape.

A Wilcox 3-ton-truck made its appearance on the streets yesterday. It was sold by the Russel Motor company to the Fitger Brewing company. It is odd in that the driver's seat is surrounded by a miniature glass house.

The Cadillac is becoming very popular. About twelve cars of this make have been sold in Duluth the present season. A list of the new owners was publisned in The Herald some time ago. A Cadillac "thirty" was shipped during the week to C. E. Moore, superintendent of the Pitt mine at Virginia. Mr Krusschke, manager of the Pease Hardware company of Superior has also become a happy Cadillac owner.

Many women in the city have acquired the habit of piloting their own cars. It is not an unusual sight nowadays to see swiftly moving automobiles skillfully handled by young girls.

Women who express timidity in driving a horse have the greatest confidence, after one demonstration, in a car.

AUTO TRUCKS THE CHEAPER

Compilation of Comparative Costs Puts Horses in the Back Ground.

The rapid disappearance of the horse from use with pleasure vehicles is a phenomenon Americans are quite accustomed to. It is a fact, however, that the horse retains his place in the delivery and trucking service of the city far more tenaciously.

Why is the merchant so slow as a rule to adopt mechanical means of delivery, while in nine cases out of ten he has long ago abandoned the horse for personal and family use?

The question of cost doubtless is at the bottom of the merchant's conservatism in this respect, but his hesitation is due not so much to his information on this subject as to lack of knowledge.

He knows the cost of horse delivery is excessive. He knows also that it costs money to keep a high power gasoline car. He reasons accordingly that the cost of delivery by mechanical means would exceed even that by horse. Here, however, his argument is faulty.

Take the case of the man who uses two one-ton delivery wagons, keeping them in constant operation. His investment would be at a low estimate, 2 one-ton wagons at $380.....$ 760.00

6 horses at $220 ..... 1,100.00
2 sets harness at $45..... 90.00

$1,950.00

His expenses according to figures recently given out by a large truck company would average per year:

Oats	$ 480.00
Hay	227.00
Bedding	30.00
Water and tools	30.00
Stabling	90.00
Shoeing	90.00
Interest at 6 per cent.....	117.00
Depreciation, 20 per cent.....	390.00
Drivers' wages	1,248.00
Total expenses per year	$2,657.00

Owing to greater speed of the automobile the work of this man's two wagons could easily be performed by one electric of the same capacity. His investment for an electric delivery wagon of one-ton capacity would be $2,000.

His expenses would be:

Cost of current at 4 cents per kilowat hour, allowing fo 375 charges	$ 219.44
Allowance for battery renewed repairs	289.00
Average for tires and other repairs	225.44
Interest at 6 per cent.....	120.00
Depreciation 10 per cent on $2,000 less battery and tires, $736.46	126.35
Driver's wages	624.00
	$1,604.23
Thus the merchant's total outlay for horse-drawn service would be	$4,607.00
And for electric service.....	3,604.23
Making a net saving per year of	$1,002.77

That American-made automobiles are securing a firm foothold in Europe seems to be an established fact. Time was when the foreign cars held the supremacy. Now the products of the domestic factories stand on a par with the best the old world can produce. American initiative has overcome the lead.

The more enterprising American manufacturers are realizing this and making preparations for an aggressive foreign campaign. Not content with a merely national business, they are determined to show the foreign countries how irresistible the combination of Yankee brains and Yankee dollars really is.

VAN DUZEN PAROLED.

Man Who Embezzled From Detective Agency Gets Freedom.

Stillwater, Minn., May 7.—Vernon Van Duzen, who, it is alleged, embezzled $1,700 from the Pinkerton detective agency in St. Paul, and the most intimate associate of John Carter, the prison bard, while in the state prison, has been granted a parole. His sentence was commuted at the same time that Carter's was. Van Duzen was eligible to parole at the board of control meeting Thursday and his petition was granted. The man has a wife and two children in St. Paul and has secured a position there, the nature of which he was cautioned not to reveal until he is out.

Harry Winter was also paroled. He was under sentence of seven years for larceny in Brainerd and was granted a commutation of sentence at the recent meeting of the board of pardons.

COUNT CONNIE MACK IN PENNANT RACE

CONNIE MACK.

Cornelius McGillicuddy, or Connie Mack, as the baseball world knows him, has been manager of the Philadelphia Athletics since 1901—in fact ever since Philadelphia had a team in the American league. Mack is about the shrewdest man in the business and always has his team up among the leaders. He won the pennant in 1902 and was just nosed out by Detroit last season. He has a good team this year which will be a contender for the pennant.

UNITED STATES IS THE LEADER

Takes Precedence of Competitors in Rapid Growth of Manufacturing.

Washington, May 7.—In the rapid development of the world's manufacturing industries, the United States is leading her three principal competitors, Great Britain, France and Germany.

This is evidenced, according to the estimates of the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor, by the immense increase in importations of raw materials and the growth of the exports of finished products. Trade in that direction now comprises more than 76 per cent of all the foreign commerce of the United States and during the nine months ended March 30, aggregated more than $1,000,000,000.

During that time more than $500,000,000 worth of raw materials were taken in to be finished into manufactured products and consumed at home or shipped abroad. In the same time, the United States furnished the three other great manufacturing nations of the world, the United Kingdom, Germany and France, with nearly $500,000,000 worth of raw materials from its mines and fields. Thus, it is evident, the bureau states, that the industries of the United States not only draw materials from the world and turn them into finished products, but furnish the raw materials as well for others to do so.

Apparent From 1870.

The rapid growth was apparent from 1870 when the importation of raw materials for domestic manufacture amounted to only $56,000,000. By 1890 it had grown to $171,000,000 and by 1900 had nearly doubled to $276,000,000. The next ten years bring the record to 1910, brought a leap to $439,000,000.

Manufactures form a decreasing proportion of the total imports and an increasing proportion of the domestic exports. Finished manufactures exported in 1870 were $170,000,000 and the exports were $156,000,000. In the nine months of the fiscal year of 1910 imports of finished manufactures were $283,000,000 and exports of the same character were $361,000,000.

NEW PROBATE JUDGE IN RED LAKE COUNTY.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attorney Ira C. Richardson of Thief River Falls has been appointed judge of probate for Red Lake county by Governor Eberhart to fill the vacancy caused by the sudden death of C. M. Swanson, who was elected for the first time to the postion at the last general election. The appointee has resided in this city for a number of years.

YOUNG MAIL BOX THIEF IS SENT TO TRAINING SCHOOL.

Bemidji, Minn., May 7.—George Winterstein, the 14-year-old boy who confessed to having robbed mail boxes and also to having robbed several houses in Bemidji, has been sentenced to serve an indeterminate term at the state training school in Red Wing.

At the hearing, County Attorney McKusick entered a charge of incorrigibility against the youth. It is estimated that the boy's thefts amounted to close to $10,000, and had he realized on all the checks he took would have had a big "roll."

Hankinson School Board Election.

Hankinson, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a decidedly warm election, 427 ballots being cast, Max Whipperman was elected as a member of the Hankinson board of education to succeed himself, having a majority of only seventeen votes. John Green was his opponent and the vote polled is the largest ever cast in the city.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allayed by this liniment. For sale by all druggists.

CONTRACT GOES TO LOWEST BIDDER

Bailey-March Company Will Erect County Building at Virginia.

The Bailey-March company was yesterday awarded the contract for the erection of the new county building at Virginia, Minn. The bid of this company was $68,950.

The awarding of the contract created much discussion. Architect Bray spoke at some length. He said that he did not think it possible to erect the building for $68,950 and he thought that it would be far better to award the contract to McLeod & Smith, whose bid was $81,355.

Commissioner Ryan said that he was of the opinion that it was up to the board to let the contract to the lowest bidder, as the public might rightfully criticise the commissioners if and other course were taken.

The contract for the repairs to be made on the Vermilion road, was awarded to the Colvin-Robb company of Biwabik. Its bid was $7,500.

Whooping Cough.

This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKeig of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when 9 months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists.

IGH COST OF LIVING IS RETARDING MARRIAGES.

Houghton, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.) — The records of the county clerk shows a great falling off this year in the number of applications for marriage licenses, as compared with the number filed during years past. This is laid to the high cost of living at the present time and partly to the fears that have been expressed through rumor the past three months that there might be a strike of the mine workers of this camp. The greatest falling off is shown in applications coming from Calumet, twelve miles north of Houghton.

Cadillac Once More Proves Itself Most Economical Car!

Remarkable Record Submitted by 75 Cadillac "Thirty" Owners in New York Metropolitan District Who Have Driven Their Cars 398,884 Miles at a Total Cost for Mechanical Repairs of $53.21, Averaging 71 cents per Car.

Equivalent to 16 times around the world —398,884 miles—at a total repair cost of $53.21!

That is the amazing record revealed by statistics just compiled from the experiences of 75 Cadillac "Thirty" owners in New York City and vicinity.

It is doubtful if the entire history of travel and transportation—steam, electric or gasoline—can show a case of parallel economy.

There was in this instance no special striving to attain a minimum.

The 75 owners went their separate ways with their 75 Cadillac "Thirty" cars, each without reference to the other.

They took no special precautions, but drove where they pleased, when they pleased, how they pleased, without the slightest idea that their experience was to be made a matter of record.

At the close of 1909 statistics were collected and compiled from the signed statements of the 75 users.

It was found that the 75 cars had traveled a total distance of 398,884 miles, or a distance equivalent to 16 trips around the world.

Forty-six of the owners had no repair cost whatever—not a single penny—in spite of the fact that some of them had driven their cars as much as 18,000 miles.

The highest individual repair charge for the entire year was that of one user, whose car cost him—for special reasons which did not reflect upon the construction in any way —$10, the distance it carried being 9,000 miles.

Eleven of the others expended during the year from 25 cents to 50 cents. The average distance traveled was 5,318 miles per car, yet the average repair expense was less than 71 cents each.

The signed statement of these 75 users showed further that the average gasoline consumption for the touring car was one gallon for each 15 miles of travel and one quart of oil for each 175 miles of travel. The Demi-Tonneau car showed an average of 17½ miles for each gallon of gasoline and 200 miles for each quart of oil. Some users obtained 20 or more miles for each gallon of gasoline, but the figures first given are averages.

There is no disguising the fact that this record has proven a revelation, even to automobile manufacturers themselves.

It proves beyond a doubt what the Cadillac company has always maintained, that the elements in motor car construction which are absolutely necessary to economy and immunity from repairs are, scientific design, standardization, accuracy of workmanship and correct alignment. Also that necessity for repairs is the result of poor design, inaccuracy of workmanship, ill-fitting and incorrectly aligned parts.

A year or more ago they proved before the Royal Automobile club of London that three Cadillacs could be torn down; all the parts thrown in a pile; a portion of these parts discarded and new ones substituted, and the three cars built up again from the heap of parts to run with absolute sweetness and without so much as an iota of loosesness.

For this the Cadillac was awarded the Dewar Trophy.

And now comes another demonstration which simply emphasizes the fact that the convictions of the Cadillac company as to the essentials of a long-lived, serviceable and economical car are correct.

Cadillac measurements are finer in a greater proportion of essential parts than those of any other car in the world—finer than the costliest cars made.

Ask any owner of a CADILLAC what he thinks of his car.

CROOKSTON LOOKS FOR ABOUT 9,000

Believe City Has Grown About 2,500 Since Last Federal Census.

Crookston, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The census taking in Crookston has been completed, and, with a systematic plan followed up by the Commercial club, the population of Crookston will be over 8,000 or over in reality. About 300 will not show up in the census returns as residents of Crookston, as there is the plat known as the Mill House section which is not really within the city limits, being just across the road in Lowell township, but who are really residents of the city to all purposes and intents as far as patronage of local business houses are concerned, though they pay no city taxes.

This number, however, will probably not exceed the number who have been missed in one way or another by the enumerators, even though aided by ward committees in checking up, as several instances have come to light since the enumeration closed where boarders have been overlooked.

However, 9,000 will give Crookston a very good comparative showing. The federal census of Crookston in 1900 showed about 6,500, and the state census in 1905 showed 7,700, so that the increase is indicative of a good steady increase.

MOOSE LAKE CREAMERY

Has Been Improved and Is Steadily Forging Ahead.

Moose Lake, Minn., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local creamery has been improved considerably during the past week with a new coat of red paint with white finish, and it now presents a neat appearance. Peter Peterson has the contract for the job. The creamery has done a large amount of business during the past year, in spite of the fact that a Duluth concern operates a cream station here, and this is something that all creameries cannot say, as the Duluth company is a pretty hard one to compete with; but, under the able management of A. Halvorson, the creamery here has made good, and pays large dividends each year.

UPPER PENINSULA MEETS.

Sons of St. George and Knights of Pythias to Gather.

Houghton, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual convention of the Sons of St. George of Michigan at Iron Mountain this year will be attended by 300 members of the order from Houghton, Hancock, Calumet and Mohawk. A special train will be provided to carry the delegation, which will be accompanied by a large band. About the same number of Pythians will attend the convention of the upper peninsula league, Knights of Pythias, to be held at Manistique in June. Here the Pythians will put on their first and third rank contests. Laurium lodge will present the exemplified and dramatic form of the first with a team of forty men, and this will be the first time that the work will ever have been put on in this manner outside of the Laurium castle hall. The Laurium team will also put on this work before the grand lodge of Michigan at Saginaw this year. The Calumet Charity lodge, third rank team, which won the championship and silver trophy at the league convention at Calumet last year, expects to capture the third rank cup again.

HANCOCK'S HUGE MAN IS AGAIN WITH CIRCUS.

Hancock, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Big Louis" Mollanen, a husky Finn, 8 feet, 4 inches in height and weighs 385 pounds, has again left his happy home for circus life, joining the Wallace-Hagenbach shows. Mollanen is one of the largest men.

Reunion at Cooperstown.

Cooperstown, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Following out their annual custom, the old settlers of Griggs and Steele county will hold another reunion June 17. An elaborate program is being prepared.

BOYS ARE BEING TAUGHT HOW TO COOK AT SALTER SCHOOL

THE BOYS' CLASS IN COOKING AT THE SALTER SCHOOL.

"Why do you want to learn how to cook?" asked a visitor of one of the boys in the domestic science class of the Salter school.

The questioned one adjusted his spotless cap and "hefted" a rolling pin and looked at it contemplatively. "Gee." said he, "in a couple o' years, they say, women will be voting, and it's a cinch us kids will have to get busy."

That may not be the reason, but certain it is that the young chaps at the Salter school are making good in the domestic science class, and they are the enthusiastic students of the art.

The domestic science classes at the Salter school, which is situated at Sixteenth avenue east and London road, are the most recent of those added to the public schools. This advantage has been provided for the children of the district through private enterprise. The two East end circles of the Pilgrim Congregational church received the support of the board of education in their effort, and the board installed the individual gas stoves and tables and the women of the church provided the cooking equipment and the funds for a teacher of domestic science. The plan has been worked out most carefully, and this regular work has been established for the last two months of the school year. Sixty-three pupils from the Salter school are provided with lessons under this efficient teacher, and one of these classes is of boys, twenty-four of them being enrolled. A class of twenty from the Endion school is given instruction each week, and marks are given the pupils to go on their regular report cards.

A class outside of school hours, composed of some who especially desire the work, provides the money to give the remaining lessons to the regular attendants at the school.

The women who have been instrumental in establishing this work hope that eventually the equipment at the Salter school will provide for the classes at the Jefferson and Endion schools as well.

It is also hoped that some provision can be made to keep the class open during the vacation time. The interest and enthusiasm of the children is delightful, and in itself is a great reward to those who have worked to secure the instruction of them. The boys' class is particularly interesting, and any one interested in the work is invited to attend one of the classes.

If there are any housewives so hesitating as to have left housecleaning until this day they are busily at it. The rest of the world is occupied with seamstresses and new clothes, and more courses of lectures and special study are occupying many. The spring brides are demanding their share of attention and the picnic season has begun, but there is not a formal round of social events to command attention.

The Saturday evening lectures by M. Papt will attract many during the next six weeks and the Country club and the Boat club will soon be opened for the regular season. The informal pleasure of club life will probably be as usual the chief attraction of the summer.

MAY BRIDES

Three Minneapolis brides of the spring were the honored guests at luncheon at the Hammeraft gund Friday of last week. Two of them, Miss Lois Tennant and Miss Josephine Thomas, are known in Duluth. Miss Tennant is a sister of Mrs. Adams of this city and has visited here. At her wedding this month she will have as one of her attendants little Miss Elizabeth Adamas of this city. Miss Thomas will become the bride of Rene Hugo of Duluth, and Mr. Hugo and his bride will be at home here.

WIFE OF PROMINENT NEW YORK BANKER

MRS. OTTO H. KAHN.

Mrs. Otto H. Kahn is the wife of the well known New York banker, Otto H. Kahn. She was Addie, daughter of Abraham Wolff and married Mr. Kahn in 1896. Mr. Kahn is a member of the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. He is a director of the Metropolitan Opera company and treasurer of the New Theater company. He was prominent in the negotiations with Oscar Hammerstein recently, which resulted in the Metropolitan buying out Mr. Hammerstein's operatic interests.

FOR THE PLAIN GIRL

By POLLY PAGET.

This is by way of encouragement to the plain girls—God bless them!

To parody Lincoln, I think the Lord must have loved homely girls, He made so many of them.

From a general survey of the situation I have made up my mind that the pretty girl has just about half as much chance of keeping her husband in love with her as the plain girl.

Why? Well, it is largely a case of hare and tortoise.

The tortoise knows he is naturally handicapped, and he makes a tremendous effort to overcome his handicap, and succeeds.

The hare never doubts his ability to win the race and consequently goes to sleep and losses it.

The plain girl—if she is wise—says to herself: "I know I am not pretty. I can't be loved for beauty. I must try to cultivate other qualities to be loved for. I must be jolly and good tempered. I must dress as neatly and becomingly as possible. I must cultivate my talents that I may have."

The pretty girl says—not in so many words, of course, but by her attitude: "It is enough that I am pretty. I do not need to bother to cultivate myself."

The girl who has developed every charm, every talent, every good quality that she possesses has far more chance of holding a man's affection than the girl who has lolled back all her life on the support of prettiness.

A very handsome man, a desirable parti in every way, fell in love with one of the plainest girls in town.

I heard her mother talking about the match one day.

"I know everybody wonders why John fell in love with Anne," she said, "and I guess it is rather remarkable, for even if I am Anne's mother I know she is homely, but I can tell you one thing, and that is that now it's happened it's going to last.

"John certainly didn't fall in love with her for any qualities that are going to vanish. He loved her for herself, and I'm sure he knows his own mind."

He did.

They have been married ten years this autumn, and "Plain Anne" is one of the happiest women in the world.

PARK POINT NOTES

George M. Eyferth of the United States navy spent a few hours with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Eyferth of 2326 Minnesota avenue, on his way to New York, where he has been transferred to the battleship Hancock after five months at the recruiting station in Minneapolis. He expects to be gone four years on a cruise.

NURSERY IDEAS

Early Lessons in Courtesy.

Few things show the manner of a child's upbringing so much as the way in which he will greet a stranger.

Every child should be taught to say "how do you do?" and "good-bye" without embarrassment.

A child who is allowed to merely shrug his shoulders and put his finger in his mouth when spoken to is very likely to grow up shy and awkward; and, as every one knows it is much more difficult to get rid of a bad habit than to prevent it from forming, it is worth while to take a little trouble with children while they are small.

One Very Necessary Practice.

It should be generally known that it is quite necessary for baby to have its mouth washed out at least once a day. To do this take two or three grains of permanganate of potash dissolved in a saucer of water. Then take an old piece of clean linen and dip it in the wash and put it round the first finger of the right hand. Then it will be found quite easy to do the little gums and mouth thoroughly.

Relief for Tired Feet.

When the small child complains of his feet feeling tired after walking they may be soaked in water in which some coarse kitchen salt has been dissolved. The feet should then be dried carefully and a pair of clean stockings be put on. This treatment will relieve the tired feeling.

Remedy for Fretfulness.

If baby should be fretful, and the usual methods fail to give him ease, let him sip from a spoon a few drops of cold filtered water. This simple remedy will often give him relief.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

In the normal state the temperature of the human body ought to be about 98.6 deg. Fahrenheit, but any febrile disturbance will increase it for a shorter or longer period. A temperature of 101 is high, and when it rises to 103 there is danger.

Excess of heat from outward circumstances is more difficult to stand than cold; if a person be exposed to the heat of the sun for a prolonged period, for example, he gets sunstroke, which is simply congestion of the blood vessels of the brain. Unconsciousness results very often, and in many instances serious consequences follow, which may even take the form of recurrent madness. Another effect of exposure to the sun is prickly heat, an eruption causing intense discomfort, though it is unattended with danger.

It would not be able to exist if it were not for the fact that the intense heat induces free perspiration, which, in its turn, leads to rapid radiation. Heat, on the other hand, is a valuable remedial agency in many diseases—both poultices and fomentations are used, hot air is employed in the treatment of rheumatism and for contracting the blood vessels in case of hemorrhage, the Turkish bath is invigorating, and even the ordinary hot bath is employed with advantage where there are feverish symptoms, to promote a healthy action of the skin.

Good Health Hint.

For hard working persons, especially brain workers, an excellent health preserver is the habit of spending a half-hour lying prone, in the middle of the day; best if combined with recreation and fresh air.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

FESTIVAL OF MUSIC

Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra Will Give Four Concerts Here.

Prominent Soloists Will Make Series a Notable Musical Event.

The spring festival of music for Duluth will be presented at the Lyceum June 3 and 4 of this year with the Symphony Orchestra of Minneapolis as the attraction and a group of prominent soloists including Lucille Tewksbury, soprano; Marietta Bagby, contralto; David O. Duggan, tenor, and Arthur Middleton, bass; Richard Czerwonky, solo violinist; Carlo Fischer, solo cellist; and Henry J. Williams, solo harpist. The conductor of the orchestra is Emil Oberhoffer.

The orchestra with the list of soloists named is out on a nine weeks' concert tour throughout the West and wherever the orchestra has appeared it has been greeted with tremendous enthusiasm. Under the direction of Mr. Oberhoffer the orchestra has completed the most successful year of its history, and Duluth will hear during the festival, one of the best symphony orchestras in the country. That the previous visits to Duluth have been the means of establishing the orchestra in the graces of the people is evidenced by the interest which is already being shown in the Duluth engagement. A large number of subscriptions have been received by Mr. Reyner. It is clearly to the advantage of those who will attend the concert to subscribe before the general sale of tickets as a distinct reduction is made. The committee in charge of the festival this year is composed of Stephen H. Jones, T. W. Hugo and Horace W. Reyner.

H. W. REYNER.

The following announcement has been issued by the committee:

"The committee of the spring festival of music again has the honor of placing before you the programs of the three grand concerts to be given by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, Emil Oberhoffer conductor and a quartet of eminent soloists—Lucille Tewksbury, Marietta Bagby, David O. Duggan and Arthur Middleton, in this city on Friday and Saturday June 3 and 4 next.

"It will readily be admitted by a perusal of the programs that they are a distinct advance upon the very excellent programs of last year. Therefore, the committee solicits your kind co-operation in making these concerts a success worthy the city of Duluth. To do this, a generous advance subscription for seats is absolutely necessary. It will be seen that a distinct reduction is made in the price of seats for advance subscriptions.

"Orders for seats are asked to be forwarded at once.

"Payment for same can be made any time up to May 27.

"All orders for seats to be sent to Horace W. Reyner, P. O. Box 153, Duluth."

LECTURES ON "CHANTECLER"

Real Meaning of Rostand's Play Explained to Duluth Audience.

Probably the first lecture in America on the much talked of and little understood "Chantecler" of Edmund Rostand, the great French dramatist, was given last evening before a Duluth audience when M. Benedict Papot talked of the French play which has become the motif of fashions in women's dress and which will be produced in American in the autumn with Maude Adams in the title role. The lecture was the introductory lecture on French civilization the first of the six lectures to be given this evening at the high school assembly hall.

The much discussed play was chosen by M. Papot because of its timely interest and also because Rostand had made in this play a type of French civilization of today. The play was followed in detail by the lecturer and the symbolism explained. The lecture was followed by a series of stereopticon views of the players who appeared in the production of "Chantecler" in Paris.

TWO RECITALS.

Pupils of Mrs. D. H. Day Will Be Presented Next Week.

Mrs. D. H. Day's piano pupils will give a series of two recitals on Wednesday evening, May 11, and on Saturday evening, May 14, at the Y. W. C. A. hall.

Owing to the large number of pupils taking part, Mrs. Day has deemed it advisable to give two recitals instead of one, as the program would otherwise be entirely too long.

Juho Koskelo, the great Finnish tenor, who has made such an excellent impression on the musical people of Duluth, will assist the pupils at the first recital, while Miss Laura Frankenfield will give a reciting from Kipling at the Saturday recital.

The recitals will begin promptly at Wednesday evening is as follows:

Serenada—From Symphony, two pianos .....Goldmark

JOHN FORSELL CONCERT.

Famous Baritone Will Be Heard at Lyceum Sunday Afternoon.

John Forsell, baritone, of the Metropolitan forces sang at St. Paul during the season of grand opera in the spring and since that time has filled concert engagements in both the Twin Cities. He will be heard at the Lyceum in Duluth tomorrow afternoon, appearing here under the auspices of Svea Glee club. Mr. Forsell sang the role of "Tonio" in "Il Pagliacci" and was received with great favor and there was great interest in his return engagements in opera. He has been one of the most successful of the Metropolitan stars and he has had a career in opera abroad that has brought great success.

Of his appearance at Minneapolis Stuart McLean wrote in the Journal:

"A concert out of the ordinary was given last night at the Auditorium, the soloist being John Forsell, lately baritone with the Metropolitan forces.

"Comparatively few heard Mr. Forsell when he recently made his one appearance in the Twin Cities with the Metropolitan opera. Those who heard him then have been talking of his singing ever since. They join a liberal part of the American world of music in declaring that his Tonio in Pagliacci is the greatest of many assumptions of that part. The Prologue to Pagliacci was part of the program last night, together with a group of Scandinavian songs and several solos incidental to the choruses, and whether it was Mr. Forsell or the Arpi or the combined societies, the Auditorium was filled.

"Mr. Forsell's voice is delightful. Hearing his heroic tone it was easy to understand how as a singer he has received so much honor; observing the color with which it was apparent why his Don Giovanni and Eugen Onegin, for example, should have aroused the enthusiasm of many audiences time and again. He is one of those rare things, a singer and an actor in combination."

WILL BE HEARD IN RECITAL

Mrs. Rebecca McKenzie-L'Engle Will Present Program Here.

The lovers of the ballad, especially the Scottish ballad, will have a treat next Friday evening, when Mrs. Rebecca McKenzie L'Engle will be heard in song recital in the Glen Avon church.

The friends and admirers of Mrs. L'Engle have secured her consent to sing several songs. She began her musical career in Duluth and then studied in New York, where she has made her home much of the time. For some time past she has been living in the West, as her husband is a mining engineer. He has just left for Boston, where he will have charge of engineering in connection with a rubber plantating. He will be joined later by Mrs. L'Engle. Mrs. L'Engle's reputation as a singer is not confined to this country, as she has been favorably received abroad.

SMITH PUPILS ARE HEARD IN RECITAL.

The pupils of Walter G. Smith appeared in a piano and vocal recital last evening at the assembly hall of the Young Women's Christian association and a large audience of the friends of the young performers were present and enjoyed the evening. The younger pupils who appeared were: Helen Fryberger, Roswell King, Lillian Shapiro, Marcella Smith, Florence Robb, Harriet Simon, Ruth Freimuth and Enid Freimuth. The older pupils who appeared were: Lila Porger, Sara Miller and Angella Smith. The vocal pupils of Mr. Smith who sang last evening were Miss Harriet Salmon, Mrs. E. K. Medlar and Mrs. J. D. Lutes.

Bishop's Club.

The closing meeting of the year of the Bishop's club will be held Tuesday evening. The following program of Italian music, arranged by Mrs. Edward Kreimer will be given:

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Linnaea club will be held Tuesday afternoon of next week with Mrs. T. C. Smith of 625 North Central avenue.

Orchestra Recital.

The musical people of Duluth will be interested in the May festival concert to be given at the Lyceum Sunday, May 22 at 3:10 o'clock by the Flaaten Conservatory orchestra of sixty pieces, director, Gustav Flaaten. The program will consist of orchestra numbers including Gade's "Ossian," Rubenstein's "Cloister Scene," Fschaikowski's "Romance," "Corrile," violin solo, orchestra accompaniment, Edward German; three dances from "Henry VIII," and Haydn's "Symphonie No. 5," two movements.

OPENING!

"The Oriental" will open Monday morning in that part of Madame Wardle's store formerly occupied by the Livingston Glove shop with a line of imported Chinese and Japanese Silk and Embroidered Goods. Our line is entirely different from anything before offered in Duluth and will interest all ladies. We shall also carry an assortment of select hand painted china. If you are interested in artistic and up-to-date things, be sure to call at "The Oriental," 26 West Superior St.

FADS IN FASHIONS

For trimming the morning hat the latest Parisian craze is the large flat wing, not the kind that has been modish the past year, but a wing that is softer and that can be twisted to suit any shaped hat. These are put on to the side, and rather made to lie flat on the hat. Not many are put on, either, for the desire of the milliner is to have all effects as light as possible.

• • •

In place of the lingerie blouse there has been introduced in Paris a blouse of two layers of mousseline. The outer layer is beautifully embroidered in metal, and the colors are charming. There is little work on them so far as putting together is concerned, for shoulders and sleeves are all in one piece. In fact, the only seam is under the arm, and some of the newest blouses fasten under the arm.

• • •

One of the pretty dressing sacques shown in New York stores is a dainty allover eyelet embroidered affair of loose shape, trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion. The insertion makes a border all around the sacque and the insertion and edging a finish for all the edges. The sleeves are short flowered ones, slashed on the top and held with ribbons.

• • •

Full straight skirts, pennier draperies, pointed bodices and square, decolletages, these are some of the earmarks of the present day fashions which are indicative of a return to the dainty feminine styles of the Louis period.

• • •

The becoming dotted veils are worn once again in both delicate fine dots and veiling of the large dots and meshes. All black as well as the black interwoven with white in the texture is new and pretty, giving such a soft tone to the complexion. Many of the fine black dotted veils have a faint lining of flesh color tulle, lending just a suspicion of rose flesh to the face. Lace veils are much liked in the real Chantilly or in the imitation nets.

POINTS IN EYE CULTURE

By H. EMERSON PORTER, M. D.

If a "woman's crowning glory" is her hair, the eyes run it close as important factors in her beauty. They can make or mar a face.

The first point to understand is the great importance of health upon the eyes. In fact, beauty culture in any sense is simply the application of health and hygiene to the skin, eyes, teeth, etc. Health is beauty and there cannot be beauty without health.

Eyes require daily attention, fresh air, cleanliness and even exercise. The last consists in moving the eyes upward and downward and from side to side, with the head well held up and kept perfectly still. This strengthens the muscles which raise and lower the eyeballs and brings to the eyes a healthy supply of blood.

The best way to cleanse the eyes is to open them while the face is half submerged in a basin of cold water. This should be done every morning, as cold water is an excellent tonic for both eyes and lashes.

Attention to the general health will go far to make the eyes clear and bright and prevent fatigue, even when they are called upon to do a great deal of work.

Simple fare, regular daily exercise, fresh air in the home night and day are essential. Then the health of the eye itself must be guarded. The girl who reads in a bad light, who reads books without regard to their type being good or bad, or who sits in a huddled position with her head forward, is doing deliberate harm to any beauty of eyes she may possess.

Remember, too, that nine hours' sleep a night in a well ventilated room is the best medicine the eyes can have.

The eyebrows give expression to the face almost as much as the eyes themselves.

Daily care will improve the growth and gloss of the brows and by gentle stroking with the fingers their very shape may be altered. The fingers should be well moistened with olive oil or cocoanut oil, which also stimulates growth.

When eyebrows are thin and poor in quality try brushing them daily with a soft tooth brush moistened with brilliantine and vaseline. Cocoanut oil answers the same purpose, but it also gradually darkens the hair.

The best tonic for the lashes is cold water, or white of egg and water, prepared by beating up the white of an egg with two tablespoonsful of cold water and moistening the lashes with this each morning.

YOUNG MEN AND MAIDENS

By MISS EXPERIENCE.

Best Days for the Wedding.

"Which day of the week is luckiest for a wedding?" Isabella N. wants to know. Any day ought to be lucky enough if the pair are fully suited to each other and have good prospects. Sunday would seem to be a very propitious day, and yet it is not mentioned in the old rhyme about wedding days, which runs:

"Menday for wealth, Tuesday for health,
Wednesday the best of all,
Thursday for crosses, Friday for losses,
And Saturday no luck at all."

Helpful Girls Win Husbands.

The girl who finds time to learn something about the housework and to help her mother now and then is the sort that sensible young men like best when it comes to the matter of seeking a wife. She need not be a drudge. If she can learn to play the piano it will be all the better, and her lover will admire her playing all the more because he knows that she is equally good at washing dishes or preparing a meal. He gets a doubly pleasing foreglimpse of the home he hopes to have before very long.

No Wonder He Isn't Happy.

"I am in love with three girls all at once, and I am not happy. To tell the truth I am miserable because of my inability to determine which of the three to propose to. What would you advise?" Ben Y., who wails thus, is certainly in a sad state. As to being in love with any of the three girls he is deluding himself. Let him consider them one at a time and decide which one influences him most and in the best ways. Then dismiss all thoughts of the others.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

THE KODAK FIENDS ARE BUSY ABOUT THE HIGH SCHOOL, AND THE ABOVE GROUP OF SENIOR GIRLS WAS "SNAPPED" THIS WEEK.
Back Row—Beulah Magner, Constance Mitchell, Eleanor Reichert. Lower Row—Marion Williamson, Marie Craig and Gladys Segog.

The tryout for the inter-class debates was held last Monday afternoon and a large number of contestants were entered from each class.

Lloyd Greene, Alfred Ott, and Gilbert Bates were selected to represent the seniors and are now picked as the probable winners as each of the boys is an active member of the forum and gained much experience in debating this year.

For the juniors, Palmer Bevis, Ralph Hovide and Miss Haakens will uphold the colors of the class and the members of the 1911 class think their representatives will win.

The second year class will have Fred Weinberg, Julius Nolte, and Roger Powell on the firing line and they will undoubtedly make it interesting for the others as they too have gained experience as members of the forum.

The freshmen class will be represented by three of the most promising debaters for future teams in school. Jessie Cohen, Norman Cook, and William McDonough are the debaters for 1913 and although they have had but little experience they promise to be in the race all the time.

The committee for the senior farewell party held a meeting Wednesday and discussed plans for the last hop to be given by the 1910 class. Miss Beulah Magner has been appointed chairman of the committee and under her directions the hop should be a success. Charles Kelly was appointed to take care of the programs and music.

The senior boys and girls held separate meetings yesterday afternoon and discussed plans for arranging so all the members of the class will be able to attend the spread.

The girls will come with no escorts and the boys are to see that all the girls are taken home. In this way none of the girls will be placed in an embarrassing position or be unable to attend the spread. The class is also going to make strenuous efforts to prohibit the filling of programs before the dance.

Col. Bates spoke to the students last Monday morning concerning the plans of the Memorial day parade. The girls and boys of the city who are higher than the sixth grade are asked to march.

Mr. Bates said a silk flag will be presented to each of the girls and a cotton flag to each of the boys. A meeting of each of the classes will be held next week to discuss plans for turning out in a body on that day.

Mr. Custance is getting busy preparing plans for the class night exercises and he expects the 1910 class night to be entirely original. But few of the features of former class nights will be used.

A novel entertainment is to be given. It will be a kind of musical comedy representing the annual meeting of the Grand Court of Appeals of Mt. Olympus. Mr Custance says it will be easy to find places for a large number of the class and is sure it will be a complete success.

The geology classes were excused the fifth and sixth periods yesterday afternoon and at the beginning of the lunch period started on a geology trip to Lester Park. Prof. Fred L. Ober was in charge of the classes and the pupils were enthusiastic over their geological studies and found many specimens of interest. One more trip will be taken before the close of school.

The basketball team received sweaters Friday morning in chapel. They are real sweater coats, with an old English "D." Mr. Buck presented the sweaters to the boys, and then called upon Coach Marvin V. Wallace for a speech. Coach Wallace spoke about fifteen minutes, and was loud in his praise of the team, which is the first that has ever represented the schol. The boys worked hard, and only those who remained through the entire season know the work connected with it.

The boys who received sweaters are: "Jim" Kelly, "Morrey" Harris, Roy Johnson, Ralph Waldrow, Oscar Solheim and "Larry" Boyle.

Asher Taylor has resigned the captaincy of the junior track team, and Mortimer Bondy was chosen to fill his place. Taylor is one of the best track men in school, but an injured knee has forced him from the sport this spring.

It is reported that Mr. Heistand has also resigned as coach of the team, but nothing definite is known. If Mr. Heistand resigns Mr. Wallace will fill his place.

Miss Ruth Tuohy, Jack Hurdon, '09, Frank Scanlon and Ed Furni were visitors Thursday.

Bishop McGolrick visited the school Friday.

Miss Violet Flaaten was at first chosen on the junior debating team, but owing to the fact that she represented the school in the Central-Irving debate she was declared ineligible.

• • •

The school was much gratified over the victory of the Central team over the normal school of Superior. The score of 8 to 1 shows the superiority of the Duluth players.

• • •

The report cards came out Monday—the last before the finals. Only four more weeks for the seniors and all is over.

• • •

Miss Taylor talked to the senior girls about attending the spread in a body. Miss Taylor will help the girls to get up the banquet, and will be of much assistance to the class.

• • •

Ernest Merritt, who was ill for a few weeks, returned to school this week.

• • •

Miss Amy Rose, formerly a student at the Brainerd high school, entered the junior class at Central this week.

A number of the high school girls enjoyed a street car ride in the St. Louis, the company's private car, last Saturday, and had a splendid time.

Those comprising the party were: Eleanor Reichert, Margaret Elder, Gladys Segov, Florence Boden, Marie Craig, Alma Strand, Ruth Borland, Beatrice Flynn, Marion Williamson, Ruth Willcuts, Helen Prosser and Winifred Warner.

Mr. Wallace's United States history classes had another test Thursday. Tests are coming to the seniors from all directions.

• • •

The junior class held a meeting Wednesday and talked over the junior-senior dance which will probably be given June 14. The juniors say it is to be the best yet. In all probability the dance will be given at the new Masonic temple.

SUICIDE CHEATS LAW.

Houghton Young Man. Being Sought for, Takes Life.

Houghton, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Sinner, aged 22, for whom the police have been searching for three weeks on a forgery charge will never have to answer for his alleged crime in this world. He evidently took his life by plunging into the icy waters of Portage lake as his body was taken from that stream last night with every indication of his having deliberately committed suicide.

Newbro's Herpicide

Saves Worry
Saves Money
Saves the Hair

If you want to free your head of dandruff and stop falling hair, you must sooner or later resort to Newbro's Herpicide.

By using Herpicide first you save yourself worry, which is desirable, you save money, which is a consideration, and you save your hair, which is the most important of all.

Why not profit by the experience of Mrs. S. A. Lee of 110 South Fourth St., Richmond, Va., who writes:—

"Four years' residence in India ruined my hair until it was but two inches long and very thin. I tried everything in Europe and America without benefit until I was induced to use Herpicide. My hair is now long, soft and silky and natural color, while before it was quite gray. My friends never tire of admiring my hair."

Mrs. Lee's story is a typical history of hair troubles. After everything else fails, Newbro's Herpicide brings relief. It would be just as effective if used first.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. No matter what the claims of others, Herpicide is the only genuine original dandruff germ destroyer.

The May-Man.

WHEN the moon is rising,
During th' month o' May,
Children love to watch it,
And leave their sport and play.

For in the moon, so glorious,
The old May-Man is seen;
And if you count your fingers
And say "Red, white and green,"

And keep your eyes upon him,
Your wish will then come true;
For the moon's old May-Man
Will do all he can do

To bring your heart's dear wishes
And make your May-time bright,
If you will only ask him
When you see him rise at night.

THE FROG FAMILY IN THE POND.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

CROAK! Croak! Croak! Croak! Croak!

To the Boy and Girl sitting on a fallen log on the bank of the Pond, the above vocal sounds made by Mr. Frog meant nothing more than idle vocalizing. But had the Boy and Girl known the Frog language they would have understood the meaning of the five "croaks" that came in base notes from the edge of the water. Mr. Frog was calling to his wife, Mrs. Frog. The good lady had gone to call on some neighbors at the farther end of the pond, and during her absence something had happened which caused her husband to call to her to come home at once. The "something" was a heavy stone which had just been thrown into the pond and which had hit little Greenback Frog, son of the Mr. and Mrs. Frog of this story. And the blow had hurt the little fellow's leg very badly, and Mr. Frog, like all husbands and fathers, wanted the mamma Frog to come at once and assist him in dressing their little son's hurt. So, "croak, croak, croak," rang out over the clear water of the pond.

And on the fallen log near to the bank sat the Boy and the Girl, enjoying a very cruel sport. It was from the hands of Boy that the stone had fallen, for he and his companion were busy throwing at the frogs in the water.

"Ah, there is another frog. Hurry and hit it!" Thus cried the Girl to the Boy. And so they continued their sport, and pretty soon a dear little frog, by name Greenback Frog, was severely hurt. And then it was that the father of the injured creature called to his wife to come at once, as their son needed her.

And like all mothers, poor frightened Mrs. Frog hurried home as fast as she could go, keeping in the shadow of the moss-covered stones that grew beside the pond. And the trees and tall grasses sheltered her from view of the Boy and the Girl who would have pelted her with stones had they caught sight of her.

On reaching her own home, which was the coziest place underneath a great projecting rock all covered with moss, and which was only two inches from the water in which the Frog family loved to bathe and disport themselves, Mrs. Frog found little Greenback crying from pain. He was not saying "Oh, mamma, I have been hurt so badly! Oh, oh! oh, oh!" like children cry. He was calling out a series of sad little croaks, each particular croak sounding exactly like the other croaks to the human ear. But to the Frog ear each particular croak meant something like this: "I have been hit by a huge rock thrown from a monster on the bank. Had it hit my head it would have killed me, Mamma. Oh, how the stone bruised and tore my ankle!"

Mrs. Frog, with her anxious husband's aid, soon had the little Greenback's injured ankle bound up with a broad, soft blade of grass, with some healing clay underneath it. And little Greenback declared he felt like going to sleep now, and resting. So, in his cozy bed he crawled, and was soon fast asleep, his loving mother sitting beside him.

"I'll drop down the Pond and get something nice for our son to eat on his waking," said Mr. Frog. And kissing his wife and sleeping son he hurried away. But hardly had he left the sheltering roof of his secure house when, splash! went a stone in the water close to his head. Mr. Frog dodged into the shadow of a fallen log just in time to save himself from another stone which went splash! nearer to him than did the first, just missing him by a hair. "Ah, saved from those horrible monsters," he said. "I'll creep down the pond under the grass and not risk the open again." And this he was doing when another and a greater splash came, jarring the very log under which Mr. Frog had taken shelter and causing a tremendous commotion over the whole pond. But this time it was not a mere stone which struck the water with such force: It was the body of one of the "monsters" who had been throwing stones at the harmless and defenceless frogs. It was the Boy who had lost his balance while bending over to catch a glimpse of a poor little hopping creature that he might pelt it with stones. When the Boy fell headlong in water not quite to his shoulders, he bellowed forth wildly, joining his voice to that of his sister.

It chanced that a young man was walking through the woods when the Boy fell into the Pond, and he heard the calls for help. Hurrying to the spot where the Girl was jumping up and down excitedly on the bank, he saw the Boy in the water. "Why don't you wade out, lad?" he called to the frightened Boy. "The water isn't deep enough to harm you!"

Thus assured the cowardly Boy stood upright on his feet and rubbed the water and pondmoss from his face. "Oh," he wailed, "I'm going to die! Oh, call to Mamma and Papa to come for me!"

"You're a foolish little 'frald cat,'" laughed the young man. "Come, walk out of the pond."

The Boy did as ordered and found he was not hurt at all. But he was uncomfortably wet and his shoes were filled with water. When he reached the bank the young man asked how he happened to fall into the Pond.

"I was flinging rocks at the frogs," explained the Boy, spitting water from his mouth and gulping. "I was standing on that log there and it turned with me and I went head over heels into the deepest water I ever saw."

"Ah, ha," said the young man, looking the Boy over. "And so you met with your tumble while trying to injure the frogs! Well, had I known that I would not have come so hurriedly in answer to your cries for help. And had I seen you go into water over your head I should not have hurried to save you, for you were engaged in a cruel pastime when the accident happened. And you did not get as much as you deserved. You have been a bad fellow, injuring—or trying to injure—other creatures, whose right to live is as great as your own. So, run along home and tell your mother what a bad fellow you have been and ask her forgiveness. And then get on your knees and ask your Creator—who also created the little frogs—to forgive you. Then maybe you will be a better boy in future. You must learn the lesson of Charity and Kindness before you can ever be successful in life or have true friends. Everyone dislikes a selfish, cruel child."

Both the Boy and the Girl stood with drooping head, their faces flushed with shame. The Girl at last spoke: "We'll promise never to throw stones at the frogs again, Sir."

"Yes, I'll never do so again," agreed the Boy, still keeping his eyes bent on the ground. "I guess it was wrong for me to do as I was doing when I fell into the Pond, and that was sent on me by way of punishment. I'll tell Mamma all about it, and—if she thinks I deserve it, I'll go to bed without my supper. I hope I really didn't hurt any of those little croakers, Sir."

"Well, in future be quite sure that you do not hurt them," said the young man. "And now I'll be on my way, and shall believe you a repentant boy, sorry for his past wickedness. Good-day to you both."

The Boy and Girl stood looking after the young man till he was lost to view behind some trees; then they turned slowly homeward. And as they walked along, the Boy dripping and most uncomfortable, they resolved never, never to injure a harmless living thing again.

And in the house of Mr. and Mrs. Frog great preparations for a party were going on, for little Greenback had awakened, feeling quite himself again, but not able to go out to play with his comrades, the other little frogs. So the happy and indulgent parents had planned to have a party for him that evening, and had sent out invitations to all Greenback's little friends to come just as the full moon was peeping through the trees at herself in the Pond. And they felt not afraid, for Mr. Frog and many of his friends had seen the Boy in the Pond and had heard his frantic cries for help, and later had overheard every word said by the young man to their cruel tormentor, and knew that the "monsters" would not return to annoy them again. You see, they could understand the young man, the Boy and the Girl, much better than the Boy and the Girl could understand them. And it made them feel very happy and secure when the two children promised never to throw stones at them again.

And so it happened that peace and contentment reigned in the Pond, and that no other children ever came there to throw stones at the dear, lively little frogs, for the story of the Boy's experience got about, and the lesson he learned was applied to the other children in the neighborhood.

"Help! Brother is drowning!" she cried with all her strength. "Help! Help!"

Who Was It?

A QUEER little man
In a funny old hat
Passed down the road one day;
We watched for him early,
We watched for him late,
But he must have gone off to stay.

For the queer little man
In the funny old hat
Never came back our way,
And that is the reason
We all supposed
That he had gone off to stay.

A Fortunate Youngster.

QUEEN WILHELMINA'S baby, heir-apparent to the throne of Holland, is the most fortunate youngster in the world when it comes to a matter of covering his pink toes. An American firm has just manufactured several pairs of shoes for him; one pair out of a piece of goods of the queen's wedding gown; one of cloth of gold; another of cloth of silver, and still another pair of the very finest patent calf and cloth of silver.

Beautiful silks and brocaded satins that cost $100 per yard were used. The latter pair of shoes are tiny carriage boots in exact miniature of a woman's boot. Satin brocade in ecru and white fur were used in connection with the patent calf. Each style of shoe for this sprig of nobility is made in three colors, pink, white and blue.

Origin of the Mason and Dixon's Line.

THE historic Mason and Dixon's Line is a name that was given to the boundary line between Maryland and Pennsylvania about one hundred and fifty years ago. It coincides with 39° 43' and 26.3" north latitude. Except for a distance of 22 miles the line was marked out by Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, English engineers. They surveyed it for a distance of 258 miles west from the Delaware River, between November 13, 1763, and December 26, 1767. Each five-mile stone bears the coat of arms of Maryland cut on one side and that of Pennsylvania on the other. The intervening milestones bear the letter "P" cut on one side and the letter "M" on the opposite.

During the progress of the violent debate in Congress in 1820, which resulted in the historic measure known as the Missouri Compromise, on the question of excluding slavery from Missouri, John Randolph made use of the phrase, "Mason and Dixon's Line," as the dividing line between slave and free states, Maryland at that time being a slave state and Pennsylvania a free state. At that time the crossing of the line from the South meant freedom to the fugitive slave. The reference thus made to the Mason and Dixon's Line by Randolph as a dividing line between slave and free states brought the phrase into general use, and it continued to designate the line between freedom and slavery till after the Civil War.

The Children and the Knight.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

THE children had gone to England to pay a visit to their great-grandfather. And it was their first time to leave their New World home.

Their father had left his native land—England—when a mere boy, to seek his fortunes in the great United States of North America. And now that he was a well-to-do merchant, residing in a Western city, he had decided that his two sons and one daughter should visit the old home. And thither they had gone, accompanied by their American mother, a sweet, lovable lady. The father, being so occupied with his business, could not go with his wife and children, but promised to "run over" for them before the summer was spent and to bear them company homewards across the Atlantic.

But I must tell you the names of the children. There were Percy and Lewis, named for their grandfather and great-grandfather, and Julia, named for her grandmother. Percy was the eldest of the three, being 12 years old. Lewis was two years his junior. Julia was seven. And they were the best of playfellows, Julia entering into all the sports of her brothers.

After arriving at the old manor house of their ancestors, the children were constantly busy asking questions about the many interesting things they saw there. There were the long, dark halls, full of portraits and armor. The first were of the ancestors and the last had been worn by them when in battle. The children never tired of looking at these relics of the past generations of their blood, and the old footman—Parker, aged 70—would not only answer all their questions, but would vouchsafe much information to them besides. One day, while examining an entire set of splendid armor (of tremendous weight) Percy asked of old Parker: "Which of our ancestors wore this, Parker? He must have been a very big, strong man to have carried all this on his body while fighting."

"Ah, that was worn by—by—why, that was worn by Sir Percy, the first of the name and the builder of this hall," replied Parker, scratching his head to assist in calling up his fading memory. "Yes, Sir Lewis Percy wore that armor. And he wore it in a good cause. He fought for his king, lads."

"Were you here then?" asked Julia innocently. Both the boys laughed, but old Parker shook his head sadly: "No, Miss Julia, I was not. But I wish I might have been, for those were wondrous times when Sir Lewis Percy lived here. He had this hall built—one wing at a time. Half of it was completed during his lifetime, which covered 75 years. His son, John Percy, was what we call a spendthrift, and ran the place greatly in debt. He almost ruined it, Miss Julia. But his son walked in a different path, and again the old hall and the broad acres bloomed with thrift. He was—let me see—he was Adam Lewis Percy, your grandfather, many, many times removed. Ah, he was a great man, too, but not so great as his grandfather."

Just then Parker saw his master arriving by the big gate in front of the house and hastened away to serve him. The old gentleman, now in his ninetieth year, had been for a drive about the park and the children's mother had accompanied him.

"Ah, still studying the portraits of your forefathers, my children," said the dear old man as he observed the attentive faces of his great-grandchildren in the hall. "But on such a day you would better be romping in the park, rowing on the river or out in the garden helping the gardener. It's gloomy in this old, dark hall for children, particularly American children. They have so much sunlight and fresh winds over in the New World, and never have old places—musty from generations of use—like this manor."

"Oh, grandfather, we love this hall," cried Percy. "Parker has been telling us the history of this armor." And Percy designated the suit of armor which had interested them so much.

The aged grandfather shook his head knowingly. "Yes, yes, Parker, like his old master, lives too much in the past. But the young blood will rouse us to the present day. It is good to have children about, I can tell you." And the old gentleman chuckled in a merry way. Then resuming, "And did Parker tell you about the story of that particular suit of armor—the story as it has been handed down from one generation to another in the servants' hall?"

"Oh, no, sir," said Lewis and Percy in a breath. "May we have the story from him, sir?"

"Tut, tut, you'd better be in the garden, having old Hoe-and-Spades (the name grandfather applied to his aged gardener) telling you about cabbages and cucumbers, my children. Musty armor—hundreds of years old—can hold no interest for boys and girls of the twentieth century."

But the boys and the girl of the twentieth century thought differently on the subject, and after their mother and their great-grandfather had gone to the library, where two callers awaited them, Percy suggested that they go to the outer hall, where they could see old Parker dozing on a comfortable bench, and ask him to relate the story of the armor of Sir Lewis Percy.

The old man was as eager to tell the story as the children were to listen to it, and soon the three little Americans were seated about him, paying the closest attention.

"Well, this is the story, which I got from my mother, the housekeeper here during her lifetime. And she got it from her father, the gardener here at the hall a generation before. And he had the story from the old butler, who lived here at the time my grandfather was a lad. And so the story came, from one generation to another. And," the old man looked keenly at the children, "I don't doubt a word of it. It is said that on certain nights—usually during wartimes—the spirit of Sir Lewis Percy returns to this hall and enters his old suit of armor. And the story goes that he takes sword in hand and goes out at the Postern Gate, riding away on his milk-white steed, and that he seeks out the English Army and takes command for a night—if there be a night conflict, but if not, he gives advice to the officers. And ere the dawn he has returned to the hall, leaving the suit of armor in its old place, there against the oaken wall, and no one ever sees him depart or return." As the old man paused to give strength to his narrative, Lewis, whose eyes were on the suit of Sir Percy's armor, exclaimed:

"Upon my word, I saw that armor move just now! Do you suppose his spirit is in it?"

All eyes were turned upon the armor, but none could see the least movement of it, and a hearty laugh was indulged in at Lewis' expense. "You have a vivid imagination, Brother," declared Percy.

"Oh, if he were really wanting to wear the armor, he'd never come to don it during the daytime. He only appears at night," explained Parker. "You'll never see the old knight in his armor, I can warrant you."

The luncheon bell rang and broke up the story-telling, and as the children ran toward the great dining-room Lewis said to Percy: "I would have sworn that the armor moved a while ago."

That night, after the house was quiet, Lewis crept to the broad, shadowy stairs in the second floor hall and peered below. He was in hopes of seeing the armor move, walking toward the outside door. But he waited in vain. Growing sleepy sitting huddled in the shadow of the heavy bannister, and fearing that he might not keep awake till Sir Percy arrived—for he had great hopes that he would see him—he went several steps nearer the lower hall. There he seated himself to wait patiently.

After a few minutes, with quiet reigning throughout the great hall, Lewis heard the heavy door turn slowly on its hinges. Then, to his wonder, a knight of the Middle Ages walked slowly into the hall and fitted upon himself the suit of Sir Percy's armor. Ah, at last he had come! And he—Lewis' very ancient ancestor, so many, many generations removed—was now quite close to him! Lewis held his breath for fear of being heard and bent his starting eyes on the figure in the hall. As soon as the armor had been carefully adjusted the knight strode toward the hall door and pretty soon had passed outside. And then Lewis heard the sound of a horse's hoofs galloping down the broad graveled drive. His heart was beating high. He now had proof that he had seen his ancester enter and don the armor, and for further proof the place where the armor had been was vacant. "I'll run and call Percy and show him," said Lewis. Then, rising, he stumbled and fell! And lo! he opened his eyes to find he had been asleep and dreaming. He was on the top step of the stairs, and could see from there the suit of Sir Lewis Percy's armor still in its place in the hall below! His disappointment was great, and with a sensation of some wrong having been done him, he crept off to bed. And on the next morning he refused to talk about the suit of Sir Percy's armor, and told his little sister that he did not believe a word of old Parker's story about it. "The old fellow's mind is a bit off," he declared. "I never could believe in ghost stories, anyway."

And then, finding the gardener and the garden more interesting than the footman and the great hall, Lewis sought out the former and learned about cabbages and lettuce and beets rather than about knights and armor hundreds of years old. He had watched for Sir Percy and the old ancestor had disappointed him, and a dream had come to confuse and embarrass him.

A knight walked slowly into the hall and fitted upon himself the suit of Sir Percy's armor.

Our Puzzle Corner

CHARADE.

My first is a food
We all like to eat;
It should never be sour,
But always sweet.
My second is an insect,
Both dark and small.
'Tis common in all countries
And well known to all.
My two joined together
Just one word will be,
And it flies in the meadows
Both happy and free.

BEHEADINGS.

1. Behead an article of dress worn by both ladies and gentlemen and get that which cannot be bought, but which is worth more than anything else in the world. 2. Behead a modern small musical instrument and leave an old-time musical instrument. 3. Behead to dash noisily together and leave a whip.

CURTAILINGS.

1. Curtail to be foolish and giddy and leave part of a window.
2. Doubly curtail to wrangle and make a loud noise and leave a shellfish.
3. Doubly curtail a tool used by carpenters in their work and leave a little bird.

ANSWERS TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLES.

CHARADE—Springtime. (1. Spring. 2. Time.)

ZIGZAG PUZZLE—Money. Cross-words: 1. Man. 2. Hot. 3. Fan. 4. Not. 5. You.

UNIQUE LETTER PUZZLES—(1) Too wise you are, too wise you be; I see you are too wise for me. (2) You sigh for a cipher, but I sigh for thee; Oh, sigh for no cipher, but oh, sigh for me; then let my cipher thy cipher be; and give sigh for I sigh for thee.

BEHEADINGS—1. Clean-lean. 2. Plate-late. 3. Mice-ice.

REBUS—Ben and Tom went fishing one morning. When they reached the river they saw it was dry.

LETTER PUZZLE.

My whole of six letters is a kind of tree. My 1, 2, 4, 6 form a desire. My 4, 5, 6 form a kernel. My 3, 2, 1 form something by which we are governed.

ZIGZAG PUZZLE.

This zigzag contains seven words of four letters each. If the words are rightly guessed and written one below another their zigzag letters, beginning with the upper left-hand letter and ending with the lower left-hand letter, will spell a game much enjoyed by children. The crosswords are: 1. Something which looks very pretty over a little girl's ear. 2. The name of a central state. 3. A city dwelling. 4. To be afraid. 5. Something used for catching animals. 6. The way a lazy person likes to be. 7. Something we always have in pairs.

ABOUT PEANUTS.

EVEN if it were not for the circus America would eat more peanuts than any other country. The demand for the nuts has never been fully supplied. During the years 1907 and 1908 Japan exported 17,000,000 pounds of peanuts and the greater portion of them came to this country. Many localities in the southern part of the United States are devoted almost exclusively to the raising of peanuts and yet the demand is much above the supply.

AT THE THEATRES

"OPEN DOOR" POLICY MEANS MUCH TO DULUTH

Long List of First Class Attractions Will Come West.

Lyceum Will in Future Book Any Companies It Can Secure.

Probably the most important move in Duluth's theatrical history was taken during the week, when John Cort and Charles A. Marshall severed their connections with the Klaw & Erlanger syndicate, and announced that in the future they would follow the "open door" policy in theatrical affairs, and book any attractions they might select.

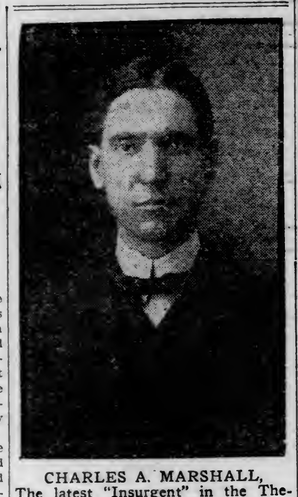
Mr. Cort controls practically all the first-class theaters in the West, and Mr. Marshall through his Copper and Iron circuit, has a large list of theaters through Northern Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Mr. Marshall and Mr. Cort have always worked closely together, as their interests are closely interwoven, and it was not surprising that when they moved they should move together.

Mr. Cort has thrown the time in 148 playhouses open to all attractions and will hereafter book both the Shubert and the Klaw & Erlanger offerings to such extent as may be requested by the producer, and accepted by him. Mr. Cort bars none. He has been assured of at least thirty first-class attractions by the Messrs. Shubert each season for the coming five years, but in this arrangement he does not deny Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger time for their attractions.

In this policy Mr. Cort is followed by Mr. Marshall in his thirty-eight theaters. C. P. Walker, whose circuit is one of the most desirable in the country and includes such cities as Winnipeg, Grand Forks, Fargo and others, is also in line.

This adopted policy of Mr. Cort and those affiliated with him was brought into operation through the unanimous demand of amusement seekers throughout their territory who have for several seasons been denied a great majority of the most prominent stars and plays. Mr. Cort has been assured of most, if not all of the following attractions for the coming season: James T. Powers, Eddie Foy, Jefferson de Angelis, Lulu Glaser, Blanche Ring, Sothern and Marlow, Frank Daniels, Marie Dressler, Bertha Kalish, Madame Olly, Mme. Nazimova, Mary Manning, Bertha Galland, Maxine Elliott, John Mason, William Faversham, Florence Roberts, Lew Dockstader, Bert Williams, Marie Tempest, Viola Allan, Wilton Lackaye, Walter Whitesides, Dustin Farnum, Bessie Abbott, Mabel Hite, May Irwin, Gertrude Elliott, De Wolf Hopper, Marie Cahill, Leslie Carter, Max Figman, Sarah Bernhardt, Forbes Robertson, Lawrence Irving and Mabel Hackney, Sam Bernard, "The Chocolate Soldier," "The City," "The Lottery Man," "Lulu's Husbands," "The Midnight Sons," "The Jolly Bachelors," "The Kissing Girl" and "Alias Jimmy Valentine." This means that these or the majority of them will come to Duluth.

The excellent theatrical conditions that already exist in the West will unquestionably be greatly stimulated by the addition of these splendid attractions, many of which have never before been presented in that territory.



CHARLES A. MARSHALL, The latest "Insurgent" in the Theatrical World.

For several seasons past the opposing forces of the Messrs. Shubert and Klaw & Erlanger have fought for supremacy throughout the country. In no section has the strife been greater than in the West. The result was the useless extravagance in the expenditure of money in the building of rival playhouses in towns and cities no more than able to support one first-class theater.

Mr. Cort, in his loyalty to Klaw & Erlanger, kept the Western field almost intact for that faction. He let sentiment interfere with his better business judgment until now, when his time will be thrown open and he will book independently as stated above. He has permanently established his booking offices at his New York headquarters in the Knickerbocker theater building, where any and all producing managers can apply for open time on the Cort, the Walker, and the Copper and Iron circuits.

"THE ROUND UP."

Remarkable Scenic Production Will Be at Lyceum for a Week.

"The Round Up" with Maclyn Arbuckle conceded to be the largest production of its kind on the stage, will begin a week's engagement at the Lyceum theater tomorrow night.

It is a story of the mighty West, produced by Klaw & Erlanger. Some idea of the magnitude of this production may be gleaned from the fact that some time today it will reach this city and that its transportation requires a train of nine cars in addition to a company of selected players—the regular cast—there is an auxiliary organization of twenty-six cowboys, twenty-six bucking ponies, a tribe of Indians, Mexican Vaqueroos, Arizona girls, cowpunchers, soldiers and scouts, all fresh from the West.

In dramatizing Edmund Day's story for the stage, Klaw & Erlanger are said to have builded on as ambitious lines as when they gave the stage "Ben Hur." The locale of the scenes of "The Round Up" are in Southwestern Arizona. This gives opportunity for what is pronounced a marvelous scenic reproduction of mountains, canyons, plain scenes of the desert and the lava beds of New Mexico—a district scorched by the sun and rainless. Into this variety of alternating charming and awe inspiring scenes is projected a story of the frontier. The play tells the story of the bride, who discovers her husband has won her by a trick. The unsuccessful suitor voluntarily wanders into the desert to die. He is followed by the young husband, who at the command of his bride, would rescue the wanderer. This incident gives opportunity for remarkable canyon and cliff scenes, in which are shown the vivid landscape, hues and atmospheric effects of that picturesque country. Over the face of the cliffs comes a troupe of Apache Indians mounted on horseback, picking their way along the trail to the white men who become allies to the common foe. This scene is described as one of the largest ever enacted in a theater, and it also shows the appearance of "Slim" Hoover, the sheriff, his deputies and the cavalrymen to the rescue. Another remarkable scene is the round up of the bucking ponies. The company numbers 134. Among the well known players engaged in the "Round Up" are Maclyn Arbuckle, Albert Phillips, Joseph M. Lothian, Sidney Cushing, Elmer Grandin, William Conklin, S. L. Richardson, James Asburn, Jacques Martin, Ogden Crane, Fred R. Stanton, "Texas" Copper, Grace Benham, Marie Taylor, and Paula Gloy. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

AT THE BIJOU

What is Heralded as the Best Bill in Many Months Will Open at the Popular Vaudeville Theater Monday.

Everything good in the vaudeville line will be on the bill next week. The program will include all styles of the popular amusement, from high class singing to daring gymnasts, and from good comedy to the highest standard of music. The headline attraction for the week will be the original Gordon Highlanders, from Glasgow, Scotland. The Duluth engagement will be the second week's appearance on the American continent as the act made its first appearance in this country at Winnipeg the past week and was the same big hit there that it has been in Europe, from what the Winnipeg papers say about the act. They wear the national costumes, sing the national songs, and dance the national dances. From different European press notes they have appeared before most of the royalty of Europe, and were specially engaged by King Edward to play before the royal family at the king's last birthday. The act has been secured for a limited number of weeks for the Sullivan & Considine circuit, after which they return to Europe for a tour of the leading music halls for which they hold contracts. The act will be the most pretentious musical offering that has ever appeared at the Bijou.

The Lillian Russell of vaudeville is Miss Mildred Stoller, who presents a series of imitations of the various stage celebrities of the world. Miss Stoller is considered to be the prettiest woman on the vaudeville stage, and the gowns that she wears are of the latest Parisian type and style.

One of the big laugh producing acts for the week will be James Toney and Antoinette Norman. They are an exceedingly clever and jolly pair, and their offering is full of life and ginger. They are both good singers, have a good supply of refined wit and humor and introduce some eccentric dancing that always makes a hit.

It is by mere chance that Murray K. Hill will appear next week owing to his contracts with the Edison and Victor Phonograph companies, limiting his vaudeville tour to a very few weeks. He is one of the best known comedians in vaudeville and is blessed with an excellent singing voice, besides his wit and humor. Murray K. Hill is known the world over through his phonagraph records which are the best and most distinct of any on the market.

The big extra feature for the week will be the four Rio brothers, who are without a peer in the gymnastic line. They are the only troupe of American acrobats who have ever played an entire season at the Hippodrome, London. They perform feats never attempted by any other gymnasts, and their feats are daring and sensational to the extreme.

The illustrated songs and exclusive moving pictures on the motiograph will complete one of the best vaudeville shows ever seen in Duluth. Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and night performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either phone, orders being taken for one week in advance.

The usual big school children's matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon, when all scholars under 14 years of age are admitted for five cents.

Performances are given Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Revival of "Caste" With Fine Company of Players--Another "Girl" With a Bad Taste--Peple's Newest Play Not Favorably Received.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Charles Frohman gave his patrons a genuine treat when he revived Tom Robertson's old comedy of "Caste" at the Empire theater. Not that the old play supplied anything particularly sensational for it is well to remember that it was written in 1867 and has grown somewhat out of fashion. But it is likewise well not to forget that it contains one of the best comedy characters in the whole range of English comedy, from Falstaff down—the bibulous Eccles towit, who has been the delight of every English comedian for forty-three years and at one time had one of the greatest exponents in this country in the person of old John Dillon.

Well, Eccles was played most effectively by George P. Huntley, the English musical comedy comedian, who demonstrated beyond cavil that he can do something better than make the judicious grieve with his London swells and peculiar swagger. He made even Marie Tempest laugh several times during the performance and made us all stare at his wonderful pantomime in one scene, where he stuffs his pipe and lights it preparatory to launching forth into a violent diatribe against the social enemies of the laboring man. You all know that famous denunciation.

And then to see Marie Tempest as the youthful Polly Eccles, more vivacious than ever, as gay as a butterfly in a clover field, kicking up her heels like a young heifer, and yet withal so sincere in the few little scenes of pathos as she consoles her afflicted sister, when the aristocratic Marquise de St. Maur humiliates her. It was simply delightful.

Moreover, the cast included Elsie Ferguson as Esther Eccles and Edwin Arden as the romantic George D'Alroy —four names that mean something, without counting the fine support afforded these principals by Maud Milton as the Marquise, Julian Royce as Captain Hawtree and Graham Browne as Samauel Gerridge, the soft-hearted plumber and lover of Polly. Browne is the young actor who made such a hit as the son in "Israel" last December at the Criterion, and now plays the light comedy part of the generous Samivel with pleasing humor.

Some of the critics treated the production as they would a premiere of a new play and found fault with the construction and stage expedients; but the big, fashionable audience that gathered at the Empire in the face of one of the most violent rain storms of the season gave full bent to its enthusiasm and every token of enjoying a real theatrical treat to which I subscribe heartily.

The only other opening was Valeska Surrat in "The Girl With the Whooping Cough" at the New York theater, where she succeeded "The Skylark."

The piece has met with about the same welcome that it received elsewhere from those who like that sort of thing, and on the opening night the management saw to it that a large amount of flowers in the shape of horseshoes and horns-of-plenty were passed over the footlights to the star.

What attracted most attention was the announcement that Miss Surrat would appear "without corsets." It is hard to tell what influence this had on the attendance, but most likely it exercised its little charm, though the performance, even with this omission, contributed nothing to the enjoyment of the farce. It is generally slated as a stupid performance of a salacious theme.

It is the story of a woman who has the whooping cough and communicates it to all the men that come in contact with her. Of course, the offense is charged to the French, but Stanislaus Stange must face partly the blame as the adapter—Stange, who has had the entree of the best family theaters for his various productions in the past, and is, in a wordly sense, quite beyond the necessity of catering to the lewd. The star has been appearing in parts of the acts which she introduces in some of the vaudeville shows for more than a year past, and even there her performance was under police surveillance as too indelicate for the patrons of vaudeville. The most distinguished name in her support is that of Dallas Welford, who is always sure of a favorable hearing on Broadway.

Edward Peple, who has just launched "The Call of the Cricket," has come before the footlights with another new play—this time a "melodramatic comedy" entitled "The Spitfire." These pleasant feminine names nowadays do not always mean what one thinks. This Spitfire, for instance, is not either the heroine of the drama or the soubrette. Nor is it the title of a horse or a mine. But it is the name of a yacht on which there are some strange goings on during a trip. The craft is manned by smugglers and the daughters of the smuggler's captain, and the outfit is pursued by the hero, who has himself fished out of the briny deep by order of the syndicate heroine and against the advice of the smugglers, who suspect—and suspect truly—that it is a ruse of his to get aboard.

The piece did not get unqualified good notice in the press. Charles Cherry appears in it as the star and the hero, and one critic calls him a waterproof actor, and declares that the play won't hold water; all of which is intended to be a nautical joke, but as I have not yet had an opportunity to look the play over myself, I can't pass an opinion on it this time. It is a handsome production and in parts it is said to be clever. In the cast is Ruth Maycliffe, who was with Charles Cherry in "The Bachelor," about a year ago.

The anti-syndicate forces are nearly every day getting new accessions to their ranks, showing that he Shuberts are making headway with their campaign for "the open door." The latest to announce himself independent since William A. Brady crossed the line is M. Reis, who controls 100 theaters in the larger cities of New York, Pennsylvanian and other Eastern states.

Daid Belasco has decided to withdraw his name from the playhouse on Forty-second street, which has been known as the Belasco ever since he took the lease on it from Oscar Hammerstein, about eight years ago. Very shortly, if not imediately—that is after Mabel Tallaferro concludes her engagement at the house—the theater will again be known as the Republic and the Stuyvesant will be rechristened the Belasco.

Some of the theatrical people here have been working themselves into a state of violent patriotism over the announcement from Berlin that some of the German public hissed the American opera "Pola," the work of Arthur Nevin of Pittsburg, libretto by Randolph Hartley. But it is well to remember that there was not enough patriotism in New York to secure an American premiere for the opera, either at the Metropolitan opera house or the Manhattan. Two German artists, Alfred Hertz, the Wagner conductor, and Madam Gadski, the prima donna, both recommended the work to the Metropolitan; but it was turned down unread. And when the composer applied to the Manhattan, Oscar Hammerstein told him to get a European production for it and then come and talk to him again. So the composer was compelled to turn elsewhere than his own country. The score was passed upon—favorably—by Engelbert Humperdinck, composer of "Hansel and Gretel," and Dr. Karl Muck, the conductor of the Royal opera house in Berlin, who are the official "examiners." After another country had given it a chance, our countrymen came bravely to the front, and from all accounts, two-thirds of the audience on the opening night, last Saturday, were sojourners from Yankeeland, and applauded patriotically to make the music drama of the Blackfeet Indians a success.

Anna Held bade farewell to the footlights when she closed her season at the new City theater in "Miss Innocence"—at least she will not return to the stage for a number of years. She says she is tired of "this artificiality" and wants to be natural while she is still young. So she has declined a big offer to appear in vaudeille and will set sail for Paris with her daughter. In two or three years her husband, Florence Ziegfeld she says, will have a Folies-Bergere in New York, and then she may, for a change, appear again for a little while before the public.

The end of the run of "The Dollar Princess" is announced. It will come at the close of the thirty-ninth week at the Knickerbocker, in a week. "The Chocolate Soldier" has completed three weeks and will probably hold on some time longer at the Casino. Blanche Ring closed in "The Yankee Girl" at the Herald Square last Saturday and on Wednesday, Marie Dressler came in to take her place with "Tilly's Nightmare," which has been playing in the East for some time now, waiting for an opening. Margaret Olly has closed her first American season at Daly's and goes to Germany for the summer, to make an American tour in "The Whirlwind" in the autumn.

Manager Lew Fields arranged a big benefit at the Broadway theater last Sunday evening to Lottie Faust's mother, who is in need. The death of the vivacious soubrette showed that she had taken an affectionate grip on the hearts of the New York public. There was an almost universal, quite unusual expression of sorrow when her death was announced a few months ago. This is again shown by the fact that Marguerite Clark, Mabel Hackney, Ida Brooks Hunt and other popular actresses took charge of the box office sale for the benefit, each one having an hour, which was formally announced in the papers.

Nazimova last week revealed a portion of her past history in an interview, particularly the fact that she had once been a ballet dancer. The interviewer asked her how she managed to be so graceful, and then she told the reason.

"If I am," she said, "I think it is due to my training as a ballerina."

Incidentally she paid her respects to the promoters of pessimistic opinions of Henrik Ibsen, in whose plays "Little Eyolf," she is now appearing, as I have set forth already.

"How ridiculous it really is," she commented, "to see the little critics 'roast' Ibsen. Ibsen will always live, while they, the little critics who write against him, they will die."

And she doesn't think that Ibsen is morbid at all. The phrase is so convenient that people who can't think use it whenever they are asked to express an opinion about the Norwegian playwright.

At the dramatic agencies it is said that there is more demand for actors to play in summer stock companies this season than ever before known. Stock companies were sporadic institutions a few years ago, and fairly good actors regarded it a kind of condescension to accept summer engagements. But of recent years there has been a marked change, and excellent players are glad of opportunities to fill such engagements now. The change is due to the fact that persons in the larger towns and cities have learned to regard stock companies as entirely worthy of their patronage, because the good acting material that has come into the business has resulted in good productions at reasonable prices. A St. Louis management makes a specialty of playing "stars" all through the summer and finds that it can make money, though it pays dearly for it.

William A. Brady has been prompted by the example of Charles Frohman to revive a favorite old play with a selected cast, and will shortly present "Jim the Penman." Among the leading players are John Mason, Wilton Lackaye and Lawrence Roberts, whose acting ability is recognized here, but who has never been seen in a suitable play.

William Morris, who two years ago started out single-handed to fight the vaudeville trust, and is now the controlling factor in that field, so far as New York is concerned, returned from Europe the other day and announced that he had secured an option on Sarah Bernhardt's time. Rejane's time for a season over his vaudeville circuit. It is not explained how this jibes with the prior announcement that the divine Sarah has been lassoed by one of the syndicate managers for a tour of the country in her repertoire. Morris has also closed for twenty weeks of Harry Lauder.

"I was playing out West a few years ago," said J. C. Huffman, general stage director of the Shuberts, "with a company, the management of which was noted for its irregularity of pay day. One of the actors was continually joking of our plight. One night he was compelled to sleep in a room which was haunted. Next morning the manager asked him if he had not been afraid.

"'No,' replied the actor. 'It was a real relief to be in some place where the ghost walked.'"

Madame Marietta Olly recently gave a special matinee performance of Henri Bernstein's play, "The Whirlwind," at Daly's theater, the proceeds of which were donated to the actors' fund. A feature of the event was a delegation of former friends of the star, members of the German Theater company, who attended the performance to see Madame Olly for the first time as an English-speaking actress.

John Mason has been in the habit of walking into any of the Shubert theaters without a pass, because all the doorkeepers knew him. When he started in to see Mabel Barrison and Harry Conor in "Lulu's Husbands" he was asked for his ticket. For the moment the actor was dumbfounded. When he questioned the ticket-taker, however, he was told that he had orders to admit no one without a ticket. Mr. Mason then realized that it was a new doorkeeper. "Can it be possible he doesn't know me," he said. However, he sought out the house manager and his wounded vanity was appeased by the official explaining that the recent anti-pass regulation accounted for the doorman's apparent lack of civility.

The principals of the cast engaged to support Gertrude Elliott during her London appearance in Mrs. Burnett's play, "The Dawn of a To-Morrow," will include Henry Ainley, Herbert Waring, Jameson Lee Finney, J. H. Barnes, Ada Dwyer, Portia Knight, Roy Fairchild and Ernest Joy.

Will Archie, remembered as Bud, the stable boy, with Lillian Russell in "Wildfire," has signed up to appear in Lew Field's new production of "The Summer Widowers," to open at the Broadway theater the middle of May. He has the leading comedy part, that of a small boy of by no means angelic temperament. The part will be particularly fitted to his line of comedy work, especially a small boy, as he is alone in that class, being but a little over four feet high and weighing less than 100 pounds.

During the past five months Mme. Bertha Kalich, after devoting almost all her spare time to the reading of manuscripts of foreign and American plays, has selected for her repertoire for the coming season in New York three new plays of widely different scope and distinctly varied character. One of these plays is by a German dramatist of note; the other is by a Russian dramatist, and the third play is by an American playwright.

All the three plays deal with modern conditions, and are striking delineations of the life of today. One of the dramas which Mme. Kalish has selected will be produced next season simultaneously in New York, Berlin, Vienna, Paris and other capitals of Europe. Mme. Kalich will present in addition to these three plays next season in New York two plays by Henrik Ibsen, which have not yet been seen in this country.

Julian Eltinge will be starred in musical comedy next season by Al H. Woods, and it is probable that he will play both male and female parts. The play in which he will appear, it was said yesterday at the offices of Al H. Woods, has not yet been written. The comedy will concern a person who leads a double life, appearing as a woman at some times and as a man at others.

Francis Wilson, the comedian, has taken steps to legally adopt "Baby" Davis, who plays the child in his comedy, "The Bachelor's Baby." The youngster's right name is Atwell Davis. He first joined Mr. Wilson's company two years ago, coming to the actor in the usual way—from a theatrical agency in charge of his aunt. The youngster had never had any stage experience, and as Mr. Wilson, the author of the play, knew better than any one else exactly what he wanted of the part, which in his play is Martha Calvert Beach, Master Stephen's first tuition as an actor was personally given him by Mr. Wilson.

The little actor and the big one worked a good part of the summer two years ago rehearsing the part. Then Mr. and Mrs. Wilson took the little fellow with them to their country home at Lake Mahopac. There Mr. Wilson continued the task of making an actor of young Stephen.

As the play went on tour and then finally came to New York, young Stephen Davis and Francis Wilson gradually grew from fast friends to inseparable chums. Little by little, just as happens to the bachelor every night on the stage, little Stephen entwined himself about Mr. Wilson's affections.

Mr. Wilson's decision to adopt young Stephen Davis came about with his desire to carry on further in his own way the child's education—a proposition that met with the hearty accord of the little fellow's relatives.

Stephen Atwell Davis, whose real name pretty soon will be Stephen Atwell Wilson, is just turned 7 years of age. Even when he becomes Mr. Wilson's "youngest" he will still remain for a time in "The Bachelor's Baby," and for all time Mr. Wilson's baby.

Viola Allen received a cablegram last week from the board of governors of the Memorial theater in Stratford-on-Avon, conveying their regret that Miss Allen has been prevented from appearing in the Shakespearean festival celebration. She had been invited by the governors to appear as Viola in "Twelfth Night" at the celebration. Miss Allen was obliged to decline, owing to the fact that her season in the Marlon Crawford play was not yet over.

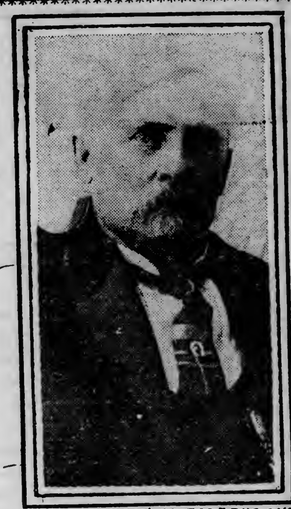
INDIAN BRIDES HAVE BROUGHT THESE MEN WEALTH

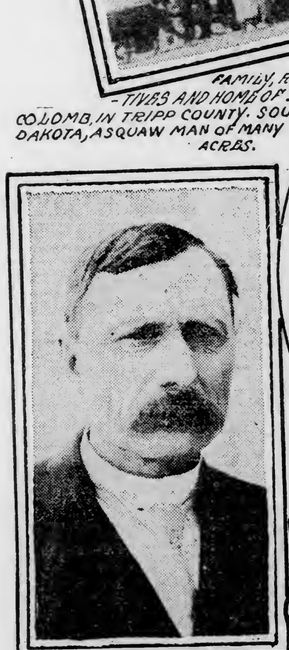
George Carmack, Klondike Discoverer, Owed His Great Find to the Fact That He Is a Squaw Man--How C. P. Jordan Won an Indian Princess, Secured Sections of Fertile Prairie Land and Spoiled Schoolbook History--The Indian Bride Who Has Made John Colomb a Rich Man --The Fifty-Four Years of Wedded Devotion of Enoch Raymond and Betsy Faithful, a Sioux Maiden.

Written for The Herald by Bailey Millard.

FAMILY, RELATIVES AND HOME OF JOHN COLOMB, IN TRIPP COUNTY, SOUTH DAKOTA, A SQUAW MAN OF MANY ACRES.



CHARLES P. JORDAN, OF ROSEBUD, ONE OF THE RICHEST MEN IN SOUTH DAKOTA. HIS WIFE WAS AN INDIAN PRINCESS OF THE SIOUX TRIBE.



GEORGE W. CARMACK, WHO WAS ON A RIVER TRIP WITH HIS INDIAN WIFE AND HER BROTHER WHEN HE UNEARTHED THE KLONDIKE TREASURE HOUSE.

ENOCH WHEELER RAYMOND AND HIS FULL BLOODED INDIAN WIFE, WHO WERE MARRIED FIFTY-FOUR YEARS AGO.

A SIOUX MAIDEN WHO OWNS 160 ACRES OF LAND AND IS AS LIKELY TO MARRY A WHITE MAN AS ONE OF HER OWN RACE.

(Copyright, 1910, by the Associated Literary Press.)

"How to Be Happy Though Married to a Squaw" is a subject upon which a lot of white men that I know out West are fully qualified to write learned essays. Perhaps they would write them if only they had time, but the ones whose histories I am best acquainted with are busy making money and enjoying life in a better way than trailing ink across paper and thus boggling their brains and destroying their digestions. Who would be an author if he could be lord of a large domain, the owner of a big band of cattle or a gold mine?

But, wait a moment! Now that I come to think of it some of those squaw men are already great writers—greater writers than Milton or Shakespeare or Thackeray or Hugo. For have they not writ large upon the landscape in mile-long furrows, giving forth great utterances of wheat and corn?

Of course, not all squaw men are rich. Indeed, I have seen some of the poorest of white trash living sordid, sensual lives with dusky mates in little shacks in the canyons and coules, content to sit in a corner and smoke and drink and swear at their helpmeets, whom they load up with labor and beat and enslave in the same manner that the noble red man discourages the suffragette movement in his neck of the woods.

As to prosperous squaw men—men who have gone out West with a pair of blankets and a shoestring and, in the course of time, have become wealthy because of their tieing up with some Hiawatha of the plains—you will find plenty of them in Oklahoma, Wyoming and the two Dakotas, and here and there you will meet them all over the wilder West.

Canny John Colomb.

Take John Colomb, who, as a young man, went to the Rosebud agency, and married a comely Sioux woman. John saw the fertile lands of Tripp county, South Dakota, and he coveted them. But they were all parceled out to the Indians, and the only way a white man could get possession was to marry an Indian woman. This John did, taking to wife the prettiest girl he could find in the tribe.

Now, every Sioux, whether full-blood or half-blood, is entitled to 160 acres of land for himself and for each member of his family. The more children John might have the more land he could get under his control. Although no twins came along, the stork was kind to Colomb, and now he is in possession of so many acres that it takes him a whole day to drive over them. He has section after section of as good land as lies out of doors, and he would probably not sell out for less than $50,000 or $60,000.

John has a good stone house, roomy, clean and well-kept. It is out on the prairie, where the wind sweeps it and brings him plenty of healthful ozone. He is as happy a man as ever you saw, and he looks upon his neat, well-dressed family, in whom the girls preponderate, with much pride.

A Squaw Man Who Spoiled History.

Another of the Rosebud ranchers who told me he would not exchange lots with any city man alive, is C. P. Jordan, who has a fine store at the agency and many acres of good land not far away, and who is married to a Sioux woman of good tribal parentage, her uncle having been a chief, while she herself was formerly known as a princess, though she has become so highly civilized as hardly to remember the old days when she tripped about the tepee in beaded moccasins.

Jordan is the man who spoiled school history and many learned magazine articles by proving that it was not Sitting Bull who was responsible for the Custer massacre, but Crazy Horse and that he captured Crazy Horse, thereby surrendered to him with about 900 of his warriors and all their rifles and horses.

"I had been a friend of the Sioux," said Jordan to me, "and they would do anything for me. Crazy Horse I knew well, and I know, too, that he would never have gone on the warpath had he been rightly treated by the government and by the white men who were about the Red Cloud reservation, of which I was chief clerk. Physically, he was a splendid fellow and a man of noble character. Proud of spirit and very restless by nature, he was too much a lover of freedom to live the life of an agency Indian. He wanted to roam and to hunt as his people had done before him, but the agency officials wouldn't permit him to do this and he was held down to a life that he despised. So he ran away and went upon the warpath and slew Gen. Custer and his soldiers. Afterward he was induced by some friendly Indians to meet me in my camp and I got him to lay down his arms.

"There was a touch of the mystic about Crazy Horse. For one thing he was held to be absolutely invulnerable to arrows or bullets. He made such a fine figure and was such a good Indian after I captured him that the white folks of the agency were very attentive to him and gave him many favors. This made the other agency Indians angry, and in their jealous rage they spread lies about him. They declared that he was getting ready to go upon the warpath again and was likely to leave the agency at any moment. I tried to make the officials understand that this was not true, but they doubled the guard around him and his movements were much restricted. This action made Crazy Horse very bitter, and he and his band broke away from the reservation and went to Spotted Tail agency and then roamed off to the north.

"It was not long before he was recaptured and taken to Spoted Tail agency. He wanted to return to Red Cloud, but instead of that the officers took him to Fort Robinson, promising him all the while that he should be taken to Red Cloud. When the ambulance in which he was being driven drew up in front of the guard house at Fort Robinson and Crazy Horse saw the grated cell door he realized that he had been deceived and that he was to be made a close prisoner. As he was thrust into the cell the chief, crying out against the trickery that had been practiced upon him, drew a knife and made a fierce lunge at Capt. Kennington, who was standing nearby. Had it not been for Little Big Man, one of his followers, Crazy Horse would have slain Kennington in his tracks, but Little Big Man threw his arms about the chief, and at that moment the sentinel on guard drove his bayonet through his left side and he died soon afterward.

Winning an Indian Princess.

"It was because I was friendly throughout to the Indians throughout all their troubles and particularly because I succored the Ogallala Sioux of the old Red Cloud agency when they were starving as a result of the work of bungling bureaucrats at Washington that Red Cloud gave me his niece, Weah-Wash-Tay, the Beautiful One, in marriage. It was the proudest moment of my life when I married her and I have never regretted it for a moment."

After marrying Weah-Wash-Tay, Jordan acquired large landholdings, as the wife and her six children bought him each a quarter section. The marriage also extended his relations with the Indians, bringing him into closer contact with them and when he took up the business of post trader he soon became very well-to-do and is now one of the wealthiest men in South Dakota. He is excessively devoted to his Sioux wif and has given her every luxury. Her house is well-ordered, she has plenty of white servants to wait upon her and is able to devote herself to her children and to her bead work in which she shows a very pretty fancy.

They tell a story out at the Rosebud that illustrates Jordan's nerve. "Texas Tom," the famous desperado, who killed "California Joe," was at a dance and drinking very heavily. At last Tom got ugly and out of sheer bravado demanded that all the men should clear out of the hall.

"Git, damn you!" he cried, "or I'll kill every man o' you!" He waved his pistol and began shooting through the ceiling. Before the men could run out of the place he fired at one of them and wounded him. Jordan rushed into the hall, seized the ruffian by his pistol hand, wrenched the weapon away from him and marched him off to jail.

The white man who has perhaps profited most in a material way by marrying a squaw is John Ramle, of Turtle Butte, S. D. Ramle, who went to South Dakota before divorce colonies were ever heard of there, married a tall, handsome young Indian woman and they now have a family of ten children. This, with the wife's portion, gives Ramls 1,760 acres of land, nearly all of which is fine farming country, rich and fertile. He has taught his sons to till the soil and he is living there in a lordly way, as happy as any man you will find in the West. Some of his daughters are very pretty young women and they have high social standing among the white people living on the reservation.

While I was out there on the prairies I heard of one Lamoureaux, who also has a large half-blood family and many broad acres, though he is said to have gone to that country a poor man.

The Wise Indian Maidens.

Since it has become noised abroad that to get possession of a large piece of valuable land all one has to do is to lead an Indian bride to the altar and the government will endow one's children with a large farm apiece, there has been quite a migration of adventurous men to South Dakota. But the Sioux girls are wise. Most of them will not marry a man who has no visible means of support or who drinks or gambles. They have seen too many examples of unhappy marriages with white men to take chances with any one who happens along.

Down in Oklahoma the Indian girls are not so particular, as they are probably of a lower type than the Sioux. I heard of one man, who because of his profligacy had been cut adrift by his people, who lived in Boston. He went out to Oklahoma and married an Indian woman who set resolutely to work to reform him and actually did so. He is now driving his own automobile over the prairie and has the biggest barn and the finest lot of cattle to be found in the southeastern part of the state. The unregenerated has been regenerated by a red woman.

"He never beat her but once," said my informant. "Then she declared that if he did it again she would get a divorce from him, in which case he would have no property at all, as it was all in her name. Well, that sobered him up, and by keeping that sword suspended over his head and by managing him in other ways, she made a man of him. No, sir; the Indian wives of Oklahoma are not standing for as much nonsense from their ausbands as they did when the country was new. Some of them find that they can take their pick of the white men that come along, though here and there you find a squaw that is pretty sick of her bargain, for some men degenerate frightfully when they hitch up with an Indian woman."

The Luck of "Doc" Gilbert.

It is a saying with the cattlemen that Indian wives bring good luck. That was certainly the case with Victor Gilbert, or "Doc" Gilbert, as the Arizona cattle punchers call a New England man who went out to the Navajo country in 1878 and married a demure Pocahontas of that tribe. At first "Doc" tried cattle raising, but he was a poor rider and was always being bucked off his horse. The last time this happened he was nearly killed. So he made secret preparation to leave the country and desert his wife and three half-blood children. The squaw heard of his cruel intention and told him that if he would remain with her he would be a rich man.

"Pooh!" said "Doc." "Why, your people are poor as coyotes—what can they or you do for me?"

"Listen," said the wife. "I know of a place in the mountains where there is plenty of gold. My father told me about it before he died. If you will stay with me I will show it to you."

She had told the same story to "Doc" before and he had taken no stock in it; but this time, being particularly down on his luck, he listened. The next day they started out on a couple of burros and after a long journey they came to a canon where there were some fine outcroppings of gold quartz. "Doc" had the rock assayed and within two months he was at work there with two other men taking out gold by the bagful. When the mine was exhausted he took the $100,000 that it brought him and bought some fine mining property in Sonora, where he lived until about ten years ago, when he was shot by a Mexican with whom he got into dispute over a land title.

It was largely through his friendship with the Indians and particularly because he married into their tribe, that John Bidwell made his way so smoothly in California in the early days. Bidwell amassed a fortune before his Indian wife died. After her death he went East and married a New England girl and took her back to California with him. His new wife did not know that he ever had been married to an Indian woman, but the kind ladies of the neighborhood took occasion to call upon her at the first opportunity and appraise her of the fact.

"Yes, Mrs. Bidwell," said one of them rather pityingly, "Mr. Bidwell was married to a squaw. Didn't you ever hear about that?"

"No," said the newly made bride. "I never did; but from the looks of some of the white women I have seen around here I don't blame him in the least."

The kind ladies ventured no more information about Mr. Bidwell's first wife.

Another Californian named Henry Coe married a Klamath girl in the early days. Coe always declared that his Indian wife brought him no end of luck in the mines. Her people knew where the gold was and they took him to it. But even when he made shift for himself he would always make a good strike if his wife was along. So when she died and he was afterward reduced to bankruptcy, he took another Indian girl to wife, despite the fact that there were white girls in the neighborhood that were setting their caps for him, not knowing precisely what his financial status was. Within six months after his second marriage he made a big strike, clearing up a fortune in a short time. After that he went to Alaska, taking his Indian wife along. The last time I heard of him he was in the Tanana country and was still lucky. He told me he was morally certain that he owed all his good fortune to his wife. But then, you know, miners are superstitious.

The Klondike Discoverer a Squaw Man.

While I was in Alaska I heard the true story of how the Klondike came to be discovered, and it was all because of an Indian woman. As everybody knows, George W. Carmack was the man who staked the first claim in the Klondike, but, as everybody doesn't know, George was only a poor sailor living among the Chilcoots near Dyea, where he had left his ship. He liked the ways of the Indians and no one could please him better than by mistaking him for one. He had a little trading post near Five Finger Rapids on the Yukon, and there he swapped cheap rifles for valuable furs brought in by the Siwashes. They liked him because he was one of them and his wife was one of their tribeswomen. When white men would come along and make a little fun at George's expense because he was wedded to a squaw, he would say quietly:

"That's all right. Mary brings me lots of luck. Don't you wish you had an Indian wife?"

Mary brought him more luck than mere bundles of furs. One day he took her and her brother, Skookum Jim, in a boat and sailed down through the rapids to the place where Dawson now stands. Other Indians came along in other boats, quite a flotilla, and stopped to rest there at the mouth of the Klondike river. George poked along up the little river, his wife and her brother by his side. When they got to Bonanza creek they branched off up in that direction and finally arrived at Rabbit creek. There Skookum Jim, who had been panning the gold along the way, filled his pan at the foot of a birch tree and took it down to the stream. He washed out the "dirt," and in the bottom of the pan found about 10 cents' worth of gold. This fired George Carmack's imagination. He went up and down the little valley eagerly searching for gold and finally found it in good paying quantities, $2 to $3 to the pan. Rejoicing in his great luck, he staked a double claim for himself, another claim for his wife and still another for his brother-in-law. Within a few weeks he was a wealthy man.

"I owe it all to Mary," he used to say when he told the story of his discovery. "If it hadn't been for marrying her I should never have been so lucky." And of course, he was right, for it was a case with which superstition had nothing to do. If he hadn't married Mary he would not have gone up the river with Skookum Jim, who found the first trace of gold and gave him the clew to his great discovery of the wealth of the Klondike.

Besides Carmack, there were several very wealthy Alaskan miners who had squaw wives, but he is the only one I know who would confess to it in polite society. At Dawson a man who was living with an Indian woman was not socially ostracized during the early days, for the male sex predominated by the Siwashes. They liked him in this irregularity, but as time passed and the place filled up with white women the squaw man was looked upon with less and less favor. This was because a great many white women went to the Klondike with the notion of marrying miners, and naturally they objected to being supplanted by their red sisters. Then, too, most of the marriages to Indian girls were not marriages at all, or only tribal ceremonies, quickly broken, as they were not deemed binding by the men who consented to them in order to gain a bride of the wilderness.

Fifty-four Years of Devotion.

In the Dakotas, however, such marriages are of frequent occurrence, and they are respected there. A white man loses little if any social caste by marrying an Indian woman, who will insist upon having the ceremony performed by a magistrate, priest or minister. The number of such marriages that are lived up to for years and years is surprising, considering the prevalence of divorce in that section. For one thing, a man will not leave his Indian wife and family where they have brought him a large acreage of good land, for by so doing he is likely to lose it. Besides that, there is in evidence a genuine feeling of devotion for their wives and children among the squaw men of the Dakotas that is not to be found in other sections where such men are numerous.

A touching case of the devotion of a squaw man to the wife of his choice was that of Enoch W. Raymond, a guide and ranchman who settled in South Dakota in the '60s. Raymond, who was a man of considerable culture, wooed and won a pretty Indian girl named Betsy Faithful, in the days when the Sioux roamed wild over the plains. He lived very happily with his wife, by whom he had several children. In every way possible he endeavored to uplift and educate Betsy, who soon became a shining example of what can be done with raw, red material when subjected to civilizing influences. As a result of his marriage Raymond became a wealthy rancher, and the more money he made the more devoted he seemed to his Sioux wife and their half-blood children. Fifty-four years Betsy Faithful lived with her white husband and then she was gathered to her fathers. The white ranch folk speak with much tenderness of the life of this truly noble woman and the love she and her husband bore for each other for over half a century.

"BUT WHO ON ANY TERMS WOULD HAVE A WIFE LIKE THIS?"

MENDING BROKEN FAMILIES

Washington Makes the Wife Deserter Pay the Piper—Puts Him on Probation and Turns His Wages Over to the Juvenile Court for His Family.

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN, of Washington, D. C.

(Exclusive Service The Survey Press Bureau.)

Experience under the family desertion and non-support law in Washington, D. C., has proved that it is possible to bring deserting husbands to time and make them support their families, however much they may want to skip out and leave wives and children to shift for themselves.

Punishment in itself profits nobody. The law aims not to punish but to secure support. The man decides whether he will work in confinement or out of it, and Judge William H. De Lacy of the juvenile court, sees that he does work in one way if he will not in the other. The judge is a good thinker and has mended so many broken families that he knows what he can do; and the men know, too.

When a man brought up for non-support promises to furnish it he is put on probation, and ordered to pay a specified amount from his wages each Saturday night at the police station nearest his home. The sergeant turns the money over to the juvenile court, and then the wife gets it in full on Monday morning, her pay day. The money is pretty safe here and the plan heads off many a Saturday night spree. The man is kept at work, which is a mighty good thing of itself, and the family is kept together.

Men who are not willing to furnish support under this arrangement, and those who default in payment or desert a second time, are promptly sent to the workhouse. There they are made up into gangs and put to work in Rock Creek park, where President Roosevelt used to take his afternoon gallop. They have a hard day's work in the open air, with good food, and for this the law requires the government to pay 50 cents a day to the wives as for any government employe. The work in the park would cost $1.50 a day if not done by prisoners, so $1.00 is left to pay for boarding and guarding the men, after the wages have been taken out. Congress appropriates $2,000 a year for this purpose, thereby setting a good example to state legislatures and city councils.

It pays to do so. A man who can get out at any time will not work long in this way. Last year only one man out of nine had to be sent to the workhouse, and he got out after an average of six weeks. The government paid $2,340 for work, but the men outside earned $38,319.65, which was collected by the police and paid to the families through the juvenile court. This made a total return of $40,659.55 on an investment of $2,500. Pretty good business, that!

Beyond the money value of the labor, however, is the moral effect of the work and its compensation on the man in his relations to his family. Instead of escaping the punishment which he deserves and so failing to realize that he has done wrong, the issue is squarely made and the workhouse sentence, if inflicted, reveals his conduct to him in its true character. Many men have reformed after this experience, and it is due in large part to the compensation provided that the judge is able to inflict the punishment without hesitation where he thinks it necessary.

Judge De Lacy's execution of the law is effective because it is certain. Family desertion is a misdemeanor or a felony in almost every state and is punishable with hard labor in many. But to punish the man in jail, the judge must also punish his wife and children by cutting off his wages. That means in many cases that the wife must go to work or accept help from a charitable society or the city.

The Washington law does away with all that. In the three years and nine months during which the law has been in operation the amount paid to prisoners by the government is $3,876, while the amount collected from them through the juvenile court is $90,-$65.84. This proves the success of the plan, and it ought to be generally adopted.

QUEER FRIENDS.

Wide World Magazine: On board the Union Castle R. M. S. Goth, on a voyage from the Cape to Teneriffe, was a little monkey belonging to one of the stewards. It was very fond of sitting on the back of a tortoise, another ship's pet, while the latter crawled about the deck. Although rather ill tempered and snappish with people, the monkey was always friendly with the tortoise, who made no objection to being used as her steed.

AMERICAN ROBINS IN ENGLAND.

Westminster Gazette: An attempt has been made lately to introduce the American robin into Surrey, with apparent success. Six pairs turned loose last June near Guildford have reared about forty nestlings. The name of our robin was given by the Pilgrim Fathers to the largest and most numerous of the American thrushes (Turdus migratorius), because of its red breast and friendly association with man.

The American robin is closely related to our blackbird, and has a sweet, melodious song. Its introduction to Surrey will be regarded by market gardeners with much misgiving, for though his food consists chiefly of worms or insects, he works sad havoc among the cherries.

GREAT COLERAINE CONCENTRATING PLANT NOW BEING VERY SUCCESSFULLY OPERATED

Coleraine, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The great iron ore concentrating plant located near here has been put in operation, thoroughly tested, and proved successful. Train loads of low grade unmerchantable ore are delivered daily to this great mill, concentrated by the water-gravity process, and sent on to the docks at Duluth. It is the beginning of a new industry in Northern Minnesota. It is the means of making marketable 1,000,000,000 tons of what has heretofore been considered unmerchantable ore in the Canisteo mining district. Other washing plants will doubtless be built and Northern Minnesota will be more populous and richer because it is possible through this concentrating process to make marketable the low grade iron ore in other parts of the state. It means a larger wage scale for many workers, a great market for the farm products, and more stores and shops.

Only Plant in America.

This is the only iron ore concentrating plant of its kind in America. It is also true that it is, strictly speaking, the only one of its kind in the world, as many of the excellent features of its success have been invented by a system of trial experiments covering a period of four or five years in this locality.

The process is known as the water-gravity system. The iron ore is elevated by an incline railroad to a height of nearly 100 feet above the surface of the ground and dumped in great ore bins at the top of the concentrating mill. From here it is passed down through streams of water into perforated revolving trommels, different sets of log-washers, finally reaching the Overstrom-Nichols vibrating tables and again collected into bins at the bottom of the mill where it is loaded into the cars which convey it to the ore docks of Lake Superior.

The machinery of the mill is run by electric motors. The electrical energy for these is supplied from a power-house one and one-half miles distant where a great 1,250-kilowat current generator produces the current of 6,600 volts. This electrical energy is transferred from the powerhouse to the concentrating mill by a surface pole line of heavy copper wire. The water necessary for the great washing plant is pumped from the pumping station on the shores of Trout lake, which is under the same roof as that of the electrical power plant. The water is conducted through a surface main thirty inches in diameter. The capacity of the pumps is 8,000,000 gallons in twenty-four hours.

Cost Million and Half.

The capital for the experimental purposes and for the completion of the new washing plant was furnished by the United States Steel corporation, of which the Oliver Iron Mining company is a subsidiary company. The estimated amount expended in this undertaking is $1,500,000.

Coleraine thus becomes the center of interest in the iron ore mining section around the Great Lakes. Already the stream of visitors has commenced to come to inspect this great work.

While credit is due many individuals for the successful completion of this ore washing plant, special credit is due such men as John C. Greenway, general superintendent; William Nichols, superintendent of the concentrating mill; F. B. Cronk, chief engineer; Charles Claypool, who was superintendent of the experimental washing plant, and Walter Congdon, who also assisted with the experimental work.

Gratifying to J. C. Greenway.

Of all who have had any part in the consummation of this great undertaking none can have greater satisfaction than Supt. John C. Greenway. He came to the Canisteo district five years ago when it was an unbroken wilderness. He has been a part of every great undertaking in the vast mining development here. He has directed stripping operations which have involved the moving of millions of cubic yards of overburden. He has had a part in planning the best laid-out mining town in America. But there is none of the great undertakings in the development of the Canisteo mining district that has earned Mr. Greenway more credit than the construction and successful completion of the new iron ore concentrator. There may be great credit due one, who can begin a vast undertaking, but there are few who can stay by the work until it is completed. His theories on washing iron ore of a few years ago have become the proven realities of today. The product of the ore washing plant is on its way to market.

The 1,250 kilowat revolving generator, fly-wheel type, shown in the rear, is capable of transmitting power pressure of 6,600 volts. In the foreground, the compound pumping engine, capacity of 8,000,000 gallons in twenty-four hours. Used for pumping water for washing ore and generating electricity for motive power at the great iron ore washing mill, located one and one-half miles from the power and pumping station.

EXTERIOR VIEW OF PLANT.

Capacity, 10,000 tons daily. It is estimated that the completion and successful operation of this ore washing plant, the only one of its kind in America, will make marketable 1,000,000,000 tons of otherwise not merchantable iron ore near Coleraine

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

FALLING OFF IN PERMITS

Duluth Is Behind Other Cities in Building Record for April.

Many Residences Will Be Erected in the City This Year.

There have been no developments of note in the building situation during the past week. Buildings erected during the winter have been completed and the builders, who substantially completed their contracts May 1, have given the week to putting on finishing touches.

There is a vast amount of residence building in progress, but little work in the way of big buildings for business purposes. Some apartment houses have been planned and they will be erected this year, but that class of building has also fallen off.

For the first time in recent months, the total amount of work for which building permits have been issued has fallen off from the figures of the corresponding month of the previous year. During April, 180 building permits were issued by the Duluth inspector, the same number having been issued a year ago. The estimated cost of the work fell off this year, however, being $237,480 against $339,295 a year ago, a decrease of 30 per cent.

Most of the permits taken out this year were for residences to be constructed at comparatively modest cost. In point of number of buildings erected, this year will be a good one for the builders, but there will undoubtedly be a falling off in the cost of the work from the total of last year, which was the banner year in the history of Duluth.

There are developments in the building line at Lakeside and more residences will be constructed in that thriving suburb this year than ever before in its history, it is said. Some fine residences are now in course of construction and others will follow.

George Van Burgess, who was formerly an alderman from the Fourth ward, will become a resident of the First soon, for he is erecting a fine new residence on Forty-third avenue east. Two other new residences are being constructed on that avenue and a number of others are planned. A building line has recently been established on Forty-third avenue north from Superior street and a line has also been established on Superior street from Fortieth to Forty-fourth avenue.

• • •

F. L. Young & Co. are taking figures on a new brick residence to be erected for Fred Bayha at the corner of Twenty-first avenue east and Third street. The contract will be let next week. The residence will cost about $10,000.

The same firm is taking figures on a church to be erected at Chisholm for the Servian Greek Orthodox society at a cost of about $10,000.

• • •

Austin Terryberry, architect, yesterday awarded the contract to H. C. Brown for the erection of a four-flat building at Grand avenue and Seventy-first avenue west for A. H. Willis of Boston.

• • •

J. J. Wangenstein has prepared plans for a frame residence to be erected for A. Florman on Tenth avenue east. The contract has been let to A. Florman.

Mr. Wangenstein is preparing plans for a fine modern frame residence to be erected for Dr. J. H. Crowe at Virginia, Minn.

MR. SALARIED MAN:—

IF YOU HAD SAVED 50 per cent of your RENT for the past few years, by now you would have been a fine example of INDEPENDENT MAN. This so-called high cost of living would have resolved itself into the other fellow's trouble—not yours.

We believe that you will agree with us, that the man who is plugging along under this high cost of living, and at the same time is paying a big rent for poor accommodations in a flat or inferior house, is quite an unfortunate chap, but he don't have to do it, and here's PROOF:

Purchase one of our lots (50x140 ft.) and we will build you a Home of your own. Your rental payments thereafter will give you an equity of nearly 50 per cent each month—as good as any savings proposition as you could get anywhere.

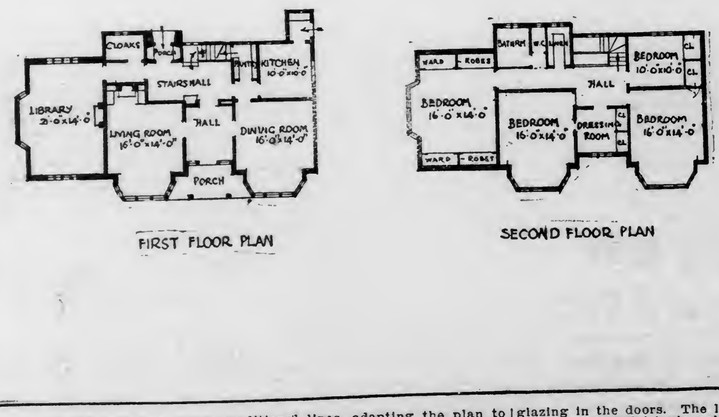
ARE YOU PLANNING TO BUILD? HERE IS A HOME FOR THE MAN WITH SOME MEANS



The exterior of old buildings grew naturally from the necessities of the time and by reason of their plan; this is why they never look out of place but always in harmony with the environment. There was no striving after an effect that was not logically the outcome of the plan, but these delightful pictures were obtained by thoughtful planning of one room in relation to another and of the garden to the whole. By way of giving a welcome at the entrance, the garden was often so contrived that a bright picture of it, with its stone-flagged and flower-decorated path greeted you as you entered. The above house is designed on these old traditional lines, adapting the plan to modern requirements, but using materials to the best advantage and gaining lasting interest to the design.

The exterior has brick walls of rough texture, varying colors and wide joints, half timber filled in with brick work in herringbone pattern, roofs of rich but subdued toned tiling, not an exterior that looks like iron, but one softly blending with its natural surroundings, not like a padded garment but one that more naturally shows the form beneath.

The interior is large and inviting, and comprises on the first floor library, living room, dining room, kitchen, pantry and cloak closet. The library will be fitted with oak bookcases with lead glazing in the doors. The living room shows a delightful inglenook, that harbor of refuge from draughts, and a charming center of interest with its fireplace, always the lodestone to which one is drawn, forming its main feature.

The second floor shows four bedrooms, a dressing room and a bathroom, separate water closet and ample closet and wardrobe accommodation. All the bedrooms will be panelled in pine, white enameled finished, the doors of the closets and wardrobes working in with the paneling.

The above design would cost $11,000, inclusive of heating and plumbing in Duluth and vicinity.

FINE RESIDENCE SITE IN EAST END DISTRICT SOLD

Mrs. Ada Siewert Buys Entire Block---Price Understood to Be $16,000.

Ray Property on East Third Street Sold to Martin Smith.

One of the finest residence sites in the East end district was sold this week through the office of Richardson, Day & Harrison, to Mrs. Ada Siewert. It is the block of ground lying between Fourth and Fifth streets and between Twenty-seventh avenue east and Wallace avenue, just where the Woodland street car line turns from Fourth street, skirting the brow of the hill. The price has not been disclosed but it is understood to be about $16,000.

The tract measures about 280 by 300 feet on its longest sides, the other two sides following the curve in Wallace avenue. It is elevated ground, with a gentle slope and is one of the finest pieces of property in the East end district.

Listen

Here's another opportunity to secure a magnificent building lot in BEAUTIFUL CROSLEY PARK!

Only about two weeks ago we placed for sale just 150 LOTS in Crosley Park Addition.

On the first day of the sale—in dreary disagreeable weather—right out on the property itself—over 100 lots were sold.

The remaining few were snapped up on the following day or two, and many prospective buyers were disappointed.

THIS TIME THERE ARE ONLY 50 LOTS, and they are the choicest of the whole addition, lying as they do, close to the best residential part of Lakeside.

City Water and Gas are laid on nearly all of them—Sewerage on many.

They are but a few short blocks from School, Church, and the Street Car line.

Adjoining Lester Park, the finest and most spacious public park in Duluth.

Every lot is perfect, high, dry, and with just sufficient slope to insure a magnificent view of the beautiful surrounding teritory, and of Lake Superior itself.

ONE DOLLAR DOWN.....and the reservation is made.
$1.50 to $2.50 WEEKLY.....the easiest of payments.
$330 to $600 TOTAL for a 50xl40 lot facing improvements
NO INTEREST.....and no payments when sick or injured.

TORRENS TITLE GIVEN!

Buy NOW, when prices are exceptionally low, and terms ridiculously easy!

DECIDE!

Grasp this opportunity to secure a Healthful and Scenic Site for your Home—away from the grime, smoke and noise of the city.

Out in the pure fresh air, where the children will grow up to sturdy, healthy men and women, yet with every convenience to the man whose work lies in the city.

A HOME AND A GARDEN TRACT—the ambition of every energetic man—may be yours now at small cost, and on terms so easy that even the small wage-earner can buy.

REMEMBER! There are but 50 lots in all, the choicest in Crosley Park, and they will go in a hurry!

SALE COMMENCES SATUDRAY AT 2 P. M.

COME ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON if you can! If you cannot, then COME ON SUNDAY.

Our salesmen will be at our office on the property, corner Fifty-fourth avenue east and Wyoming street.

HOW TO GO!

Take Lakeside car to Sixtieth avenue east, our automobile will meet you there—or walk west on Oneida street to Fifty-fourth avenue and then north on Fifty-fourth avenue, where you will see our large sale sign.

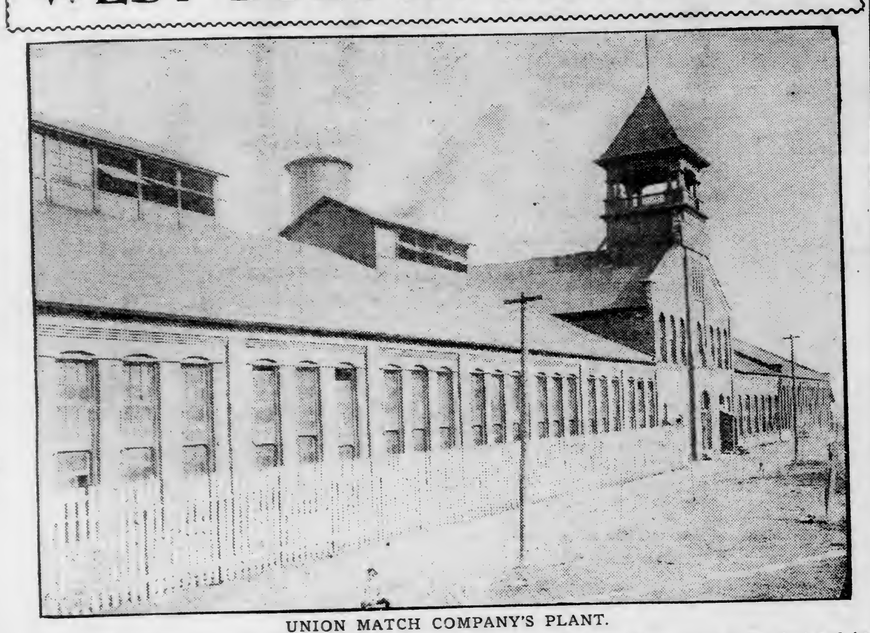
REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

WEST DULUTH INDUSTRIES



UNION MATCH COMPANY'S PLANT.

The Union Match company has been making matches in West Duluth for seven years and has been shipping its product all over the United States. Two cars per day is the capacity of the plant and two cars of matches a day going out every day for seven years have placed West Duluth on the map as far as the match-making industry is concerned.

The company has six acres of fine land at the site of its plant and has room for expansion. It has the most improved machinery for making matches and the plant is a busy place, 180 people being employed all the year around.

EXTENSION MEANS MUCH TO HILLSIDE DISTRICT

Proposed Street Railway Line Would Open Vast Residence Territory.

Realty Market Holding Its Own With Normal Healthy Tone.

The real estate market is holding its own. There are no pyrotechnics, no hysterical offers by frantic bidders for choice property, no settling of false values or selling of worthless lots in remote additions, which is a characteristic of boom times. The market is in a normal healthy condition, a condition that gives every man an opportunity to get good property at fair prices and to get fair prices for any property that he may have.

The movement is not as brisk as many people believed it would be. While people in general will rush all over each other to get in on fake propositions and prove the wisdom of P. T. Barnum's justly famous observation, they will stand by and deliberate long and carefully before they will put their money into bona fide propositions. Taking into account the vagaries of human nature, one may see that Duluth real estate is certainly a bona fide proposition, and the general public is following the dictates of its nature in dealing with it.

Real estate men are not complaining. The records in the register of deeds' office show that realty is being transferred every day. Much of it is in the way of low-priced residence lots all over the city, but many low-priced residence lots transferred will make a lively real estate market, while much money may be transferred in a few big deals in a dull market.

One of the most important developments of the week, having a direct bearing both on the real estate market and on the city as a whole, was the revival of the agitation for an extension of the street railway line on the hillside, with the probability of its being successful. If the street railway company can be shown returns for the necessary investment, the improvement will undoubtedly be made, and engineers and city officials are now working to make the feasibility of the plan plain to the officials of the company.

It is proposed to extend the line on Fifth avenue east to Fifth street, on Fifth street to Sixth avenue east, on Sixth avenue east to Sixth street, on Sixth street to Seventh avenue east, and north on Seventh avenue east to Eleventh street and to a junction with the route on the Sundby road, with the ultimate intention of extending it to a point near the poor farm.

The proposed extension would pass through a vast district which is now sparsely settled, but which would soon become a thickly settled residence district if the line were built. In addition, it would bring the farming and market gardening district back on the hill in closer communication with the city, and would aid in the development of resources that need development.

The city officials will be able to point out to the street railway officials the fact that there is perhaps not an adequate, but at least a substantial return on their investment, already in sight on account of the number of families already living in the district which the line would reach. The returns that the future would bring forth with the development of the district and the erection of homes that certainly will be built, are not hard to figure and the street railway company will very likely see the wisdom of making the extension.

The extension will mean the opening of a district that will furnish the working people of the city with cheap lots for the erection of their homes. The hill has a gentle slope at that point and the character of the land is such that it can be platted and the streets graded with comparatively little expense, keeping the price of the lots down to the minimum. The workingmen of the city have heard the "Own Your Own Home" call and, given a district such as that, they will heed it in such numbers that the proposed extension would be making money in a very short time.

Without the extension, the district will not be settled up until people are driven to it by the lack of ground or the high prices in other districts. Given the encouragement of a street railway line, they will flock to it gladly. The extension would open a new district of homes and Duluth needs more homes—as many more as it can get.

The census has been taken and Duluth must sit anxiously by now and await the pleasure of the census bureau at Washington to learn how big the city is. It is quite a task to take a census of a city the size of Duluth. Some people are certain to be missed in the count, but if strenuous effort on the part of everybody concerned could do it, an accurate census has been taken of Duluth.

There is, of course, much conjecture as to what the official figures will show. Real estate dealers are anxious to see Duluth in a higher class than it has been. The city has been growing during the past ten years and its full growth has not been shown. Duluth people want the proper size and importance of the city given to the world. The federal census is used as a basis for judging cities for ten years and Duluth is anxious to be judged aright.

The last federal census gave Duluth a population of less than 53,000. If the city has made a gain of 25,000 in the last ten years, almost everybody will be satisfied. Duluth people are convinced that the city has made that gain and the guesses being made by the more conservative citizens are to the effect that the official figures will show that the city has a population of around 80,000. Guesses over that figure are the wild dreams of the ultra-optimistic.

Certainly nobody will complain if the census shows 80,000 or thereabouts. Duluth people would like to reach the 80,000 mark but if the figures fall a little short, few would complain. If they should go a little over, everybody will rejoice.

But 75,000 is the mark on which people had set their hopes. An official census giving Duluth's population as 75,000 would put the city in a new classification for government statistics and for all other purposes. Many big capitalists dealing in real estate, will not go into a city of less than 75,000. If Duluth goes over 75,000, and there is ample basis for a guess that it will, much more business will come to the city than has in the past. The public spirited citizens, who assisted in getting an accurate census, will have cause for rejoicing.

GO TO COUNTY JAIL.

Saloonkeepers Plead Guilty to Selling Indians Liquor.

Fergus, Falls, Minn., May 7.—The grand jury yesterday returned indictments charging Joseph Gronette, Charles Williams, Gilbert Lien and Al Vallere with selling liquor to Indians. Gronette pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and to spend sixty days in the Polk county jail. The others pleaded not guilty.

Fred Glass and Joseph Beaulieu, two of the Mahnomen saloon keepers who had stood trial, were convicted of introducing liquor into the Indian country, and Glass received sixty days and $100 fine, while Beaulieu drew ninety days and $100.

The Best Bargain Offered Today in Central Residence Lots

There are only four left, but While They Last, we will sell you one of our fine lots at the northwest corner of Sixth street and Eighth avenue west at $400 to $550 per lot, on easy terms. Why not take advantage of this offer to get a start toward owning your own home and stop piling up those useless rent receipts? Remember, they are within one block of the Incline Railway; are nearly level, and there is no rock. Eighth avenue is graded and has water, sewer and gas in. The lots are surveyed, staked out and easily found. Stroll up that way tomorrow with your wife and see for yourself.

DULUTH PIONEER PASSES AWAY

O. R. Sather Came to the Head of Lakes in 1868.

O. R. Sather, 86 years of age, died yesterday at his home, 144 St. Croix avenue, of complications, resulting from old age.

Mr. Sather was one of Duluth's pioneer residents, coming to the Head of the Lakes when Duluth was little more than a straggling trading post in 1868, emigrating from Norway. He is survived by his son, Edward Sather, and one daughter, Mrs. Charles Sponnicke of 140 St. Croix avenue. The funeral will take place Monday afternoon from the Norwegian Lutheran church, First avenue east and Third street. Rev. J. H. Stenberg will have charge of the services. Interment will be in the Lutheran cemetery on London road.

O. R. SATHER.

FOREST FIRES GETTING DANGEROUS ON RESERVE.

Cloquet, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Forest fires in the timber land north of here and on the reservation in the vicinity of Sawyer are becoming dangerous. The woods at the present time are extremely dry, the spring vegetation not being grown enough to interfere and the lack of rain causing this condition. As yet only small timber of little value has been damaged, but if the dry weather continues, the fires may be disastrous.

DEATH WAS DISCOUNTED

King Edward's Demise Did Not Affect the Copper Markets.

Trading in Duluth Light, But Prices Hold Fairly Firm.

The death of King Edward has been discounted and the market today was not effected by his sudden demise. The London market was closed and any depressing influence that might have resulted from a lower market on the other side was thus obviated. When Queen Victoria died, consuls dropped one point, but her death occurred while the Boer war was in progress which added to the gravity of the situation. Monday probably will witness a lower foreign market but the decline is not expected to be severe nor prolonged.

To guard against a possible bear raid on acount of the king's death or a natural recession of values which might run into a session of liquidation in the face of holiday strong financial interests came to the rescue of today's market. The opening was firm but values soon declined. The downturn had not been well under way when support appeared and the market rallied quickly, closing on par with the opening and in many instances fractionally above it.

The report of the Copper Producers' association for April will be issued next Tuesday. It will show a heavy increase in supplies of copper.

Trading here was broad but light. The part paid Scott sold at $6 and $5.75; North Butte at $30.62½ to $30.12½; Red Warrior at $1.81¼ and $1.87½; Shattuck at $25.50; Calumet & Montana at 95c; Calumet & Sonora at $17.12½; Calumet & Corbin at 75c; and North American at $3.06¼ to $3.12½.

Butte Coalition sold at $18.50 to $18.25; Calumet & Arizona at $59.50; Giroux at $7.25; Greene at $8.12½ to $8.37½; Lake at $51 to $52.50; Superior & Pittsburg at $11.25 to $12; North Butte at $30.62½ to $31.75; Amalgamated at $66.62½ to $65.87½ to $66.62½; Steel common at $81.75, $82, $81.12½, $82 and $81.62½.

MEMORIAL MEETING

Former Subjects of King Edward May Formally Express Sorrow.

It is probable that Duluth Britons will in the near future hold a memorial meeting in testimony of their sorrow over the death of King Edward VII.

No definite plans have been made and the project is entirely without form, but undoubtedly such a meeting will be held, as there are in Duluth many subjects and former subjects of the British crown.

Vice Consul Henry Taylor has not received formal notification of the demise of the late king and emperor. This will come through the regular diplomatic channels and may not be received for some days.

Aside from the proposed memorial meeting, there will be no outward observance of mourning in the English colony of Duluth.

BAD FIRE AT ROSEBUSH

Settlers Along the North Shore Fighting Back the Flames.

A wireless message to The Herald this morning from Grand Marais stated that forest fires have broken out near Rosebush, Minn., and although there is practically no wind, the fire is spreading and is rapidly getting beyond control.

The farmers for miles around are fighting the flames and should the wind increase it is feared that great damage will be done. The fires started from bush fires along the county road not being properly cared for.

MARINE NEWS

WILL LAUNCH PETER REISS

New Boat Will Slide Into Water Monday at Noon.

Sister Ship Has Already Been Launched at Lorain Yards.

The launching of the new steel steamer the Peter Reiss will take place at the Superior shipyards Monday at 12 o'clock.

The new boat is 524 feet long, has a 54-foot beam and is 30 feet in depth. She is not as large as some of the boats launched last year, being about twenty feet shorter than the largest built a year ago.

The Peter Reiss is named after the president of the Reiss Coal company of Cheboygan, Mich. She was built for the North American Steamship company. She will be managed by R. A. Williams of Cleveland, Ohio. The Wolvin office will handle her at the Head of the Lakes.

All of the plans for the launching have not as yet been made. Who is to break the bottle of champagne over her bow on the occasion of her taking the water is not yet known.

A party of twenty-five from various Michigan points will come to Duluth in a private car to attend the launching. They will arrive over the Omaha Monday morning. The visitors will be taken around the boulevard in automobiles and then brought back to the Kitchi Gammi club where a luncheon will be served to about fifty, the entire number included in the launching party.

The A. F. Bevers, a sister ship to the Reiss was launched today at Lorain. The Reiss will go into commission in about six weeks.

WOLVIN BOATS CARRY WIRELESS

All Vessels of Line Are Now Equipped With Apparatus.

Each one of the eleven boats managed from the Wolvin offices in the Alworth building has now been equipped with wireless instruments.

The work of installing the last instruments was finished recently, and it is now possible for the Wolvin people to get a message to any one of their boats at almost any point on the lakes.

The boats so equipped are: Wolvin, Wallace, Ames, Bope, Frank Peavey, George G. Peavey, Heffelfinger, Wells, Hoyt, Kerr and the Reed.

The steamer James H. Hoyt has been lengthened forty-eight feet and entirely rebuilt. The repairs were made at the Superior shipyards. She will be ready to go into commission about May 15. The Hoyt is the boat that last fall went aground at Outer Island.

The Wolvin office is now located on the fourteenth floor of the new Alworth building. A fine lake view is obtained and they are said to be the finest marine offices on the lakes.

LUMBER BOATS CAN LOAD DEPTH OF 14 FEET.

United States Lighthouse Keeper James Corgan has notified the hydrographic office that vessels can load to a depth of 14 feet, at the dock of the Ontonagon lumber company.

The bar outside the harbor is being removed at the present time, the work not hindering the passage of vessels into the harbor, as the westerly channel is free. A large amount of dirt will be removed from the harbor entrance.

Dredge No. 2 of the Zenith Dredge company, which was ashore outside the harbor, has been raised and taken into the harbor. The dredge will be brought to Duluth for repairs.

LUMBER BARGE HALSTAD IS RAISED.

The lumber barge Halstead, which was damaged by being swept against the south pier of the harbor entrance last Sunday night, was raised today. The deck load was taken off the barge before the work of raising it was started. The barge will probably be taken to the Superior shipyards for repairs. The hole in the side of the Halstead is a large one.

BIG FLEET ON ITS WAY UP THE LAKES.

Word received by the Duluth office of the Pittsburg Steamship company is to the effect that there are a large number of the company's boats on the way up the lakes.

There was a large fleet awaiting the opening of the Soo and now that the American lock has been repaired this fleet has set out from Cleveland.

The opening of the American lock means that there will be more activity in the local harbor.

WHEAT HAS FIRM TONE

Is Strong Throughout the Short Session and Closes Higher.

Flax Dull and Weak---The Foreign Markets Are Closed.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 7.—Wheat was strong today, May closing ⅝c higher than yesterday, July 1c up and September 1¼c up. Bartlett-Patten bought the deferred months and the professional element trailed. May opened at $1.12⅛ bid and sold at $1.12½, $1.12⅜ and $1.12⅞, closing at $1.12⅞ bid. July opened at $1.11⅞ bid and sold at $1.12⅛ and closed at $1.12¾. September opened at $1.03 late in the session and sold at $1.03⅜ and closed at that figure.

Flax was dull and weak. May sold at $2.37 and $2.36, closing at $2.35¼ bid. July was $2.32 bid and September was $1.76 bid at the opening, selling at $1.75½, the close. October was $1.67½ bid at the close, after selling at $1.67½.

Oats closed ⅛c up, durum ¼c up and rye and barley were unchanged. Cash equalled May.

The market opened strong and advanced steadily. The buying in the deferred months was fairly active, while trading in the nearest option was dull. The situation in May is becoming strained and the bulls are not conceding anything. The shorts are liable to have some trouble in obtaining enough wheat for delivery, which would tend to result in a natural corner. The shorts are getting anxious and the market responds buoyantly to the slightest buying. The available stocks here are said to have passed, or are about to pass, into strong hands. It is rumored that when the atmosphere clears, the cash holdings here will be controlled by Waterman, the Albany miller, who has control of the cash stores at Chicago and who is said to have most of the cash supply at Minneapolis.

Four cargoes of No. 1 northern have been bought by elevator interests to go to Chicago and it is probable that more will be purchased. The stores here will play an important part in the situation. Whether prices can be forced upward much further before the wheat can be delivered at Chicago, is a question of interest, which will be determined as the situation is unravelled. Receipts are small here, although slightly larger than last year. The mills are still paying 1c over the near option for choice No. 1 northern.

The old crop situation is no longer a factor which can be regarded favorably by the bears, temporarily at least. There appears to be a heavy long interest in May, a fair short interest and not enough wheat in sight to supply the trading demand. The current option has experienced a steady advance this week and values have scored an upturn of 7 or 8 cents in the last eight days without a setback which gives the bears considerable to think about. The demand from the mills is not large, but if it should suddenly become insistent the question of supplies might become acute.

Buying in the deferred months has been steady and there is a heavy long interest in September. Weather and crop reports are mixed and the advance in the deferred options was surprising to some bears in the face of the more optimistic messages from the Southwest telling of rains and the improved condition of the plant. The leading bulls in the Southwest and Chicago have backed up their opinion in the last day or two by a steady accumulation of the September option. The Northwest is bearish, but has hesitated to sell in the face of the forthcoming government report and the unsettled weather and crop conditions. The short interest in the deferred months has been greatly reduced. The bulls think the market will be irregular with a tendency to advance steadily.

The bulls are beginning to worry the trade with reports of damage in the Northwest, but the general opinion seems to be that such claims are too early and that they are unfounded. Messages from the Dakotas which come from scattered localities say that seed has failed to germinate and that reseeding will be necessary. Other reports indicate that this claim applies only to durum wheat and that the condition exists in scattered localities.

Liverpool was closed today on account of the death of the king.

MARKET GOSSIP

Van Dusen-Harrington's crop expert said: "Reports have ben sent out from Minneapolis this morning to the effect that the fields of South Dakota are developing from 10 per cent to 90 per cent damage. Our own observers there have reported some poor fields of durum, due to bad seed, and some damage to oats, due to high winds and frost. How great the damage to these crops is we do not know because there is still plenty of time to reseed these fields. All crops, except durum and oats, are reported to be in first-class condition.

"We have no reports of damage of any character to the fields in Minnesota and North Dakota. Rain would be welcomed in some districts, but is not badly needed anywhere. Practically all seeding is completed, and corn ground being prepared. The outlook seems to us to be satisfactory in every way, except as to oats and durum in South Dakota, and there is every reason to believe that damage is small and will be overcome by reseeding."

Antwerp wheat closed unchanged, and Paris wheat closed unchanged to ¼c lower; flour, ¾c to 1¼c lower.

fifty reports from North and South Dakota claim that the wheat plant was not damaged by the recent cold weather, but that the coarse grains suffered slightly.

The Commercial West said: "There is almost no outside interest in wheat, and it is doubtful whether the public will become interested unless something in the nature of a general crop calamity materializes. The present price is fully an argument against the long side of wheat in the mind of the average person. In the Northwest there will be heard some complaint begins to be heard some complaint of rains being needed, but no one is as yet alarmed. In fact, it is argued by some that the present cool, dry weather is beneficial to the wheat, as it induces deep rooting of the plants. Should the Northwest not have showers within the next couple of weeks, however, there are likely to be many complaints from different localities, for, of course, the surface of the ground will by that time have become so dry as to cause considerable apprehension. At the present time it may be said that conditions are unusually favorable for the spring wheat crop in Minnesota and the Dakotas."

The following is from Poehler's market letter of yesterday: "Rains in South Dakota and North Dakota will do much good, especially in the former state. Conditions, generally, in the Northwest are promising. Of course there may be a few localities that are not showing up well, but this is as usual. Since yesterday morning there were heavy rains in Nebraska, Central and Western Kansas, light but general in Oklahoma. The forecast is rain tonight and Saturday in Nebraska, Kansas and Iowa.

"Rains in Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska and South Dakota were more than offset by the Modern Miller's Winter Wheat crop report, and other bullish reports from the Southwest. As the government report is to be issued next Monday, the Modern Miller report was accepted as a warning of what the official figures will be and in consequence, shorts became frightened and covered freely. The result was another good advance. The poor showing of the winter wheat crop is going rise to the question as to whether this country's crop next harvest will be large enough to show an exportable surplus or just sufficient for home requirements. The outcome will of course depend on weather conditions in the future in the winter wheat belt. as well as in the spring wheat belt. No export surplus would mean another year of good prices. Bo what it may, the situation has gradually changed so that it is no longer as bearish as it was some time ago."

Special foreign and American crop reports compiled by Finley Barrell & Co., follow:

"Argentina: Holders of wheat became rather discouraged during the past week, and the heavy shipments noted last Friday were a direct result of this feeling. It looks as though Argentina holders had over stayed their market.

"Australia: Movement continues very light, owing to railroad congestion, and the amount of wheat exported will largely depend on what railroads can do in the way of deliveries. Weather is favorable for the planting of seed, and this work is progressing rapidly, with indications of an increased acreage.

"India: Some re-selling of wheat is noted, with feeling among holders easier. Heavy general rains in Punjaub are delaying harvesting, although no damage is reported.

"United Kingdom and Europe: In the United Kingdom showery weather has been beneficial to the crops, although the weather is still too cold for proper development. European advices are generally favorable, especially from France, where rain has fallen exactly where most needed.

"Russia: Favorable conditions continue. Movement from the interior is light, being interfered with by bad roads, and farmers are busy with spring work.

"United States: During the past week another cold wave has overspread the country, and although frost is noted in some sections of the Northwest, it was not cold enough to affect the growing grain crops. Some light rains have been experienced in Nebraska, and our Enid correspondent advises us under date of the 5th inst. of soaking rains in the west half of Oklahoma. Mr. Le Count is now in Southeastern Nebraska, and from Lincoln he advises that the crop in that vicinity is looking fine. Wheat spotted with much spindly, small and yellow, although weather is favorable. Mr. Kinyon is continuing his investigation throughout Southern Illinois, and in all localities he finds the presence of Hessian fly. The fly itself is incapable of doing much serious injury at the present time, but it has succeeded in depositing its eggs, the infection covering the southern portion of Illinois, and extending into Indiana. Oats are looking generally good, and corn planting is progressing rapidly.

"Spring wheat—The present week has seen the balance of the spring wheat crop seeded, and the estimated increase in acreage this side of the border will probably exceed 1,500,000 acres over last year's figures, with an increase of probably 1,000,000 acres north of the border. The plant has an early start, and, despite the cold weather, conditions up to the present writing are favorable, although the weather is noted throughout the spring wheat country, and generous soaking rains are needed inside of ten days to allay apprehension and prevent deterioration of the plant. Advices received from the highest authorities in the principal spring wheat states indicate that the recent cold weather did little or no damage, except to barley and oats, and that a very small percentage. Note: A late weather report indicates rain for this section."

New Orleans Exchange Closed.

New Orleans, May 7.—Business was suspended on the local cotton exchange today owing to the death of King Edward. Message of sympathy were sent to members of the Liverpool cotton exchange.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Offerings Are Light With Shorts Shorn of Courage.

Chicago, May 7.—Short sellers of wheat seemed to have lost courage today. In the main, offerings were extremely light, although general rains in the West and Southwest continued and had extended to most of Illinois and a good part of the Ohio valley. According to one authority, the heavy holdings of July and September wheat by the bulls made the short side of the market unattractive until the government report is out of the way Monday. Prices opened a shade lower to ¾c higher with September ⅛@¼c up to $1.02⅞@1.03. An advance to $1.03⅛ followed.

Some profit-taking was done in July and September, under cover of the strength in May. Commission houses and the local crowd sought wheat on stop-loss orders during the advance. September went to $1.03¾ and closed firm at $1.03¼@1.03⅜, a net gain of ½ to ⅝c.

There was a good scattered demand for corn. Quotations started unchanged to a shade higher with September at 64c. Subsequently a gain of ⅛@¼c was scored.

On considerable local selling, however, the market turned weak and closed easy at 63¾c, September a shade under last night's figures.

In oats, local traders were trying to bull the September option and received some help from the cash houses who were taking the May delivery. September opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 38⅞@39c and touched 39⅛c.

Provisions sagged because of a lack of support.

The market opened 5 to 40c off and declined still further, going down to $22.20 for September pork, $12.37½ for September lard and $12.20 for September ribs.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Is Stronger on Rain News and Manipulation.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 7.—Wheat was stronger today. The lack of rains in the Northwest and manipulation in Chicago was responsible for the advance. May wheat sold today for 5½c above Monday's low and the Chicago September quotation sold 5c above Monday's the same option sold 5c above Monday's low. Shipments of wheat and flour from Minneapolis this week were 668,408 bu in excess of the wheat receipts. Local elevator stocks decreased 125,000 bu for one day. May closed 1c higher than yesterday, July 1c higher and September ½@⅝c higher. Minneapolis today received 126 cars of wheat against 105 cars a year ago, Duluth 20 cars against 14 and Winnipeg 129 against 42. May opened $1.10¾@1.10⅞; high, $1.11⅛; low, $1.10⅝; close, $1.11½. July opened $1.10¾; high, $1.11⅜; low, $1.10½; close, $1.11⅛. September, $1.02¼; high, $1.03¼; low, $1.02¼; close, $1.02⅝.

Cash wheat continued strong and steady. Demand was in excess of the daily receipts. There was strong competition among the millers to secure the choice grades. No 1 northern sold for 1⅛@3½c above the May option. Closing prices on track: No. 1 northern, $1.13@1.14½; to arrive, $1.12½@1.14½. No. 2 northern, $1.11@1.12½; to arrive, $1.10½@1.12½. ADVANCES IN STOCKS

No Sign of Disturbance Owing to King Edward's Death.

Close Somewhat Irregular and Active Near the Highest Point.

New York, May 7.—Buying orders of seeming urgency for some of the principal stocks were executed at the opening of the market. There was no sign of disturbance on account of the death of the king of England. The decline in stocks which occured yesterday apparently served to more than discount that event. The London stock exchange did not open today and there were no quotatons from there to furnish a clue to speculative sentiment. The first stock quoted in New York was Chesapeake & Ohio at last night's prices. There followed other quotations showing small gains and losses, mixed. Then came sales of 4,000 shares of Southern Pacific at 125 to 125¼ compared with 123⅝ last night. The opening sales of United States Steel were 3,500 shares at 81¾ to 82¼ compared with 81 last night and of Union Pacific 4,000 shares at 180 to 180½ compared with 179½ last night. Canadian Pacific rose 1¾. Amalgamated Copper and American Woolen 1 and Pennsylvania, Great Northern preferred and American Car large fractions. Colorado & Southern sold at a decline of 1¼. The opening prices were made the basis for selling which carried the whole market backwards after the opening.

The market closed somewhat irregular and active. Extensive profit-taking wiped out about all of the advances, and forced some of the international stocks back to yesterday's closing. Trading then became quieter, but there was a steady recovery, which carried prices to the highest point. The exchange to close at 11 o'clock prompted the shorts. Reading, New York Central, Rock Island and Chesapeake & Ohio advanced 1. St. Paul 1½, Union Pacific and American Smelting 1⅝, Tennessee Copper 1¾ and Canadian Pacific 2⅝. There were some recessions in the final dealings.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case.

WAGON MADE THREE TRIPS

West Duluth Police Arrest Thirteen Participants in Celebration.

Albert Black, colored, barber, of 230 South Fifty-sixth avenue west, sustained a badly cut head, and Albert C. Gaul, a white man and a companion of the negro, was severely lacerated about the face and hands as a result of a quarrel, which took place last evening shortly before midnight, when the men intruded upon an Austrian celebration in rooms over a saloon at 5620 Raleigh street.

Thirteen people were arrested, including Black, Gaul, John Hill, a bartender at a Finnish saloon at West Duluth, and a number of austrians. The police patrol wagon made three trips after the prisoners, and some were walked to the station. All of the members of the party, with the exception of Mirka Rojot, accused of shooting during the affair, were released this morning after the police had investigated.

Yesterday was a holiday among the Austrians at West Duluth. In celebration of the event, the boarders at the place kept by the Zirovich family at 5620 Raleigh street were drinking and holding forth late into the night. No actual disturbance occurred until their visitors arrived, which, according to the story told by the Austrians, was about 11 o'clock.

Black and Gaul had been drinking together in the saloon below. After closing time, it was suggested that they accompany John Hill, a bartender, to his room on the upper floor. The men went up the stairs, but instead of repairing to Hill's room, upon the suggestion of Black, they "butted in" on the celebration.

The Austrians were in good humor and invited the trio in, treated them to the drinks and used them in royal style, according to Gaul's own statement. After Black had accumulated a good-sized "jag" he became boisterous and began to break bottles on the floor and to throw glasses around the room. The Austrians took offense at the actions of their guest and were not backward in showing it. However, before they took a hand in the affair, Gaul interceded and tried to persuade the negro to leave the place peaceably and to avoid all trouble, but Black couldn't see things that way.

Gaul remonstrated with him for a while and then tried to forcibly eject him from the room. Black resisted and in the scuffle that followed between the two men, Gaul fell upon some broken glass which cut a bad gash in his hand. The wound bled profusely.

By this time, the Austrians forced the trio out of the room and threw them down stairs. Black picked himself up and he and Gaul started back up the stairs. Reaching the top, they knocked upon the door. When the Austrians opened it, the two men were made the targets of two bottles, glasses and in fact everything that came handy. Both were badly cut, but neither was seriously injured.

When the men were ejected for the second time, the officer of the boat had been attracted by the demonstration and summoned the patrol wagon. Sergeant Bradley, Officers Brouilette, Peters and Ek placed the entire party under arrest and took them to the station. One woman was among the party. She was Rosa Zirovich, who with her husband, ran the place.

Black claimed to the police this morning that when he came back the second time, he did so to get his hat which had been knocked off in the first scuffle, but his story is not corroborated. He also claimed that one of the Austrians, Mirko Rojot, had fired a revolver at him. His story was not substantiated in this particular either.

The police, however, in searching the place did find a revolver in the kitchen on the floor. The weapon had one shell missing, but there evidences that it had not been used for a number of weeks, as the barrel was rusty. Rojot was released about noon today.

The police are inclined to believe that Black got about what he was looking for and they will probably drop the cases. Black was warned by Lieut. Wilcox to keep away from celebrations of this kind in the future.

HEAVY WORK AT PROCTOR

Many Large Steel Structures Are in Course of Erection.

Extensive and important building operations are being carried on and are projected at Proctor, practically all of it steel structural work.

The American Bridge company is completing a big machine shop at that place for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, and in the near future will begin work on an ore car repair shop, in which 600 tons of steel will be used.

The biggest piece of construction work in prospect is a steel highway bridge that is to be 800 feet long. The rapidly increasing number of tracks at Proctor makes this structure a necessity, and it will be one of the best and longest of its kind. Work on this structure will be begun by the bridge company in about two months.

Two residences being built in Duluth will make use of many tons of steel. Gustave Carlson's new home at Twenty-fourth avenue and Second street is one of them and the other is the house being built by Norman McDonald at Eighteenth avenue and Third street.

FIRE IN OLD STORE BUILDING

Fire broke out about 8 o'clock last evening in the Foubister block, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Grand, entailing a loss of about $7,000. The origin is unknown, although it is supposed some one carelessly threw a match near an oil leak at the rear of the building, causing an explosion.

The losses are as follows: Building, owned by Thomas Foubister, $3,000; M. L. Olander, druggist, $1,000; William Strevel grocery store, stock damaged by water, $1,200; M. N. Buffer, saloon, $300 to stock; other occupants, George Adams, negro barber, William Foubister, Ole Melham and C. O. Lindross, about $1,500. Most of the losses are covered by insurance.

Edward Akerstrom of No. 8 fire department was struck in the leg by a hose, which had slipped from his grasp. His leg was badly bruised and he will be laid up for a short time. The building is an old landmark at West Duluth, having been erected twenty-two years ago.

THE CHARGES WERE UNTRUE

The charges made to the county commissioners and the Duluth Commercial club in regard to poor work and damages to property owners on the Schultz and La Vaque roads were yesterday investigated by Chairman McInnis and a committee of five from the county board, and found to be absoutely untrue, they claim.

The charges were made by the settlers. They claimed that he work which was in Mr. Overton's district and done under the direction of William McCumber, was not good and that much property had been damaged in putting in what were to have been improvements.

The whole matter, it is claimed by the commissioners, was the result of spite work. The commissioners found that the work had been well done and that there had been no property damaged as was alleged in the petition to the county board. The commissioners say the petition was circulated by a handful of men, and the signatures were obtained by telling the residents that it was a petition for a new road.

The petition claimed that the road was poorly constructed and was no improvement. The commisioners say that there is no fault to be found with the work.

Since the settlers found what the petition actually was, a number of them have asked that their names be withdrawn from it.

RECOGNIZED BY MOTHER

After an absence of twenty-five years, P. Mainella, an Italian grocer at 103 West First street, visited the place of his nativity, and his mother was the only person who recognized him. Mr. Mainella returned last week from a five months' visit in Bolano, province of Campobasso, Italy.

Twenty-five years ago Mr. Mainella, then a very young man, came to the United States to seek his fortune. He found it by hard work and diligent application to business and is rated as well-to-do. He decided to visit his former home, to see his father and mother and two sisters, so he packed his things and departed without more ado. He did not tell his parents of his intention, but when he appeared his motner immediately recognized him.

J. MAINELLA.

Mr. Mainella visited the scenes of his childhood and many persons whom he knew when a boy. While abroad his mother-in-law and an uncle died.

"I didn't recognize the towns that I saw," said Mr. Mainella. "Everything had changed. I didn't know anybody and had to be told who the people were. Only old peopel are left. All of the young ones have come to the United States. When I lived there the people raised fine peaches, hogs and cattle, but they don't now. They can't get anybody to work for them for there are no people left to work. They've come over here.

"Bolano is about seventy miles from Rome. I visited Rome and Naples and at Naples I saw Mr. Roosevelt when he landed. The Italian people paid him great respect. There were many Americans to see him land, too.

"Everything is high over there. Meats and vegetables are more expensive than here. The same canned goods that I keep in my store cost more in Bolano than here. I was glad to visit Italy and I'd like to make another trip, but I wouldn't stay there. I was mighty glad to get home again."

Mr. Mainella saw several Italians who formerly lived in Duluth and he carried messages from a large number of Italians here who have relatives in the province of Campobasso.

NEW RULING TO HELP SETTLERS

Washington, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large number of settlers in the eleven towns of the Red Lake Indian reservation will be benefitted by an order affecting entries, secured today by Representative Steenerson from the interior department, under which six months' constructive residence are counted in with the fourteen months necessary to prove up a claim.

This ruling was brought about through a threatened cancellation of the claim of Oscar Joppin, because he had not lived on the land for periods amounting to fourteen months subsequent to the six months allowed under the law for him to make entry on his claim. This entered up the entire question of these settlers' rights, with the result that the notice of cancellation sent to Joppin has been revoked.

DULUTH PEOPLE ARE AT NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Washington, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. C. Cokefair and wife and son of Duluth arrived in Washington today and are guests at the Ned Willard. They will remain in Washington several days, sight seeing.

Mrs. L. W. Hopkins, with her daughters, Jean and Ruth, formerly of Duluth, are in Washington for a ten days' visit. They have apartments at the Cairo.

LEATHER WORKERS WILL HOLD MEETING.

There will be a special meeting tomorrow afternoon in Kalamazoo hall of the Leather Workers' union for the consideration of important business in connection with the strike now in progress. The meeting will be held at 2:30 o'clock.

Will Ask New Trial.

St. Paul, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Michael Rossi, who was convicted at Duluth of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged, may get a new lease of life.

Governor Eberhart, who was requested to set the date for the execution, was informed this morning by Alexander Marshall of Duluth, that a new trial will be asked for Rossi at once. This is said to mean that the execution will be delayed.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION —OF— THE JEWELL MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

WE, THE UNDERSIGNED, for the purpose of organizing a Corporation under and pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 58, Revised Laws of Minnesota, 1905, and the Acts amendatory thereto, do hereby adopt the following Articles of Incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this Corporation shall be "THE JEWELL MANUFACTURING COMPANY," of the City of Duluth, State of Minnesota.

ARTICLE II.

The general nature of the business shall be to manufacture goods and wares, in wood, iron and mixed material, and more specific, the manufacturing of the Jewell Advertising Machine, covered by Letters Patent No. 862640, and dated the 6th day of August, 1907, and shall have power to buy, mortgage and lease such real estate as is necessary to conduct said business.

ARTICLE III.

The home office of said Corporation shall be in the City of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, and the period of its duration shall be thirty (30) years.

ARTICLE IV.

The management of said Corporation shall be vested in a Board of Directors, consisting of five members, elected by a majority vote of stocks in said Corporation, present either in person or by proxy, at the annual meeting of said Corporation. The annual meeting shall be held on the 3rd Monday of May, each and every year, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at its office in the said City of Duluth, and the first annual meeting shall be held at its office in the said City of Duluth on the third Monday of May, 1911. Each certificate of stock or share of stock or any fraction thereof shall be entitled to one vote.

ARTICLE V.

The names and places of residence of the Incorporation are as follows:
David M. Robertson, Duluth, Minnesota.
John Jewell, Duluth, Minnesota.
Henry M. Davidson, Duluth, Minnesota.
John F. Schleunes, Duluth, Minnesota.
John Sullivan, Superior, Wisconsin.
And the names of the persons composing the Board of Directors until the first annual election, 1911, is as follows:
David M. Robertson, Duluth, Minnesota.
John Jewell, Duluth, Minnesota.
Henry M. Davidson, Duluth, Minnesota.
John F. Schleunes, Duluth, Minnesota.
John Sullivan, Superior, Wisconsin.

ARTICLE VI.

The capital stock is to be Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000.00) fully paid up, and the number of shares shall be Twenty Thousand (20,000), each share of the par value of Ten Dollars ($10.00) per share. Said Twenty Thousand shares (20,000) shall be divided into Ten Thousand (10,000) shares accumulative preferred stock, and Ten Thousand (10,000) shares common stock. No stock to be issued in either class until fully paid up, and the preferred shares shall be entitled to a dividend of ten per cent on each share, and no dividend shall be paid on the common stock until the dividend on the preferred shares have been paid in full.

ARTICLE VII.

The amount of indebtedness of said Corporation shall at no time exceed the sum of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00).

ARTICLE VIII.

The Officers of said Corporation shall be a President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer. Mr. David M. Robertson is hereby declared President and Mr. John Jewell, Vice President, and Mr. Henry M. Davidson, Secretary and Treasurer, until the first annual meeting in the year 1911.

All officers of said Corporation shall be stockholders therein, and the commencement of the Corporation shall be the 10th day of May, 1910.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, We have hereunto set our hand and seal this the 4th day of May, 1910.
